MOST HISTORIC FLAG OF CIVIL WAR

FIRST FLAG AT RICHMOND

Now Owned by Paul Revere Grand Army Post of This City

Will be Displayed in Big Fourth of July Parade

Paul J. Revere Post, Grand Army of the Republic, is taking great interest in Quincy's grand Fourth of July parade, and at a special meeting Thursday evening voted to enter a large float. The Post has a large historic flag of which they are justly proud, and they want the people of Quincy to see it. Their feature will be styled "Lincoln's Boys," and several members of the Grany Army will take part.

The historic flag is about 29 by 19. As it is now 45 years old it has been quilted on cotton cloth, and some of the cloth will show, but it is remarkably well preserved. A good description of the raising of this flag at Richmond in 1865 is taken from Peleg D. Harrison's book, "The Stars and Stripes and other American Flags" published in 1906 by Little, Brown & Co., now in the library of the Post, as follows:

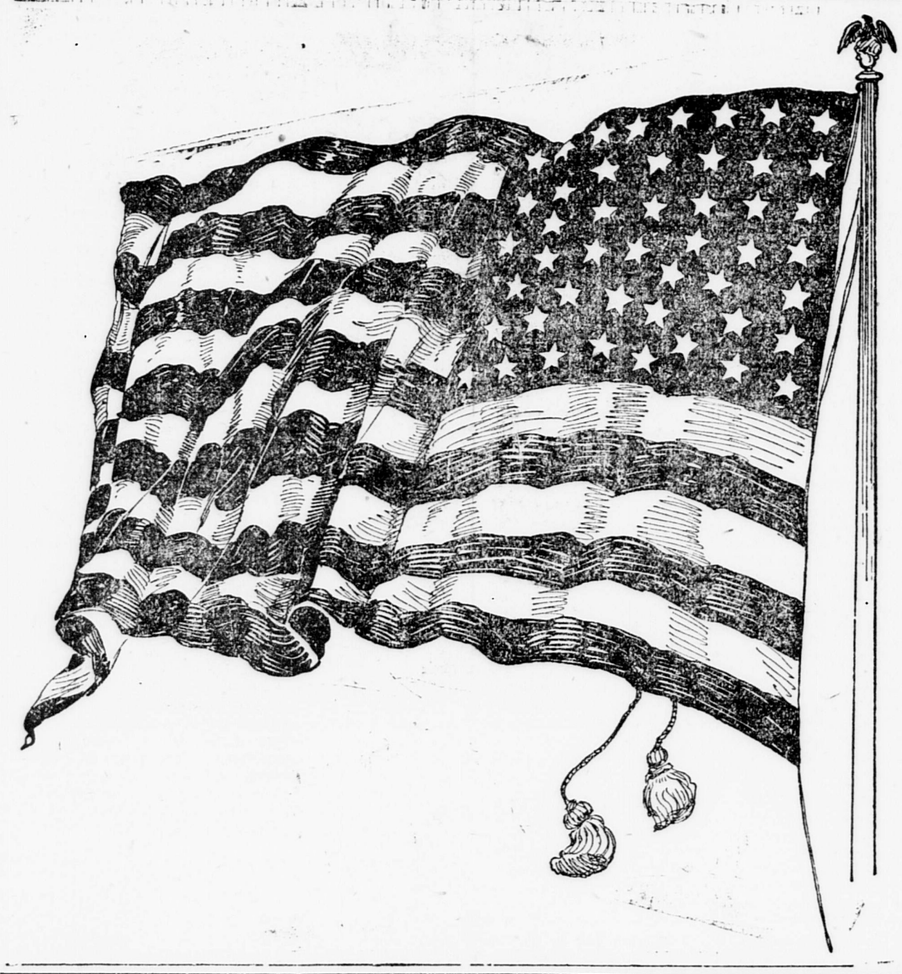

General R. E. Lee, at 10.30 A. M., April 2 telegraphed to President Davis that Richmond, the capital of the Confederacy, must be evacuated at once, which order was executed by early morning of the next day.

The first Stars and Stripes hoisted in Richmond on that eventful day was raised by Miss Elizabeth L. Van Lew, who was a highly valued spy during the war. She raised this flag with her own hands over her house, at an early hour, before the Federal troops had fairly entered the city.

Mr. John P. Reynolds, Jr., of Boston, the executor of her estate, contributes the story of this flag, which in substance, is subjoined.

Miss Van Lew, after all her four years of labor and the extreme danger through which she had passed, seeing that the fall of Richmond was imminent and that the Civil War was about to come to an end, determined to have a large flag to celebrate the end of the great struggle; she succeeded in getting a message to General Butler, who procured this flag for her. Flags of that size were not common in the army and not to be had on the fighting lines; but owing to Miss Van Lew's prominence and great value as a spy, and the interest which such men as Butler and others felt for her, they took the trouble to please her, and procured the flag and got it through the lines to her, which was no easy thing to do, for one would as soon think of storing friction matches in a powder magazine, as being seen with a package as large as an ordinary handbag, which contained nothing but a great United States flag, but she got it through and kept it in a place of safety until the right moment arrived. Then on the 3d of April, she being through her close connection with the Northern generals informed as to just when the army would arrive and just exactly what would be done, was ready to hoist the flag before the troops had entered the city, knowing that she was safe in so doing; moreover, her house was in such position that she was able to see, by going to the roof, from which one can look

MORE FUNDS ARE NEEDED

But Success of Quincy's Fourth of July Celebration Is Now Assured

Grand Parade and Big Display of Fireworks

Whatever doubts may have existed as to the success of Quincy's Fourth of July celebration have now been dispelled, for it is certain that the city will have one of the grandest days in her history; something doing all the time, and on a grand scale. A big parade of five divisions, athletic sports, water sports, base ball games, and a brilliant display of fireworks.

The general committee have been successful in raising almost enough funds, but request the Daily Ledger to make one final appeal as about $200 are needed. More than that could be used to good advantage, but nothing short of $200 will do. The committee want all the people of the city to feel that they have a part in the celebration, and that they helped financially to make it a success.

The route of the parade has already been published, and the committee request that all buildings along this route be decorated, and that flags be displayed in all parts of the city.

In brief the program for the day will be:

7.30—Grand Street Parade. 5 Divisions.
9.30—Water Sports at Houghs Neck.
10.00—Athletic meet at Merrymount Park.
1.30—Junior athletic meet at Ward Six Playground.
3.30—Baseball. Makaria vs. Copeland for the championship of Quincy.
8.00—Grand fireworks display. Merrymount Park.

Other events of the day will be:

Open house at the Washington Social club—24 hours.
Open doubles for cups at Quincy Tennis club.
Lobster Tournament at Wollaston Tennis club.
At 3.30 Baseball—Granite City League
Bigelows vs. Apprentices, Ward Two.
Adams vs. Cranch. Ward Three Hardy vs. Bryant. Ward Four.
At 10.30 Old Colnoy League.
Quincy vs. Stoughton.

HANCOCK STREET PAVING.

Work paving a portion of Hancock street on the west side under the order for $20,000 recently passed will soon be commenced. It is proposed to pave that section between Savil and Dimmock streets, and then to commence near Standish avenue, where work was stopped last year and go toward Neponset. It is expected that the appropriation will be sufficient to carry the work as far as the corner of Squantum and Hancock streets. The estimated cost of completing the whole west side of the street was $50,000, and it is planned to complete the job in three years.

PILGRIM UNION

Epworth Leaguers Meet at West Quincy Church

The third quarterly meeting of the Pilgrim Union of Epworth leagues was held in the Hall Place M. E. church, Thursday. The meeting was called to order by the president of the union, Herbert Cassidy of Wollaston, at 8 o'clock. After a short service of praise Rev. Carl H. Raupach, pastor of the church read the scripture lesson and offered prayer. The record of the last meeting which was held at Atlantic was accepted. Owing to the distance from some of the Leagues and the inconvenience of getting here some of the leagues were not represented, still, a good number were present from the nearby leagues and responded to the roll-call.

The resignation of Miss Grace O. Chapman, of the Stanton avenue Epworth League of Dorchester as secretary of the union was accepted. Five years ago in the Hall Place, M. E. Church, Miss Chapman was first elected secretary. Since that time Miss Chapman has been untiring in her work, always faithful and true and ready to do anything to help the union, never missing a meeting. She has gained many friends in the various leagues, and it is with regret that her resignation is accepted. She is succeeded by a member of the league at Neponset.

The speaker of the evening was the Rev. L. L. Hale, pastor of the Neponset church, who spoke from the text "Finally my brethren, be strong in the Lord." Mr. Hale said there are three resources to strength and power,—study, thought and application. He said, if the men and women of today, although their opportunities of going to school are over, would read and study the many books at their command in the libraries, exercise their minds by real deep thinking, and then apply what they already know and use what power they already have they shall be strong indeed.

Mr. Hale is o forceful speaker and gave an excellent address which was enjoyed by all. A rising vote of thanks was given the speaker, also to the retiring secretary, Miss Chapman and one to the entertaining league.

The benediction was pronounced by the Rev. Wesley Wiggin, pastor of the Wollaston Epworth league. The church was prettily decorated with flowers, the gift of Mrs. F. W. Fuller.

RECITAL.

Piano recitals of the elementary and advanced pupils of Miss Henrietta M. Gram were held in the latter's parlors on Kemper street on Tuesday and Thursday afternoons respectively. The recitals were enjoyed by a large number of parents and friends. The programs were carried through in a most efficient manner, progress being particularly noticeable on the part of the elementary pupils. Among those of the elementary pupils taking part were: Ferris Titus, Velma Haskins, Doris Browne, Lucille Snow, Emily White, Sybil Hobbs, Virginia Knowlton, Miriam Priest.

PENDLETON—LANDESS.

A pretty noon wedding was performed by the Rev. Carl G. Horst on Thursday when Miss Jennie Pendleton Landess was united in marriage to Clarence Mitchell Pendleton at the home of the bride's father, Robert H. Landess, 3 Holmes street, Atlantic. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles G. Pendleton of Atlantic. After a short wedding trip the happy pair will make their home with the father of the bride.

ST. MARY'S LAWN PARTY

Large Gathering at Residence of Mayor Shea

A lawn party and dance in aid of the garden party of St. Mary's parish was held at the residence of Mayor Shea, 12 Common street, Thursday afternoon and evening. An interesting program was arranged and a very enjoyable time spent.

The afternoon was devoted to the children and in the evening there was dancing on the lawn. An orchestra furnished the music. During the evening ice cream, tonic, popcorn, peanuts and candy were sold, a grab bag was much in evidence and James F. Burke operated the wheel of fortune. The prizes for the latter were boxes of candy. There was a large gathering present who thoroughly enjoyed themselves.

over all the James River and others parts of the city, pretty much the exact moment when it was safe to hoist the flag. This flag is about twenty-nine feet long and something like nineteen feet wide, and has thirty-four stars in the canton.

On the 3d of April, 1865, before the Federal troops had fairly entered the city, this large flag was run up on the Van Lew mansion so that when they came in by the eastern end of the city, known as Rocketts, and marched up Main street in sight of the old house, the flag was flying then. This must have therefore, been put up some time, perhaps an hour, before a United States flag was put up on the Capitol.

Elizabeth L. Van Lew was born in Richmond, Virginia, on October 15, 1818. Her father was a man of means and gave his daughter a splendid education, and she lived the life of a refined and elegant woman of the Old Dominion. Her father died in 1860, and when the war came on she announced her loyalty to the Union.

Miss Van Lew was of invaluable service, in many instances, to General Grant in his campaign around Richmond. She communicated information to him in various ways that he could not have otherwise obtained. President Grant appointed her postmaster of Richmond, and on February 26, 1877, just before his second term expired, he paid tribute to her loyalty as follows:

"Miss Van Lew was appointed by me postmaster of Richmond, Virginia, soon after my entrance upon the duties of President, from a knowledge of her entire loyalty during the rebellion and her services in the cause. She has filled the office since with capacity and fidelity, and is very deserving of continued confidence by a Republican administration."

She served several years as postmaster, until her removal by President Cleveland. Then she went to Washington, where she had a clerkship, resigning when taken from the first class and lowered to the second.

Colonel Paul J. Revere, of the Twentieth Massachusetts Regiment, and a grandson of the famous Paul, was taken prisoner during the war and confined in the Libby prison, where he was befriended in several ways by Miss Van Lew. Colonel Revere was killed at Gettysburg. In later years, when she was in need, remembering the assistance she had rendered him, a party of four Boston gentlemen, including Mr. John P. Reynolds, Jr., relatives and friends of Colonel Revere, regularly sent her $1000 annually until her death at Richmond, September 26, 1900.

A boulder, suitably inscribed, the gift of Massachusetts admirers of Miss Van Lew, has been placed over her grave in Shookoe Hill cemetery, Richmond.

When Miss Van Lew's furniture and effects were sold at auction in Boston, in November, 1900, Mrs. Nathaniel Thayer (nee Pauline Revere, a daughter of Colonel Paul J. Revere) purchased the flag Miss Van Lew raised in Richmond for $75.00, and on February 21, 1902, she presented it in the name of her brother, Frank Revere, to Paul J. Revere Post 88, G. A. R., of Quincy, Massachusetts. The post was named after her father.

FOR Liberty and Union, inseparable and one,
We pledge the blood and treasure of brother, sire and son.
Now and forever, even as ever heretofore,
To hold this flag in heaven our valiant fathers bore
When they stood like a rock
In the battle surge and shock
To front and slay the red array
Who Freedom's path would block.

AT Lexington and Concord, at glorious Bunker Hill,
At Brandywine and Monmouth, this banner floated still;
At Yorktown all triumphant it bellied to the breeze,
A signal of defiance to tyrants over seas
Who had dared forge a chain
For the freemen of the brain,
For sturdy hands in birthright lands
This side the sundering main.

O'ER Sumter's sullen ramparts, amid the wrath of lead,
Still proudly flew the symbol in white and blue and red;
At Gettysburg, Antietam, on Chattanooga Heights—
A hundred bloody battles, a thousand thrilling fights—
Still the flag fluttered there
In the rockets' lurid glare,
A staff of oak unbowed, unbroke,
A flash of colors fair.

SO, even at Manila, that deathless morn of May,
This banner streamed unstricken above the stricken bay,
And so at Santiago, Guasimas and San Juan
We set this beacon forward, where Valor urged us on.
And we raised o'er the town
As the conquered flag came down
This silken sign of peace benign,
Of progress and renown.

SO let us bear this standard, in battles yet to be,
Unstained above our columns, the cohorts of the free,
Nor ever loot and conquest inflame our fighting youth,
But only may they marshal for Justice and for Truth.
And heed, Columbia, heed!
By thy martyrs' blood I plead,
Lest thou profane this flag for gain
And shame its stars for greed.

NO FUND FOR FOURTH.

By ROBERT DONNELL.

"THE' ain't a-goin' to be no Fourth celebratin' at Slocum's Slough this year," said Uncle Si Slocum at the grocery store while he was unloading a big farm wagon cargo of fresh vegetables, berries and other good things to eat which he was selling to the grocer for cash.

"Why's that, Uncle Si?" asked the grocery clerk. "I was thinkin' o' comin' out myself an' celebratin' 'long with your three boys an' the Brown boys an' Henry Hillers. I know they burn up lots o' fireworks every Fourth."

"Yep," said Uncle Si, "but this Fourth it's a-goin' to be different. The great American eagle will have to flap his wings some'eres else this time, I reckon, an' jest let Slocum's Slough be lonesome-like."

"What's the trouble?"

"Money's too skeerce," replied Uncle Si, pocketing $49.85 which he had received for his load of produce. One of those fine, large yellow fellows, a hundred dollar bill, disclosed itself to the clerk's view when Mr. Slocum opened his pocketbook.

"Why, your crops seem to be fine, Mr. Slocum," said the clerk, "an' I s'posed prosperity was sittin' on every fence rail around these parts, singin' siren songs o' cheer, so to speak."

"The' ain't no famine, that's a fact," Uncle Si returned, "but all the same cash is too skeerce down 't the Slough fer the boys to celebrate proper."

"Paid off your mortgage last year, didn't you?"

"Yep, an' bought the eighty acres o' bottom land right south o' me too. But prices o' things is terrible high this year, you know."

"That may be," said the clerk, "but we're payin' you terrible high prices fer your produce, Mr. Slocum. I cert'nly can't just figger out how 'tis the' ain't no money fer fireworks in your neighborhood."

"Well, then, sence you ask me, I'll tell you, young feller. You see, my three boys an' the two Brown boys an' Henry Hillers is all a-goin' off t' college this nex' September."

"Oh, I see—got to save up their money fer books an' board an' tuition."

"Well, not zackly that, fer us old folks pays them bills. Them boys is all powerful ambitious t' git 'long well in college an' shine bright in the public eye."

"Want to take special courses in Greek or somethin', I reckon?"

"Well, no; but they've all got t'gether an' agreed t' save up their Fourth o' July 'lowance to buy football clo'es an' cigarette cases."

Yes, by George!

Now let the imperial eagle screech, the soaring orator start his speech; throughout the land from beach to beach the bands begin to play.

The liberty of which you've heard we bought with blood from George the Third, and still it is no empty word, whatever croakers say.

Though here and there a tiny rift appears in freedom's birthday gift, it's lasted down to George the Fifft'—and so hooray, hooray!

PLOT INSTIGATED BY YEGG NOW DEAD

Dying Bandit Tells the Police About the Lynn Shootup

Lynn, Mass., July 1.—Andy Abson, the bandit, who is in the Lynn hospital with a bullet in his head, received during a running battle after he and two companions had held up and shot Thomas A. Landregan and Policeman James H. Carroll last Saturday, in a story to the police accused the dead bandit, Joe Andpoirk, of being the originator of the plot to rob Landregan.

Abson claims that he met the other two men while beating his way on a freight train in New Jersey, and that the robbery was planned in New York. He stated the Russian newspapers published stories about the big shoe factories here, but he was unable to obtain a position.

He spent about three days in Lynn and then returned to New York and there met Joe and Iwanowski, whom he told of his trip to Lynn. Joe then thought of the plan of robbing someone and it was arranged they should come to Lynn. The three men made the journey separately, meeting in Central square on the day of the shooting.

Ned—"You see that reporter over there?"

Ted—"Oh, ay."

Ned—"How does he remind you of Father Time?"

Ted—"I don't see much resemblance."

Ned—"Can't you see that he's making minutes?"

The easy way to wash clothes.

Take a cake of Lenox Soap, cut it into small pieces and dissolve these in three quarts of boiling water. Keep at boiling point until a solution is formed.

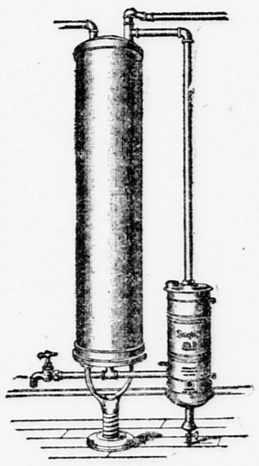

This solution will do better work than soap—and without any waste.

Rub the soap solution on the soiled parts, fold and roll each piece separately, pack in a tub, cover with warm soapy water, let stand overnight, and in the morning you will find that the really hard work of washing—the rubbing on the washboard—is not half as hard as usual.

KICK FROM WOLLASTON

The Last Change Too Much for Some of Commuters

Ed tor Daily ledger:

Wollaston people are entering a strong protest against the poor train service which a recent change (June 26) in the New Haven's time table has allotted to that station on the service between 4.40 P. M., and 5.20 P. M., an interval of 40 minutes without a train in the busy part of the day's outward traffic. Before the June 5th time table was issued there was an outward 4.50 P. M. a 5.15 P. M. (express) and a train all in a space of 29 minutes. This was an excellent service in that part of the day at the closing up time of the wholesale and many of the retail stores. Wolaston, in point of receipts from the passenger and freight traffic ranking next to Quincy over all other stations on the Boston division between Boston and Brockton, was apparently entitled to the undisputed possession of this good service at a time of the day when the tired business men and shoppers are in a hurry to reach home. When the June 5 time table shakeup came the 4.50 was changed to 4.40, the old 5.15 "Wollaston express" which for generations has helped build up that place was changed to a local, stopping at Neponset and Norfolk Downs, and the 5.19 disappeared entirely. And now on the June 26th change the 5.15 was eliminated entirely and the Wollaston patrons obliged to patronize a 5.20.

Other stations much further from Boston, after five o'clock in the afternoon, fare much better than Wollaston, as follows:

Station	Distance	Boston	Arrive
Wollaston	6.7	5.20	5.33
Hyde Park	8.5	5.12	5.27
Spring Street	8.5	5.05	5.33
Forest Hills	5.3	5.05	5.21
Quincy	8.0	5.12	5.27
Norfolk Downs	6.1	5.15	5.27
N. Abington	17.8	5.07	5.37
Braintree	10.1	5.12	5.33
Atlantic	5.5	5.13	5.29

It will be noticed from the above table that, with the exception of Wollaston, it is the invariable custom of the New Haven management to start Boston trains for the populous suburbs and outlying districts at from 5.05 P. M. to 5:15 P. M. It is only Wollaston, one of the largest suburban stations on the road, which does not have the good fortune to be includes in this invariable rule. Even the Boston & Albany and Boston & Maine follow it in catering to their ever growing suburban business.

Wolaston has been so discriminated against in this matter that steps are now being taken to lay the trouble before the Board of Railroad Commissioners.

SUPERVISED PLAYGROUND FOR WARD ONE

The playground in the rear of the Y. M. C. A. building will be opened to all children of Ward One or near by on Tuesday morning, July 5, at 9 o'clock.

The ground will be conducted this year by the Playground Committee of One Hundred, and funds are being solicited at this time to defray expenses connected therewith.

The accompanying cut is from a photograph made last season, and shows something of the number of children and of the daily activities.

This year additional space will be available on the lot fronting Foster street and more apparatus will be procured for the children's use.

The ground and gymnasium will be furnished by the Y. M. C. A. and head supervisors will be of the Association employed force without expense to the playground committee.

Miss Ella Packard has been engaged as first assistant supervisor and will have general charge of the girls.

The work will be conducted both morning and afternoon this year, and it is expected to make it a model playground.

The grounds are to be fitted up with sand boxes, see-saws, high and low swings, chute, giant stride, quoits, etc. With the games organized by the supervisors, story telling and other features of educational and recreative value, it will be an ideal place for the little folks to spend their days during July and August.

JUNIOR LEAGUE

Enjoy a Social at Hall Place Grounds

On Wednesday the Junior League of the Hall Place M. E. church enjoyed a social afternoon on the church grounds in charge of Rev. Carl H. Raupach, superintendent of the League. Sunday afternoon the Juniors held their last meeting prior to their summer vacation and the afternoon's enjoyment was a fitting close to the year's work. About thirty-seven of the Junors were present, including Miss Clara Olsen and Master Carl Olsen of Union street, Quincy, who were formerly members, Miss Clara Olsen having served as president before moving from West Quincy.

Upon the arrival of the children early in the afternoon, a search for peanuts was instituted, a large quantity of peanuts having been tucked in various hiding places about the grounds. After finding all the peanuts the children were given time to eat them. Next they played "Chase the Squirrel" which proved to be very exciting and lasting fun. Then came a peanut race.

Refreshments, consisting of iced lemonade and cake were served in the vestry by Miss Clara Olsen, Miss Edna Miller and Miss Ardis Raupach. Again the children returned to the grounds, where the boys played ball, while the older girls played croquet, the younger children amusing themselves by swinging.

About six o'clock the children adjourned once more to the vestry, where a short devotional service of song and prayer was held, after which the children reluctantly left for home, sorry to leave the place from which they had derived so much enjoyment and benefit.

The Junior League was instituted nearly three years ago when the pastor, Rev. Carl H. Raupach, first came to West Quincy. From the time it was first organized until last fall the pastor was assisted by Miss Beryl Hannant and since that time by Miss Maud Nichols as assistant superintendent. During the first year the Juniors took a course in the early history of the Bible, from the creation of the world to the birth of Christ, and at the close of the year gave an interesting and helpful review of their work throughout the year. It was an inspiration as well as a great lesson to see how interested these young folks, none of whom were over thirteen years of age, were in the great historical as well as Biblical events of the early centuries.

During the past year a great deal of personal work has been done among the children, and the foundation and history of the Methodist church has also been studied. The children elect their own officers and conduct their own business meetings, and show great interest in their work.

Rev. C. H. Raupach is a great worker among children, and is doing great good in teaching them the fundamental principles of Christian living and in fitting them for Christian service and activity. During the past year Miss Maud Nichols and Camile Fuller were graduated from the Junior league to the Senior Epworth league. The church grounds were prettily decorated with flags for the occasion.

LIVELY RUNAWAY.

There was a lively runaway in City Square Thursday evening, and but for the prompt work of Dr. Burke and a friend, serious damage might have resulted. The horse was one of Meyer Abraham's and was attached to a cow cart. The horse started on Newport avenue, and after dumping the cow by the roadside, the horse continued up through Adams to Hancock street toward City Square. The square was full of people at that time, and the horse was on the jump. As the animal neared the residence of Dr. Burke, he and a friend ran out and one grabbed each side of the horse's head. After being dragged some distance they managed to stop the animal. Had he continued on through City Square someone might have been seriously injured.

SURPRISE PARTY.

Tuesday evening, the peaceful quiet of Penns hill was rudely aroused by the tramp of many feet and the roll of drum and bugle, why what is it? What is going on? Oh, just the Jolly Sixteen again. Yes, it was the jolly ones' tramp, tramping to the measured beat of the drums towards the home of their president, for they had not forgotten it was the night of his fifth wedding anniversary and they were going to give him a little surprise party.

A surprise it proved too much for poor George's nerves and he was obliged to retire from the field of battle and take to the "hay cure" till more composed. When able to return he was presented with a beautiful banner inscribed "Let George do it," also a handsome baby carriage of the old English style now so popular. Seated in the carriage was a beautifully dresesd life-sized doll with wardrobe complete and many toys; not forgetting Mrs. Dexheimer, the ladies of the club had provided many useful articles such as a wooden wedding calls for, also a handsome oak rocker.

The winners of the whist souvenirs were rs. toddard and Mr. Merritt, Mrs. Johnson, consolation, Mrs. Merritt and Mr. Howe's. After whist a dainty collation was served, and as the hour of midnight sounded the club bade their president and wife adieu, each agreeing that this was the jolliest surprise yet, an dall were well satisfied to let "George do it."

—Forty thousand visitors are coming to Boston at the time of the annual convention of the National Education association in July, and if you shout "Teacher," on any of the Boston streets then, somebody will be pretty sure to turn around.—Somerville Journal.

Quincy will not be without first-class entertainment this summer, as Music hall will give their big Vaudeville and Moving Picture show every Saturday night providing the public care enough about being entertained to give the management their patronage. The Vaudeville will be the highest priced acts in the country as during the summer a great many large theatres close, and the acts can be secured to play one night a week at Quincy Music hall. The coolest spot on a warm night in the city. Each seat supplied with a palm leaf-fan and ushers pass ice water.

MEDALS AND RIBBONS

For Prizes at Picnic of Christ Church

A perfect day and a merry crowd of picnickers made Christ church picnic of Thursday one of the best, so everybody said. A long list of sports and games had been prepared, but the event which created the most interest was the base ball game for girls. Both teams were well captained; St. Margarets Giuld by Miss Gertrude Jones, the Junior Auxiliary by Mildred Smith. The features of the game were the fine catching by Miss Edith Fox, and the pitching and batting of Mildred Smith, who struck out many of her opponents and made a two-bagger and a single. The score was 12-1 in favor of the Juniors.

For the afternoon the Boys' club, in new gray jerseys, challenged all comers and were beaten by a picked team 16-3. The battery for the boys was Peter Williams, pitcher, and E. Littlewood, catcher; for the others, Sam Prout, pitcher and H. G. Johnson, catcher.

While the games were in progress, dancing was being enjoyed in the pavilion. Cake furnished by the teachers was served with ice cream at luncheon.

Following is the list of winners in the different events:

Junior 100 yd. dash—James Smith, Peter Williams.

Junior girls' 50 yd. dash—Violet Smith, Ardelle McDonald.

Junior baseball throw—Peter Williams, James Smith.

Red ribbons were awarded as first prizes in each event and blue ribbons for second place.

The Senior championship medal went to Everett Prout, who made 28 points, and junior championship medal to James E. Smith with 24 points.

Committee on sports—Rev. R. E. Armstrong, W. L. Thomas, H. C. Hallowell, Everett Prout, C. E. Townsend.

Coals of Fire.

"I thought," said he, "that those people treated you so badly, and now see! They invite you to their reception. Shall you go?"

"Why, certainly," said she. "Their inviting me showed they harbored no grudge against me for the way they treated me."—New York Press.

Well Answered.

"Oh, no; I don't claim to be any different or any brighter than the balance of mankind. I expect I shall marry some fool woman some of these days."

"If you ever marry that's the kind of a woman you will marry, all right."—Rochester Union.

A Telltale Touch.

"Is it true that sightless people can tell the color of things by touch?" some one asked a blind man.

"Occasionally, yes," came the answer. "If, for instance, I touched a redhot poker I could tell it was red."

Swift's Sarcasm.

"My brethren," said Dean Swift in a sermon, "there are three sorts of pride—of riches, of birth, and of talents. I shall not now speak of the latter, none of you being liable to that abominable vice."

BRIEFS

William Williams of West Quincy, is at home for the summer vacation.

There has been a great rush of poll tax-payers at City Hall during the past few weeks.

J. McInness and family moved today from Adams street to Cambridge where he has accepted a position.

The results of the Harvard and Yale races Thursday morning were promptly bulletined at the Ledger office.

Miss Helen Rhines has returned to her home on Miller Stile road from Rockville, Conn., for the summer vacation.

Albert E. Grant having accepted a position with a lumber firm in Lynn will move his family to that city Saturday.

Miss Mabel Gragg of West Quincy who has been confined to the hospital for some weeks arrived home on Wednesday and is improving slowly.

Mrs. Mary L. Wade of this city, specialist in domestic science work, has been asked to address the Domestic Science Congress to be held Sept. 17-24 in New York City.

The traveling public appreciates the seats put out by W. G. Shaw. They are occupied at all hours of the day by people waiting to take the electric cars. The square in front of Shaw's store is a busy place and a comfortable seat is a blessing.

Mrs. D. E. Wadsworth president of the Quincy Day Nursery was surprised and greatly pleased to receive six dollars this week for the Nursery from several boys who gave a circus to raise the money. The boys were: Guy Shaw, Willard Crocker, Walter Kenily, Leslie Andrews, Richard and William Walsh, Tod Elwell, Myron Ryder and Babsie Kitson.

R. D. Isaacs of Wilkes-Barre and Dallas Pa., who has been the guest this week of Mr. and Mrs. William E. Cooper of Revere road returned home Thursday. Mr. Isaacs came east with his daughter Miss Edna Isaacs who underwent a surgical operation at the Charlesgate hospital Boston, Sunday. Miss Isaacs is doing so well that her father was able to return home.

AIRSHIP BEYOND REPAIR

No Attempt Will Be Made to Reconstruct the Deutschland

Osnabrueck, July 1.—Count Zeppelin has arrived here, but has not visited the spot where his latest model, the Deutschland, was wrecked.

The latest information from the scene of the disaster indicates that the airship is a total wreck. The reconstruction of the craft will not be attempted, but all the available parts will be used in the construction of a new airship. The motors of the Deutschland, as well as the vertical steering planes, were found not to be damaged.

HARVARD'S DAY ON THE THAMES

Crimson Crews Win All Three Races From the Blues

YALE PUT UP GOOD BATTLE

Led In Varsity Eight Race For Two Miles, When Strength of Harvard Men Enables Them to Make Magnificent Spurt and Hold the Lead to the End—Varsity Four and Freshmen Races Captured by Crimsons

New London, July 1.—Harvard's supremacy on the water was driven home to the very heart of Yale when the great shell of the Cambridge varsity eight, driven along as though by powerful engines, swept over the finish of the four-mile course on the Thames three lengths ahead of the defeated, but doggedly fighting Blue warriors. The official time was: Harvard, 20:46½; Yale, 21:4.

Three times yesterday the Blue of Yale was trailed in defeat behind the Crimson of Harvard. It was an exact repetition of the humiliation that Old Eli had visited upon her here a year ago, and the sting bit deep. Yale lost with the courage that has always been hers, however, and her defeat was honored by the plaudits of generous rivals as well as by the thundering slogans of her myriad supporters.

Harvard's joy knew no bounds when the last of the three victories was scored. Every Harvard yacht along the line tied its whistle down and every Harvard rooter in in the miles of humanity that massed the river banks unloosed all the voice that was his, while the flashing of crimson flags, pennants, handkerchiefs and ribbons filled the eyes as completely as the din smote the ears. It was Harvard's day and Harvard knew it.

The two crews paddled up to the start just before 4:30. Yale got away in the lead and soon left clear water between her shell and that of Harvard. The lead was quickly increased to a length and a half.

Harvard hit up the pace, however, and at the mile was only a length behind. At the two miles, half of the race completed, Harvard was slowly but surely cuttintg down the lead. The Yale crew seemed to weaken. The boasted strength of the Crimson men began to tell.

Yale was pulling a thirty-six stroke as she passed the navy yard. Harvard also had a thirty-six stroke as the crews turned the bend in the river.

Yale then gained strength again and increased the lead to a length and a half, pulling steadily. But Harvard, after a magnificent spurt, took the lead after the two-mile stake. Yale then splashed badly and Harvard shot a length and a half to the good. Nearing the three miles, Harvard was still in the lead and going strongly.

She soon increased the lead to 2½ lengths. It looked as if Yale was almost all in, but suddenly the Blue eight spurted and cut down the lead to one length.

A quarter of a mile from the finish Harvard was two lengths ahead and Yale hit up the pace to thirty-eight, splashing badly. That was the end, for Harvard, rowing like a machine, swept on and won by three lengths.

Wallace, stroke of the Yale crew, collapsed and had to be cared for as the race ended.

The freshman eight-oared race, the first event on the day's program, went to the Harvard youngsters by two lengths. The time was: Harvard, 10:54½; Yale, 12:02.

The four-oared varsity race was won by Harvard after one of the most remarkable races ever witnessed on the Thames river in all the years Harvard and Yale have been meeting on the water. The Crimson crew, after being always in the rear, won the race in the last half mile, rowing the Yale four to pieces.

In the last eighth of a mile Harvard, by magnificent rowing, passed the Yale four and thereafter made a runaway of it. Harvard won by six lengths, going away all the time and finishing in grand shape. Yale, on the other hand, was outgamed and outrowed at the finish and her crew was badly used up. Time: Harvard, 12:57; Yale, 14:18.

Both were clean-cut races that were a credit to any crew to win.

AS SUBSTITUTE REFEREE

White Will Serve If Anything Should Happen to Rickard

Reno, Nev., July 1.—Charley White, substitute referee to Tex Rickard in the Johnson-Jeffries fight, has arrived at Reno with a party of New York sporting men and politicians. When interviewed White said:

"I shall be at the ringside ready to step into the ring and act in place of Rickard should any emergency require such action. I sincerely hope, however, that no such accident will happen to make this necessary."

Jewish Expulsions Continue

Kiev, July 1.—The expulsion of Jews still continues, 158 being sent out of Kiev in the last two days, sixty-one from Solomenka, and seventy-seven from Demieffka.

ROOSEVELT IS DEFIED

New York Assembly Declines to Indorse the Cobb Primary Bill

Albany, July 1.—The assembly, by a vote of 80 ayes to 62 noes, adopted the adverse report of the judiciary committee on the Cobb compromise direct primary bill. This is a complete defeat for Hughes and Roosevelt.

Speaker Wadsworth of the assembly openly defied the wishes of ex-President Roosevelt as conveyed through Chairman Griscom of the New York county Republican committee. After an hour's conference with Griscom, who informed the speaker of Roosevelt's desire that Governor Hughes be supported, Wadsworth said:

"Mr. Griscom and others have asked me to change my views on the direct primary proposition. I have refused to do so, and I do not believe a direct primary bill framed like the so-called Cobb compromise bill can pass this house."

WAR TO THE KNIFE

Roosevelt Is Going After Scalps of Bosses In the Empire State

Nahant, Mass., July 1.—From this time on it is war to the knife between Theodore Roosevelt and the Republican bosses of the state of New York.

The first news that the New York assembly had defeated the direct primary election bill was brought to Colonel Roosevelt at Senator Lodge's residence last night. The vote had this compensating virtue, that the result showed sixteen deserters from the bosses.

But the end is far away yet. There is going to be such a campaign waged within the Republican party of the Empire State as will be without parallel in political history. The contest will begin as soon as Roosevelt returns to Oyster Bay, and no quarter will be asked or given.

WHITE SLAVER GETS EIGHTEEN MONTHS

Woman He Claims Is His Wife Will Be Deported

Boston, July 1.—Max Peretz, whose arrest was caused by the agents of the Watch and Ward society, was sentenced to eighteen months in the house of correction on the charge of enticing Mrs. Julia Abrams, a detective in the employ of the society, to go to Panama as a "white slave."

Frieda Peretz, whom Peretz claimed was his wife, and who figured as the "white slave" in the trial, was no more than released from custody on the statutory charge on which she had been on trial with her alleged husband than she was arrested by Inspector Leonard of the United States immigration service.

Her arrest was based upon the fact that she was an alien and was earning her livelihood by improper means. She will be deported.

FIRE ON A STEAMER

Vessel Rushes Back to Port and Lands Passengers In Safety

Philadelphia, July 1.—Steamer Grecian of the Merchants and Miners' Boston to Philadelphia service raced with fire up the Delaware bay and steam won.

Eighty passengers aboard had retired for the night when the blaze was discovered. The stewards were ordered to go through the ship waking the passengers and asking them to dress and come up on deck.

The fire was discovered in the cargo forward when the Grecian was well down toward Cape May. By midnight the ship was abreast of Cape May and headed for the open sea. The fire had been stubborn up to this point. There was a burst of flame forward and the fire fighters came piling back from the foothold they had gained. Then Captain Briggs ordered the ship turned back up the bay.

MEAD FOR GOVERNOR

Present Lieutenant Governor of Vermont In Line For Promotion

Montpelier, Vt., July 1.—John A. Mead of Rutland was nominated for governor at the Republican convention in this city. Two ballots were necessary, there being five candidates in the field.

The final vote stood: Mead, 344; F. G. Fleetwood of Morrisville, 262; J. K. Batchelder of Arlington, 60; C. W. Gates of Franklin, 11, and M. J. Hapgood of Peru, 2. Mead is now lieutenant governor. L. P. Slack of St. Johnsbury was nominated for lieutenant governor.

Wants Death Sentence Commuted

Boston, July 1.—Attorney Bent of Lowell, counsel for Napoleon J. Rivet, who has been sentenced to die in the electric chair at Charlestown during the week beginning July 24, has petitioned Governor Draper to have his client's sentence of death commuted to life imprisonment.

SINCEREST FRIENDSHIP

Manifested at Meeting of Taft and Roosevelt

MR. PRESIDENT AND THEODORE

About All That Was Heard by Newspaper Man When Former President and Successor Clasp Hands—Politics Talked During Two Hour and a Half Conference, but the Public Is Not Enlightened as to Results

Beverly, Mass., July 1.—Senator Lodge's limousine car rolled up to the steps of President Taft's summer home yesterday afternoon, and almost before the wheels had stopped out jumped Theodore Roosevelt.

Five quick steps and he was on the veranda. A couple more and the screen door swung open. Out walked President Taft, and the two greatest men in the country stood face to face.

The Taft smile and the Roosevelt grin started together.

"Mr. President." It was Roosevelt who spoke first and the greeting came from the heart. "Theodore," exclaimed the president.

And as right gripped right they patted each other affectionately on the shoulder. Then they laughed and carried on in a way that left not a single lingering doubt as to the sincerity of their friendship.

"It used to be 'Mr. President' and 'Will,' didn't it?" cried the colonel. "But now its 'Mr. President' and 'Theodore.'"

And still hand in hand and with a couple of affectionate pats the president led his old friend and distinguished guest to the side veranda facing the ocean.

There, seated in two comfortable rocking chairs, the president, who was and the president who is rocked and talked and talked and rocked for two hours and a half.

And for two hours and a half the most momentous political conference of the new twentieth century was on while American people waited for the answer to the widely disseminated prophecies as to what was going to happen. Politically they are still waiting.

But if there is anything in friendship, if there is anything in appearances, in short, if there is any way of telling how one man really feels for another, the answer was given yesterday.

White House attaches, who witnessed the meeting said it was just like the old days when the president was secretary of war and Roosevelt his chief.

For the first time in sixteen months they were alone. Their heads were close together and the gestures and nods were frequent and emphatic.

But scarcely a moment passed that their voices were not ringing with laughter and both would lean back and let forth their happiness to their hearts' content.

As if the domestic touch only were needed, Mrs. Taft served tea on the veranda. Mrs. Taft, Secretary Norton and Senator Lodge sat about the wicker table and a more merry party would be difficult to find.

And Senator Lodge, unfailing friend and counsellor of the two, sat by and looked on almost benignly. Perhaps none enjoyed the meeting more than he.

Colonel Roosevelt was still in the spirit of the renewed association with the president when he started back to Nahant to spend a second night with Senator Lodge.

As he was leaving the grounds of the president's cottage a group of newspaper men, each willing to give all he hoped to possess for some word of what had really been talked of inside the gates, approached them.

"I had a most pleasant time with the president," he exclaimed. "There is really nothing to say, is there, Cabot?" turning to Senator Lodge.

"No, I think not," put in the senator.

"We had a most delightful time, and that's all there is to it," added the colonel. "It was an ordinary, friendly, personal conversation," he added, in response to a persistent questioner.

Following the colonel's departure, Secretary Norton came out, as he said, in response to a request from the president, "to appease the newspaper men and to answer any but too personal questions."

From what Norton said it was plain that Taft and Roosevelt were in perfect agreement in regard to the stand of Governor Hughes on direct nominations.

But further than that Norton refused to go and intimated strongly that there was to be not a word to the nature of the subjects discussed.

Farmer Held For Peonage

Montgomery, Ala., July 1.—Charged with holding a family of whites in peonage for thirteen years, Oliver Enzor, farmer of Lapine, has been arrested on an indictment from the federal court.

HINDS IS NOMINATED

First Maine District Republicans Want Him to Succeed Allen

Portland, Me., July 1.—Asher C. Hinds, parliamentarian in congress, was nominated to succeed Congressman Allen as representative from the First Maine district at the Republican congressional convention. The nomination was made by acclamation.

The nomination of Hinds ends a contest which began more than a year ago, when Frederick Hale, son of United States Senator Hale, began to organize for the campaign. This spring Hinds, E. C. Reynolds of South Portland and Richard Webb of this city announced their candidacy, and a lively campaign followed. Allen had declined to accept a renomination.

MILL MEN TO TEST CORPORATION TAX

Mills of Fall River to Pay Federal Tribute Under Protest

Fall River, Mass., July 1.—All corporations here will pay the federal corporation tax under protest, and the treasurers of most of them intend to emphasize their protests by delaying payment until formal demand is made for payment.

The tax is due July 1. Unless it is paid within ten days of that date a demand will be made, and accompanying this demand will be an additional charge of 5 percent on the amount of the tax. Most of the treasurers will submit to this extra charge in order to place their protests on record.

It is expected that all of the corporations associated with the Arkwright club will join with it in testing the corporation tax law in the courts.

CUPID MAKES A RECORD

June Marriage Licenses Issued In Boston Reached Total of 1144

Boston, July 1.—Cupid broke all of his previous "June bride" records in the Hub last month, while Death added to the month's distinction by making the poorest showing that he has made in any similar month in this city in many years.

Last month just 1144 marriage licenses were issued by City Registrar McGlennen and his assistants, as against 1036 in June, 1906, which was the best previous record.

Last year but 978 marriage licenses were issued in this city in the month of June.

ENGINEER JACKSON DEAD

Boston City Official Was Well Known Throughout the Country

Boston, July 1.—William Jackson, city engineer, one of the best known municipal officials in the country, died last night, the second city official to die of appendicitis in two days, and the third to be stricken within a week.

Mr. Jackson was born in Brighton, now a part of Boston, March 13, 1848. From 1885 up to his death he was the head of Boston's engineering department and under his supervision all of Boston's finest bridges were built.

Chile to Have Biggest Warship

London, July 1.—Chile has commissioned Armstrong, Whitworth & Co. to lay down forthwith the world's record battleship. The vessel will be 32,000 tons and will have a speed equal to or exceeding the fastest warship afloat. The ship will cost $15,000,000.

Fifty-five Deaths In Flood

Salyersville, Ky., July 1.—Advices received from the flood stricken section of eastern Kentucky say that fifty-five persons lost their lives, $250,000 damage was done and that in the lower valleys the waters are still spreading devastation.

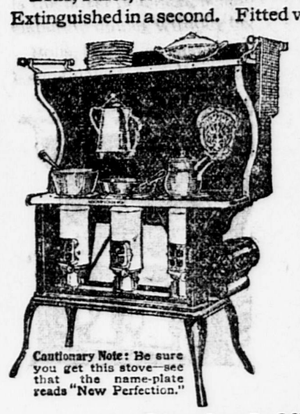

You Can Have a Model Kitchen

as cool and white as a dairy. No smell, no smoke, no heat, no dust. No old-fashioned contrivances. The

New Perfection
WICK BLUE FLAME

is the latest practical, scientific cook-stove. It will cook the most elaborate dinner without heating the kitchen.

Boils, bakes, or roasts better than any range. Ready in a second. Extinguished in a second. Fitted with Cabinet Top, with collapsible rests, towel rack, and every up-to-date feature imaginable. You want it, because it will cook any dinner and not heat the room. No heat, no smell, no smoke, no coal to bring in, no ashes to carry out. It does away with the drudgery of cooking, and makes it a pleasure. Women with the light touch for pastry especially appreciate it because they can immediately have a quick fire, simply by turning a handle. No half-hour preparation. It not only is less trouble than coal, but it costs less. Absolutely no smell, no smoke; and it doesn't heat the kitchen.

The nickel finish, with the turquoise blue of the enameled chimneys, makes the stove ornamental and attractive. Made with 1, 2 and 3 burners; the 2 and 3-burner stoves can be had with or without Cabinet.

Cautionary Note: Be sure you get this stove—see that the name-plate reads "New Perfection."

between a poor laundry and a good laundry is that one is careful and the other is not. In every lot of laundry work, there is a certain amount of care and bother.

If you go to a poor laundry, the care and bother are yours. A good laundry takes this off your mind. Nothing is too much trouble for us, if it pleases our customers. That is why we are so successful.

HALF A CHANCE

By Frederic S. Isham,

COPYRIGHT, 1909, BY THE BOBBS-MERRILL COMPANY

SYNOPSIS

CHAPTER V.

AT THE OPERA.

WHEN John Steele left the court toward the end of the day he held his head as a man who thinks deeply. From the door he directed his steps toward Charing Cross, but only to wheel abruptly and retrace his way. He was not an absentminded man, yet he had been striding unconsciously, not toward his customary destination at that hour, the several chambers at once his office and his home. For a moment the strong face of the man relaxed as if in amusement at his own remissness. Gradually, however, it once more resumed its expression of musing thoughtfulness.

Turning into a narrow way not far from the embankment, he stopped before the door of a solid looking brick building, let himself in and made his way upstairs. On the third floor he applied another and smaller key to another lock and from a hall entered a large apartment, noteworthy for its handsome array of books that reached from floor to ceiling wherever there was shelf space. Passing through this apartment, John Steele stepped into that adjoining, the sitting and dining room.

A discreet rapping at the door, followed by the appearance of a round faced little man with a tray, interrupted further contemplation or reverie on John Steele's part. Seating himself at the table, he responded negatively to the servant's inquiry if "anythink" else would be required and when the man had withdrawn mechanically turned to his letters and to his simple evening repast. He ate with no great evidence of appetite, soon brushed the missives, half read, aside and pushed back his chair.

Lighting a pipe, he picked up one of the papers. Amid voluminous wastes of type an item in the court and society column had caught his eye:

Sir Charles and Lady Wray, who are intending henceforth to reside in England, have returned to the stately Wray mansion in Piccadilly, where they will be for the season. Our well known governor and his lady are accompanied by their niece, the beautiful and accomplished Miss Jocelyn Wray, only child of Sir Charles' younger brother, the late Hon. Mr. Richard Wray, whose estate included enormous holdings in Australia as well as several thousand acres in Devonshire. This charming young colonial has already captivated London society.

John Steele read carefully this bit of news and then reread it. He ever found himself guilty of perusing all the other paragraphs, the comings and goings, the fine doings! They related to a world he had thought little about a world within the world, just as the people who lived in tunnels and dark passages constituted another world within the world. Her name danced in illustrious company. Here were dukes and earls and viscounts, a sprinkling of the foreign element, begums, emirs, the nation's guests. He saw also "Sir Charles, Lady Wray and Miss Wray" among the long list of box holders for that night at the opera, a gala occasion, commanded by royalty for the entertainment of royalty and incidentally of certain barbarian personages who had come across the seas to be diplomatically coddled and fed.

Folding his newspaper, John Steele turned to his legal papers, strove to replace idleness by industry, but the spirit of work failed to respond. He looked at his watch, rang sharply a bell.

"Put out my clothes," he said to the servant who appeared with a lamp "and have a cab at the door."

The opera had already begun, but pandemonium still reigned about the box office. A thunder of applause from within, indicating that the first act had come to an end, was followed by the usual egress of black and white figures impatient for cigarettes and light lobby gossip.

"Divine, eh? The opera, I mean!" A voice accosted John Steele, and, turning, he beheld a familiar face with black whiskers, that of Captain Forsythe. "This is somewhat different from the morning's environment?"

"Yes," said the other. "But your first question," with a smile, "I'm afraid I can't answer. I've just come, and if I hadn't—well, I'm no judge of music."

The curtain went up at last, the music began, and melodies that seemed born in the springtime succeeded one another. Perennial in freshness, theme followed theme; what joy, what gladness, what merriment, what madness! How long was the act; how short? It came to a sudden end. After applause and bravos men again got up and walked out. He, too, left his seat and strolled toward the back.

"Mr. Steele! One moment!" He found himself once more addressed by the good humored Captain Forsythe. "Behold in me a Mercury, committed to an imperative mission. You are commanded to appear not in the royal box, but in Sir Charles'."

"Sir Charles Wray's?" John Steele regarded the speaker quickly.

"Yes," laughed the other. "You see, I happened to mention I had seen you. 'Why didn't you bring him with you to the box?' queried Sir Charles. He, by the by, went in for law himself before he became governor. 'Only had time to shake hands this morning.' 'Yes; why didn't you?' spoke up Miss Jocelyn. 'You command me to bring him? I inquired. 'By all means,' she laughed, 'I command.' So here I am."

John Steele did not answer, but Captain Forsythe without waiting for a reply turned and started up the broad stairway. The other, after a moment's hesitation, followed, duly entered one of the larger boxes, spoke to Sir Charles and his wife and returned the bow of their niece. Amid varied platitudes Steele's glance turned oftenest to the girl. She was dressed in white; a snowy boa drooped from the slender bare shoulders as if it might any moment slip off; a string of pearls, each one with a pearl of pure light in the center, clasped her throat.

She waved her hand to the seat next to her and as he sat down, "Isn't it splendid!" irrelevantly.

"The spectacle or the opera?" he asked slowly, looking into blue eyes.

"It was the opera I meant. I suppose the spectacle is very grand; but," enthusiastically, "it was the music I was thinking of. How it grips one! Tell me what you think of 'The Barber,' Mr. Steele."

"I'm afraid my views wouldn't be very interesting," he answered. "I know nothing whatever about music."

"Nothing?" Her eyes widened a little. In her accent was mild wonder.

He looked down at the shimmering white folds near his feet. "In earlier days my environment was not exactly a musical one."

"No? I suppose you were engaged in more practical concerns?"

JOHN STEELE TOOK A SEAT CLOSE TO THE GIRL.

AT THE BOSTON THEATRES

PARK THEATRE.

When William Hodge, in Booth Tarkington's great American comedy "The Man From Home" terminates his engagement at the Park Theatre, Saturday evening, July 9th, he will be so with the proud distinction of having broken all known records in Boston, entertaining more people and playing to the largest box office receipts of any dramatic production. It was originally intended to bring the engagement to a close on July 2nd, but on account of so many letters addressed to Mr. Hodge and the theatre management from school teachers all over New England and from the States of New York and Pennsylvania, asking if "The Man From Home" would be on view during the week of July 4th when the teachers hold their annual convention in Boston, that Liebler & Company have prevailed upon Mr. Hodge to continue until Saturday evening, July 9th, when the season for both the company and the theatre will positively close. In many respects, the engagement of "The Man From Home" has been most remarkable. For the first 18 weeks the orchestra was placed under the stage so that the seating capacity of the theatre could be increased 33 seats. During the twenty-five weeks just passed, 253,181 people have witnessed "The Man From Home" an average of 1,285 persons a performance. A special matineee will be given on July 4th.

KEITH'S THEATRE.

For the week beginning with Independence Day at Keith's a typical program has been arranged, one that is bound to attract wide spread attention. In the first place it will include the Old Soldier Fiddlers, a remarkable company who will be seen in Boston for the first time. In it are four men, two who served in the Southern armies and two in the army of the north, all of whom are remarkable fiddlers. They play entirely by ear, and the manner in which they give the old songs and tunes invariably arouses the greatest enthusiasm. Another picturesque feature will be the Geisha Girls from Japan, who make their first appearance here. These eight little maidens from the land of the Mikado have been the sensation of New York this summer. They have a beautiful stage setting and their performance is typically Japanese with singing and dancing features. Porter J. White and company also will be seen in one of the strongest dramatic sketches of the year, entitled "The Visitor." Other features are Conlin, Steele and Carr in singing and dancing novelties the Havelocks, a company of remarkable jugglers who do all kinds of amazing stunts; and McPhee and Hill, the clown acrobats.

TREMONT THEATRE.

"The Girl in the Taxi" with Carter DeHaven and its all-star cast of players is now in its third month of unparalleled success at the Tremont Theatre. The hot weather seems to have no effect on the overwhelming patronage which continues to be bestowed on this rollicking fun-feast of laughter and merriment. The cooling device at the Tremont Theatre keeps the playhouse at a comfortable temperature and contributes its part to the complete enjoyment of this, the season's greatest and best laughable attraction.

The escapades of Bertie Stewart, played by Carter De Haven, with Mignon, "the girl in the taxi" arouse peals of laughter that fairly shake the foundations of the theare with their volume Don't miss seeing this diverting farce while the apportunity presents itself. It may be switched away to New York at a moment's notice to the regret of those who were tardy in paying the Tremont a visit while "The Girl In The Taxi" rattled along at break-neck speed there.

AMERICAN MUSIC HALL.

Determined to give his patrons the very best of the season's biggest dramatic successes. Lindsay Morison will next week present at the American Music Hall Wilton Lackaye's most successful vehicle "The Battle." This piece has appeared for a remarkably long run in both New York and Chicago and its only appearance in Boston was for a brief engagement in a first class house during which two dollars was the price charged for the tickets. Accordingly this will be the very first opportunity Bostonians have had of seeing this classic at the extremely low prices which rule at the American Music Hall. he leading role which in the original was portrayed by Wilton Lacake will be taken by Wilson Melrose who may be depended upon to handle it in a thoroughly satisfying manner. The opposite role will be assumed by Miss Rosalind Coghlan whose work thus far in the Morison Stock Company stamps her as an actress of exceeding versatility. But perhaps the most welcome announcement to Boston stock patrons will be that the production marks the first appearance this season of that strong favorite, Theodore Friebus who will handle teh juvenile role of Philip Ames. As usual chocolate bon-bons will be given away free to patrons Monday matinee and the same low prices that were inaugurated at the beginning will rule.

FOXCROFT IS REAPPOINTED

Governor Draper Ignores the Protest of Mayor Fitzgerald

Boston, July 1.—Governor Draper sent to the executive council the name of Frank Foxcroft of Cambridge to succeed himself as a member of the civil service commission.

Mayor Fitzgerald recently wrote a letter to the governor objecting to the reappointment of Foxcroft, on the ground that in his opinion one of the commissioners should be a resident of Boston. The governor declined to accept this view.

Simple Funeral For Daniel

Lynchburg, Va., July 1.—The funeral of Senator John W. Daniel occurred this afternoon from St. Paul's Episcopal church, and the obsequies were simple. The family decided against having a state funeral.

Nicholls Again Nominated

Boston, July 1.—The Prohibition state convention, held in Faneuil hall, renominated last year's candidate for governor, John A. Nicholls of Boston. When Willard O. Wylie, chairman of the executive board, called the convention to order, there were about twenty people present, increasing to fifty and one hundred later.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

BRIEFS

The Ramblers play the fast Institute A. A. of Boston at Merrymount Park on Saturday.

The torepdo boat destroyer Lawrence built by the Fore River company is at Santa Cruz, and the Birmingham sailed Thursday from Philadelphia for Portland.

The annual picnic of the Sunday school of the Universalist church is being held today at Glen Echo park. A large car load of happy children and older people left City Square for the park at 9 o'clock.

Owing to many of its members being busy arranging for the Fourth of July celebration, the meeting of the Ward Four Improvement association called for Thursday evening was omitted.

The West Quincy reading room, a branch of the Crane Public library will be open for inspection Tuesday July 5, and on Wednesday for business. The hour of opening is three o'clock.

The young people o fthe First Presby terian church are planning to hold their annual basket picnic at Glen Echo Park on July 4th. The ywill meet at Doble's corner at 10.15 and all who wish to join them are invited to do so.

Clarence J. Fouche, recently supervisor of music in the Quincy schools, has accepted a similar position with the New York schools, which he will assume with the opening of schools in the fall. This summer he will study music supervision at the New York university.

There was a largely attended meeting of the members of Merrymount lodge on Tuesday evening at Wilson's hall. A prominent resident of Houghs Neck received the degrees of the order. A bountiful spread was served at the close by Caterer J. W. Dennen.

Mrs. Frederic W. Plummer and children have gone to Auburn, Me., for the summer. Mr. Plummer is still in town dividing his time between the Chelsea High school where he goes Sept. 1 and at the Woodward assisting Mr. Rice the new master. He hopes to join his family later in the season.

The Ramblers travel down to Wellfleet Sunday morning to be able to play two games on the Fourth. The Wellfleet base ball team is considered the fastest on the Cape. They have a clever pitcher in a Portuguese named Rhodes, who is the mainstay of the team, while the rest of the team consists of residents there and college ball tossers.

NOTICE.

I will not hold myself responsible for any bills contracted by my wife Mrs. R. S. Rileigh after July 1st, as she has left my bed and board.

CHANGES IN TRAINS

Revised Schedule Published in Ledger Today

As noted in the Daily Ledger last Friday there are a number of changes in the train service between Quincy and Boston. These are shown in the revised timetable printed on another page. There are also some changes in the running of trains on Saturdays which are not shown by the timetable, so that people using a particular train on Saturdays would do well to look up their train.

INWARD TRAINS.

The train that left Quincy at 6.21 leaves at 6.20 and makes stops at Wollaston, Norfolk Downs, Atlantic and South Boston.

There is a new train from Quincy Adams at 6.30 and Quincy at 6.32 which makes stops at Wollaston and arrives at 6.47.

The train leaving at 5.24 P. M. will leave at 5.29 arriving at 5.50.

The only change in the Sunday trains is that the 11.16 A. M. train now makes the South Boston stop.

OUTWARD TRAINS.

The train leaving Boston at 2.15 P. M. makes a stop at South Boston.

The express train that left at 5.45 P. M. now leaves at 5.40 P. M. an darrives in Quincy at 5.56.

The 5.20 P. M. train now make a stop at Wollaston.

There is but one change in the train service of West Quincy that is the 7.25 A. M. inward train now leaves at 7.24.

From Montclair there are additional inward trains at 6.31 A. M., 5.15 and 6.15 P. M.

There are also new outward trains leaving Boston at 12.35 and 6.17 P. M.

REVIEWING STAND.

Chief Williams has a large gang of men at work today erecting the reviewing stand in City Square. The stand is located on the east side of Hancock street in front of the First church, and directly opposite City Hall. The stand is to be 72 feet long and 41 feet wide, and it is estimated will seat about 250 people. The city officials and judges will occupy this stand to review the parade. Leo P. Noonan of Houghs Neck, a senior at Boston college, will read the Declaration of Independence from the reviewing stand.

SPORTING NOTES.

Lincolns at the Water street grounds tomorrow. A game won or lost now means a lot to any of the teams.

The Ramblers play at Merrymount Park on Saturday.

The Fore River Apprentices will play a picked team from the offices in the yard on Saturday for the championship of the works. The game starts at 2.30 P. M. at Ward Two playground.

When the athletic events for Independence Day were first discussed baseball was prominently mentioned, and it was decided to purchase enough medals to award one to each of the twelve men on three victorious teams in the Granite City League. The games were to have been played on the Ward Two, Ward Three and Ward Four playgrounds. Now it is discovered that the entire appropriation has been spent for track athletics and no thought given to the great national game. There is a meeting of the Granite City League tonight, and there will be six disappointed managers.

Its a way they have at old Harvard, etc. Just think of cleaning up every race in clean-cut fashion ,the Blue was never in it Thursday. The varsity eight and four beat Yale by 6 lengths.

Johnson and Jeffries have quit training. Corbett says that Jeff is in good condition because he is grouchy. How can you tell when Johnson is fit? A smoke is always good-natured.

There were a number of athletic events at Christ church picnic and "Ev" and Ralph Prout capped them all. "Ev" won the championship medal with four first.

"Doc" Powers Day was a great success in Philadelphia.

There are about 150 entries in the Quincy meet. It has attracted some good performers and the blanks have gone to McGrath to be handicapped.

TODAY'S COURT.

Today's session of the district court was a busy one, In all 145 continued cases were disposed of. The larger part of these were for drunks either continued on probation or to pay fines. Some defaults were issued on the cases.

BRIEFS

The prizes for the Fourth of July athletic events have been on exhibition in the show window of Sandberg Bros. Jewelry store.

At a meeting of the school board of Cambridge Monday night Frank E. Parlin was unanimously reelected superintendent of the Cambridge school at a salary of $4,000.

Sometime last night an automobile owned by some person unknown became unmanagable on the Quincy Point bridge and succeeded in tearing away about forty feet of the fence. Just when it happened no one seems to know as the damage was not discovered until this morning.

The feet of submarines now at Provincetown includes the Grayling, Narwhal, Tarpon, Stringray, Snapper, Bonita, Castine and Severn. On Thursday the Cuttlefish, Viper, Tarantula and Standish sailed from Annapolis for Solomon's isalnd.

His Game Won.

In a campaign in Kansas some years ago, when the tariff was made a dominant issue, an old German was running for a county office in central Kansas. He didn't know enough about the tariff to talk about it two minutes. More than that, he didn't care much, for it had nothing whatever to do with the office he wanted anyway. But the voters were much excited over the question and seemed to think that every candidate should be able to discuss the problem from A to Izzard.

So this German and his campaign manager invented a successful subterfuge. When the German got up at the meetings to talk he would say: "Now, shentlemen, I vill talk mit you about der tariff. It is like"—

Just then his campaign manager would interrupt: "Why, John, you have only five minutes to talk. You cannot do yourself justice in that length of time on the tariff."

"Then I won't talk about dot tariff," would be John's inevitable reply, and he would go on to tell that he wanted a certain county office, and so on. His game won, and he was elected.—Kansas City Journal.

She Got It.

He (time 11:30 p. m.)—And you will think of me when I am gone? She (suppressing a yawn)—I'll try to if you'll ever give me an opportunity.

Life and a Living.

Many a man has made a good living who has made a poor life. Some men have made splendid lives who have made very moderate and even scanty livings.

GENERAL ORDERS

Details as to the formation of the parade are contained in the general orders of Chief Marshal Kincaide:

I—The following is published for information of all concerned.

II—Chief Marshal and staff will assemble on Adams street corner of Upland road at 6.45 o'clock A. M. Marshals of divisions, together with their staffs and all mounted citizens volunteering to serve as aids, will report to the chief of staff for instructions at the same time and place. Bands and drums corps engaged for this parade by the music committee will report to the chief of staff at 7 o'clock A. M. and be assigned to position in line.

III—The First division, consisting of all uniformed military organizations will form on Adams street south side, right of line resting on Goffe street. All organizations will report at 7 o'clock A. M. sharp to Major Frederick E. Jones, marshal of this division, at the above designated position.

IV—The Second division, consisting of organizations (not military) clubs, societies, etc., will form on Newport avenue, west side, right resting on Adams street near Presidents bridge. All organizations for this division will report at 7 o'clock A. M. sharp to Captain David E. Hanson, marshal of this division at the above designated position.

V—The Third division, consisting of floats, decorated automobiles, original features, etc., will form on Upland road east side- right of line resting on Adams street. In order to avoid confusion or mix up, all vehicles will enter Upland road through Dimmock street from Hancock street, and will be assigned to position in order of arrival. Entries in this division will report to Mr. George Elcock, marshal, not later than 7 o'clock sharp at the above designated position.

VI—The Fourth division, consisting of antiques and horribles will form on Goffe street east side—right resting on Adams street. All features and entries for this division will enter Goffe street through Dimmock from Hancock, and will report to Corporal Carl Weixler, marshal of this division, at the above designated position.

VII—The Fifth division, consisting of civic, trades, teams of horses, business automobile trucks and undecorated automobiles, will be formed on Hancock street, west side, right resting at the intersection of Adams street. All entries for this division will report at 7 o'clock A. M. sharp to Mr. Leo J. McMasters, marshal of this division at the above designated position.

VIII—The assignment to position in line will be made by the marshal of the division or an aid designated by him, and their decision as to position of all participants shall be final.

IX—Marshals will secure in their respective divisions a record of entries, the time of arrival, number of persons participating, and official designation of any feature represented. This information will be secured in each division by some designated dismounted aid and will be prepared on duplicate blank which will be handed to the Chief Marshal not later than 7.20 o'clock A. M. One set of copies will be immediately sent by the chief marshal to the judges, the other kept by the chief of staff for the information of the press and all others concerned. After a division

ATHLETIC SPORTS

At Ward Six playgrounds a meet for boys under sixteen years of age will be run off at 1.30 P. M. including running races, sack, potatoes and obstacle races. The prize will be handsome blue ribbons.

The athletic meet will be held at Merrymount Park and wil lstart at 10 o'clock. The events will be open except the three-mile run and the tug-of-war, which will be closed to residents of Quincy. The other events are the 100 yards, 220 yards, 440 yards dashes; 830 yards run, one mile run, and hop, step and jump.

The prizes in each of these events are first, a twenty dollar, twenty year guarantee gold watch; second, a solid sole leather suit case, warranted, and third, a heavy sterling silver medal.

Following is a list of the officials for the Athletic meet at Merrymount Park on the Fourth of July.

Referee—Walter B. Elcock.

Judges at finish, Richard Jones, Wallace Bennett, George Maver, Walter Lacey.

Field judges—Theodore Hermanson, J. J. Connors, Joseph Phillips.

Clerk of course, Peter M. Sullivan.

Timers—James Brogan, Leo Elcock, W. Mullane, W. Flynn.

Scorers—Alfonso LeClair, Walter McBinney, Arthur Camp.

Starter, Hugh C. McGrath.

Official handicapper—Hugh J. McGrath.

Announcer—James E. Neary.

Inspectors—E. A. Gisburne, Harry Boyd, Morris Cohen.

The committee is as follows: C. M. Gifford, chairman; Alfonso LeClair, Walter McBirney, George Maver, Harry Boyd, Theodore Hermanson, Joseph Elcock, A. H. Briggs, J. J. Floyd, J. J. Connors, James Brogan, Boyd L. Trask, Morris Cohen, P. M. Sullivan, James E. Neary, Wallace Bennett and Richard Jones.

HOSPITAL AID ASSOCIATION.

It may be of interest to some of the members of his association who have been unable to attend the meetings of the Hospital Aid Association to know the work that has been done.

Since March 1st this organization has sent to the hospital the following supplies: Sheets 96, pillow slips 75, rollers 24, dish towels 24, dressing towels 80, hand towels 24, medicine towels 36, doctors' towels 24, personal straps 60, dressing gowns 8, table napkins 60, wash cloths 48, hot water bag covers 24, bed pan covers 30, nightingales 12, swathes 48, blankets 25 pair, spreads 24, nightgowns 72 and bureau covers 12.

It is hoped there will be a large attendance at the fall meeting to be held at the home of Mrs. Theophilus King on Adams street the last Thursday in September. As the Hospital has increased in size so must its needs increase and much work should be done by the association the following year.

The price of coal went up Friday twenty-five cents per ton on all grades of anthracite variety.

FIREWORKS

The $500 display of fireworks for which a contract has been signed guarantees Quincy one of the best displays ever seen in New England. It will require about two hours' time. Already some of the special features have been set up in Merrymount park.

The contract was made with the International Fireworks Company or John Serpico & Bros., of Jersey City, New Jersey, represented by G. Stevens of Boston.

The specifications require twelve type written pages. Space will not permit a full description but here is a brief outline of the different numbers:

No. 1—Opening Salute, simultaneous discharge of 31 nine inch "aerial maroons," making terrific reports, announcing the commencement of the display.

No. 3—Powerful electric canopy, produced by the discharge of one 24 inch, one break, special shell with 48 Japanese gold stars with electric canopy, spreading 750 feet.

No. 4—Display of 12 heavy colored star batteries.

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

HOLIDAY NOTICE.

The Daily Ledger office will be closed all day next Monday, the Fourth of July. The Ledger of Tuesday will report in detail the celebration of the Fourth, also the sports of Saturday and the events of Sunday.

We would suggest to the people of Quincy that they be on hand Tuesday morning to witness the departure of the submarine Salmon on its long cruise to the Bermudas. There are features of the program which the Daily Ledger is not at liberty to divulge which will be of general interest.

The outlook is for a "Safe and Sane Fourth" in Quincy. But few permits to sell fireworks have been issued and the size and destructive qualities have been limited by State law. But Quincy has arranged a program for the observance of the Glorious Fourth which will interest people of all ages. There will be something doing all day, and boys are wondering how they can plan to take in the complete program.

The local Grand Army Post may well feel proud of their Richmond flag. To have possession of the first flag unfurled at the Confederate capital on the day of the evacuation is indeed a distinction. We are fortunate in knowing its history and about its original owner, Miss Elizabeth L. Van Lew. Everybody will be looking for the historic flag in Quincy's big parade on the Fourth of July. Hats off when it passes!

It is to be regretted that the State has not made laws which would place restrictions on express permits to transport liquor. The Chief Engineer of the Fire Department was permitted to grant but very few licenses to sell fireworks but firewater is much more damaging. If no liquor could be delivered with half a mile of a school house or church the City Council would be relieved of one of its problems.

West Quincy is the first outlying ward of the city to be favored with a branch of the Thomas Crane Public Library, but it should not be many years before Atlantic, Wollaston and other wards have the same convenience. More or less expense is involved for attendants and transportation of books, but the family of Thomas Crane is so generous in maintenance of the memorial building and grounds that the city should be able to extend the use of the library. The experiment will be watched with interest.

BUYS THREE MORE ROADS

The New Haven Controls Transportation In Western Massachusetts

Boston, July 2.—The New Haven road continues to extend its control of the transportation system of Massachusetts, having acquired three more small steam railroads in the western part of the state.

These roads are the New Haven and Northampton, Rhode Island and Massachusetts and Berkshire.

The purchase of these roads was authorized by the railroad commission yesterday afternoon and at the same time the commission approved the purchase of the Berkshire trolley system.

The steam railroads purchased by the New Haven cover about 100 miles in all. With the purchase of these roads and the control of the Berkshire trolley system the New Haven has absolute control of transportation in the western part of the state.

George V Gets Hudson-Fulton Medal

London, July 2.—General Woodford, chairman of the Hudson-Fulton celebration committee, presented to King George the medal which was originally intended for the late King Edward.

Malden, Mass., July 2.—Jacob D. Hook, aged 87 years, died as a result of injuries sustained in falling downstairs at his home.

RECEIPTS FROM TAXES

Total Larger but Unpaid Taxes Are Also Larger

City Auditor Fairbanks furnishes the following figures showing increases in receipts from taxes and water for the six months ending July 1. A comparison for three years follows:

TAXES.

1910 to July 1,	$162,828.96
1909 to July 1,	$130,075.67
1908 to July 1,	$131,223.04

WATER.

1910 to July 1,	$53,435.54
1909 to July 1,	$50,430.10
1908 to July 1,	$49,816.34

SEWER ASSESSMENTS.

1910 to July 1,	$8,079.22
1909 to July 1,	$8,703.72
1908 to July 1,	$5,904.50

Reference by the Daily Ledger to the City Book of 1909 shows that on Dec. 31, 1909, the uncollected taxes for 1909 amounted to $287,055.96, and that on the same date $88,928.98 were unpaid on tax of 1908, and also balances for other years.

Reference to the City Book of 1908 shows that on Dec. 31, 1908, the uncollected taxes for 1908 amounted to $260,-895.43, and that $64,550.61 were unpaid on tax of 1907, and also balances for other years.

Reference to the City Book of 1907 shows that on Dec. 31, 1907, the uncollected taxes for 1907 amounted to $217,-046.16, and that $39,955.57 were unpaid on tax of 1906, and also balances for other years.

From these figures it will be seen that although the collection of taxes has been larger in 1910, that the balance of unpaid taxes is larger today than in 1909 or 1908. It should be remembered that the tax levy of Quincy is increasing rapidly, the figures for the three years being:

Year 1909,	$665,484.83
Year 1908,	$609,666.52
Year 1907,	$557,811.42

has been once formed no changes will be made. The procession will move promptly on the minute of 7.30 o'clock A. M., and all late arrivals will take a position in rear of the parade.

X—Unmanagable draught animals or broken vehicles will be immediately removed to the side of road in order that progress of the parade shall not be blocked.

XI—The chief bugler will announce forward march by three bugle blasts. To halt the parade, or rest for any other cause, one bugle blast will be blown. These calls will be repeated by a designated bugler in each division.

XII—The chief marshal, marshal and chiefs of staff will be designated by sashes worn over the left shoulder. Aids will wear a red rosette. Judges will wear a ribbon badge. Sashes, badges and ribbons will be supplied at the hour of reporting.

XIII—Organizations and individuals who have not yet sent to the parade committee their entry are requested to do so at once.

XIV—The route of parade will be over the following route: Adams street from Presidents bridge to Hancock street past reviewing stand opposite City Hall, continue Hancock street to School, School to Marsh, Marsh to Water, Water to Copeland, Copeland to Miller, Miller to Furnace Brook Parkway, Parkway to Copeland, countermarch Copeland to Granite, Granite to School, School to Elm, Elm to Washington, Washington to Temple, Temple to Hancock, past reviewing stand, where prizes will be awarded in every case where a decision has been reached by the judges. Continue march to Coddington street, where parade will be dismissed.

WEST QUINCY READING ROOM

New Branch of Thomas Crane Public Library

The reading room at West Quincy on Furnace Brook Parkway, near the corner of Copeland street, will be open to the public on Tuesday, July 5, from 3 to 8 P. M. The location is both pleasant and convenient; those who visit the building will find it most admirably fitted for the purpose, and comfortably equipped to serve the needs of the reading public.

Tuesday, July 5, is opening day, when it is expected that His Honor the Mayor, the trustees, and the librarian will be present to receive all who are interested.

Any resident wishing to draw books may register on that day. The library hours beginning July 6, the day following, will be from 3 to 5.30 and from 6.30 to 8.30 P. M.

BLANCHARD—FITZHENRY.

Miss Ethel Fitzhenry, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Fitzhenry of Salem street, Malden was married Friday evening by the Rev. Fr. George O'Connor of the Church of the Sacred Heart, to Dr. W. H. Blanchard of Roxbury, who is in charge of the Fore River Hospital at Quincy.

The bride wore white chiffon cloth trimmed with Irish lace, a diamond brooch, the gift of her grandmother, Mrs. Edward Fitzhenry, a large white plumed hat and carried a shower bouquet of lilies-of-the-valley.

The maid of honor, Miss Marguerite Higgins, was in white chiffon over pink messaline, and a white hat trimmed with pink plumes.

The best man was Hugh Blanchard, brother of the groom. Dr. and Mrs. Blanchard will live in Quincy.

THE DIFFERENCE

between a poor laundry and a good laundry is that one is careful and the other is not. In every lot of laundry work, there is a certain amount of care and bother.

If you go to a poor laundry, the care and bother are yours. A good laundry takes this off your mind. Nothing is too much trouble for us, if it pleases our customers. That is why we are so successful.

DEAF PASTOR KEPT FROM LANDING HERE

Calls Forth Protest From Scandinavians In America

New York, July 2.—Refused admission to the United States because he was born deaf and dumb, although he has mastered speech, Rev. Karl Olsen, a Norwegian clergyman, has sent a formal letter of protest to the department of commerce and labor at Washington. The immigration authorities ruled that because he cannot hear he might become a public charge.

Dr. Olsen is here at the invitation of Danish and Norwegian churches of this city, and was to deliver a series of lectures throughout the country. His detention has aroused a storm of indignation in the Scandinavian colony.

Two clergymen who have taken up his case say that he is the pastor and instructor at the mission house for the deaf and dumb at Harstead, Norway, and that his work here will be directed by the Evangelistical Norwegian Synod of the United States

The Forepaugh and Sells Circus has complete garden of Zoology. Every representative of strange wild animal life is to be found this season under the menagerie tent of the Adam Forepaugh and Sells Bros.' Big United Shows which are to exhibit in Quincy on July 12. The collection cost over $1,000,000 and it is a veritable open library of natural history.

HOLD--UP REPORTED

Strange Experience for a Quincy Point Man

E. B. Evans of 18 Packard street, Quincy Point, reported to the police last night that he had been held up at the entrance to his home by an unknown man. Evans says that as he was about to enter his boarding house a man stepped out from behind a gate and commanded him to hold up his hands. When he did so the man said that he, Evans had been going with his sister long enough. He then put him through an examination as to his work, how much money he had, and numerous other questions all of which Evans said that he answered, meanwhile trembling for fear he would be shot. After the fellow had questioned him all he desired he said: "You are not the fellow I want, but I am going to shoot someone tonight." The fellow thereupon walked off.

As soon as he had gone Evans walked to Dr. Bushnell's office and notified the police. Officer Dhooge who was on duty at Quincy Point, went to the house and searched about but found no trace of the man. Evans' description of him said that he wore a derby hat and rough clothes. That he had red paint on his trousers and that he had a handkerchief tied about his mouth to disguise his face. Evans says that no demand was made for his money.

JAMES A. PATTEN

Manipulator of Many Great Deals In Wheat

PATTEN QUITS WHEAT PIT

Says He Has Carried More Than His Share of the Load

Chicago, July 2.—James A. Patten retired from business yesterday afternoon. The only statement he would make for publication was this:

"I have had a long siege in the grain business, have had more than my share of the load to carry, and yet I am glad I have been through it all and am ready to quit. The house of Bartlett, Patten & Co. finishes business and is succeeded by Bartlett, Frazier & Co."

MANY LICENSES REVOKED

"Original Package" Regulation Not Complied With by Hub Milkmen

Boston, July 2.—The licenses of nearly forty milk dealers have been revoked by the board of health because of failure to obey the new "original package" milk regulation. The regulation went into effect June 15.

Sufficient time has already been given the dealers, the board feels, in which to meet the new situation of affairs, and the board has now begun a rigorous enforcement of the regulation. Prosecutions will, it is expected, soon follow.

Notice of The Summer School

The Summer School will open its session on Tuesday morning, July 5, at the Women's Club House, Goffe street.

The school will be in charge of Mrs. John D. Mackay, chairman of the Education committee, assisted by the ladies of that committee.

The school term will be six weeks, beginning July 5th and closing August 13th.

Girls residing in Quincy between the ages of nine and seventeen are invited to attend this school free of charge.

The hours for lessons will be from nine o'clock until half past eleven in the morning.

COURSE OF STUDY.

Physical Training by Miss Ruth Bass of Sargent's school of Gymnastics. All sorts of exercises for development of the body, games and dancing. Most of the work to be done out of doors.

Home Nursing by Miss Blanche M. Thayer, Superintendent of Quincy City Hospital. In this course girls will be taught to prepare the bed for sick persons, to give baths and change clothes; how to dress wounds and give first aids; how to restore fainting persons; what are the symptoms of the commonest contagious diseases; the importance of isolation; personal hygiene and other important information which will be of great assistance to them through life besides teaching them the things which make for the health of the community. A prize will be given to the girl who does the best work in this course.

Current Events. There will be a course in current events and a prize will be given to the girl who does the best work in this course.

Spelling. Some time will be devoted to the old fashioned spelling-matches. The girl who spells correctly the largest number of words will receive a prize.

Vocational Work. The Education Committee hopes to be able to do some Vocational Work among these girls this summer. It will be their aim to find out what the girls who do not expect to go to High school are thinking of doing in the autumn and to be able to assist such girls in finding employment best suited to their capabilities.

Business Course. Some simple work among the girls instructing them about receipts, how to make out money orders, checks, the importance of signatures and ordinary business formalities, which women ought to know.

Household Art. Mrs. Stanley Bone will give a series of twelve lessons in Household Art. In this course it is expected that girls who cannot go to High School will be taught how to go into the kitchen and prepare wholesome plain meals and then leave the kitchen in perfect order. There will be a prize in this course for the girl who does the best work.

Music Some time will be devoted to music, Probably the learning of familiar songs.

It is expected that there will be four or five first-class lectures for the girls. The topics will be: "How a Statue Grows" by Mrs. H. H. Kitson. "The Story of a Great Painting" by Miss Georgiana Lane. "How a Great Musical Composition is Created," by Mrs. Chandler Smith. "Poetry and Moral Lessons" by Mrs. Richard C. Cabot of Boston (if possible.)

To the girl who gives back the best reproduction of these five lectures a prize will be given.

Swimming Lessons. These lessons will be given to girls who cannot swim upon days when the tide is high during the school hour. It may be possible to have these lessons in the afternoons.

Inspection of Gardens. There were started in this city one thousand home gardens. These gardens are to receive inspection. The inspectors are so systematizing their work that it can be divided and sub-divided. Any person interested in the garden work is invited to accompany inspectors on their rounds. Prizes will be awarded for the best specimens raised in the Home Gardens.

Swimming Class for Clerks. On Wednesday afternoons during the six weeks of the Summer School a teacher will be in readiness to teach the art of swimming to girls who have only that time for recreation. Those desiring to have these lessons will please give their names to Mrs. Souther at Wadsworth's store.

FOURTH OF JULY.

Henry James.

It's just as well to be prepared,
So get the oil and salve,
The listerine and glycerine,
And lotions you may have.
Make ready bandages and lint,
Clean up the knives and saws,
For soon wil l lads—one may be your's—
Respond to nature's laws.
Dust every operating room,
Chase all the microbes out;
See that the ambulance runs smooth,
'Twill need to run, no doubt.
Lay in a stock of chloroform,
Cocaine and ether, too;
An anaesthetic must be had,
And one of these will do.
One ever counts upon results,
If boys will play with fire;
Some may be only scarred and maimed,
But some will be called higher.
Oh, there's a time approaching now,
To which the average boy
(But never his proud parent, though)
Looks forward to with joy.
He'll have a cunning pistol ,then,
Torpedoes, crackers, bombs;
And tetanus will follow soon,
Or shatered bones cause qualms,
Perhaps he'll only lose an eye,
A finger or a thumb,
Or by a cannon have his spine
All twisted out of plumb.

Most parents like their little boys
To be alive and whole,
And so they deem the bloody Fourth
A burden to the soul.

BRIEFS

Lysander S. Richards of Marshfield Hills is receiving a visit from his grandsons from Washington. Clift the eldest is fourteen years old and a tall youth of nearly six feet.

During July and August while the First church is closed, the address of the assistant minister, Rev. Charles B. Ames, will be Groton, Mass.

The Wollaston train service has been still further improved having an express leaving Boston at 5.20 P. M. due in Wollaston at 5.33 which is a great accommodation for business men. The New Haven road should have the credit of giving us better service than ever before.

Houghton Schumacher of Quincy ,a student of Harvard Divinity school has been selected to preach a part of the summer at Marshfield Hills.

The L. S. Richards medals at Marshfield were won this year by Miss Margaret L. Knight and Miss Gladys L. Webster ,the former winning the High school the latter the Grammar medal. There is considerable competition for these medals. among the scholars at Marshfield and they have proven a great incentive to scholars.

The Winthrop Sun reports that F. L. Jewell last week rowed a Mullin's pressed steel, 15 foot boat from Lizzott's boat house, Quincy, to Crystal Cove avenue in three hours and 30 minutes. The distance is about 14 miles.

The money collected by the boys of Mr. Brown's Sunday school class of the Wollaston Congregational church for shrubs at the Wollaston station will be expended in the fall under the advice of Mr. Patterson, the florist.

The boys in Belleview Park and vicinity are making great preparations for a large bonfire on a high hill near Holbrook road. People in that neighborhood are generous with their old barrels, boxes and rubbish. glad to get their back yards and cellars cleaned out.

Houghs Neck people appreciate the improved street car service, the cars now making quicker time and keeping to schedule, all owing to the new feed wire put in this season.

Rev. Frederick H. Steenstra, from Manville, R. I., the new rector of St. Chrysostom's begins his duties Sunday.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

SHORTAGE MAY REACH $50,000

Cashier of Rockland Bank Is An Alleged Defaulter

HE IS PLACED UNDER ARREST

Officials of Institution Which He Practically Managed For Twenty-Eight Years Astounded at Disclosures Shown by Books When Bank Examiner Takes Them In Hand—Accused Man Supposed to Be Rich

Rockport, Mass., July 2.—George W. Tufts, cashier of the Rockport National bank for over a quarter of a century, was arrested on complaint of Bank Examiner Neal, who has charged him with misapplication of funds of the bank.

Although the exact amount of the shortage is unknown, a cursory examination of the books of the bank disclose a possible shortage of between $25,000 and $50,000.

The defalcation was discovered by Neal, who started his regular semi-annual examination of the books. Immediately after the first indication of a shortage appeared Neal called in the president of the bank and they summoned Tufts. The latter was unable to explain the shortage and word was at once sent to Assistant United States District Attorney Garland at Boston.

The latter ordered Tufts' arrest. Neal thereupon swore out a complaint against him, and Deputy Marshal Ruhl was sent from Boston to take him into custody. Pending his arrival, Tufts was questioned closely by the bank officials, who were astounded at the disclosures which the books showed, but he preferred to await advice from his counsel.

On his arrival in Boston, accompanied by the deputy and Neal, Tufts was arraigned before Commissioner Hayes and held in $15,000 for a hearing. He was unable to procure bail, and was committed to Charles street jail, where he passed the night.

Tufts, who is nearly 50 years old and married, had been connected with the bank for thirty-one years, and was implicitly trusted by the officials of the institution and the community at large. His arrest created a sensation in the little town. For the last twenty-eight years Tufts had been cashier of the bank.

The only reason that has been assigned for the crime charged against Tufts is that he had been speculating unwisely. Although it was known that he had wide financial interests, he had always been credited with an unusual amount of business acumen and was believed to be quite wealthy.

The bank is capitalized at $50,000. Six years ago it had a surplus of $20,000 and deposits amounting to $60,000.

Practically all of the business of the quarries was conducted through the bank, which has always been considered one of the strongest in Essex county.

A BREAK FOR LIBERTY

Two Prisoners Mysteriously Disappear From Penal Institution

Boston, July 2.—Two prisoners at Deer island succeeded in getting their liberty at midday in a manner which is a mystery to all the officials of the penal institution.

The men were Philip J. Hayes, who had served only a few weeks of a two years' sentence for larceny, and John Coughlin, who had been sentenced to four years' imprisonment for robbery, and who had served one year.

The officers on Deer island think that the men had accomplices who had planned with them to consummate their escape in a motor boat.

STARTED WAR ON SKEETERS

Death of Henry Weeks, Persistent Foe of the Insect Torments

Bayside, L. I., July 2.—Henry C. Weeks, the first man to start a systematic campaign for the extermination of mosquitoes in this country, died of general debility at his country home here. He was 66 years old and an architect by profession. His hobbies were killing mosquitoes and protecting shade trees.

Years ago he began pouring oil on swamp land near his estate, greatly to the amusement of neighbors. But he kept up his crusade against the monsquitoes. He leaves an estate valued into the millions.

Chauffeur Cushman Freed

Cambridge, Mass., July 2.—Chauffeur Lester D. Cushman, charged with manslaughter in causing the death of Miss Myra L. Swift, a Wellesley student, riding in an auto which Cushman was driving, was found not guilty after a jury had deliberated forty minutes in the superior criminal court.

Good Gold Season Reported

Fairbanks, Alaska, July 2.—Three millions dollars' worth of gold dust has been received by the Fairbanks banks since the season opened six weeks ago. More than $1,000,000 worth of dust has already been shipped to Seattle and more will follow shortly.

No. 69—1 set piece 350 square feet with 8 electric sun wheels will change into red, blue, green and silver.
No. 70—12 fireworks balloons. This is one of the most beautiful and interesting display of fireworks. We have invented new fireworks attachment for these balloons, making a much finer display.
No. 71—Set piece contains 6 Neapolitan bombardment with 72 Neapolitan comet star, 72 Neapolitan electric fountains and 72 large reports.
No. 72—Steamship siren, with signal flashlight. A new surprising novelty, and one of the most amusing pieces of fireworks ever made, being a large wheel revolving around an ever changing colored center, during which it whistles and screams in an unearthly manner, omitting sounds that are hideous, mournful and comical, finally terminating with a blinding Magnesium flashlight, which lasts for some little time. This is repeated three times in the wheel. During the Magnesium flashlight an excellent photograph could be taken o f the spectators.
No. 73—Special devices. One set piece 400 square feet with 7-60 inch magnesium wheels and other effects. These will light up the both sides of the city. The light being sufficiently strong to allow a photograph to be taken of the crows of spectators, the funny noises made by these wheels in motion create considerable laughter.
No. 74—Special exhibition—display of 48 extra large batteries with 48 extra large brilliant fountains, in between. One long line of spouting fire; of many colors and effects.
No. 75— Display of 12 jewelled cannonade batteries.
No. 76—A brisk engagement on the firing line; a curtain, the bare framework of which is 200 feet square, of 3000 electric flashes, with 1200 heavy reports. A realistic representation of a battle scene.
No. 77—Grand flight of 18 heavy electric mines.
No. 78—Grand flight of 150 colored bombshells red, green, silver, blue, amber, aluminum and gold. Each shell will break out three heavy reports. Altogether will spread over 1200 feet.
No. 79—Grand cannonade. A string 300 feet long, of 100 large cannon salutes.
No. 80—"Good-Night" in colored letters.

HALF A CHANCE

By Frederic S. Isham,

COPYRIGHT, 1909, BY THE BOBBS-MERRILL COMPANY

SYNOPSIS

(CHAPTER V.—Continued.)

He did not answer directly. "Perhaps you wouldn't mind telling me something about Rossini's music, Miss Wray?"

"I tell you?" Her light silvery laugh rang out. "And Captain Forsythe has only been telling me—all of us—that you were one of the best informed men he had ever met."

"You see how wrong he was."

The abrupt appearance of the musicians and the dissonances attendant on tuning interrupted her response. Steele rose and was about to take his departure when Sir Charles intervened.

"Why don't you stay?" he asked, with true colonial heartiness. "Plenty of room! Unless you've a better place! Two vacant chairs!"

John Steele looked around. He saw three vacant chairs and took one a little aside and slightly behind the young girl, while the governor's wife, who had moved from the front at the conclusion of the previous act, now returned to her place next her niece. During the act some one came in and took a seat in the background. If Steele heard he did not look around. His gaze remained fastened on the stage. Between him and it—or them, art's gayly attired illusions—a tress of golden hair sometimes intervened, but he did not move. Through threads like woven flashes of light he regarded the scene of the poet's fantasy. Did they make her a part of it—did they seem to the man the fantasy's intangible medium, its imagery? Threads of gold, threads of melody! He saw the former, heard the latter. He seemed content with a partial view of the stage and so remained until the curtain went down. The girl turned. In her eyes was a question.

"Beautiful!" said the man, looking at her.

"Charming! What colorature! And the bravura!" Captain Forsythe applauded vigorously.

"You've never met Lord Ronsdale, I believe, Mr. Steele?" Sir Charles' voice, close to his ear, inquired.

"Lord Ronsdale!" John Steele looked perfunctorily around toward the back of the box and saw there a face faintly illumined in the light from the stage, a cynical face, white, mask-like. Had his own features not been set from the partial glow that sifted upward the sudden emotion that swept Steele's countenance would have been observed. A sound escaped his lips—was drowned, however, in a renewed outbreak of applause.

"Old friend, don't you know," went on the voice of Sir Charles. "Had one rare adventure together, one of the kind that cements a man to you."

As he spoke the light in the theater flared up. John Steele, no longer hesitating, uncertain, rose. His face had regained its composure. He regarded the slender, aristocratic figure of the nobleman in the background. Faultlessly dressed, Lord Ronsdale carried himself with his habitual languid air of assurance. The two bowed. The stony glance of the lord met the impassive one of the man. Then a puzzled look came into the nobleman's eyes. He gazed at Steele more closely. His glance cleared.

"Thought for an instant I'd seen you somewhere before, by Jove!" he drawled in his metallic tone. "But of course I haven't. Never forget a face, don't you know."

"I may not say so much, may not have the diplomat's gift of always remembering people to the extent your lordship possesses it, but I am equally certain I have never before enjoyed the honor of being presented to your lordship!" said John Steele. Steele turned and, holding out his hand, thanked Sir Charles and his wife for their courtesy.

Jocelyn Wray gazed around. "You are leaving before the last act," she said, with an accent of surprise.

His face, which had been contained, impassive, now betrayed in the slightest degree an expression of irresolution. Her quick look caught it, became more whimsical. He seemed actually for an instant asking himself if he should come. She laughed ever so slightly. The experience was novel. Who before had ever weighed the pros and cons when extended this privilege? Then the next moment the blue eyes lost some of their mirth. Perhaps his manner made her feel the frankinformality she had unconsciously been guilty of. She regarded him more coldly.

"Thank you," he said. "You are very good. I shall be most glad."

And, bowing to her and to the others, he once more turned. As he passed Lord Ronsdale the eyes of the two men again met. Those of the nobleman suddenly dilated, and he started His gaze followed the retreating figure.

LOSS WILL BE HEAVY

Fires Are Sweeping Through Forests In the Superior Country

Winnipeg, Man., July 2.—Forest fires are burning in every direction along the boundary from Rainey river to Lake Superior. Smoke still hangs in heavy clouds over towns and cities, and there is a large amount of ashes in the air.

Navigation is made difficult, and the whole country seems to be burning. Several railway construction camps and powder magazines have been destroyed.

The Pembroke Contracting company lost its camp and supplies to the value of $100,000. Flames have rushed for several days through the forests, traveling sometimes over the tops of trees at a rate of four miles an hour.

BOMBS FROM AN AIRSHIP

Aviator Curtiss Hit His Mark Eighteen Out of Twenty Times

Hammondsport, N. Y., July 2.—To demonstrate the effectiveness of the aeroplane in naval warfare, Glenn Curtiss, the aviator, made several flights in a biplane over Lake Keuka in the presence of Admiral Kimball of the navy department at Washington and dropped twenty bombs at marks.

He is credited with having hit the mark eighteen times in the twenty trials. Admiral Kimball is said to have expressed himself as greatly impressed with the possibilities of the aeroplane in warfare.

Four Killed In Explosion

Helena, Mont., July 2.—George Hart fired a 22-calibre rifle against a building in which a quantity of dynamite was stored. A terrific explosion followed, demolishing Hart's home. Hart and his wife were killed, their baby was fatally injured and two men were killed.

A BOSTON GIRL'S BUDGET.

Spidery Veils Make Hub Women Crawl—College Boys Sing "Sweet Adeline" for Johnnie Fitz's Benefit A Quarter Extra for Table Fixtures May Add to the Cost of High Living —Brown Tail Fuzzy-Wuzzes Make Itching Shoulder Blades—Historic Brook Farm Still Invites Associationists.

Boston women are inclined to crawl on the latest fashion edict from London. They have become quite accustomed to the Chantecler veils with roosters and various domestic and wild fowl liberally plastered on thin meshed face coverings, giving a well dressed woman the appearance at a little distance of having had a disagreement with her husband during which she had received a punch in the eye, a disfigured cheek bone, and a broken nose. The lattest London mode ,however, is a veil woven in the manner of a spiders web, upon which is a beauty spot is placed a black plush spider of goodly proportions, which lends a sufficiently creepy and crawly effect to suit the demands of the most advanced stage of delirium tremens.

The hot weather Hub, which never apses into summer dullness until after the Fourth, is exceptionally lively this year. What with the Harvard Commencement festivities the circus, arrivals of the early comers to the National Educational Asso convention the departure of 200 or more members of the real estate exchange with their friends on an automobile tour through the state, and the serenading of Mayor Fitzgerald at City Hall by the Harvard class of 1900, Bostonians have been busily following the band. The college "boys" of 1900 made a picturesque spectacle as they marched down School street ,singing "Sweet Adeline" for the Mayor's benefit and wearing gaily colored bands on their hats. The doughty mayor lost no time in joining in the chorus, and on receiving a green necktie with white stripes ,a huge cigar and a specially designed pipe, as tokens of good fellowship, he made a brief speech to the assembled enthusiasts. Councilman Collins, also a member of the class of 1900 accompanied the Mayor.

Still increases the cost of living as young America likes to live. Possibly slower Boston will escape New York's threatened fate, but it is rumored that the management of several of the big Gotham hotels are to introduce one of the most odious impositions of European restaurants, namely a charge of 25 cents per person for the "couvert," or service of napkin, knife and fork, bread, butter, salt, pepper, and so on which go with all well regulated dining tables. One pictures the expression on the face of Mr. Family Man, after "blowing" his wife and friends to a dinner downtown which made him inwardly groan, he is presented with a check including a charge of one dollar extra for the "couvert." It is probable that this innovation will meet with much the same fate as did the recent edict of the proprietors of the Cafe de l'Opera in the metropolis who required their patrons to appear in evening dress or not at all. It is safe to say that any hotel in Boston which undertook such drastic changes would find itself drowning in its own soups ere long.

Copley Square bids fair to become one of the greatest of outdoor art galleries. It is promised that within a year a national memorial to Edward Everett Hale, Boston's grand old man, will be sculptured by the artist, Bela Pratt ,and placed in Copley Square as a lasting tribute of the citizens of the country to a man who rendered national service. The list of subscriptions is headed by President Taft, and ex-President Roosevelt is at the head of the honorary advisory committee on the erection of the monument. The statue will represent Dr. Hale as he appeared in daily life on the streets of Boston and Washington, always on the move in his beneficent activities as citizen and philanthropist.

Despite the education in urban ways which the newspapers and magazines spread in the most distant hamlets the terrors of the big city are very real to many rural dwellers as in a recently noted instance. A well filled open car stopped to take on more passengers. On one seat were but three people ,the one furthest in apparently being disinclined to move over any more. Two ladies wished to enter the seat, and requested the lady at the further end to move along, but she said she had rather not sit on the end. After some little altercation the matter was adjusted, and the lady explained that she was from the country, and did not dare to sit on the end of the seat, although there was a bar down to prevent her falling out. It was quite refreshing to the passengers to find one person in this goodly city free from end seat hoggishness.

New England's worst fuzzy-wuzzies are the brown tail moth caterpillars which along the Charles River on a recent Sunday played havoc among the open work stockings and peek-a-boo shirtwaists of passing canoeists, to say nothing of dropping occasionally down the collarless neck of a masculine padler. Only those who have experienced the consequent itch can appreciate the consequent temptation to scratch. Considering the amount of wriggling and twisting to reach shoulder blades and smarting ankles, it is remarkable that only four upsets were reported. The Metropoliton Park Commission had sprayed the trees with poison and they claim that doubtless the caterpillars crept to the extreme tips of the branches over the water in the hope of finding more comfortable surroundings, but there are those who assert that the caterpillars showed much more discrimination than the commission gives them credit for.

Have you ever visited Brook Farm? It is surprising to find how few New Englanders are familiar with this famous literary shrine in the West Roxbury district of the Hub. A recent visit which the Boston girl made to the site of the cooperative experiment in which Ralph Waldo Emerson, Nathaniel Hawthorne, Rev. George Ripley, Margaret Fuller and many other literary folk of the '40s were interested revealed an unexpected treasury of romantic and historic reminiscences. Not only that for one will travel far and wide before finding a more beautiful corner of old New England than is nestled within the confines of Brook Farm. Broad meadows and rolling uplands, a sparkling, perpetually babbling brook which winds among great old willows, and woodland as primitive and unspoiled as when the Brook Farmers held their Sunday services in the cool shadows, make the sojourner forget that but a short distance away is a big, seething city, and that automobiles are passing in a continuous string by the gates to the farm. "Margaret Fuller's cottage" still stands on the charming knoll a little apart from the spot where the main buildings of the colony were located, and the "Hive" remodelled and rebuilt since the days of good fellowship and serious work is now as warm with ruddy-cheeked, happy hearted urchins, inmates of the Martin Luther Home for Orphans. A more ideal spot could hardly have been chosen for these youngsters, as one realizes when watching them wading knee deep in the brook or picking the daisies in the meadows. It is well worth the half hour's ride from the city's dust and heat to find one's self in such a garden of the gods.

Boston, July 1, 1910.

DAWN OF THE FOURTH.

The Fourth will dawn as it always does,

And the Chinese cracker will roar.
And the iron cannon will sit on the hill,
And salute with a dozen booms;
While the stick of punk will smoulder away,
And greet you with stifling fumes.

The Fourth will dawn as it always does,
And the powder will burn in the street;
And the spit-devil's fire will circle around
Till it gets mixed up with your feet,
And the policeman will take out his book,
And register down the mishaps,
While John in his laundry will not be safe
From flying torpedoes and caps.

The Fourth will dawn as it always does,
And the country cousins will go
To a pine platform somewhere in a grove,
To hear an eloquence blow,
Of Bunker Hill and Liberty Bell,
And the tale of King George's reign;
The same old speech of a hundred years,
But always worth hearing again.

The Fourth will close as it always does,
To the scream of the parting bombs:
And the blistered boy will repair to his room,
To count his fingers and thumbs.
Bring out bandages and arnica vial,
Away with the cracker and gun;
"Two weeks in bed!" but then he will say:
"I'm more than paid in de fun!"

BRIEFS

The special musical program prepared for the Sunday evening service at Bethany church will be postponed.

FALL OF 1500 FEET

Aeronaut Instantly Killed by Failure of Parachute to Open

Albany, Ind., July 2.—When the parachute in which he was attempting to come to earth after a balloon ascension here failed to open, Ray Bradley, 25 years old, dropped 1500 feet and met instant death.

Bradley reached a height of 2000 feet and cut loose, coming down about 500 feet in the first parachute. When he started to get away from the second, however, the big parachute failed to open.

SPORTING NOTES.

Today is a day of days in Old Colony league circles. If Quincy loses she will fall to .500 and if Quincy wins she will lead with .666 or .066 points ahead of the nearest competitor. The new men will now have a chance to prove whether they are able to "stick" when the result of the game means the lead or the cellar.

Copeland will play a doubleheader this afternoon at Hyde Park. Canavan will pitch the first game and Desmond the second. They will alternate in right field.

The directors of the Granite City aggregation met last night and the protest on the Apprentice-Cranch game was laid with Secretary Cronin. It will be referred to the advisory board. At present there are only two members of the board as the vacancy left by the resignation of Frank E. Hollis has not been filled.

Harry Lord's finger was broken yesterday by one of Walter Johnson's fast shoots. The valuable third sacker will probably be out of the game for two weeks.

The entries in Quincy's big Fourth of July meet were sent yesterday morning to McGrath to be handicapped, and will be back today. There are 13 in the mile run which is closed to Quincy.

"Jack" Starr of the Quincy Point bathhouse and Dave White, who is one of the "regulars" will enter the diving and under water swimming contests respectively at Houghs Neck.

Vol. 24 No. 154 QUINCY, MASS., TUESDAY EVENING, JULY 5, 1910 PRICE TWO CENTS

QUINCY'S GRANDEST FOURTH OF JULY

FIFTEEN THOUSAND AT GRAND FIREWORKS

PARADE 40 MINUTES IN PASSING

The main feature of the day was the grand parade in the morning. The early morning street cars from all points brought large crowds to City Square and at the hour at which the parade was to start there were several thousand men, women and children gathered in City Square and on Hancock street while all along the route over which it was to pass were large crowds.

The several divisions formed on Goffe street, Newport avenue, Upland road and Hancock and Adams streets. The marshals of each of the divisions were on theground early and as each feature arrived it was assigned its position.

While the parade was forming those fortunate enough to have tickets to the reviewing stand began to arrive and take seats. The reviewing stand was decorated with bunting of the national colors, while on the front was the American and Argentine flags. At the north end of the stand were the judges while in the centre was Mayor Shea and members of the Argentine Commission and their ladies. Chairman Stone of the general committee James Duncan Vice President of the A. F. of L. and others. Seated on the stand in addition to these were practically all of the heads of the various city departments and members of the City Council.

At times during the parade it looked as though it would rain at any minute but the threatening clouds that had gathered soon disappeared and not a drop fell.

Chief Burrell and a large squad of officers were on duty about the stand and kept a clear space in front of it, so that the view was unobstructed for those on the reviewing stand. Nothing occurred to mar the parade although there were some amusing features. One of these was when the police automobile dashed by with a half barrel of beer on the seat with the driver, while in the rear seat was a man who had evidently been guarding the half barrel too well. All of the horses behaved well and the crowds were very free in their applause. The features to receive the largest share of the applause was perhaps the Richmond flag displayed by the veterans of the Grand Army. They at times sang some of their old war songs led by Edward Lennon the old vet.

Once started it required just 25 minutes for the line to pass the reviewing stand, and it was an hour and twenty minutes before it passed a second time. Considering the long route over which it had to pass remarkably good time was made.

DECLARATION READ

As soon as the parade had passed, Chairman Stone introduced Leo P. Noonan of Houghs Neck who read the Declaration of Independence. Previous to his reading of the historic paper he spoke briefly of Quincy

While the procession was gone the judges were busy making their awards This consumed nearly all their time. As the parade passed in review for the second time the judges made the awards of the several prizes. As a prize winner would pass he was held up and presented with his prize. There was some little confusion in the award which was no more than natural under the circumstances, where so many were awarded.

THE PRIZES.

COPELANDS WIN BALL GAME

Unde the auspices of the July 4th Celebration Committee the Makarias, and Copelands, both claimants of the championship of Quincy, lined up in the afternoon at Merrymount Park to decide the question of superiority. Since the close of the last baseball season there has been a continued discussion as to the strength of the two teams, and no finer opportunity offered itself for a settlement.

Before a crowd of at least 6000 people, Copeland took the field and Curtis, leading off for the Makaria, was fanned by Dick Williams. Eggleton popped a weak one. Ganzel was hit but was caught off the sack.

For Copeland, A. Elcock flied to McKenzie, Fay singled and stole, but was caught and P. Duggan flied to Nicoll.

Bates, the first up for Quincy in the second, landed on one of Williams' fast ones for a screeching home run hit to the street. An error by P. Duggan let McKenzie on. He was advanced to third by a neat sacrifice by Artis, and an out by Nicoll. From there he scored on Troupe's hit to right. Stan Bates and Curtis went down in order. This ended the run getting for Makaria.

In the same inning Copeland got three in easy fashion on errors by Curtis and McKenzie. J. Elcock popped to R. Bates, Berry fanned, Egan singled to left. Desmond landed a drive toward left center that Curtis made a great try for and though he got his hands on the ball he was unable to hold it and Egan scored on the play. Desmond then stole and scored on S. Duggan's single to Curtis' garden. S. Duggan advanced to second and scored on McKenzie's error of Williams' try, but A. Elcock flied to second and ended the inning.

Until the sixth inning the teams kept each other quiet but in the sixth after J. Elcock fanned, Berry doubled to left and stole. Egan was passed on the only ticket given out by Bates, and both tallied on Desmond's two-sacker. Desmond scored on S. Duggan's double to left. Williams flied to Ganzel and A. Elcock repeated to Bates. During the inning the Copeland's mascot who is about knee-high to a duck was on the first base line coaching like a professional and got a big hand.

In the ninth the bases were populated by Makarias, but McKenzie flied to center and the game was over.

The Copeland club team which is one of the strongest in the Norfolk county league, is now the championship team of Quincy by virtue of this victory.

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

Spear street for a short quiet street has been heard from the past few days, a bold daylight burglary Saturday afternoon and a fire the afternoon of the Fourth.

PRESENTATION.

On Friday evening Mrs. C. P. Gould of Adams street was pleasantly surprised by 33 members of Accaia lodge of Odd Ladies of Brockton, of which she was past deputy, and is loved and held in high esteem by every member. They regret that she has been appointed deputy of Cambridge lodge, but what is Brockton's loss is Cambridge's gain. During the evening Mrs. Gould was presented with a cut glass ice cream set and a silver ice cream knife. After recovering from her surprise she thanked all present and in a few well chosen words, after which a social hour was enjoyed. Ice cream, cake and punch was served during the evening.

Among those present were: Sisters Katie E. E. Nash, Carrie I. Hancock, Deborah M. Thayer, Abbie M. Haywood, Minnie MacPherson, Elizabeth A. Harvey, Lillian M. Richards, Ellen K. Weston, Lillian H. Pierce, Ellen Frye, Theresa Perkins, Anna S. Rhue, Mary E. Drew, Edith Weston, Annie Powney, Sophia McDonald, Lottie F. Backus, Lizzie M. Weeks, Anna Dean, Annie Sellers, Ella S. Shulty, Bertha Tripp, Nellie C. Chase, Lovey P. Ewing, Elizabeth Ewing, Cora F. Snow, May Vanbalkensberg, Frances Nickett, Amy McDonald, Mary Thompson, Marion Poole, J. N. Woburn, Effie M. Snow, Dorcas E. Snow (mascot) and others.

THE LITTLE WHITE BRIDE.

John Charles McNeil

The little white bride is left alone
With him, her lord; the guests have gone;
The festal hall is dim.
No jesting now, nor answering mirth,
The hush of sleep falls on the earth
And leaves her here with him.

Why should there be, O little white bride,
When the world has left you by his side,
A tear to brim your eyes?
Some old love-face that comes again,
Some old love-moments sweet with pain
Of passionate memories?

Does your heart yearn back with last regret
For the maiden meads or mignonette
And the fairy-haunted wood,
That you had not withheld from love,
A little while, the freedom of
Your happy maidenhood?

Or it is but a nameless fear,
A wordless joy that calls the tear
In dumb appeal to rise,
When, looking on him where he stands,
You yield up all into his hands,
Pleading into his eyes?
For days that laugh or nights that weep
You two strike oars across the deep
With life's tide at the brim;
And all time's beauty, all love's grace,
Beams, little bride, upon your face
Here looking up at him.

Mrs. Newlywed—"Doctor, that bottle of medicine you left for baby is all gone."

"Yes; but John and I and mother and the nurse have each to take a teaspoonful, too, in order to induce baby to take it."—Democratic Telegram.

BIG INCREASE IN REVENUE

Manufacture of Hard Liquors In Bay State Larger Than Ever Before

Boston, July 2.—Despite the temperance agitation of the past year, there has been a decided increase in the manufacture of hard liquors or distilled spirits in Massachusetts, according to the internal revenue figures.

Collections in Boston for the year ending June 30 amounted to $5,676,103, compared with $3,631,970. Of the increase $1,183,906 was received from distilled spirits and $740,152 from collections under the new corporation law.

CHANCE FOR BOYS

To Learn a Trade and Get a Practical Education

The Fore River Ship Building Co. has just issued a neat pamphlet explaining in detail the modern apprenticeship plan as carried out at their plant. There is a constant demand for skilled mechanics, and boys who are ambitious can learn a trade here under conditions that will give them a practical education. The Fore River system includes a school for instruction in the practical problems to be dealt with by trained and skilled people, supplemented by talks from foremen and manager.

The system in vogue here has some advantages over any public trade or industrial school, because when an apprentice graduates from the Fore River he is a real mechanic, and can earn the highest wages anywhere, and best of all he has supported himself in addition. In all fourteen trades are taken. These are those of blacksmith, coppersmith, plumber and steam fitter, electrician, molder, shipwright, patternmaker, joiner, machinist, outside machinist, shipfitter, riveter, chipper and caulker and sheet metal worker.

Apprentices must not be less than 16years of age and not more than 17 years. They must be physically sound, of good moral character, and have received the equilvalent to a grammar school education. The first 48 days constitutes a term of trial. Then, if the apprentice proves satisfactory, he signs an agreement of apprenticeship. He then begins his full term which for those who have had no experience is four years. Shorter periods are allowed for certain trades.

During his period of apprenticeship he is paid 8 cents per hour for the first year, 10 cents the second year, 12 1-2 cents the third year, and 15 cents the fourth year.

In addition to this, at the completion of his apprenticeship, he is allowed a bonus of $100 from which he can make requisition for tools or technical books. The balance of the $100 will be paid in cash at the end of the term.

The instruction at the school begins with shop arithmetic, the examples applying directly to his work; gradually studying more difficult problems which involve practical geometry, mechanics, strength of material, also freehand sketches in drawing with dimension and mechanical drawings and how to read blue prints. This branch of the work is in charge of James E. Neary, a graduate of Cornell University.

On completing his term of apprenticeship he is encouraged to remian with the company, and his wages are advanced to the scale of journeyman.

In addition to these there are numerous social features connected with the school. These are in brief some of the interesting things set forth in the phamphlet that may be had by addressing the company.

TAFT SPENDS HAPPY FOURTH

A JOURNEY OF FIFTY MILES

Marked by Solidly Packed Lane of People Who Give Full Vent to Pleasure at Seeing President—He Reviews Two Big Parades and Makes Several Speeches During a Day That Gives Him Much Pleasure

Boston, July 5.—President Taft passed through solidly packed lanes of cheering people during his entire trip through Boston's suburbs yesterday morning and afternoon.

Every inch of his fifty-mile automobile ride was one continual ovation, which imprinted a glorified smile upon his broad and beaming countenance.

The broiling sun, the reviewing of two long parades, several informal receptions, several small speeches, one big speech, and the knowledge of the death of Chief Justice Fuller could not sweep from his face the expression of contentment brought there by the whole-souled reception accorded him by the people of Boston and the surrounding cities.

The presidential party started promptly at 8:30 from Beverly. The president was garbed in a soft gray cap and a linen duster, from above which his face beamed rubicundly upon the Beverlyites who gathered at the street corners.

At Salem a large crowd had assembled to witness the passing of the president and they applauded and shouted until Mr. Taft was forced to remove his cap altogether and smile and bow unceasingly.

Through Lynn he went, with the crowds of that city vying with those of Salem in doing him honor. Horns blared and flags waved before his flying automobile, and the presidential smile grew wider and wider.

The holiday crowds at Revere and along the waterfront were gathered to see the president pass, so that a solid line of people flanked it on either side for its entire length.

From the outskirts of Everett to Everett square itself the crowds were enormous. As the president's automobile chugged into Everett, it was greeted by a salute of twenty-one bombs.

When the machine had finally arrived before the reviewing stand, Mayor Bruce stepped forward and received him in the name of the city. The enthusiasm was intense among the younger generation, for the president received a silk flag from Fred Beals, the son of the chairman of the Fourth committee. It was necessary to hoist young Beals from the press, and literally jam him up into the car.

At 9:30 the party reached the Wellington bridge. Here the machine was stopped, and the president was assisted out of his cap and duster, and garbed more decorously in the frock coat and shining tile of formality.

Thus bedecked, the president sat down again and was rushed across the bridge, on the Somerville side of which a crowd of notables awaited him.

As the Lancers and the distinguished official whom they were escorting clattered up in front of the grand stand, the crowd let loose a yell which shaded the celebrated rebel yell. And the president smiled and bowed and smiled as he tramped heavily to his big leather armchair in the middle of the stand.

The parade was longer than President Taft had expected it would be. He was considerably behind his schedule at this point, on account of the length of the Somerville parade. Consequently the party pushed through the interested crowds which lined the streets at top speed.

Through Somerville they dashed, into Cambridge, across the Harvard bridge to Boston Common, where grand stands full of children and thousands of grown-ups had been waiting for two hours and more for his arrival.

The cheer which the children raised as the president dashed up between his squadron of Lancers threw everything else of its kind far into the shade. The children were enthusiastic over President Taft, and they didn't care who knew it.

They sang "My Country, 'Tis of Thee," and cheered and cheered and cheered, while the president stood with bared head and looked out upon them.

Far eclipsing anything of the kind ever attempted in New England, the monster procession portrayed the several steps in the accomplishment of America's independence, and its final completion in modern American life.

After the parade the president and his attendants dashed to the City club. During the entire stay of the president at the City club, an enormous crowd blocked the traffic on Beacon street to wait for him to emerge again. When he did come the crowd cheered him until he had disappeared down Beacon hill in the direction of Cambridge, where he addressed the New England Educational association in the Harvard Stadium.

BURIED IN GULF STREAM

Compact Made Long Ago Between Old Friends Is Fulfilled

Miami, Fla., July 2.—With about a dozen old friends aboard the yacht Samoa, the body of Captain A. B. Simmons, who died a fortnight ago in the soldiers' hospital in Tennessee, was carried five miles out in the Atlantic, to the gulf stream today, and there consigned to the water, ending a compact entered into years ago between Simmons and Kirk Munroe, the writer of Seminole Indian stories.

About twenty years ago Simmons and Munroe, who were then about the only white men living in this section of the state, talked one day of the horrors of being buried in the ground. Then then entered into an agreement that whoever died first the other was to see that burial was made at sea in the gulf stream.

SUPPOSED TO BE EXTINCT

Thousand Pounds of Tile Fish Caught by a Gloucester Schooner

New Bedford, Mass., July 2.—The arrival at this port of the Gloucester fishing smack A. J. Newhall with 1000 pounds of tile fish on board startled the old and hardy 'longshoremen at the wharf, who have believed that tile fish had been extinct for the past thirty years. Moreover, Captain Landry of the fisherman is wondering what his catch is going to amount to, for there is no market quotations on tile at this port.

The tile fish, which are of a deep water variety, were caught by the Newhall on the Georges grounds, about 125 miles southeast of New Bedford. Landry stated that the tile were in abundance and that he had by no means relieved the briny deep of all the believed extinct tile.

Vagrants Threatened With Work

Kansas City, July 2.—"Hereafter I mean to sentence all vagrants to the Kansas wheat fields, while the harvest season is on," said Judge Burney in the municipal court. "If they refuse to go and are caught loitering around town, I will send them to the workhouse for six months."

WASHINGTON LETTER

Review of Legislation Accomplished by Congress

With the adjournment of Congress, a brief review of what legislation has been accomplished will be in place, and it will be found that the record of the present Congress has seldom, if ever, been excelled in the number an din the importance of the bills passed. Thirty-six thousand bills were offered during the session, twenty-seven thousand by the House and nine thousand by the Senate, to say nothing of hundreds of resolutions on a variety of subjects. In no previous session have so many bills been presented.

With reference to those reform movements which have become known as the bills of the President's program, there are many instances of accomplishment.

Then a revision of the railroad laws involving the creation of a commission court.

The admission of the states of New Mexico and Arizona as separate states, raising the number of sovereign states in the Union to forty-eight.

A very important bill was that giving to the President unlimited authority to withdraw public lands for conservation purposes. Under this act the President was granted power to withhold lands from settlement and to conserve the water power, and at the same time the act provided for the agricultural entry of coal lands which will open to settlement, it is said as much as sixty million acres, reserving at the same time the coal right to the government.

The increase of the navy, while not including many ships of the first class, was significant in the fact that there were appropriations for two battleships of 27,000 tons each. These are to be armed with 14-inch guns, which it is said will make them more formidable than any battleships on the seas. There were appropriations also for four torpedo-boat destroyers, two colliers and four submarines, and an increase of three thousand seamen was provided for in the bill.

The publicity campaign bill is considered one of great importance in that candidates must within a short time after election publish the amount of campaign contributions.

A bill authorizing an appropriation of twenty millions in certificates of indebtedness to continue reclamation projects was passed.

Also a bill creating a Bureau of Mines.

A bill appropriating $250,000 for the support of a tariff board was another of the President's bills that had much opposition before it was finally passed.

Bills looking to the suppression of traffic in white slaves, providing a new tariff system for the Philippine Islands, promoting prohibition in the Hawaiian Islands, creating a commission to consider economics in the management of a national government, were other important enactments.

Among the measures which failed to pass, although it was well known that the President favored them, was a ship subsidy bill: an anti-injunction bill; a bill for a new form of government in Alaska and also in Panama; also bills to create a bureau of health; providing increased rates of postage for second-class mail matter and to establish the Appalachian Forest Reserve.

Taken all in all, this has been a remarkably strenuous Congress, and there is no doubt but that a record has been set which will be a stimulating example to succeeding Congresses. Apart from the reformative and progressive legislation above referred to, Congress has in a conspicuous way reformed itself as a deliberative and parliamentary body. It has taken power from the Speaker, it has reformed its system of conducting business, and its organization for work is more effective now than it was at the beginning of the session. The Speaker has been removed from the Committee on Rules and a new rule has been adopted which it is thought, will prevent withholding bills by committees when such bills have the approval of the majority of the House without regard to party.

STORK BRINGS BACK HIS SIGHT

WAS BLIND FROM BOYHOOD

Couple Have Had Happy Married Life of Five Years, but One Now Still Happier—Serious Fall While Hurrying For Doctor and News of Birth of Daughter Combined to Bring About Marvelous Result

Mercerville, N. J., July 2.—Although he has been married five years, Peter Mayard, a musician, looked upon the face of his wife for the first time but a few hours ago, and he believes that the visitation of the stork in his home resulted in the restoration of his eyesight.

He claims that he is the happiest man in the world today, as he found his wife to be prettier than he pictured her in his mind. Mayard's recovery of his eyesight is considered marvelous by physicians, who believed that he would never be able to see again.

When Mayard was 10 years old he was struck in the right eye by a baseball and the injury resulted in total blindness. However, this did not interfere with his education, and when he reached the age of 21 years he was considered an expert pianist.

Shortly after he had attained his majority he met Miss Mary French, aged 18 years, who was deeply impressed with his skill as a musician. The friendship between the two gradually deepened. Dan Cupid took a hand and the couple became engaged. Their marriage followed a year later. They have been extremely happy, but are now still happier.

Mrs. Mayard was taken suddenly ill and her husband, although blind, started to run in order to summon a nearby physician. He thought he could reach the house without difficulty, but stumbled over an embankment and fell a distance of ten feet. He was unconscious for some time.

While he was recovering he was informed that there was an additional member to his family in the shape of a ten-pound baby girl. It was a few moments after receiving this information that he suddenly began to shout for joy and he made so much noise that he aroused the neighborhood. He discovered that he could see as well as he could when a boy.

Mrs. Mayard was greatly surprised at the news, and her husband, when she had recovered sufficiently for him to see her, was amazed at her appearance. "Why, I didn't know that I had married the prettiest girl in the country," he cried.

BURGLAR CAUGHT IN ACT

Seen to Enter Spear Street Residence in Daylight

A man who claims to be Thomas McDermott ,aged 44 years, of 19 Joplin street, Providence, R. I., was caught red handed Saturday afternoon breaking into the house of Alferd H. Remick of 29 Spear street. The family of Mr. Remick are at Adams Shore for the summer and the house is closed. Saturday at 3.30 a man was seen by a neighbor to break the glass on one of rear windows and enter breaking into the house of Alfred H. through the window. Mr. Remick was notified by telephone and his brother-in-law A. H. Childs investigated McDermott, evidently aware that he had been discovered, got otu of the dining room window and ran back of the house.

Mr. Childs followed and was joined in the chase by E. G. Gay, secretary of the Y. M. C. A. There was a short but lively chase which ended in the capture of McDermott. Meanwhile the police station had been notified and the wagon was sent down and took the man to the station.

At first it was not known why he was arrested, and he was booked for drunkenness. Later when the facts of the case came ot he was booked for breaking and entering. On being searched he was found to have a large bunch of keys, an inch and a quarter chisel, a railroad spike, several pocket knives, cakes of soap and handkerchiefs. He was arraigned in court.

McDermott was arraigned in court for breaking and entering. He pleaded guilty and was held in $500 for the grand jury.

AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENT.

In trying to avoid a collison with a wagon, an automobile owned and driven by Arthur Murphy of Wollaston, ran into a tree at the corner of Beale and Pine streets Saturday afternoon. In the automobile besides Mr. Murphy were his three children. The wagon turned suddenly into Pine street directly in front of the automobile an din his efforts to avoid an accident the car smashed into the tree. The force of the collison smashed the glass wind shield and the occupants were somewhat cut by flying glass. The occupants on the rear seat were considerably shaken up but escaped serious injury. Dr. Record and Dr. Adams who were notified attended the parties. Meanwhile someone telephoned the police station for the ambulance which was sent down, but its services were not needed.

SLIGHT FIRE.

The alarm from Box 25 at 1.36 on the afternoon of the Fourth was for a fire on the roof of the L of the Pratt house on Spear street, now owned by A. F. Abbott. The fire was discovered by children of Eben Prescott, who notified their parents. Neighbors manned lawn hose and chemicals and were hard at work when the department arrived. It was necessary to do some cutting in order to get at the fire which had worked under the dry shingles and boards. Chief Williams estimates the loss at $75.

WELCOMED BACK.

Inspector of Plumbing, Jeremiah J. Kenily, who was married last week, returned to his desk in City Hall this morning, and was given a warm welcome by the little family in the basement. As Jerry entered the office of the Board of Health he looked shyly about expecting something out of the usual. Finding nothing his face expanded into a broad smile. Throwing back the roll of his desk he was given a surprise, for the young ladies had decorated it very appropriately. Across the front was a mesh work of white ribbon with numerous red roses, and scattered over these was a quantity of confetti. It was a very pretty piece of work. Jerry acknowledged that he had been caught and promised to make amends.

WINTHROP RACE.

But three of the class D boats of the Quincy Yacht club took part in the open race of the Winthrop club on Saturday afternoon. The wind was puffy and the race rather unintertring. The Dartwell had a good lead over the other two boats and was an easy winner with the Busy Bee a poor second.

The parade was dismissed on Coddington street.

Immediately after the dismissal a larger part of the marshals, aids and visiting military companies were entertained at the Elks club on Foster street. The Sons of Veterans also entertained the visiting Sons of Veterans Spanish War Veterans and Grand Army at Grand Army hall.

Many others entertained friends and most of the clubs and organizations were entertained at their halls or club rooms.

THE FIREWORKS.

Before sundown the crowds began to wend their way toward Merrymount park where the fireworks display, the crowning feature of the day was to be held. Several different pieces of the display were enumerated in Saturday's Ldger and it is hardly necessary to say that the display was one of the bst if not the best ever given in this city.

The crowd at the park during the evening was doubtless the largest ever gathered together at one time in Quincy. Not only did the people come from all parts of the city but the towns about Quincy sent hundreds.

As early as 6.30 people began to wend their way toward the park. They came on electric cars, on foot and in automobiles. There were also many parties who came in wagons. It seemed as though there was an almost endless stream.

Everybody realized that there was a crowd present but it was not until the sky was illuminated by some of the searchlight fireworks that one had a view of the thousands gathered on the park and on Hancock street.

The crowd present has been variously estimated, the general estimate being 15,000 pople.

The fireworks were set off on the southerly side of the ball field. Directly in front of them, in a space roped off, were a number of reserved seats which were occupied by the members of the general committee who had the members of the Argentine Commission as their guests. While these seats afforded an excellent view they also afforded the occupants an opportunity to get showered with sparks from the fireworks. They were not burned however.

Shortly before the fireworks were started James E. Neary, through a megaphone announced that the committee was a little shy on funds, and that any contributions would be thankfuly received. The hat was then passed through the crowd while the fireworks were in progress.

The fireworks display started off with a salute of 48 guns. That is bombs were sent high into the air one at a time where they exploded with a loud and sharp report that must have been heard for miles, as they made the windows rattle in the immediate vicinity.

The display of fireworks was the best ever seen in Quincy and the committee in charge made no mistake in selecting John Serpico & Bros., of Jersey city to furnish the display. That the crowd appreciated them was shown by the spontaneous applause that greeted practically all of the pieces, particularly the representation of Niagara Falls which was very beautiful.

One of the large set pieces displayed these words—"Thanks to our contributors—Quincy—City of Presidents," and was accompanied by a beautiful display of 24 large floral batteries. There was at another time a good representation of a battleship, and one of the set pieces included two large flags and a star. The seven large electric sun wheels discharged at one time was one of the prettiest features with their changeable colors, red, blue, green and silver. The searchlights high in the air were a decided novelty, and also the steamship siren with signal flashlight. There was a great variety of bombs, some with several "breaks" and there were exclamations of "Oh' all over the field. A brisk engagement on the firing line was the concluding number with a grand flight of heavy mines, a grand flight of bombshells and a grand cannonade. And then "Good Night."

The display was over at 9.45, and half an hour later that part of the city was deserted. Many regretted that more street cars were not run at the close.

It was a very orderly crowd, and the detail of police on duty had practically nothing to do but enjoy the fireworks with the crowd. In addition to the men in uniform, Lieut. McKay was circulating about in citizens dress looking for possible pickpockets.

THE NIGHT BEFORE.

It would have been hard to have had a more quiet or saner "night before" than that of Sunday night. Chief Burrell had a large corps of special officers on duty in addition to the regular force, but generally they found little to do. Up to midnight it was fully as quiet as on any Sunday evening. At midnight a number of bon fires were lighted in various parts of the city, but not near as many as in other years. The largest of these perhaps was that near the corner of Water and Quincy streets. While Quincy did not have many large fires, towns about Quincy had enough and the horizon in all directions was brightly illuminated.

The firemen also had a quiet night. Chief Williams had every man on duty at the several stations ready to quench any blaze that might be started. While the department in different parts of the city were called out on still alarms to extinguish incipient blazes it was not until 3.24 A. M. that a bell alarm sounded. This was from Box 62 and was the only bell alarm of the night. This alarm was for a slight fire on the Neponset bridge, but did little damage.

The arrests by the police were few and far between, and practically all of these were of parties who had over celebrated. There was one lively row on Franklin street about 5 A. M., during which Officer Broberg was roughly handled.

There was a dance at Hibernian hall, and quite a crowd of young Americns gathered in front of the hall and were making a nuisance of themselves. Officer Broberg ordered them to move on. This they refused to do. The officer then grabbed a young man who gave his name as William Smith. As he did so the young man's friends pitched into the officer and attempted to rescue the prisoner.

During the mixup the officer was knocked down and his club taken away from him. He hung onto young Smith, however, although the crowd were pounding him in their efforts to get him to release his prisoner. Getting to his feet he started toward the police sation wih his prisoner.

Meanwhile some one had run to the station and notified the Sergeant that Broberg was in trouble and Officers Cahill Holloran and Duane were rushed to his assistance. He however got his man to the station unassisted and locked him up on the charge of disturbing the peace. Later a young man who gave his name as Daniel Ahearn was arrested and locked up on a complaint of attempting to rescue a prisoner.

Aside from this the police had but little trouble. The new police auto has not arrived so that Chief Burrell secured a large automobile which was used as a patrol wagon. Lieut. McKay was also on duty with his car and between the two the city was well covered.

ACCIDENTS.

The only accident that was any way serious occured at the Neponset bridge about midnight, and was caused by an electric car leaving the iron. The car was in charge of Motorman William Kiley and Conductor William Dorley. The car left the rail just at the entrance to the bridge on the Quincy side, and before it could be stopped went half way cross the street. Several persons on the car were shaken up and some of the women fainted. Mrs. Agnes Reddish, of 10 Cherokee street, Roxbury, was so badly frightened that the services of a physician were required. Mrs. Edward O'Connor of 88 Pontiac street, Roxbury, and Matthew Wiley of Baxter street, South Boston, were also shaken up somewhat. A hurry call for physicians was sent out and several responded, but their services were not required. One of the ladies, however, was taken to her home in a carriage.

After some little difficulty the car was hauled back onto the rail. There was considerable delay of both the late inward and outward cars however owing to the track being blocked.

Made Her Mad.

"I thought I overheard you and your wife quarreling a little while ago. What was the trouble?"

"She brought home a new hat, and after putting it on she turned to me and said she didn't believe it was becoming."

"Well?"

"I agreed with her."—Chicago Record-Herald.

BODY FOUND IN WOODS

Near Centre Street Railroad Bridge, Braintree

This morning the badly decomposed body of an unknown man was found near the Centre street bridge of the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. It was just inside the Braintree line, and only about 100 feet from the railroad. A party of four Quincy boys were in the vicinity, started for a spring which they knew was near by, when they came across the body. They promptly notified the Quincy police, and officer Hinchon who investgated found that it was a Braintree case, and called Officer Loring.

The man is supposed to have been a United States marine by the name of A. W. Watson, as that name was found on a cap and coat in a bundle near the body. The man wore blue trousers had a black derby hat. The boys who found the body were: Francis Savatone of 128 Center street; Henry Bizzozero of 143 Liberty street, John Tite of 268 Liberty street;; and Alfred Locaon of 169 Liberty street.

Medical Examiner Frazier thought the body might have been there a month.

CHINAMEN ARRESTED.

The Metropolitan police scooped in five Chinamen at the Blue Hills reservation on Monday for carrying fire arms. Each of the five was armed with a self-cocking revolver of the latest pattern ,and they had several hundred cartridges. When taken they were firing at a target. The five gave their names as Dan Sing, Hon Sen, Wing Hong, Joe Doo, Charlie Sing and Dix Shing. The court fined them $15 each and took away their shooters.

The police think the men may be some of a Chinese secret society, and that they were practicing perparatory to shooting up Chinatown. It will be remembered that a few years ago the Chinamen who shot up Chinatown in Boston practiced in Quincy.

TODAY'S COURT.

Daniel Ahearn was fined $5 for drunkenness. The complaint for attempting to rescue a prisoner was dismissed.

Dan Sing, Hong Sen, Wing Hong, Joe Doo, Charlie Sing, and Dix Sling were fined $15 each, and Paul Robbs $5, for carrying fire-arms in the Metropolitan park at Milton.

Alex C. Bowton was fined $10 for creating a disturbance on the cars at Quincy.

William J. H. Burns was fined $10 and John O. Fitzgerald $2 for drunkenness at Quincy.

Wheat Does Not Grow Wild.

The existence of names for wheat in the most ancient languages confirms the evidence of its great antiquity and of its cultivation in the more temperate parts of Europe, Asia and Africa. From the evidence adduced by botanists of high standing it seems highly improbable that wheat has ever been found growing persistently in a wild state, although it has often been asserted by poets, travelers and historians. In the "Odyssey," for example, we are told that wheat formerly grew in Sicily without the aid of man. Diodorus repeats the tradition that Osiris found wheat and barley growing promiscuously in Palestine, but neither this nor other reputed discoveries of wheat growing wild seem at all credible, seeing that it does not appear to be endowed with the power of persistency except under continued culture.

The English Pheasant.

It is claimed that the pheasant of the English preserves can trace its pedigree directly to the brilliant bird of the same species in Japan. About the middle of the nineteenth century a few live pheasants were brought from Japan and crossed with the common species. The result of this was, it is said, that a new race of birds was introduced, and the beautiful pheasant, with its iridescent plumage, was produced and naturalized as an English bird.

A One Sided Rule.

Once when P. T. Barnum was taking tickets at the entrance of his circus a man asked him if he could go in without paying.

"You can pay without going in," said Barnum, "but you can't go in without paying. The rule doesn't work both ways."

The signing by President Taft of the bill giving statehood to Arizona and New Mexico brings the United States roster to forty-eight commonwealths.

The signing of the bill was made an interesting function at the White House. The delegates to congress from the territories, William H. Andrews of New Mexico and Ralph H. Cameron of Arizona, were present, as well as Senator Beveridge and other friends of separate statehood.

A pen made of New Mexico copper and Arizona gold failed to show up in time to be used, but Postmaster General Hitchcock had a gold pen. Mr. Taft had signed "William H." to the statehood bill when "Bull" Andrews produced a quill pen, and the president wrote "Taft" with that and then switched back to the Hitchcock pen to write the approval and date.

Under the bill New Mexico and Arizona cannot be admitted to the Union until next spring. The territories, however, can go ahead this summer and elect delegates to constitutional conventions. The constitutions will be sent to the people of the territories on referendum and then will go to congress and the president for their approval. Even if congress fails to act on the constitutions the states will be admitted automatically sixty days after March 4 next.

One Democratic, Other Republican.

The political aspect of the new states has long been figured upon, and Arizona is regarded as normally Democratic and New Mexico solidly Republican, though both give small pluralities. Delegate Cameron is the first Republican to be sent to congress by Arizona in more than twenty years. New Mexico, however, regularly returns Republicans.

New Mexico has already summoned a constitutional convention and anticipates no delay, as the Republican party of the territory is very conservative and energetically opposed to socialistic ideas. The constitution is likely to be conservative and is sure to be one that will meet President Taft's approval. It is proposed to have the constitution adopted by the people in time to lay it before congress in December. New Mexico will be Republican by 5,000 to 10,000 in a total vote of 60,000.

Santa Fe, the capital of New Mexico, is known as the oldest city in the United States and has a population of more than 5,000. In this latter respect it resembles the Arizona capital, Phoenix.

New Mexico is a land of broad ranges, where hundreds of thousands of cattle and countless flocks of sheep browse, where fields of grain wave in the healthful breeze, where orchard trees bend under their weight of fruits and where the rocks lay bare veins of precious metals. Here may be found as profitable large ranches as any in the country and innumerable small aggregations of cultivated acres whose owners sit comfortably upon shaded verandas while their servants till the field.

Scattered by the way are sleepy Mexican villages, ancient Indian pueblos, still inhabited, and those older abandoned ruins which give to the region its peculiar atmosphere of mystery.

Resources Unlimited.

Arizona is only a trifle smaller in area and population than New Mexico and exceeds in area the following ten states combined: Rhode Island, Delaware, Connecticut, New Jersey, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Vermont, Maryland, West Virginia and South Carolina.

Its resources are unlimited, and its mountains are the depositories of gold, silver, copper, lead, onyx, marble and precious stones. It contains nearly 40,000,000 acres of grazing land, much of which is a perpetual pasture, unknown to frost or snow, on which are maintained vast herds of stock.

Its valleys comprise an area of more than 10,000,000 acres of land, which, when brought under cultivation, give marvelous returns in grain, fruits and other products of the soil, there being in the southern part eleven months of growth and in some sections a perpetual season of seedtime and harvest, yielding annually the maximum of the soil's productive power. It contains the largest unbroken forest area in the United States.

FOURTH AT POST ISLAND.

Under the auspices of the Post Island Improvement Association on the Fourth, aquatic sports were enjoyed in the morning, and at 2 P. M. there was a children's parade lead by Dr. Francis Abele as "Uncle Sam" and William H. Nichols as country school boy. The first prize was awarded to Miss Elizabeth Stevens for the prettiest costume, and the second prize to Master Trescott Abele. Other prizes were awarded to Miss Elizabeth Shriver and Master Cary Stiff. Special prizes to Dr. Abele and Mr. Nichols. Honorable mention was made by the judges to all the other participants. The judges were Miss Ruth MacDonald, Mrs. John Chadbourne and Mr. Buchanan.

The winners for the sports were:

Potato race for girls,---1st Barbara Sawyer; 2nd, Eleanor Gow.

The men's tug of war was won by J. W. Harpan's team.

The events closed for the afternoon by the awarding of various prizes and the serving of refreshments.

In the evening there was a large display of fireworks on the new pier together with many private displays.

The committee in charge of these festivives were Howard Blewett and Clemnet B. Nash.

The Mind During Sleep.

"During sleep," says an authority on mental subjects, "the workings of the mind are under no control, and yet it seems to have a wonderful faculty of building up and arranging scenes and incidents. I remember once having a vivid dream of going into a house the furniture and inmates of which belonged to the middle ages. So clear was the dream that I had no difficulty in recalling it, and then as I went over each detail of dress, armor, jewelry, ornaments and other objects seen in my vision I realized that everything I had beheld was historically accurate—that is to say, that probably in a fraction of a second my mind had conjured up a scene to construct which, with the same faithfulness to detail, while awake would have taken me several hours."

The Twelve Jurymen.

A prisoner is tried by twelve of his fellow countrymen. This custom is a thousand years old, and we get it from the vikings. The vikings divided their country up into cantons, which were subdivided into twelve portions, each under a chieftain. When a malefactor was brought to justice it was usual for each chieftain to select a man from the district over which he ruled and compel him to try the prisoner, the verdict of these twelve men being declared by the judge to be final.

BURGLAR CAUGHT IN ACT

Seen to Enter Spear Street Residence in Daylight

A man who claims to be Thomas McDermott ,aged 44 years, of 19 Joplin street, Providence, R. I., was caught red handed Saturday afternoon breaking into the house of Alferd H. Remick of 29 Spear street. The family of Mr. Remick are at Adams Shore for the summer and the house is closed. Saturday at 3.30 a man was seen by a neighbor to break the glass on one of rear windows and enter breaking into the house of Alfred H. through the window. Mr. Remick was notified by telephone and his brother-in-law A. H. Childs investigated McDermott, evidently aware that he had been discovered, got otu of the dining room window and ran back of the house.

Mr. Childs followed and was joined in the chase by E. G. Gay, secretary of the Y. M. C. A. There was a short but lively chase which ended in the capture of McDermott. Meanwhile the police station had been notified and the wagon was sent down and took the man to the station.

At first it was not known why he was arrested, and he was booked for drunkenness. Later when the facts of the case came ot he was booked for breaking and entering. On being searched he was found to have a large bunch of keys, an inch and a quarter chisel, a railroad spike, several pocket knives, cakes of soap and handkerchiefs. He was arraigned in court.

McDermott was arraigned in court for breaking and entering. He pleaded quilty and was held in $500 for the grand jury.

AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENT.

In trying to avoid a collison with a wagon, an automobile owned and driven by Arthur Murphy of Wollaston, ran into a tree at the corner of Beale and Pine streets Saturday afternoon. In the automobile besides Mr. Murphy were his three children. The wagon turned suddenly into Pine street directly in front of the automobile an djn his efforts to avoid an accident the car smashed into the tree. The force of the collison smashed the glass wind shield and the occupants were somewhat cut by flying glass. The occupants on the rear seat were considerably shaken up but escaped serious injury. Dr. Record and Dr. Adams who were notified attended the parties. Meanwhile someone telephoned the police station for the ambulance which was sent down, but its services were not needed.

SLIGHT FIRE.

The alarm from Box 25 at 1.36 on the afternoon of the Fourth was for a fire on the roof of the L of the Pratt house on Spear street, now owned by A. F. Abbott. The fire was discovered by children of Eben Prescott, who notified their parents. Neighbors manned lawn hose and chemicals and were hard at work when the department arrived. It was necessary to do some cutting in order to get at the fire which had worked under the dry shingles and boards. Chief Williams estimates the loss at $75.

WELCOMED BACK.

Inspector of Plumbing, Jeremiah J. Kenily, who was married last week, returned to his desk in City Hall this morning, and was given a warm welcome by the little family in the basement. As Jerry entered the office of the Board of Health he looked shyly about expecting something out of the usual. Finding nothing his face expanded into a broad smile. Throwing back the roll of his desk he was given a surprise, for the young ladies had decorated it very appropriately. Across the front was a mesh work of white ribbon with numerous red roses, and scattered over these was a quantity of confetti. It was a very pretty piece of work. Jerry acknowledged that he had been caught and promised to make amends.

WINTHROP RACE.

But three of the class D boats of the Quincy Yacht club took part in the open race of the Winthrop club on Saturday afternoon. The wind was puffy and the race rather uninterting. The Dartwell had a good lead over the other two boats and was an easy winner with the Busy Bee a poor second.

Special individual prizes were also given Leo J. McMaster and B. G. Hurlburt.

The parade was dismissed on Coddington street.

Immediately after the dismissal a larger part of the marshals, aids and visiting military companies were entertained at the Elks club on Foster street. The Sons of Veterans also entertained the visiting Sons of Veterans Spanish War Veterans and Grand Army at Grand Army hall.

Many others entertained friends and most of the clubs and organizations were entertained at their halls or club rooms.

THE FIREWORKS.

Before sundown the crowds began to wend their way toward Merrymount park where the fireworks display, the crowning feature of the day was to be held. Several different pieces of the display were enumerated in Saturday's Ldger and it is hardly necessary to say that the display was one of the bst if not the best ever given in this city.

The crowd at the park during the evening was doubtless the largest ever gathered togetfier at one time in Quincy. Not only did the people come from all parts of the city but the towns about Quincy sent hundreds.

As early as 6.30 people began to wend their way toward the park. They came on electric cars, on foot and in automobiles. There were also many parties who came in wagons. It seemed as though there was an almost endless stream.

Everybody realized that there was a crowd present but it was not until the sky was illuminated by some of the searchlight fireworks that one had a view of the thousands gathered on the park and on Hancock street.

The crowd present has been variously estimated, the general estimate being 15,000 pople.

The fireworks were set off on the southerly side of the ball field. Directly in front of them, in a space roped off, were a number of reserved seats which were occupied by the members of the general committee who had the members of the Argentine Commission as their guests. While these seats afforded an excellent view they also afforded the occupants an opportunity to get showered with sparks from the fireworks. They were not burned however.

Shortly before the fireworks were started James E. Neary, through a megaphone announced that the committee was a little shy on funds, and that any contributions would be thankfuly received. The hat was then passed through the crowd while the fireworks were in progress.

The fireworks display started off with a salute of 48 guns. That is bombs were sent high into the air one at a time where they exploded with a loud and sharp report that must have been heard for miles, as they made the windows rattle in the immediate vicinity.

The display of fireworks was the best ever seen in Quincy and the committee in charge made no mistake in selecting John Serpico & Bros., of Jersey city to furnish the display. That the crowd appreciated them was shown by the spontaneous applause that greeted practically all of the pieces, particularly the representation of Niagara Falls which was very beautiful.

One of the large set pieces displayed these words—"Thanks to our contributors—Quincy—City of Presidents," and was accompanied by a beautiful display of 24 large floral batteries. There was at another time a good representation of a battleship, and one of the set pieces included two large flags and a star. The seven large electric sun wheels discharged at one time was one of the prettiest features with their changeable colors, red, blue, green and silver. The searchlights high in the air were a decided novelty, and also the steamship siren with signal flashlight. There was a great variety of bombs, some with several "breaks" and there were exclamations of "Oh' all over the field. A brisk engagement on the firing line was the concluding number with a grand flight of heavy mines, a grand flight of bombshells and a grand cannonade. And then "Good Night."

The display was over at 9.45, and half an hour later that part of the city was deserted. Many regretted that more street cars were not run at the close.

It was a very orderly crowd, and the detail of police on duty had practically nothing to do but enjoy the fireworks with the crowd. In addition to the men in uniform, Lieut. McKay was circulating about in citizens dress looking for possible pickpockets.

THE NIGHT BEFORE.

It would have been hard to have had a more quiet or saner "night before" than that of Sunday night. Chief Burrell had a large corps of special officers on duty in addition to the regular force, but generally they found little to do. Up to midnight it was fully as quiet as on any Sunday evening. At midnight a number of bon fires were lighted in various parts of the city, but not near as many as in other years. The largest of these perhaps was that near the corner of Water and Quincy streets. While Quincy did not have many large fires, towns about Quincy had enough and the horizon in all directions was brightly illuminated.

The firemen also had a quiet night. Chief Williams had every man on duty at the several stations ready to quench any blaze that might be started. While the department in different parts of the city were called out on still alarms to extinguish incipient blazes it was not until 3.24 A. M. that a bell alarm sounded. This was from Box 62 and was the only bell alarm of the night. This alarm was for a slight fire on the Neponset bridge, but did little damage.

The arrests by the police were few and far between, and practically all of these were of parties who had over celebrated. There was one lively row on Franklin street about 5 A. M., during which Officer Broberg was roughly handled.

There was a dance at Hibernian hall, and quite a crowd of young Americns gathered in front of the hall and were making a nuisance of themselves. Officer Broberg ordered them to move on. This they refused to do. The officer then grabbed a young man who gave his name as William Smith. As he did so the young man's friends pitched into the officer and attempted to rescue the prisoner.

During the mixup the officer was knocked down and his club taken away from him. He hung onto young Smith, however, although the crowd were pounding him in their efforts to get him to release his prisoner. Getting to his feet he started toward the police sation wih his prisoner.

Meanwhile some one had run to the station and notified the Sergeant that Broberg was in trouble and Officers Cahill Holloran and Duane were rushed to his assistance. He however got his man to the station unassisted and locked him up on the charge of disturbing the peace. Later a young man who gave his name as Daniel Ahearn was arrested and locked up on a complaint of attempting to rescue a prisoner.

Aside from this the police had but little trouble. The new police auto has not arrived so that Chief Burrell secured a large automobile which was used as a patrol wagon. Lieut. McKay was also on duty with his car and between the two the city was well covered.

ACCIDENTS.

The only accident that was any way serious occured at the Neponset bridge about midnight, and was caused by an electric car leaving the iron. The car was in charge of Motorman William Kiley and Conductor William Dorley. The car left the rail just at the entrance to the bridge on the Quincy side, and before it could be stopped went half way cross the street. Several persons on the car were shaken up and some of the women fainted. Mrs. Agnes Reddish, of 10 Cherokee street, Roxbury, was so badly frightened that the services of a physician were required. Mrs. Edward O'Connor of 88 Pontiac street, Roxbury, and Matthew Wiley of Baxter street, South Boston, were also shaken up somewhat. A hurry call for physicians was sent out and several responded, but their services were not required. One of the ladies, however, was taken to her home in a carriage.

After some little difficulty the car was hauled back onto the rail. There was considerable delay of both the late inward and outward cars however owing to the track being blocked.

Made Her Mad.

"I thought I overheard you and your wife quarreling a little while ago. What was the trouble?"

"She brought home a new hat, and after putting it on she turned to me and said she didn't believe it was becoming."

"Well?"

"I agreed with her."—Chicago Record-Herald.

BODY FOUND IN WOODS

Near Centre Street Railroad Bridge, Braintree

This morning the badly decomposed body of an unknown man was found near the Centre street bridge of the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. It was just inside the Braintree line, and only about 100 feet from the railroad. A party of four Quincy boys were in the vicinity, started for a spring which they knew was near by, when they came across the body. They promptly notified the Quincy police, and officer Hinchon who investgated found that it was a Braintree case, and called Officer Loring.

The man is supposed to have been a United States marine by the name of A. W. Watson, as that name was found on a cap and coat in a bundle near the body. The man wore blue trousers had a black derby hat. The boys who found the body were: Francis Savatone of 128 Center street; Henry Bizzozero of 143 Liberty street, John Tite of 268 Liberty street;; and Alfred Locaon of 160 Liberty street.

Medical Examiner Frazier thought the body might have been there a month.

CHINAMEN ARRESTED.

The Metropolitan police scooped in five Chinamen at the Blue Hills reservation on Monday for carrying fire arms. Each of the five was armed with a self-cocking revolver of the latest pattern ,and they had several hundred cartridges. When taken they were firing at a target. The five gave their names as Dan Sing, Hon Sen, Wing Hong, Joe Doo, Charlie Sing and Dix Shing. The court fined them $15 each and took away their shooters.

The police think the men may be some of a Chinese secret society, and that they were practicing perparatory to shooting up Chinatown. It will be remembered that a few years ago the Chinamen who shot up Chinatown in Boston practiced in Quincy.

TODAY'S COURT.

Daniel Ahearn was fined $5 for drunkenness. The complaint for attempting to rescue a prisoner was dismissed.

Dan Sing, Hong Sen, Wing Hong, Joe Doo, Charlie Sing, and Dix Sing were fined $15 each, and Paul Robbs $5, for carrying firearms in the Metropolitan park at Milton.

Alex C. Bowton was fined $10 for creating a disturbance on the cars at Quincy.

William J. H. Burns was fined $10 and John O. Fitzgerald $2 for drunkenness at Quincy.

Wheat Does Not Grow Wild.

The existence of names for wheat in the most ancient languages confirms the evidence of its great antiquity and of its cultivation in the more temperate parts of Europe, Asia and Africa. From the evidence adduced by botanists of high standing it seems highly improbable that wheat has ever been found growing persistently in a wild state, although it has often been asserted by poets, travelers and historians. In the "Odyssey," for example, we are told that wheat formerly grew in Sicily without the aid of man. Diodorus repeats the tradition that Osiris found wheat and barley growing promiscuously in Palestine, but neither this nor other reputed discoveries of wheat growing wild seem at all credible, seeing that it does not appear to be endowed with the power of persistency except under continued culture.

The English Pheasant.

It is claimed that the pheasant of the English preserves can trace its pedigree directly to the brilliant bird of the same species in Japan. About the middle of the nineteenth century a few live pheasants were brought from Japan and crossed with the common species. The result of this was, it is said, that a new race of birds was introduced, and the beautiful pheasant, with its iridescent plumage, was produced and naturalized as an English bird.

A One Sided Rule.

Once when P. T. Barnum was taking tickets at the entrance of his circus a man asked him if he could go in without paying.

"You can pay without going in," said Barnum, "but you can't go in without paying. The rule doesn't work both ways."

The signing by President Taft of the bill giving statehood to Arizona and New Mexico brings the United States roster to forty-eight commonwealths.

The signing of the bill was made an interesting function at the White House. The delegates to congress from the territories, William H. Andrews of New Mexico and Ralph H. Cameron of Arizona, were present, as well as Senator Beveridge and other friends of separate statehood.

A pen made of New Mexico copper and Arizona gold failed to show up in time to be used, but Postmaster General Hitchcock had a gold pen. Mr. Taft had signed "William H." to the statehood bill when "Bull" Andrews produced a quill pen, and the president wrote "Taft" with that and then switched back to the Hitchcock pen to write the approval and date.

Under the bill New Mexico and Arizona cannot be admitted to the Union until next spring. The territories, however, can go ahead this summer and elect delegates to constitutional conventions. The constitutions will be sent to the people of the territories on referendum and then will go to congress and the president for their approval. Even if congress fails to act on the constitutions the states will be admitted automatically sixty days after March 4 next.

One Democratic, Other Republican.

The political aspect of the new states has long been figured upon, and Arizona is regarded as normally Democratic and New Mexico solidly Republican, though both give small pluralities. Delegate Cameron is the first Republican to be sent to congress by Arizona in more than twenty years. New Mexico, however, regularly returns Republicans.

New Mexico has already summoned a constitutional convention and anticipates no delay, as the Republican party of the territory is very conservative and energetically opposed to socialistic ideas. The constitution is likely to be conservative and is sure to be one that will meet President Taft's approval. It is proposed to have the constitution adopted by the people in time to lay it before congress in December. New Mexico will be Republican by 5,000 to 10,000 in a total vote of 60,000.

Santa Fe, the capital of New Mexico, is known as the oldest city in the United States and has a population of more than 5,000. In this latter respect it resembles the Arizona capital, Phoenix.

New Mexico is a land of broad ranges, where hundreds of thousands of cattle and countless flocks of sheep browse, where fields of grain wave in the healthful breeze, where orchard trees bend under their weight of fruits and where the rocks lay bare veins of precious metals. Here may be found as profitable large ranches as any in the country and innumerable small aggregations of cultivated acres whose owners sit comfortably upon shaded verandas while their servants till the field.

Scattered by the way are sleepy Mexican villages, ancient Indian pueblos, still inhabited, and those older abandoned ruins which give to the region its peculiar atmosphere of mystery.

Resources Unlimited.

Arizona is only a trifle smaller in area and population than New Mexico and exceeds in area the following ten states combined: Rhode Island, Delaware, Connecticut, New Jersey, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Vermont, Maryland, West Virginia and South Carolina.

Its resources are unlimited, and its mountains are the depositories of gold, silver, copper, lead, onyx, marble and precious stones. It contains nearly 40,000,000 acres of grazing land, much of which is a perpetual pasture, unknown to frost or snow, on which are maintained vast herds of stock.

Its valleys comprise an area of more than 10,000,000 acres of land, which, when brought under cultivation, give marvelous returns in grain, fruits and other products of the soil, there being in the southern part eleven months of growth and in some sections a perpetual season of seedtime and harvest, yielding annually the maximum of the soil's productive power. It contains the largest unbroken forest area in the United States.

FOURTH AT POST ISLAND.

Under the auspices of the Post Island Improvement Association on the Fourth, aquatic sports were enjoyed in the morning, and at 2 P. M. there was a children's parade lead by Dr. Francis Abele as "Uncle Sam" and William H. Nichols as country school boy. The first prize was awarded to Miss Elizabeth Stevens for the prettiest costume, and the second prize to Master Trescott Abele. Other prizes were awarded to Miss Elizabeth Shriver and Master Cary Stiff. Special prizes to Dr. Abele and Mr. Nichols. Honorable mention was made by the judges to all the other participants. The judges were Miss Ruth MacDonald, Mrs. John Chadbourne and Mr. Buchanan.

The winners for the sports were:

The men's tug of war was won by J. W. Harpan's team.

The events closed for the afternoon by the awarding of various prizes and the serving of refreshments.

In the evening there was a large display of fireworks on the new pier together with many private displays.

The committee in charge of these festivives were Howard Blewett and Clemnet B. Nash.

BRIEFS

And a glorious day after.

Miss Mary Jane Williams of West Quincy is spending a week in Milford, N. H.

Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Goodridge entertained relatives from Randolph, Brockton, Braintree and New York over the holiday.

The Misses Frances and Jessie Burke of Willard street, left Saturday morning for Washington, where they will be guests of their father Mr. T. F. Burke.

James E. Neary entertained a fireworks party at his home opposite Merrymount park Monday evening. In fact all of the residents of that section kept open house.

The Epworth League of Hall Place church will attend a service at the Temple street church, Boston, on Thursday evening, under the auspices of the Board of control of the Epworth Leagues.

LITTLE ONES' LIVES ARE JEOPARDIZED

Two Floats Collapse and Huge Reviewing Stand Totters

Everett, Mass., July 5.—More than a score of school children were injured, three seriously, here, where two floats in the holiday parade collapsed.

The little ones were thrown in a tangled heap on the ground without warning. That several lives were not lost was due to the prompt rush of spectators to the rescue.

A general catastrophe menaced 2300 other children when the huge stand, on which they awaited President Taft, is reported to have swayed most threateningly.

NINETEEN PERSONS KILLED

Twentieth Century Flyer Wrecked In Collision With Freight Train

Cincinnati, July 5.—In a wreck of the Cincinnati section of the Twentieth Century Limited near Middletown, O., nineteen persons were killed and many injured.

The wreck was due to a headon collision between the limited and a Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton freight train, and occurred on the Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton tracks.

When the engines crashed, one of the steel monsters crashed through the combination baggage and smoking car and a day coach which was largely filled with women. These cars were rolled down the embankment on the east side of the tracks.

Lightning Kills a Child

Houlton, Me., July 5.—An Indian girl, 3 years old, was killed by lightning during a terrific electrical storm. She was sleeping with her mother, Mrs. Frank Francis, who was not injured.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

JOHNSON OUTCLASSES JEFFRIES

Simply Toys With Former Champion of Squared Circle---Shows That He Has No Yellow Streak

BY JOHN A. JOHNSON

I am happy and sad. Happy that I won today's battle; sorry that I had to knock out such a famous fighter as Jim Jeffries.

I never was in doubt of victory and it came out just as I had planned. I fought my own fight, a waiting battle, and have demonstrated I knew my own way the best.

I guess I have forever set at rest all talk about "yellow streaks." My victory is not to be regarded as a victory of color; color was not involved today. It was just plain boxing science, stamina and punch. I had all three.

BY JAMES J. JEFFRIES

I lost fairly and squarely, and there is nothing more to say. I did not underestimate Johnson's ability. It was my own ability to come back that I was mistaken in. I have no excuses to offer for defeat. I believed I was in perfect condition, but it is sure that I wasn't the fighter I used to be. I thought I could come back and I failed. I am very sorry to have lost, and sorrier still to have disappointed the good friends who relied upon me and backed me to win. I did the best I could, but my best was not good enough.

STORY OF THE BATTLE

Reno, Nev., July 5.—John A. Johnson poved himself James J. Jeffries' master at every stage of the battle for the heavyweight championship of the world. Even the great test of strength that was looked for seemed to be in Johnson's favor. In the early rounds, with the pressure of his right glove he twisted Jeff's arm almost into the hammerlock position to prevent the big fellow using it while breaking.

While the rounds went on and Johnson's confidence came to him he took all kinds of liberties with Jeff. As a rule Johnson whips his men with his right hand. He used this a few times yesterday, but it was left hooks and left uppercuts while clinching that brought Jeff to terms.

In this kind of fighting Jeff was powerless after a few rounds had passed. He could not devise a way to escape punishment while they were feinting and swinging at close quarters. It seemed the easiest thing in the world for Johnson to free his left arm and tilt the big fellow's head.

An awed hush fell oven the assemblage when it saw Jeffries going to his inevitable finish, and it was not broken when the referee laid his hand on the black man's shoulder and proclaimed him the champion of the world. Later, when the champion's head appeared above the throng that surged about him in his corner, he was given the reward of fair play and the recognition of merit in the form of a lusty cheer, in which all who were not dazed by the overwhelming defeat of their pride joined heartily.

As a contest the only thing that saved this one from being farcial was the thought which most of the spectators clung to desperately, that out boxed and out generalled as Jeffries was, he still concealed that fatal punch that put away Corbett and Fitzsimmons after they had pummelled him at will. Barring the possibility of the arrival of this punch, there was not a point in the fifteen-round journey that did not mark him as outclassed.

Johnson displayed none of the weaknesses with which he had been invested by the supporters of Jeffries, who interpreted any serious thought of Johnson as heretical and treasonable.

Jack Cheers For Jim

He did not look for a hole in the fence when he saw Jeffries enter the ring surrounded by his distinguished retinue, but arose in his corner and cheered with the rest of the crowd when Jeffries climbed through the ropes.

He showed none of that yellow streak which it was taken for granted he possessed. Jim Corbett, who was there for that purpose, and who banked much on his persiflage and running fire of unexpurgated comment, taunted him unmercifully, but he gave back as good as was sent, and even better without taking his mind off the job in front of him.

The weak kidneys that were ascribed to the black man proved another figment of the surcharged imagination and the suspicion that he would be content to "lay down" at a critical moment and be content to take the short end of its disappeared from the unprejudiced minds of innocent persons who had fallen for it before the one-sided encounter was an hour old.

In fact, all the barriers, real and fancied, erected between Johnson and championship, crumbled piece by piece as the bewildered crush of Jeffries' worshippers looked on, and left not a shred of argument against the now prevailing notion that Johnson was Jeff's master from the beginning, and the big, happy-go-lucky, surrounded by his opera-bouffe court, knew it all the time.

A One-Sided Battle

The match proved more ill-assorted than the one between Corbett and Sullivan, which told the same tale. Corbett had a wholesome dread of Sullivan's wallop, but Johnson flouted the best that Jeff was supposed to have up his sleeve.

Johnson did not pay a particle of respect to anything that Jeff might have or might do, but played with him like a cat with a ball. One could see the heart leaving Jeffries round by round, the transition to the towering confidence which had been fed to him for the last six months of the life of this match was gradual but quick.

At only one spot in the road to defeat did Jeff give promise of turning the tide, that was near the end of the eleventh round when he landed one of his short right arm jabs to the solar plexus. It hurt and Johnson wabbled perceptibly, but before the white man could follow up his advantage the gong rang and Johnson looked over his opponent's shoulder and grinned and joked at Corbett while Jeffries was drilling at his stomach in clinches.

Much praise is given Tex Rickard, who pulled off the fight after countless difficulties, and who, cool, calm and quick, with nervous aliveness, handled the vast crowd splendidly at his arena and wound up by refereeing the fight.

Merely to enumerate the celebrities at the ringside would be to write a sporting directory of America—at least of the four hundred of sportdom, and of the many more hundreds of near-four hundreds.

THE FIGHT BY ROUNDS

Round 1—They feinted. Jack grinned as they sparred for an opening. Johnson rushed and landed two light lefts. They clinched. Both extremely cautious. Jack led left and Jeff countered with left. A clinch followed. Jeff got in a good left while holding and they clinched, both landing while in that position.

Round 2—Jeff crouched and stood with his left well forward. Tried for Johnson's face, missed and laughed. Johnson feinted and jumped away. Johnson got a straight left upon the mouth and they clinched. Their arms became entwined. Johnson tilted Jeff's head with his right. Jeff ducked a left lead, and as they clinched Johnson got in an uppercut. Johnson went into a clinch and landed an uppercut. They kidded each other. It was a light round.

Round 3—Jeff was talking as he came up and ducked away. Johnson landed a right. They clinched, and as they did so Johnson got in two uppercuts as Jeff smiled. The blows so far had been light. Johnson led with a left to face and they clinched. Jeff landed hard left on body, but the grin would not come off. After sparring a little Johnson led four lefts, landing twice. Jeff was boxing well. They clinched. Johnson got in another uppercut in the face with a right. Jeff forced the fighting in this round.

Round 4—Jeff crouched and missed. Jack got to the ear with his left and aright uppercut in a clinch that scored. On the break Johnson got in a right uppercut in a clinch that the face. Johnson's mouth was bleeding. Jeff failed with a left to the body. Jack got in a straight left. Jeff landed three light ones on the stomach. They clinched. Jack landed on the jaw. More exchanges in this round than in the others.

They clinched. On the break Jack swung to face and they clinched. Jeff's left eye was opened with an old cut. Johnson rushed, but Jeff got away, and as they feinted a clinch followed. Then Jack landed on the ear. Jeff backed Johnson all around the ring. Johnson tried for an uppercut and failed. Jeff rushed a right to body and Jack countered nicely. Jeff missed to the body. On a clinch Jack got in two good rights to the face and Jeff's eye began to close. Jeff rubbed his eye. Jeff was bleeding from the mouth and eye.

Round 7—Johnson feinted and Jeff followed him around the ring. They kept the centre of the ring, when Jack went over Jeff's back with a right swing. They clinched. After the break Jeff landed on the face. It was a light blow. Jack reached the mouth and Jeff began to bleed. In the clinch that followed Jeff received one on the swollen eye. Then Jack threw off fiercely. Jeff held on and looked worried. Jeff's eye looked red and sore and Jack landed a hard one. Johnson had this round by a wide margin.

Round 9—Choynski massaged Jeff's rapidly closing eye during the rest. Jeff was still rubbing his face when he came forward. Jack stepped in with a left and right. After a clinch Johnson got in a left to head and another to the stomach. Jeff used his head low to the negro's body and shoved him to the ropes and then clinched. Both tried to land in the clinch as they held on. On the break Johnson failed with a left, then put it into the body. Jack got solidly to the stomach and they clinched. Jeff reached the face and another clinch followed. After the break Jeff forced the work, but could not land, the negro being too clever. Jeff again was bleeding at the bell.

Round 12—Jeff kept his jaw in his shoulder and rushed in to a clinch. They clinched and separated without blows. Jeff tried a left, but the negro was out of the way, and in return landed a left on the ear, then two more. Jeff seemed unable to stop Jack in the clinches, and was taking a breathing, and rushed and landed on the face with a right and left. The negro blocked and landed an uppercut on Jim's nose. Then the negro shot in two rights, landing on the face, and kept Jeff bleeding all the time, and then landed again on Jim's nose. A left hook followed to Jeff's face in a clinch. Jeff bled profusely. He went to his corner. It was all Jackson's round.

Round 14—They rushed into a clinch. At the break Jack landed on the nose, starting the blood again. Jack got in two lefts in the clinch that followed. Jeff crowded in, but got two lefts in the face for his trouble. The negro's blows were accurate. Jeff landed the left on face. In a clinch that followed Jack landed several hard wallops. Jeff's head was continually bobbing, and he hung on in the clinches, while all the time using his free left. Jack landed two on the face and kept kidding Jeff all the time. They clinched. They were in a clinch at the bell. As the round ended Corbett asked Johnson why he did not do some fighting and Jack came back with the retort, "Too clever, like you."

Round 15—Jeff covered up as he stepped out and Jack landed his famous left. Jack sent Jim's head back with that straight left of his and he took the full count. When Jeff rose from his knees Johnson was there with a straight left and followed it with another. They clinched. As they broke away Johnson sent a right on the chin and Jeff went against the ropes. He arose slowly and Johnson knocked him through the ropes with another left swing. As a matter of fact Jeff was knocked out this time, as the count of ten elapsed before he was pulled to his feet and into the ring. Jeff spat out a mouthful of teeth and reeled around the ring with Johnson after him. Johnson struck him with the left and right time after time in the face. Jeff fell again and arose to his feet slowly, but was counted out. Meanwhile Sam Berger jumped into the ring with the evident intention of acknowledging defeat in case the knockout had not been completed.

SYNOPSIS

A party of gifted passengers on a ship bound for Australia visit a section "below decks" where a gang of convicts sentenced to deportation are confined. The ship, the Lord Nelson is wrecked. A convict, the "Frisco Pet," jumps overboard with Jocelyn Wray, a pretty little girl. The convict, after returning the girl to her friends is himself later cast away alone on a deserted island. Years have passed. Lord Ronsdale and other members of the party wrecked on the Lord Nelson, including Jocelyn Wray, go to the criminal courts in London to hear John Steele, a famous young lawyer, try a case. Steele and Jocelyn meet and form a liking for each other.

CHAPTER VI.

TIDES VARYING.

JOHN STEELE was rather late in arriving at the house of Sir Charles Wray in Piccadilly the following Thursday. But nearly every one else was late, and, perhaps knowing the fashionable foible, he had purposely held back to avoid making himself conspicuous by being prompt.

The program on the present occasion included a poet and a woman novelist. The former, a preraphaelite, led his hearers through dim mazes, Hyrcanian wilds. The novelist, on the other hand, was direct. In following her there seemed no danger of losing the way. At the conclusion of the program proper an admirer of the poet asked if their young hostess would not play a certain musical something, the theme of one of the bard's effusions, and at once Jocelyn Wray complied. Lord Ronsdale stood sedulously near, turning the leaves. Steele watched the deft hand. It was slim, aristocratic and suggested possibilities in legerdemain.

"An attractive looking pair!" whispered a woman near John Steele to another of her sex during a louder passage in the number. "Are they"—

"I don't know, my dear. Perhaps. She's extremely well off in this world's goods, and he has large properties, but—a diminishing income." She lowered her voice rather abruptly as the cadence came to a pause. The music went on again to its appointed and spirited climax.

"Was formerly in the diplomatic service, I believe," the voice also went on; "has strong political aspirations, and, with a wealthy and clever wife"—

"A girl might do worse. He is both cold and capable—an ideal combination for a political career—might become prime minister—with the prestige of his family and hers to"—

John Steele stirred. The whispering ceased. My lord turned the last page. The girl rose and bent for an instant her fair head. And as Steele looked at her again there came over him—this time, it may be, not without a certain bitterness—an impression of life and its joys—springtide and sunshine, bright, remote—so remote—for him.

A babel of voices replaced melody. The people got up. A number lingered. Many went after speaking to their hostesses and Sir Charles. John Steele, at the rear, looked at the door leading into the main hall toward the young girl, then stepped across the soft rugs and spoke to her. She answered in the customary manner, and others approached. He was about to draw back to leave when—

"Oh, Mr. Steele," she said, "my uncle wishes to see you before you go. He was saying he had some"—

"Quite right, my dear!" And Sir Charles, who had approached, took John Steele's arm. "Some curious old law books I picked up today at a bargain and want your opinion of," he went on, leading the other into a lofty and restful apartment adjoining the library. Steele looked around him. His gaze brightened as it rested on the imposing and finely bound volumes.

"You have a superb collection of books," he observed, with a sudden quick look at his host.

"Yes. I rather pride myself on my library," said Sir Charles complacently. "Lost a good many of the choicest, though," he went on in regretful tones, "some years ago as I was returning to Australia. A rare lot of law books, a library in themselves, as well as a large collection of the classics, the world's poets and historians, went down with the ill fated Lord Nelson."

"Ah?" John Steele looked away. "A great mart, London, for fine editions," he said absently after a pause.

"It is. But here are those I spoke of." And Sir Charles indicated a number of volumes on a large center table. John Steele handled them thoughtfully, and for some time his host ran on about them. A choice copy of one of the Elizabethan poets, intruding itself in that august company, then attracted Steele's attention. He picked it up, weighed and caressed it with gentle fingers.

"Who shall measure the influence of—a little parcel like this?" he said at length lightly.

"True." Sir Charles' eye caught the title. "As Portia says, 'It blesseth him that gives and him that takes.' Excellent bit of binding too. But," with new zest, "take any interest in rare books of the ring, full of eighteenth century colored prints, and so on?"

"I can't say at present that the doings of the ring or the history of pugilists attract me."

"That's because you've never seen an honest, hard fought battle perhaps?"

"A flattering designation, I should say, of the spectacle of two brutes disfiguring their already repulsive visages!"

"Two brutes — disfiguring?" the drawling voice of Lord Ronsdale, who had at that moment stepped in, inquired. "May I ask what the—talk is about?"

Sir Charles turned. "Steele was differing from me about a good, old honest English sport—the ring, its traditions, its chronicles."

"Ah!" The speaker looked at John Steele. The latter was nonchalantly regarding the pages of a book he yet held.

"For my part," went on Sir Charles in a somewhat disappointed tone, "I am one who views with regret the decadence of a great national pastime."

"Well, it's over!" the light tones of Jocelyn Wray interrupted. The girl stood on the threshold, glancing gayly from one to the other. "Did you tell my uncle, Mr. Steele, what you thought of his purchase? I see, while on his favorite subject, he has forgotten to offer you a cigar."

Sir Charles hastened to repair his remissness.

"But how," she went on, "did it go—the program, I mean? Have you forgiven me yet for asking you to come, Mr. Steele?"

"Forgiven?" he repeated. Lord Ronsdale's eyes narrowed on them.

He regarded the supple, slender figure so airily poised. As she bent forward he noticed in her hair several flowers shaped like primroses, but light crimson in hue. "What misgivings was it possible to have?" he replied.

"Oh," she replied, "the usual masculine ones—misgivings, for example, about stepping out of the routine, routine that makes slaves of men" with an accent slightly mocking. "And stepping into what? Society—the bugbear of so many men! Poor society! What flings it has to endure! By the way, did your convict get off?"

"Get off? What"—

"The one you represented—is that the word?—when we were in court."

"Yes. He was acquitted."

"I am glad. Somehow you made me feel he was innocent."

MELVILLE W. FULLER
Eminent Jurist Was of Old New England Stock

HUGHES TO BE CHIEF JUSTICE

Death of Melville Fuller Has Great Political Significance

WAS A LIFE-LONG DEMOCRAT

Head of United States Supreme Court Will Be Republican For First Time In Twenty-Three Years—Career of Noted Jurist Who Unexpectedly Passes Away at His Summer Home In Sorrento, Maine

Bar Harbor, Me., July 5.—Melville Weston Fuller, chief justice of the United States supreme court, died at his summer home at Sorrento. His death was sudden, coming as a direct result of heart failure. In the last few days he had apparently been in the best of health.

Melville W. Fuller was born at Augusta, Me., Feb. 11, 1833. He was graduated from Bowdoin college, taking the degree of M. A. in 1853, after which he attended a course of law lectures at Harvard. He was given the degree of LL. D. by Northwestern and Bowdoin in 1888, Harvard in 1890 and Yale and Dartmouth in 1901.

Mr. Fuller's first wife was Calista O. Reynolds, whom he wed in 1858. In 1866 he married Mary E. Coolbaugh. Admitted to the bar in 1855 he formed a law partnership at Augusta and dabbled in journalism, becoming associate editor of The Age, a Democratic paper published in Augusta.

Turning to politics he became president of the common council and city solicitor. In 1856, however, he moved to Chicago, where he practiced law till 1888. On April 30 of that year he was appointed chief justice of the United States by President Cleveland. The appointment was confirmed on July 20, and he took office on Oct. 8, 1888. He was a life-long Democrat.

The chief justice's second wife died a year ago at her summer home in Sorrento. Seven daughters and a son survive her.

After this event it was reported that Fuller was about to retire, taking the pension of $10,500, to which he was entitled. President Taft was declared to have been picked as his successor. Fuller, however, declared at last that he would not break the tradition that no chief justice ever resigned.

As chief justice, Fuller administered the oath of office to six presidents—Harrison, Cleveland, McKinley (twice), Roosevelt and Taft.

Before the court adjourned Chief Justice Fuller assigned the calendar for the coming fall session of the court, when the Standard Oil and tobacco trust cases are to be finally threshed out.

For the first time in twenty-three years there will be a Republican chief justice of the supreme court of the United States. The death of Chief Justice Fuller opens the way for the appointment of Governor Hughes of New York to that important position. At the time of his appointment as associate justice it was strongly intimated by President Taft that should there be a vacancy Hughes would be offered the office.

The death of the chief justice makes two vacancies which the president will fill when congress meets in December. He is now looking for a successor to Justice Moody, who will shortly retire, congress having passed special legislation for his retirement with pay.

HOUSEHOLD CARES

Tax the Women of Quincy the Same as Elsewhere.

Hard to attend to household duties
With a constantly aching back.
A woman should not have a bad back,
And she wouldn't if the kidneys were well.
Doan's Kidney Pills make well Kidneys.
Here is a Quincy woman who endorses this claim:
Mrs. Deborah Prouty, 39 Quincy avenue, Quincy, Mass., says: "I am in a position to speak in the highest terms of Doan's Kidney Pills. My back ached nearly all the time and caused me considerable trouble. Any sudden movement or an attempt to stoop, sent sharp pains through my loins. My health was much run down and I had but little strength or energy. I was very much alarmed about my condition. Finally Doan's Kidney Pills were recommended to me and I had known so many people who had used them with benefit, that I procured a supply at the Cox Drug Store. The use of three boxes convinced me that they were the best kidney remedy to be had. I am now in good health."
For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.
Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

BRIEFS

Laurence F. Loring is acting as counsellor in a boys' camp at the Adirondacks during July and August.

John Q. Newcomb, a clerk at the Quincy post office, will enjoy his vacation at Ashland, N. H.

A South Quincy man was relieved of his pocket book in Boston Saturday night. It contained about $11.

Mrs. W. B. Rice of Adams street spent the week end and the Fourth at her farm in Peterboro.

There will be a hop this evening by the Quincy Yacht club at their club house.

The Quincys defeated the Stoughtons in an Old Colony league game at Suuth Quincy on the morning of the Fourth by a score of 3 to 2.

Miss M. Lizzie Furnald, one of the outriders of Maple Lodge, K. & L. of H., in the parade Monday morning, is a charter member of that lodge and also gave it its name.

To help along the good work in starting a branch of the public library at West Quincy the editors of the Ledger are to contribute each day for the reading room a copy of the Quincy Daily Ledger.

The home of Mrs. Mary Thomas, Granite street, was beautifully decorated Monday. Perched upon the house was an owl which was shot on Blue hill forty years ago, and is still in good condition.

The Argentine party on the reviewing stand on the Fourth of July were Commander E. M. Olivera, Capt. D. Aguirre and Mrs. Aguirre. Lieut. M. Bianchi and son Norman Bianchi and Lieut. D. Casanova.

John Glover, a long resident of Quincy passed away at his home 79 Franklin street, Saturday, aged 78 years. Mr. Glover in his younger days was engaged in the manufacture of hand made boots and shoes. He leaves a widow, a son and daughter.

Mr. and Mrs. John W. Hersey of Coddington street deserve much credit for the good condition of the old flag in possession of Paul Revere Post for when it was given to the Post they spent three days stitching and tacking it to cloth to preserve it. It was literally in pieces but through their persistance it is now in fairly good condition.

DEATHS.

GLOVER--In Quincy, July 2, Mr. John Glover of 79 Franklin street, aged 78 years.

NORD--In Dorchester, July 2, suddenly, Mrs. Helen Usher Burke, wife of Gustavus J. Nord, and her infant son, formerly of West Quincy.

Fancy divings—Won by Rose Pitnoff, Lawrence Bean, second.

After the contests Miss Rose Pinoff the expert, gave an exhibition of fancy diving.

FIELD MEET AT PARK

Thayer of Quincy Wins the 100-Yard Dash

The big athletic meet at Merrymount Park was the finest ever run off in Quincy in point of attendance and interest. There were a large number of Quincy men entered in the meet, which fact drew an enormous crowd to witness the games, though a great number of people who waited to see the finish of the parade were unable to get to the field at 10 o'clock in time to see the first events. The baseball field at Merrymount Park was roped off to keep the crowd from interfering wih the runners, and though at times some encroached upon the track the crowd was well handled.

The first event was the 100 yard dash in which there was a large number of fast entries, including Thayer of Harvard who is a Quincy boy. After a number of exciting trial heats the finals were run off and was won by Thayer of Harvard, the scratchman, in 10 2-5 seconds. W. A. Ferguson, the former Boston high school star, took second for the Fore River Apprentices, and E. Lango, unattached, took third place.

In the mile run, which was run in exceedingly fast time, Frantz Marceau the former Quincy High School miler, failed to win out, but took second place easily. The 880 yard run went off in good time also.

In the 440 open, Ed Caples of Brookline gym fouled W. A. Ferguson of the Apprentices and was disqualified. There was also a foul claimed in the 440 closed. It was said that G. A. Sullivan, unattached, fouled Joseph H. Elcock, the winner of the event. There was however no settlement.

The summary:

One mile run--1st, P. Catalam, North Dorchester, A. A.; 2nd, F. Marceau, B. A. A.; 3d George A. Allen, unattached. Time, 4 min. 35 sec.

440 yard run (open--1st, E. Langa, unattached; 2nd. T. J. Halpin, South Boston A. C.; 3rd, W. A. Ferguson, Fore River Apprentices. Time, 55 seconds.

Hop, step and jump--1st, J. S. McLaughlin, South Boston A. C.; 2nd C. E. Brickley, South Boston A. C.; 3rd. M. J. O'Mally, unattached. Distance 47 ft. 10 1-2 inches.

880 yard run—1st. J. M. Burke, South Boston A. C.; 2nd, F. H. Sutermiester, unattached; 3rd, M. Cummings, unattached. Time, 2 min. 5 sec.

Running high jump—1st. F. P. McCarthy, unattached; 2nd, E. A. Poland unattached; 3d, J. M. O'Malley, unattached. Height, 5ft. 10 inches.

Three mile run—1st. P. Canavin, unattached; 3rd J. A. Hackett, Fore River Apprentices. Time 15 min. 42 2-5 sec.

440 yard run (closed)—1st J. H. Elcock, South Boston A. C.; 2nd, G. A. Sulivan, unattached; 3rd, E. Howley, unattached. Time, 55 sec.

Conciliatory.

Head Waiter (dignified and pompous) —Have you ordered, sir? Despairing Patron—Yes, I ordered a porterhouse steak half an hour ago, and I wish to apologize for my rudeness. With your permission I will withdraw it as an order and renew it as a suggestion. —Chicago Tribune.

Comparisons.

Small Tommy—My pa's awful smart. Little Elsie—What does he do? Small Tommy—He's a mechanic and makes locomotives. Little Elsie—That's nothing. My pa's a commuter and makes two trains every day.—Chicago News.

Good and Evil.

Nothing is truly good to a man which does not make him just, temperate, courageous and free, and nothing can be evil to a man which does not give him the contrary disposition.—Marcus Aurelius.

QUINCYS DROP.

With the lead of the league before them the Quincy players fell down on Saturday and left Lincoln high and dry in the top position, with a percentage of .667 to Quincy's .500, Lonergan shone in the field at bat, and Armstrong showed well. Otherwise the team played far from exceptional ball. Atwood was hit hard at the right times. For Lincoln Laughlin played fine ball.

MAKARIA VICTORY.

The Makarias with (30) thirty strong rooters journeyed to Norwell on Saturday defeated the strong team of that town by the score of 2 to 0.

Stan Bates held them to four scratch hits and fanned five. The fielding of Eggleton and Taber and the catching of Curtis were features.

CLUBHOUSE INSPECTION.

Arrangements for the opening reception and inspection of the remodelled house of the Quincy Yacht club to be held Thursday evening are practically completed, and everything points to a grand good time. Tickets for the banquet are going fast and members who desire tickets for themselves and friends should apply to Thomas E. Furnald at once, as the number is limited. There was a large number at the club house the Fourth and all expressed themselves as greatly pleased with the changes that have been made. The reception Thursday evening will be held from 6 to 7 o'clock, during which time those present will have an opportunity to meet the members of the Argentine commission and Admiral Bowles president of the Fore River Shipbuilding Co. A banquet will be served at 7 o'clock and will be followed by a vaudeville entertainment.

INTERCLUB MEET.

Seven events were run at the meet of the Old Colony and the Brockton Dribing clubs at South Weymouth on the holiday, and Old Colony won 55 to 54. Eight of the events required but two heats and only two events required four. The best time was 1.08 made by Ben F. owned by Frank Tirrell.

ARNOLD'S BOAT WINS

Several of the Quincy class D boats participated in the City of Boston yacht race at South Boston on the morning of the Fourth. The Dolly III was the first to cross the line at the finish and won the race, beating the Busy Bee, the second boat, by 45 seconds, corrected time. The Dartwell was third. Iris fourth, and D 44 fifth.

CRANCH, 9; ADAMS, 1.

The Cranch A. A. defeated the Adams A. A., July 4th, by a score of 9—1. The Adams made their score in the last innings. The features of the game were the pitching of F. Erickson, who did not pass a man; he striking out nine men and allowing but five hits.

LAWN PARTY.

Saturday, July second, was the day selected for the annual lawn party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George O. Wales, El mstreet, Braintree. It was a beautiful summer's day and the many friends who gathered on the spreading lawns from three to six o'clock greatly enjoyed the beauty of the scene and surroundings. Many found pleasure in playing tennis and croquet or in promenading about the spacious gardens of the estate while others were content to sit beneath the beautiful trees enjoying the shade and conversing with other sociable guests. Mr. and Mrs. Wales have for many years made it their habit to entertain in this manner the members of All Souls church and its friends and the affair this year proved to be one of the most successful of the series.

Ice cream, cakes and delicious strawberries were served by the efficient committee consisting of Mrs. George O. Wales, Mrs. George S. Young, Mrs. J. Frank Perry, Mrs. Lillie B. Porter, Mrs. D. Roy, Freeman, Mrs. Eben Prescott, Mrs. W. E. Morrison and Miss Jennie Edgcomb. Miss Mary Wales assisted by the members of the Samaritan society dispensed lemonade.

SALMON OFF ON LONG TRIP

President Taft Unable to Wish Her Bon Voyage

The submarine Salmon left the Fore River works shortly after noon for an endurance run to the Bermudas and return, a distance of approximately 2,000 miles. She will be convoyed by the tug Underwriter.

It was rumored last week that President Taft was to quietly steal away from Beverly and motor to Quincy to see the Salmon start on a voyage unprecedented in the history of submarines. Important business engagements however prevented his being present.

At an economical speed this first leg of the voyage should be made inside of three days. As the supply of fuel oil is small in Bermuda, the tug Underwriter will follow the Salmon with a sufficient supply so that the submarine may replenish at Bermuda.

Because of government orders that the ship should be insured by the builders, it is stipulated by the insurance concerns that a convoy also shall follow the submarine. This is because the insurance companies are not well versed in the behavior of a submarine on a voyage of that length.

From Bermuda, the Salmon will proceed to Hampton Roads and from there home to Quincy, probably stopping at Newport that the convoy may have an opportunity to take on coal. The actual time of cruising will probably be about ten days, but the time of the cruise is estimated at between two an dthree weeks.

Floral Etymology.

"Primrose" is one of those words that have shown popular association to be stronger than etymology. It has no real connection with the rose, but is the old French "primerole" and, anyhow, means only the "prime" or first flower (more or less) of the year. Our language has insisted upon making "roses" of all sorts of flowers. We have the tuberose, which is only "tuberosa," tuberous, and the rosemary, which is "rosmarinus," dew of the sea. On the other hand the "rose" has been dropped readily enough in cases where popular fancy could not see the flower. The alchemists called green vitriol "rose of copper," "cuprirosa." In French this became "couperose," but English wore it down to the pointless "copperas."—London Chronicle.

The Dancing Mania.

The "dancing mania" of the middle ages came on the heels of the great plague known as the "black death." It was some sort of nervous disease and is now supposed to have been what is known as "St. Vitus' dance." It began in the year 1374 at Aix-la-Chapelle and spread all over Germany, the Netherlands and Italy. The dancers formed circles hand in hand and appearing to have lost all reason, continued dancing, regardless of the bystanders, for hours together until in their wild delirium they fell to the ground in sheer exhaustion. Panting and foaming at the mouth, they would suddenly spring up and begin the dance again, to be again exhausted, and so on until they died. The mania involved millions of people.

The Use of Condiments.

In an article on the use of condiments the London Lancet, the foremost British medical publication, says: "The classic experiments of Pawlow have shown how important is the role of the condiments in diet, how it is they improve appetite and increase digestive power. Mustard, pepper and salt, used, of course, in sensible amounts, assist the appetite, give a zest to food and partly by reflex action as well as local action stimulate the flow of digestive juices and insure healthy assimilation. Even vinegar is known to have a softening effect on tough fibers, and hence its use is justified in so many instances."

Saving Time or Time Tables.

To most people, especially when they are on the road, time is money, but time tables are not convertible into cash. In the pages of "Through Savage Europe" Harry De Windt gives a curious and amusing experience on a Russian railway some years ago. The patience of the Russians is in marked contrast with the impatience of American travelers. All Russians have a rooted antipathy to fast railway travel, if one may judge from an incident which occurred some years ago when I was travelling across the Caucasus from Batoum to Baku. We had reached a tunnel, at the entrance of which the train waited for at least twenty minutes.

"There is something wrong," I remarked to a fellow passenger.

"Oh, no," he replied; "we are only making up the time. This tunnel was recently made to avoid a long bend round a range of hills, and as it now cuts off several miles a short delay is necessary so as to fit in with the scheduled time."

"But surely we should save time by going on," I urged.

"Perhaps so," said my friend. "But then, you see, they would have to alter all the time tables."

Form of Divorce In Old Rome.

In the earlier period of the Roman republic divorces were quite unknown and were rare right up to the time of the Sullan wars. In the old days the husband and wife who wished to separate appeared for the last time before the common hearth, a priest and priestess being present. As on the day of marriage, a cake of wheaten flour was presented to the husband and wife, but instead of sharing it between them they rejected it. Then, instead of prayers, they pronounced formulas of a strange, severe, spiteful character, by which the wife renounced the worship and gods of the husband. From that moment the religious bond was broken, and, the community of worship having ceased to exist, the marriage without further ado was forever dissolved.—New York American.

Not by Exclusion.

He—I had a hard time getting a good wife.

She—Goodness! Have you been married several times?

Railroad Commissioners Take Responsibility for Operation of Trolley Freight

Grant Petition of Old Colony St. Railway to Use Quincy Streets

The Railroad Commissioners have issued an order directing the Old Colony street railway company to operate a trolley freight in Quincy. The only condition in the order being the time at which the business shall be put in operation.

railway company. A hearing was advertised and held, and no more was heard from it until last Friday, when the Railroad Commissioners, as stated above issued an order of approval.

This means that we are to have a trolley freight line in Quincy at an early date, as it is understood the street railway company has its cars already to put into service, and is taking steps to secure the necessary land for its terminals.

The question of operating a trolley freight in Quincy has been pending a long time. The first time that the company applied to the City Council for approval of its operating a trolley freight the company was given leave to withdraw after a hearing. The main reason was because they would not give to the public the rates they proposed to charge. Later the company applied for a right to operate on Randolph avenue and were again turned down.

In the meantime an amendment to the trolley freight law was enacted by the Legislature, which gave the Railroad Commissioners the right to grant these franchises, after hearing, in case the approval was refused by towns and cities. The grounds for the amendment was that the general public should not be prevented from enjoying the privileges because certain towns did not want it.

Last year the company again came to the City Council, and asked for approval to operate a trolley freight on all other lines in Quincy. A hearing was held, and an order was eventually passed approving of the trolley freight. The order contained a number of conditions and restrictions the most important of which was limitation of ten years.

The company objected to this condition on the ground that in order to establish the business a large outlay of money was necessary to acquire land and build terminals. The company objected to this outlay as there was a possibility that the approval might not be renewed at the expiration of the ten years.

The Railroad Commissioners, in a letter to the City Council while the matter was pending, said it had never approved of a grant with a limited time, intimating that it would not approve of the City Council order in this case.

This year the street railway company again came to the City Council, asking for approval to operate on its lines in Quincy. A hearing was held, after which the City Council gave the company leave to withdraw its petition, as it had already granted a permite in 1909.

While the question was pending this year the general sentiment seemed to be in favor of a twenty year limit.

As soon as the City Council had disposed of the question this year, it was taken before the Railroad Commissioners on a petition of the street

PLAYGROUND OPENED

Two Hundred Quick to Take Advantage

The playground at the Y. M. C. A. on Washington street was opened Tuesday under the supervision of C. M. Gifford, physical director at the Y. M. C. A., who was last year Supervisor of Playgrounds in Beverly. Assisting him is Miss Ella Packard, who is a student at Boston University. Two hundred children took advantage of the playground on the opening day.

Permission has been given the playground committee by R. Murphy of Wollaston, who owns a strip of land abutting the playground and fronting on Foster street, to use his property. Workmen are now clearing this ground, and a number of new teeters and swings and a "giant stride" will be installed.

There is every facility for the care of a large number of children who will receive all care and attention possible.

The playground will be open until September, and will be of greatest benefit to the little ones who will be instructed in simple physical exercises and games, and will be given every opportunity to enjoy the air and sunshine. At present there are a number of swings, two teeters, and two sand-boxes, balls and beanbags; all of which are never idle.

SILVER WEDDING.

Sunday, July 3, was the 25th anniversary of the wedding of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Grossman, who celebrated the happy time at their home on Water street, by a reception to their friends throughout the day. About 200 attended. The house was pretily decorated and music was enjoyed in the afternoon and evening. The couple were assisted in receiving by their daughters, Mrs. B. Rappaport and Miss Annie Grossman. Mr. and Mrs. Grossman were married July 3, 1885, and have nine children and three grandchildren.

EXTRA

RAILROAD COLLISION

Passenger Train Runs Into Freight Train

A bad accident was narrowly averted between Braintree Heights and South Braintree at 12.45, this noon, when an inward Cape express train banged into the rear end of a freight train that stood on the main line.

The Cape express was slowing down somewhat so that the impact was not so severe as it would have been had the train been going at top speed. The engine of the Cape train struck the caboose of the freight train and ploughed half way through it before it came to a stop.

The engineer o fthe Cape train saw that a collison was unavoidable and applied the emergency brake. The distance was too short to prevent the accident.

Both he and the fireman are said to have jumped. The engineer escaped with a few bruises. The fireman, however, was quite badly injured.

He suffered a fractured shoulder and leg, besides bruises and possible internal injuries. He was taken to the South Braintree station and later to a Boston hospital.

One of the passengers on the Cape train told the Daily Ledger by telephone his experience although he did not want his named used. He said that the train was moving along at good speed until after passing Braintree Heights, when it suddenly slowed down, and a few seconds later there was a jar as the two trains came together. The jar, however, was not a severe one, and no one in his car were thrown from their seats.

All realized, however, the train had struck something, and hurried from the cars. Just ahead of them was a freight train while the engine of the Cape train was half way through the caboose of the freight. The end of the caboose was badly smashed. Over one side of the track was the fireman who had jumped.

He did not tnink that there was any one in the caboose and if there had been they had probably escaped by jumping. Physicians were summoned by telephone and the injured fireman taken to the South Braintree station.

After some delay the disabled engine and caboose was hauled to South Braintree and another engine attached to the Cape train and hauled it to Boston. The inward track was cleared by 2 o'clock.

Accommodations for 1,000 Books and Also Reading Room

The new branch reading room of the Thomas Crane Public Library at West Quincy is now open for business, and is very pleasantly located on the Furnace Brook parkway near the Willard schoolhouse. It occupies the whole of a one-story building 30 x 30 which may for some time meet all requirements.

special committee of the board, made the opening speech, and then, in a few well chosen words, introduced his honor, the Mayor, who expressed his pleasure in being present at the opening of the first branch reading room in Quincy, and his interest in the opportunity offered to the residents of West Quincy.

MAYOR SHEA.

Among those present were his honor Mayor Shea, several of the trustees of the Thomas Crane Public Library, Miss White, the librarian, and a delegation from the Quincy Women's Club. Those for whom this reading room is intended were present in generous numbers and all seemed to feel it an occasion for general rejoicing.

The exercises were of an entirely informal nature and evinced a heartiness and spontanerty so often lacking in a carefully prepared programme.

The Mayor was followed by the librarian, who expressed her gratification in the realization of a long-cherished plan now made possible through the efforts of the Mayor and the generosity of the City Council.

Mrs. John W. Sanborn responded to a request for a few words, on behalf of the Women's club, who are always interested in all movements of public opportunity. A bunch of beautiful roses, given by Mrs. Whitcher, Mrs. Sanborn and Mrs. Davis, were much appreciated.

Ex-Mayor H. A. Keith of the board of trustees spoke of the early days of the Quincy Public Library when individual interest expresesd itself

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

It is to be hoped that both Arizona and New Mexico are provided with capitals guaranteed to stay put.

Mr. Taft cannot complain that Congress has been precipitate or hasty.

The first speech Mr. Roosevelt delivers will be to the people of Kansas That is right. Kansas needs talking to worse than any other State in the Union, perhaps.

With his interest in the prevention of race suicide unabated, one of the first thing Roosevelt probably did was to inquire how the little Oyster Baybies were getting along.

It is remarkable how regularly the Congress of the United States and the Massachusetts legislature find themselves in a close race as to date of adjournment. The bay State, as usual, was this time just a trifle ahead, at the finish.

The originators of the idea of celebrating the Fourth in Quincy; the committees which worked hard to carry the plans through to success and the citizens who contributed of money and time, should feel proud of results. It was a grand success from beginning to end; a sane Fourth, fittingly observed. The beauty of many of the floats, and special features well carried out in the early morning parade was a surprise and a pleasure to every one fortunate to see it, as was the beautiful fireworks display. Another year even more interest will be aroused and in years to come Quincy's sane celebration of the Fourth will attract people for miles around.

The Daily Ledger was one of the few papers which did not make the prize fight the most prominent feature of Tuesday's news. Such an exhibition is out of place on any day, but especially on Independence day. On this particular date President Taft was a guest of Metropolitan Boston, and not only reviewed several Fourth of July parades, but also addressed the National convention of teachers, and was really a greater attraction than the pugilists. The movement of the Christian Endeavor Societies of the country to prevent moving picture exhibitions of the fight will be watched with interest, and should succeed. Certainly children should not be permitted to attend any such exhibitions.

EDUCATIONAL SUNDAY.

A very interesting sermon was delivered by the Rev. Joseph Walthers, of the Wollaston Baptist church, Sunday morning. His text was taken from John 7:46, and John 3:2. The subject was "Jesus Christ, the superlative teacher."

In speaking of the great teachers of education that the centuries have produced in different lands, it was proved that Jesus Christ is the greatest of all teachers. Our churches, Sunday schools, public schools, colleges, asylums for the insane, politics and liberty have all been founded through the great teacher, Jesus Christ.

In closing, "Have we taken Christ as our teacher?" It is our privilege and mind to sit at his feet, and learn as Mary did. Even the teachers of today, however wise, may sit and learn. At his feet should be the place we should all want to be.

The regular meeting for prayer and testimony will be held this week in the chapel. Subject: "Spiritual health." III John 2; Isaiah 55: 1-2; Psalm 42. What makes spiritual health? Signs of spiritual health? How the body and mind affect each other.

All sessions of the Sunday School and the evening preaching service, will be discontinued until the second Sunday in September.

Union services will be held in the Congregational church, July 31, August 7 and 14. In the Baptist church, August 21, 28 and September 4.

NEW RATES FOR GRANITE

General Advance by Railroads to the West

The New Haven road has issued new tariffs raising the freight rates to the west. This tariff takes effect August1, and will seriously affect the Quincy granite men.

The first class freight rate between Quincy and Chicago is 75 cents per hundred pounds, but after the new tariff goes into effect the rate will be 90 cents, an increase of 20 percent.

Granite is the chief export from Quincy Adams and West Quincy to the west and the new rates will make the cost much higher, F. O. B., at the points of destination.

The rates on polished blocks, slabs or pieces, crated or boxed, less than carloads at the present time to Cleveland is 29 cents; to Columbus, O., 31 cents; Cincinnati 35 cents; Indianapolis, 38 cents; Columbus, Ind., 38 cents; and to Chicago 40 cents. Under the new tariff the rates will be Cleveland 34 cents; Columbus, O., 38 cents; Cincinnati 42 cents; Indianapolis 38 cents; Columbus, Ind., 46 cents and Chicago 48 cents.

In carloads of 30,000 lbs to the same points the rates per 100 pounds are:

	Old	New
Cleveland,	21 cts	23 cts.
Columbus, O.	23 cts.	26 cts.
Cincinnati,	26 cts.	29 cts.
Indianapolis,	28 cts.	31 cts.
Columbus, Ind.,	29 cts.	32 cts.
Chicago,	30 cts.	33 cts.

On the rough, quarried, sawed, hammered, chiseled or dressed granite, not polished the old and the new rates for carloads are as follows:

	Old	New
Cleveland,	18 cts.	18 cts.
Columbus, O.,	20 cts.	21 cts.
Cincinnati	22 cts.	23 cts.
Indianapolis	23 cts.	25 cts.
Columbus, Ind.	24 cts.	26 cts.
Chicago,	25 cts.	27 cts.

The old and new rates for less than car load lots will be:

	Old	New
Cleveland	25 cts	28 cts.
Columbus, O.	27 cts.	31 cts.
Cincinnati,	30 cts.	35 cts.
Indianapolis	33 cts.	27 cts.
Columbus, Ind.	34 cts.	3 8cts.
Chicago	35 cts.	40 cts.

This advance in rates will also affect the Tubular Stud and Rivet Co., of Wollaston. This raise is general all over the country, and is the first general increase in the straight class rates that has taken effect in a number of years.

THE OLD LOVE SONG.

William Channing Gannett.

Play it slowly ,sing it lowly,
Old familiar tune!
Once it ran in dance and dimple,
Like a brook in June;
Now it sobs along the measures
With a sound of tears;
Dear old voices echo through it,
Vanished with the years.

Play it slowly—it is holy
As an evening hymn;
Morning gladness hushed to sadness
Fills it to the brim.
Memories home within the music,
Stealing through the bars,
Thoughts within its quiet spaces
Rise and set like stars.

Ripple, ripple, goes the love-song
Till in slowing time.
Early sweetness grown completness
Floods its every rhyme;
Who together learn the music
Life and death unfold,
Know that love is not beginning
Until love is old.

Singing, singing through the roses
Went our lovers twain—
Was there ever such a rose time,
Could there be again?
Now they tell us "Five-and-twenty
Junes we've seen them blow;
Every June's completer, sweeter—
Well we lovers know!"

Positive Opinions That Newman Did Not Commit Suicide

SOME STARTLING TESTIMONY

Severe Bruises Received Some Hours Before Death of Boy In Lyman School, According to Medical Man Who Was Present at Autopsy—Knot Around Victim's Neck Was Not Tied by Boy Himself

Boston, July 6.—Positive opinions that John Newman's death at the Lyman School was not the result of suicide were expressed to the legislative investigating committee by Dr. Charles T. Cahill, the Cambridge family physician for the Newmans, and slightly less positive opinions to the same effect were given by Dr. Edwin W. Dwight of Boston, for many years connected with the city hospital staff in Boston.

Dr. Dwight testified, in answer to questions asked by Attorney Sullivan, representing the Newman family, that he was present at the autopsy performed on the boy's body by Dr. G. B. McGrath, medical examiner for the Suffolk district. He said he found two bruises on the boy's forehead, three others on the right side of the face, a bruise on the right elbow and another on the back; all of these bruises showed hemorrhages in the tissues, indicating clearly that they were caused while the heart was still beating.

As to the mark about the boy's neck, where the sheet was adjusted, Dwight declared that no man could tell whether this mark was made immediately before or immediately following death. He said that none of the characteristics of application before death was present in this mark, there being no hemorrhage of the tissues.

Dr. Dwight testified that he was absolutely certain that all of the bruises on the boy's face could not have been caused by swinging in contact with iron bars. The bruise on the back, he said, extended for nearly two inches into the body, there being a hemorrhage even beneath the muscles, showing clearly that the boy received a powerful blow on that spot.

Dr. Cahill was positive in his assertion that the boy did not commit suicide. He said the mark on the boy's back was clearly the result of a blow, and he believed that the heavy bruise on the right elbow was received by the boy in an effort to protect his back from further blows. He concurred in the opinion of Dr. Dwight that the marks on the boy's face could not all have been caused by striking against iron bars.

Under examination by Sullivan, Dwight testified that the cause of the discoloration may have came very shortly before death. The pressure on the tongue seems to have been applied for a good while, testified Dwight, and the marks on the neck were caused by the pressure of the sheets against the lower portion of the neck.

"In all human probability," Dr. Dwight said, "the knot around the neck was very tight and was tied by someone besides the victim. I have reason to believe that the knot was not tied by the boy himself.

"The causes of discoloration were applied less than twelve or fifteen hours before the time of death. I think twelve hours is a perfectly fair statement to make."

Attorney Sullivan asked: "Will you gentlemen who have had a good deal of experience in these matters have any doubt regarding these bruises?"

"Not the slightest," answered Dwight. "The signs are more conclusive than human testimony. Simply from the appearance of the bruises, I should say it was a question of hours when the force was applied to cause these bruises. Assuming they were not present when the examination was made, I would state quite positively they were applied within twelve hours before his heart stopped beating."

In reply to questions by Chairman Ham of the committee, the witness stated that he did not believe the bruises were possible by one fall. He believed that they were due to several, probably many, blows of considerable severity. "I base that largely on the fact that the blood between the muscles was very evenly distributed, otherwise there would have been more blood near the point, and the tissues would not have been curved up like that after multiple bruises," said Dwight.

LETTERS OF PUBLIC INTEREST

HALF HOLIDAY.

Editor Quincy Ledger:

I understand that the newly formed Merchants Association have taken up the Wednesday afternoon early closing proposition for the clerks of Quincy. I would like to call attention to the existing conditions concerning the hours of labor especially relating to the grocery and provision clerks of this city. At the present time their week's work consists of form 65 to 70 hours. Now, considering the fact that mechanics and also clerks in nearly every other line of business except the above work but 45 to 55 hours a week during the summer time, I think it about time that these barbarous conditions should cease. I am informed on good authority that one of the largest provision firms in Quincy absolutely refuses to allow their store to be closed a half day each week. I am also informed that said firm work their clerks harder and longer hours than any other in Quincy or in fact in eastern Massachusetts. As nearly every city and town all over the State at the present time, including parts of our own city, viz: Wollaston and Atlantic, are giving their clerks either Wednesday or some other afternoon each week, it seems to me that it is about time for Quincy to wake up and join the ranks of the real live cities.

PROFIT IN ASPARAGUS.

In its crop report for July, recently issued, the State Board of Agriculture includes an article on "Growing and Marketing Asparagus," by Mr. Frank Wheeler, of Concord, Mass. This article is of great interest to all those who contemplate taking up the growing of asparagus, or are now growing the crop. Mr. Wheeler is one of the foremost asparagus growers in the State, has had a great deal of experience with the crop, and produces a fancy article which commands an extra price in the Boston market. He treats the subject in a very practical and interesting manner. This report can be obtained by applying to J. Lewis Ellsworth, secretary State Board of Agriculture, State House, Boston, and those wishing it may have their names placed on the permanent mailing list to receive future issues.

In conclusion he says: "During the last fifteen years the demand for asparagus has grown faster than the supply, and the prospect of good profit from growing of it in future is good, especially for the large grade. All the extra profit in growing the large grade does not come from the extra price received, but partly from the more economical handling of the crop. It takes the same time to cut and pack the same number of little stalks as it does of the large ones, but, after they are packed and tied, there is not more than one-third or one-half as many bunches. Therefore get good stock, give it plenty of room, feed it high, give it the best of care, put up the produce honestly, get a reputation for good "grass," and the reward will be satisfactory."

—To include "advertising" among the causes of the high price of living is a joke. Advertising enables the merchants to sell in larger quantities and the consumers to buy at lower prices. What the circulation of blood is to the human body, that is advertising to the body of business.—Concord, N. H., Monitor.

TRUSTEE BURKE.

The reading room, in charge of Miss Wainwright, is now open to the public from 3.30 to 5.30 in the afternoon and 6.30 to 8.30 in the evening, except on Friday, when it closes at 5.30 P. M.

MISS WHITE.

The building is high studded and well lighted by windows. In the evening it will be lighted by gas. It will be heated by furnace. There is a desk for the attendant, shelves for nearly 1,000 volumes, and four six-foot tables which will accommodate 24 persons. At the start there will be a deposit of 300 volumes, which will be exchanged frequently at the main library. There will also be a weekly delivery from the main library.

Old Saws and Sayings.

A few old sayings on the subject of food come to us rather as a surprise in our age of daintiness and refinement, yet they have their raison d'etre notwithstanding. "Meat is much, manners are more;" "Cease your chatter and mind your platter;" "The ass that brays most eats least;" "The wing with the liver to him who's the giver;" "He can give little to his servant who licks his own trencher."

Apropos of this remark, it is amusing to note that "manners" was the name given to the remnants of a meal. These came to the servants as official perquisites; hence our well worn expression before emptying a dish, "Leave the last slice for whatever it may be) for manners," though it votes were collected on this point it is hardly likely that any of us would have taken it as it stands in the original.

Carthage's Great Snake.

The ancients firmly believed in monster serpents of all kinds and of both the land and marine species. During the wars with Carthage a great snake is said to have kept the Roman army from crossing the Bagrados river for several days. The monster swallowed up no less than seventy Roman soldiers during this combat and was not conquered until a hundred stones from as many different catapults were fired upon it all at one time. The monster skull and skin were preserved and afterward exhibited in one of the Roman temples. The dried skin of the creature was 120 feet in length, according to Pliny.

An Avenger

A Story of an Assassination by a Russian Nihilist

By C. L. POINEER

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

I was making a tour of Switzerland on foot. All the luggage I had with me was strapped on my back, and in my hand I carried a light alpenstock.

One morning I started from Interlaken to walk to Thun. The road I took leads along the west bank of Lake Thun, or Thunder lake, one of the prettiest bodies of water in Switzerland. From the road one has a perpetual view of the Bernese Alps, the Eiger, the Monk and the Jungfrau, whose snowy peaks rising high in the heavens may often be mistaken for light clouds. The sun was shining on the lake, over whose bosom the little steamers running between Interlaken and Thun loaded with tourists were passing back and forth.

Not far from Interlaken the road passes through a tunnel in a perpendicular cliff that forms the bank of the lake. While walking through this tunnel I caught up with a youth who, judging from his pack, was making a foot journey the same as I. He spoke to me in German, the language of that part of Switzerland, but I signified that I did not understand him, and he repeated his question in French.

"How far is it, sir, to Thun?"

"Ten or twelve miles, I believe."

He was inclined to let me go on ahead of him; but, preferring company, I adapted my gait to his. He was apparently not more than eighteen years old. No beard had yet started on his face, and his hair and complexion were fair. I took him for a Swede or a Norwegian, though such light hair and skin are common in northern Germany. We walked on together, chatting and enjoying the beautiful panorama of the lake, the hills beyond and still beyond these the mountains. For awhile the young man was guarded in his speech. He then discovered that I was an American—he had supposed me to be an Englishman—and this seemed to awaken confidence, though it was rather a fellow feeling, for he kept me still in ignorance as to who he was or where he was going. I knew, however, from his conversation that he was highly educated and one of those persons who are born to think deep. I was astonished at his familiarity with the various schools of philosophy. That he was a dreamer as well as a thinker was apparent from ideas he advanced, which to me seemed a century ahead of the times.

At Meiringen we halted for luncheon, eating sandwiches and drinking beer at a table under the trees in front of a hotel. We rested for an hour after luncheon, smoking, I my pipe, my companion cigarettes (the usual form of a smoke in that country).

The subject that most interested him was America and how to get there. I told him that it all depended on where one started from and waited for him to tell me from what point he would begin. "The Riviera," was his reply. Whereupon I informed him that from any point on the Riviera—say Nice or Mentone—one might by a short railway journey reach Genoa, from which port steamers are constantly leaving for the United States. He seemed much interested in this and more so when I told him that I had engaged passage by that route myself. When I asked him if he had any intention of visiting my country he replied that he had not.

We reached Thun about 5 o'clock, and, after refreshing ourselves with a glass of beer in the gardens of the Kursaal, I went to my hotel, my companion going I knew not where. One meets all kinds of people traveling abroad, especially if one likes to form acquaintances as I do. Of all those I have met in any of my tours the person who made the most impression upon me was the young philosopher about whom I learned nothing.

I went by rail from Thun to Paris, from there to Nice, and from Nice to Mentone. I found at Mentone General A., who had been minister of the interior in Russia. Indeed, I stopped in the same hotel with him. Those who knew told me that several attempts had been made upon his life revolutionists, or, as they were then called, nihilists, and that he was closely guarded. During his incumbency in office he had sent hundreds of people to Siberia, besides those he had executed. He had been proscribed by the nihilists, they having vowed to kill him. I asked why he should dread his enemies so far from home and was told that they could work to better advantage beyond the Russian borders than within them. In Russia the government could act direct. In other countries more or less red tape was necessary to arrest a suspect, and before it could be done an assassination might take place. General A. was spending a season at Mentone for his health, being afflicted with some nervous disorder. It seemed to me that a man living in fear for his life would be likely to have nerve trouble. He was very regular in his habits, going out to walk in the morning and to drive in the afternoon, always attended by men in citizens' dress, who closely eyed every one who approached him.

Notwithstanding the precautions taken the general was assassinated at Mentone and at the time I was there. It was in June and the days were long. About half past 8 o'clock one evening I went up to my room after dinner and, lighting a cigar, stood for a moment at my window, which was on the north side of the hotel. Several buildings were near, and from a window of one of them I saw a puff of smoke and heard a crack. There was nothing to be seen in the window, for the blinds were closed. If a shot had been fired it must have been from between the slats.

The occurrence did not make much impression on me, but an hour later, on going downstairs, I found the hotel proprietor, the servants, the guests, all horror stricken. On asking the cause I was told that General A. had been shot by some one who had fired a bullet into his room through an open window. Upon asking the time the affair occurred I was told that it was about half past 8.

I knew perfectly well that I had seen the smoke of the weapon that had done the deed and could point out the window from which it had been fired, but I held my peace. Some one had revenged a long list of barbarities visited upon those who had dared to attempt to build up an oppressed people, and I was not interested in taking any part in the affair. I inquired if it was known from what point the shot was fired and was told that it was believed it had come from a tree that grew near the general's window. By this I knew that I was the only person who had witnessed the firing. By giving the information I possessed the police would have a description of the person or persons occupying the room from which the assassin had done the work, and they would be pretty sure to make the arrest. I confess, sympathizing with the Russian revolutionists, I had no intention of enlightening them.

I was pleased, however, possessing such a secret, that the time had come for me to leave Mentone. My steamer was due to sail from Genoa the next morning, and I took a night train for that city. I stood, shortly before sailing, on the upper deck looking at the swarm of people, some hurrying aboard, some going ashore, all infected by that bustle usual to a steamer about to leave port.

A girl came up the gangway whose face was familiar to me. Where had I seen her? It bothers one to see a face without being able to place it, and this case annoyed me more than usual. However, since I could not recollect where I had met her I ceased to think about her, interesting myself in other persons. We soon passed out on to the bosom of the Mediterranean, and I rejoiced at the prospect of getting home.

During the next few days I looked for the girl whom I had been unable to place, both on deck and in the dining saloon. I did not see her till we had passed Gibraltar and steamed out on to the Atlantic. Then one morning, while walking on the highest of all the decks, where there were no other passengers, I suddenly came upon her sitting on the boards, leaning up against a projection that shielded her from the wind.

She turned white as a cloth.

At first I thought I would stop and ask her where we had met, but she turned her eyes away from me, and I saw that either I had made a mistake in appearing that I had known her or she had no desire to continue the acquaintance. But why had the meeting with me so affected her? I thought over every one I had met abroad—indeed, every one I had ever known—in order to discover if there was any with whom I had had trouble. No; the record was clear.

We stopped at Madeira and the Azores. I did not see the girl again till we had left the latter islands. But I had thought a great deal of her, and finally it suddenly flashed upon me who she was and where I had met her. She was the young man with whom I had walked from Interlaken to Thun.

After leaving the Azores I came upon her, sitting on deck where I had first seen her. I was about to pass her when she smiled at me. Of course I joined her.

"Now that we have touched at the last European port," she said, "I am willing to make myself known to you. We walked together one day in Switzerland."

"Is the costume you wore then or the one you wear now your legitimate dress?"

"The one I wear now."

I waited for her to explain, but she did not. So I said:

"Why have you deferred making yourself known to me?"

"Because I am a fugitive. Had I not had confidence that you would not betray me I should not have planned to take this steamer. Yet I was obliged to take it. You will not betray me?"

"How do you know that? If you have committed a crime it is my duty to betray you."

That was the end of the confidence she gave me. I did not wish her to give me any more. I knew all she could have told me. I wished that I did not know it lest I might be called upon to bear witness concerning it. I leave it to the reader to infer what I inferred. It is too terrible and too dangerous to be expressed in words.

I saw something of the girl every day or so on shipboard, but when we reached port I did not think it safe to be seen with her. I did not see her when she left the ship. For several days I eagerly scanned the newspapers, dreading to read of her arrest. Since I did not and have heard nothing of her since, I have concluded that she landed without detection. What became of her after that I do not know.

GARDEN PARTY.

The committees in charge of the Garden Party of the St. Mary's parish met last evening in the music room of the church and the minor details were arranged. The party will be held on Saturday afternoon and evening, July 16, on the grounds of the parochial residence and from the reports of the various committees the event will prove to be one of the social affairs of the summer season. The program consists of sports in the afternoon and dancing in the evening.

The committee in charge are as follows:

The Epicurean Badger.

The badger is a great epicure in eggs, and much of the hostility of gamekeepers to this animal lies undoubtedly in the fact that it will, when it gets the chance, devour a whole nest of partridge or pheasant eggs. Badgers are said also to be fond of honey, and, knowing the extraordinary craving of their South African cousin, the ratel, for this delicacy, I should say it is not improbable that they may occasionally partake of it. It is certain that these animals have a particular liking for the nest and larvae of wasps and wild bees, digging down with strong feet and infinite perseverance till they attain their object. These animals are said by keepers to kill and devour freely young rabbits. That they do partake of this fare at times is, I think, certain, but that they destroy any very considerable number is more than doubtful. Still, the badger is carnivorous in his tastes and is not, even by his kindliest friends, to be absolved from devouring at times tender rabbits and even the young of game birds when he can get hold of them.—Westminster Gazette.

Throat Trouble.

"You look bad, old man. What's the matter?"

"Throat trouble."

"I didn't know you were subject to it."

"Yes, I am. This throat belongs to the newcomer in the next house, who practices singing at all hours of the night."

BRIEFS

The Quincy built submarines Cuttlefish, Viper and Tarantula arrived at Annapolis on Tuesday.

The alarm from Box 41 at 7.20 Tuesday evening was for a slight fire in the polishing mill of C. H. Hardwick & Sons. The fire was probably set by boys and caused a damage of $10.

All along the route of the Fourth of July parade the many friends of Mrs. Sarah C. Williams were pleased to see her smiling face. Mrs. Williams is a long and faithful member of the Knights and Ladies of Honor, and her smiling countenance as she stood beside the goat, inviting all to come and ride it, will long be remembered.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Jones and daughter Gertrude left on Tuesday for a sojourn in the White Mountains. They were accompanied by five Wollaston young ladies, Miss Evelyn Cummings, Miss Eva Hungerford, Miss Eva Sheldon, Miss Marion West and Miss Abbie Wilde, who are guests of Mr. and Mrs. Jones and will be entertained by them for one week at the Crawford House.

The resignation of Rabbi Charles Fleischer, pastor of the Congregation Adah Israel, Boston has been reluctantly accepted. He is well known outside his church as an advanced thinker and lecturer. He has preached and lectured in First church this city, was a speaker at one of the meetings of the Quincy Women's club the first year of its organization and last month addressed the graduating class at Woodward institute.

—One need not be a churchman in order to realize that the census figures showing a greater proportionate increase in church membership than in population is a wholesome sign. Even the rabid freethinker cannot contest the simple fact that the man who allies himself with a religious body and endeavors to conform to its rules finds himself thus constrained to observe the requirements of good citizenship. To be a good Christian one must be a good citizen. This is an axiomatic truth and not to be debated. Therefore, be the point of view what it may, the rapid growth of the churches is to be regarded with satisfaction. Herein we have irrefragable evidence of an advancing tendency towards good order and right living an dthis means that the republic as a whole grows better with the advancing years.—Pittsburg Chronicle-Telegraph.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

SWAN BACK FROM BRAZIL

He Is Held on Charge of Kidnapping His Own Son

New York, July 6.—Joseph M. Swan, formerly of Everett, Mass., is held at a police station here on the charge of kidnapping his own son. The child, 6 years of age, is in the custody of the Children's society. Swan was arrested as he came from the steamer Verdi. His arrest followed an international struggle for the possession of the little one.

Swan was married twelve years ago to Miss Adra Gaul. In 1907 she sought a divorce on the grounds of cruelty. She was given a decree and the custody of the child. In the order of the court the father was permitted to see the child once each week and to have him for twenty-four hours each month.

"The third time I got the child I took passage for Rio de Janeiro," said Swan. "I am going to engage the best counsel I can get and fight both for my liberty and the possession of my child."

SECOND BANDIT IN JAIL

Absen Leaves Hospital and Is Held Without Bail For Murder

Lynn, Mass., July 6.—Andrew Absen, the second of the Lynn bandits, was lodged in the Salem jail with his confederate, Wasili Iwankowski. Both are charged with the murder of Thomas H. Landregan, the manufacturer, and of Patrolman James H. Carroll, who were shot down June 25 in a Lynn street while on the way from the bank to the Landregan factory with the money for the pay roll.

Absen was shot in the head while fleeing after the murders, and had been in the Lynn hospital. He was arraigned before Judge Lummus in the Lynn court. The proceedings were brief, and he was held without bail and committed to the county jail to await action by the grand jury.

DOROTHY DEACON BECOMES PRINCESS

Is Wife of Future Head of Great Family of Radziwill

London, July 5.—Miss Dorothy Deacon, daughter of the late E. P. Deacon of Boston, and Prince Antoine A. Radziwill were married in St. Mary's church here. The ceremony was a quiet one, without bridesmaids, and only a few relatives and near friends present. Lord Grey de Ruthyd gave the bride in marriage.

Prince Radziwill marries against the determined opposition of his mother, who is supposed to be in Austria, where she went to attend the wedding of a younger son. Radziwill is 25 years old and will succeed his father, Prince George, as head of the great Polish family of Radziwill.

His father is confined in an insane asylum. The bride's father died in an asylum in America some years ago, after a scandal in France which resulted in his divorce. A sister, Miss Gladys Deacon, is noted for her beauty and has at different times been reported to be engaged to members of noble European families. The young women formerly lived in Boston.

BALLINGER WON'T RESIGN

Says He Will Be Found at Desk In Washington Next Year

Boston, July 6.—"I shall be back in Washington next year, and at my desk as usual at the head of the interior department when my detractors shall have been forgotten," was the reply Secretary of the Interior Ballinger made last night to the rumors of his intended resignation.

Secretary Ballinger had returned from Beverly, where he had spent the day with President Taft in going over matters connected with the administration of the interior department. He left for Washington last night.

FATHER SAVES SEVEN LIVES

One Daughter Dead and He May Lose His Own Life

Portland, Me., July 6.—Captain E. A. Doughty, familiarly known all over Casco bay as Captain Gus Doughty, is dying and his 4-year-old daughter Dorothy is dead as the result of a fire which destroyed their little home at Great Chebeague Island.

Captain Doughty imperilled his own life to save his eight children, ranging in age from 14 years to 7 months, and it is believed that the seven survivors will recover. All the children but two were badly burned.

Freed on Murder Charge

Newport, Me., July 6.—Samuel Rubinowisch of Waterville, who was arraigned on a charge of having murdered his partner in the junk business, Lewis Baroen, was discharged after a hearing. Bareon was drowned under suspicious circumstances.

JOHNSON HAS TITLE FOR LIFE

Opinion Among Leaders of the Sporting Fraternity

LANGFORD WANTS A MATCH

May Keep After Champion Until He Gets It, Unless Some "Unknown" White Man Is Dug Up—No Pugilist of Today Able to Whip Vanquisher of Jeffries—Rickard Says His Task as Referee Was Easy

New York, July 6.—Who can fight Johnson now? That is the question that is bothering sporting men all over the country, and particularly in this city. Who will be the next man to make the attempt to wrest the championship away from the negro? In every club, cafe, saloon and place where sporting men congregate, the subject is second in importance only to the fight itself.

It is almost universally agreed that at present there is not a known white man who would stand a chance of even putting up a good fight with the negro. The pugilistic world is practically clean as far as heavyweight fighters are concerned. With the exception of Johnson himself there is practically no heavyweight class. It is a thing of the past.

There is one man only who the sporting authorities believe would have a chance against the championship title holder. That man is Sam Langford. But as Langford, too, is a negro, his winning from Johnson would not change the situation in any respect. Besides, it is hardly possible that Johnson would agree to a match between himself and Langford. The two have been at odds for some time, and Johnson has declared over and over again that he would have nothing to do with Langford.

Unless there is some young, brawny giant white man hidden away in some dark corner of the earth who has never been heard of before and who could be dragged out from his hiding place and taught to swing his arms faster than a windmill and with a kick in every swing, Jack Johnson will, in all probability, remain the undisputed owner of the championship title to the end of his days.

Sporting men are of the opinion that Langford will keep after Johnson until the latter gives him a chance to fight for the title, Johnson won't give him a chance now.

COMMENTS ON THE FIGHT

Reno, Nev., July 6.—Here are the views of some of the men intimately connected with the ring battle:

"Tex" Rickard—"It was the first time that I ever refereed a prize fight. I did not see anthing very difficult about the task. I only broke the men twice during the battle and both times they separated without hesitating. I do not think it was a wonderful battle. In fact, it looked to me rather tame, with Johnson the better all the way through."

James J. Corbett, Jeffries' chief trainer—"It was the worst fight I ever saw. It was sad to see a man that had been so great make so miserable an exhibition. I could have beaten Jeffries myself and I told him so. All along I knew, that he was in for a good licking, but I wanted to have him keep up his courage. When I boxed with him I knew that he was not 'there.' He would not box in his training and he had lost all the little knickknacks of the game. His brother Jack would have fought a better fight against the negro."

John L. Sulivan—"In the fifth I said that Jeff looked to me as if he had a pair of dumbbells in his hands. In the tenth I said he looked as if he were lifting a couple of sacks of flour. It happened as I thought it would. Jeffries has lost his vitality and his long rest was too much for him."

Bob Fitzsimmons—"Honestly, had I known that I was going to see what I did I would have cut Reno off my map. It was a far poorer fight for a heavyweight championship than I expected. Jeff did not seem to be able to get his man at all. In only one round did he show anything of his old aggressiveness. I am willing to take my hat off to a good fight and a good fighter, but I can't see where the negro gets a lot of credit for beating a man clearly outclassed in the ring."

Charley White, auxiliary referee—"You can't take anything away from Johnson. He was clean in his fighting from start to finish. He took no unfair advantages and fought squarely and honestly. As for Jeff, I think he was the worst conditioned man I ever saw enter a ring for a heavyweight championship."

Frank Gotch, champion wrestler—"I thought Jeff was stronger. I wrestled and roughed it with him at his training quarters and he appeared to me to have his old strength and grit. At the end of the ninth round he was all in."

Tom Sharkey—"I don't want to say anything disparaging about Jeff, but I think that I could have made a better showing myself. He was no more the Jeffries who fought me than if Jeff never had fought me."

"Big Tim" Sullivan—"The contest was strictly on its merits. That much is now evident to everybody, in spite of anything said to the contrary, and there is no white man in sight who is likely to wrest the title away from Johnson in a hurry."

TEX RICKARD

Says Battle Was Tame and His Task Easy

WASHINGTON MAY BAR FIGHT PICTURES

Example Likely to Be Followed by Other Large Cities

Washington, July 6.—No Johnson-Jeffries fight pictures will be exhibited in Washington if Major Sylvester, superintendent of the district police, can prevent.

Major Sylvester is president of the International Police association, and because of this position and his captaincy in the capital of the United States, the influence of Washington may radiate throughout the country.

The talk among the sporting authorities who still remain here deals with the amazing superiority of Johnson in Monday's battle. It is agreed that Johnson could have put his man out much sooner, and it is said that he wished to give the moving picture men films of proper lengths.

Shutters Up In Boston

Boston, July 6.—Moving picture reproductions of the Johnson-Jeffries fight were virtually barred from Boston by Mayor Fitzgerald last night. The Christian Endeavor society has also begun an agitation against the films of national scope.

JEFFRIES QUITS RENO

Realizes That His Great Ring Career Has Come to an End

Reno, Nev., July 6.—James J. Jeffries left the scene of his defeat last night for his alfalfa ranch in southern California. In his every stumbling movement, in his bowed head, in the depths of his sombre eyes, in the timid shrinking from the public, Jeffries showed that his defeat had dealt him a terrible blow.

keps,gi,whichlyeH..O$o, a

As Jeffries' train started west, somewhere in the desert to the east a hilarious band of negroes was journeying to Chicago with Jack Johnson, with the banner of the world's champion floating from the car window.

The gambling houses were running full blast last night and the main street presented the aspect of a frontier mining camp at the height of a gold strike.

A determined effort was made by losers in the fight betting to recoup losses. There are many who will have to wire home for money. The financial condition of hundreds hit by the fight and the games is desperate.

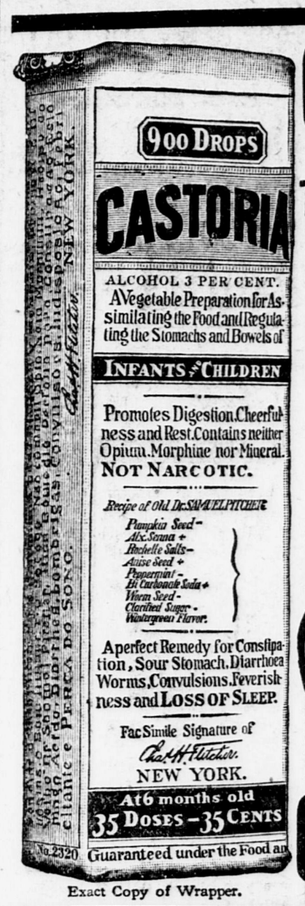

Among the sporting men there is not a dissenting opinion as to the justice of the fight's end. Many have nothing but their return tickets to show for their judgment on the outcome, but no one says that Jeffries ever had a chance with the negro, after the fight began.

Johnson Is Very Much Alive

Boston, July 6.—A wild rumor was sprung on the public yesterday afternoon to the effect that Jack Johnson had been shot. It spread like wildfire, with the result that every newspaper in Boston was besieged last night for confirmation or denial of the "news." It was a fake pure and simple. Johnson is on his way east. He passed through Ogden, Utah, about 6 o'clock last night and was in perfect health.

Wood to Be Army Head

Washington, July 6.—Major General Wood, now in command of the department of the east, will assume his duties as chief of staff of the army, possibly the beginning of next week.

does away with all drudgery of cooking. Why should you be a slave to a coal range when you can have an Oil Cook-Stove that is cheaper than coal, cleaner than coal, doesn't "smell," doesn't smoke, lights instantly, can be put out instantly, leaves no ashes, and doesn't heat the kitchen. With one of these stoves you can boil, bake or roast the most elaborate dinner. You can change from a slow to a quick fire, or the other way about, by simply turning a wick. Apply a match, and instantly the heat from an intense blue flame shoots upward through the turquoise-blue enamel chimneys to the bottom of pot, kettle or oven—but nowhere else. The stove has every convenience that can be thought of: Cabinet Top with shelf for keeping food and dishes hot, drop shelves to hold coffee or teapots, towel rack; in fact every convenience possible.

SERIOUS EXPLOSION IN LACONIA LAUNDRY

One Employe Killed When Boiler Explodes With Great Force

Laconia, N. H., July 6.—The boiler of the largest laundry in the city exploded just before 6 o'clock last night, tearing to pieces the buildings in the vicinity and causing the death of one person and more or less serious injuries to seven others.

The front end of the boiler was hurled directly through the rear wall of the laundry and into a grocery store adjoining it. Pieces of scrap iron were blown in every direction, and not one of the employes of the laundry present in the building at the time escaped injury except those in the office.

Earl Doran, who was killed, and Mrs. Mary Trendell, who may be fatally injured, were standing on the second floor beneath the water tank and carried down under it in its fall.

In spite of the widespread damage wrought by the explosion, the ruins caught fire only in one place and the blaze was quickly extinguished. As yet the cause of the disaster has not been discovered.

SYNOPSIS

(CHAPTER VI Continued.)

"I believed in him," said John Steele. "And yet the evidence was very strong against him. If some one else had appeared for him— Do you think many innocent people have been—hanged or sent out of the country, Mr. Steele?" Her eyes looked brighter, her face more earnest now.

"Evidence can play odd caprices."

"Still, your average English juryman is to be depended on," put in Lord Ronsdale quickly.

"Do you think so?" An instant Steele's eyes rested on the speaker. "No doubt you are right." A sardonic flash seemed to play on the nobleman. "At all events you voice the accepted belief."

"I'm glad you defend, don't prosecute, people, Mr. Steele," said the girl irrelevantly.

"A pleasanter task perhaps."

"Speaking of sending prisoners out of the country," broke in Sir Charles, "I am not in favor of the penal system myself."

"Rather a simple way of getting rid of undesirables—transportation—it has always seemed to me," dissented Lord Ronsdale.

"Don't they sometimes escape and come back to England?" asked the girl.

"Not apt to when death for returning stares them in the face," remarked the nobleman.

"Death!" The girl shivered slightly.

"Is not such a penalty—for returning, I mean—very severe, Mr. Steele?" asked Jocelyn Wray.

"That," he laughed, "depends somewhat on the point of view, the criminal's or society's." His gaze returned to her. The bright bit of color in her hair again seemed to catch and hold his glance.

Lord Ronsdale regarded both quickly. A frown crossed his face, and he looked away to conceal the singularly cold and vindictive gleam that sprang to his eyes.

One evening about a fortnight later Lord Ronsdale in a dissatisfied frame of mind strolled along Piccadilly. He had begun to flatter himself that the flowery way to all he desired lay before him and that he had but to tread it when another, as the soothsayers put it, had crossed his path.

A plain man, a man without title! Lord Ronsdale told himself Miss Jocelyn Wray was no better than an arrant coquette, but the next moment questioned this conclusion. Had she not really been a little taken by the fellow? Certainly she seemed not averse to his company. When she willed, and she willed often, she summoned him to her side. Nor did he now appear reluctant to come at her bidding. Self assertive though he had shown himself to be, he obeyed, sans demur, the wave of my lady's little hand. Was it a certain largeness and reserve about him that had awakened her curiosity? From her high social position had she wished merely to test her own power and amuse herself after a light fashion, surely youth's and beauty's privilege?

But, whatever the girl's motive, her conduct in the matter reacted on my lord. The fellow was in the way—very much so. How could he himself pay court to her when she frivolously, if only for the moment, preferred this commoner's company?

What made the situation even more anomalous to Ronsdale and the less patiently to be borne was that Sir Charles understood and sympathized with his desires and position in the matter. And why not? Ronsdale's father and Sir Charles had been old and close friends. There were reasons that pointed to the match as a suitable one, and Sir Charles by his general manner and attitude had long shown he would put no obstacle in the way of the nobleman's suit for the hand of his fair niece. As for Lady Wray, Lord Ronsdale knew that he had in that practical and worldly person a stanch ally of his wishes. These had not become less ardent since he had witnessed the unqualified success of the beautiful colonial girl in London, noted how men illustrious in various walks of life, grave diplomats, stately ambassadors, were swayed by her light charm and impulsive frankness of youth. And to have her who could have all London at her feet, including his distinguished self, show a predilection, however short lived and capricious, for—

"Confound the cad! Where did he come from? Who are his family—if he has one?"

As the nobleman ascended the steps of his club he seemed again to be thinking deeply. Within, his preoccupation did not altogether desert him. In a corner, with the big pages of the Times before him, he read with scant interest the doings of the day. From behind another paper the face of a gray haired, good natured appearing person, quite different off the bench, chanced to look out at him.

"Eh? That you, Ronsdale?" he said, reaching for a steaming glass of hot beverage at his elbow. "How is your friend Sir Charles Wray? I had the pleasure of meeting him the other morning in the courtroom."

"Same as usual, I imagine, Judge Beeson."

"And his fair niece, she takes kindly to the town and its gayeties?"

"Very kindly," dryly.

"A beautiful girl our young Australian!" The elder man toyed with his glass, stirred the contents and sipped. "By the way, didn't I see John Steele in their box at the opera the other night?"

"It is possible," shortly.

"Rising man, that," observed the other lightly. "Combination of brains and force. Did you ever notice his fist? It might belong to a prizefighter, except that the hands are perfectly kept. You'd know at once he was a man accustomed to fighting, who would sweep aside obstacles, get what he wanted!"

"Think so?" Lord Ronsdale smoked steadily. "You as a magistrate, I suppose, know all about him?"

"Not much, only that he is an alien."

"An alien?" quickly. "Not a colonial?"

"No. He has lived in the colonies—Tasmania, and so on. But by birth he's an American."

"An American, eh? And practicing at the British bar?"

"Not the first case of the kind. Exceptions have been made before and aliens 'called,' as we express it. Steele's hobby of criminology brought him to London, and his earnestness and ability in that line procured for him the privilege he sought. As member of the incorporated society that passes upon the qualifications of candidates it was my pleasure to sit in judgment on him. We raked him fore and aft; but, bless you, he stood squarely on his feet and refused to be tripped."

"So he came to England to pursue a certain line?" said Lord Rousdale half to himself.

"A man with a partiality for criminal work would naturally look to the modern Babylon. Steele apparently works more to gratify that predilection than for any reward in pounds and pence. Must have private means; have known him to spend a deal of time and money on cases there couldn't have been a sixpence in."

"That's one of the questions he wasn't asked," laughingly. "Perhaps what our Teutonic friends would call the wanderlust took him there." Rising, "My compliments to Sir Charles when you see him."

Lord Ronsdale remained long at the club and the card table that night. Finally summoning a cab, he got in, but as he found himself rattling homeward to the chambers he had taken in a fashionable part of town he was aware that any emotions of annoyance and discontent experienced earlier that night had suffered no abatement.

He went up to his rooms. On the table in an inner apartment, his study, something bright, white, met his gaze—a note in Jocelyn Wray's handwriting. Quickly he reached for it and tore it open.

"A party of us ride in the park tomorrow morning. Will you join us?"

Lord Ronsdale frowned.

Doctors Are More Thorough Now.

"Lazarus," he said, "was raised from the dead, and yet I don't see any dead folks being raised in our time."

"No," said a clergyman, an eminent Biblical scholar, with a smile. "Modern medical science has progressed too far for that, eh?"—Washington Star.

ROOSEVELT VS. BALLINGER

Striking Indication of Colonel's Present Frame of Mind

POINDEXTER AT OYSTER BAY

Representative Who Is Opposed to Wing of Party Headed by Secretary of Interior Is Candidate For Senatorial Honors and Will Have Support of Ex-President—Has Been a Firm Supporter of Roosevelt Policies

Oyster Bay, N. Y., July 6.—Theodore Roosevelt has made it clear that he will support Representative Miles Poindexter in his fight for a seat in the United States senate from the state of Washington. They had luncheon together and a conference at Sagamore Hill, and Poindexter departed jubilant.

In indorsing Poindexter for the senate Roosevelt places himself squarely in opposition to Richard A. Ballinger, secretary of the interior, whom President Taft has so warmly defended; and it is the only stand he has taken bearing directly or indirectly on the Ballinger-Pinchot controversy.

Mr. Poindexter is opposed to Ballinger from first to last, and hopes to unseat Senator Piles of Washington, who seeks another term, and has Ballinger's support. The secretary and Poindexter are from the same Seattle district.

Colonel Roosevelt looked happy when he received the interviewers after the departure of Poindexter. He spoke of his talk with Poindexter in a manner which showed plainly the pleasure which the meeting had given him. This is what he had to say:

"Representative Poindexter and I went over the political situation in the northwest. He assured me that he was in hearty sympathy with my conservation policy.

"Mr. Poindexter is a candidate for the United States senate, and is politically opposed to that wing of the party headed by Mr. Ballinger, the secretary of the interior."

That was all Roosevelt wanted to have put in quotation marks. What he said otherwise made it quite clear that he had given assurance to Poindexter that he would support him in his attempt to unseat Piles.

Miles Poindexter is an out and out insurgent whom the people of the state of Washington elected on a radical platform. He has been a firm supporter of Roosevelt policies, especially as related to conservation of national resources, which was the basis of his platform when he ran for congress.

Insurgents arrive here smiling, but excited. Presently they return from Sagamore Hill, with the smile still there, but with the excitement replaced by placid confidence. It was so with Poindexter. At luncheon with Roosevelt they discussed the Ballinger-Pinchot occurrence in detail in the course of their talk on the political status of the northwest.

While the general opinion here is that Roosevelt is still "feeling his way" as regards his ultimate attitude toward the Taft administration, his stand in the case of Poindexter is considered the most striking indication of his present frame of mind. And that he will still fight hard for the conservation movement which he inaugurated while in office he made plain to interviewers when Poindexter had gone.

BECKERT SHOT TO DEATH

German Diplomat Pays Penalty For Robbery, Murder and Arson

Santiago, Chile, July 6.—Wilhelm Beckert was executed here for the murder of a Chilian messenger. Beckert, who was formerly chancellor of the German legation, was shot.

After embezzling legation funds, Beckert burned down the legation, attempting to create the belief that he had been burned to death.

The body found in the ruins was identified as that of the native employe. Beckert was caught while fleeing a week after the murder.

"DRY" COLUMBUS DAY

Licensing Board Says Boston Saloons Must Close on Oct. 12

Boston, July 6.—Saloons will be closed on Columbus Day, Oct. 12. The licensing board has decided that the new holiday is like any other and therefore no liquor can be sold except under the conditions provided by the Sunday laws.

The law did not provide for the closing of the saloons, but the board has ended any dispute by making this decision.

Hyde Gets Life Sentence

Kansas City, July 6.—Judge Latshaw, in the criminal court here, sentenced Dr. B. C. Hyde to life imprisonment. Hyde was convicted of poisoning Colonel Thomas H. Swope.

Noted Astronomer Dead

Milan, July 6.—Professor Giovanni Schiaparelli, a famous astronomer and discoverer of the supposed canals of Mars, is dead. He was born in a village of Piedmont, Italy, in 1835.

HOUSEHOLD RECIPES.

Raspberry Sirup. Mash five quarts of red raspberries. Pour over them one quart of vinegar, and let stand from twenty-four to thirty-six hours, stirring twice a day with a wooden spoon. Strain through cheesecloth. Measure the liquid and add one pound of granulated sugar to one pint of juice. Boil twenty minutes, skimming until clear. Bottle when luke warm and cork tight.

Jelly Cake. One cup sugar, two eggs, one teaspoonful vanilla, one cup of flour, one-half cup of butter, one-half cup milk, three-quarters cup pastry flour. Bake in two layers filling with any jelly to taste.

Stewed Beef Kidneys. Boil the kidneys for several hours, changing the water once or twice. Boil until they are tender enough to run a pin through. Leave them all night in the broth in which they were cooked. The next morning cut them into fine pieces and put them into a stewpan with a little water, a pinch of salt, a dessertspoonful of butter and a little pepper.

Spider Cake. One and two-thirds cupfuls of Indian meal, one-third cupful of flour, two eggs, one-third cupful of sugar, one cupful of sweet milk, one cupful of sour milk, with one teaspoonful of soda stirred into it; mix and turn into a hot spider in which a piece of butter has been melted. Pour into the centre slowly one cupful of sweet milk, not stirring at all. Bake half an hour.

Raspberry Shrub. Select only the best and ripest of blackcap raspberries and pour over them just enough of pure cider vinegar to cover Let the fruit stand in this for a day or more in a cool place, then strain through a cheesecloth bag, squeezing hard to extract every bit of juice. Measure and to every pint of juice allow a pound of sugar. Boil five minutes, skim carefully, then bottle, sealing tightly. When ready to serve add two tablespoonfuls of the shrub to each glass of cold water.

MAIL CLERK ARRESTED

Boston Man Accused of Embezzling Letters Containing Money

Boston, July 6.—Nicholas D. Scully, a clerk in the Fenway postoffice, was arrested by Deputy Marshal Waters on a charge of embezzlement of letters containing money.

The government authorities say the man has confessed, giving as his reason for taking the money his small salary and the high cost of living. Scully has a wife and two children. He was arraigned before Commissioner Hayes and was held in $500 for a hearing July 12.

UNTRUTHFUL POLICEMEN

Two Boston Bluecoats Are Dismissed From the Department

Boston, July 6.—Patrolman Thomas McTigue and Reserve Officer Patrick Captstick of the Lagrange street station were dismissed from the police department last night as a result of the assault on a prisoner, several months ago, for untruthfulness.

For lack of sufficient evidence the policemen were not convicted by the trial board of the assault, but of untruthfulness in denying at first that they noticed traces of an assault.

Sanders to Succeed McEnery

Baton Rouge, La., July 6.—By an overwhelming majority Governor Jared Y. Sanders was declared the choice of both houses of the Louisiana general assembly for the seat in the United States senate, left vacant by the recent death of Senator McEnery.

The Major's Value.

"Major Bunks," said a veteran, "was a pompous chap. The boys had a good deal of fun once over his exchange.

"It seems that on a very dark night a stalwart Confederate took the major prisoner. This fact, together with the narrative of the prisoner's return to camp, was signaled to headquarters tersely:

"'Major Bunks, captured during night march, exchanged later for two plugs tobacco.'"

Mrs. Charles H. Johnson of Hancock street is entertaining her mother, Mrs. Gardner of Hingham.

The next big event of interest in Quincy will be the circus, which is due to make its appearance next week.

W. G. Comey and Mr. and Mrs. Richard S. Talbot left Tuesday for Maine, where they will pass the summer months.

Wilson orchestra went to Ridge Hill grove today to furnish music for the annual picinc of All Souls' church of Braintree.

The trustees of the Quincy, Weymouth and Hingham bridge met at the office of Mayor Shea this morning. Routine business only was transacted.

Cott Williams of New York is visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Williams of Quincy avenue for a few days, accompanied by his wife and children.

Some of the men who rode horseback in the parade on the morning of the Fourth were a little lame and stiff on Tuesday due to their being unaccustomed to horseback riding.

The members of the Argentine Commission have expressed themselves as very much pleased with the way they were looked after at the Fourth of July celebration.

There was a noticeable lack of decorations on the holiday. There were very few places that were decorated, although many displayed the American flag.

The City Council Committee on Licenses and Sewers meet tonight, and the Committee on Public Buildings on Monday night before the Council meeting.

It was Mrs. E e Scarborough who attended the theatre on June 25 with the amusement committee of Loyal Ladies of Clan McGregor and not Miss Charlotte Scarborough as reported. Miss Scarborough is an active church worker and does not care for theatre going.

Following along in the rear of the parade the Fourth was a buggy in which was ex-Councilman A. H. Gilson, who gave away small packages of court plaster to advertise the Ancient Order of United Workmen. It was a very appropriate gift as cuts were more apt to happen that day than usual.

The Dorcas society of the Universalist church was pleasantly entertained Tuesday evening by Miss Florence Holton of Edwards street. This was the last regular meeting of the season, but the society will meet once more on Thursday, July 21, when their annual excursion to Nantasket will take place.

SUBMARINE SALMON

Has Rounded Cape Cod on Her Long Voyage

The submarine Salmon is now well underway on her 2,000 mile trip to the Bermuda Island, having sailed from the Fore River docks at 2.35 P. M. on Tuesday. She passed under the Point bridge at 2.40.

This trip is the result of a request by the Electric Boat Company which was recently approved by the Navy department.

Included in her crew of 21 men are Lt. D. A. Weaver, U. S. N., who will command the Salmon when she goes into commission; Naval Constructor D. R. Battles, U. S. N., and Gregory C. Davidson, vice-president of the Electric Boat Company. Mr. Davidson is a retired naval officer and will navigate the Salmon throughout the entire trip. There are also four machinists of the navy who will take the trip for the purpose of observing the action of the ship's mechanism under the hands of the experienced men detailed to operate it by the builders. They are Chief Machinist P. S. Flint, first class machinist mates T. W. O'Dell, M. B. Spencley and T. K. Murphy.

The Salmon is in command of Captain Hugo Momm and will make the trip to Bermuda in 70 hours at an average speed of 13 knots an hour. She will not submerge at any portion o fthe voyage.

The Salmon has already left Cape Cod far astern.

BRIEFS

A stranger passing through City Square this morning picked up a child's chain and heart locket. He turned it over to Officer Murray.

There has been some rumors that Mayor Shea would not permit the moving pictures showing the Johnson-Jeffries fight to be shown in Quincy. The Mayor said this morning, however, that he had made no move in the matter, and that it was time enough to act when they were advertised. He also thought this was one of the matters the district police should pass upon.

FIELDER JONES BACK IN GAME

Former White Sox Manager Now Playing With Washington State Club.

Fielder Jones, former manager of the Chicago White Sox, is now playing center field for the Chehalis team in the Washington State league. By signing with the Chehalis team he can play three games a week and have ample time to take care of his timber business. It is believed that his decision to keep in the game foreshadows a return to the big league next year.

As Jones is on the reserve list of the Chicago Americans, the national commission is said to be looking into his case. Jones says he will force the issue. The Washington league is in Class C.

"It is not my intention to disrupt this little league," said Jones recently, "through a disagreement with the National association, and if a dispute arises I shall quit, but it affords me the opportunity of learning where I stand, so I am taking a chance."

Catcher Myers Improving.

Big Chief Myers, the New York Indian catcher, is improving wonderfully. Christy Mathewson says Myers will be the sensation of the big leagues in another year.

OLD COLONY LEAGUE

Quincys and Randolphs Tied for First Place

By the double victory in the Old Colony league on Monday over Stoughton, by a 3-2 score in the morning, and over Rockland by a 9-1 score in the afternoon—Quincy demonstrated her ability to take a trimming and come back. Saturday afternoon Lincoln beat the local boys by a wide margin, collecting eleven runs to Quincy's four, and there was a great deal of dissatisfaction expressed on all sides as the boys showed in anything but good style.

With the knowledge that their backers were anything but satisfied, and with that enthusiasm which a victorious team needs, they played a hard game and won from Stoughton 3 to 2. In high spirits after this success, Quincy travelled to Rockland Monday afternoon, and simply pounded out a victory, while in the field they held their opponents in grand fashion.

By their victory of Saturday the Lincolns came to the top of the league, but the glory was too much for them and they did not tarry long. Their double defeat on the holiday, at the hands of the Deweys and Stoughtons, caused them to drop into fourth place.

The Randolphs by their three victories are now tied for first place with the Quincys, and on Saturday will meet the Lincolns, who may overtake them.

The Quincys will go to Weymouth on Saturday, and must win or the Deweys will lead them in the race.

The teams have changed position rather frequently and have taken big jumps lately. The standing is as follows:

	Won	Lost	P. C.
Quincy	5	3	.625
Randolph	5	3	.625
Weymouth	4	3	.571
Lincoln	4	4	.500
Stoughton	3	5	.375
Rockland	2	5	.285

SPORTING CHAT.

I'm not going to say a word about the fight. Chew it over at home.

What did you think of Maj. Bowditch?

Well, the Copelands proved their superiority over the Makarias on the holiday. Of course that's the way it looks, and not a cut and dried before-the-game opinion. It was too bad that "Honey" had to drop that fly, and it's his first error for a good many games. Artis made a good stab in the eighth.

Walter Troupe has left Quincy for Nova Scotia, where he will play with "Jimmy" Michael. He quit on the Quincy O. C. L., team after the morning game on the Fourth.

The Adams of the Granite City League lost their first game to Cranch, on Monday. They have certainly a bunch of stars, Barry, McDonald, Knight and so on, (you might name the whole team) shine with a bright and dazzling light.

Jack Creswell, who cavorts around the initial sack for the Apprentices has surely got a load of bells on him. Something like J. Atahl for form.

Egan, who covers third for Copeland, is as easy and sure a player as there is in Quincy.

• • •

The Hardys must have become sore to soak the Bryants so.

• • •

Charley Brickley was out of luck. He made the best jump in the hop, step—but McLaughlin had a handicap and won first.

"Nimrod" Elcock had a great display of pelts.

In the game against Copeland Monday afternoon Eggleton of the Makaria made a grand one hand catch of a liner by P. Duggan in the fifth inning way out in center. After a desperate run he had to take the ball on the jump with his right hand. The crowd gave him a great reception when he came in. This was overlooked in the account of the game, but it was third out and cut off one or more runs.

• • •

"Lifty" (Ralph) Ford the Quincy boy who first stepped into the limelight while twirling for the Bigelows has fallen into a winning streak this year which he seemingly can't get out of. After pitching for the Bigelows for three years he played several games for the Quincy Independents last year and showed great form. He has also won for the Roger Wolcotts. This season Ford, who has speed control and curves, in fact every requisite of a winning pitcher, is twirling for the Neponset Wanderers and has won with monotonous regularity backed as he is by one of the best amatuer teams in the state. Saturday his team played the Middleboro semi-professional team and won 4 to 3, and Monday afternoon let down the Roger Wolcott aggregation, feared as the strongest team of its class in the state, without a hit. Lifty is certainly going some and no doubt will be in fast company before long.

THE NATIONAL ROWING REGATTA

RECORD ENTRY LIST EXPECTED

Never before in the history of the National association has so much interest been shown in the national rowing regatta, which is to be held on the Potomac river Aug. 12 and 13. Many attribute this to the fact that Washington, the capital of the country, is to be the battleground for the best oarsmen and scullers in America.

Secretary Fred Fortmyer, of the National association, says the entry list is away ahead of last year's, not only in number, but also in point of standing. Secretary Fortmyer is sending out answers to many inquiries received from foreign clubs, especially in England, France and Germany, the majority of the questions being in relation to the free entry of boats and the cost and length of time it would take to transport boats from New York to Washington.

The ex-collegians of the Pacific coast, those who belong to the boat clubs in the vicinity of San Francisco, are seriously contemplating sending a crew during the regatta, as they are of the opinion they have just as good men in their vicinity as oarsmen as the clubs of the east. Among the backers of the movement is John Tobin, once a student at Georgetown college of Washington and a member of the winning Potomac senior four oared crew of 1890. He is now a banker in San Francisco.

The Canadian contingent will be double the size in number this year, as many will make the trip, win or lose, at the Canadian Henley at St. Catharines. This Canadian regatta is held one week earlier than the regatta in Washington, and the entries are held open in order that the Canadian association may enter the winners as the champions of United Canada against those of the United States. But this year the Nova Scotians are going after the scalps of the Canadians, and, win or lose, they will come here, and just the same thing exists among the members of the Argonauts, Ottawas, Torontos and Winnipegs.

The senior single championship this year will be the banner one. With Miller of the New York A. C., Bennett of Springfield, Scholes and Cosgrove of Toronto, O'Neil of New Brunswick, Warnecke of Springfield, Feussell and Shepherd of New York, one can at a glance see the excellence of this race.

LEMONS DRAWN IN BASEBALL DEALS

Seldom Does a Trade Turn Out Satisfactorily to Both Clubs.

CUBS HAVE ENVIABLE RECORD

In Nearly Every Instance the Chicago National League Club Has Profited by Exchanges—Hugh Jennings Has Pulled Off a Few Good Ones.

Baseball history is full of trade in which one club was stung badly, and there are really only a few instances where both clubs apparently had reason to be satisfied. Rather queer when it is known that seldom are trades made on the spur of the moment. Sometimes the interested managers and magnates will spar for weeks and months before completing the details, and then one party discovers that it has been beautifully gold bricked.

The Chicago Nationals have always had the better of their trades. For instance, Murphy several years ago traded "Buttons" Briggs, Jimmy Casey, Jack McCarthy and Billy Maloney for Jimmy Sheckard. Sheckard is still with the Cubs, while the other four have passed out of the big leagues, some of them being even out of the game now. Chicago also gave Bob Wicker for Overall. The latter is one of the Cubs' mainstays in the box, while Wicker has been in the minors for several years.

Another deal that worked to the advantage of the Cubs was that whereby Mordecai Brown became a member of the Cubs along with Catcher O'Neil in exchange for Pitcher Jack Taylor. O'Neil and Pitcher Pfeiffer were soon exchanged for Catcher Moran. Did Murphy and Chance get the better of those deals? Well, very much so. Brown has been one of the greatest pitchers the game has known since joining the Cubs, while Moran, who was recently sold to Philadelphia, has been an able assistant to Kling and Archer. As for the others, they are now minor leaguers or have quit the game. Then the Chicago men put another over on Cincinnati when they acquired Steinfeldt for Pitcher Weimer, who was recently released outright by New York.

A couple of years ago New York released a big bunch of players to Boston in exchange for Tenney and Bridwell. Tenney is now playing in the minor leagues, but Bridwell is still in his prime, while the players let out to Boston are down and outers.

A year ago the big clubs that won the big league pennants found it necessary to make some trades in order to strengthen several weak points. Pittsburg traded Barbeau and Storke for Byrne. The latter was just the man needed at the third corner, but St. Louis has nothing to show for the deal, Storke dying, while Barbeau has been sent to Kansas City.

Detroit pulled off two transactions that showed that David Harum did not have a whole lot on Hughey Jennings. First he sent Schaefer and Killifer to Washington for Delehanty. The latter has put up a splendid game at second ever since and was the champion batter of the world's series. Schaefer and Killifer, however, have failed to distinguish themselves at Washington. Then Jennings gave Rossman for Tom Jones. Jones is one of Detroit's mainstays today, while Rossman is a minor leaguer.

A year ago Cleveland gave Ryan and Chech to Boston for Cy Young, there being also a cash consideration. Young has not been of service this season, but he outpitched Chech and Ryan last season, both the younger men finding their way to the American association.

Yes, even up swaps are few and far between.

STEINFELDT MAY GO.

Veteran Third Sacker Likely to Give Way to Boucher.

The Chicago fans construe Frank Chance's attempt to get Third Baseman Boucher of the St. Paul (American association) club as another signal of distress. Should the deal be made it will probably mean the passing of Harry Steinfeldt, the Cubs' veteran third sacker. Boucher is considered one of the best third basemen in the association. He formerly played with the Little Rock (Southern association) club under Jack O'Connor, now manager of the Browns.

President Murphy has secured an option on Boucher's services, holding good until Aug. 20, and he may wear a Cub uniform after that date.

Lajoie Once Returned to Minors.

Lajoie, who is leading the American league in batting, was once turned back to the minors, and by Frank Selee, who won four pennants for Boston. Selee drafted Larry from Fall River.

Lajoie's hitting attracted Selee's attention, but the big league pace proved a little too fast for the big Frenchman. Selee had a bunch of stars then, including Long, Lowe, Collins and Tenney. The Philadelphia Nationals gave Larry another trial the following year.

Al Burch's Bad Habit.

Captain Al Burch of the Brooklyn Nationals has one bad habit of drawing away from the plate when hitting at a ball. He does not get his whole strength behind it as a result.

RIVALRY OF BRAZIL AND ARGENTINA

Brazil Contracts for Two Super Dreadnoughts with Heavy Armament

And Argentina May Order Another from Quincy

A few days ago it was reported from London that the government of Chili had contracted with an English shipyard for two battleships of 32,000 tons, much larger than anything yet constructed or laid down.

The members of the Argentine navy who are in Quincy were surprised at the news, both at the movement of Chili, and at the size of the battleships.

Today a London cable reports that the super dreadnoughts are for Brazil and not for Chili, and that the armament will consist of twelve 14-inch guns and twenty-eight 6 and 4-inch guns.

When the item was shown by the Daily Ledger to one of the Argentine commission here, he promptly said: "If Brazil has ordered two battleships, Argentina will certainly want another." He plainly showed that he was not pleased that Brazil was to have larger battleships than Argentina.

The Argentine government has an option on a third battleship under its contract with the Fore River Shipbuilding Company of Quincy at the same price as for the other two. There is known to be a great rivalry between Argentina and Brazil, the two leading republics of South America.

The World Almanac for 1910 reports the naval standing of the two countries as follows:

	Argentina	Brazil
Modern battleships,	3	3
Older battleships	1	1
Armored cruisers	4	0
First class cruisers	1	1
Second class cruisers	2	1
Third class cruisers	2	3
Gunboats	2	5
Torpedo boat destroyers	4	0
Torpedo boats	8	0
Officers and men	5,000	8,000

The three so-called modern battleships of Brazil are each of 18,000 tons displacement, 25 feet draught, and have an indicated horse power of 24,500. The keels were laid in 1907, and two are to be completed this year and one in 1911. The armament of each is twelve 12-inch guns and twenty-two 4 inch guns; each has four torpedo tubes, and the contract calls for a speed of 21 knots.

The older battleship, the Riachuelo completed in 1895 at a cost of $1,825,000 is of only 5,700 tons displacement. The two cruisers completed in 1901 have a displacement of 3,162 tons.

The largest battleship of Argentina today is of only 4,267 tons having been reconstructed in 1897.

Chile has but three battleships and the largest, the O'Higgins, of 8,500 tons, was completed in 1898.

Brazil is a country with 3,218,130 square miles and a population of 17,371,069, while Argentina has an area of 1,135,840 square miles and a population of 6,210,428. The United States have 3,756,881 square miles, and 97,000,000 population.

CLUBHOUSE REOPENING

Argentine Naval Men Guests of the Q. Y. C.

Arrangements are all complete for the grand opening of the remodelled home of the Quincy Yacht club tonight,, and the affair promises to be an enjoyable occasion. In addition to the opportunity which will be afforded to inspect the now spacious club house, an opportunity will also be offorded to meet President Bowles of the Fore River Shipbuilding Co., and the members of the Argentine Commission who are in Quincy during the building of the mammoth battleship for their country.

The reception will be from 6 to 7 o'clock in the new hall. At the latter hour Norteman will serve one of his famous shore dinners. After dinner, when cigars are lighted, the guests and members will enjoy a first class vaudeville entertainment. The Quincy Yacht club never does things by half and Commodore Robbins and the officers of the club will see that everybody has a good time and goes home with that "glad I came" feeling.

The present building is very nearly twice as large as the old club house, the latter having been moved into the water ninetly feet and the entire structure, new and old, placed upon new solid oak piling.

The alterations in the old section include the extension of the upper and lower piazzas fifteen feet on the water front, the enlargement of the assembly hall nearly fifty percent, the enlargement of the pool room and smoking room below, and the removal of lockers from the pool room. The stairway has been shifted to a position midway of the two sections in an annex.

The new section is occupied by 100 new lockers arranged on both floors, a small office for the officers of the club, a grill room for members and guests with a seating capacity of about forty, and toilet facilities and a shower bath. There is also a ladies' parlor with every convenience and modern open plumbing affording double the former accommodation. The same is true of the men's toilet room.

Piazzas have been built girdling the entire building on both floors adding greatly to the general comforts which are accessible from both house and yard. On the second story, three passages run through from side to side affording easy access to lockers. The grill room is at the land front of the second story. The property will be enclosed by a handsome iron wire fence. The addition is 75 feet long by 40 feet wide.

The woodwork of the clubhouse is of course, newly painted and every nook and cranny of the building cleaned up for the opening, and with the improvements and addition the yacht club will be most serviceable. The float surface will also be enlarged.

BIDS FOR PAVING BLOCKS.

Bids were opened by Commissioner Bainbridge this morning for furnishing the city with 200,000 paving blocks for the Hancock street paving job. But two bids were received as follows:

William F. Loud	$45.00 per 1000
Hugh Gilmartin	$48.40 per 1000

The bids were taken under advisement.

"And you've been waiting all this time for a husband, Jane?"

"No; for a single man. This isn't Newport."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

TROLLEY FREIGHT

All Restriction of City Council in Force

Mayor Shea has received from the Railroad Commissioners a copy of the order of approval of the street railway operating a trolley freight in Quincy.

This shows that in the approval the Railroad Commissioners included all of the conditions and restrictions imposed by the order passed in 1909 by the City Council, with the exception of that which relates to the expiration of the right of approval at the end of ten years. They are in brief as follows:

Under these conditions the company shall not discriminate in favor of any particular corporation; that express matter shall be transported in closed cars; that the operation of express cars shall not abridge the duties or obligations relative to transportation of passengers ;that it shall not in any way enhance the value of the assets of the company in the event of its purchase by the city or state; that freight shall be received only at points approved by the City Council and not within the limits of any public street; but one freight car shall be run at one time, and not between the hours of 12 P. M. and 5 A. M., or on Sundays, except through cars may be run until 9 A. M.

HELD UP BY PROTEST

The increased rates on Quincy granite shipped to the West may not go into effect at the date set, for the Herald reports a protest against the new tariffs providing for an increase on all railroad rates from the Atlantic seaboard territory to western points has been filed by the Chamber of Commerce of Boston with the interstate commerce commission. The advances, which run from 20 per cent on the higher classes of freight down to 10 per cent on the lower, in the opinion of the Chamber of Commerce would inflict great damage upon New England interests if allowed to take effect.

As soon as the new tariff was filed a telegram of protest was sent by the transportation committee of the chamber to the secretary of the commission asking for suspension of all the advances, with an offer to file formal request if desired. Wednesday a telegram was received from Chairman Martin A. Knapp of the commission stating that the telegram was a sufficient protest against the tariff. Under the request for suspension of the rates the matter will have to be decided by the commission, unless an agreement can be reached between the shippers and the railroads.

MRS. EDMUND POPE.

In the decease of Mrs. Ann Pope, widow of Edmund Pope of Squantum, at the home of one of her daughters, Mrs. Henry B. Martin, in Milton, Quincy lost on Saturday, July 2, one of its oldest and most estimable people. Mrs. Pope was born in Boston on the 13th of March, 1813, during our war with Great Britain. Ann Walker was the youngest of a family of eleven children, and married in Boston in 1834, Edmund Pope, also a native of Boston, and they at once took up their abode in Squantum, where Mr. Pope became possessed of a large part of that beautiful area including the Burkhardt estate. He became one of the selectmen of the town of Quincy with Daniel Baxter; was a member of the school board and was always characterized by public spirit.

Mrs. Pope was buried in the old family tomb at Stoughton street, Dorchester, and of the six children which blessed the union, Mrs. Henry B. Martin of Milton, Mrs. Thomas J. Glover of Dorchester, Mrs. Elijah Hall and Mrs. William C. Nelson of Atlantic, survive. The two sons, Edmund Pope and John A. Pope, died several years ago; another Edmund, the son of Mrs. Elijah Hall, still perpetuates the family name, and grandchildren great grand children cherish with their parents and grandparents, the memory of that loved and honored lady, with whom it was so much happiness to meet in the years of her earthly pilgrimage. The daughters of Mrs. Pope were all married at Squantum.

PLANNING AN OUTING

Board of Trade to Make Trip to Providence

There was a regular meeting of the Board of Trade last evening at which president E. R. Stone presided.

Upon request of the International School of Peace of Boston, W. S. Hamlin was appointed correspondent to represent the Board of Trade.

A letter was received from the Atlantic Deeper Waterways Asscciation requesting the attendance of a delegate to the third annual convention to be held in Providence this fall, and E. R. Stone, John R. Richards and W. E. Piper were delegated with power to vote. All members were appointed delegates and Mr. Williams, Mr. Whitman and Mr. Teasdale were instructed to arrange for an excursion to Providence at the time of the convention in place of the regular outing.

The committee which is working on the reduction of freight rates, of which J. R. Richards is chairman, received a communication from the N. Y., N. H. and H. R. R., saying that they will send their traffic superintendent to confer with the committee. An extention of time was voted.

The report of the treasurer showed the Board to be in good financial standing.

The question of double tracking off Washington street was considered of vital importance, for the reason that while it is absolutely necessary the cost of widening the street is far beyond what the city can afford, but it is reasonable to suppose that property on Washington street will gain in value, so will the expenditure which will fall upon the city. The concensus of opinion was that abuttors on Washington street favored this measure, as it will immediately increase property values. The fact that the railroad paid only the expense of laying track and nothing for widening the street, was criticised in very unfavorable terms, and no doubt some effort will be made to change this condition. A committee including Messrs. Thomas, Whitman, Sandberg, Frisk, Hamlin and McDonnell will work jointly with the committee on railroads under John R. Richards, and confer with railroad officials, city officials and property owners in an attempt to reach an understanding, and will meet to plan a method of operation Monday evening, July 11, at 8.30 o'clock.

A committee was appointed to attempt a betterment of train service to and from Boston, consisting of Messrs. Stone, Williams, Whitman, Hamlin, Frisk, Teasdale, Parker and Burgess.

There will be a mass meeting of all those interested in the matter in Alpha hall, July 20, at 8 o'clock in the evening, and every person who is at all interested in this matter is urgently requested to attend.

The executive committee will confer with the executive committee on the Fourth of July celebration which will meet Friday evening, with a view to removing the reviewing stand which stood in the square to the ball field at Merrymount Park for the accommodation of the crowds.

During an intermission ice cream and cake were served.

SUMMER SCHOOL HAS A PROBLEM

Two Hundred Girls Registered, an Increase from Sixty Last Year

Quincy Women's Club Undertake Great Work

The Summer school for girls opened its sessions on Tuesday morning at the Women's Clubhouse on Goffe street. Before the hour for registration had arrived the rooms were crowded with girls, all anxious to take the courses. Already two hundred are registered and the Education committee of which Mrs. John D. Mackay is chairman is working night and day in order to meet conditions and disappoint none. In former years the attendance was about sixty, and the problem was not as great as now.

Nearly all the girls want to take the course in "Home Nursing." This course is in charge of Mrs. M. J. L. Kennedy, a graduate of the Boston City Hospital Training School, and for some time a head nurse in the Boston City Hospital. An assistant may be secured next week, but the entire course will continue to be under the personal direction of Mrs. Kennedy. This will insure to the pupils careful teaching in the most modern and approved methods of caring for the sick. Mrs. Kennedy's first lesson consisted of instruction as to how to make sick persons lie at ease in bed. A demonstration was given one of the pupils representing the patient, and the others taking turns in making the bed both with and without the "patient" in it, while the class looked on and criticised.

Miss Blanche Thayer of the Quincy Hospital gave an instructive talk to the girls on Wednesday morning on "Organs of the body; their functions and care." She will give another lecture next Monday, before going on her vacation.

Miss Clara E. S. Thayer of Wollaston started her class in "Current Events." In this course the girls will learn something of the history of Quincy. Yesterday's topic was "Abigail Adams," the wife and the mother of a President of the United States.

A business course, under the supervision of Miss Mary A. Egan of the Cranch school, was started and promises to be a popular course.

The Household Arts course had its first lesson. Mrs. Stanley Bone will each day teach the girls how to prepare simple, wholesome meals and then put the kitchen back in perfect order. It is the aim of the Education committee to enter in this class only girls who are most in need of such instruction; for instance, in cases where on account of illness on the part of the mother there is no one to teach the girls of the home. The class will be kept small for the purpose of giving the greatest amount of instruction possible in a few lessons.

Each pupil will come under the supervision of the teacher of physical culture for some part of each day. The work is under the supervision of Miss Ruth Bass of Sargent's gymnasium.

On Friday Mrs. H. J. Gurney will address the school on some interesting topic. During the morning spelling matches will be conducted in the various rooms, conducted by members of the Education committee and other ladies who have become interested in the work.

There will also be a class in swimming at the Bath House.

None of the ladies engaged in this work get anything out of it except the satisfaction of doing good. It is hoped the pupils will appreciate the opportunities and make the most of them.

CHILD BURNED.

While playing in the back yard of her home, Wednesday afternoon, Helen Reardon, the 4 year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Reardon of 58 Academy street, Braintree, got some matches which she was lighting and playing with. The child's clothing took fire and it was not until some time later when the flames had gained headway that Mrs. George Atkinson, a next door neighbor, attracted by screams, extinguished the flames with her bare hands.

The child was severely burned from knees to head, as was Mrs. Atkinson about the hands. Dr. C. A. Sullivan who attended both was unable to say whether the child's injuries would prove fatal.

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

Reno, Nev., does not want to be good. It wants to be popular.

There are lots of people who will refuse to get excited over a bath-tub trust.

Russia is fortifying against her neighbors. Russia ought to fortify against herself. She has no worse enemy.

If the truth were known, it is probable that young Theodore Roosevelt's bride thinks he is a greater man than his father.

The Governor of California might try his hand at cleaning up San Francisco some more. That was a good beginning.

Talk about the increased cost of living. It is said that sealskins are to cost twice as much as last year. Luckily, this won't interest any of us for a few months yet.

The Department of Justice at Washington has borrowed Speaker Cannan's Bible. That the Department of Justice should not have a Bible, is quite as surprising as the fact that Mr. Cannon has one.

The strongest argument against the exhibition of moving pictures of the prize fight is the fact that such exhibitions will excite race riots. Already deaths from these riots because of the fight have been reported from New York city; Mounds, Ill., Omaha, Neb., Little Rock, Ark., Tyler, Tex., Uvaldia, Ga., and other places. The prompt stand taken by Mayor Fitzgerald of Boston to prohibit these pictures is to be commended. Six states and a large number of cities are in line also in prohibiting.

The trolley freight grant and the wideping of our main thoroughfares are closely allied. It is already admitted that the street railway cannot give the city satisfactory service on some of its routes on a single track, yet the streets are not considered wide enough for double tracks. All expense of street widening must be borne by the taxpayers of the city, and it is not a square deal to force the city to all this expense. If the street railway company would agree to pay a proportional cost of the expense of street widening there would be no objection to double tracks and trolley freights on all the street railway lines.

ISLES OF SHOALS MEETING.

The Unitarian summer meetings at the Isles of Shoals will be held July 10 to 17, and the Sunday School Institute July 18 to 22. The general topic of the morning meetings of the first week will be "The Essential Faiths o fthe Modern Man," with the following addresses: "The Divine Fact of Human Nature," by Rev. John Mills Wilson of Lexington, Mass.; "The Essential Faith in God," by Rev. Frederick Gill of Arlington, Mass.; "The Principle of Growth in Religion," by Rev. Sydney B. Snow of Concord, N. H.; "The Ethical Focus of Religion," by Professor Ralph Barton Perry of Harvard University; "The Persistent Significance of the Christ Ideal," by Rev. Joseph Crooker, D. A WARM INSURGENT.

Congressman Miles Poindexter of Washington

"ROOSEVELT LED ASTRAY"

Opinion of Ballinger, Who Says Poindexter Is a Socialist

Washington, July 7.—Secretary Ballinger of the interior department, referring to the report from Oyster Bay that Mr. Roosevelt had espoused the cause of Miles Poindexter as a candidate for the senate to succeed Senator Piles of Washington, said:

"If the published report is true Mr. Roosevelt has been badly led astray by the deception of the people who claim to be his friends." He added that he had taken no active part in the politics of Washington for a long while.

"I do not consider Mr. Poindexter a Republican," he continued, "but a rank Socialist, or, rather, if he is not one he will be one soon."

MISS COCKRELL A BRIDE

Southern Belle Becomes Wife of Greek Minister to Washington

Norwich, Conn., July 7.—Miss Anna Cockrell, daughter of former United States Senator Cockrell of Missouri, was married to Lambros A. Coromilas, the Greek minister to Washington, at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. Edson F. Gallaudet, in this city.

There were present but members of the family and a few intimate friends. The ceremony was performed by the priest of the Greek church at Washington and was according to the Greek church service.

Locomotive Engineer Killed

Pittsfield, Mass., July 7.—Edward Brewer, aged 55, was instantly killed last night when the locomotive of the local passenger train, of which he was engineer, jumped a switch and crashed into freight cars on a siding at Coltsville.

"Millionaire Tramp" Arrested

Philadelphia, July 7.—J. E. Howe, the "millionaire tramp" of St. Louis, was arrested and locked up here last night when he attempted to open a meeting for the unemployed in Franklin square.

Bank Sues Ex-Cashier

Rockport, Mass., July 7.—Ex-Cashier George W. Tufts' property was attached by the Rockport National bank in an action of contract for $20,000.

NOT ANXIOUS TO TRY IT OUT

Postmasters and Banks Slow on Postal Savings System

FOUR BAY STATE REQUESTS

Demand Expected to Be Slow but of Reasonably Sure Growth—Northwest Not Showing Interest That Was Expected—Foreigners Who Have No Confidence In Banks Likely to Become Depositors

Washington, July 7.—One bank, the Merchant National of Salem, and three postoffices, at Gardner, Amesbury and Needham Heights, so far, have applied from Massachusetts for the institution of postal savings banks or the custody of the savings.

Postmaster Whetton of Needham Heights writes that there is no savings bank in his town and none nearer than four or five miles. "I have talked with a number of mill owners and also many of their employes," he writes, "all of whom are desirous of having a postal savings department established in this town."

Throughout the country only 55 banks and 48 postmasters made applications for the service. There are 60,144 postoffices in the country, of which 7202 are presidential, and about 7000 national banks, besides state banks and trust companies.

The figures given at this early day are by no means symptomatic of the extent, or lack of it, of the actual demand for postal savings banks. The government machinery for carrying on the new banking system is not yet organized, and there is no need of hurrying.

In fact, no postoffice or local bank will be favored because application for the deposits has been made, although the trustees may find such applications occasionally useful. The demand for the postal banks probably will be of slow but reasonably sure growth.

Oddly enough, no requests appear to have been made from the great northwestern section of the country, in states like Montana, Idaho and Washington, notwithstanding that this territory was supposed to be wild with desire that the government saving system be instituted. Texas is looming up strong, as are also Kentucky and Oklahoma.

The president of one of the large national banks of Pennsylvania suggests that in due time the deposits will be much larger than the opponents of the postal bank system would have the country believe: He says:

"Notwithstanding the criticism of many country bankers, we think that the postal savings act is going to release a large amount of money. We were talking to one of our customers yesterday who has large iron interests at Dunbar, and he figures that at least $500,000 would be deposited in Dunbar and Uniontown and one or two other places in that vicinity.

"A great many of the laborers there are Italians who have no confidence in the banks and it is not unusual for them to carry considerable money on their persons. An accident in a mine a few years ago killed some thirty men, and $25,000 was found on their bodies. Another man was hurt not long ago and taken to the hospital and $1800 was in a belt around him."

LYMAN HEARING CLOSED

Women Say It Was Not Conducted Fairly and File Petitions

Boston, July 7.—The closing scene of the Lyman school investigation was enacted amidst an outburst of complaints by women auditors, who claimed that the hearing was not conducted in a fair and just manner. Another feature of the hearing was the filing of two petitions, one for the removal of the board of trustees for "gross negligence" and another for the abolition of corporal punishment at the school. Both the petitions were filed by women's organizations.

Medical Examiner Magrath of Suffolk county gave out a statement in which he repeats that John Newman killed himself by hanging. He thus answers the statements of Dr. Charles T. Cahill an dDr. Edwin Dwight, who claim the boy was murdered.

OHIO RAILROAD DISASTER

Pilot Issues Statement Declaring Train Dispatcher Is to Blame

Cincinnati, July 7.—Interest in the disastrous wreck at Middletown, O., in which more than a score of lives were sacrificed, has been transferred to Cincinnati.

A statement from J. W. Wall, pilot engineer of the Big Four passenger train, which crashed into a freight train of the Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton railway, places blame for the wreck on Train Dispatcher Smith of the latter system at Dayton.

In this he is partly confirmed by F. A. Gould, general superintendent of the Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton.

Three Navy Captains Retired

Washington, July 7.—"Plucked" from the active list of the navy, Captains Veeder, Underwood and Wright have been retired, their retirement to date back to June 30.

WEATHER BUREAU CONTEST.

The young man in the linen suit, after attending to the slight errand that had brought him to Lufkin's store at Hardhack Corner, lingered for a little chat with the proprietor, who looked as if he might be a "character."

As the visitor had approached the store he had seen a letter-carrier driving away from it, and this fact suggested a conversational opening that has come to be a favorite with the summer visitor.

"This rural free delivery is a great institution," he began, graciously.

But he perceived at once that he had made a mistake. The reply elicited was in itself non-committal. Mebbe 'tis and mebbe 'tain't." But the scorn that the old storekeeper continued to throw into his tone left no doubt as to his attitude toward this innovation in country life.

For more than thirty years Moses Lufkin had been the postmaster at Hardhack Corner. The salary had not been large, but, as he had often been heard to say, the honor was something. Besides, as "trade follows the flag," so does it come to the store in which the government postoffice is domiciled.

Furthermore, in the little gatherings of farmers who came for mail and remained for conversation, Mr. Lufkin had been something of an oracle.

But now all this was changed. The post-office had been abolished, trade had fallen off somewhat, and worst of all, the ex-postmaster's authority, even in that special subject which he had made a lifelong study, was no longer unquestioned. No wonder he could not be roused to any enthusiasm over the blessing of rural free delivery!

Perceiving this, the young man hastened to change the subject, selecting a topic this time that is supposed to be safe on all occasions. "Ah, I see that we are likely to have another fine day tomorrow," he said, glancing at a thin sheet of paper lying on the counter.

"Well, if we do, it won't be because that thing says so," returned the old gentleman, as testily as before. "I verily believe there's been more hay spiled in this vicinity since that rural carrier began to bring those predictions than there had been before, for I don't know how long. Why if I'd made as many mistakes in twenty years as the gover'ment has in two, I'd have given up trying altogether!"

"Indeed! I judge, then, that you are something of an expert yourself in forecasting the weather."

"Well, I ought to be. I've been studying into it for going on forty years."

"It is certainly quite a study," said the young man. "At any rate, I have found it so."

Then, answering a look of inquiry, he added, "You see, I'm in the weather business myself to some extent. I am an assistant observer of the Weather Bureau."

"In a way, yes."

The old man stared for a moment at this embodiment of what had been to him hitherto only an impersonal rival. "What may I call your name?" he asked.

"Dole. Clarence Dole, at your service. Here is my card. I am taking a little vacation, and am staying at Blake's, on the hill."

"How long are you going to stay in these parts?" demanded Mr. Lufkin, with interest.

"About two weeks, I think."

"I want to know! Well, now, I suppose you're laughing in your sleeve at my setting up to be a better weather prophet than the gover'ment. But I'd like to put the thing to a test with ye, and I'll tell ye what I'll do. I'll write out my prediction every day before the gover'ment's gets along ,and I'll stick 'em up side by side on the wall. Then you and I'll keep tally how they come out. Do you dare to try it?"

Mr. Dole replied good-naturedly that he would be glad to watch the result; and without attempting any new lines of conversation, he quickly took his leave.

"Who is that gentleman going down the road, grandpa?" called a voice a moment later.

The old man's stern face lighted up with pleasure at sight of the young lady standing in the doorway, but he answered curtly enough, "Oh, it's a young chap that's boarding at Blake's —Dole, he says his name is. Claims to be a weather observer for the government."

"Mr. Dole of the Weather Bureau! Why, I know him," said the young lady. "He attends our chu ch in the city. He is a very pleasant young man."

"He is pleasant-spoken enough," admitted her grandfather, "but I know what he thinks. He thinks an old codger like me can't foretell weather, but I'm just going to show him his mistake."

For the next two weeks Mr. Lufkin devoted himself to his task with an absorption characteristic of the specialist. Every day the rival forecasts were placed conspicuously on the wall, and every day Mr. Dole ,according to his promise, called to compare them, and to discuss the degree of fulfilment of those of the day before, after which it became quite a habit of his to make a social call at the storekeeper's pleasant house near by.

"The news of the contest also spread amon gthe neighbors, with the result that visits to the store became almost as much a matter of course as in the old days of coming for the mail.

For a week or so honors were about even. Indeed, the rival forecasts were quite similar in substance, although worded differently ,as Mr. Lufkin scorned to imitate the phraseology of the Weather Bureau.

But at last an issue was fairly joined. On Wednesday afternoon the narrow slip of paper emanating from the Weather Bureau bore in modest type this prediction:

"Increasing cloudiness Thursday, with light rain in the afternoon or night," while beside it on the wall might be seen the announcement, scrawled in red chalk, "A little hazy tomorrow morning, but it will burn off, and be a toler'ble warm day."

On Thursday morning the sun rose very clear and then within two hours went into a cloud, which was a bad sign. It sprinkled a little by nine o'clock—a "drought shower," Mr. Lufkin called it. But an hour later the sun was again shining brightly, and for the rest of the day there was an almost cloudless sky. It was warm, too.

There was no room for controversy. The weather prophet of Hardhack Corner had scored a success ,and the "gover'ment" was beaten.

Mr. Lufkin was not only gratified, but considerably emboldened by his success. A neighborhood picnic to take place on a small island in Long Pond had been planned for Saturday, but on Friday the native prophet shook his head ominously.

"I rather calculate that picnic will have to be put off," he said. And early in the afternoon he seized his red chalk, and wrote in flaming characters:

Look out for thunder showers and high wind tomorrow

The report from the Weather Bureau ,arriving a little later, merely said:

Fair and warmer Saturday

This left the community somewhat in doubt, although the young people, who were especially interested in the picnic, were inclined to believe that "Uncle Lufkin was a little off that time." This opinion was strengthened the next morning, for never did dawning day give fairer promise of good behavior.

"Do you really believe, grandpa, that there is any danger of showers?" asked Fannie, pausing irresolutely in her task of filling her lunch basket.

"Now, Fannie," broke in her grandmother, impatiently, "don't you mind a word that your grandpa says. It does seem if he had gone clean daft about the weather. It's going to be as nice a day as heart could wish. Of course you will go to the picnic. All the folks will. I declare, I'd go myself if I wasn't so lame."

The old gentlman, thus discredited in his own house, started off in decided ill humor, and shut himself up in his deserted store, out of sight if not out of hearing of the merry party that soon passed by.

"I wish it would rain pitchfolks and blow great guns!" he muttered as he went outside late in the forenoon and cast a searching look at the sky. "No, I don't either!" he declared the next minute, in a tone of repentance, "I hope they will have a first-rate good day, and I guess they will, fast enough."

In this better mood he seated himself on a much-whittled bench just outside the door, and was soon peacefully engaged in the never-failing occupation of the aged—living over bygone days. He was just on the point of falling into a nap when his granddaughter's voice aroused him.

"Grandpa! Grandpa!" came the pleasant voice again.

"Why, Fannie!" he exclaimed, his eyes blinking in the sunlight. "I supposed you were at the picnic."

"Oh, no, grandpa! I don't quite like to take the risk right against your advice, and so I concluded not to go," said the young lady, demurely.

"What, you here, too, Mr. Dole!" cried the store-keeper, in fresh wonder, as he became conscious of another figure a little in the background.

"Yes, I thought I'd better not go, either," returned the young man, in a very respectful tone.

This handsome recognition of his standing as a weather prophet was decidedly soothing to the old gentleman's pride. "Well, it's generally safest to follow my advice," he admitted, "but I guess I missed my calculations for once. The fact is, all signs fail in a dry time. Dinner ready, did you say, Fannie? Well, I'll go right in. And you must come, too, Mr. Dole, and have a bite with us."

The invitation was accepted, and the simple twelve o'clock dinner finally assumed quite the proportions of a banquet, at least so far as time was concerned.

The chief topic of conversation was, of course, the weather, and the local prophet listened, at first with tolerance, and finally with keen interest, while his guest expounded the methods of the Weather Bureau.

So absorbed did the little company become in the talk that no one noticed the lapse of time until darkness began to steal upon them. Then Grandmother Lufkin, mindful of her household duties, peeped anxiously through her spectacles at the face of the tall clock in the corner, while her husband sprang up from the table and hastened to the window.

"There's a shower coming ,true as I live!" he declared in a voice pitched to its highest key.

As a matter of fact, the shower, when it arrived, proved to be a rather small affair, but it served to justify Mr. Lufkin's frequent "I told you so," and to establish more completely than ever his confidence in his forecasting ability.

In that confidence he still abides.

"I've got a grandson," he is wont to say, "or grandson-in-law,I suppose you'd call him, that's connected with the gover'ment. He works in the Weather Bureau, helping get up those predictions. Well, it's quite a science; and taking the country by and large, its amazing how well they hit it. But when it comes to predicting for just Hardhack Corner and vicinity my grandson has to own up that the gover'ment can't hold a candle to me."—F. E. C. Robbins.

HORSES KILLED

When Electric Car Hits Team Standing on Track

There was a street railway accident at North Weymouth about 10.20 Wednesday evening, which resulted in one horse being killed and another so badly injured that he had to be shot. The place where the accident happened was on Bridge street near the junction of the road to Fort Point. At this particular point the street is very dark. The team was one of McKee's Hingham Express Co. The street at this point is under repair, and it seems that the driver of the express team pulled off the street into the car track on the northerly side of the street where he got stuck.

Leaving his team standing unprotected in the dark spot, the driver went back to North Weymouth to telephone for help. While he was absent the car from Nantasket came along, and before the motorman saw that the track was obstructed, he banged into the team.

One horse was killed outright, and the other so badly injured that he had to be shot. There were quite a number of passengers on the car, but the only one to receive any injury was a woman who rode on the front seat. Her injuries consisted of bruises about the lower limbs which were not of a serious nature. Dr. W. A. Drake of North Weymouth came to the scene of the accident but found no one who required treatment.

IN CAMP TOMORROW.

The camp of the Cadets at Hingham will be at popular place next week. On Friday the First Corps of Cadets will go into camp for its annual tour following an absence of two years from this camping ground. Lieut. Col. Franklin Joy, commanding the corps, has officially designated the camp "Camp Edmands," in honor of the corps former commander, Lieut.-Col. Thomas R. Edmands, Maj. Joy orders the corps to assemble at the Columbus avenue armory at 4.45 P. M., July 8. The uniform will be dress, haversacks and canteen (mess kits and cups in haversack). The tour will extend from the afternoon of July 8 to include the morning of Saturday, July 16, upon which last named date the corps will probably be dismissed at the armory a few minutes before 2 P. M. Reveile will be sounded at 6 A. M. and taps at 10.30 P. M. Friday evening, July 8, the monthly meeting will be held in the mess hall when the commanding officer will read a paper on camp duty.

BIRTHDAY PARTY.

Miss Jennie Boutilier was tendered a party at her home, the Cohasset cottage, Rock Island road, Wednesday evening in honor of her 15th birthday. The rooms were prettily decorated with roses and bachelor buttons. Guests were present from North Easton, Roxbury, Quincy, Dorchester and Houghs Neck. Among them were Miss Josephine Hanson, Irene Harvey, Hazel Watson, Mabel Coughlin, Dorothy MacDonald, Alice Coughlin, Eva Slaunwhite, Elizabeth Boutilier, William Richards, Robert King, Charles Wyman, James DeVine, Fred Beard, Frank, George and Henry Boutilier. Musical selections were rendered by Miss Hazel Watson and Charles Wyman. Games were played and refreshments served. At midnight all went home happy, wishing the popular young lady many returns of the day. Miss Boutilier was the recipient of many beautiful presents.

—New Jersey now has barred the "easy marriage." Hereafter every applicant for marriage in the State must have a license secured from an official register. As an essential to that each person must endure rigid questioning, false answers involving a penalty of from one to three years' imprisonment. No license can be issued to a person under the influence of liquor, narcotics, to an imbecile, an epileptic, or one who has been an inmate of an asylum, except as full discharge is in evidence. The "reform" is spreading. Quick hitches and no questions asked are not as numerous as they were. It is a gratifying change. This getting wedded on the spur of the moment and repenting for long and bitter days thereafter is bad business, and it keeps the divoree courts clogged with work.—Brockton Enterprise.

A FORCED MARRIAGE

Bred Complications That Were Long In Being Worked Out

By THERESA C. HOLT

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

Nothing was known about Ralph Hayden, a young man who bought a small ranch in New Mexico, except that he was an Englishman. He was tall and well formed, with light hair and complexion and blue eyes. This, with a winning smile that uncovered white, regular teeth, made him in appearance very attractive. He had brought £2,000 with him from England, with which he purchased and stocked his ranch.

He had no sooner got settled than the neighboring ranchers called on him and invited him to their homes, but he accepted none of their invitations. This excited a good deal of talk among the women at the different ranch houses, all of whom were curious to know why the handsome Britisher would have nothing to do with them. The general verdict was that he considered himself too good for them. Nevertheless Hayden was hail fellow well met with all the men and soon became popular alike with ranchers and cowboys.

One day Hayden set out to go to a neighboring ranch. He was walking across a field when a bull espied him and bore down on him from the rear. Hayden, unconscious of his danger, continued on leisurely. Suddenly he saw a horsewoman leap a fence and rush upon him, swinging a lasso as she rode. Not understanding the movement, he stood still, regarding her with wondering eyes. Coming near him, she threw her lasso, but not at him. Turning, he saw that she had thrown the loop around the horns of a bull. Drawing his revolver, he quickly killed the beast.

The next thing he did was to raise his hat in a courtly manner to the woman who had saved his life and offer his thanks. She was a girl about twenty years old. A coil of hair was falling under her sombrero, having been loosened by the jump she had made over the fence. Her costume was a jacket cut Mexican fashion and divided skirts of the same material.

"Had it not been for you," said Hayden, "I would probably now be either dead or dying. The bull would have taken me in the back and broken it. I shall esteem it a favor if you will name the way in which I may best show my gratitude."

"You are Mr. Hayden, I believe?"

"I am."

"Do you know what a woman loves best?"

"I do not."

"To get ahead of other women."

"Well?"

"Come and see me."

"You have a charming frankness. I shall certainly call upon you. You must be that Miss MacDonald of whom I have heard so much."

"I am Kate MacDonald. I bid you good morning."

Kate MacDonald was a feminine free lance. She could ride, shoot, hurl a lasso as well as any man in the neighborhood and had a way of looking out of a pair of honest eyes that invited confidence. She was tender hearted in the extreme. She called a spade a spade and had a sovereign contempt for people who said one thing and meant another.

Ralph Hayden called upon her at her father's ranch the same evening. When he arose to go she said to him:

"Tomorrow afternoon I shall expect you to ride with me. We will go past the principal ranches hereabout in order that the women may see us together. After that I shall resign all claims upon your attention."

"And I shall not be allowed to visit you again?"

"As often as you like, but not from any obligation to do so."

A month later one evening Ralph Hayden, after pacing the floor for an hour, swayed by conflicting emotions, went to Kate MacDonald's home, told her that he loved her so deeply that he could ruin himself for her and begged her to marry him.

"What do you mean by ruining yourself for me?" she asked.

"I am pledged to marry a girl in England."

"Does she love you very much?" she asked.

"I don't know. I suppose she loves me, though the marriage is to be under certain contingencies."

"What are they? No, don't tell me. Go away. I need time to think this over."

He obeyed the order. For several days there was no communication between them. Then he wrote her, recalling all he had said, closing with the words: "I was demented. There is but one path for me to follow, and only a fool and a knave would follow any other."

No answer came to this. One evening about a week later Kate MacDonald, attended by half a dozen cowboy friends and a parson, rode up to Ralph Hayden's ranch house. All dismounted and entered. One of the cowboys acted as spokesman:

"Anything Kate MacDonald wants goes. She's made up her hind to marry you. If you decline you run a gantlet and other such torture as Indians use. Here's a man to do the job." He pointed to the parson.

"I'm not afraid of your torture," said Hayden, "but I'm ready to go through the ceremony."

Not a word was spoken by the contracting couple except to make the replies required by the marriage service. When it was over Kate MacDonald led the way out, and all mounted their horses and rode away.

From this time forward Kate MacDonald, or Kate Hayden, was a changed woman. She no longer galloped over the country taking fences and ditches by the way. She never attended any of the social gatherings held among the neighboring ranchers. The only feature eminent before her marriage she retained was her tender solicitude for those who were in trouble. The Hayden ranch remained in care of a keeper, who offered it for sale. Nothing was heard of its owner. A year passed. By that time Kate Hayden had come to see her act in its true light and wrote a letter to her husband, telling him that if he wished to be free from her she could easily obtain a divorce on the ground of desertion. Not knowing where to send her letter, she asked the keeper of the Hayden ranch for her husband's address. He told her that he had been instructed to give it to no one, but he offered to forward the missive, and she accepted the offer.

Sufficient time elapsed for a letter to come from almost any part of the globe, but none was received. Months passed, and still no word. The young wife, wife in name only, became a broken down woman. It was not the equivocal position in which she stood before the world, but the fact that she loved the man she had treated in a manner which every day seemed to her more unmaidenly and barbarous. This, added to that dreadful silence, was killing her. She was not sure even that he lived. Her parents, her neighbors, endeavored in every way to draw her from her despondency. Her friends the cowboys gathered in groups to discuss the man whom they considered to blame for her condition and even debated the question of sending one of their number to find him wherever he might be and give him the chance of returning to his wife or swallowing a dose of lead.

But no such method of restoring her happiness, of course, ever reached the young wife's ears. She gradually sank till those about her began to shake their heads and predict that she would at last fall a victim to her unfortunate affair. The Hayden ranch was finally sold. The intelligence was kept from her as long as possible, fearing that this breaking the last link that bound her to her husband would have an increased effect upon her. But when the new owner took possession of the property it was impossible that she should be kept in ignorance any longer. As was feared, it destroyed her last hope.

One morning when the daily stage arrived at the relay house Ralph Hayden hurriedly alighted, ordered a horse and, mounting, galloped away. Half an hour later he was seen to ride into the MacDonald ranch house. The news spread over the neighborhood. The ranchers and the ranchers' families discussed the arrival and wondered what the next move would be. The cowboys convened in special meeting, and it was solemnly agreed that if the Britisher went away without his departure being satisfactory to his wife they would waylay him and force him to fight each one of them successively till all were killed or he bit the dust. Some of them fingered their revolvers nervously in anticipation.

It was not long, however, before very startling news was given out at the ranch house. Hayden had returned for the bride he had been forced to marry; he was not only Ralph Hayden, but Sir Ralph Hayden and heir to one of the fairest estates in England. Then all the women exclaimed at once:

"Goodness gracious! Kate Mac is Lady Hayden!"

The afternoon this news was circulated the cowboys agreed that they would go in a body to the MacDonald ranch house, learn of its truth, and if it were so give three cheers for Sir Ralph and Lady Hayden. Learning of their intention, many of the neighbors repaired there to see the fun. Lining up before the house, the boys began to call for their favorite. Presently she appeared, leaning on the arm of her husband, pale and thin, but with that same old smile on her lips which had made them her slaves. A yell arose and cries of "Tell us about it!" She pointed to her husband, who said:

"Boys, it was all a mistake. I made several, and our Kate made one. I let complications in England interfere with me and my wife's happiness; but thank God, they are past, and we are all happy."

This brief speech was received by three cheers from the cowboys, assisted by the neighbors present. Then the assembly were invited into the house, and the bottle was passed.

After a few weeks' sojourn the couple left for England, leaving the following explanation:

An English girl with a large estate had agreed to marry Ralph Hayden a younger son of Sir George Hayden, if within a given time he should, through the death of an invalid brother, inherit the title. After his American marriage Ralph Hayden had returned to England and found the girl he had been engaged to marry conditionally had fallen in love with another man, whom she was about to wed. The returned ranchman smarted a long while under the marriage into which he had been forced. Meanwhile his brother lingered in bad health and finally died. Then the new incumbent sailed for American to bring back his wife.

GIVE CREDIT TO GOD, SAYS ENGINEER HERO

Sticks to Post Until He Puts Burning Steamer Ashore

New York, July 7.—Fire on the three-decker wooden steamer Grand Republic, sister ship of the ill-fated General Slocum, carrying but forty-five passengers, developed a real hero yesterday afternoon in the bay when the vessel was returning from Far Rockaway to take the average 2000 down to the beach for the night.

The hero is Samuel Howard, chief engineer, who stood at his post in the engine room, answering every bell from the pilot house, while the dense smoke, and at times the flames, made it necessary for him to use his sense of touch to carry out the orders.

When the boat had finally docked he groped his way up the engine room stairs, staggered to the railing and gasped for breath, blind for an hour.

The crew cheered him as he appeared, and then gave him credit for saving both ship and passengers. "Don't give me credit," said he, "give the Almighty God credit for enabling us to land in safety."

The fire started in the cook's galley and shot up through the old paddlebox. Before it was extinguished by the crew and several score Brooklyn firemen it did about $5000 damage.

YOUNG GIRL'S FEAT

Swims Five Miles In Boston Harbor Under Adverse Conditions

Boston, July 7.—Triumphing over heavy waves and a strong east wind, Rose Pitonof, a slender girl of 15, proved beyond question her right to the title of champion girl swimmer of Greater Boston by swimming the five statute mile distance from the Dorchester Yacht club to Deer island light in the remarkable time of three hours and fifteen minutes.

Once on her long and perilous journey the girl was hidden for nearly a minute in the wash of a big steamer and her father, who accompanied her in a small rowboat, feared that she had gone down.

Strange Fishing Matches.

In the olden time in England lords and ladies sometimes invented queer amusements. They were always on the lookout for some novelty, and one of the strangest they discovered was fishing by a goose. A line with a baited hook attached having been fastened to the goose, tied to its leg, she was flung into the water from the boat in which were all the gay lords and ladies. Then, when a pike caught the bait, she was sport indeed, a royal battle between bird and fish, and all the time, between the loud splashings, wheelings and flounderings, the onlookers in the boat giving vent to their feelings in cheers, handclappings and handkerchief waving. But the goose was usually the victor and ended the struggle by landing its prisoner on the shore, where its quack-quack as it cleared itself from the line and waddled away ended the scene. The lake of Monteith, in the southwest of Perthshire, was often the scene of such angling matches.

Significant Signals.

"Do you not see the handwriting on the wall?" asked the foreboding friend.

Distance is a great promoter of admiration.—Diderot.

BRIEFS

William J. Williams of Lebanon, N. H., was a guest Sunday of his mother Mrs. Sarah C. Williams of Cross street. Mr. Williams made the trip in his new automobile.

It is reported that Victor E. Miller has purchased the stock and good will of the market of Washburn & Macleod. Mr. Miller was a City Square merchant a few years ago.

The up-to-date firm of Henry L. Kincaide & Co., is setting a good example in closing their stores at one o'clock on Wednesdays through the summer, thereby giving the clerks a half holiday.

A whist party will be held Friday evening in Mayo's hall in aid of the Crescent and Copeland street table of the St. Mary's garden party. A couple of hours of whist will be enjoyed and refreshments will be served.

Settees were placed Wednesday night by the Civic committee on the grounds of the clubhouse of the Quincy Women's club, which mothers with young children are invited to use. They will find it a comfortable outdoor resting place.

The Civic committee of the Quincy Women's club continues its interest in the playground which it helped to establish last year back of the Y. M. C. A. and this season is paying for the services of the young lady who assists the Y. M. C. A. in the work.

SALT WATER TRIPS.

The service arranged by the Eastern steamship company for the summer season provides the most comfortable and enjoyable routes to the resorts of Maine and the Maritime provinces. There is a night steamer to Portland, leaving at 7 P. M. every day, with ample accommodations, and delightful day trips to Portland Monday, Wednesday and Friday, steamers leaving at 9 A. M. These are steel steamers, with splendid dining room service and spacious lounging and promenade decks. Other sailings are 6 P. M. daily except Sunday, for Bath, Boothbay harbor and Kennebec river resorts; 5 P. M. daily except Sunday for Rockland, Bangor, Bar Harbor, Penobscot bay and river; St. John, N. B., and all points in the Maritime provinces, leave Boston 10 A. M. Sunday, Monday and Thursday direct, and 9 A. M. Monday, Wednesday and Friday, via Portland and Eastport. Tickets and staterooms may be obtained at wharf and city offices. eod

—There is no question that there has recently been a building boom, notably in the West. Some students of the situation fear that the overcommitment of capital in new building may lead to a serious day of reckoning and stock market depression may thus be accounted for. There is at least this encouragement, however, that in the larger cities curtailment has already begun.—Boston Common.

PNEUMATIC TIRE MARKS LOCOMOTION'S PROGRESS.

But Edinburgh Cannot Decide Who Was Inventor.

The dispute arose about a statue. Who invented the pneumatic tire? To whom should Edinburgh give honor in bronze or marble—to R. W. Thomson, who patented an air filled tire in 1845, or to John Dunlop, who invented the pneumatic tire in 1888? The dispute carries the imagination back over one of the most astonishing episodes in industrial history.

It was in 1845 that Thomson patented the idea of affixing a "belt" filled with compressed air to the rim of a carriage wheel, and, although his invention never came into practical use, he showed great knowledge of the good effects which would follow from the use of the pneumatic tire.

Forty-three years later John Dunlop, without any knowledge of the Thomson invention, patented a pneumatic tire. The safety bicycle had then come into vogue, but its wheels were shod with solid rubber tires. Mr. Dunlop's little son possessed a tricycle, and as the Dunlops then lived in Belfast and the Irish roads were of very bad surface this veterinary surgeon applied a rubber tube filled with compressed air, and it afforded such comfort to the rider that Mr. Dunlop brought the idea before adult cyclists, and some enthusiasm was aroused. But Mr. Dunlop would have hardly been more successful in 1888 than Thomson in 1845 had not another man appeared on the scene.

Harvey du Cros was at that time a prominent figure in Irish sporting circles, and his sons were famous for their prowess in cycle racing. With true business instinct Mr. du Cros saw the immense possibilities of the pneumatic tire for cycles, and he threw himself heart and soul into the work of making this crude invention practicable. His early efforts were greeted with derision.

Then Mr. du Cros took a band of Irish cyclists, including his sons and R. J. Mecredy to England, and they gained sweeping victories with the pneumatic tire on the racing track. But for the enterprise and ability of Harvey du Cros Mr. Dunlop's invention might have lain dormant for many years.

Had this been the case the whole progress of modern locomotion from motoring to airmanship would have been checked, for we can trace the direct influence of the air filled tire in all the astonishing developments of the last twenty-two years. So from the bad state of Irish roads, from the solicitude of a fond parent to make smooth progress for his son's cycle over rough roads, Thomson's idea was recreated, and this time the right man was at hand to develop the idea.

NEW VEGETABLE IS SOUGHT.

England Investigates Possibilities of Ground Nut.

English horticulturists are turning attention to the possibility of finding a new vegetable in the ground nut, which, though of excellent flavor and wholesome for food, is disregarded by all but "pigs and children."

Ground nuts, otherwise called "jar nuts" or "earth chestnuts," have been from time immemorial a favorite delicacy with village boys, who are now generally barred from searching for them in the English woods, where they grow best, by killjoy gamekeepers. In Gerarde's time their merits were well known, and they grew profusely "almost everywhere" around London, but especially in a field adjoining Highgate, on the right side of the village, and likewise in the next field to the conduit heads by Marylebone, near the way that leads to Paddington from London.

MUSKRAT NEW DELICACY.

Chicago Promoters Start Farm For Market Supply.

Loin of Chicago grown muskrat with bulrush sauce will appear on bills in Chicago restaurants if the plans of three pioneer "muskrat farmers" succeed.

The first muskrat farm has been started. Its products are to be food and fur. Its market will be Chicago, as a beginning, at least, but success may broaden its scope.

Its location is in the "Sag," in the towns of Worth and Palos, twenty miles southwest of Chicago. It comprises 190 acres, is more than a mile long and consists of the fairest stretch of swamps and shallow lakes to be found in this section of the country. It already has a large muskrat population.

Cossack Girl on Long Ride.

A Cossack girl named Kudasheff has started to ride from Harbin to St. Petersburg, some 5,420 miles. Her mount is a light gray Mongolian pony, and she is riding astride on an ordinary Cossack saddle. She carries a hunting knife and a revolver, and her only companion is a pure bred St. Bernard dog. The plucky horsewoman was formerly a railway employee and during the Russo-Japanese war was awarded the gold medal "for zeal."

Middlemen's Days Numbered.

Cotton importers at Prague, Austria, want to buy of American exporters direct instead of through middlemen in certain European cities. They complain of inferior qualities being sent when better qualities have been ordered and paid for in advance. Interior Chinese merchants also want to buy American cotton goods direct and not through Shanghai or Hongkong.

FIGHT PICTURES UNDER THE BAN

Cannot Be Exhibited In Boston, Declares the Mayor

THINKS IT TIME TO STOP

Stage Coach Holdups and Murder Scenes Also Placed on Undesirable List—Similar Sentiment In Many Other Cities—Governor Dickerson Says It Was Clean Fight and Nevada Benefited Thereby

Boston, July 7.—Massachusetts has joined in the nation-wide movement to stop the exhibition of the motion pictures of the Jeffries-Johnson fight. Mayor Fitzgerald announced positively that the pictures must not be shown in Boston. The mayor also announced that if there are any brutal bouts given from time to time in this city under private auspices, they, too, will have to stop.

Following the announcement William Shaw, general secretary of the Christian Endeavor society, went to the state house and asked the governor to stop the exhibition of the pictures in this state. The conference was a long one.

The governor will announce his decision within twenty-four hours. Chief Whitney of the state police has forbidden the showing of the pictures on Sunday and will go further if the governor so orders.

The ban on the fight pictures was not entirely unexpected, but the ban on other undesirable pictures and for "boxing bouts of a brutal nature" came as a surprise.

"It's about time," Fitzgerald said, "that Boston should live up to her reputation of being 'the Athens of America' and 'the centre of education.' Moving pictures of fights where one man is covered with blood and is hammered into insensibility by another man are not proper for display at public places where women and children—or any one, for that matter—may go in and see them. The same is true of pictures of murders, stage coach hold-ups and other unseemly events."

Action came quick all over the United States in barring the pictures. The district commissioner barred the pictures from the national capital. Mayor Head barred the pictures from Louisville, and they were also barred in Harrisburg, Portsmouth, Va., Providence, Fort Worth and Austin, Tex., and Lexington, Ky.

Bills have been introduced in both branches of the Georgia legislature to bar the Jeffries-Johnson fight pictures from the state.

The secretary of the governor of Illinois has received word from the governor of that state, who is upon his vacation, that he is very glad that the movement against the pictures has started, and he gives it "his hearty approval and wishes its success throughout the country."

Mayor Herman of New Orleans reversed his decision in relation to displaying Jeffries-Johnson pictures in that city and decided the films cannot be shown there.

No Fight Pictures In Maine

Portland, Me., July 7.—The exhibition of prize fight pictures in Maine is prohibited by a law passed by the legislature in 1897. Section 17 of chapter 125 of the revised statutes reads: "Whoever publicly exhibits any photographic or other reproduction of a prize fight shall be punished by a fine not exceeding $500."

A NERVOUS BREAKDOWN

Probable Cause of Jeffries' Condition When Fight Begun

Reno, Nev., July 7.—Three physicians reported Jeffries to be in absolute perfect condition on the day of the fight. Yet when he walked into the ring he suffered what many believe was a complete nervous breakdown.

From tales that have been dropped by the men who seconded him in the fight it is gathered that Jeffries was mentally a child from nervousness and responsibility when he climbed through the ropes on Independence Day. He is reported to have told one of his seconds that he did not even remember when he left the rubbing room for the ring.

In all probability this is as near the truth as the general public will ever get. Jeffries fought his body muscles into shape, but his mind and nerves he could not control. At the climax they wrested control from him and he was as helpless and inefficient in the ring as a child.

THINKS STATE BENEFITED

Dickerson Says He Will Never Interfere In a Similar Case

Reno, Nev., July 7.—Governor Dickerson has given out the following statement respecting the Jeffries-Johnson fight, at which he was a spectator:

"I do not at all regret that the fight was pulled off in Nevada. It was a clean fight and Tex Rickard's assurances to me personally were made perfectly good. There is absolutely no warrant, in my judgment, for the protests that have been made against it. The fight in Reno demonstrated fully that there was nothing about it but what was proper for any state to permit.

"Of my own personal knowledge the holding of this event in Nevada was beneficial, rather than injurious, notwithstanding the claims advanced by some. It has made the possibility and natural advantages of this state, with its undeveloped wealth, familiar to many who otherwise would not have heard of the state. I am well pleased with the intelligent manner in which the tremendous crowd was handled and treated by the people of Reno, and I have heard only expressions of good will for the city on all sides.

"I will further state that as long as the law licenses glove contests I will not attempt to interfere with such events in any manner in the future."

WHY JOHNSON MADE TRACKS FROM RENO

Was Warned of Plot to Clean His Camp of Valuables

Potter, Neb., July 7.—Jack Johnson says he hastened out of Reno because he had been warned to look out for a holdup at Rick's resort, where he trained. Someone told him the plans a gang of crooks were making to swoop down on the road house and clean out the camp. Johnson was known to have about $16,000 worth of diamonds around; it was said his share of the big purse was paid in cash, so he decided to leave the town of Reno without attracting attention and few knew he was going.

He will not feel safe until he has put his money in a Chicago bank. He has nothing but praise for Jeffries.

"I could see in the early rounds that he was out," said Jack. "I felt sorry for him. When I saw him bleeding and gradually sink, it made my heart ache. I could see no unusual honor in victory over a wreck. I wished then that I had faced him when he was as his best."

SEEKS NO OFFICE

Bryan Will Be a Free Lance In the Nebraska Campaign

Lincoln, Neb., July 7.—"I am not a candidate for any office; I desire nothing at the hands of my co-workers. They have already rewarded me and I am indebted to them for whatever influence I may have."

In these words, in a long statement made public, William J. Bryan practically declares himself a free lance in the coming campaign in Nebraska and gives advance notice that he will advocate such principles as he sees fit.

Mr. Bryan admits that Governor Shallenberger has the support in his position of most of the recognized leaders of Democracy in Nebraska and deplores that he has come to the parting of the ways with these leaders, but maintains he must stand by his program, which is, he says, to divorce the party from the liquor interests.

MOODY IS IMPROVING

Friends Say He Expects to Return to the Supreme Bench

Magnolia, Mass., July 7.—Friends of Associate Justice Moody of the United States supreme court still hold to the opinion that he will not resign at present, and some of them go so far as to say that he will not accept the provisions of his retirement act.

Those few friends who have seen him recently state that his health seems slightly improved and that he holds strongly to the belief in his ultimate recovery and resumption of his seat on the supreme bench.

Ever since he was taken ill with rheumatism many months ago he has held this belief and so long as he continues to show improvement, however slight, his friends do not expect that he will take advantage of the act whose provisions expire in a trifle over four months.

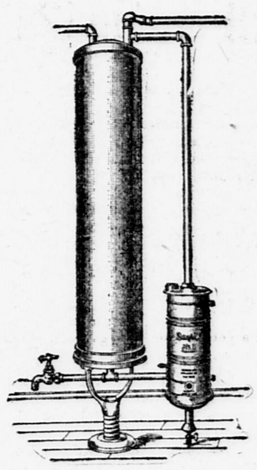

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

Danderine
and we can
PROVE IT!
A lady from Minnesota writes: "As a result of using Danderine, my hair is close to five feet in length."
Beautiful Hair at Small Cost
HAIR troubles, like many other diseases, have been wrongly diagnosed and altogether misunderstood. The hair itself is not the thing to be treated, for the reason that it is simply a product of the scalp and wholly dependent upon its action. The scalp is the very soil in which the hair is produced, nurtured and grown, and it alone should receive the attention if results are to be expected. It would do no earthly good to treat the stem of a plant with a view of making it grow and become more beautiful—the soil in which the plant grows must be attended to. Therefore, the scalp in which the hair grows must receive the attention if you are to expect it to grow and become more beautiful.
Loss of hair is caused by the scalp drying up or losing its supply of moisture or nutriment; when baldness occurs the scalp has simply lost all its nourishment, leaving nothing for the hair to feed upon (a plant or even a tree would die under similar conditions.)
The natural thing to do in either case, is to feed and replenish the soil or scalp as the case may be, and your crop will grow and multiply as nature intended it should.
Knowlton's Danderine has a most wonderful effect upon the hair glands and tissues of the scalp. It is the only remedy for the hair ever discovered that is similar to the natural hair foods or liquids of the scalp.
It penetrates the pores quickly and the hair soon shows the effects of its wonderfully exhilarating and life-producing qualities.
One 25-cent bottle is enough to convince you of its great worth as a hair growing and hair beautifying remedy—try it and see for yourself.
NOW at all druggists in three sizes, 25c, 50c and $1.00 per bottle.

Dickinson's Death Involves Disappearance of Bonds

SEEMS ALMOST LIKE FICTION

New York Broker Claims That $400,000 Worth of Property Disappeared While Banker Was Head of Carnegie Trust Company—Banker Became Interested In Alchemy and Was Said to Have Died From Inhaling Fumes

New York, July 7.—The strange and half forgotten death a little while ago of Charles C. Dickinson, head of the Carnegie Trust company, and one of the great financiers of New York, was vividly recalled by remarkable charges of the disappearance of $400,000 worth of bonds made to the district attorney of New York.

Details of the alleged theft were laid before the grand jury and the district attorney by Henry B. Twombly, representing Charles E. Wellborn, a local broker.

Mr. Wellborn owned the bonds and had them on deposit with the Carnegie company as collateral for a loan of $25,000. That the bonds had disappeared was noticed just after the death of Dickinson, who was reported to have been overcome by fumes while watching an experiment in the transfusion of silver in the laboratory of Dr. F. W. Lange at Scranton, Pa.

Mr. Wellborn is now trying to get back his bonds. When the theft was reported to him he called in Attorney Twombly.

The death of Dickinson was set in such unusual surroundings that the case is soon to come into the class of fiction instead of as a matter of cold fact. Lange is an alchemist, and he attracted Dickinson for a financial adventure.

Dr. Lange claimed and still claims that he can make silver in the laboratory out of base metals, one part of silver and ninety-nine parts base. Dickinson heard of this laboratory possibility and went to Scranton to see with his own eyes the alchemist perform the feat that has absorbed alchemists for centuries.

The dead man's life had been covered with $100,000 accident insurance not many months before his death. Suicide would have annulled that insurance. The company's investigators held that Dickinson had turned on the gas and had died by his own hand.

Mr. Dickinson had been summoned to court as a witness to testify in a case involving a promissory note for $345,000. The transaction bringing the suit occurred when he was president of the Carnegie Trust company.

And now comes a New York broker claiming that $400,000 worth of bonds entrusted to the Carnegie company during Dickinson's regime has vanished.

It is the strangest mystery that has ever startled the financial world of New York.

One of the most powerful banking institutions is concerned in a queer interchanging of securities, and the name of one of the hitherto most respected names in the city's financial history is dragged as from the grave to face dark insinuations.

REAL VACATION BEGINS

President Has Ten Days In Which to Thoroughly Enjoy Himself

Beverly, Mass., July 7.—With not a single entry in his engagement book for the next ten days President Taft has begun a real vacation period. The executive officers have rejected all requests for audiences with the chief executive, and the only callers allowed on Burgess Point up to July 16 will be social friends of the Taft family.

The president will go over the more important mail for an hour each afternoon. The remainder of the day will be his to do as he pleases. The president's summer schedule has about narrowed itself down to golf in the morning and either a long automobile ride or a short sail on the Sylph in the afternoon.

PER CAPITA IS ONLY $34.52

Our Population Increases In Greater Proportion Than Does Money

Washington, July 7.—A decrease in circulation per capita of 49 cents on July 1, as compared with a year ago, is shown by the latest treasury statement on that subject.

On July 1, 1909, the amount which each man, woman and child in the United States would have had were all the money equally divided was $35.01; last Friday it was $34.52.

The amount of money in circulation on the first instant was greater than a year ago, but the population increased in greater proportion than did the money.

Curtiss Flies Over Water

Atlantic City, N. J., July 7.—Glenn H. Curtiss last evening made another flight over the ocean, spending twele minutes in the air. Curtis says that he is entirely satisfied that flying over the sea is more certain than flights over land because of fewer sudden changes in air currents.

HALF A CHANCE

By Frederic S. Isham,

COPYRIGHT, 1909, BY THE BOBBS-MERRILL COMPANY

SYNOPSIS

A party of titled passengers on a ship bound for Australia visit a section "below decks" where a gang of convicts sentenced to deportation are confined. The ship, the Lord Nelson is wrecked. A convict, the "Frisco Pet," jumps overboard with Jocelyn Wray, a pretty little girl. The convict, after returning the girl to her friends is himself later cast away alone on a deserted island. Years have passed. Lord Ronsdale and other members of the party wrecked on the Lord Nelson, including Jocelyn Wray, go to the criminal courts in London to hear John Steele, a famous young lawyer, try a case. Steele and Jocelyn meet and form a liking for each other. Lord Ronsdale, who would marry Jocelyn, forms a violent dislike for Steele. Rousdale had at the wreck of the Lord Nelson prevented the rescue of the "Frisco Pet" by a lifeboat.

CHAPTER VII.

IN THE PARK.

INTO a scene of rural tranquility in Hyde park rode briskly about the middle of the morning Jocelyn Wray and others. The glow on the girl's cheeks harmonized with the redness of her lips. The sparkling blue eyes mocked at all neutral hues. Her gown and an odd ribbon or two waved, as it were, light defiance to motionless things—still leaves and branches, flowers and buds, drowsy and sleeping. Sometimes at her side, again just behind, galloped the horse bearing John Steele, and as they went at a fair pace, preceded and followed by others of a gay party, the eyes of many passersby turned to regard them.

"By Jove, they're stunning! It isn't often you see a man put up like that."

"Or a girl more the picture of health!"

"And beauty!"

Unconscious of these and other comments from the usual curious contingent of idlers filling the benches or strolling along the paths, the girl now set a yet swifter gait, glancing quickly over her shoulder at her companion. "Do you like a hard gallop? Shall we let them out?"

His brightening gaze answered. They touched their horses and for some distance raced madly on, passed those in front and left them far behind. Now Steele's eyes rested on the playing muscles of her superb horse, then lifted to the lithe form of Jocelyn Wray, the straight shoulders, a bit of a tress, disordered, floating rebelliously to the wind.

As abruptly as she had pressed her horse to that inspiring speed she drew him in to a walk.

"Wasn't that worth coming to the park for?" she said gayly.

"More than worth it."

"You see what you missed in the past," she observed in a tone slightly mocking.

"You were not here to suggest it," he returned quietly, with gaze only for blue eyes.

She suffered them to linger. "I suppose I should feel flattered that a suggestion from little me"—

"A suggestion from little you would, I fancy, go a long way with many people." A spark shone now in the man's steady look. The girl seemed not afraid of it.

"I am fortunate," she laughed—"a compliment from Mr. John Steele!"

He started as if to speak, but his answer remained unuttered. The man's lips closed tighter.

He offered no comment. The horses moved on. Suddenly she looked at him.

"Do you know," she laughingly remarked, "you are not very interesting?"

He started. "Interesting!"

He bent a little nearer. She swept back the disordered lock. An instant the man seemed to lose his self possession. "Ah," he began as if the words forced themselves from his lips, "if only I might"—

What he had been on the point of saying was never finished. The girl's quick glance, sweeping an instant ahead, had lingered on some one approaching from the opposite direction.

"Isn't that Lord Ronsdale?" asked the girl, continuing to gaze before her.

"Rather early for him, I fancy," she said, regarding the slim figure of the approaching rider, "with his devotion to clubs and late hours, you know. Do you, Mr. Steele, happen to belong to any of his clubs?"

"No." He spoke in a low voice, almost harshly.

Her brow lifted. His face was turned from her. Had he been mindful he might have noted a touch of displeasure on the proud face that she regarded him as from a vague, indefinite distance.

He remained silent. She frowned, then turned to the nobleman with a smile. Lord Ronsdale found that her greeting left nothing to be desired. She who had been somewhat unmindful of him lately on a sudden seemed really glad to see him.

"So good of you," she murmured conventionally as Steele dropped slightly back among the others who had by this time drawn near—"to arrive at such an unfashionable hour, I mean."

His pleased but rather suspicious eyes studied her. He answered lightly. Behind them now, he who had been riding with my lady could hear their gay laughter.

"Good looking beggar, isn't he?" observed the nobleman suddenly, his gaze sharpened on her.

"Who?" asked the girl.

"That chap Steele," he answered insinuatingly.

"Is he?" Her voice was flutelike. "What is that noise?" abruptly.

NEEDS VACATION TO CURE SORE HANDS

Official Spanker In Girls' Reformatory Weary of Duties

Trenton, July 7.—Mrs. George Hirst, official spanker for the girls' reformatory institutions of New Jersey, has asked for a month's vacation because, she asserts, she is unable properly to perform her duties, as her hands are extremely sore. Mrs. Hirst will not admit that the members became inflamed and painful as a consequence of too much attention to duty, but she does say that if she does not get a rest she will have to use a club on the wayward girls.

Since Mrs. Hirst has been installed in office there has been a marked improvement in the deportment of the girls in the reformatories. A number of them whom the official state spanker had to discipline declare they would rather be good than again to go through the spanking ordeal.

But there are chronic cases of waywardness that keep Mrs. Hirst busy all the time. It is said on good authority that it was these that caused the present condition of her hands. Some of the inmates are bigger than the spanker and have on a number of occasions attempted to make her the victim of discipline instead of themselves.

BLEACHED FLOUR VERDICT

It Is Against Millers, Who Will Be Heavy Financial Losers

Kansas City, July 7.—The federal jury, in whose hands the bleached flour case has been since Tuesday, reached a verdict yesterday afternoon against the millers.

The decision will mean financial losses running into millions of dollars for the grain dealers, millers and farmers of the southwest, principally in Kansas, Missouri, Nebraska and Oklahoma.

PEDDLERS' CRIES SWEET MUSIC IN EARS OF BOSTON CULTURE

An outdoor school for instructing musical ragmen, hawkers and street venders is the novel undertaking established in Boston by Miss Caroline E. Wenzell, a Hub settlement worker and college graduate.

Miss Wenzell believes that if the voice of the ragman and the hawker must be tolerated it should issue from the throats in tones of harmony. It should be operatic. The reformer has organized an outdoor school and for several months has been teaching ragmen, hawkers and street men how to cry their wares.

Miss Wenzell selected an alleyway through which many peddlers pass daily and waited. As fast as the peddlers appeared she stopped them. Each was asked his nationality, how long he had been in the country, whether he was married or not and how much English he knew.

Gradually getting their confidence by arguing that if they spoke better English and cried their wares more plainly and musically their customers would be doubled and trebled, Miss Wenzell got their attention and then and there gave her "class." Four peddlers were at the first lesson.

Gradually the size of her class increased. Miss Wenzell goes to her school three times a week. She arrives about 10 o'clock in the morning, seats herself on a box, and the men stand in front of her. There are always one or two new recruits, and these she takes in hand at once.

The instruction itself is very simple. Miss Wenzell first finds out what the man is selling and suggests what expression he use to call out his wares. She then tells him how to pronounce the words. The third and last instruction is that when calling out on the street he must hollow the roof of his mouth as much as possible, keeping the tongue as flat as possible—in other words, the usual instructions of a singing teacher for the production of a good ringing "head tone."

MOTORBOAT ON LONG CRUISE

Explores Mississippi, Mexican Gulf, Atlantic and Great Lakes.

When the Catherine M., a seaworthy thirty-five foot cruising launch, came alongside a Chicago dock recently she had finished a remarkable cruise of 6,312 miles on river, ocean and lake in the exact running time of 855 hours and 58 minutes.

Ralph M. Pearson, twenty-five years old, who is in the newspaper delivery business, built the boat and navigated her the entire distance. He and his mother were passengers. Their cruise took them down the old Illinois and Michigan canal, through the Illinois and Mississippi rivers, along the gulf coast, through the keys of Florida to Miami, thence partly by inland waterways and partly on the ocean to New York, up the Hudson, through the Erie canal and back to Chicago by way of the great lakes.

The start from Chicago was made May 3, 1909, and only in two instances did the young navigator encounter serious difficulty. The first was on July 17, 1909, off Cape Romano, Fla., when a hurricane carried the boat twenty-five miles out to sea, where it struggled with the storm during the greater part of the night, but finally got safe into anchorage among the keys. In the middle of Lake Erie the craft sprung a leak in a choppy sea and for a time threatened to go to the bottom.

ROULETTE TO PAY OFF DEBT.

Sir Hiram Maxim Wants Britain to Become Monte Carlo.

Sir Hiram Maxim has been preaching the fallacy of trying to win money betting on the races. Maxim has figured out mathematically there is no system to beat the races. Admitting that some people must gamble, Maxim suggests the establishment of national roulette wheels, a percentage of the winnings to go to the treasury.

"As people will gamble, I would have national roulette substituted for betting on the races," he says. "Betting on the races should be penalized so that ultimately racing would cease except between genuine horsemen.

"Organizing roulette with minimum odds against the players would mean that about $10 out of every $500 passing over the tables would go to the state. The latter thus could pay off the national debt in a few years."

PHILIPPINES ARE HEALTHY.

Government Report Indicates Americans Stand Climate Well.

Any ideas that the Philippines are unhealthful as an abiding place for Americans would seem to be dissipated by the statement issued from the bureau of insular affairs that the death rate among the more than 8,000 government employees in the islands for the quarter ended March 31 was only 6.9 per 1,000 a year. These employees, of whom some 3,700 are Americans, include all the officials and employees of the insular, provincial and municipal governments and the police and fire departments of Manila.

Chinese Cement Works Building.

Progress is being made by the cement works started by Chinese capital at Canton in 1909. They cost $1,122,000. The money was drawn out of the education fund to be repaid out of the profits.

SIRUP MAKES GOOD ROADS.

Montana Tennis Players Find Economical Hardener.

A scheme for improving the roads of Montana by sprinkling them with a sirup which is a refuse in the manufacture of granulated sugar from sugar beets will be submitted to the good roads convention and is being widely discussed in Billings.

The idea of using refuse sirup on roads grew out of an experiment made by a tennis club. When the court was laid out the dust caused considerable annoyance; also the fact that with every rain the soil was picked up by the shoes of the tennis players.

In looking about for a cheap binder one member suggested refuse sirup. It answered the purpose admirably. When mixed with salt and poured over the ground to a depth of several inches the ground was rendered impervious to water and the dust was entirely eliminated. It worked virtually as well without salt.

It is believed that if the country roads are properly graded, rolled and copiously sprinkled with this refuse sirup they could be kept in fair condition with two such treatments a year at a cost trifling when compared with oil.

PARIS IS ROSE CRAZY.

A wonderful collection of roses is the chief feature of the international flower show in Paris. The collection is named "The Rose Through the Ages" and contains the complete history of the rose in all its forms and in its effects on literature and art.

There are two sections. The first consists of living plants showing the origin of the rose from the rose of the Magi (twelfth century B. C.) to the rose of today. The second section deals with the rose in science, literature, art and decorative pottery.

The show has introduced a new kind of entertainment. Rose parties are the craze of the moment.

Women have special gowns made, and they are covered with fresh roses. Men wear court dress of the palest shades with wreaths of roses to match around the neck and on the shirt front as a kind of decoration.

IMPORT NEW ZEALAND DEER.

Vancouver Sportsmen Make Novel Experiment In Game.

Vancouver sportsmen are going to make endeavors to bring red deer from New Zealand, which are to be located in the mountainous districts of Vancouver island upon arrival. An attempt was started last year to import some of the deer species from England, but owing to the heavy freight rates the plan fell through.

It is proved that the red deer will thrive in the climate of that section of the coast, the only handicap to their life being the usual necessity of having to graze in sheep country, the sheep making short work of the grass available.

Mexican Railway Branch Progresses.

The Southern Pacific railway, building along the Mexican west coast, is expected to reach Guadalajara in about eighteen months. It has reached the Santiago river, and the line from Acaponeta to the river is being opened to traffic.

IT'S YOUR KIDNEYS

Don't Mistake the Cause of Your Troubles.

Many people never suspect their kidneys. If suffering from a lame, weak or aching back they think that it is only a muscular weakness; when urinary trouble sets in they think it will soon correct itself. And so it is with all the other symptoms of kidney disorders. That is just where the danger lies. You must cure these troubles or they may lead to diabetes or Bright's disease. The best remedy to use is Doan's Kidney Pills. It cures all ills which are caused by weak or diseased kidneys. Residents of this vicinity are constantly testifying to permanent cures.

Richard Smith, South Central avenue, Wollaston, Mass., says: "I suffered from backache and kidney trouble for a long time. I had dull pains through the small of my back and on arising in the morning, I was so stiff and lame that I could hardly dress myself. Hearing of Doan's Kidney Pills, I procured a supply and in a short time after beginning their use, I was relieved. After I had taken the contents of two boxes of this remedy, I was in good health and I have had no kidney trouble since. I give Doan's Kidney Pills the credit for this change for the better and I gladly recommend them."

Vacation among the permanent men of the Fire Department will begin this week.

Mary and Peter Credon of Old Colony street are spending a two weeks' vacation with relatives in Lowell.

The Quincy Cricket Club will play the West Indians on Saturday afternoon at Franklin Field, Boston, at 3.30.

Mrs. Mudge and daughter Nathalie of Westerly, R. I., spent the week end with Mr. and Mrs. James Dunstan of Jackson's Lane.

Cards have been received from William Michael, reporting a jolly good time at Camp Quincy, South Hanover, with the Y. M. C. A. boys.

A large number of Quincy teachers joined the National Education Association and are attending many of the meetings being held in Boston this week.

"Why, when and how Jesus comes to earth again" will be the subject of a free lecture at Electa hall this evening at 7.30 by Frank Draper of the Brooklyn Tabernacle.

Mrs. Flagg and two daughters of Gloucester visited Mrs. William Fuge of Centre street on Tuesday ,en route to Vermont to visit Mrs. Flagg's mother.

Stephen Aulbach left Wednesday evening for Ilchester, Pa., where he is studying for the priest hood. He was preceded by Michael Golden, another young man of Atlantic who is also studying. Parents of both the young men are well known in Atlantic.

Some of the Oklahoma delegates to the Teachers convention in Boston this week went through Quincy on Wednesday en route to Nantasket. One remarked to another that Quincy sounded like a fruit. Another thought it might prove a lemon. Come again.

Chief Burrell took Ethel Soma into custody Wednesday night for the authorities at the Lancaster industrial school. It seems that the girl was put out on probation to a family in Cambridge, and ran away to visit her parents whom she thought were in Quincy.

SHIPBUILDING FOR YEARS.

Information from Washington says that shipbuilding in the United States durin gthe fiscal year just ended shows a marked increase over the previous year. This year there were built, according to the bureau of navigation's report, 1,502 merchant vessels of 347,025 gross tons, as compared with 1,362 vessels of 232,816 gross tons the year before.

Many are inclined not to take seriously most of the reported cases of hold-ups. Certainly they should not be reported in a way to excite and alarm the people.

The estate of the late Dr. William Everett on Miller Stile road was not sold at auction on Wednesday as the heirs settled with the mortgagee before that date.

There are many beautiful rose bushes in Quincy just now ,but first prize should be awarded to Isaac M. Holt of Cottage street. A pink rambler covers the front of his house, and is very prettily trained around the windows.

Can it be that Bro. Donovan of Rockland has forgotten Quincy! This week he was instrumental in organizing the Old Colony Union, to boom the South Shore, Norfolk and Plymouth counties, which is composed of delegates from boards of trades and merchants clubs in the district. SUDDEN DEATH.

Chester Patch, aged 20 years ,a street car conductor, died quite suddenly Wednesday at his boarding house, 42 Upland road. The young man was taken ill Sunday. Medical skill was unable to do him any good and he continued to fail until Wednesday when he passed away. The body was removed to Hall's undertaking rooms where an autopsy was held this morning by Medical Examiner Jones, Dr. Welch and Dr. Middleton. The cause of his death was found to be due to heart trouble.

The young man's home was in York, Me., and he came to work for the street railway as a conductor May 11. He worked Sunday as usual, but was taken sick at night. His parents were notified and his father who is Superintendent of Construction of the Atlantic Steamship line came to Quincy and arranged to have the body taken to York, Me., for burial.

CHURCH BUILT IN ROCK.

Traditional Murder Cause of German Curiosity.

In the quaint old German town of Oberstein an ancient church stands, built in the great rock rising from the river. The front of the building is of stone, but the church itself is hollowed out of the rock and penetrates far into its heart.

Tradition says that in the fourteenth century the Count of Oberstein, one of the old robber barons, fell deeply in love with a beautiful young lady, the daughter of a neighboring knight. His brother also sought the fair maiden's hand, and the two suitors had a violent quarrel. The upshot was that the count flung his hapless brother from the top of the castle wall, high up the precipitous cliff.

Repenting of his deed, the count vowed that he would build a church where his brother's body first touched the ground. He did so, excavating the church in the rock, and tradition goes on to say a miraculous spring of clear water sprang from the crag as a token that heaven was appeased.

DOG ACTS AS DRUM MAJOR.

Leads Indiana Band by Using Tail as Baton.

Roger's band of Goshen, Ind., a musical organization nearly half a century old, has brevetted a big St. Bernard dog as drum major. The dog first attracted attention one day when the band was marching to a park. It broke away from the small boy that was leading it and took its position at the head of the band. It climbed into the band pavilion at the park and lay outside the double circle of musicians. When the band began to play a selection it at once strode to the center of the circle and gravely sat up and took notice.

The dog's tail beats time to the music now, and the animal manages to keep perfect time when marching.

Copeland Club to Play Games in Barre, Vt.

The Copeland club and Walpole athletic club will cross bats in the Norfolk County league at the Water street grounds on Saturday and one of the best games of the season is assured. The encounter will undoubtedly be made at top speed by both teams, as both have played fast clean ball for some weeks without a break. At present the Walpoles are leading the league. The local boys put up a great game Monday when they won from Makaria and the same men will be in shape for Saturday's game. The Walpole team is managed by Johnnie McGuane a well known Quincy Point man, and he will do his best to make good in his home town.

The schedule of the Granite City League calls for the following games on Saturday: Adams A. A. vs. Hardy A. C. at Ward Three; Bryant A. C. vs. Cranch A. A. at Ward Four; Bigelows vs. Apprentices at Ward Two. This last game has been postponed, however, and both teams will play other teams.

The Copelands are arranging for their trip to Barre, Vt., where hey will play the Barre A. C. three games. The team wil lhave the North Station Thursday evening, July 14, and will arrive in Barre Friday morning. The first game will be played Friday and a double-header Saturday. Eleven men will go with Manager Egan. The series will prove very interesting as there are a number of Quincy granite cutters located at Barre who are interested in the game.

The Fore River Apprentices play the Braintree White Sox on French's Common, Braintree, at 3.30 o'clock Saturday.

TODAY'S COURT.

Edward J. Doherty was fined $5 for drunkenness at Holbrook.

Patrick J. Whalen and T. Collins were arraigned for drunkenness at Quincy. Cases continued until July 8 and 9.

NEW OIL FIELD IN SOUTH.

Alabama Scene of Rich Strike of Petroleum.

Oil fields recently have been discovered in Fayette county, Ala., which will probably rival the celebrated Beaumont (Tex.) fields, it is said. These fields were discovered only a few months ago quite by accident, and now there are four wells spouting oil in the center of a great tract of marsh lands known as the Sipsey swamp.

A great rush to the new oil fields has been started by Alabama people and from the Texas and Caddo (La.) oil fields. The latter have been gradually playing out in the last few years.

Siam Exports Much Rice.

Siam has forty-seven rice mills, exporting 1,000,000 tons of milled rice a year. Only $2,538 worth of American rice milling machinery was sold there last year, though American engineers built the first of the mills. Rice production is the chief resource of Siam.

Yankee Machines Make Siam's Ice.

Using American machinery, the Bangkok Manufacturing company, the only ice plant in Siam, makes twenty tons a day.

GOTHAM TO HAVE HUGE NEW PORT

MAY BE FINISHED IN 1950.

Double Area of Manhattan Island to Be Utilized For Docks, and Long Island Cutoff Will Connect With State's Thousand Ton Barge Canal With Lake Erie.

It's all settled. Congress, the legislature, the city council, the board of estimate and apportionment and Mayor Gaynor have all agreed upon the plans for the Jamaica bay improvement; most of the red tape has been unwound, the first installment of a series of appropriations that may ultimately aggregate $70,000,000, more or less, has actually been made, and in a very short time the dirt will begin to fly, or, to put it literally, the mud will begin to flow.

When it is all over the metropolis of the western hemisphere will be the world's greatest seaport, with the most extensive barbor, the most liberal allowance of docks and wharfs and the most up to date facilities for the economical handling of freight to be found anywhere.

To Help City's Growth.

Incidentally these things will help materially to make the city, the major part of which by that time will have moved over to Long Island for lack of any other place in which to spread out, the metropolis of the world, for by 1950 or sooner it is expected to have at least 10,000,000 inhabitants. Some of the more enthusiastic prophets make it 20,000,000.

At present there is not much to suggest a great world harbor at Jamaica bay. The bay itself is a shallow sheet of water covering an area of 16,170 acres, or twenty-five and a half square miles, in which a few oysters are grown and a few unsophisticated minnows are caught by holiday fishermen. Adjacent are 8,500 acres of salt marsh, the present home of untold billions of mosquitoes. There are 4,200 additional acres of marsh land apart from the main body, making the total area of bay and marshes 28,970 acres, or forty-five and a half square miles, double the area of Manhattan Island.

Terminus of New Canal.

The new harbor is to be the tidewater terminus of the thousand ton barge canal now being built by the state at a cost of $101,000,000 from Lake Erie to the Hudson river, which is expected to bring 10,000,000 tons of freight to New York annually.

Plans are already afoot to provide a short cut for the barges from the Hudson by way of the Harlem river to Flushing bay and thence by a canal eight miles long across the western end of Long Island to Jamaica bay, thus avoiding the congested waters of New York harbor and incidentally avoiding also possible rough water in the lower bay.

FIND USES FOR SAWDUST.

Alcohol, Fuel and Powder Ingredient Among Discoveries.

Spruce and pine sawdust, thrown aside by American millmen as worthless, commands a steady price in Norway. There it is ground into holzmehl, or wood flour, kiln dried, packed in sacks made in America for the purpose and sold to linoleum and blasting powder manufacturers. It sells for about $12 a ton, and in 1907 the exports of this material from Norway were valued at nearly $80,000.

In France a new process, which is said to have proved successful, is employed in extracting an excellent grade of alcohol from sawdust. About twenty-seven and a half gallons of alcohol and forty-two pounds of acetic acid are extracted from each long ton of sawdust, while the residue is sold for fuel in briquet form.

As the latter process is patented in the United States it is hoped that it will be placed in operation here and that the sawdust now thrown into trout streams will be utilized for a more worthy purpose.

Wireless to Connect Islands.

The governments of Australia and New Zealand will connect various groups of British Pacific islands by wireless.

American Overlooks Chance.

Galvanized corrugated sheet iron is extensively imported into Siam, yet none of it enters from the United States.

MANY PLAYERS FROM COLLEGES

MATHEWSON IS THE GREATEST

"Big Six" Has Made Enviable Record Since He Broke In—Fred Tenney Was First to Get Into Professional Game and Make Good.

College men have played an important part in professional baseball, and many university players have developed into stars as members of big league teams. It is said that Fred Tenney, formerly of the Giants, was the first collegian who made both the professional players and the fans comprehend what an up to date varsity man was really like.

The collegian who breaks into the big leagues is usually from the smaller colleges. Men who can afford the pace of Yale, Princeton or Harvard, as a rule, are too well off to need a baseball contract and on graduation step right into business at their fathers' offices. There have been some eminent Yale and Harvard men in the big leagues, but not many.

The students from the little colleges, rugged young fellows of tremendous physique, take as naturally to a ball player's life as ducks do to water. In a year or two they become amalgamated with the great mass of players. In five years it is impossible to distinguish the collegian by any sign of speech or manner.

Tenney came from Brown, Murray from Notre Dame, and McCormick studied engineering at Pennsylvania; Devlin studied at Georgetown, Bridwell went to a small college in Ohio, the great Mathewson is from Bucknell, and Meyers, the big Injun, went to Dartmouth.

Roy Thomas, formerly of Boston, went to the University of Pennsylvania; Coffey, now with Indianapolis, attended Fordham; Beaumont, now with Chicago, came from Beloit college; Shean is from a college now apparently forgotten, and some of the other Boston men are probably university men.

Of the Brooklyns, McMillan, who was recently released to Rochester, went to a southern college, McElveen to some university in the south, Scanlon to a medical college, and Wilhelm almost twenty years ago was the crack pitcher of an Ohio school.

Overall of the Cubs was a football star at a California university, Reulbach pitched for Vermont and Notre Dame, Chance went to a California college, and Hoffman, Kane and Stanley got pretty well along in the educational line.

The champion Pirates on the face of the returns seem shy of college men, but it is quite probable that some of them were rah-rahs.

Pitcher Bachman of St. Louis hailed from Case Tech. Beebe of the Reds is from the University of Illinois.

Heitmuller of the Athletics is from a California school, Collins is from Columbia, Davis is from Girard college, Philadelphia; Barry is a Holy Cross man, Plank hails from Gettysburg college, Coombs from Colgate and Bender, the Indian, from Carlisle.

Stahl of the Boston Red Sox is from Illinois university, Hooper got a civil engineering degree upon the coast, Hahn of the White Sox went to some tiny school of Ohio or Tennessee, Reilly is a Yale man, Dr. White of the Sox is from Georgetown, Stephens of the Browns is from a small Texas college, and Harry Howell is supposed to have been a collegian long ago. Harry Gessler of the Washingtons is a graduate doctor, and a few more of the Senators may be concealing their college attainments even as they do their baseball abilities.

HEARTY GREETINGS TO ARGENTINE NAVAL MEN

COMMODORE ROBBINS

GUESTS OF HONOR OF QUINCY YACHT CLUB

At Reopening of Enlarged, Remodelled, Commodious and Attractive Clubhouse at Houghs Neck

Admiral Garcia Makes an Address Telling of Warm Friendsh p for the United States

The formal opening of the remodelled club-house of the Quincy Yacht club took place Thursday evening, and was participated in by over three hundred of the club members and their friends. The opening also included a reception to the members of the Argentine commission located in Quincy during the building of the greatest battleship in the world for that progressive nation. The affair was devoid of formality, and for this was all the more enjoyable. Admiral Bowles president of the Fore River Shipbuilding Co., intended to be present but was unavoidably detained in New York. A telegram was received from him during the evening, dated at Sprigfield, which expressed his regrets that he would not arrive in season to participate in the reception.

The hour of the reception was from 6 to 7 o'clock, and during the greater part of that time the members of the Argentine commission with Commodore Robbins Mayor Shea and others received informally in the smoking room. This hour also afforded the members of the club and friends an opportunity to inspect the club house and the expression of one and all was that it was a dandy. So great a change had been made in the remodelling that there remained but a few features that characterized the old club house.

At a little after 7 o'clock the guests of the evening were escorted to the hall where the dinner was served. The scene was a particularly attractive one. Channing Furnald had charge of these decorations, and he had done his work well. Across the water end of the hall was the table reserved for the guests of the evening. Directly in front of this flags were arranged so as to form an arch. In the centre was a large American flag. At the left was the broad blue and white striped flag of Argentina with its golden sun burst, while on the opposite side was the pointed burgee of the Quincy Yacht club with the red star on its field of white. Along the sides and ceiling of the hall other yachting flags were tastefully festooned.

The tables ran lengthwise of the hall. There were four of these, and in addition there was the fifth on the broad piazza outside. The decorations of the tables were confined to bouquets of flowers. On the shore end of the hall is the stage where George Monk's orchestra was located, and furnished music during the dinner.

The table on the northerly side of the room was reserved for Vice Commodore Ira M. Whittemore and his chorus of forty voices under the leadership of Henry W. French. The chorus led the singing of the popular airs that were sung during the dinner, and they sang them with a ring that made the very rafters ring. These songs included "In my dream of the U. S. A.," "The high balls roll on the ground," "Harrigan," "Take me back to New York town," "By the light of the silvery moon," "What's the matter with father," "Old gray bonnet," "Kelley," "My little Irish rose," "Yip-I-addy-I-ay," "The stein song," and others of a like nature.

During the latter part of the dinner all rose to their feet while the orchestra played the Argentine national air and followed it with the "Star Spangled Banner." It was during the singing of these that a string was pulled and the two national flags, that had been rolled at the shore end of the room, unfurled. This was the occasion for three cheers loud and long.

The dinner was served by Norteman who was rather at a disadvantage as the food had to be brought from across the street, thence through the club house and up stairs to the hall, all of which required a longer period than was intended.

The dinner over, Commodore Robbins said that it was his privilege and pleasure to welcome the members of the Argentine commission, the Mayor members of the club, and guests. He said that Admiral Bowles had telegraphed from Springfield that he had been detained. He had planned to extend a courtesy card and club house key to Admiral Bowles, and he would ask General Manager Smith to accept it for him.

H. G. Smith said, in accepting the card and key, that Admiral Bowles had neglected to leave his speech behind him when he went away. He regretted that he was not here to accept the card and key in person and he would accept it for him with thanks. The Fore River Ship Building Company is constructing one of the greatest battleships in the world for our American brothers. Argentina was one of the most progressive nations of the world and he was pleased to see so many of the members of the Argentina commission present. They have lived here with us three months and during that time we have learned that they are good fellows. He hoped that they would make free use of the privileges you have extended to them.

Commodore Robbins then said that he had presented courtesy cards and keys to the gentlemen of the Argentine Commission and he would now personally extend a similar card and key to Admiral Garcia with the admonition to make use of them as often as he saw fit.

Admiral Garcia in accepting the card and key thanked the Commodore and club for their kindness and he hoped the gentlemen would excuse him if his words did not express the sentiment he felt. Continuing, he said, "my government decided to build two or three battleships. We chose America because we are brothers on the continent and should be banded together. We in Argentina try to follow the United States. We are not so big as you are but at heart we are like you. All of our system of government has been taken from America. Our race is a mixed one as you can see by our faces. You are really the biggest country in the world. There are some nations that are larger, but you have 90,000,000 of civilized people. He thought his government had been wise in selecting America to build their ships, because it gives them such good friendship. It was said by Mr. Smith we are good fellows. We try to be good fellows. Our sentiment is that we want to show you we are as good as any other country. I therefore accept this card and key, and in the few hours we have free we will try and use the club house and be good friends.

Mayor Shea was then introduce and as usual received an outburst of applause. He said he had been instructed to cut it short. This being "the hired man" of Quincy is a peculiar job, but I suppose there are several here that will be working for it later. When you get into that little 10 by 10 office every citizen thinks he has a right to tell you what a rank citizen you are, and make you wish you did not have the job. Then times like this come along and you feel proud that in Quincy you have such an organization as this. He wished to extend his congratulations to the

EX-COMMODORE CRANE

RUN TO BRAINTREE

Horse Started from Quincy Postoffice

A horse owned by Henry Emerson of Hancock street broke away from in front of the post office this morning at about 8 o'clock, carrying an open buggy with him, and ran at top speed through Hancock, School and Franklin streets and Independence avenue to South Braintree where he stopped and was held by two boys until reclaimed by Mr. Emerson. At the driveway leading to John Hall's stable the swaying buggy collided with a horse emerging from the stable but inflicted no injury, and further up Hancock street struck a telephone pole. The buggy was not damaged. It is thought the horse took fright from a passing auto.

The high cost of living is making itself felt among the wealthy as well as those less well-to-do. This is said to be the reason why the number of house servants at Biltmore, the Vanderbilt estate at Ashville, North Carolina, has been reduced from 32 to 10. Following the mode of living of those more richly endowed than ourselves with this world's goods is one of many causes for our present condition, and we should not be ashamed to follow their example, when it leads in the direction of economy and retrenchment.—Milford Gazette.

ARCHITECTS SELECTED

For Two New Schoolhouses to be Built

A special and important meeting of the School Committee was held Thursday evening.

James E. McLaughlin and H. O. Wright were present and explained sketches for proposed new school building at Montclair.

Later it was voted that the sense of the committee be that Mr. McLaughlin be employed to draw plans for the Montclair school, and Mr. Wright to draw plans for a twelve room brick school building with assembly hall for Wollaston district. The rooms in said buildings to be of the Boston standard size; that is 23 by 29 feet. Said plans are to be furnished without cost to the city unless the same are accepted.

Miss Jennie Stratton, who was elected as supervisor of drawing at the High school declined, and Miss Harriet B. Whittaker of Tynsboro was elected.

Arthur B. Townsend of East Providence, R. I., was elected as a grammar master to be assigned to a school later.

The resignations of Max Weiss, teacher of science, and of Harold B. Blaisdell, teacher of history at the High school were accepted.

The resignation of Francis Walsh, for many years janitor of the Willard school, was accepted.

The office of the School Committee to be closed Friday for the summer.

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

Take your vacation in an airship.

A fireworks manufactory blew up in Iowa recently. Still, the politicians may be depended upon to keep Iowa more than liberally supplied with fireworks.

The announcement that Margaret Illington's husband is to spend $50,000 putting her back upon the stage may be a compliment to Miss Illington, but it is ambiguous.

Miss Cockrell is going to marry the Minister from Greece. We have mislaid our catalogue of the market values of foreign husbands, but do not imagine a Greek costs a great deal.

While California bans prize fights, Havana discusses inaugurating bullfights to amuse American witnesses. Evidently there's an impression that Americans are less respectable than their laws.

The women have reason to be pleased because one of their sex has been elected president of the National Education Association. It may not be many years before we have a woman for Governor or even President.

The September outing of the Board of Trade will combine business with pleasure. It is important that Quincy should show its interest in the intercostal canal system, and for this reason should be largely represented at the Waterway convention at Providence.

Medford is the first city to announce its 1910 tax rate, and has not set a very good example. But tax rates as well as everything else will probably be higher. The Medford rate is $21 per $1,000 an increase of 80 cents. Only once has the Medford rate been higher but it has been $20 or more every year since 1905.

Is it not remarkable that the Quincy Women's Club can conduct a summer school for 200 girls, supply funds for a woman supervisor for playgrounds and accomplish so many other things, when the city and the men have so much work in raising funds to run the government and their organizations?

The efforts to prohibit the exhibition of fight pictures promises to be successful. The Christian Endeavor Societies are stronger the world over than some have imagined, and the movement extends to England, India, Australia and other countries. They are pleased that B. F. Keith has forbidden such pictures in his theatre circuit.

The railroads are being hit hard these days because of charges for transportation and freight, but from the figures below there are others who might be criticised more. W. H. Suplee of New York, editor of Cassier's Magazine, arranged to purchase from a Quaker family near Philadelphia some rare and handsome Colonial furniture. He made a special trip to that city to see that it was carefully wrapped and crated. Then after giving orders that it should be shipped to his New York address, he returned home. The furniture arrived in good condition, and was followed by the bill for transportation. The bill was as follows:

Cartage in Philadelphia	$7.00
Railroad freight, Phila., to New York	1.75
Cartage in New York	10.00
Total	$18.75

The railroad charges, for carrying the furniture ninety miles, amounted to less than nine per cent. of the whole transportation cost.

QUINCY OF YEARS AGO

(Historical Paper No. 23.)

A chapter of Pattee's History of Quincy which must have required a tedious search of the records was an effort to obtain the names of early settlers of "Old Braintree" which then included Quincy, Holbrook and Randolph as well as Braintree of today. Mr. Pattee writes:

We shall endeavor as far as we are able to give the names of the first settlers of the old town of Braintree ,and the date their names appear on the town, parish and other records, that are now extinct. This enumeration is given for a few years over a century after the incorporation of the town in 1640. The date to some of the names we are unable to give for the reason that they are illegible. There are persons now residing in the territory that once comprised the town of Braintree, that bear the same name of those that are extinct, but descended from other families. It appears that some names were spelled in a number of different ways that referred to the same person:—

IN QUINCY MARKETS

Low Prices Quoted on Fruit, Meat, Fish and Vegetables

Quincy people looking through the local markets and stores will find good fruit and vegetables abundant and low in price.

Cantaloupes from Florida, large size, 5 to 10 cents each; those from Rocky Ford, Col., the best on the market, 7 to 13 cents apiece.

Pineapples from the Indian River district, Florida ,are very abundant with prices lowest in years, from 5 to 13 cents each.

Peaches of good quality are coming in large quantities from Georgia with low prices ranging from 35 to 50 cents a basket.

Strawberries are scarce and poor, and the end of the strawberry season is at hand.

Raspberries, gooseberries, blue-berries and blackberries are of fine quality, with prices lower than usual at this time of year.

VEGETABLES.

New potatoes from New Jersey are good and mealy and retailing at 23 and 25 cents a peck.

Wax and green beans are plentiful and are being sold at three quarts for 25 cents.

MEATS.

Beef, which took a slight drop last week ,still continues at new prices. Roasting chickens are high and scarce. Eastern pork is quite plentiful and prices are fairly reasonable, good cuts selling for 17 cents.

FISH.

Ground fish such as haddock, flounders, etc., are plentiful and cheap. Mackerel are running good, but are scarce, prices ranging from 15 to 40 cents each. Butterfish are choice and selling at 15 cents a pound. Salmon and sword fish are in the market and selling for 30 and 35 cents a pound.

EDUCATED SEALS WITH CIRCUS.

Among the astonishing features with the newly built Adam Forepaugh and Sells Brothers Big United Shows, is Captain Webb's two troupes of trained Seals, the very latest achievement in acts of this kind and by all odds the most wonderful example of brute education. All so-called educated seals of the past are not to be thought of in connection with these ne wones. Ungainly, awkward, seemingly helpless creatures executing with rare dexterity and skill the most difficult feats of ball throwing and catching, balancing, twirling brands of fire, enacting ludicrous comedy conceits ,and presenting for the first time the great prize-winning, honor-holding seal-skin band and orchestra, direct from the North Pole, under contract with these greater shows for concerts twice daily during the tented season—introducing individual soloists and instrumentalists and playing concerted numbers that would cause a mummy to groan with laughter. Their accomplishments are almost humanlike.

The Big Menage ensemble act which includes sixty-one superb horses, is also one of the trained animal features, that also comes with the Adam Forepaugh and Sells Brothers Circus next Tuesday, July 12, is the circus date in Quincy.

Captors of Thieves Rewarded

Boston, July 8.—For bravery and efficiency, Officer Johnstone of the Brookline police department and Officer Cosgrove of the Boston police were rewarded by the federal government for their sensational capture of the burglars who looted a sub-postal station in Brighton. Each officer received $50.

Woman Elected President of Educational Association

MUCH EXCITEMENT PREVAILS

Mrs. Young of Chicago Wins Over Snyder of Colorado, the Latter Being the Choice of Nominating Committee—Brought About by Adoption of Minority Report, by Vote of 617 to 376, Nominating Woman

Boston, July 8.—Mrs. Ella Flagg Young, superintendent of the Chicago public schools, was elected president of the National Educational association amid scenes of disorder and excitement. The New Old South church was packed and the heat was stifling.

While the name of Z. X. Snyder, superintendent of the Colorado state schools, had been agreed upon as against that of Mrs. Young by the regular committee on nominations, the sentiment of the convention was so overwhelmingly in favor of the woman that, after a long and bitter fight, a minority report substituting her name for that of Snyder was adopted.

It was announced amid the greatest tension that the vote stood 617 to 376 in favor of substitution. Then confusion reigned and women stood on the pews and screamed and cheered, while the men, beaten to a finish, were quiet and dejected. This is the first time a woman has ever been president of the N. E. A.

It is the first time in the forty-eight years the National Educational association has been in existence that the report of the nominating committee for president was disregarded.

When 1000 persons crowded into the church yesterday afternoon the report of the nominating committee naming Snyder for president and Mrs. Young as vice president was made.

Immediately Miss Catherine D. Blair of New York presented a minority report in which the name of Mrs. Young was substituted for that of Snyder as president and Snyder's for that of Mrs. Young as a vice president. Miss Blair spoke eloquently for the minority report.

This was at 12:30 o'clock. It was not until 2:20 that the final, decisive vote was taken. During the interval there was a bitter wrangle as to how the vote should be taken. Twelve tellers went from pew to pew polling the occupants.

President Joyner presided. Motions and counter-motions were made. Irwin Shepard, the national secretary, was instructed by the convention to cast one vote for the report as amended, to elect Mrs. Young president and Snyder vice president.

The nominating committee earlier in the day was the scene of an equally bitter fight between the two factions.

WEYLER POLICY FOLLOWED

Thousands of Nicaraguans Ordered Into Concentration Camp

Washington, July 8.—A repetition of the Weyler reconcentrado system in Cuba that caused widespread criticism just before the opening of the war with Spain, has been inaugurated in Nicaragua by the government authorities, according to advices to the state department.

Probably 5000 people in the vicinity of the city of Granada are directed to concentrate at Granada, under an order issued by Sebastian Salinas, the political chief, and commandant of the forces of the department of Granada, Nic.

This order was published in a Managua newspaper and transmitted to the state department here.

SULLY IS FINED $3800

"Cotton King" Must Settle For Disobeying Order of Court

White Plains, N. Y., July 8.—Daniel Sully, long known as the "Cotton King," was declared in contempt of court by Justice Mills of the state supreme court and ordered to pay a fine of $3800 and $40 costs.

The cause grew out of Sully's failure several years ago, when William M. Black, a judgment creditor, obtained a court order restraining Sully from paying out any money until the suit of Black had been settled.

Black contended that Sully had committed contempt in paying $4600 to his (Sully's) wife after the order had been issued.

Maine Monument In New York

New York, July 8.—The Maine monument, a memorial to those who perished in the United States battleship Maine in Havana harbor, and the sailors who died in the Spanish-American war was approved by the municipal art commission. It will be erected at the entrance to Central park.

Germans Protest at Brutality

Berlin, July 8.—Brutal treatment of Germans crossing the Russian frontier by Cossacks led to a protest to the Russian government from Germany. There have been many instances recently of Germans being frightfully maltreated by Russia's wild frontier patrols.

between a poor laundry and a good laundry is that one is careful and the other is not. In every lot of laundry work, there is a certain amount of care and bother.

If you go to a poor laundry, the care and bother are yours. A good laundry takes this off your mind. Nothing is too much trouble for us, if it pleases our customers. That is why we are so successful.

GEORGIA TEACHERS

By Name of Adams Visit the Adams Houses

Quite a party of teachers and others from Georgia visited the birthplaces of the Quincy presidents on Thursday, seven of whom bear the name of Adams and evidently are proud of it, as Quincy is of John Adams and John Quincy Adams. Benjamin King, the custodian of the house in charge of the Quincy Historical Society, took particular pains to entertain his guests and show them the relics. He has the birthplace decorated this week and has had many out of town visitors. In the Georgia party were: H. G. Adams of Covington, G. E. Adams of Covington, Mrs. Louise Adams of Monroe, Mrs. S. H. Adams of Social Circle, Mrs. B. Eveline Adams of Social Circle, Miss Annie Cowan of Covington, Miss Kate Adams of Monroe, Miss B. A. Lumford of Covington and Mrs. S. F. Adams Coffee of Covington.

EPWORTH LEAGUE.

Several members of the Epworth League of the Hall Place M. E. church, attended the reception given the members of the Board of Control of the Epworth League in the First M. E. church, Temple street, Boston, on Thursday evening. After the reception a service was held in the church auditorium, at which twenty members of the Board of Control brought greetings from the various States they represented to the members of the New England districts of the Epworth Leagues. The address of the evening was by Bishop Quayle, National president of the Epworth League. The service was enjoyed throughout by the vast crowd of people that thronged the church.

FIFTY YEARS OF HORROR IF EUROPE GOES TO WAR.

Scotch Peace Advocate Proves Direful Prophet.

"Europe will be swept by devastation that will last for perhaps fifty years if any two European powers become involved in war."

This statement was made by the Rev. Walter Walsh, city councilor of Dundee, Scotland, and one of the world's foremost advocates of peace, recently before the City club of Chicago on the military situation in Europe. Dr. Walsh deplored the prevalence of war, basing his assertion more on utilitarian than on humanitarian principles.

"It is impossible to believe that any two of the great powers would be allowed to remain alone in a war," he said. "Europe would be drawn into two parts arrayed against each other. For instance, Great Britain might be allied with Russia and France in opposition to the German and Austrian empires and perhaps Italy. If a war should begin the result would be bankruptcy for every nation concerned and a devastation of the continent from which the nations might not recover in half a century.

"All the powers are ready to fight, and yet every one of them welcomes the idea of an agreement that will prevent war. The German empire is the strongest individual nation, but it would be confronted by a mighty alliance if it should attempt violence to one of its enemies. Its army is the best in Europe, but I believe that the resources of Great Britain would hold out longer than those of the Germans.

"The remedy for this situation is to be found in the establishment of an international court of arbitral justice, probably at The Hague, in the Netherlands. Mr. Knox, the secretary of state, has promised that this court shall be in existence when the next Hague conference meets in 1913.

"All Europe is eager to see the court in working order. Every nation has been waiting to see the United States, the only disinterested nation, start the work. Both the late King Edward and the kaiser have said that they were heartily in favor of the plan."

The Two Occasions.

At a Scotch temperance meeting an old man, scarcely celebrated for his sobriety, arose and after addressing the audience upon the desirability of moderation in all things, remarked:

"My friends, there's just twa occasions when I tak' whisky."

There was a chorus of "Ahs!" in the audience, when he continued, "I only tak' whisky when I hae haggis for dinner, and the only other occasion when I tak' whisky is when I hae no haggis for dinner."

The lessons of life are lost if they do not impress us with the necessity of making ample allowances for the immature conclusions of others.

HELEN KELLY GOULD

Was Divorced From Frank Gould In May

TO WED SUGAR MAGNATE

Reported Engagement of Helen K. K. Gould and Ralph Thomas

New York, July 8.—It is reported that Mrs. Helen Kelly Gould, who divorced Frank J. Gould in May of last year, will be married shortly to Ralph H. Thomas, assistant treasurer of the American Sugar Refining company.

Neither Mrs. Gould nor Thomas will affirm or deny the report, but the engagement of passage on a steamship for Europe by Thomas has led friends of the two to accept the announcement at its par value.

The day of the wedding has not been made public, but it is said that the ceremony will be performed within the next week or ten days. The honeymoon will be spent in Europe.

WILL MAKE SPEECH FOR BEVERIDGE

Roosevelt's Promise to "Progressive" Indiana Senator

Oyster Bay, N. Y., July 8.—Albert G. Beveridge, United States senator from Indiana and one of the most prominent and consistent of the "progressive" Republicans, came down from Sagamore Hill yesterday afternoon with a promise from Theodore Roosevelt to deliver a campaign speech in his fight for re-election to the senate.

Mr. Beveridge departed content and smiling, but he left it for the colonel to make announcement of the proposed campaign speech in the senator's behalf. And this is what Roosevelt said:

"Mr. Foulke and Mr. Swift came to Sagamore Hill to request me to go to Indiana and speak in behalf of Senator Beveridge, and I promised them that I would."

CUT OFF WITHOUT NOTICE

Brokers In Ten Cities Unexpectedly Deprived of Wire Service

New York, July 8.—Without explanation and without warning, the Western Union Telegraph company discontinued its service to brokers in ten cities of this state and Pennsylvania.

Executive officers of the company take the stand that, under the advice of counsel, they cannot discuss the company's policy. Officers of the New York stock exchange deny that the cut in service was in any way instigated by them or that they had any knowledge of it.

Snuffboxes at $20,000 Each

London, July 8.—In the sale of the collection of art objects belonging to the late Baron Schroder, five snuffboxes, all superb examples of eighteenth century work, brought over $70,000. Two others brought $20,000 each.

Mythical Creatures of Japan.

The Japanese believe in more mythical creatures than any other people on the globe, civilized or savage. Among them are mythical animals without any remarkable peculiarities of conformation, but gifted with supernatural attributes, such as a tiger which is said to live to be a thousand years old and to turn as white as a polar bear. They also believe in a multitude of animals distinguished mainly by their size or by the multiplication of their members. Among these are serpents 800 feet long and large enough to swallow an elephant, foxes with eight legs, monkeys with four ears, fishes with ten heads attached to one body, the flesh of which is a cure for boils. They also believe in the existence of a crane which, after it has reached the age of 600 years, has no need of any sustenance except water.

The Human Mind.

Slow in forming, swift in acting; slow in the making, swift in the working; slow in the summit, swift down the other slope. It is the way of nature and the way of the human mind.—Anthony Hope.

QUINCY YACHT CLUB

Quincy Yacht club, and hoped the future would be as much of a success as the past. Turning to Admiral Garcia, Mayor Shea said I trust your stay in this city will be a pleasant one. We are glad that you are here, and we know that you will like our ships so well that you will order three or four more by telephone. I trust your stay in Quincy will be pleasant and profitable.

Commodore Robbins then briefly referred to the grand work of George S. Morse, the treasurer of the club, which had made this addition possible. Three cheers were then given for Treasurer Morse.

The gathering was then turned over to Vice Commodore Whittemore whose part of the program included a vaudeville entertainment. These numbers included tricks of ledgerdeman by Prof. LeRoy and songs by May Rosella Katherine Dixie, Belle Gibbs, Katie Nelson and Marie Ford. On account of the lateness of the hour encores had to be ommitted.

One of the features of the entertainment was the singing of an original song by ex-Commodore Frank E. Dawes of the Wollaston club, who is also a member of the Quincy Yacht club. The several verses of this song brought in those prominent in the remodelling of the club house, Admiral Bowles, the Argentine Commission and members generally.

Special cars were in waiting for Quincy, but there was some delay owing to a mishap at the Manet avenue turnout, so that it was midnight before the car reached City Square. The car therefore was run through to Neponset.

The affair as a whole was a grand success and great credit is due to the officers and committees who had it in charge.

Among the invited guests present were:

Admiral M. D. Garcia, Capt. D. Aguirre, Comdr. E. M. Olivera, Lieut. Com. J. Yalour. Lieut. Commdr. C. M. Valladaries, Lieut. Comndr. M. G. Bianchi, Lieut. Comndr. I. Espindola, Jr. Lieut. D. Casanova and Jr. Lieut. V. Masjoan of the Argentine Commission.

H. G. Smith, general manager of Fore River Co.

J. A. Sedgwick, treasurer.

J. F. Kemp, purchasing agent.

S. T. MacQuarrie, secretary.

James Donald, of the New York Ship Building Co.

Mayor William T. Shea.

Ralph W. Hobbs, president of City Council.

Commodore Frank R. Pratt of the Cottage Park Y. C., Winthrop.

Secretary Oburg of the Cottage Park Y. C., Winthrop.

Commodore H. H. Walker of the Corinthian Y. C.

Judge Albert E. Avery of District court.

Presence of Mind.

A visitor to an insane asylum was walking in the grounds when a man came up to him and entered into conversation. After walking about for some time, discussing topics suggested by the place, the two set out on a tour of inspection, the man, apparently an official, inviting the visitor to go over the asylum. At length they reached the foot of a flight of steps, up which the guide led the way, and at the top the visitor found himself out upon the roof, a height of more than a hundred feet from the ground. As they gazed below his companion startled him suddenly by proposing to see who could jump farthest toward the grounds. Not until then had it dawned upon the visitor that his guide was mad. Mercifully he was a man of ready wit, and his wit saved the madman's life. "Oh, anybody can jump down," said the visitor. "Let us go down and see who can jump to the top." The madman thought it a good idea, and, retracing their steps, the two began their jump from the earth instead of from the roof.

Bunyan's Wicket Gate.

In the village of Elstow there is abundant material that is visibly associated with John Bunyan. The isolated church tower contains the very bells in the ringing of which Bunyan rejoiced and afterward trembled. Above all there must be mentioned the wicket gate which figures early in the story of "Pilgrim's Progress." The wicket gate of "Pilgrim's Progress" is commonly represented as a garden gate or a turnpike gate, but really the term denotes a small doorway cut out of a large door. Concealed behind a tree at the west end of Elstow church is just such a small doorway in the broad wooden surface of the great door. Through this lowly opening Bunyan must often have passed when a boy.—Harper's Weekly.

WEST QUINCY THANKFUL

Appreciate What City Is Doing for Ward Two

A regular meeting of the West Quincy Improvement association was held Thursday evening at which time the final reports on the June 17 outing were made. They were very gratifying, showing that all bills had been paid, and that there was a balance for the treasury.

The association passed a vote of appreciation at the purchase by the city of the plot of land bounded by Copeland, Common and West streets for a playground.

It was also voted to extend the thanks of the association to the trustees of the Thomas Crane Public Library for opening a reading room in West Quincy. The residents feel very much pleased that this section of the city should have been selected for the first branch reading room, and feel assured that the facilities there afforded will be taken advantage of.

There was some informal talk on the trolley freight question, but as the Railroad Commissioners had settled this, it was the sentiment of the meeting that the street railway company should be given an opportunity to get the system in operation and see how it works before making any criticism.

The much discussed question of the missing street railway link between East Milton and Dorchester was again brought up and discussed.

OUT IN THE OPEN.

Ruby Archer.

Don't you love it out in the open, where the earth can see the sky,
And nothing comes between them but the blue, bird skimming by?
Or the circling, cawing crows, quite at ease and quite at home,
As they follow where the plowman turns the swelling sandy loam.

How the sun along the meadows greets the coming of the grain!
How the willows, crowding softly, give the stream a lovers' lane!
In the corners of the fences tower the pampas bold and tall,
While the simple yellow flowers flock around them, sweet and small,

There's a fragrance from the ground and from the leaves, from everywhere;
A hint of health and happiness from realms of sunny air,
And everything looks big and free, as if content to give
The same delightful privilege—to grow and love and live!

UP TO STEEL COMPANY

If Defective Plates Were Furnished for Battleships

Considerable prominence is given by the Metropolitan press to alleged defective armor on the battleship North Dakota built at Quincy, and the battleship Utah built at Camden. If there is any criticism, however, it is not the fault of the Fore River Shipbuilding Company. When the "spoiled" plates were received at Quincy, the company notified the Naval construction officers, but neverthless they allowed the plates to be used. While a few of the plates are not perfect their condition is not serious, and does not impair the fighting strength of the battleships. It was up to the Naval board at the time to have thrown out the plates if in its judgment they were not up to requirement.

Whatever claim the government may have for withholding payments due on the battleship reflect more on the Midvale Steel Company which furnished the plates than upon the Fore River Shipbuilding Company, which did not use the plates until after they had notified the government.

—The Chelsea board of control has shown a good example to other city governments by turning down a petition to erect a billboard 125 feet long and 10 feet high, on Broadway.—Boston Record.

Miss Lucy Williams who has been visiting Mrs. C. L. Cunningham has returned to her home in Chicago.

Miss C. E. Walters is at Ocean Park in Maine.

L. C. Everett and family are spending the summer in Pocasett.

Miss Isabelle C. McIntyre of the Tucker School is touring Europe and will not return to her home until late in the fall.

The Fourth of July was the quietest Milton has known for some time. The celebration as planned by the Selectmen was very well received and no disturbances were noted during the entire day. But two alarms rang in one at 3.20 A. M. and the other at 9.30 P. M., and both were false. Chief Choate says that the number is surprisingly small compared with that of other years.

Stranger—"They tell me this is a very healthy country not many deaths here."

Cowboy—"Well, Bronco Pete died last week."

Cowboy—"What! Lemme tell yer, mister, when a feller's ketched stealin' a hoss there couldn't nothin' happen to him more natural than death."

Test to Be Made of Right to Prohibit Pictures of Fight

SYNDICATE SPENT LARGE SUM

Campaign Against Exhibitions of Reno Contest Is Progressing—Governors of Four States In Sympathy With Efforts of Christian Endeavor—London Newspapers Think Johnson's Victory Has Made Race Problem Much Harder

Boston, July 8.—The aftermath of the holiday fight at Reno threatens to reach serious proportions. The plan to exhibit moving pictures of the match has aroused a drastic opposition and all sorts and all sizes of cities are expressing their views of the situation. The number of places to prohibit the films will undoubtedly be much larger than the number to allow them.

But the picture syndicate says it will have something to say before the matter rests and declares that it will resort to the courts of the several states to determine their rights to exhibit the pictures. One member of the syndicate says that too much money has been invested to stand by and see the fight pictures prohibited without making a contest to determine the right of city authorities to stop the display.

The pictures, it is further announced, will be placed on public view in New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Chicago and several other cities on July 18.

William Shaw, secretary of the Christian Endeavor society, who on Tuesday sent a telegram to the governor of every state and territory of the United States, asking that moving pictures of the fight be prohibited, received eight answers by telegraph, four of them promising to do what can be done to prevent the exhibition of the pictures. The four favorable replies came from the executive offices of South Carolina, Illinois, Arkansas and Virginia.

The other replies were either noncommittal or conveyed the intelligence that the governor was not at present at the seat of state government and that a definite reply might be expected later.

Mayors of a number of prominent cities throughout the country have issued notices prohibiting the display of fight pictures. In California it is believed that almost all the cities will prohibit the pictures, since the actual fight was barred from that state. Los Angeles and San Francisco have gone on record as being opposed to the pictures on the moving picture screen.

Word comes from Connecticut that there is no law specifically prohibiting the showing of the prize fight pictures, and if the ban is put on at all it will be by municipal authorities acting under local ordinances.

Mayor Clayton of St. Joseph, Mo., stated that he would not interfere with the fight pictures. "I want to see them," he said, and I want my boys to see them."

England Asked to Act

London, July 8.—Sir Howell Davies has given notice of his intention to ask the home secretary in the house of commons, "in the interest of public decency," to prohibit the exhibition of biograph pictures of the Jeffries-Johnson fight.

The racial conflicts, following the Jeffries-Johnson fight at Reno, is the theme of general discussion in the British press. Varying opinions are expressed, but the universal admission is that Johnson's victory has made the race problem for the United States much harder than before.

JEFFRIES' ADMISSION

Says He Never Could Have Whipped the Black Champion

San Francisco, July 8.—"I never could have whipped Jack Johnson at my best. I could not have reached him in a thousand years."

This from James J. Jeffries answers the question that has been raised since the former undefeated champion was toppled over by Johnson at Reno.

James J. Corbett, who was with Jeff, declared Johnson would remain champion for many years, because there is no white man who will tackle him until he has become too old to put up much of a fight.

RECEIVES GRAND WELCOME

Cheers, Chicken and Watermelon For Johnson on Return Home

He pushed his way into the house amid deafening roars, and with tears streaming down his face embraced his mother. Behind him a compatriot struggled through the crowd, bearing aloft a smoked bacon side, symbolic of Johnson's own message home: "I'm coming home with the bacon."

"You doan' need no bacon, chile," cried the aged Mrs. Johnson. "Ah want to tell you Ise got a mighty fine chicken cookin' out heah in de kitchen, and you knows how you likes watahmelon. We have got some dandies, Jack."

GOING ABOARD KINGDOM

Large Number of Holy Ghosters Are Leaving Shiloh Behind

Freeport, Me., July 8.—A large exodus of the Holy Ghost and Us colony at Shiloh, Me., to the Holy Land, is believed to have begun when four wagons, filled with men, women and children, and luggage, passed through here.

It is thought they were on their way to board the barkentine Kingdom, which has been sailing back and forth outside the three-mile limit off Casco bay. The party will probably be put aboard the Kingdom by launch.

Rev. Frank W. Sandford, leader of the Shiloh colony, for whom the sheriff of Cumberland county has a writ in a $100,000 damage suit, is believed to be aboard the Kingdom and to avoid the sheriff has not allowed the barkentine to come inside. The suit was brought by Mrs. Florence Whittier of Boston, who alleges that she was detained against her will at the Shiloh colony and abused by Sandford.

OLD NEWSPAPER IN RECEIVERS' HANDS

Boston Herald Finds Itself in Financial Difficulties

Boston, July 8.—The Boston Herald has gone into the hands of receivers, after a business career of more than sixty years. On petition of the International Paper company of New York, Judge Colt of the United States circuit court appointed John Norris of New York and C. F. Weed of Boston receivers under bonds of $100,000 each, with authority to carry on the business.

They have already petitioned the court for authority to issue $50,000 worth of certificates of indebtedness for the purpose of carrying on the business.

According to the petition, the liabilities exceed $2,000,000, which is exceeded by the assets at the valuation given by the corporation.

CHARGES UNHEEDED

Surveyor McCarthy of Boston Will Now Fight Old Chiefs

Boston, July 8.—Jeremiah J. McCarthy, surveyor of the port of Boston and one of the most influential Republicans in Massachusetts, declares that Senator Lodge fought his confirmation as fire commissioner and that the civil service commission failed to confirm him because of Lodge's interference.

He intimated this in a statement made after the executive council had refused to take up his charges against the civil service board, and in his statement McCarthy said he would do all he could to defeat Governor Draper for re-election.

SHOT DURING A CHASE

Death of Man Brought Down by Boston Policeman's Revolver

Boston, July 8.—Joseph Benson, who was shot by Patrolman Michael Sullivan a week ago, died at the city hospital yesterday. With two others, he was chased after a break in a tool house of the New York Central and Hudson River railroad. The patrolman fired one shot and wounded Benson in the lower part of the back. Benson was 28 years old.

Both Benson's companions, Timothy Sullivan and Edward Kane, were arrested at the time of the break. Judge Barnard held both for the grand jury on the charge of being accessories to breaking and entering. The bail for each man was placed at $1500.

TWO WOMEN SHOT DOWN

Rejected Suitor Who Attempts Double Murder Is Arrested

New Bedford, Mass., July 8.—Angered because Mrs. Arsena Lopes would not consent to his marrying her daughter Matilda, Manuel Monteiro shot and mortally wounded Mrs. Lopes and sent a bullet through the head of his sweetheart, while they were on their way to work.

Monteiro made good his escape directly after the shooting, but was captured later in Taunton.

It is thought that Mrs. Lopes will die, and her daughter is in a serious condition.

WILL BE FIGHT TO THE FINISH

Plant Defies the United Shoe Machinery Company

CASE BROUGHT BEFORE COURT

Plaintiff Asks That Plant Company Be Restrained From Using Any Machinery Other Than United Company's—Alleges Violation of Terms of Agreements—Millions of Dollars Involved In the Contest

Boston, July 8.—What promises to be one of the hottest industrial wars ever waged in this country has just opened between the Thomas G. Plant company, shoe manufacturers of Jamaica Plain, and the big United Shoe Machinery company of Beverly, wherein millions of dollars are involved.

Already thousands of dollars have been spent and indications point that before the difficulties between the two great companies are settled hundreds of thousands will be spent in furnishing ammunition for the warfare.

The Plant company threw down the gauntlet some little time ago by replacing every machine in its factory which it leased from the United Shoe Machinery company, with Wonder Worker machinery, which is manufactured by a company owned and controlled by T. G. Plant, personally.

Then came the bill in equity of the United Shoe Machinery company, which was filed yesterday, asking that the Plant company be restrained from using any machinery other than the United company's, on account of the leases held by the Plant company on the United company's machinery, and that Plant be restrained from selling any of his machinery to the shoe company of which he is the head.

The whole affair indicates simply that the Plant company and others who, it is said, are to co-operate with it, will fight to a finish with a view to using in their factories other machinery than that leased by the United company.

Some months ago, it is stated, there came friction between the United Shoe Machinery company and the Plant company, which was the aftermath of former differences, but became at last an open rupture.

Mr. Plant determined that no longer should his company be bound down to using the machinery of the United company and no other, and then that it would not use the United company's machinery at all.

Prior to this he had become interested in the manufacture of the Wonder Worker machinery, on which he now holds the larger part of the patent rights, it is understood. All this time, while securing control of these patents, he had in mind the very thing that he is endeavoring to carry out at the present time; that is to utilize this new variety of machinery instead of that put out by the United company.

TAKES POISON DRAUGHT

Eccentric Woman Sets Distress Signal Before Taking Own Life

Melrose, Mass., July 8.—Pulling down her kitchen shade, a prearranged signal which denoted that she was in trouble, Miss Elizabeth Johnson, aged 63, an eccentric resident of this city, committed suicide by drinking carbolic acid at her home.

Seated in her favorite armchair in the kitchen of the house the dead woman was later discovered by her neighbors, Mr. and Mrs. Harry P. Gerrish, for whose enlightenment the signal had been set.

Melancholia, brought about by constant brooding over the loss, by death, several months ago, of a sister, is the only reason which can be assigned for the woman's act.

SYNOPSIS

(CHAPTER VII—Continued.)

"Noise?" Lord Ronsdale listened. "That's music, or supposed to be; unless I am mistaken 'The Campbells Are Coming,'" he drawled.

"The Campbells? Oh, I understand! Let us wait!"

They drew in their horses. The black one became restive, eyed with obvious disapproval a gayly bedecked body of men swinging smartly along toward them.

And at the sight and sound the girl's horse, unaccustomed to the pomp and pride of martial display, began to plunge and rear. She spoke sharply, tried to control it, but found she could not. Lord Ronsdale saw her predicament, but was powerless to lend assistance, being at the moment engaged in a vigorous effort to prevent his own horse from bolting.

The bagpipes came directly opposite. The black horse reared viciously. For the moment it seemed that Jocelyn would either be thrown or that the affrighted animal would fall over on her, when a man sprang forward and a hand reached up. He stood almost beneath the horse. As it came down a hoof struck his shoulder a glancing blow, grazed hard his arm, tearing the cloth. But before the animal could continue his rebellious tactics a hand like iron had reached for, grasped the bridle. Those who watched could realize great strength in the restraining fingers, the unusual power of Steele's muscles. The black horse, trembling, soon stood still, the bagpipes passed on, and Steele looked up at the girl.

"Few riders could have kept their seats so well," he answered, with ill concealed admiration.

"I have always been accustomed to horses. In Australia we ride a great deal."

"For the instant," his face slightly paler, "I thought something would happen."

"It might have," she returned, a light in her eyes, "but for a timely hand. My horse apparently does not appreciate Scotch airs."

"Ugly brute!" Lord Ronsdale, a dissatisfied expression on his handsome countenance, approached. "A little of the whip"— The words were arrested. The nobleman stared at John Steele or rather at the bare arm which the torn sleeve revealed well above the elbow.

Th white, uplifted arm suddenly dropped. Steele drew the cloth quickly about it, but not before his eyes had met those of Lord Ronsdale and caught the amazement, incredulity, sudden terror—was it terror?—in their depths. The nobleman's face looked drawn and gray. With one hand he seemed almost clinging to his saddle. John Steele turned his back. He was bending over the girth of his saddle, and his features could not be seen, but the hand, so firm and assured a moment before, seemed a little uncertain as it made pretext to readjust a fastening or buckle.

"Why, man, you look ill!" Captain Forsythe, turning to Lord Ronsdale, exclaimed suddenly.

"It's nothing much." With vacant expression the nobleman regarded the speaker, then lifted his hand and pressed it an instant to his breast. "Heart," he murmured mechanically—"beastly bad heart, you know, and sometimes a little thing—slight shock—Miss Wray's danger"—

"Take some of this." The captain, with solicitude, pressed a flask on him. The nobleman drank deeply. "There, that'll pick you up."

"Are you ready, Mr. Steele?" Jocelyn Wray waited a moment as the others started, looked down at that gentleman. Her voice was gracious. Its soft accents seemed to say: "You may ride with me. It is your reward."

For one restored so quickly to favor, with a felicitous prospect of gay words and bright glances, John Steele seemed singularly dull and apathetic. It was impossible she should not notice his want of attention. She bit her lips once. Then she laughed.

"Do you know, Mr. Steele, if I were vain I should feel hurt. You haven't heard what I have been saying."

"Haven't I?"

Again she looked at him merrily.

"Of course I can't afford to be harsh with my rescuer. Perhaps"—in the same tone—"you really did save my life! Have you ever really saved any one—any one else, shall I say—you, who are so strong?"

A spasm of pain passed over his face. His look, however, was not for her, and the girl's eyes, too, had now become suddenly set afar. Was she thinking of another scene, some one her own words conjured to mind? Her mood seemed to gain in seriousness. She also became very quiet, and so, almost in silence, they went on to the entrance, down the street to her home.

"Au revoir, and thank you."

"Goodby—at least for the present," he added. "I am leaving London," abruptly.

"Leaving! To be gone long?"

"It is difficult to say. Perhaps."

"But—you must have decided suddenly?"

"Yes."

"While we have been riding home? Is it—is it serious?"

"A little."

"Men make so much of business nowadays," she observed. "It—it always seems serious, I suppose. We—we are moving into the country in a few weeks. Shall I—shall we see you before then?"

"To my regret, I am afraid not."

"And after"—in a voice matter of fact—"I think aunt has put you down for July. A house party. I don't recall the exact dates. You will come?"

"Shall we say circumstances permitting?"

"Certainly," a little stiffly, "circumstances permitting." She gave him her hand. "Au revoir, or goodby if you prefer it." He held the little gloved fingers, let them drop.

"Good luck in your business," she found herself saying, half gayly, half ironically.

He answered hoarsely something—what?—rode off. With color flaming high, the girl looked after him until Lord Ronsdale's horse, clattering near, caused her to turn quickly.

DIVIDENDS FOR DEPOSITORS

Those Who Had Money In Looted Bank Will Get Sixty Percent

Cambridge, Mass., July 8.—After levying an assessment of 100 percent on the stockholders in the National City bank of Cambridge, the controller of the currency announces that a dividend of 60 percent will shortly be paid to the depositors. The bank has been in the hands of a receiver since the Coleman defalcation. The dividend will be the first to be received by the depositors, but it will not be the last, according to the controller's office.

AT THE BOSTON THEATRES

KEITH'S THEATRE.

One of the most important engagements of thesummer is made by B. F. Keith for the apeparance at his theatre in Boston next week of Le Grande Pandore, the famous doll revived from the court of Louis XIVth by John Colby Abbott. This doll has been the sensation of drawing rooms of Boston, New York and London and Paris, where it was exhibited by Mr. Abbott. The patrons in London being Mrs. Whitlaw Reid ;the Marchioness of Londonderry; Dowager Countess of Shrewsbury; Lady Newborough; Lady Palmer ,and Mrs. George Cornwallis West. In Boston the doll was exhibited at Mrs. John L. Gardner's Fenway Court. This feature will make a special appeal to women, especially as Le Grande Pandore shows the beautiful dresses of the time of Louis XIVth and Marie Antoinette, and is particularly interesting at this time on account of the hairdressing which is now reaching the alarming proportions of those times. At Keith's the doll will be exhibited in all its beautiful costumes by Mrs. John Colby Abbott ,wife of the inventor ,and already has aroused the greatest interest in Boston.

AMERICAN MUSIC HALL.

Comedy will supplant the serious at the American Music Hall the coming week when the Lindsay Morison stock company will present Willie Collier's funniest of all successes, "Caught in the Rain." Last season's patrons will rejoice in this announcement for "Caught in the Rain" was probably the happiest selection of Mr. Morison's repertoire last summer. It can practically be said that there is a laugh every minute, some of them caused by the unusual situations and still more caused by the particularly witty dialogue. The big feature of the production will be a real rain storm in which real water will pour in torrents upon the stage. Other scenic effects will be on a par with those used in the original production by Mr. Collier. The cast will include all the members of the company among them being Wilson Melrose, Theodore Friebus, Rosalind Coglan, Mary Sanders, Rose Morison, Katherine Clinton, William Hasson, Edward Nannary and Valerie Valaire. Monday matinee, as usual, chocolate bon bons will be presented to the patrons.

CAUGHT BY DECOY LETTERS

Boston Letter Carrier Admits That He Stole From the Mails

Boston, July 8.—Charles P. Symons, 30 years old, a letter carrier at the Essex street station, was arrested, charged with stealing letters containing money from the mails. Symons has been a substitute carrier for two years.

Three decoy letters containing marked money were used to ensnare Symons, only one of which was delivered to its destination. The money placed in the two letters not delivered was found on Symons' person when he was searched at the Essex street station.

Symons broke down and admitted stealing from the two letters and also others in the past.

POLICE THINK HE IS ALLROUND CROOK

Boston Choir Leader Has Many Charges Against Him

Boston, July 8.—By the arrest of Albert G. Shook, 42 years old, at his residence, 69 Hancock street, the police believe that they have ended the career of a slick allround crook.

According to evidence furnished the police, Shook has for the last seven years, ever since coming to Boston, fleeced people right and left. His special forms of thievery are said to have been beating his way at hotels and restaurants and grafting in various ways from clothing stores in which he has been employed. Among the charges expected to be made against him is the theft of about $300, given him to pay the members of the choir at People's temple while he was a leader of that organization.

Shook is described as a very convincing talker, and is of rather ministerial appearance. He often sang in church choirs and acted as a volunteer at Y. M. C. A. concerts.

Royal Family Is Expensive

London, July 8.—The select committee of parliament to consider the civil list for King George V recommends a provision of $3,170,000 yearly for the maintenance of the royal family. This is an increase of $65,000 over the allowance made during the last reign.

Died In His Automobile

Portland, Me., July 8.—While riding alone slowly along Forest avenue in his automobile D. W. Hawkes, one of the oldest and best known educators in Maine, was stricken with heart trouble and died before bystanders reached him.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Supreme Judicial Court in Equity

CHARLES D. SIAS ET AL., TRUSTEES,
VS.
HERBERT T. CHASE ET AL.

In the matter of petition, filed in said Court June 28, 1910, for construction of will of Caleb Chase, late of Brookline in said County.

This is a petition in equity in which the petitioners, Charles D. Sias, Benjamin S. Palmer and William T. Rich, as Trustees under the will of Caleb Chase, represent in substance as follows:—

The said Caleb Chase by his will dated January 21, 1899, after making certain specific pecuniary bequests and devises, bequeathed and devised the residue of his estate to said petitioners in trust to pay the net income thereof to his wife, Salome B. Chase, so long as she should live, and upon her death to divide and distribute all the rest and remainder of the trust estate (after paying therefrom certain pecuniary bequests) among the survivors of the following named legatees (who respectively had received legacies under his will,) each survivor to receive such a proportional part of said remainder as the amount of his legacy bears to the sum remaining to be distributed, namely:—Erastus Chase, Mary E. Nickerson, George Nickerson, Frank E. Chase, Herbert T. Chase, Phoebe Sisson, Helena A. T. Nickerson, Erastus W. Nickerson, Arthur L. Nickerson, George Nickerson, Jr., Annie E. Ginn, Darius Chase, Mary E. Townsend, Charles H. Chase, Frederick W. Chase, Caleb Chase, Polly Ellen Eldredge, Charles Baker, George A. Baker, Howard Baker, Mary Sherman, Hope M. Baker, Ozias C. Baker, George W. Baker, Daniel W. Baker, Emma I. Thatcher, widow of Darius Chase, Abbie Hibbard, Anthony Kelley, his wife, Joshua C. Kelley, Edward A. Kelley, Chester B. Kelley, Herbert W. Kelley, Cora M. Berry.

Said Salome B. Chase, widow of the testator, died on March 26, 1910, and the trust having terminated on her death, the question arises as to how said residuary trust estate shall be distributed among the remainder-men.

Of said legatees 24 survive the testator and are hereinafter referred to as the "First Class," and 9 died before the death of the testator and are hereinafter referred to as the "Second Class," and one died after the death of the testator and before the death of his widow and is hereinafter referred to as the "Third Class."

The amount of the bequests to the said legatees being the basis of apportionment of the residuary trust estate, the question arises as to what of said legacies are to be considered in making the apportionment and what are to be eliminated on account of the death of the legatees before the death of the testator.

The testator provided as above by his will that each survivor of said legatees should receive such a proportional part of the residuary estate "as the amount of his foregoing legacy bears to the sum remaining to be distributed,"—and afterwards he provided by his first codicil, dated December 26, 1899, as follows:—"And whereas, upon mature reflection, I do not wish the legacies to any one of the persons named above to lapse by reason of his or her death prior to my decease, or for other cause, I now direct that no legacy to any one of the persons named shall lapse, but that, if any one of those named above shall predecease me, his or her share shall be distributed as if it were his or her intestate estate."

There were nine of said legatees who died before his death, namely: Erastus Chase, Mary E. Nickerson, Frank E. Chase, Darius Chase, Hope M. Baker, Ozias C. Baker, George W. Baker, Daniel W. Baker, George A. Baker, and one, Polly Ellen Eldredge, died after his death.

In regard to the above matter several questions arise in regard to which said petitioners ask for instructions and especially in regard to the following matters:—

1. The testator directs that upon the decease of his widow "my trustees to so divide and distribute all the rest and remainder of said trust fund among the survivors of my legatees named below," and the question arises whether he means those surviving at the time of his death or at the time of the death of his wife.

2. Of the legatees who died before the death of the testator (2d Class above) Erastus Chase and Mary E. Nickerson do not come (not being named therein) within the provision of said clause in regard to lapsed legacies and the question arises whether their heirs-at-law or representatives under the provisions of law in regard to lapsed legacies or otherwise are entitled to be distributees in the right of said Nickerson and Chase respectively, or as, with others, heirs-at-law and representatives of said testator,—and what share or right, if any, of or to the residue of the trust estate the heirs-at-law or legal representatives of said Chase and Nickerson would be entitled to. It has furthermore been claimed and the question arises as to whether the heirs or representatives of Erastus Chase can take under the provisions of said clause of the first codicil in regard to lapsed legacies, the claim being as follows:—In said clause the testator says—"Whereas by my said will I gave to my brother Erastus Chase ten thousand dollars, I now give to him an additional ten thousand dollars," etc.,—"and whereas by said will I gave a legacy to each of the following named persons, to wit;" (then follow the names, which do not include that of said Erastus, of legatees who have predeceased the testator)—"And whereas upon mature reflection I do not wish a legacy to any one of the persons named above to lapse," etc.:—the claim is that Erastus Chase is to be considered as one of the persons "named above" and therefore that his heirs or representatives are to take his share.

3. As to the other legatees who died before the testator and who come within the provisions of the clause of the first codicil in regard to lapsed legacies (they having been named therein), so far as such clause may be applicable, the question arises whether the testator only refers to the lapsing of a "legacy" and whether a distributive share of the residue of the trust estate can be regarded as coming within the above provision, and is included in the definition of the term "legacy."

4. As said Polly Ellen Eldredge did not predecease the testator, but died after his death, and the testator provided if any one "shall predecease me his or her share shall be distributed" as intestate estate, the question arises whether said provision as to lapsed legacies is applicable to her interest in the trust estate.

5. If it shall be found by the Court that the said provision of the codicil in regard to lapsed legacies is not applicable to the interests under the residuary trust of said legatees of said second class and third class, the question arises whether the heirs-at-law or representatives of such legatees will take irrespective of such provision, and under the provisions of law in regard to lapsed legacies or otherwise, or what share, if any, they would be entitled to.

6. To summarize the above questions the question arises which of the persons named in said three classes and the heirs-at-law and representatives of which of said persons deceased are to share in the distribution of the residuary estate.

7. The names of the persons having been so determined, several subsidiary questions arise as follows:

8. The question arises as to what is to be regarded as the distributive share of said Erastus Chase and Mary E. Nickerson, the said Erastus having been given $10,000, in the will and an additional $10,000, in the first codicil, and said Mary E., having been given $5000, in the will and an additional $5000, in the second codicil.

9. The question arises whether in the distribution and payment of shares of deceased legatees their respective husbands or widows, now living or living at the death of the testator, shall be considered and take as heirs-at-law and by right of such deceased degatees.

10. The question arises as to the distribution, as intestate estate, of the share of a deceased legatee whether the trustees should pay the share to his administrator or executor or directly to those who would be ultimately entitled to it, and furthermore whether the testator meant the distribution to be made, as intestate estate, (in case the legatee had died intestate) as of the time of the death of said Caleb Chase, or as of the time of said legatee's death.

11. The question arises as to the construction of the phrase,—"My trustees to so divide and distribute all the rest and remainder of said trust fund among the survivors of my legatees named below that each survivor shall receive such a proportional part thereof as the amount of his foregoing legacy bears to the sum remaining to be distributed,"—and how are the calculation and apportionment to be made under the above provision, and whether all the trust estate is so disposed of, or whether any portion of such estate is to be considered as intestate estate of said testator.

12. If any portion of the estate of said testator shall be found to pass as intestate estate, said testator having died on November 23, 1908, and his widow, Salome B. Chase, on March 26, 1910, and he having made provision for her in his will, and she not having waived the provisions of the will but received her share thereunder, the question arises whether she, as his widow or as a statutory (or otherwise) heir-at-law or interested in his estate, as of the time of his death, is by the executors of her will to take the same share of his said intestate estate as if said testator had died intestate.

13. All the foregoing matters are in reference to the distribution of the personal estate, which is a part of said trust fund.

14. The following questions are in regard to the distribution of the real estate or the proceeds of sale thereof. By his will the testator devised a life estate in all his real property to his wife, Salome B. Chase, with the remainder over upon her death to his niece, Cora M. Berry, and then by his codicil of January 21, 1899, he revoked the gift of all said remainder to Cora M. Berry, and only gave to her the estate in remainder of his homestead estate in West Harwich, Massachusetts, (making no provision for the disposition of the balance of all his real estate in remainder). In his will he had devised "all the rest and remainder of my estate to said Sias, Palmer and Rich, the survivors and survivor of them, in trust for the following uses and purposes," (to his wife for life with remainder over to certain legatees as hereinbefore set forth), and the question arises (1) whether the said balance of the estate in remainder has vested in said trustees, (2) as to what their duty is, if such real estate is now vested in them, (3) whether to sell the same and convert it into money and divide the proceeds among the legatees of the residue of the trust estate, and, if so, in the same proportions as the personal estate of said residue is to be divided among them or in what proportions, (4) whether they shall convey such real estate by deed to said legatees of the residue of the trust estate, and, if so, in the same proportions as the personal estate of said residue is to be divided among them or in what proportions, (5) whether said remainder estate has vested in them at all or is to be considered as undevised real estate of the testator, which would be disposed of as if he had died intestate.

And the petitioners, being in doubt as to the proper construction to be given to said will and codicils in relation to the matters set forth in said petition, pray that the Court will hear said matters and instruct your petitioners in regard to the same and the questions which arise as therein stated, and especially,—

First. To whom the residue of the personal estate of the trust fund or estate which shall be in the hands of your petitioners as trustees as aforesaid at the time of the final termination of the trust and the final distribution of the trust estate is to be distributed, made over and paid, and in what proportions.

Second. What disposition, if any, shall be made by your petitioners of the real estate in Massachusetts which belonged to the testator, except his said homestead estate, so called, in West Harwich, which was devised to said Cora M. Berry.

Third. For such other and further instructions as to the Court shall seem meet in the premises.

And now it appearing that certain of the respondents, to wit:—Bessie Brown of San Francisco, California, William P. Baker of Niagara Falls, New York, William P. Baker (administrator of Ozias C. Baker) of Niagara Falls, New York, Edwin M. Baker of Monticello, Iowa, Corinda M. Berry of Denver, Colorado, Annie M. Chase of Fort Scott, Kansas, Herbert T. Chase (administrator of Erastus Chase) of Grand Rapids, Michigan, Charles H. Chase of Villa Rica, Paraguay, Herbert T. Chase of Grand Rapids, Michigan, Annie R. Redman of Montclair, New Jersey, Idella Stone of Berkeley, California, Mary E. Townsend of East Oakland, California, Emma B. West of Aztec, New Mexico, reside out of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts and are beyond the jurisdiction of the Court and personal service by sheriff of this Commonwealth cannot be made upon them.

It is ordered that the said William P. Baker, William P. Baker, administrator of Ozias C. Baker, Edwin M. Baker, Herbert T. Chase, administrator of Erastus Chase, Herbert T. Chase, Annie R. Redman appear within one month, —the said Bessie Brown, Corinda M. Berry, Annie M. Chase, Idella Stone, Mary E. Townsend appear within two months,—the said Emma B. West appear within three months and the said Charles H. Chase appear within six months from the first Monday of July next and answer to said bill.

BRIEFS

Supt. of Schools, Albert L. Barbour left this morning for Georgetown, Me., where he will spend his vacation.

A bronze bust of John Hancock has been placed in postion on the Franklin street side of the new building of the John Hancock Life Insurance Co. in Boston.

The Argentine naval men in Quincy are not at all alarmed at the reports of an increase in the Brazilian navy. They are inclined to doubt the report that two more batleships have been ordered.

Mrs. Henry G. Fay of Marlboro street passed a successful operation for appendicitis last week and her friends will be glad to hear she is resting comfortably at the Emerson hospital, Forest Hills.

A FRIEND INDEED.

There is one woman at West Quincy who was glad Thursday evening that Mayor Shea happened to be out late. The woman with a young child arrived in City Square from Neponset just after the last car for West Quincy had gone. She sat down on the curbing and began to cry at the thoughts of having to walk home at that hour of the night. Just about that time Mayor Shea arrived from Houghs Neck where he had been attending the Quincy Yacht club celebration. Seeing the woman he inquired the cause of her trouble. On hearing what it was, he told her to get into his automobile. The woman hesitated at first, but after learning who her benefactor was accepted. She was followed by the Mayor who hastily cranked up the car and a minute later was speeding toward the woman's home on Side street.

FOUR ARRESTED.

Another hold up was reported to the police Thursday night by Carmine P. Gardiner of Atlantic, who also informed the police who the hold up men were and swore out a warrant for their arrest for assault and battery. Gardiner says that he was coming across the Neponset bridge in a team about 9.30 when four young men grabbed his horse by the head and yanking him from the seat to the ground beat him severely. He gave the names o fthe men as Frank Geary, John Leary, Peter E. Cunniff and Joseph Murphy. The four were arraigned in court.

TODAY'S COURT.

Edmund D. Studley was fined $20 and Sidney E. Butcher $25 for exceeding the automobile speed limit at Milton.

☞ R. E. Foy & Co., make a specialty Saturday evenings of "an after supper sale." Every one is cordially invited to attend.

STORIES OF THE DIAMOND.

"PROFIT BY YOUR ERRORS."

Third Baseman Should Always Work With Pitcher, Catcher and Shortstop and Practice Hard to Be Able to Play His Position Well.

No. XIV.
By KID ELBERFELD.
[Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.]

Snappy play and good judgment are the prime qualities in playing the third station. No man on the team has cause to think and act quicker than the fellow on third. It is a case of the batsman trying to fool you, and your success depends upon your ability to guess what the batter is going to do and your speed in thwarting his plans.

A big man is not necessary at the last station. If the position demanded it I would not be playing there myself, but a man who can think and work fast and throw strongly and accurately is necessary.

Quick thinking will give you more time to do the mechanical work of the position and enable you to make plays which would otherwise be impossible. A good arm is essential for a third baseman. He must not only be able to whip the ball across from behind third, but make a quick snap on slow grounders as well.

A third baseman must be a close student of the game. He must know the batters and their peculiarities or he is likely to make a mistake in fielding for them. He should know what his own pitcher is going to send up to the batsman and handle himself accordingly. With men on the bases he must know the capabilities of the runners and the batsmen and the plays which are possible under the conditions.

In case something happens to make a play impossible he must make up his mind about what to do on the instant and do it. An understanding with the pitcher, catcher and shortstop is of the utmost importance to a third baseman. Nothing is more aggravating than for the pitcher, catcher and third sacker to go after a bunt and the ball to roll safe owing to a mixup.

The same is true of flies, and one of the most foolish plays on a diamond is to have the ball drop safe among a bunch of fielders when had any taken the chance by himself it would have been an easy out. A good understanding with the first and second basemen is also of importance, and all of this comes under the head of team play, the keynote to a successful nine.

Profit by your errors and the experience you gain through them. Study the reasons for them and never make the same break twice. Watch others play the game and pick up points from them. You can get pointers from even a novice by watching him play, and the opportunity to watch a first class man work is of immense advantage. Things will frequently come to you when watching another play which you fail to notice when playing yourself. Practice is what makes a perfect player, and you should get all of this you can. In the heat of a game is a poor time to correct your mistakes. In practice you can try a play over if you miss out the first time. In a game experimenting is likely to prove costly. Work hard in your practice.

Listless work in practice will do but little good, and you are likely to do your work in the game in the same manner.

McGraw's Batting Scheme.

A Tip From McGraw.

"You can't look for first class work from a second class ball player," is one of the wise sayings of Johnny McGraw.

MANY GAMES SATURDAY

Sporting Chat That Is of Local Interest

Games for Saturday:
Quincys at Weymouth.
Lincolns at Randolph.
Stoughtons at Rockland.
Copeland vs. Walpole at Quincy.
Makaria vs. Dorchester at Park.
Adams vs. Hardy, Ward Three.
Bryant vs. Cranch, Ward Four.
Apprentices at Braintree.
Ramblers at South Weymouth.
Score blanks at Ledger office.

Joe Ford, who is well known in Quincy's baseball society, is managing the Neponset Wanderers. Brother Ralph is pitching and doing great work.

Moralis will pitch against Grethe on Saturday at French's common. The Malden boy recently held Makaria to one hit while on the slab for the Malden Athletics.

Armstrong, the former M. A. H. S. player who covers second for Quincy, is surely in the game every minute.

The Y. M. C. A. team plays in Lynn on Saturday against the Lynn Association team. The latter were defeated by Quincy 6 to 5 nearly two months ago at Ward Two.

* * *

The Red Sox certainly did hit the Yankee pitchers. Nineteen for a total of twenty-seven is going some.

There is some talk of moving the July 4th reviewing stand to Merrymount park where admission will be charged. It doesn't seem as though it is perfectly right to charge a cent because the playground is public and absolutely free to all comers who desire its use to play ball. To charge a definite admission fee would be a violation of the charitable intent which was the cause of playgrounds being laid out for free public use. To make a collection would be all right but when it comes to a set sum from each individual, the ground ceases, in a manner, to be a public institution as non of the money goes to any but private persons.

The Quincys of the Old Colony league will travel to Weymouth on Saturday and will endeavor to increase the hold on first place. If Quincy wins and Randolphs wins also they will, of course, be still tied. Should Randolph lose and Quincy win, Quincy will lead Randolph by .111 points and if Lincoln wins they will tie the latter for second place, the Quincy being just behind with .500 points. However, should Quincy lose Randolph will lead with .666, Weymouth will take second with .625 and Quincy and Lincoln will tie for third place. If Stoughton wins and Lincoln loses they will tie up with .444 apiece, and vice versa they will be separated by .222 pegs. If Rockland wins and Stoughton loses the former will take fifth place. Should the games go the other way Rockland will descend a little farther, but Stoughton cannot get out of fifth place.

Jeffries says that he couldn't have whipped Jack even in his best days. Lil' Arthur is too clever, says Jim.

Bill Duggan can play almost any position, and he plays top-notch ball in any that he tries.

Billy Gover of the Mohawk A. C. was in the 3-mile race July 4th, numbered 199. The numbers given out by the officials didn't come within a hundred of that. He took second, but would have won had it not been for one of the jumpers stepping into him while pacing off his last lap.

* * *

The Ramblers play their 13th game tomorrow at South Weymouth against the Wessagusetts. The Ramblers are trying for a record this season, having only been defeated once, and that was done by Wellfleet on Cape Cod Monday, 5 to 4. The Wellfleet team will come to Merrymount Park July 30, and play the rugber game and fans will see a fast and interesting game of baseball.

NEW COLLEGE SPORT.

Boomerang Throwing Now Being Tried Out at Missouri University.

Not so very long ago aeroplaning was the latest word in athletics, and while the repesentatives of the big eastern colleges were busily engaged in framing an intercollegiate aero society the athletes of the western institutions of learning were not idle. Now boomerang throwing has become the final word in college games, and the University of Missouri is the sponsor for this latest form of sport.

Two professors and one student have been experimenting with boomerangs at the University of Missouri. The boomerangs belong to E. B. Millar. Several attempts have been made at throwing them by Millar, a senior in the school of engineering, and by Dr. H. M. Reese and Dr. O. M. Stewart of the faculty. Although Millar lived in Australia until he was twenty years old, he never mastered the art of using the native weapon. Boomerangs are scarce, even in Australia, being found only in the interior. The natives in the civilized parts of the continent do not make them. They still form the chief weapons of the cannibals and partly civilized inhabitants, however. While they are used in killing game, their chief use is to frighten animals from hiding places.

There is a delicate art in throwing boomerangs. It requires more skill than strength. It is good sport, however, and interesting as well as healthful. The students at the Missouri university have become greatly interested in the new sport and propose forming a boomerang club.

HOUGHS NECK

The capacity of the hall of the Quincy clubhouse was severely taxed at the banquet on the opening night but there are commodious balconies around it, and they provided for the overflow. In other parts of the clubhouse there was plenty of room, as the Quincy Yacht club now has very commodious quarters.

If someone would make a specialty of first class shore dinners at Houghs Neck they would do more to make Houghs Neck popular than any other one thing.

W. L. Cummings of Peabody is visiting on Rock Island road.

Clyde Withers of Brockton has been invited to spend two weeks with friends on Turner street.

W. H. Bric spent Sunday and Monday on Taber street.

Cobb Wants to Use His Own Judgment.

"I believe in managers who let you do something for yourself once in awhile," says Ty Cobb. "A manager shouldn't kill all of the initiative in his players or load them down with ironbound instructions. At the bat they should be permitted to use their best judgment.

"Too much attention is paid to inside ball and signals and too little to stealing bases. Baseball's too mechanical. If a youngster happened to be on first and saw a good chance to steal second or if he was on third and thought he could sneak home, do you think he'd try? Not in a thousand years. If he chanced to be put out he'd be told a few things when he hit the bench. 'You're playing under me, aren't you?' the manager would ask. 'Did I give you any signal to steal? The best thing you can do is to remember that the big league is no place for boneheads.'"

—By ordering a $15,000,000 floating fighting machine, Chile gives notice that she aspires to be classed as having attained to the same high stage of civilization as that enjoyed by the great world powers. With Brazil, Chile and the Argentine building fleets of dreadnoughts, no doubt other South American republics will follow their example. Perhaps Paraguay, the only South American country without sea coast will fashion its fleet after the style of the Swiss navy.—Christian Science Monitor.

THE QUINCY DAILY LEDGER

Vol. 24 No. 158 QUINCY, MASS., SATURDAY EVENING, JULY 9, 1910 PRICE TWO CENTS

FOURTH OF JULY FINANCIAL REPORT

Entire Expense of Celebration Was About $1,300, Including $500 for Fireworks

Permanent Organization May Be Formed for Next Year

Every bill but one incurred on account of the grand "safe and sane" Fourth of July celebration, which was so great a success, has been paid. All bills were approved by the officers of the executive committee at their meeting last night. The fireworks bill was paid July 5, as the representative of the manufacturers left Quincy on that day.

The amount paid out is small compared with the results obtained, and though money was extremely hard to raise, $75 only remains to be paid up. The items are as follows:

Parade	$266.63
Sports	288.14
Music	145.00
Publicity	52.85
Balloon before discarded	1.07
Fire works	500.00
Office expenses	35.27
Total	$1,289.06

If from this amount should be deducted $500, the cost of the fireworks, the balance would be but $789.06. The cash on hand and promised contributions give a sum of $802.47, thus giving a balance of $13.41.

However one bill, approximating $75, has been incurred and must be paid and those citizens who want to help out are requested to contribute at an early date so that this bill may be paid and leave the slate of the committee clean for next years celebration.

After the financial business had been discharged a vote of thanks was passed thanking the Mayor for the reviewing stand, the Daily Ledger, the Telegram, and other papers which gave publicity to the affair, the Board of Trade for the use of its rooms, and the generous citizens who contributed to the fund.

It was moved that a permanent organization be formed, but it was decided to defer this action until some later time, the meeting for the purpose to be subject to the call of the president. At that time officers will be elected and preparations will extend over the year rather than a few months, as was the case this year.

The officers and committee are mightily pleased with the appreciation shown of their efforts, for it is a fact that the celebration was a great surprise to a large majority who now want a celebration every year.

CITY COUNCIL.

The adjourned meeting of the City Council Monday evening promises to be an important one. Several committees have met since the last meeting of the Council, and numerous reports will be received on important matters. There is some talk of the Council adjourning for the summer at this meeting, although it is possible one more meeting may be held before a vacation is taken.

HALF HOLIDAY.

At a meeting of the board of directors of the Merchants Association on friday it was voted to recommend that all stores close Wednesday afternoons at one o'clock during July and August. A general meeting of the Association is called for Monday afternoon at 3.30 in the Board of Trade rooms to ratify or not that recommendation.

PLEASANTLY REMEMBERED.

About thirty of the members of the Swedish M. E. church accompanied by their pastor tendered to Mrs. Oscar A. Johnson of Deldorf street a very pleasant surprise party last evening. Mrs. Johnson was completely surprised when upon answering a ring at the door, the party marched in and filled every available space. The pastor with a few well chosen remarks made the presentation speech, and upon receiving same the recipient expressed her heart felt thanks. The evening passed all too quickly, and after refreshments were served all wended their way homeward with the best of wishes for their hostess.

A WONDERFUL NEWSPAPER.

The Daily News has done a big thing for Dayton, Ohio, in issuing a 210-page paper known as the "New-Home edition," for the first remark one makes on seeing the paper is, "Dayton must be a busy progressive city." He is more convinced as he glances through the pages and notes the large industries located in Dayton and vicinity. The News has just completed a magnificent new office building of steel and stone and concrete, which resembles a banking house or large public hall, and all publishers will envy Congressman James M. Cox who is the sole owner, and who has accomplished wonders since 1898. The edition is in fourteen sections, including "Dayton beautiful" historical, educational, mercantile, manufacturing, transportation, etc., etc. It will require almost a month to read this big edition of 1470 columns, or over 31,600 inches, but it will be found of great interest, and is profusely illustrated. The word progress seems to be stamped on every page, and many publishers will take it as a model when they attempt to issue a special edition. Dayton should be proud of the Daily News, and its new home. With its new equipment it will be able to do even better work for the city, its merchants and its industries.

POLICE VACATIONS.

Vacation in the police department commence today, when Sergts. Hanson and Barry and Officers Hinchon, Murray and Cahill are off for two weeks. During the absence of the two sergeants, Officer Godhue will be in charge of the day desk and Officer Halloran teh night desk. Officer Matthews takes the place of Officer Cahill on the patrol wagon.

TODAY'S COURT.

Clifton F. Phelan was arraigned for larceny at Quincy. Case continued until Monday.

Felix G. Ferry was fined $15 for exceeding the speed limit on the parkway at Milton.

BRIEFS

The Swedish Baptists are enjoying their picnic today at Bethel beach.

A number of South Quincy High school boys will take a trip to Gloucester July 24.

O. Granai and family of Barre, Vt., visited Carlo Bracchi of South Quincy yesterday.

Mrs. M. Madggiani and two sons, formerly of Quincy, visited here yesterday. Their home is now at Barre, Vt.

Ronald S. McDonald of Montreal is in town today, having come to Somerville to attend the funeral of his father. He was a former employee of the Daily Ledger.

Every Friday night, until further notice, the Quincy City Band will play at Doble's corner for one hour and a half. The expense of the concerts is borne by the merchants about the corner. Last evening's program was especially good.

While alighting from a Quincy Point car on Washington street near Union street yesterday, about noon, a rather stout woman fell heavily from the running board. The car was at a dead stop and she probably stepped on her skirt. She arose and walked briskly away.

BRAINTREE GRANGE NOTES.

Probably there are few institutions for the educational benefit of all members so well organized as the Patrons of Husbandry. There are ten organizations in our immediate vicinity, and some of these are in populous cities. These granges are associated in what is called a county or pomona grange. These like the ordinary granges meet once or twice a month. The Braintree grange is a member of the Mayflower pomona grange. All these pomona and subordinate granges are organized into what is known as the Massachusetts state grange and this meets once a year. Such is the organization in every state. All the state are banded together and form the national grange.

The next meeting of Braintree grange will be held in Odd Fellows' hall next Monday evening at 8 o'clock. In the absence of the lecturer, Dr. Watson, the lecture period will be in the hands of Mrs. Burton. Her program was announced in last week's issue of the Observer.

Two street gamins gazed after it intently.

"Say, Jimmie, what's that round thing a-hangin' on the side?"

"Gee! don't ye know? That's a lifepreserver, en when they's in danger o' runnin' over enybody they jes' throws that overboard to 'em."—Lippincott's.

MAD DOG SHOT.

At about 3.15 P. M. yesterday a huge St. Bernard dog, owned by J. Mardoni of 58 Franklin street, went mad, presumably of heat, and was shot by Officer Goodhue. The dog was chained outside of a small shed and was noticed to froth at the mouth and show other signs of rabies. Mardoni rushed from his store and beat the dog back into the shed, fastened the door and sent for an officer. The animal by this time was in a great frenzy and attempted to escape through a window, but was beaten back with a club wielded by Mardoni as often as he jumped.

Officer Goodhue arrived in about ten minutes and fired through the window at the dog, which did not die until twelve shots had been discharged into his body. The shooting attracted nearly a hundred people to Doble's Corner, where the incident occurred.

NEW ENGLAND.

George French of Hyde Park is engaged in an important and interesting work for the Boston Chamber of Commerce, an industrial survey of New England. The object is to collect and classify information about New England for the use of the Chamber, and to prepare a book for publication in the fall. The book is to be a standard octavo of about 500 pages, dealing with the present status of New England industries and indicating the opportunities for new industries and the expansion of those already established.

The book is to be written in a narrative style, will be fully illustrated and handsomely printed. The enterprise is believed to be the first attempt by any public body to show what New England is and what it may become, in this thorough, authorative and graphic manner. The plan was formulated and suggested by Mr. French, and all of the work is being done through his Beacon street office.—Hyde Park Gazette.

W. R. C. STAFF.

Mrs. Florence Haynes of Boston, department president of the W. R. C. has appointed on her staff as a special aid to the department, Mrs. Cora Carman, to be assisted by the following: Mrs. Adelaide McGrath, Mrs. Mary P. Tilley, Mrs. Kate A. Blaisdell, Mrs. Josephine M. Godfrey, Mrs. Alice M. Smith, Mrs. C. Alice Litchfield and Mrs. Annie L. Waterhouse, all of Paul Revere W. R. C. No. 103 of this city.

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

If the grand jury digs deep enough, it will find the men "higher up."

What can Roosevelt be saying in these "not for publication" dinner speeches.

Governor-Justice Hughes is going to take dinner down at Ex-Governor-ex-President-ex-Colonel Roosevelt's house.

In Louisville, Mr. Singer and Miss Wheeler were married. And we thought all the time it was Wheeler and Wilson that were engaged.

Worcester is to be congratulated upon keeping its tax rate at $16.40, the same as last year. The valuation, however, was increased nearly ten million dollars.

Wellesley College girls insist that alumnae returning to the alma mater shall not bring their babies. Roosevelt's attention should be called to this immediately.

It is claimed that Kentucky has actually built a statehood without spending more than the original appropriation. Is this a case of ignorance, lassitude or virtue?

One result of this weather is the premature arrival of the silly season; it is manifested in the annoucement of a British naval officer that war between Japan and America is inevitable.

That was a rude shock for Brookline when the tax rate jumped from $10.50 to $12.50. If the town was paying its proper proportion of the Metropolitan water tax, and other Metropolitan assessments it would jump $2 more.

Now that the Daily Ledger has printed a list of the first settlers of Quincy, as per records from 1625 to 1750, it will be in order for some one to start an "Order of the First Settlers of the City of Presidents." Only those who are direct descendents to be eligible to membership. Not every city can print a list of its settlers 200 years ago.

If they have had any measure of success, the owners of vegetable gardens will from now on reap the rewards of their labors. No product of the garden tastes so good or seems as fresh as the one that you gather from your own "patch." Many a business man finds rest and relaxation in the care of his flowers or vegetables and whether the crops be large or small he receives no little benefit from outdoor exercise and communion with nature.

Now is the time when the papers are filled with accounts of drowning accidents many of which could have been averted had the victims any knowledge of swimming. It is not to be expected that all should be as accomplished in the art as the fifteen year old girl who recently swam from Dorchester to Deer Island, a distance of seven miles but it is necessary that everybody should know something about swimming so as to be able to keep afloat until help arrives.

It has been truly said that we are creatures of habit and some people have the courage to affirm that taking a vacation is a habit, oftentimes, an expensive one, and in any case an unnecessary one. This statement opens up a wide field of argument but it has remained for Mr. Rourke ,the new superintendent of streets, Boston, to state the matter a little differently but with much the same meaning. The gentleman says that in his opinion he doesn't see how any man in this climate needs a vacation. The superintendent was referring to the employees of the departments, and perhaps he thinks the women should have all the vacation they want.

Lynn merchants at a meeting held Thursday alleged carelessness on the part of Policeman James H. Carroll, who with Thomas A. Landergan was killed some two weeks ago in that city by bandits. It is claimed that the policeman violated a rule that a sentinel should observe, that is he was engaged in conversation. The merchants adopted resolutions asking for additional police officers; for revolver practice by police and that the police carry revolvers in belts so that they can be drawn at an instants notice. These would seem wise precautions especially in Lynn, a city of many factories and large pay rolls. Wonder if our Quincy Police continue the revolver practice as inaugurated by Mayor Bryant during his administration.

DRIFT OF OPINION.

Some people off for a holiday ought to be off for a sanitarium or a jail instead. The fashion in which they make themselves obnoxious and at times dangerous to other people is something that deserves a punishment of this kind. Boarding trains they jam their way along, digging their elbows into women's ribs and stepping on their feet, and thrusting men aside if they are able with a fierceness that is almost maniacal, and all for the sake of getting a seat for a more or less short trip. On steamboats some of these people are over crowding their way past seated people, or standing in front of them, cutting off both view and breeze. This style of performer usually has a few drinks in, and he is ready to "beat up" anybody who dares to criticise him, and announces that fact. There are some women who are not much better, and who take advantage of the fact that they are women to make themselves nuisances of the most aggravated kind. If any protest is made they look astonished, and loudly ask, "Well what do you think of anybody addressin' a lady like that!" Of course that settles it; a lady can do no wrong, even if some queer specimens of womankind can.—Brockton Enterprise.

Two cadets have been expelled from West Point because they were untruthful. Each had committed a trivial offence that would have brought him only a rebuke or a trifling penalty, to avoid which they lied about it. One of them was charged with chewing gum. He denied it and the offence was proved, with the result he is no longer a cadet of Uncle Sam. If the action of the authorities needs any defence it may be found in the statement that a man who would lie about so small a matter could not be depended on in one of more importance. West Point lays great stress on this matter of veracity, and any violation of it is held to be in the highest degree dishonorable. It is well that it is so. A soldier is supposed to be a gentleman, one who will not do a dishonorable deed. The graduates from West Point are held to a high standard. They represent the honor of the United States. They do not always do that, but the imposition of the penalties above referred to will help to show the young men of the military academy what is expected of them, and what they may expect if they fail to meet the requirements of their instructors.—Lynn Item.

NORFOLK CLUB.

The Norfolk club will hold its annual summer outing at the Hotel Nantasket, Nantasket beach, on Saturday, July 16. The members of the club, their friends and guests will leave Boston on the 12.20 boat from Rowes wharf ,and the dinner will be served immediately following the arrival of the boat. The guests and speakers will include Gov. Draper, Senator Lodge, Congressman Weeks and Speaker Walker.

This meeting will be the opening of the Republican State campaign in the Southeastern section of the state and will undoubtedly be largely attended It is expected that at this meeting, Senator Lodge and Gov. Draper will outline the issues of the coming campaign.

GREAT POWERS IN A NEW DEAL

Russo-Japanese Treaty Slams "Open Door" In Our Face

AMERICA FAILS IN FAR EAST

Will Raise No Objection to New Agreement, Thus Giving Up Attempt to Neutralize Manchuria—Other European Powers Not In Position to Force Two Allies to Withdraw—American Interests Suffer

Washington, July 9.—After a careful study of its terms, the United States has decided to raise no objection to the new Russo-Japanese agreement respecting Manchuria. It is likely that in reaching its decision the state department has set an example which will be followed by all the other powers. Not that the arrangement is pleasing to this or any other country, but that the various premiers do not see what they can do about it.

The agreement specifically provides that both parties shall respect the open-door policy in China and the integrity of the Chinese Empire. A stipulation which they can well afford to make in view of the immense advantages the new arrangement brings to Russia and Japan in determining their permanent occupancy and trade division of Manchuria. It is believed here that the transaction includes also a secret agreement in which Russia and Japan will act together to preserve rights already gained in northern China.

The Russo-Japanese treaty no doubt is an indirect but none the less positive outcome of the proposition of Secretary of the State Knox to neutralize the Manchurian railroads, the ownership of which is divided between Russia and Japan.

The Knox suggestion was bound to fail, for the two eastern powers had gone too far with their plans of railroad and trade developement to turn backward. The United States then urged the promotion of a parallel trans-Manchurian road, but so far the scheme has not got beyond paper.

Having determined to hold what they already have, Russia and Japan can hardly be expected to view with complacency any railroad rivalry, neither is it likely that the other European powers are in a position to force the two allies to withdraw from Manchurian territory. The trade interests there, like those of the United States, are still too small to justify overt action of that character.

The practical operation of the new agreement will be to bring about conditions desired by Russia and Japan immediately after their war. It was then too early for the two enemies to come to a complete understanding, although the Russians proposed it at the time. Japan's alliance with Great Britain stood in the way and the Hay open-door policy was still of vital influence in the east.

With the lapse of time the same result has been attained with no appreciable loss to either power meantime. It cannot be denied that the alliance contains nothing of promise, if nothing of actual menace, to American trade interests in Manchuria. Open discrimination, at least, has not been practiced against the United States, but distance alone puts us at some disadvantage, while the Oriental methods of competition in themselves are a unique protection to the nations occupying the ground and one which foreigners cannot easily overcome.

The new far east convention signed by representatives of Russia and Japan appears to be but one of a series of documents by which the two powers seek to apportion Manchuria for exploitation by themselves to the exclusion of other nations that have heretofore insisted on the maintenance of the open-door policy. It marks another stride in the increasingly apparent rapproachement between Russia and Japan that has come on imperceptibly since the period of strain immediately following the Russo-Japanese war.

WANTS TO BE GOVERNOR

Clergyman Enters Political Arena In the Granite State

Milford, N. H., July 9.—Rev. Charles R. Peacock, pastor of the Congregational church in New Ipswich, caused a surprise in New Hampshire politics when he filed papers with $100 fee attched, with the secretary of state for the nomination at the primaries as a candidate for governor.

He is a Republican and will fight his campaign on a "constructive policy." The direct issue of Peacock's candidacy is "the establishment of elementary and secondary schools of applied sciences."

British Trade Is Expanding

London, July 9.—The board of trade returns for the six months ended June 30 show that imports increased £33,000,000. In the same period exports increased £36,000,000.

Champagne District's Heavy Loss

Paris, July 9.—The loss in the champagne district through the unfavorable weather is officially estimated at $6,000,000.

CHARLTON CASE CONTINUED

Jersey City, July 9.—A further adjournment of the hearing of Porter Charlton in the court of oyer and terminer to Aug. 11 forecasts an early ending of the case.

The papers demanding Charlton's extradition to Italy to stand trial for killing his wife at Lake Como have not been received, and unless the state department at Washington takes some action within the next few weeks Charlton will be discharged from the custody of the Jersey court. Charlton is held on a sixty day warrant and the time will expire on Aug. 22.

Should Italy demand Charlton's extradition the state department will reject the demand unless Italy agrees in the future to turn over to us all Italians who have committed crimes in this country and then fled to Italy. This Italy, it is understood, will decline to do.

LABOR PROBE COMMISSION

Railroad President and Union Editor Are Named by President

Beverly, Mass., July 9.—Two important appointments were announced from Burgess Point which will interest labor men, the naming of W. C. Brown, president of the New York Central railroad, and Daniel L. Cease, editor of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen's Journal, to the commission to investigate the employers' liability law and workmen's compensation.

The appointments were made under legislation passed at the last session of congress and the commission will consist, in addition to Brown and Cease, of Senators Warren of Missouri and Hughes of Colorado, and Congressmen Denby of Michigan and Brantley of Georgia. The finding of the commission will be awaited with much interest by labor men.

BOOK TRUST TO THE REAR

One of the Results of Triumph of the Woman Educators

Boston, July 9.—The National Education association convention closed last night. The association is now starting on a new era, and with Mrs. Ella F. Young as president the woman teachers hope to have the questions which they have been endeavoring for years to place before the body not only heard but acted upon.

Her election means much more than the occupancy of that chair by a woman, according to the gossip of the delegates. It means that the book trust, which has been so prominent in the small ring that has conducted the affairs of the body, will now be compelled to stand back.

BOTH WANT NOMINATION

Foss and Vahey to Confer on Bay State Gubernatorial Situation

Boston, July 9.—Congressman Eugene N. Foss and James H. Vahey are to hold a conference in the near future on the question of the Democratic nomination for governor. The conference is arranged by Chairman Macleod of the Democratic state committee.

Both candidates for the nomination have already signified their intention of "getting together" and talking the situation over. Within two weeks, it is believed by those who have been working to prevent a contest in the Democratic convention, the entire situation will be straightened out.

BRAINTREE HIGHLANDS

Miss Susan Holmes of Brockton was the guest of Mrs. B. J. Holbrook Thursday.

Mrs. John Fagan left for her home in St. Louis, Mo., on Friday after a four weeks' visit to her brother Michael Sullivan.

A rumor has been circulating persistently for the past few weeks to the effect that the large tract of land owned by the Mayflower Park Land Company in this section, had been sold. The company officially denies that such is the case.

Little Bertha E. Cain, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Everett H. Cain of Plymouth avenue was the guest this week of her aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Ellis Nightingale at their new bungalow in Danvers. Mr. and Mrs. Nightingale came out Tuesday by auto and took Bertha home with them.

The Improvement committee of the Braintree Highlands Neighborhood club held a meeting at the home of Mrs. Ray Hubbard Friday afternoon. Plans for the coming year were discussed, and preliminary arrangements were made for the August meeting of which the Improvement committee will have charge.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Sullivan, at the corner of Washington and Division streets was the scene of a family reunion Monday afternoon and evening. Supper was served at six o'clock. In the evening the premises were decorated with Japanese lanterns, and the entertainment took the form of a lawn party. A large number and variety of fireworks were set off and much enjoyed, not only by the guests, but by the community at large. Ice cream and cake were served during the evening. Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. Richard Sullivan and children, Abington, Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius Sullivan and their two sons, Braintree Highlands, Mr. and Mrs. Jeremiah Sullivan, Boston, John Sullivan and Mrs. John E. Fagan, St. Louis, Mo.

HARUM IS FOUND IN REINCARNATION

Art of Horse Trading Proved Still Extant.

NOVEL WAGER DECIDES IT.

Farmer Starts Out With $30 and In Two Days Brings Back a Steed and Profits of $125 and Routs Scoffer Who Says Auto Has Banished Swapping of Olden Days.

With his face as red as the sun that was sinking behind the horizon, his shoes dusty and his collar wilted, but with a smile on his wrinkled visage as broad comparatively as the before mentioned horizon, T. E. Turner, seventy years old and revivalist in horse trading, entered Greenwich, Conn., in triumph a few days ago, leading a spirited chestnut colored horse, on whose back in barking glee rode Happy, the old man's pet spaniel.

Turner is the owner of a large stock farm near Albany, N. Y., and in days gone by was a horse trader on the road and a showman as well. Entering Greenwich, he had just won a wager of $100 made to show that the art or science of horse trading was still a live one if the right man with the right shrewdness and activity got into it.

Takes Two Days For Test.

The conditions of his bet were that he should start from Stamford, Conn., with a capital of $30, tramp about the country in the old fashioned way and return to Stamford in two days with $100 profit to show in horse trading.

A guest asserted that with the automobile and trolley interest in horseflesh was almost dead and that the old fashioned trader would find pickings so dry he'd starve if he tried his vocation in these days. Turner denied that, and the wager was laid.

Turner left Stamford with Happy at his heels and the $30 in a money belt round his body, under his clothing, in the fashion he had used to carry his money a generation ago. He walked eighteen miles to Mount Kisco, looked over horses and bought one for $20. He moved on to Milwood with the horse and there met Harry Gedney. He traded the horse with Gedney for another animal and $10 to boot.

Going back to Mount Kisco, he sold his new possession for $85 to a Mr. Williams. Then he moved on to Tarrytown and there bought a horse for $40. At Pleasantville he sold that steed to a Danbury man for another horse and $50.

Trades Back and Forth.

Next he exchanged his latest acquisition for another nag that the head of the Brace Farm School For Boys desired greatly to lose. Turner valued this animal at $300 and wanted to keep him, but the provisions of his wager called for him to keep on trading. He laid his plans accordingly, and in the course of four more dickers he traded his "find" away and traded him back again.

And this was the horse that Turner led into Greenwich. He had cleared $125 and had the good horse besides. He put the animal up at a livery stable, tucked Happy under his arm and went to demand his $100 winnings and a retraction of the statement that horse trading wasn't as lively and profitable as ever if a man knew the game.

DICTIONARY AMUSES CAPITAL

Turkish Ambassador's Secretary Troubled by American Slang.

"The man with the book" Washington has dubbed the secretary to Hussein Kiazim Bey, the newly arrived Turkish ambassador. The book is a large Turkish-English dictionary, with a pronouncing glossary, and is like Mary's lamb—everywhere the secretary goes the book is sure to go.

Some one referred to one of Washington's most popular bachelors as a "lady killer." The secretary took out his dictionary and soon got into close communication with "lady" and "killer."

"Is it possible," he asked gravely in excellent Ollendorfed English, "that that most excellent gentleman with the so kind looks and the so benevolent words is already yet a murderer?"

DIME NOVELS ANGER RED MEN

Indians to Protest Against Murderous Reputation.

Brant Sero, who calls himself Ojijatheka and is a full blood Mohawk, has declared war on the publishers of the penny dreadful literature in Germany, which depicts the American Indians exclusively as a race of bloodthirsty scalpers and horse thieves. He is furnishing the Berlin newspapers with vivacious interviews describing his fellow redskins as a maligned, misunderstood people.

At their forthcoming congress at Muskogee, Brant Sero says, the modern generation of American Indians intends to take vigorous action in the direction of clearing up the world's dime novel conception of the noble red man.

Brazil's Rosewood Trade Flags.

In spite of the strong demand, exports of rosewood to the United States and Europe have fallen off owing to the difficulty of getting the logs out of the Brazilian forests.

SPENT A FORTUNE ON ACTRESS WIFE

Lord Sholto Now Has a Job at Two Dollars a Day

Spokane, Wash., July 9.—Vowing that he spent his fortune on his wife and has lost her, Lord Sholto Douglas left Spokane to work on a Canadian Pacific railway surveying crew for three months.

Lord Sholto is brother of the present Marquis of Queensbury and son of that marquis who gained undying fame by his code of pugilistic rules. At Bakersfield in 1895 Lord Sholto married Miss Margaret Mooney, better known on the variety stage as Lorettta Addis.

In his present despair the noble Englishman estimates the amount he has squandered on his wife at between $4,000,000 and $5,000,000. He says he seeks the solitude of a surveyor's camp that he may forget his troubles. Incidentally, he needs the pay, $2 a day, to enable him to eat occasionally.

BRIEFS

Water is being used on the streets in City Square, as the dust preventative now on hand is not satisfactory.

Work is to be commenced Monday morning building the new street railway turnout on Squantum street, Atlantic.

James E. Lalley, master painter at the Fore River shipyard, leaves today to attend the annual Elks' convention in Detroit next week.

The roof timbers of the new school at Houghs Neck are being put in position. The building will make an imposing looking structure when completed.

A whist party will be held on the lawn of the residence of R. J. Teasdale next Tuesday evening for the benefit of the Parkway table at the St. Mary's lawn party.

It is probable that when the School Committee send the plans for the new Montclair school building to the City Council they will send the plans for the Wollaston school along at the same time, as they desire both buildings built this year.

The keel of the second dreadnought for Argentina under the contract with the Fore River Shipbuilding Company, was laid today at Camden, N. J. Most of the Argentina naval officers stationed at Quincy left for Camden yesterday.

William Patterson, the Wollaston florist, who entered the Fourth of July parade with a wagon beautifully decorated with crimson rambler roses, was most generous with his flowers, scattering pinks and roses all along the route of the procession.

GET MARRIAGE LICENSE

Engagement of Thomas and Mrs. Gould No Longer a Secret

New York July 9.—Mrs. Helen K. Gould, the divorced wife of Frank J. Gould, set at rest all rumors about her second marriage by driving to the city hall with the sweetheart of her early youth, Ralph H. Thomas, and procuring a marriage license. Every detail as to when and where the marriage was to take place was kept a profound secret.

Mr. Thomas gave his age as 28. He wrote the single word "Sugar" in reply to the question as to his occupation. He said he was born in Boston, and that he now lived at 763 Fifth avenue. This was to be his first marriage.

EIGHT MILES OVER OCEAN

Curtiss Gives Fine Exihbition With Biplane at Atlantic City

Atlantic City, N. J., July 9.—Glenn H. Curtiss thrilled thousands of spectators when he made a daring flight in his aeroplane over the ocean. In ten minutes he covered eight miles and then descended.

Later 5000 spectators were excited by a daring aerial race between Curtiss in his own type of aeroplane and Walter Brookins in a Wright biplane. They raced along the beach one above the other between the two Youngs' piers. Curtiss easily outdistanced the heavier Wright machine.

John D. Passes Three Score and Ten

Cleveland, July 9.—John D. Rockefeller celebrated his 71st birthday anniversary in the same manner he spends practically very other day of his summers at Forest Hill. There were several telegrams of congratulations from friends.

Plague Death In Honolulu

Honolulu, July 9.—The first death here from bubonic plague in three years has occurred. There have been two or three cases of plague in the last few months, but no deaths since July 17, 1907.

Louisiana Kills Income Tax

Baton Rouge, La., July 9.—The Louisiana general assembly adjourned without date after the proposed federal income tax amendment failed in the senate.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

Campaign Against Films of Reno Fight Is Growing

PICTURE MEN HEED PROTEST

Say It Will Not Be Necessary to Get Out Injunctions, as They Will Lay Pictures on the Shelf If They Find Public Sentiment Is Against Them—Keith Forbids Their Exhibition In Any of His Vaudeville Houses

Boston, July 9.—The movement to bar the motion pictures of the Jeffries-Johnson fight, which had its inception in Boston under the management of William Shaw, secretary of the United Society of Christian Endeavor, not only won success in Boston, but has spread throughout the entire world, word coming from England, Calcutta and Melbourne that protests against the exhibition have been made and will probably be successful.

Governor Draper has replied to Shaw that the question is one over which he has no jurisdiction, the statutes placing the matter in the hands of the mayors of cities.

Several more messages from governors expressing sympathy with the movement were received by Shaw. In several instances where the governors have said they had no legal power to prevent the exhibition, they have said they would use all their influence to have local authorities stop them.

B. F. Keith, the vaudeville manager, has issued orders to the managers of his various theatres throughout the country that under no circumstances would he allow any moving pictures of the Jeffries-Johnson contest to be exhibited in any theatre in which he is interested.

Dispatches from Chicago quote George Kleine, William Selig and George A. Spoor, members of the moving picture syndicate, as saying: "No effort will be made to show the pictures in any city or town where adverse legislation has been taken. It will not be necessary to get out injunctions, for this combine does not propose to buck against the law of any city or state. If we find public sentiment is against these pictures we will lay them on the shelf."

A New York dispatch says: "The statement of Messrs. Kleine, Selig and Spoor as to our attitude on the exhibition of the Jeffries-Johnson fight pictures correctly represents our atttitude as nearly as can be stated at this time," said William T. Rock of the Vitagraph Company of America in his offices, shortly after his arrival here from Reno with the original films of the fight pictures in his possession.

AN ELUSIVE FUGITIVE

Police Finally Come Upon Him Hidden In Roll of Carpet

Trenton, July 9.—Joseph Wagner of Trenton, for whom the police have been searching for a month as the result of non-support proceedings, was arrested after the police had defied a pack of ferocious bulldogs which had been collected by the prisoner to protect him.

Wagner was found hidden in a roll of carpet. He said he had rolled the carpet about him to escape the flies. He had been eluding the police by living along the river bank and swimming to Pennsylvania whenever pursued. A week ago two policemen chasing him in a canoe almost lost their lives.

TWO YEARS FOR BIGAMY

Boston Man Admits In Court That He Has Three Wives

Boston, July 9.—Claude L. Ashmore, 50 years old, a painter and decorator, was confronted by two wives in the municipal criminal court. He was sentenced to spend two years in the house of correction.

Before the case had gone far it developed that Ashmore has a third wife. She is in a sanitarium in Rhode Island. Two children, resulting from this union, live in Roxbury.

When the case was called and Ashmore asked what he would plead he said: "Not guilty." When the testimony had all been taken and Judge Parmenter asked him what he had to say then, he said: "It's all true, Your Honor; I'm guilty."

Shook Held In $6500

Boston, July 9.—Albert G. Shook, alleged hotel beat and choir singer, was held in $6500 bail until July 14. The man who recently had his photograph taken, attired in a Prince Albert suit and with one hand resting on a Bible, seemed to take the court proceedings as an amusing interlude and pleaded not guilty to the charges.

Monteiro's Victims Still Alive

New Bedford, Mass., July 9.—Mrs. Senna Lopes, who was shot by Manuel R. Monteiro, is in a serious condition and the physicians are unable to state whether or not she will recover. Her daughter Mathilda, who was also shot by Monteiro, was not seriously hurt. Monteiro is held under $7500 bail.

BARONESS DE LA ROCHE

Is Seriously Hurt In Plunge of 160 Feet

FAMOUS AS AVIATOR

Baroness de la Roche Meets With Serious Accident at Rheims

Rheims, July 9.—Baroness de la Roche was badly injured here by falling from a height of 160 feet. The baroness had flown around the field once at a height of 260 feet, when suddenly in front of the applauding tribunes she appeared to become frightened and confused at the approach of two other aeroplanes.

She started to descend, but while still 160 feet from the ground lost control of the machine. The aeroplane turned over and fell like a log. The baroness' legs and arms were broken.

While momentarily conscious the baroness explained that the rush of air from a motor passing over her head had frightened her. She cut the ignition and lost control of her machine.

The baroness was one of the pioneers of aviation. She had also driven motorboats in races and automobiles at exhibitions and as soon as flying became practical she learned how to manage the biplane.

$250,000 FEE FOR YERKES RECEIVER

Master In Chancery Does Not Think Amount Exorbitant

Chicago, July 9.—Two hundred and fifty thousand dollars is the fee demanded and may be paid to Clarence A. Knight, attorney, for services rendered in straightening out the estate of Charles T. Yerkes, the late traction magnate.

Granville W. Browning, master in chancery, who was appointed as referee by Judge Cutting of the probate court, declared that the fee is just and not exorbitant. He not only gave it as his opinion that Knight was entitled to the full quarter million, but that he deserved it for honest and loyal work in recouping the dissipating properties following the street car man's death in 1905.

Trustees and beneficiaries have been fighting through the courts for the various possessions left by Yerkes both in the United States and in England.

PERJURY CHARGED

Milliner Said to Have Sworn Falsely In Bankruptcy Case

Boston, July 9.—Miss Minnie T. O'Connell, a milliner of Everett, was arrested yesterday, charged with perjury and concealment of assets in bankruptcy proceedings.

Miss O'Connell, who is 30 years old, was adjudicated bankrupt on Feb. 14, with liabilities of $1137.32 and assets of $637. It is alleged that during the proceedings which followed she testified falsely, for the purpose of concealing $300 from her trustee in bankruptcy, that she had paid the money to her landlady for board.

When arraigned before Commissioner Hayes she pleaded not guilty, and was held in $300 for a hearing next week.

GOES ABROAD AGAIN

Kermit Roosevelt Sails, With Paris as His Objective Point

New York, July 9.—Although he was abroad nearly fifteen months with his father and has been home less than a month, Kermit Roosevelt is going abroad again.

He sailed today on the Hamburg-American liner Amerika, with Paris as his objective point. Why he goes and how long he will be gone neither he nor Colonel Roosevelt has said.

More Records at Rheims

Rheims, July 9.—Two aviators broke the records at the meeting here yesterday. Hubert Latham covered the distance of 93.22 miles in 2 hours, 1 minute, 6 seconds, and afterwards the Belgian, Olieslagers, did it in 1 hour, 58 minutes, 20 seconds.

New Opera House For London

London, July 9.—Oscar Hammerstein is to build a magnificent opera house here next year on a lavish scale.

HAS $100,000 FOR RAINY DAY

Jack Johnson Deposits That Amount In Chicago Bank

CHARGES OF CROOKED WORK

Claims of Rickard and Hart That Negro Was Offered $100,000 to Lay Down In Ring Are Confirmed by Champion, Who Is Certain That Jeffries Knew Nothing of the Matter—Rickard to Sue Gillett

Chicago, July 9.—Champion Jack Johnson got away from his enthusiastic friends long enough yesterday to deposit $100,000 in the First National bank, to buy a new $3000 automobile for his mother to use while he is out of the city, and again to confirm Tex Rickard and Sig Hart in their claims that Johnson was offered $100,000 if he would lay down in the big fight.

It is believed that eastern gamblers were interested in the movement. Johnson says the proposition was made by George Little, at that time his manager, who said the pictures would be worth a million dollars more if they depicted Jeffries winning in the eighth round or thereabouts.

Johnson at first thought Little was joking, but when the subject came up the third time, he broke all negotiations with Little and ordered him kept out of the camp. The attempted frameup was kept secret, as it would have injured the fight.

Johnson is certain Jeffries knew nothing of the trickery and says the boilermaker would have done just as he did—refused to enter into any crooked deal.

Johnson and Sig Hart also confirm the story that attempts were made to dope him, presumably the work of crooks who had bet heavily on Jeffries. Cotton, his trainer, got the dope instead and has been ill ever since. These facts may explain why certain New York and Chicago gamblers bet heavily that Johnson would not come up for the eighth round.

Denial by Little's Lawyer

San Francisco, July 9.—That George Little did not make a proposition to Jack Johnson to throw the fight, but that the split between the Chicago manager and the champion was directly due to Little's fear that Johnson would lay down, is the statement made by Frank McEvoy, who acted as attorney for Little during the preliminary details of the fight. Little is on his way to Chicago.

Rickard Will Sue Gillett

San Francisco, July 9.—Tex Rickard declares he will file a suit for $25,000 or $30,000 damages next week against Governor Gillett, because the governor had assured four of his friends that nothing could be done legally to stop a fight. Then, contends Rickard, when he had spent much money, the governor stepped in and forced him to take the fight to Reno.

IS LIKELY TO HOLD ON

Tracewell Has Been Comptroller of Treasury Nearly Thirteen Years

Washington, July 9.—Robert J. Tracewell in a few days will complete his thirteenth year as comptroller of the treasury. With but one exception he has broken all records for service in this office. The exception is in the case of Joseph Anderson of Tennessee, the first comptroller, who served continuously for twenty-one years, and was then summarily dismissed by President Jackson because he refused to take orders from the president.

Tracewell has served under three presidents and is universally spoken of as the ablest comptroller the treasury has ever had. In the thirteen years he has written about 32,500 opinions, or an average of 2500 a year. Recently there have been many changes in the treasury department, but there has been no intimation that the Indiana man is not to continue to hold on.

SYNOPSIS

A party of titled passengers on a ship bound for Australia visit a section "below decks" where a gang of convicts sentenced to deportation are confined. The ship, the Lord Nelson is wrecked. A convict, the "Frisco Pet," jumps overboard with Jocelyn Wray, a pretty little girl. The convict, after returning the girl to her friends is himself later cast away alone on a deserted island. Years have passed. Lord Ronsdale and other members of the party wrecked on the Lord Nelson, including Jocelyn Wray, go to the criminal courts in London to hear John Steele, a famous young lawyer, try a case. Steele and Jocelyn meet and form a liking for each other. Lord Ronsdale, who wou'd marry Jocelyn, forms a violent dislike for Steele. Ronsdale had at the wreck of the Lord Nelson prevented the rescue of the "Frisco Pet" by a lifeboat. Ronsdale is startled at the sight of a tattoo mark on Steele's arm.

CHAPTER VIII.

A CONFERENCE AND A DISCOVERY.

THE bookworms' row, hardly a street, more a short cut passage between two important thoroughfares, had through the course of many years exercised a subtle fascination for pedant, pedagogue or itinerant litterateur. Higher, above the little shops, small rooms, reached by rickety stairways, offered quiet corners for divers and sundry gentlemen whose occupations called for discreet and retired nooks.

In one of these places, described on the door as "a private, confidential inquiry office," sat on the morning following John Steele's ride in the park a little man with ferret-like eyes at a dusty desk near a dusty window. He did not seem to be very busy—was engaged at the moment in drawing meaningless caballistic signs on a piece of paper when a step in the hallway and a low tapping at the door caused him to throw down his pen and straighten expectantly. A client perhaps—a woman—no, a man! With momentary surprise he gazed on the delicately chiseled features of his caller, a gentleman faultlessly dressed and wearing a spring flower in his coat.

The police agent at once rose. "The same, sir, at your service. I—but I beg your pardon. Unless I am mistaken—haven't we"—

"Yes, a number of years ago on the Lord Nelson," said the caller in a hard, matter of fact tone. "We were fellow passengers on her until"—

"We became fellow occupants of one of her small boats. An aging experience! But won't you," with that deference for rank and position those of his type are pleased to assume, "honor me by being seated, Lord Ronsdale?"

The visitor looked at the table, the window, anywhere save at the proprietor of the establishment, then said, "I saw by an advertisement in the morning papers that you had severed your connection with the force and had opened this—a private consultation bureau."

"Quite so." The other looked momentarily embarrassed. "A little friction—account of some case—unreliable witness that got tangled up. They undertook to criticise me after all my faithful service"— He broke off. "Besides, the time comes when a man realizes he can do better for himself by himself. I am now devoting myself to a small but strictly high class," with an accent, "clientele."

Lord Ronsdale considered. When he spoke his voice was low, but it did not caress the ear. "You know John Steele, of course?"

The ferret eyes snapped. "That I do, your lordship. What of him?" quickly.

"Ever think much about the Lord Nelson, Gillett?"

"She isn't a boat one's apt to forget after what happened, your lordship," was the answer. "And, if I do say it, her passengers were of the kind to leave pleasant recollections," the police agent diplomatically added.

"Her passengers?" The caller's thin lips compressed. "Among them, if memory serves me, were a number of convicts?"

"A job lot of precious jailbirds that I was acting as escort of, your lordship."

"But who never reached Australia!" quickly.

"Drowned—every mother's son of them!" observed Mr. Gilliett, with a possible trace of complacency.

The visitor's white hand held closer the head of his cane. "Were they all drowned, by the way?" he observed as if seeking casual information on some subject that had partly passed from his mind.

"No doubt of it. They were not released until the second boat got off, and then there was no time to get overboard the life rafts."

"True." Lord Ronsdale gazed absently out of the window. "Recall the day on that memorable voyage you were telling us about them—who they were, and so on?

"One, if I recall rightly," went on Lord Ronsdale, "was known as—let me see"—the elastic stick described a sharper curve—"the Frisco Pet? Remember?" He bent slightly nearer.

"That I do. Not likely to forget him. Unmanageable; one of the worst. Was transported for life, with death as a penalty for returning." A slight sound came from the nobleman's throat.

Lord Ronsdale's eyes half closed. "A heavy fisted, shapely brute, with muscles like steel, but ignorant." He lingered on the word. Then his glance suddenly lifted. "Had something on his arm; recall noticing it while the bout was on!"

Mr. Gillett, with a knowing expression, rose, took a volume from a bookcase and opened it.

"The 'something' you speak of, my lord," he observed proudly, "should be here. I will show it that you may appreciate my system, the method I have of gathering and tabulating data. You will find an encyclopedia of information in that bookcase. All that Scotland Yard has and perhaps a little besides. To illustrate, here's his case." Gillett's fingers moved lightly over the page. "'Testimony of Dandy Joe, downstairs at the time with landlady who kept the house where the crime was committed. Heard Frisco Pet, who had been drinking, come in, go upstairs, as they supposed, to his own room; shortly after loud voices; pistol shot. Landlady and Joe found woman, Amy Gerard, dead in shabby little sitting room. Pet, the worse for liquor, in dazed condition at a table, head in his hands. Testimony of Joe corroborated by landlady. She swore no one had been in house except parties here mentioned, all lodgers.

"'Private mem.—House in bad neighborhood, near the Adelphi catacombs. Son of landlady, red headed giant, also one time prizefighter, used to live here. The Pet's last fight in the ring was with him. Later Tom took to the road. Was wanted by the police at the time of the crime for some brutal highway work'— But," breaking off, "I am wearying your lordship. Here are what I was especially looking for, the markings on the arm of the Frisco Pet. Perhaps, however, your lordship doesn't care to listen further."

"Go on!" The words broke sharply from the visitor's lips; then he gave a metallic laugh. "I am interested in this wonderful system of yours."

Mr. Gillett read slowly. "'On the right arm of the Frisco Pet, just below the elbow, appears the figure of a man in sparring attitude done in sailor's tattooing; about the waist a flag, the stars and stripes in their accustomed colors crudely drawn, but not to be mistaken by noting following defects and details'—which," closing the book, "I won't read."

HIS AGE AGAINST HIM

Mosby, Once a Noted Guerilla Fighter, Loses Government Job

Washington, July 9.—Colonel John S. Mosby, who distinguished himself in the confederate cause during the Civil war as a daring guerilla fighter and in the early part of President Roosevelt's administration was appointed a special officer in the department of justice, has lost his government position.

The reason therefor has not been made known, but it is understood old age was the main cause for the dismissal.

A BOSTON GIRL'S BUDGET.

Hubbites Who Have Hardly Heard of Declaration of Independence—How President Taft Loomed in Boston's Patriotic Celebration — Safe and Sane Fourth May Become a Permanent Fixture—Women Devotees of Moving Picture Shows Probably Won't Miss It, if Reno Reproduction is Prohibited—Persian Women are Not Alone in Serving as Soldiers of the Common Good.

Take heart, all you who think that happy childhood's right to blow off its pickers and stealers once a year with dynamite crackers ought to be curtailed. The American Athens has lived through a safe and sane Fourth which was so comfortable that plans are already under way for repeating it next year. With the exception of one or two minor mishaps the day was quite as enjoyable to the children and much more so to the grown people as under the old plan, while the list of casualties was many times smaller. It is predicted that the national holiday next year will be even saner and safer.

What with craning to see President Taft who, as always, loomed large, watching parades, turning to look after pretty school ma'ams and their well dressed escorts, and gazing at the fireworks of a safe and sane holiday, Miss Boston's overworked neck is quite lame. The days succeeding the Fourth found Copley Square so full of gaily colored gowns, fluttering badges and smiling faces that the citizen accustomed to its usual dignified and sober aspect was dazed for the moment. The most important feature of the Independence Day celebration was the presence of President Taft in the city and his address to the visiting convention at the Harvard Stadium. The spectacle at this occasion was one which so inspired the President himself that he apologized for preparing the address he had. "The occasion is one," said the President, "which makes me feel like soaring into the blue and dealing with nothing but the highest patriotic thoughts." Thereafter the teachers owned the town, and got everywhere the warm reception they deserved.

John and Jeffries, multiplied by one hundred, may find themselves consigned to the limbo of mere curiosities of record. Incidentally certain good ladies of the Hub who are in the habit of squandering ten or twenty cents of their husband's hard earned salary by indulging in a weekly visit to the moving picture shows will, according to the intention of Mayor Fitzgerald, be spared from witnessing the spectacle which has had the country by the ears for the last few days. The pictures of the fight at Reno will be barred, says the Mayor, in common with sensible and right minded officials of other cities. Therefore if there are any women in Boston who have a longing to watch the degrading and unpleasant spectacle of blood, black eyes and brutality they will have to go elsewhere to enjoy it. It is doubtful, however, if there will be much disappointment felt. Hero worship in this city generally strikes at something higher.

Are the Shah's subjects ahead of us in suffrage? News dispatches from Persia have been commented upon as unfavorable to the methods of English and American suffragists. A well known periodical says editorially: "There are suffragettes in London and suffragists in New York, but their activities do not seem to have any marked effect on politics in either country. They break windows in Downing street and hold assemblies in Madison Square, without affecting the budget, the tariff, the Lords, or the 'insurgents.' In Persia, however, women have shown themselves to be a real power. They have become a financial power in the State." The article goes on to explain that the Persian women have banded themselves together to oppose a foreign loan, and are selling their most valuable jewelry in order to fill the public purse, while delegations of young women press round the public buildings vowing to sacrifice all for the holy cause of patriotism. This is cheerfully admitted to be very noble, and all that sort of thing, but the editor seems to be either ill-informed or slightly prejudiced. English and American women certainly have accomplished something besides throwing stone and discoursing in public squares. They may not be financial powers in the sense that the Persian women have become, but they are a potent factor in the improvement of moral, educational and civic conditions in both countries. The work which the suffrage associations in Boston have done recently in connection with the National Education Association convention alone is indicative of the importance of their position in the community. The School-Voters' League of Boston is an offshoot of the suffrage association which is constantly growing in power. Woman's hand is everywhere felt in civic improvements through the Women's Municipal League; among the wage earning women through the Woman's Trades Union League; in welfare and social work through the Women's Educational and Industrial Union; and many of the proposed laws for the betterment of the moral life of the community are directly or indirectly due to the influence of the suffragists. Many English and American women are giving their whole lives and strength to the cause which they believe to be for the good of country and its future citizens, and who can say that theirs is a lesser sacrifice than that of the Persian women in selling their jewels for the cause of their country?

The success which the Playgrounds Association of one of the Hub's suburbs is meeting should be encouraging to advocates of the playground idea everywhere. This association last year inaugurated a system of summer classes to be held in the municipal playgrounds, and over two thousand of the boys and girls in the district have been in daily attendance. The desire for comradeship and accomplishment has been found to supersede the joys of freedom from school life. In this way many children have been given healthful, enjoyable occupation who otherwise would be playing about the streets or other undesirable locations. The summer classes hold two sessions just as in the winter, and the pupils give every evidence of happiness in their profitable employment.

Interest in a certain antique and—some say—antiquated document has been revived in Boston. The Old State House, which has lately been returned to its original condition and appearance after having suffered for several years in an "improved" state, was the scene on July 4th of a reproduction of the stirring events of one hundred and thirty-four years before. A young student dressed in colonial costume and accompanied by six of his schoolmates, two as attendants and the others as buglers, read the Declaration of Independence from an old parchment printed in Boston in the year that it was first read. It is true to modern Boston to note that the large crowd which listened betrayed a surprisingly slight acquaintance with the contents of the paper read by the young orator. However, they were there, and not eagerly awaiting returns from Reno.

TOUR OF GREENLAND TO LAST SIX YEARS

Rasumssen Will Incidentally Interview Cook's Eskimos

Copenhagen, July 9.—Knud Rasmussen, the Danish explorer, will sail from here tomorrow for Greenland on an exploration tour which will last six years. Peter Freuchen, the Greenland expert, has promised to join the expedition and witness his (Rasmussen's) cross-examination of Dr. Cook's Eskimos.

The expedition will go first to Melville bay, which will be charted. A substantial house will be built there which will be at the disposal of future Arctic expeditions. Rasmussen will also try to find Crooker's island, which was seen by Commander Peary in latitude 85 degrees.

How Quincy Citizens Can Find Complete Freedom From Kidney Troubles.

If you suffer from backache—
From urinary disorders—
From any disease of the kidneys,
Be cured to stay cured.
Doan's Kidney Pills make lasting cures.
Grateful people testify.
Here's one case of it:

C. H. Foster, 180 Thatcher street, Milton Mass., says: "The symptoms of kidney trouble in my case were not serious at first and I paid little attention to them. The result was that before long I found myself firmly in the grasp of this complaint. I became so weak that I could hardly attend to my work and I also suffered from sharp pains in various parts of my body. I lost twenty pounds in weight and could not sleep well. I was very nervous, had no energy and was in such poor health that the doctor told me that I should take to my bed. I did not do this, however, being unwilling to give up. When I saw Doan's Kidney Pills advertised, I procured a supply and had only taken part of the contents of one box before I began to feel better. From that time on I improved steadily until I was well." (Statement given May 1905.)

A Permanent Effect.

On June 24, 1908, Mr. Foster added: "My former endorsement of Doan's Kidney Pills still holds good. I have been free from kidney complaint during the years that have passed since I first took the remedy."

BRIEFS

Post 88 G. A. R. of this city has been presented by Paul Revere Woman's Relief Corps with twenty-five dollars.

The contract for furnishing the paving blocks for the Hancock street job will probably be awarded on Monday.

The Grand Army and Woman's Relief Corps of Norfolk County will go to Bass Point next Tuesday for an outing.

The latest timetable of the Street Railway for all the routes in and out of Quincy is published in another column. Better read it and get posted so as not to lose your car and and have a long wait for the next one.

J. Frederick Johnson left yesterday to return to his work in Eureka, Utah. Mr. Johnson has passed the last month with his mother, relatives and friends. He has renewed old acquaintances, and had a very pleasant time.

BRAINTREE

Mrs. Max Blau of Princeton, N. J., is the guest of her mother, Mrs. A. A. Ellsworth at Quincy.

Mrs. George H. Davis of School street entertained on Friday her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hardwick of Quincy.

Mr. G. H. Wetherbee, civil engineer assisted by Gardner Wilson are in New York state on a surveying contract.

The First Congregational church committee of education after carefully considering the graded system for Sunday schools will make its report to the teachers and officers at the close of the bible school next Sunday.

Contractor J. H. G. Robinson has contract and Thursday commenced the erection of a seven room house, with all modern conveniences, for Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Hadley, on Washington street opposite Mr. Spinney's store. Mr. Hadley is a conductor on the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. and resides on Summer street, South Braintree.

Special attention is called to the morning service to be held at All Souls church, Braintree, on July tenth. The speaker of occasion is to be a negro William J. Edwards, principal of the Snow Bill Normal and Industrial Institute of Snow Hill, Alabama. All sessions of the Sunday school have suspended until the second Sunday in September.

The annual picnic of All Souls' Sunday school was held Wednesday at Ridge Hill grove, Norwell. There was a large attendance the trip being made in a large special electric car. Wilson's orchestra of Quincy, four pieces, rendered popular music and dancing was enjoyed. Ice cream and cake were served free to all. The picnic was in charge of the young men in Mr. C. A. Boyce's class and the Samaritan society.

DEATHS.

HUCKINS—In East Milton, July 7, Mr. Albert Huckins of 15 Mechanics street, aged 66 years, 8 months.

Established 1870 Telephone
JOHN HALL
FUNERAL DIRECTOR
Carriage and Ambulance Service

SOUTH BRAINTREE.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Hannaford of Hancock street left on Friday for their summer home at Woods Hole.

Mrs. Ezra H. Waitte of Hancock street has been the guest this week of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Gage of Springfield.

Mrs. George H. Parkinson is resting comfortably at Winthrop where she is spending a portion of the summer. She is improving daily.

Rev. C. F. H. Crathern and Mrs. Sarah D. Tarbell made the journey to Mason, N. H., this week, where the family are spending the summer.

Mrs. W. S. Tracy and daughter, Miss Anna Tracey, are spending the month of July at Sagamore hill, Nantasket.

Miss Clara Connel has concluded the term's teaching at Rahway, New Jersey, and returned to her home on Hancock street.

Mrs. Flora S. Mathewson is sojourning at Lake Boone, Gleasondale, Mass., with her friend, Mrs. George R. Hall, of Marlboro, at her summer cottage.

Messrs. G. Dallas Willis, J. Frank Hobart, Carl Lothrop, Edward Cuff and Moses McGay left South Braintree Tuesday morning at six o'clock in Mr. Willis' touring car for a few days' outing at York Beach, Maine.

Mrs. Henry T. Cushman of Hall avenue has returned from Newport, Quebec, where she has been the guest of relatives for the past two weeks.

The employees of the local shoe factories have been enjoying a few days rest occasioned by the shut down during the week of the glorious fourth.

Residents of Pond and Town streets and Dewey and Porter avenues chipped together and had quite a brilliant display of fireworks in Sampson's field, Monday evening.

The members of Hose 2 and H & L 2 were called to a woods fire Thursday evening near the Randolph line, which proved to be partly in that town. There have been several fires this season in that section.

The next meeting of the Sons of Veterans Auxiliary No. 16 occurs next Monday evening, the eleventh and a full attendance of members is desired as there are four candidates to be balloted for.

Miss Edith Lynds who has been making her home for the past six months with Mr. and Mrs. Walter Poole of Hall avenue left for her home in Truro, Nova Scotia, Thursday. She will spend the summer there.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Frank Foster and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Gilbert of Hartford, Ct., were guests on Saturday, July 2, of Mr. and Mrs. Foster F. Tupper. On Sunday the six with Mrs. Lucy Whitty attended a family reunion and dinner at Kingston, Mass.

Miss Mary F. McDonough of Roxbury, was the only passenger injured when the Cape Cod express crashed into the freight train at Braintree Highlands, Wednesday. A. W. Whittemore, the fireman was most seriously injured. In jumping from the engine he fractured a shoulder and leg.

The many friends of Mr. I. W. Gammons who have received "Tips," the July number, are pleased to see his genial face on page three. Mr. Gammons says "I didn't grow to look like this from carrying around a grouch." "Tips" is issued every month at 166 Essex street, Boston, and we know it will receive the tips with Bro. Gammons interested in it.

The many friends of Lester W. French, 223 Franklin street, will be sorry to hear of his illness which will make it necessary for him to retire from active life and be under a physician's care for at least one year. About four months ago on account of failing health he was obliged to give up a good position with Cobb, Bates & Yerxa, Boston. He has also been obliged to give up his studies in the International Correspondence school of Mechanical drawing his percentage being the highest of any student in the district. He has resigned his position as trap drummer in a Brockton orchestra where he had proven himself as very efficient.

—One reason why Uncle Sam is so extravagant is that he can borrow money so cheap. Just think of all the high jinks he will have on the postal savings bank funds loaned him at but 2 per cent.—Beverly Times.

Town Topics.

New York persists in the thought that it is a world's fair in itself. It has all the sideshows anyway.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

A Boston professor says the world will be crazy in 265 years. The world is not inclined to give Boston that long.—Chattanooga News.

Chicago has cut its high school course to two years in order to induce pupils to abandon the habit of quitting school at the end of the grade courses. If the Windy City would double the length of the vacations it might also reduce truancy.—St. Paul Pioneer Press.

Wireless Whispers.

There are eighteen recognized systems of wireless telegraphy.

The number of wireless stations on the coasts of the maritime nations of the world is placed at 416.

It is contemplated to establish wireless telegraph stations in German East Africa, Togoland, Kamerun and German Southwest Africa and also between the different German south sea colonies.

State Lines.

More than 5,000,000 rose trees have been planted in Oregon since the movement was started three years ago by the Rose Festival association.

Of the 1,000,000 horsepower which the rivers of Minnesota are estimated to be capable of producing less than one-third has been made available.

SPORTING CHAT.

Quincy plays Dewey at Weymouth today and the score ought to stand about 4-3, or 3-2, in favor of Mike's "ball Sheasers." A very hard fought game. Stoughton at Rockland. Stoughton ought to cap. Lincoln at Randolph and the former looks good for a low close score victory.

Matty Nichall starts in with Rockland today, taking Hamilton's place. Here's luck to Matty. He has played good ball for Makaria for the last few years.

A letter has been received from popular Sid Patterson. Sid is pitching in the Manhattan city league, Manhattan, Kansas, and has won 7 out of 9 games, beside landing two hits per games. He likes Kansas first rate.

The Makarias have a good game on their hands today. Either Dewey or Balch will oppose them on the mound.

• • •

Howard and Fish will probably do the battery work for Quincy against the dangerous Deweys. Donovan, a new man from Yale University, will adorn short field. Besides being a comer at that position he can hurl a little. Nowell is getting his fielding eye again, and will bat heavily. He used to play first.

Alex Hall of South Quincy is a dyed-in-the wool fan, and in order to boost batting he has promised a pair of shoes to the first man who gets a home run on the home ground. After that first one the offer is null and void.

The local tossers will subscribe for a present for President Murphy of the Old Colony League when he makes a home run and gets married. It will happen soon.

Charley Knight of the Adams will probably receive an inspection from Mike Shea. So just pitch the best that's in you Charles all the time.

Amateur golfers from all parts of the State are holding an open tourney today at Montclair. It is the big medal play handicap event.

• • •

The semi finals for the press golf championship are being played today by J. F. O'Connell of the Herald and R. E. Van Amringe of the Transcript.

FINANCIAL MARKET.

The country is still passing through a process of readjustment rendered necessary by an unusually long period of activity, prosperity and extravagance. Reaction was inevitable when the upward movement had exhausted itself; the point of exhaustion being marked by weakening of the nation's purchasing power. For some time past it has been self-evident that the latter stage had been touched. Securities, luxuries and commodities had all reached a point beyond the power of buyers ,and reaction was unavoidable. Fortunately it has come without any symptons of panic. There are many reasons for recent declines; none of which, however, would have been so potent as they have been had it not been that the time was ripe for readjustment. The reaction was unwelcome, as all such movements are, being accompanied by more or less depression, and symptons of political irritation. The truth is that underlying condtiions rendered a return to lower and more stable levels imperative. The gun was well loaded ,and only some favorable development was necessary for pulling the trigger.

It is premature to assume that the final turning point has yet been reached, and no surprise need be expressed if later on the market again reacts. On the other hand, many stocks look exceedingly cheap at present prices ,especially when compared with current rates of interest. Good stocks more than carry themselves at these figures ,and this is a condition which appeals powerfully to operators of prudence and means. Rumors of dividend reductions on several important systems have proved false the old rates on St. Paul and Atchison having been declared. The wheat crop situation is not very satisfactory but the outlook for corn and oats is good. The indications are for an irregular market. Securities of proven earning power bought at present prices will eventually yield handsome profits. But until the political and financial clouds disappear more completely, it will be safe to use exceptional caution in all speculative operations.—Henry Clews, Banker, New York.

COSTLY ERRORS IN BASEBALL

Players Turned Down by Some Clubs Shine With Others.

WHEAT A NOTABLE EXAMPLE.

Brooklyn's Star Outfielder Once Turned Down by Cleveland For Weak Hitting Now a Sensation With the Willow—Hoblitzel Another Case.

Costly baseball mistakes are not confined to the owners or the managers of any one club. Run through the list of players of any major league club and you will find it easy to point out where this or that manager made a mistake in not taking a young player when he had the chance, in trading off a man who developed into a star when he joined another club or held on to a certain player until he became useless, as early as one year after a large sum had been offered for him

There's Dick Hoblitzel of the Cincinnati Reds. The Pittsburg club had a chance to land him. He played ball with the Pittsburg college team. Pirate scouts looked him over at the time and later saw him in action in the Central league. Barney Dreyfuss himself said he wouldn't do because he had a bad throwing arm. Cincinnati got him, and he is now one of the most valuable players in the league.

Numerous major league scouts looked at Bob Bescher before he was pounced upon by Louis Heilbronner of the Reds. They were unable to see the making of a future star in him.

Mike Mitchell of the Reds was turned down by the Chicago club. Larry McLean was turned away from Chicago, Boston and St. Louis. Most any major league club would welcome any of these players with open arms.

Cincinnati once had Mathewson, Overall, Steinfeldt, Devlin, Seymour and several other players that have made good with other clubs.

Wheat of the Brooklyn club was turned down by Cleveland American league scouts. They said he couldn't hit. This season he is one of the sensations of the National league. Bridwell was considered a failure in both Cincinnati and Boston. He became a star in New York. Bransfield was once a member of the Pirates. He was let go and has been a good man for the Phillies.

Brooklyn was offered $10,000 each for Jordan and Lumley not so very long ago. The New York club's offer was turned down. Now they are both out of major league baseball.

Boston refused to trade Gus Dorner for Hans Lobert in 1908. Dorner is now having his troubles in the minors, and Lobert is playing great ball for the Reds. Ellis was turned down by the Reds without a trial. He is doing good work for the Cardinals.

Elmer Flick, the American leaguer who played such grand ball for the old Phillies and later starred with the Clevelands, was recommended to the Reds. A man was sent to look him over. He reported that Flick could not hit, and Elmer went to Philadelphia.

Batting Hard to Understand.

"Batting is a queer thing," explains Fred Clarke of the Pittsburg Nationals. "Being a player myself, I appreciate the slumps in the team's batting, for I know how it is myself. You hear the fans say that this team or that team cannot hit this pitcher or that pitcher. That is all moonshine. When a team is hitting all pitchers look alike to them. But when these slumps come the boys can't hit a kid pitcher. I know it is that way with me, and it affects the others in the same way."

Catcher Gibson Wears Small Glove.

George Gibson of the Philadelphia Nationals wears the smallest glove of any catcher in the major league.

BOY DROWNED IN QUARRY HOLE

Two Companions See Ricardo Aja Drown Unable to Give Assistance

Police Recover Body This Morning With Grappling Irons

Ricardo Aja, aged 17 years was drowned Sunday afternoon while in bathing at the Ballou quarry, off Quarry street. Aja in company with Bitorsiano Pijano and Bitorsiano Cannaleas went to the Quarry hole for a swim. Neither of the three could swim so they contented themselves by sporting in the water on a ledge at one side of the quarry.

The water here was not deep but in their play Aja looked over the edge of the ledge and fell into the deep water. As he sank out of sight it is thought that his head struck a sharp rock or that he became caught in one of the ledge for the body did not rise.

Meanwhile his two companions stood spell bound and so thoroughly frightened that they did not know what to do. Another young man who was also bathing at the quarry dove for the body but was unable to locate it. Word was then sent to the police station and officers were sent to the scene with grappling irons. They worked until it became so dark, further efforts were useless.

The rescuers then gave up until this morning when further efforts were made to recover the body which it is believed is wedged among some of the many projecting ledges in the quarry.

Aja is a Spaniard and was learning the trade of a stone cutter and boarded at 14 Kidder street. It is said that he has a father and mother in Spain.

This morning Chief Burrell and special officer McKay again visited the quarry with their grappling irons and after considerable difficulty recovered the body which was turned over to an undertaker.

BUSY EVENING FOR FIREMEN

Hard Run to the Top of Breakneck Hill

Saturday night at a time when the air was sultry and the weather the hottest that it had been at any time during the day the firemen were called out by alarms. The first alarm was from Box 171 and was sounded at 9.14. This was for a fire in a mattress in a room on the top floor of a house on Newcomb place occupied by Charles Haag. It is said that one of the men in the house was smoking in bed and that hot ashes from his pipe caused the fire. There was considerable smoke but the fire was confined to the loss of the mattress.

The second alarm came from Box 47 at 9.57 and was for a fire in the engine house at the old Gold Leaf quarry on Breakneck hill, West Quincy. Not only was it a long hard run for the firemen but after arriving near the scene it was a tiresome job getting the aparatus anywhere near the fire. Then a line of hose was laid and the steamer threw a powerful stream onto the flames and soon had the fire under control. The building however was practically destroyed. The loss will be in the vicinity of $200. The quarry has not been worked for some time and the fire was evidently of incendiary origin.

SUCCESSFUL LAWN PARTY

Ladies Hold Party on Grounds of Atlantic M. E. Church

The Ladies' Aid of the Atlantic Methodist Episcopal church gave a lawn party on the old school house grounds Squantum street Saturday afternoon and evening.

The tables were in charge of the following: Pop corn, Mrs. Kinneburgh; cake, Mrs. Theodore Parlee; sandwiches, Mrs. Arthur Keeler; tonics, Mr. Fred Schomburg; peanuts, Miss Mary Beale; candy, Mrs. Fred Burr; ice cream, Theodore Parlee.

KING FINED $25.

The case of James J. King arrested for an asasult on Officer Charles Broberg, came before Judge Avery this morning.

Fourth of July morning Officer Broberg arrested a fellow named Smith for disorderly conduct in front of Hibernian hall where a dance was in progress. Smith was one of a large crowd which was later augmented by those attending the dance in the hall. These caused a disturbance and assaulted the officer in a body as he was taking his prisoner to the station house and he claims that King kicked him severely. King denied this on the witnesses testified that they did not see Broberg kicked at any time. However the officer's testimony was of such a convincing character and unshaken that Judge Avery fined King $25 and suspended sentence until December 1, 1910.

PISTOL DUEL AT BRAINTREE

Officer Loring Exchanges Shots With Burglar, Both Hit

Officer Amos J. Loring of Braintree had a lively pistol duel with John C. Leahy of 33 Millett street, Dorchester, in a blind attic in the house of William Leahy on Factory hill, Braintree, Saturday afternoon. There have been numerous daylight burglaries at Braintree of late and Saturday Officer Loring went looking for suspicious characters in the woods near the Quincy line. Here he met Leahy and followed him for a while and then called upon him to stop. Leahy turned and made some remark and then ran onto the Fore River railroad tracks where the officer lost sight of him.

Officer Leahy then went to the house of William Leahy where he learned that the man wanted was in hiding in a blind attic. Standing on the top rail of a bed the officer stuck his head through the hole leading to the attic and lit a match to see if he could locate his man. Just then a Two more shots rang out before the stinging sensation in his left breast. Two more shots rang out before the officer brought his own gun into play and fired two shots.

A cry of "I've shot myself in the heart and am dead" came from Leahy as he tumbled through the hole to officer's feet. Leahy was taken to the office of Dr. Mullen where it was found he had received two bullets, one in the right breast and one in the left arm. The bullet that hit Officer Loring had made a flesh wound across his breast without going in very deeply. After having the wounds dressed Leahy was locked up The pistol taken from Leahy proved to be one that was stolen from the house of Mr. Smith on Quincy avenue last week.

Leahy was arraigned in court this morning on two complaints. One for assault with attempt to murder and the second for breaking and entering. He was held in $10,000 on the first complaint and $3,00 on the second until later for hearing.

SKULL WAS FRACTURED.

A Boston paper states that James J. Eagan, 42 years old, of Quincy, is in a dying condition at the Boston city hospital suffering from a fractured skull. Eagan was found late Saturday night lying on the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. tracks in South Boston, near Southampton street, and was removed to the hospital.

How he happened to be where he was found is a mystery to the police, unless he fell from a railroad train. He was unconscious when found.

RUNAWAY AT HOUGHS NECK

Horse Dashes into Lake with Wagon Load of People

The breaking of a part of the harness of a horse attached to a three-seated carriage caused the animal to run away on Island avenue, Houghs Neck Sunday afternoon and aside from giving the nine occupants of the carriage a good scare furnished much amusement for the crowd that had gathered. The horse was one of Harry Clayman's of South Quincy and with him were Miss Mollie Rottenberg, Miss Bessie Greenspoon and Rebecca Greenspoon of Boston, Louis Cutler, Mrs. Rosie Cutler, Ike Clayman, Sarah Clayman and Rebecca Clayman of South Quincy.

The team was proceeding along Sea street when a part of the harness broke causing the horse to start to runaway. Officer Phillips grabbed the wheel and tried to check the team but was unable to do so. The horse ran into Island avenue and made straight for Pandora lake, a small body of water between Island and Fensmere avenues. The water while not very deep was dirty and covered with slime and the ocupants fearing they would drown screamed loudly for help.

A young man named Carr of the Pastime pleasure club plunged into the water and grabbed the horse by the head but the animal threw him off. By this time Officers Phillips and Shea and a crowd of men were splashing in the dirty water and after a time managed to get the horse onto terra-firma again.

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

It is a wise weather prophet who knows when to stop forecasting a fair tomorrow.

The question is whether the politicians of South Dakota would recognize a peace pact if they met in the road, in midday.

If every school and college graduate gets a job at once in accordance with his own idea of his economic value, there will be a tremendous upheaval in the business world.

Beware of the report that the owners of the film pictures of the prize fight will lay them on the shelf if public sentiment demands it. The public has got them "on the run" and should continue the agitation.

It is said that King George doesn't like Whitelaw Reid. Is it possible that some sneak has been sending the King copies of the New York Tribune printed when the Blaine campaign was red hot?

The president and general manager of the St. Louis car lines has made out some rules of good manners for the conductors. One is not surprised to find among them "be prompt and industrious in the collection of fares."

One of our exchanges makes the excellent suggestion that every American city, large and small, ought to have proportionate to its needs and resources, a permanent pageant committee of its best citizens, working through sub-committees whose chairmen at least are persons of artisic bent, who shall busy themselves from midwinter till Independence day in devising suitable displays and drilling people, old and young, to take part in them. "The new Fourth of July" is" going to be remarkable for nothing else so much as for beauty and significance. Will some one in Quincy take the hint and begin preparations for next year? It may seem a long look ahead, but recall how short a time it has really been since our last insane and unsafe Fourth. There must be some with patriotism and enterprise and public spirit enough to lead off in this matter. Form a committee now and take time to prepare plans for a big celebration. We think it would be even better than this year's which was a credit, especially so, considering the short time in which the committees had to work and the various obstacles encountered.

DRIFT OF OPINION.

Gov. Quimby estimates that summer tourists left $14,000,000 in New Hampshire last summer. He expects that the total for this season will be much larger, as the state is making an effort to attract visitors. The state is spending $1,500,000 on three great trunk highways that should make New Hampshire particularly popular with automobilists. The roads, of course, are not being constructed solely on account of the tourists, but the desire to induce automobilists to visit the state is one of the important reasons for the expenditure of the $1,500,000. Maine did even better than New Hampshire last season. It is estimated that 250,000 tourists and sportsmen visited that state and spent a total of $25,000,000. The Province of Ontario last year was visited by 8500 non-resident tourists and anglers who are credited with having enriched the Canadian landlord, guides and merchants to the extent of $1,000,000. The success that has attended the efforts of the summer resort boomers in Maine, New Hampshire and the Canadas is an indication of what might be accomplished in this valley. With its river, its woodlands, its unrivaled climate and its attractive scenery it has more to offer to tourist than is to be found in same area in any part of this country. Why not improve the opportunity to sell our health-giving fresh air and benefit both ourselves and those who patronize us ?—Haverhill Gazette.

HOME GARDENS.

The thousand home gardens in this city which are under the care of the Education Committee of the Quincy Women's club are receiving most careful inspection by Mrs. Wilson Marsh and Miss Mary Griffin. The task is a tremendous one. Some of the gardens are in out of the way places which necessitates a large amount of travel. Each of these gardens must be inspected and suggestions left with the child who is working the garden as to how it may be improved.

The club is greatly indebted to Mrs. N. S. Hunting for giving transportation to the overworked inspectors. It is hoped that some of the other ladies of Quincy will give the inspectors "a lift."

A PEACE-HYMN OF THE REPUBLIC.

James Whitcomb Riley.

Borne up from the Southward, as the seas before the gale;
Its breath is in the streaming flag and in the flying sail—
As we go sailing on.

'Tis a voice that we remember—ere its summons soothed as now—
When it rang in battle challenge, and we answered vow with vow;
With roar of gun, and hiss of sword, and crash of prow and prow,
As we went sailing on.

Our hope sank even as we saw the sun sink faint and far—
The Ship of State went groping through the blinding smoke of war—
Through blackest midnight lurching, all uncheered of moon or star,
Yet sailing—sailing on.

As one who spake the dead awake, with life-blood leaping warm—
Who walked the troubled waters all unscathed, in mortal form—
We felt our Pilot's presence with his hand upon the storm,
As we went sailing on.

O Voice of Passion, lulled to peace, this dawning of today—
O voices twain, now blent as one, ye sing all fears away;
Since foe and foe are friends, and lo the Lord has glad as they—
He sends us sailing on.

SHILOH FLAGSHIP AT SEA

"Elijah" Sandford Evidently Trying to Dodge Legal Service

Portland, Me., July 11.—From this time forward, unless Rev. Frank W. Sandford returns and faces the civil suits against him, he will be a man without a country. His yacht, the Kingdom, is outside and is beyond the three-mile limit, but in the event of a great storm he must put to sea or come in, accept service and give bonds. It is believed that he is getting ready to transfer the headquarters of his movement from Maine to some foreign possession.

It has been some time since he held personal sway at Shiloh and it is believed here that if he is kept from returning to the place where he claimed to have received many revelations, his movement will rapidly come to an end.

Attorneys for Mrs. Whittaker are watching for Sandford to land to make personal services on him in suits.

ANGRY CROWD SOON SCATTERS

When Boston Policeman Draws Revolver and "Lets Go"

THREE MEN RECEIVE WOUNDS

One Who Was Being Placed Under Arrest Receives Bullet In Intestines and Cannot Recover—Brother Officers Say Shooter Was Being Roughly Handled, but Eyewitnesses Are of Different Opinion

Boston, July 11.—One man is dying, his brother is suffering from a dangerous wound in the groin, and another companion is at the Charlestown police station with a bullet wound through the foot as the result of the use of a revolver by Patrolman Dennis O'Leary in Charlestown.

William Deegan, aged 22, married and living in Somerville, is the man who is dying from a bullet wound in the intestines. His stepbrother, Robert J. Verner, of Somerville, and married, has a bad wound in the groin, and John Anderson of Somerville has a bullet hole clear through his foot.

Albert Johnson of this city is under arrest, charged with aiding Deegan in resisting arrest.

The excitement caused by the shooting drew a crowd of several hundred to the vicinity of Chelsea and Medford streets.

Patrolman O'Leary had arrested Deegan and was taking him to a box when, without a moment's warning, he drew his revolver and began blazing away at the crowd. He fired four shots in all. Three of them found a human target. The fourth spent itself against the wall of the navy yard.

Patrolman O'Leary narrowly escaped a had beating from a crowd of infuriated men and boys who gathered around the officer after the shooting, threatening him with all kinds of harm.

According to the police O'Leary was being roughly handled by the crowd and pulled his revolver to defend his life.

The three men shot were in company with friends, standing on the Chelsea bridge last evening. They had just returned from a day's outing at Peddock's island, and had returned in the naphtha launch "The Limit," managed by Johnson.

When it came time to separate Johnson notified the men that, as he had been prepared for a company of twenty men and had bought provisions and refreshments for that number, he stood to lose $3.50.

As each man had paid the price agreed upon, they decided they would levy an extra assessment and make up the deficiency between them.

They were arguing the matter out and had paused on the Chelsea bridge to make final disposition of the matter when along came O'Leary.

"Come, get to —— out of here," was reported to be O'Leary's first greeting.

Deegan, who is a little fellow, replied: "Wait a minute; we're settling up things."

O'Leary again ordered the men to move, and when they did not start quickly enough to suit him made an offensive remark to them and Deegan replied in kind.

Then O'Leary jumped for Deegan, and pulling his club, struck Deegan twice with it over the head. The club split open Deegan's head and set the blood to flowing freely. With his prisoner O'Leary started across the bridge in the direction of the call box.

Deegan's half-brother, Verner, when he saw O'Leary strike Deegan with the club cried out: "That ain't right, old man," and this attracted the patrolman's notice to him.

Verner was joined by another companion, and the two men ran to the side of the officer, and, as he was pushing the arrested Deegan to the call box, began arguing with the officer to effect Deegan's release.

One word led to another, and while the discussion was going on someone snatched away the officer's short club. Then, according to eyewitnesses, O'Leary pulled his revolver and told Verner and his friends if they didn't stop trying to get Deegan away from him he would shoot someone.

Meanwhile a crowd of young men hostile to O'Leary closed in and a mix-up began. According to the police, O'Leary was struck several times and thrown to the ground. By the stories of eyewitnesses, O'Leary lost his head and began to shoot.

Deegan fell to the ground, bleeding profusely from a shot wound in the abdomen. Verner got shot in the right groin and Anderson was shot in the foot.

When the crowd saw O'Leary mean business and saw the men falling all around them, they broke away from the officer, who pulled Deegan from the place where he lay to the patrol box and sent in the riot call.

When the reserves reached the scene they began to disperse the crowd, but so inflamed had the hundreds, many of them women, become, that it was not until several minutes had elapsed before the angry crowd dispersed.

IN FASHION'S REALM

The above designs are by The McCall Company, New York, Designers and Makers of McCall Patterns.

PARIS FASHIONS.

Frills and Furbelows at Paris Races How the Straight Silhouette is Relieved.

The race course late in June is the place where fashions are exploited. Styles are tried out there and those that meet with that approval denoted by orders for similar designs are apt to be the leading modes for Fall apparel. "Be as slim as you can is still the motto of the Paris couturieres though this does not preclude the greatest possible variety of designs, while a certain easy looseness that is yet not clumsy or baggy, makes for slenderness even where the figure is overfull.

NEW FALL COLORS.

The new Fall color card is out and presages considerable change from present tones. Blues now so prominent occupy an inconspicuous place except for the vivid shades employed principally for contrasts such as Peacock and Wild Duck hues—Purple blues that are more purple than blue appear as "Comet" shades. These are really violets and promise to have great vogue as they fit in with the "half mourning" that will be obligatory with the court set, and hence desirable to a much wider public. Wood pinks and reds with a brownish cast are shown and greens of decidedly yellow cast are prominent as well as blue greens and softer shades. Grays with a lilac cast are apt to be well endorsed and browns in yellow and duller shades are already being worn more than for several years past.

THE LATEST WRAP.

The scarf of double satin about two yards long and eighteen to twenty-four inches wide, finished at the end with a long black tassel is the newest worn. Often there is a contrasting lining and sometimes the tassels show a mixture of the two colors, but the all black is smartest, and affords considerable protection in changeable temperatures.

THE SATIN SHOE.

Low shoes of heavy black satin, or those with a leather yamp and uppers of satin are especially modish. Some of the prettiest and most desirable styles are of American make. In fact these imported shoes are a veritable craze with well dressed Parisiennes since they are both more shapely and lasting than their native productions.

PLUMES IN VARIEGATED DYES.

Plumes that are one color on one side and a contrast on the opposite side of the midrib are a late idea that was exploited at the races, and hat trimmings of an upstanding sort are placed again at the front of the hat. Motor apparel is responsible for a revival of the Caleche bonnet of silk or other fabric shirred on reeds, such as was used in stage coaching days and for similar reasons. It covers and protects the coffure, allows one to lean back comfortably and does not act as a sail to catch the wind when one is speeding.

LONG COATS AND SHORT.

For travelling, motoring and such coats grow more completely enveloping while all other wear coats are taking off length and developing the fancy styles sure to make their appearance when short lengths prevail. A suit of green shantung with bands of black satin embroidered in green, has the straight skirt tucked in narrow widths to the knee a band of similar tucking forming a front panel. The embroidered bands fall in straight stoles on either side of this narrow panel and the jaunty short coat has similar bands forming a fichu trimming at the neck and banding the short peplum at front and sides. A belt of black satin ending with one of the popular flowers shaped rosettes finishes the jacket at the waist line; and the inner waist is of silk muslin in matching shade with an Irish lace collar and short gamp and a stiff cravat bow of black satin.

The best way to wash clothes.

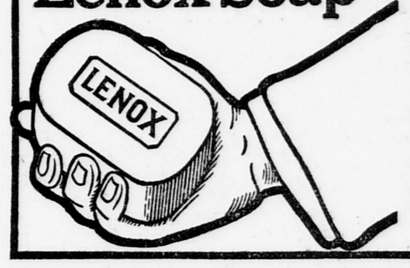

Use three tubs, one for table linen; one for bed and body linen; one for the soiled towels and cloths.

Wet the clothes, rub Lenox Soap Solution over the soiled parts, fold and roll each piece by itself, pack in tub, cover with warm, soapy water and let stand over night.

TO MAKE LENOX SOAP SOLUTION:—Take a cake of Lenox Soap, shave it into small pieces, and dissolve in three quarts of boiling water. Keep water at boiling point until a solution is formed.

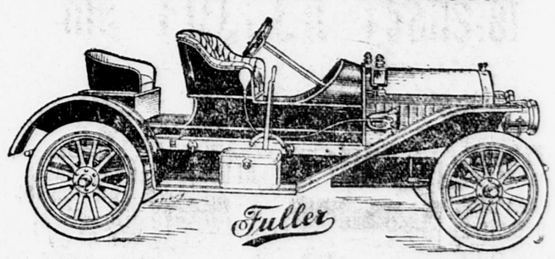

Lenox Soap Solution does better work than soap; and is more economical, because there is no waste.

THE SALMON MAKES GOOD

Remarkable Run of 800 Miles to Bermuda

A dispatch from Hamilton, Bermuda states that the submarine Salmon which sailed from Quincy July 5 on the first leg of her 2000 mile voyage arrived at St. David's light at 1 o'clock Sunday morning. Here she took on a pilot and arrived at Hamilton three hours later.

The distance between Quincy and Hamilton is about 800 miles and the Salmon made an average speed of between six and 10 knots an hour. The seaworthiness of the little craft was proved to the entire satisfaction of the representatives of the navy aboard and the builders.

The Salmon encountered a rough sea on Thursday and Friday, but suffered no damage. She fully demonstarted the practicability of the submarine for long ocean voyages.

The Salmon will proceed from Bermuda to Hampton roads, but the date of her sailing has not been fixed.

WALPOLE 3—COPELAND 2.

Inability to hit Hawkins at the critical points of the game spelled the defeat of the Copeland Club nine in their game with Walpole in the Norfolk County league at the Water Street Grounds Saturday. The game was even throughout and either team was in a position to put it on ice several times during the afternoon. Canavan and Duggan, the local battery were both indisposed and Desmond and "Alec" Elcock who were on the points for the Copeland boys worked very well in their new positions.

Copeland had two or three chances to land the bacon but were unable to produce the necessary hit as Hawkins seemed to be able to tighten up just enough at the critical points.

Walpole counted first in the second when Matanis, M. Ahern and Walsh singled safely, two of the scoring by rapid running coupled with a timely single. Copeland made one run in their half on a single, a sacrifice and a long fly which sent Egan across the pan. Neither team scored until the eighth, when the visitors added one on Matanis' single and a sacrifise and stolen base. Copeland came in in the ninth and made a rally, which though short-lived, gave the West Quincy rooters some hope for a few minutes. "Alec" Elcock, the first man up caught one on the nose for the longest hit ever made on the grounds and good for a home-run Fay singled but was forced at second on Duggan's ground hit. "Link" Elcock then walked. The next man fanned. Egan then came up with a chance to win out and he hit the first ball between short and third, which for a second looked like a hit. Matanis, the Walpole shortstop, by a piece of marvellous fielding scooped the ball and forced Patsy Duggan who was going to third and ending the game.

LETTERS OF PUBLIC INTEREST

WEDNESDAY AFTERNOON CLOSING

Editor Daily Ledger:

In your issue of July 6, I noticed a letter signed by "An Interested Citizen" relative to a weekly half holiday in which reference is made to one of the largest stores refusing to close a half day each week. As an employee of the store evidently referred to, I desire to protest against the writer's use of the words "barbarous conditions." I have been connected with retail grocery and provision stores for the past 28 years and I desire to state right here that of the five different stores that I have been employed in during that time, either as clerk or manager, the clerks could not be used better than at the store of Berry Bros., which is the one evidently referred to in the article or letter.

While I sympathize with those clerks who work for out of town corporations which will not give their clerks any time off during business hours or any yearly vacation, and those especially who do not receive a decent wage for a week's work, I believe in fair-play to a firm which I believe gives better conditions than those asked for by granting a half holiday once a week for two months only.

At the store where I am employed we receive a week's vacation in the summer with full pay and in addition we have from May 1st to Nov. 1st a half day off every two weeks for each clerk beginning at 1 o'clock. In business, although a store may close at a certain hour, no clerk can expect to go until his work is completed and it means the clerk could not get away until perhaps 1.30 or later which might spoil the afternoon's pleasure. Where we take turns off one or two, as the case may be, we leave at a certain hour and the business of the store does not suffer.

As the proposed half-holiday means only seven afternoons off, it can be readily seen that under the proposed half-holiday closing, we would not labor under as good conditions as at present. As there are ten or more holidays each year for which a clerk receives full pay, it would seem as though the clerks averaged better than the working-man who never gets a cent for any hour that he does not work.

I believe it would be a far better plan for the merchants of Quincy who keep their stores open Monday night til 9 o'clock to get in line with the grocery and provision stores which have closed four nights a week for the past 8 or 10 years and keep their stores open during business hours and thereby attend to the trade that Merchants week was supposed or intended to encourage and stimulate.

Thanking you for giving me so much of your valued space, I remain,

Yours respectfully,

Albion I. Dixon,
Employed at Berry Bros.
Quincy, July 11, 1910.

Ramblers 5—Wessagussetts 4.

The Ramblers had to play thirteen innings Saturday at South Weymouth before they were able to vanquish the Wessagussetts which ought to have been beaten several times before the ninth. The Ramblers got three runs by bunting and a few hits in the first. After that they tried to shut out the Wessagussetts and would have done so but bad errors and a couple of chance hits in the fourth. The Wessagussetts tied teh score in he sixh. When with two out the infielder dropped a fly which put a man on first. The next man fumbled and both stole on a fielders chance and close play at home when the two runs counted.

In the ninth both teams scored and it was not until the lucky and unlucky thirteenth game that the Ramblers scored. Conway struck out, H. Chapman got safe on the shortstop's failure o stop his hot one, Boothers stole, Murphy singled. M. Chapman singled, scoring H. Chapman and the game was won.

The Ramblers play at Merrymount park July 16 and 30. The score:

NEVER AGAIN, SAYS JEFFRIES

Concludes That He Is Too Old to Fight Any More

HE AT LAST BREAKS SILENCE

Says He Could Not "Come Back" and Has No Excuse to Offer—Nothing to Story That He Was Doped—Did Not Want Johnson to Throw Fight—In Bad Shape Mentally as Well as Physically

Los Angeles, July 11.—James J. Jeffries submitted to his first interview here since the fight at Reno on the Fourth.

So persistent were the demands for an expression of opinion from the beaten pugilist that his friends let down the bars and let the newspaper men see the ex-champion. The first question asked was whether it was true that he wanted another fight with Jack Johnson.

"No, I'm through fighting," he said, mumbling. "I fought once too often as it was, and I guess they'll let me alone after this. I might have beaten Johnson six years ago, but I don't believe I ever could again.

"I have no excuses to make. I couldn't come back, that's all there is to it. I don't want to fight Johnson or anyone else again."

The interviewers were warned by Jack Kipper, his partner, to expect a much bruised man, though Kipper said that he was now greatly improved.

"This is the first day since the fight that Jim would speak to any of us, even his wife," said Kipper.

But Jeffries is in bad condition mentally as well as physically. He hesitated in his speech and stopped in the middle of sentences, as if hunting for his thoughts. His face is still puffed up abnormally and he hears with difficulty. He has great trouble with his speech also, and at times gave up entirely without trying to finish his sentence.

"How about that story that you were doped, Jeff?" he was asked.

"Nothing to it; I was not doped. No one could have doped me. Someone said that the dope was rubbed into me, but that is not so. Not a man in my camp would do anything to injure my chances under any conditions.

"The trouble with me was that I was almost broken down nervously and didn't know it. I guess it had been coming on for a week, but I didn't know it; I thought I could fight. I thought I could beat Johnson when I stepped into the ring, but I couldn't get into action at all. I guess I'm too old to fight any more."

Jeffries said all this hesitatingly, shaking his head at times like an old man. His hands trembled all the time as if he had the palsy. When he was asked about Tex Rickard's statement that he had the fight in his pocket with signed contracts two days before the bids were opened in New York, he flared up and answered shortly:

"What has that got to do with it? You had your fight, didn't you?"

Then he was asked about Johnson's statement that he was offered huge sums of maney to throw the fight.

"Why should I ask Johnson to throw the fight? I felt sure I could lick him until after we had fought two or three rounds. I don't believe there is anything in it."

"Jim was on the verge of a nervous breakdown," said Kipper, "when he entered the ring. He may have been doped, but he thought that all his friends had bet their money on him and the fear that he had not come back, as he thought he had, had more to do with his losing that fight than anything else, in my opinion."

TEN BATHERS PERISH

Heat Responsible For Recklessness In New England Waters

Boston, July 11.—Ten dead was yesterday's toll of the ponds and rivers about New England from the ranks of the bathers.

Made reckless by the heat, several of the casualties were directly due to the victims venturing beyond their depth into waters rendered unusually cold by springs or undercurrents. Thus several swimmers lost their lives because of a sudden attack of cramps.

The list of casualites for the day would have been far greater but for a large number of heroic rescues made by life guards at the various bathing resorts, other bathers and spectators.

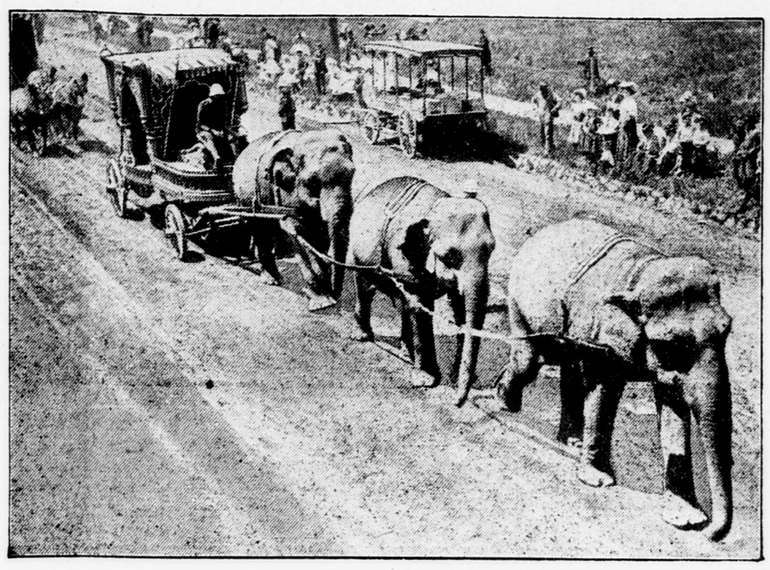

Tax Collector a Suicide

Seekonk, Mass., July 11.—Lying in a clump of bushes a short distance from his house with a bullet wound in the head, and a revolver, one chamber of which was empty, by his side, the body of George O. Greene, tax collector of Seekonk, was found. No motive for the probable suicide is known.

Circus Coming Tomorrow.

To those who may linger on the circus grounds when the parade of the Adam Forepaugh and Sells Brothers United Shows return to the tents, tomorrow it may appear that the massive cages and dens of animals are placed indiscriminately in the managerie tent, but this is not the case.

It is necessary for the peace of the animal families that the arrangement be the same day after day. If the lion cage originally is first, the monkey cage next, the polar bear next, the seals next, the hippopotamus next, the ocelot next, the tigers next and so on down one side of the mammoth menagerie tent and back on the other one day, the same arrangement is necessary after that.

The ends of the cages are closed so that the animals cannot see their neighbors, but they can smell them. Any change of order among the dens will promptly start something in the zoo.

When the Forepaugh & Sells Brothers Shows exhibit here tomorrow the circus patron can obtain much interesting information by closely observing the menagerie. It will be well to remember that the Forepaugh & Sells Brothers Shows was completely rebuilt recently, and now comes forth in a brand new dress of Circus splendor. The performers are mostly from Europe. The parade will be seen upon the principal streets of Quincy tomorrow about 10 o'clock A. M. Two performances will be given at 2 and 8 P. M. Tickets in advance at Murphy's drug store.

THE WEATHER IN JUNE.

First Half of Month Colder Than Normal According to Blue Hill Figures.

The weather during the first half of June was continuously colder than normal, with frequent rains and much cloudiness, but during the latter part of the month more seasonable conditions prevailed. The mean temperature of 62.7 degrees was 1.4 degrees below the average and 3.4 degrees below that of June 1909. The highest temperature of the month was 89 degrees on the 21st and the lowest was 42 degrees on the 4th. The extremes of temperature in June during the past 62 years were 96 degrees on June 21, 1849, and 38 degrees on June 2, 1853.

The total rainfall of the month was 3.97 inches, which is 1.00 inch more than the usual amount and the most in June since 1905. Rain fell on 11 days and the greatest amount in one day was 1.67 inches on the 10th. There was more than the usual amount of relative humidity while the mean cloudiness was slightly less than usual. The total amount of sunshine of 223.7 hours was 9.7 hours less than the normal, and on five days there was no sunshine. Last year June had 278.1 hours of sunshine and in 1908, 335.5 hours, the latter being the most for any month on record at Blue Hill.

There was less wind than usual and the maximum velocity was 42 miles per hour from the northeast on the 10th. The prevailing direction was west. Thunder storms occurred on the 7th, 12th, 18th and 24th and there was a killing frost in the surrounding lowlands on the morning of the 5th. —L. A. Wells, Blue Hill Observatory.

The Scottish clans of Greater Boston are arranging for their annual picnic to be held Labor day at Caledonian grove. $1200 has been set aside for prizes in the sporting contests.

Charles H. Hardwick, Mrs. William E. Alden, Hon. and Mrs. Eugene C. Hultman of this city and Dr. Everett Hardwick of Dorchester are among those who enjoyed the annual trip of the Appalachian club at the White mountains last week.

Mrs. Herbert J. Gurney entertained the girls at the Summer school last Friday by telling them a most interesting story. The Education Committee has offered a prize to the girl who will give the best reproduction of the story. Mrs. Gurney will be the judge.

WELLESLEY GIRLS DROWN

One Loses Her Life In a Vain Effort to Rescue Her Chum

Wellesley, Mass., July 11.—Within sight of hundreds of bathers and canoeists at Lake Waban two Wellesley college girls were drowned. They were chums and classmates. When one had gone beyond her depth and beckoned for help, her classmate, though not a strong swimmer, heroically put out to give what aid she could. Clutched in each others' arms, they went down together and drowned before the arrival of boats which hurried to their air.

The victims of the tragedy are Mary Palmer, aged 19, and Florence Jennison, 19 years old. The bodies of both were recovered soon after the drowning.

Miss Palmer has always been a good swimmer, and the supposition is that she was taken with cramps, when Miss Jennison attempted her rescue.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

IS SEPARATED FROM HIS DAD

Mrs. Swan Has Her Son, Kidnapped Two Years Ago

SWAN LOCKED UP AT LAST

Pathetic Scene at His Parting With Boy Whom He Passionately Loves—Little Fellow Does Not Know His Mother and She Does Not Understand the Only Tongue He Knows Well—Swan Raves About Justice

Boston, July 11.—In the detention room at police headquarters a little chap in soiled knickerbockers and mussed up clothing and with a tear-stained face tanned almost to blackness sat waiting patiently for a woman to come and take him away, whom the police told him was his mother.

When he was very hungry and was wondering again what had become of "dad," a woman in immaculate summer clothing entered the room and, seeing him, ran toward him crying "Bobby."

The boy took his handkerchief out of his mouth and asked her in Portuguese if she were his mother. Then seeing she could not understand him in the only tongue he knew well, he asked her again, painfully and imperfectly, in his broken English, if she were his mother.

This was the home-coming of Robert Swan, the little son of Joseph Swan, a former real estate man who stole the boy from the mother's home two years ago after the divorce court of Suffolk county had awarded the custody of the child to its mother.

An hour before the mother, Mrs. Adra Swan, who lives in Brookline, came to the detention room, Swan, in charge of Inspector Rooney, had come to police headquarters from the South station, having been brought over from New York.

Swan was once reputed to be wealthy, but he wore the ordinary brogans used by laboring men about their work, his clothing was shabby and he appeared dazed and in broken health. Going up the steps of the headquarters building he carried his boy in his arms and told him he had to go away for a short time.

The moment the child realized he was to be torn from the father who had been his inseparable chum for over two years of fleeing from the police, including a chase across two continents to Rio Janeiro, he began to sob. According to the police the boy has had his own way with the father, whose love for him is almost a passion, and does not want to return to his mother. Tears rolled down his cheeks and finally they welled into the eyes of the father. Folding the boy convulsively to his heart he said:

"Buck up, Bobby, and be a little man, as you always have been."

The youngster did his best to "buck up," but was not very successful. The father was booked and then hurried away to the Charles street jail. It is not believed that Swan will secure bail until after he is arraigned in the superior court, and he may not be able to secure bail even then.

After being separated from his boy he talked incoherently, rambling on about organizing revolutions to adjust the laws that permit such outrages as fathers being separated from their children; crying out "My country 'tis of thee," and talking about the estates he had formerly owned in Brazil, worth $100,000, and which he said the government tried to rob him of by unjust taxation.

SENT TO THE INTERIOR

Pittman's Chances of Getting Away From Madriz Are Very Slight

Bluefields, Nic., July 11.—William P. Pittman, the Cambridge, Mass., engineer who was captured while with the insurgent forces, has been sent to the interior under the escort of soldiers of the Madriz troops at Bluefields Bluff.

Recently General Estrada offered to exchange Colonel Salmanaca, who was taken prisoner in the attack upon Pearl Lagoon, for Pittman, but this offer was refused by General Rivas.

Pittman's chances of getting out of the hands of Madriz are now considered very slight. It is likely that he will be taken to Managua.

Police Lieutenant Shot

Pittsburg, July 11.—Two youths are held in connection with an attempt to hold up a car. Police Lieutenant Stewart, who was on the car in citizens' clothes, was probably fatally shot while trying to prevent the robbery.

Father of Ten Killed by Train

Westboro, Mass., July 11.—James O'Brien, a laborer, aged 40, father of ten children, the oldest of whom is 21, was killed on the railroad tracks here. He stepped out of the path of one train directly in front of another.

Stockyard Fires Cause Big Loss

Chicago, July 11.—Two fires, one in the centre and the second on the outskirts of the Union stock yeards, resulted in the probably fatal injury of two men and a total property loss of more than $100,000.

RECORD QUANTITIES IN COLD STORAGE

New York Warehouses Filled With Butter and Eggs

New York, July 11.—Butter and eggs are now stored in the warehouses of New York and vicinity in greater quantities than ever before at this time of year. Last year's figures on storage and prices made high records up to that time, but they are exceeded by the totals of the present month. Butter is now higher than it has been in July of any other year since the Civil war.

A report from twenty-nine of the thirty-two food warehouses in the metropolitan district shows that 2,234,000 cases, each containing thirty dozens of eggs, are now in storage, while a year ago the total was 1,911,000 cases.

All the egg prices will be increased when the eggs are taken from the warehouses for consumption next fall and winter.

The total amount of butter now in storage in the metropolitan district warehouses is placed at 33,820,000 pounds. A year ago the total was 23,788,000 pounds.

Dealers say they do not see any reason for expecting a reduction this year in the cost of living in the items of butter and eggs.

LOCKED IN BATHROOM

Young Woman Who Pined For Absent Husband Ends Life With Gas

Cambridge, Mass., July 11.—Constance E. Brown, the daughter of William H. Eveleth, superintendent of the grounds of Harvard, who astonished her friends fourteen months ago by eloping with Fred W. Brown, was found dead, locked in the bathroom of her mother's home, with the gas turned on and windows closed.

The young husband, who went with her to Providence on May 8, 1909, has been somewhere in the west for the last four months, and the girl wife, lonely and worried, is thought to have become temporarily deranged in her despondency. She leaves a 3-months-old baby.

ELOPERS ARE HELD UP

Girl of Fourteen Ran Away With Preacher Thirty-Five Years Old

Kansas City, July 11.—Rev. Clinton Sharpe, 35 years of age, a preacher of the Seventh Day Adventist church, and Eunice G. Whittaker, 14 years of age, both of Schenectady, N. Y., were arrested here at the request of the Schenectady police. Sharpe has a wife in Schenecatdy, it is said.

Miss Whittaker became acquainted with the preacher after becoming converted at a revival in his church last spring. Sharpe was discharged by the congregation on April 28.

Boy Shot In Stomach

Plymouth, Mass., July 11.—Allen Bagnell was accidentally shot in the stomach by one of his young friends. He was rushed to a hospital, where the bullet was extracted. The revolver was not thought to be loaded and the injured boy will recover.

Old Fireman Wants to Resign

Somersworth, N. H., July 11.—Charles E. Hammett, 67 years old and the oldest fireman in the local department, has again resigned. He resigned twice before, but the chief refused to let him.

HALF A CHANCE

SYNOPSIS

A party of titled passengers on a ship bound for Australia visit a section "below decks" where a gang of convicts sentenced to deportation are confined. The ship, the Lord Nelson is wrecked. A convict, the "Frisco Pet," jumps overboard with Jocelyn Wray, a pretty little girl. The convict, after returning the girl to her friends is himself later cast away alone on a deserted island. Years have passed. Lord Ronsdale and other members of the party wrecked on the Lord Nelson, including Jocelyn Wray, go to the criminal courts in London to hear John Steele, a famous young lawyer, try a case. Steele and Jocelyn meet and form a liking for each other. Lord Ronsdale, who would marry Jocelyn, forms a violent dislike for Steele. Ronsdale had at the wreck of the Lord Nelson prevented the rescue of the "Frisco Pet" by a lifeboat. Ronsdale is startled at the sight of a tattoo mark on Steele's arm.

(CHAPTER VIII—Continued.)

His lordship's head had turned. "A good system," he remarked after an interval. "But my purpose—the purpose of my visit—I—we have wandered quite from that. Let us, I beg of you, talk business. I believe"—the visitor moistened his lips—"I believe I mentioned—John Steele when I came in?"

"I am all attention, your lordship." Mr. Gillett's manner was keen, energetic. If he felt surprise he suppressed it. "Good! Your lordship's business concerns John Steele."

"For reasons that need not be mentioned I want to find out all I can about him. That, I believe, is the sort of work you undertake. The terms for your services can be arranged later. It is unnecessary to say you will be well paid. I assume you can command competent and trustworthy help; that you have agents perhaps in other countries?"

Mr. Gillett nodded. "If your lordship would give me some idea of the scope of the inquiry"—

The long fingers opened, then closed tightly.

"In the first place, you are to ascertain where John Steele was before he came to England, how he got there, what he did. Naturally if he has lived in a faraway port you would seek to know the ship that brought him there, the names of the captain and the crew."

"It shall be done, your lordship," replied the other quickly. "I shall embark in the matter with great zest and, I may add, interest. If I might be so bold, may I ask, does your lordship expect to find anything that would—ahem—cast any reflection on the high standing John Steele is building up for himself in the community or"—

A shadow seemed to darken the mask-like features of the visitor. His gaze at once glittering, vaguely questioning, was fastened on the wall; then slowly without answering he got up. "Surmises are not to enter into this matter," he said shortly. "It is facts I want—facts."

"And your lordship shall have them. The case appears simple, not hard to get at the bottom of." An odd expression shone from the visitor's eyes. "Which reminds me he has left town," added Gillett.

"Left town!" Lord Ronsdale wheeled abruptly. "You mean"—

"For a little trip to the continent. I should imagine; heard of it because he got some unimportant court matter put over."

"Gone away!" The nobleman lifted a hand to his brow.

"Last night."

"It was only yesterday morning I was riding with him."

"And he didn't mention the matter?" The visitor did not answer. "Why should he have gone away?" he murmured, half aloud. "Was it because"—He walked to the door, at the threshold stopped and looked back. "You might begin your inquiry by learning all you can about this little trip," he suggested. And he departed.

* * * * * * * *

Several months went by, and John Steele saw nothing further, although he heard often, of Miss Jocelyn Wray. His business to the continent, what over its nature, had seemed sufficiently important to authorize from him to her in due process of time a short, perfunctory message regretting his inability to present himself at the appointed hour at Strathorn House.

A number of supposedly prospective clients had called to ask for him at his office during his sojourn on the other side of the channel. That was to have been expected. But one or two of these by dint of flattery or possibly silver lined persuasion had succeeded in gaining access to his chambers.

"I should like to have a look into John Steele's library. I've heard it's worth while," one had observed to the butler at the door. "Only a bit of a peep around!" His manner of putting his desire, supplemented by a half crown, left the butler no alternative save to comply with the request until the "peep around" began to develop into more than cursory examination, when his sense of propriety became outraged and the visitor's welcome was cut short.

"He was that curious, a regular Paul Pry," explained the servant to John Steele in narrating the incident on the latter's return to London "Seemed specially taken by the reports of the old trials you have on the shelves, sir. 'What an interesting collection of causes celebres!' he kept remarking. 'I suppose your master makes much of them.' He would have been handling of them, too, and when I showed him the door—trusting I did right, sir, even if he should happen to be a client—he asked more questions before going."

"What questions?" quietly.

"Personal-like. But I put a stop to that."

For a few moments John Steele said nothing. His face on his reappearance in London had looked slightly paler, more set and determined, not unlike that of a man who, strongly assailed, has made up his mind to do battle to the end. With whom? How many?

"You will admit no one to my chambers during my absence in the future," said Steele at length to the man sternly, "no one, you understand, under any pretext whatever, even"—a flicker of grim humor in the deep eyes—"if he should say he was a client of mine."

The butler returned a subdued answer, and John Steele, after a moment's thought, stepped to a large safe in the corner and, applying a somewhat elaborate combination, swung open the door. Taking from a compartment a bundle of papers carefully rolled, he unfastened the tape, spread them on a table and examined them, one after the other. They made a voluminous heap. Here and there on the white pages in bold regular script appeared the name of a woman. Her life lay before him, the various stages of an odd and erratic career—at a cabaret at Montmartre, at a casino in the Paris bohemian quarter, in London—at a variety hall of amusement. And afterward—wastrel nomad! Throughout the writing in many of the documents another name, too, a titled name, a man's, often came and went, flitted elusively from leaf to leaf.

BROOKINS' THRILLING TRIP

Breaks World's Record In Flight Exceeding Mile In Height

Atlantic City, N. J., July 11.—Walter Brookins in a Wright biplane broke the world's record here when he attained a height of 6175 feet. He used his last drop of gasolene at his highest altitude and was still climbing when his engine missed explosions. The aviator brought his machine back to level to get the last drop of fuel out of the storage tank to reach the line of vision of engineers on the beach.

Reaching the imaginary line, Brookins started to glide to earth, and his engine stopped entirely when he was at 5600 feet and still over the ocean. His circling glide to the beach, which the crowd believed to be a bit of fancy flying, was done to save himself from diving into the sea.

Officials gave 6175 feet as the exact height of the flight. By his feat Brookins wins the $5000 prize offered by the Atlantic City Aero club for breaking the world's record, unless a higher altitude is reached here before the end of the present meet.

NEWMAN NOT A SUICIDE

Lawyer Says Lyman School Boy Met Death at Hands of Others

Boston, July 11.—Declaring that John Newman, whose body was found in the detention pen of the Lyman school on June 6, was not a suicide, but had come to his death at the hands of others, Jeremiah S. Sullivan, counsel for the Newmans before the legislative committee inquiring into the case, issued a statement wherein he sums up the case.

He declares that the blow that caused the discoloration on the jaw was sufficient to cause unconsciousness, therein contradicting the opinion of Medical Examiner Magrath. He expresses the opinion that the blows upon the body had been administered to the lad while in the detention pen, and the assailant, believing he had killed the lad, tied the sheet about the boy's neck in order to give the impression that a suicide had taken place.

STEWARD IS BOUND TO HAVE HIS RIGHTS

He Causes Delay In Sailing of an Ocean Liner

New York, July 11.—Henry Gibthuck is a mild, unassuming little man, but says he is bound to have his rights. Having said rights he held the steamship Koenigin Luise at her dock for more than an hour after her sailing time while her thousand passengers wondered at the delay.

Gibthuck was once a steward on the steamship and it is said was discharged for spilling hot soup down a dignitary's back. The steward sued for wages alleged to be due him.

Just as the Koenigin Luise was hauling in her gangplanks the steward with a United States marshal popped up suddenly with a writ of attachment. After a delay company officials gave bond and the Koenigin Luise sailed away.

SEVEN DIE FROM HEAT

Thermometer 93 Officially at Boston, but Goes to 110 on Streets

Boston, July 11.—Seven people were killed and a score prostrated by the extreme heat of yesterday. The highest temperature was at 2 o'clock, when the official record was 93 degrees. At the same time on the street the thermometer registered from 100 to 110.

Mayor Fitzgerald gave orders to every fire station situated in a district at all congested to flush the streets throughout the afternoon and night. Particularly was this gratifying to the West and North End residents.

Supreme Judicial Court in Equity

CHARLES D. SIAS ET AL., TRUSTEES, VS. HERBERT T. CHASE ET AL.

In the matter of petition, filed in said Court June 28, 1910, for construction of will of Caleb Chase, late of Brookline in said County.

This is a petition in equity in which the petitioners, Charles D. Sias, Benjamin S. Palmer and William T. Rich, as Trustees under the will of Caleb Chase, represent in substance as follows:—

The said Caleb Chase by his will dated January 21, 1899, after making certain specific pecuniary bequests and devises, bequeathed and devised the residue of his estate to said petitioners in trust to pay the net income thereof to his wife, Salome B. Chase, so long as she should live, and upon her death to divide and distribute all the rest and remainder of the trust estate (after paying therefrom certain pecuniary bequests) among the survivors of the following named legatees (who respectively had received legacies under his will,) each survivor to receive such a proportional part of said remainder as the amount of his legacy bears to the sum remaining to be distributed, namely:—Erastus Chase, Mary E. Nickerson, George Nickerson, Frank E. Chase, Herbert T. Chase, Phoebe Sisson, Helena A. T. Nickerson, Erastus W. Nickerson, Arthur L. Nickerson, George Nickerson, Jr., Annie E. Ginn, Darius Chase, Mary E. Townsend, Charles H. Chase, Frederick W. Chase, Caleb Chase, Polly Ellen Eldredge, Charles Baker, George A. Baker, Howard Baker, Mary Sherman, Hope M. Baker, Ozias C. Baker, George W. Baker, Daniel W. Baker, George A. Baker, and one, Polly Ellen Eldredge, died after his death.

In regard to the above matter several questions arise in regard to which said petitioners ask for instructions and especially in regard to the following matters:—

1. The testator directs that upon the decease of his widow "my trustees to so divide and distribute all the rest and remainder of said trust fund among the survivors of my legatees named below," and the question arises whether he means those surviving at the time of his death or at the time of the death of his wife.

2. Of the legatees who died before the death of the testator (2d Class above) Erastus Chase and Mary E. Nickerson do not come (not being named therein) within the provision of said clause in regard to lapsed legacies and the question arises whether their heirs-at-law or representatives under the provisions of law in regard to lapsed legacies or otherwise are entitled to be distributees in the right of said Nickerson and Chase respectively, or as, with others, heirs-at-law and representatives of said testator,—and what share or right, if any, of or to the residue of the trust estate the heirs-at-law or legal representatives of said Chase and Nickerson would be entitled to. It has furthermore been claimed and the question arises as to whether the heirs or representatives of Erastus Chase can take under the provisions of said clause of the first codicil in regard to lapsed legacies, the claim being as follows:—In said clause the testator says—"Whereas by my said will I gave to my brother Erastus Chase ten thousand dollars, I now give to him an additional ten thousand dollars," etc.,—"and whereas by said will I gave a legacy to each of the following named persons, to wit:" (then follow the names, which do not include that of said Erastus, of legatees who have predeceased the testator)—"And whereas upon mature reflection I do not wish a legacy to any one of the persons named above to lapse," etc.;—the claim is that Erastus Chase is to be considered as one of the persons "named above" and therefore that his heirs or representatives are to take his share.

3. As to the other legatees who died before the testator and who come within the provisions of the clause of the first codicil in regard to lapsed legacies (they having been named therein), so far as such clause may be applicable, the question arises whether the testator only refers to the lapsing of a "legacy" and whether a distributive share of the residue of the trust estate can be regarded as coming within the above provision, and is included in the definition of the term "legacy."

4. As said Polly Ellen Eldredge did not predecease the testator, but died after his death, and the testator provided if any one "shall predecease me his or her share shall be distributed" as intestate estate, the question arises whether said provision as to lapsed legacies is applicable to her interest in the trust estate.

5. If it shall be found by the Court that the said provision of the codicil in regard to lapsed legacies is not applicable to the interests under the residuary trust of said legatees of said second class and third class, the question arises whether the heirs-at-law or representatives of such legatees will take irrespective of such provision, and under the provisions of law in regard to lapsed legacies or otherwise, or what share, if any, they would be entitled to.

6. To summarize the above questions the question arises which of the persons named in said three classes and the heirs-at-law and representatives of which of said persons deceased are to share in the distribution of the residuary estate.

7. The names of the persons having been so determined, several subsidiary questions arise as follows:

8. The question arises as to what is to be regarded as the distributive share of said Erastus Chase and Mary E. Nickerson, the said Erastus having been given $10,000, in the will and an additional $10,000, in the first codicil, and said Mary E., having been given $5000, in the will and an additional $5000, in the second codicil.

9. The question arises whether in the distribution and payment of shares of deceased legatees their respective husbands or widows, now living or living at the death of the testator, shall be considered and take as heirs-at-law and by right of such deceased legatees.

10. The question arises as to the distribution, as intestate estate, of the share of a deceased legatee whether the trustees should pay the share to his administrator or executor or directly to those who would be ultimately entitled to it, and furthermore whether the testator meant the distribution to be made, as intestate estate, (in case the legatee had died intestate) as of the time of the death of said Caleb Chase, or as of the time of said legatee's death.

11. The question arises as to the construction of the phrase,—"My trustees to so divide and distribute all the rest and remainder of said trust fund among the survivors of my legatees named below that each survivor shall receive such a proportional part thereof as the amount of his foregoing legacy bears to the sum remaining to be distributed,"—and how are the calculation and apportionment to be made under the above provision, and whether all the trust estate is so disposed of, or whether any portion of such estate is to be considered as intestate estate of said testator.

12. If any portion of the estate of said testator shall be found to pass as intestate estate, said testator having died on November 23, 1908, and his widow, Salome B. Chase, on March 26, 1910, and he having made provision for her in his will, and she not having waived the provisions of the will but received her share thereunder, the question arises whether she, as his widow or as a statutory (or otherwise) heir-at-law or interested in his estate, as of the time of his death, is by the executors of her will to take the same share of his said intestate estate as if said testator had died intestate.

13. All the foregoing matters are in reference to the distribution of the personal estate, which is a part of said trust fund.

14. The following questions are in regard to the distribution of the real estate or the proceeds of sale thereof. By his will the testator devised a life estate in all his real property to his wife, Salome B. Chase, with the remainder over upon her death to his niece, Cora M. Berry, and then by his codicil of January 21, 1899, he revoked the gift of all said remainder to Cora M. Berry, and only gave to her the estate in remainder of his homestead estate in West Harwich, Massachusetts, (making no provision for the disposition of the balance of all his real estate in remainder). In his will he had devised "all the rest and remainder of my estate to said Silas, Palmer and Rich, the survivors and survivor of them, in trust for the following uses and purposes," (to his wife for life with remainder over to certain legatees as hereinbefore set forth), and the question arises, (1) whether the said balance of the estate in remainder has vested in said trustees, (2) as to what their duty is, if such real estate is now vested in them, (3) whether to sell the same and convert it into money and divide the proceeds among the legatees of the residue of the trust estate, and, if so, in the same proportions as the personal estate of said residue is to be divided among them or in what proportions, (4) whether they shall convey such real estate by deed to said legatees of the residue of the trust estate, and, if so, in the same proportions as the personal estate of said residue is to be divided among them or in what proportions, (5) whether said remainder estate has vested in them at all or is to be considered as undevised real estate of the testator, which would be disposed of as if he had died intestate.

And the petitioners, being in doubt as to the proper construction to be given to said will and codicils in relation to the matters set forth in said petition, pray that the Court will hear said matters and instruct your petitioners in regard to the same and the questions which arise as therein stated, and especially,—

First. To whom the residue of the personal estate of the trust fund or estate which shall be in the hands of your petitioners as trustees as aforesaid at the time of the final termination of the trust and the final distribution of the trust estate is to be distributed, made over and paid, and in what proportions.

Second. What disposition, if any, shall be made by your petitioners of the real estate in Massachusetts which belonged to the testator, except his said homestead estate, so called, in West Harwich, which was devised to said Cora M. Berry.

Third. For such other and further instructions as to the Court shall seem meet in the premises.

And now it appearing that certain of the respondents, to wit:—Bessie Brown of San Francisco, California, William P. Baker of Niagara Falls, New York, William P. Baker (administrator of Ozias C. Baker) of Niagara Falls, New York, Edwin M. Baker of Monticello, Iowa, Corinda M. Berry of Denver, Colorado, Annie M. Chase of Fort Scott, Kansas, Herbert T. Chase (administrator of Erastus Chase) of Grand Rapids, Michigan, Charles H. Chase of Villa Rica, Paraguay, Herbert T. Chase of Grand Rapids, Michigan, Annie R. Redman of Montclair, New Jersey, Idella Stone of Berkeley, California, Mary E. Townsend of East Oakland, California, Emma B. West of Aztec, New Mexico, reside out of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts and are beyond the jurisdiction of the Court and personal service by sheriff of this Commonwealth cannot be made upon them.

It is ordered that the said William P. Baker, William P. Baker, administrator of Ozias C. Baker, Edwin M. Baker, Herbert T. Chase, administrator of Erastus Chase, Herbert T. Chase, Annie R. Redman appear within one month, —the said Bessie Brown, Corinda M. Berry, Annie M. Chase, Idella Stone, Mary E. Townsend appear within two months,—the said Emma B. West appear within three months and the said Charles H. Chase appear within six months from the first Monday of July next and answer to said bill.

BRIEFS.

Mrs. George Gurney of Standish avenue is at her camp on Lake Nubernuset, New Hampshire.

Miss Ella L. Cain and Miss Frances G. Cain of Standish avenue have gone to Careyville for a week's visit with their aunt Mrs. John Kane.

Mr. and Mrs. Peleg Thatcher, Misses Louise and Blanche and Masters Malcol mand Norman Thatcher of North Central avenue are at South Dennis on the Cape for the summer.

The Fat Woman's Ring.

The woman showed a fat finger in whose folds of flesh was imbedded a plain gold ring.

"How much will you let me have on this ring?" she said to the pawnbroker.

"I can't tell until you take it off so I can weigh it," he said.

She tugged at the ring. It wouldn't come off.

"Can't you get it off for me?" she asked.

The pawnbroker threaded a needle with strong linen thread, soaped the needle and slipped it head first under the ring toward the hand. Then he wound the long end of the thread tightly and evenly around the finger almost to the nail. That done, he took the needle and unwound the thread from the base of the finger out, and as he unwound the ring slipped off. He weighed the ring.

"Two dollars," he said.

"That won't do me any good," said the woman. "I can get $3 any place else."

He returned the ring.

"She didn't really want to pawn it," he said. "She just wanted somebody to take the ring off. A jeweler would have done it the same way, but he would have charged something."—New York Sun.

ADAMS 6—HARDY 4.

In the Granite City League the leaders in a rather close game outdistanced the Hardy A. C. by scoring three runs in the seventh inning. The Adams team hit freely Knight getting a triple and Smith a four sacker. The Hardys played the better fielding game but were beaten by superior hitting. The score:

BRYANT 9—CRANCH 8.

At Ward Four the Cranch and Bryant teams clashed and the Bryants scored nine on fifteen hits and won out by a small margin. O'Toole was hit for four tallies in the first but steadied down. The score by innings:

FORE RIVER 1—BRAINTREE 0.

The Fore River Apprentices, in one of the fastest games played yesterday beat the Braintree White Sox by a score of 1 to 0. The game was fast and clean and both teams gave the pitchers superb support in the pinches. The lone tally was pushed across on a double and a single in the eighth.

The White Legs have won from the Roger Wolcotts, Neponset Wanderers and other fast teams and deserves a lot of credit for the win.

WHITE SOX 7—BIGELOW 6.

One of the features at the annual garden party of St. Theresa's parish at West Roxbury Saturday was the bal game between the Bigelows of Quincy and the White Sox of Roxbury. The latter won the game by a rally in the eighth. The final score was 7 to 6. The battery was Sullivan and Tighe for the White Sox and Saunders and Sweeney for Bigelows.

The Lilies.

Two thousand years ago it was supposed that water lilies closed their flowers at night and retreated far under water, to emerge again at sunrise. This was Pliny's view, and it was not impeached until the English botanist John Ray in 1688 first doubted its veracity. The great lily of Zanzibar, one of the grandest of the lily family, opens its flowers, ten inches wide, between 11 in the morning and 5 in the afternoon. They are of the richest royal blue, with from 150 to 200 golden stamens in the center, and they remain open four or five days. It is not generally known that there are lilies that have nocturnal habits—night bloomers as well as day bloomers. They are very punctual timekeepers, too, opening and closing with commendable regularity.

PLAYERS' QUEER HABITS.

Star Ball Tossers Do Many Stunts on Diamond Unconsciously.

Ball players get into some queer habits. Take Frank Chance, manager of the Chicago Cubs, for example. Chance is the victim of habit, caused by the signal system. Every fan who has seen Chance bat remembers the motions he always goes through before taking actual position at bat. He walks out from the bench and stands in the batting box. So far he acts as any player. But then comes his habit. He puts the bat between his knees and jerks his belt. Then he grabs the bat and swings rapidly.

This jerking at his belt is a habit which he simply can't get away from. He does it mechanically, he says. Several years ago that belt jerking had a separate and distinct meaning in baseball. Since that time other signals have been hatched for these plays, but Chance got so into the habit that it has become a part of his baseball life. So he hitches up his trousers.

Hughey Jennings' habits have become famous throughout the circuit. In every instance they started from signals. Whenever he pulls at the grass near the coaching box, kicks one leg into the air and throws both hands out with a loud resounding "E-yah!" the fans laugh and say, "There's Jennings again."

Each one of these things once had a separate and distinct meaning to the batter or the runner. Jennings simply couldn't stand in the coaching box today without going through his rigmarole. What was once a vital thing now has become a fixed habit in his playing life.

Hans Wagner's motions on first base when he seems to be doing the "extension," as gymnastic dancers call it, meant something once. He either wanted the batter to bunt or to let the first one go by. Now Hans uses it without noticing. It has grown to be a part of him.

McGraw has to bend down like a Jap at least once during a game while he is coaching. Fred Clarke of the Pirates can't help drawing a line in front of the plate with his bat.

The Soldier Ant.

The lion is the king of beasts, but all of his magnificent strength and ferocity would avail him nothing when he faced a mere ant. But this ant is not the usual kind which peacefully goes about its domestic duties day by day. It is the terrible driver or soldier ant, said to be the most invincible creature in the world. Against these tiny enemies no man or band of men, no lion or tiger, not even a herd of elephants, can do anything but hurriedly get out of the way. Among the Barotse natives a favorite form of capital punishment is to coat the victim with grease and throw him before the advancing army of soldier ants. The quickness with which the poor wretch is dispatched is marvelous when it is considered that each ant can do nothing more than merely tear out a small particle of flesh and carry it off. Yet in a surprisingly short time the writhing victim will have been changed into a skeleton.

The little hyphen is to show
Her answer should be "Yes."

HINTS THAT WILL ASSIST GOLFERS

Player Should Retain His Equilibrium When About to Drive.

THE POISE OF ONE'S BODY.

Beginners Should Always Bear In Mind This Is One of Main Things to Be Considered—Golf, Like Fencing, Demands Great Aim.

One of the few canons of golfing style which no heretic has yet dared to dispute is that which advises the player to stand with his ball more nearly in line with his right toe as the distance to be covered by the shot diminishes.

Nowadays almost every one drives with the ball opposite a spot halfway between his heels or even two or three inches in front. But he plays his cleek shots with the ball farther back and in approach play usually stands so that the ball is almost opposite his right heel.

All this is most orthodox. But it is somewhat less usual to inquire why it should be so. However, does not the answer to this make plain the whole problem of stance, which is simply a matter of equilibrium and depends upon one simple rule—however you stand, you must have your weight so distributed that your center of gravity is opposite the ball at the moment of hitting it?

The reason is not difficult to see, and perhaps it may be a source of enlightenment as well as a help to have brought again to the notice of those golfers who are in the habit of pulling or slicing badly one fundamental idea.

An ordinary golf club is constructed so that if the ball is to be hit squarely the shaft must at that moment of impact be at right angles to the direction in which the player wishes his ball to travel—that is to say, the player's hand must be opposite the ball. If they are not the club face, as it comes in contact with the ball, cannot possibly be at right angles to the line of flight, and a glancing blow resulting in a pull or slice is the inevitable result.

It is easy, however, for a golfer to prove for himself how the natural position of the hands in holding any two handed weapon, such as a golf club, depends upon the distribution of the weight of the body. Let him clasp his hands in front of him, then shift his weight on to his left foot and note how promptly his arms fall forward, like some delicate pendulum, in accordance with the change. Contrariwise, if he throws his weight on to his right foot and attempts at the same time to keep his hands well to the left as if he were going to play "off his left toe," he will realize that the position is one of constraint in which a powerful stroke is impossible.

It is this factor which makes it so awkward to play from an uneven or insecure stance. The player's weight has to be distributed differently from usual owing to the necessity of obtaining a firm footing, and, the natural position of his hands being thus altered, to play his ordinary stroke becomes impossible. Every golfer has experienced the fact that where some hillock or hollow in the ground prevents him from resting the same proportion of weight as usual upon each foot, though the stance is otherwise the same, he feels that he simply cannot play the stroke according to his accustomed method. Often he is constrained to play in some fashion quite untried and with complete success, because, as we must know, the most important thing is not that he should stand in a particular way, but that stance and swing should be suitable to each other. Golf, like fencing and other sports in which the stroke demands great nicety of aim, demands that the poise of the body be reckoned as of the utmost importance.

Driving with the ball well forward and driving with it as far back as possible have each certain advantages, but neither is the slightest good unless the player is standing so that the natural position of the hands, that position into which they will fall at the lowest point of the stroke, is exactly opposite the ball. It is hardly necessary to prove that it is when the hands are in this natural position that the blow attains its greatest force.

In theory it is quite sufficient that the body should be properly balanced at the moment of striking the ball. Accordingly swaying the body is not necessarily fatal to a good shot. In practice, however, the case is rather different, because when a player sways back with the upward swing of his club the chances are against him swaying forward to exactly the right degree in the down stroke. In any case, by swaying he is introducing a new and difficult factor into his calculations, and the less this factor is allowed to affect the conditions of the problem the better.

It is all very well to talk about the bad results which come from swaying or an awkward stance, bad habits into which many golfers have grown. What interests them the most is how to avoid these pitfalls. An early visit to the club's professional and a couple of lessons ought to show the player just how to overcome his errors.

EXPERT ACCOUNTANT REPORTS ON FINANCIAL CONDITION OF CITY

Condition of Finances Due to Careless Manner of Conducting Business in the Past

City Has Presumably Expended $427,118.90 More in Twenty-One Years Than Collected

Some weeks ago the City Council passed an order creating a special committee to investigate the financial condition of the city. At that time it was intimated that the Mayor had employed an expert accountant to examine the financial condition of the city. The report of this expert was forwarded to the City Council by the Mayor Monday evening.

It is a particularly interesting document and as the question of the city finances is one in which the citizens at large are interested the report in full is published below:

Boston, May 5th 1910.

Hon. William T. Shea, Mayor,
Quincy, Mass.

Dear Sir:—

Pursuant to your request we have made an examination of the finances of your city and beg to submit the following statement of the situation as it appears from the various city reports since its incorporation in 1889 to the present time.

In the first place we would state that the early books of the city, and until the past few years, were apparently incomplete in many cases and some of them have either been lost or misplaced, while those which we have found do not agree with each other in many respects. While it is possible that a fairly accurate determination may be arrived at by the books, if all of them can be found, we doubt if it can be done with absolute accurany in the earlied years, but this condition does not obtain in more recent years and at the present time the accounts are kept in such a manner that accurate determinations can be made; we have therefore confined our work largely to figures found in the city reports which have been issued each year and all of which are on file and readily available.

TAXES.

It is a well known fact that the assessment and collection of taxes is the one great factor in successful municipal finance and in this matter we have found much to criticise in the earlier years of the city, and many things which we have not been able to satisfactorily reconcile. We found that the commitments as shown in the

JOY RIDERS COME TO GRIEF

Two Men Injured When Automobile Hits Pole. Car Smashed

Two men were injured and two others received bruises when an automobile containing four joy riders travelling at a speed of 60 miles an hour ran into the curbing near the corner of Washington and Edison streets and then banged into a telephone pole, at 5.30 this morning.

The two men least injured lost no time in getting out of the way. The other two were taken into the house of Elmer E. Ricker where they were attended by Dr. Jones and Dr. Hardwick. After having their injuries dressed the two men came to City Square and were taken to Boston in a taxi cab.

The men absolutely refused to give their names and before leaving removed everything which they thought would identify the car except the registration number. This number was 12501 and proved to belong to Adelaide V. White of 535 Beacon street Boston the car being a 48 Ford.

Mrs. White when interviewed by telephone said that Monday she paid her chauffeur John Donovan and discharged him. That as far as she knew he was not a drinking man. She said however that at 2.45 this morning Donovan without permission visited the garage and took out the car and evidently taking some congenial friends along with him went for a joy ride.

The party had evidently been to Nantasket and were in a hurry to get back to the garage before the absence of the car was discovered. That they were travelling rapidly when the smash took place was shown by the speedometer which registered 60 miles per hour.

The car was badly smashed especially the front part and it is a miracle that the two men on the front seat were not killed.

Mr. White the husband of the owner started for Quincy as soon as he was informed of the accident and made arangements to have the car taken to a garage.

GRANITE MEN'S OUTING.

The question of holding an outing came up for discussion at the meeting of the Granite Manufacturers' Association Monday evening.

Word has been received from the Barre, Vt., association suggesting a joint outing of the two associations similar to that held at Crescent Park, R. I., several years ago. The Barre manufacturers will hold a meeting Friday evening when it will be decided whether or not they will come to Quincy.

The Quincy association voted to hold an outing and President John C. Murray was authorized to appoint a committee to select the place for the outing and make all arrangements.

Should the Barre men vote to come to Quincy the point outing will probably be held at Crescent Park. If however the Barre men decide not to come the Quincy association will probably go to Bass Point.

The Boston chamber of commerce corresponding to the local board of trade will, in company with a number of prominent and interested men view Boston Harbor from a Nantasket steamer with a view to choosing spots for improvement. They will dine at the Palm Garden, Paragon Park. Chief among these will be President Francis T. Bowles of the local ship yard who naturally desires an enlargement of some of the channels in Boston harbor to accommodate several large battleships which he contemplates building.

—In order to show that spitting on the sidewalks is dangerous to health, an investiagtion has been made by Dr. John Roberston, Medical Health Officer of Birmingham, England, which shows that seven per cent of the "spits" collected in public places contained consumption germs. On the other hand the dust colleteed from the floors of the cottages of the Adirondack Cottage Sanitarium has been found to be free of tuberculosis germs, showing that a careful consumptive is not dangerous.—Whitman Times.

COUNCIL COMMITTEE ON STREETS REPORT MANY ORDERS

Recommends Acceptance of Ten New Streets Costing $19,000.---All Wards Get a Share

So Called Police and Water Meter Orders Rejected.---Other Important Business.

Scarcely a ripple disturbed the sereneness of Monday night's meeting of the City Council in marked contrast with some of the meetings in the immediate past. There was a large amount of business and it was pushed along with dispatch. The Committee on Streets reported orders accepting ten new streets and orders rebuilding several streets.

The so called police order was taken from the table and killed as was also the order calling for an appropriation og $48,000 for metering all the water services of the city.

One of the most important matters was a communication from the Mayor forwarding the report of the expert who has been examining the financial condition of the city. This report will be found in another column and is interesting reading.

Councilmen Gardner, Sandberg, Snow and Woodward were absent.

MORE PLAYGROUNDS.

A communication was received from the School Committee endorsing the petition of the residents of the Massachusetts Fields school district for the purchase of a ward and school playground. Referred to Committee on Public Buildings.

A communication was received from the Mayor appointing Alfred J. LaCroix a constable. Confirmed.

ASSESSORS PLANS.

The Mayor forwarded a communication from the assessors asking for an appropriatiAon for making assessor's plans of Ward Four. Laid on the table until later when Councilman Bryant offered an order appropriating $1,000 for assessors plans. Referred to Finance Committee.

FINANCIAL CONDITION.

A communication was received from the Mayor inclosing the report of Edwin S. Morse, expert accountant who was employed to examine the financial condition of the city. Referred to special committee on Financial investigation.

The auctioneers bond of M. T. Sullivan was approved.

The Mayor announced the appointment of Eben Stocker, Stephen E. Wilson and John Evans as fence viewers. Confirmed.

Several petitions for minor licenses were received and referred.

Councilman Whiton presented a petition for an arc light at the junction of Cottage avenue and Hancock street. Referred to Executive.

Councilman Nowland presented a petition relative to the dusty condition of certain streets at Houghs Neck. Referred to the Executive.

A petition to accept the street running from Newport avenue to Oakland street was referred to the executive.

The Committee on Licenses reported leave to withdraw on the application of Fred S. Weiley for a common victuallers and fruit license.

Councilman Flynn offered a minority report granting the licenses.

After some discussion the minority report was accepted and the orders adopted.

STREET REBUILDING.

The Committee on Streets reported the following orders:

A substitute order for $1,700 to rebuild Merrymount road between Hancock and Putnam streets. Referred to Finance Committee.

A substitute order for $2,800 to rebuild South Walnut street. Referred to Finance Committee.

A substitute order for $500 to rebuild Larry place West Quincy. Referred to Committee on Finance.

Ought to pass on the order appropriating $400 to rebuild Oak street. Referred to Finance Committee.

A loan order for $5,400 to provide funds for the appropriations on the above orders. Referred to Finance Committee.

LEGACY.

Reference to the next City Council on the following petitions.

To accept foot way from Avon way to Glendale road.
To accept Taber street.
To accept Hull street.
To accept Warwich street.
To accept Lawry street.
To accept Phillips street.
To accept Pierce street.
To accept Ring avenue.

NEW STREETS.

The Committee on Streets reported orders accepting the following new streets, under the betterment act:—

Beacon street under the nam e of Bedford street and appropriating $2,250 for the same.

Madison avenue under the name of Germain avenue and appropriating $3,350 for the same.

LEAHY WAIVES EXAMINATION

Braintree Burglar Held in Heavy Bonds for Superior Court

John C. Leahy the young Boston boy with whom Officer Amos J. Loring had a pistol duel Saturday was arraigned before Judge Avery in the district court this morning. There were two complaints against Leahy one for assault on Officer Loring with intent to murder and the second for breaking and entering the house of Frederick R. Smith at East Braintree June 29.

Leahy was represented by Edward D. Collins of Boston who waved the hearing in the lower court. Leahy was then held for the session of the superior court of Sept. 1. He was ordered to recognize in $10,000 bonds on the complaint for assault with intent to murder and on $1,000 bonds on the complaint for breaking and entering. He was unable to secure the bonds and was committed to Dedham jail.

LINEN SHOWER.

A very enjoyable surprise was given Miss Lillian Hoxie Thursday evening July 7th when twenty-five of her girl friends showered her with linen. A pleasant hour was spent during which Mis Hoxie opened her gifts which were useful and pretty. After a collation music was enjoyed until a late hour. Much credit is due Miss Jeannette Soule for her work in arranging the shower.

CITY SQUARE BREAK.

The 5 and 10 cent store of Henry L. Kincaide & Co. was entered by burglars sometime during Monday night. Entrance was had by forcing the front door. The parties broke into the cash register but got no money as it had been removed when closing. As far as known nothing was taken.

TODAY'S COURT.

Pete Riley, William Conlon, Warren Verkamben on two charges for drunkenness in Quincy. Cases continued until November 1.

Joseph Stasic and Hubert N. Locke for violating auto laws. Failed to appear.

John C. Leahy for assault with intent to kill and breaking and entering. Committed to jail until next session of court at Dedham.

Committee Appreciative

At a meeting of the Executive Committee of the 4th of July Celebration Committee held Friday evening, July 8th, a vote of thanks was extended to the Press for the able manner in which they advertised the Celebration, also to the Contributors who freely gave the money that enabled the Committee to carry out the program, also to the Collectors and others who assisted in the affair.

E. R. STONE, President.
A. W. STETSON, Secretary.

HALF HOLIDAY FOR THE CLERKS

Question Still Hanging Fire in Merchants' Association

The question before the Merchants Association of closing stores at 1 o'clock P. M. Wednesdays came up as the chief business of a meeting held in the Board of Trade rooms Monday afternoon. The question is one of considerable moment and should be favorably considered in the light of a compensation for working the clerks three nights a week during the extremely hot summer months.

The attendance at Monday's meeting was so small that the matter was laid on the table until a larger number should attend and enter this discussion. Even among the small number present Monday there was an animated discussion and sentiment seemed to favor the order.

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

Beverly has a woman school teacher who for long time teaching, ranks with Miss Julia E. Underwood of this city. Miss Sarah R. Smith retired from the Boston schools in June with a record of fifty-four years as a teacher.

Ice cream cones have come under the eye of the pure food officials in New York City and on Saturday 18 crates were seized at one place. Poor kiddies every thing they have a hankering for seems to be taken from them. They will have to go back to a dish of ice cream and two spoons in the good old way.

It is said that a sane observance of the Fourth in New York saved that city over $16,000. In Quincy also it is safe to say that the city was the gainer financially for there was less damage by fire and rowdyism than for several years. Looking at it in this light perhaps the city will see its way next year to helping out the committee financially.

DRIFT OF OPINION.

The safe and sane Fourth appears to have been carried too far for a starter, and a re-action has already set in. Among the first to voice this opinion is the North Reading Grange, which at a late meeting discussed, "A sane, more rational Fourth," with the result that all agreed that only with noise of some sort—such as the ringing of bells, careful use of fireworks, fire crackers, torpedoes, etc., could the day be given the fullest significance. With the feature that distinguishes it from other holidays eliminated, the day would soon become meaningless, and its lessons lost. Every granger present was in favor of celebrating July 4, 1910, with prudence, however. They agreed that they could stand a little noise of at least one day in the year.—Natick Bulletin.

CRUSADE GAINS GROUND

Overwhelming Sentiment Against Views of the Fight at Reno

Boston, July 12.—The tremendous spread of the movement begun here by the United Society of Christian Endeavor to prevent the presentation of the Jeffries-Johnson fight films, is indicated by figures computed in this city, showing that cities, states and countries with a total population of at least 25,000,000 have already barred the pictures. Reports received by those back of the crusade prove that the movement is gaining ground every day.

In some cities the W. C. T. U. has joined the protest. Other organizations have also gone into the fight.

ICE CREAM CONES SEIZED

Heavy Consignment Falls Into Hands of United States Marshal

New York, July 12.—More than 4,500,000 ice cream cones were seized by United States Marshal Henkle as a part of the campaign being waged by the government under the pure food act. It is alleged that the cones contain borate acid and are injurious to health.

The seizure is the second within a few days, and was made on the pier of the Southern Pacific railway. The cones were being shipped to Galveston by the Consolidated Wafer company of this city.

Conflicting Orders Caused Wreck

Hamilton, O., July 12.—That conflicting orders giving two trains the right of way over the same track at the same time caused the wreck of July 4 at Middletown was admitted by the coroner's inquest by Albert J. Smith, train dispatcher.

SEWER EXTENSION.

The Committee on Sewers reported an order for $10,000 for sewer extensions. Referred to Finance Committee.

FIREMENS SALARIES.

The Committee on Ordinances reported recommending that the order amending the fire department ordinance be amended by adding the words Supt. of Fire Alarm $1,100 per year. Also to strike out the words reserve and special firemen and insert in place therefore the word substitute firemen and as so amended the order ought to pass.

The order as amended fixes the salaries of the permanent men of the fire department as follows:—Supt. of Fire alarm $1,100 per year, Captain $1,100 per year, Lieutenant $1,050 per year and the permanent men $2.50 per day for the first two years and $2,75 per day hereafter. Substitute men $2.50 per day. Order referred to the Finance Committee.

RESTRICTED STREET.

Councilman Smith introduced an order amending the Street ordinance so as to provide that the use of Crescent street shall be restricted to pleasure vehicles. Referred to Committee on Streets.

Councilman Moir offered an order refunding A. J. Billings $132.31 taxes illegally assessed. Referred to Finance Committee.

Councilman Whiton offered an order for a light on Rock Island road. Referred to Executive.

Councilman Whiton recalled the loan order for $5,400 from the committee and amended it by adding the words "Police station plumbing $400" and making the amount $5,800. Order referred to Finance Committee.

WARD FOUR PLAYGROUND.

Councilman Smith offered an order requesting the Mayor to request the Park Commissioners to submit plans and estimate of cost for equipping the playground bounded by Copeland, Common and West streets. Adopted.

Councilman Bryant offered an order assessing one half cost of permanent sidewalks built in 1909 on the abutters. Ordered to a second reading.

Councilman McDevitt offered an order for a light on Bryant avenue. Referred to the Executive.

LOAN ORDER.

Councilman Bryant offered an order consolidating a number of loan orders passed at recent meetings into one loan order for $56,825. Referred to Finance Committee.

JUNK ORDINANCE.

Upon motion of Councilman Bryant the orders relative to junk ordinance were taken from the special committee and referred to the Ordinance Committee and the special committee discharged.

Councilman Clark moved the Committee on streets be requested to report at the next meeting on the petition to rebuild Pleasant street. Adopted.

WATER METERS.

The order appropriating $48,000 for water meters was taken from the table and rejected on roll call 10 voting yes and 7 no.

POLICE ORDINANCE.

The order amending the police ordinance was taken from the table and rejected on roll call 12 voting yes and 5 no as follows:

YES—Bolster, Branch, Bryant, Carey, Clark, Ericson, Flynn, Histen, Loud, Nowland, Smith, Whiton—12.

NO—Boyd, Cantfill, Cherrington, McDevitt, Richards—5.

ABSENT—Gardner, Moir, Sandberg, Snow, Woodward—4.

NOT VOTING— President Hobbs.

A petition was presented at this time by Councilman Loud for a curbing on Beale street. Referred to Committee on Streets.

SURFACE DRAINAGE.

The order appropriating $12,140 for surface drainage came up in the calendar. Upon motion of Councilman Bryant the rate of interest was changed to 4 1-2 percent. The order was then placed in the calendar again.

On motion of Councilman Whiton the order rejecting the liquor transportation license of Albott & Miller was taken from the table and rejected.

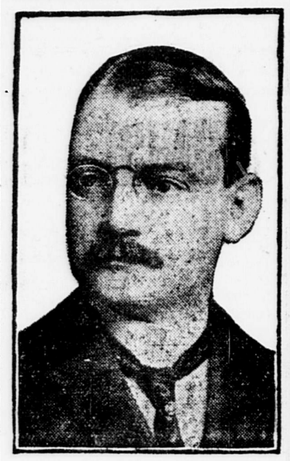

On motion of Councilman Whiton the application of G. Gardiano for a license to sell fruit on the Lord's day was taken from the table.

Councilman McDevitt offered an order granting the license which was adopted.

Adjourned at 9.23 until Monday July 18.

WILLIAM LOEB, JR.

He Is a Right-Hand Man of Mr. Roosevelt

LOEB'S TALK WITH TAFT

Said to Have Resulted In Truce to Unite Republican Party

Beverly, Mass., July 12.—A conference on what must be done to reunite the national Republicans between the president and Collector Loeb of New York, the closest friend, Senator Lodge excepted, that ex-President Roosevelt has in politics, resulted, it is asserted, in an agreement of truce between the two biggest Republicans in the nation.

President Taft and Roosevelt are not in agrement over the Aldrich-Payne tariff bill, and Loeb seeks to make common ground upon which both can stand and make the fall party fight together.

The common ground as it is now understood here is that the Republican party gives another pledge to make a tariff revision downward at the earliest possible moment that the business conditions will permit.

The president is committed to the declaration that we now have the best tariff the country has ever had and he is loath to change front. Still he is known to be ready to listen to strong reasoning and Loeb brought not only Roosevelt's reasons but the statements of the big insurgents of the west to the summer White House.

FIFTEEN CONVICTS MAY BE PAROLED

Recommended as a Reward For Their Bravery

Caldwell, N. J., July 12.—The bravery displayed by fifteen convicts from the Essex county penitentiary here in fighting a fire caused Warden Martin of the penitentiary to announce that he would recommend their cases to the board of parole for kindly consideration.

The prisoners were given a chance to show their heroism when a bolt of lightning struck a house near the prison and set it on fire.

Warden Martin sent the fifteen convicts with a number of keepers to the scene, and the men worked so enthusiastically and efficiently that the flames were prevented from spreading to nearby houses which were threatened.

"DEAD" MEN REAPPEAR

Walk Aboard Vessel Which Has Flag Half-Masted For Them

Boston, July 12.—While the schooner Emilia Enos lay at T wharf with flag at half mast for four of her crew lost last Friday, the four men walked aboard her, to the surprise of Captain Enos and the remainder of the crew. They had been picked up by the Flora J. Nickerson several hours after losing their own vessel and brought to port yesterday.

Captain Enos cruised around for several hours Friday in hopes of locating the men. At last after a fruitless search the schooner headed for Boston with flag at half mast.

SWAN OUT ON $2000 BAIL

Alleged Abductor of Little Son Pleads Not Guilty In Court

Boston, July 12.—Disheveled, shabbily clad and with the appearance of having gone down rapidly in the past two years, Joseph W. Swan, once a prominent real estate dealer in Boston, was arraigned in the superior court, charged with kidnapping his son Robert.

Swan entered a plea of not guilty and was held in bonds of $2000 for the grand jury. He was unable at first to furnish bonds, and was remanded to the Charles street jail. Later Orris Bowman of Everett furnished bail.

Suspicion of Foul Play

Seekonk, Mass., July 12.—That the death of George O. Greene, a former town collector, who was found in the bushes with a bullet wound in his head Saturday, might not have been suicide, but from foul play, as it was at first believed, is now the rumor that has emanated from an investigation made by State Officer Hodges.

WASHINGTON LETTER

Tariff Schedules to be Brought Before Next Congress

At present the national capital is like a deserted village. Congress, the President, the diplomatic corps and society have all scattered. Simultaneously with the departure of the President and Congress ,the point of national interest was shifted to New York when the ex-President returned, and it now appears that wherever he is there the middle men of the press are gathered together and from that point political news is dispersed. Business will still go on at the national capital, but in an uninspired, humdrum, mechanical way through the $1,800 clerks who really know the routine better than Presidents and cabinets and chiefs of bureaus. But until the first or middle of October there will be but little to attract the attention of the public to Washington.

Since the adjournment of Congress, two Senators, Daniels of Virginia ,and McHenry of Louisiana, have died; one, McCumber of North Dakota, has been reelected and Representative Gronna of that state has also been elected to the Senate to fill an unexpired term of Johnson of North Dakota, who died shortly after he was elected.

To all appearances there is a slight slump in the insurgency movement. It is announced that Senators Cummins and Dolliver have cancelled lecturing engagements ,and the Damon and Pythias relation renewed between the President and the ex-President at Beverly is a straw indicating political accord and peace. Col. Roosevelt's determination to keep his hands off politics has yielded to Gov. Hughes' solicitation and he is mixed in the New York legislative fight with a result that appears to be temporary defeat. It need not, however, be assumed that Col. Roosevelt's personal friendship for President Taft means that he approves his attitude in the Ballinger-Pinchot affair, or that he is not at heart in sympathy with the progressive element of his party.

Those who are giving the subject of the tariff board investigations attention are of the opinion that the wool and cotton schedules will be brought urgently before Congress at the next session. The President has directed this board to make a careful investigation of all the tariff schedules ,and the board has arranged to do so. Each schedule is to have the attention of experts and it is believed that very special attention is to be given to the wool schedule and to the cotton schedule. It will be remembered that during the special session for the enactment of a new tariff law, the debates brought out the fact that the wool schedule was the most important of all. The most progressive Senators of the Republican side were strenuous in their urgency of lower rates. Senator Dolliver of Iowa eloquently assailed the wool schedule He made the most positive and pronounced statements that under the wool schedule there were all sorts of outrageous abuses. The President himself ,while mainly approving the late tariff legislation as the best that had heretofore been enacted, it is said has nevertheless held that the wool schedule was without defense and judging by th facts presented to the Senate by Dolliver and others and by the President's known opinion on the subject, it is anticipated that the tariff board will advise that both the wool and cotton schedules be ended by the reduction of duties.

There is no doubt that the Republican party will in the coming elections have a better standing than was expected two or three months ago. The government is winding up the fiscal year in good shape. All the figures relating to recepts and expenditures are not yet in, but such as are now in show that the Treasury will get through the year with practically no deficit. This is very much better than the financial condition one year ago. A new system has been adopted in the Treasury statement, and the ordinary receipts and disbursements are kept apart from the Panama Canal account. If this account should be taken into consideration ,there would b a deficit of about thirty-four millions. At this time one year ago the fiscal year ended with a deficit of fifty-nine millions to the account of ordinary receipts and disbursements and one hundred and eighteen millions taking into consideration the account of the Panama Canal. It will be a matter of satisfaction to Americans sufficiently well informed in financial affairs to know that ordinary receipts and expenditures now nearly balance each other.

Adams.

CLAD IN FULL DRESS

Society Leaders Form a Bucket Brigade and Fight Flames

Beverly Farms, Mass., July 12.—Major Henry L. Higginson, head of the Boston banking firm of Lee, Higginson & Co., attired in evening clothes, headed fifty odd members of the social set of the exclusive North Shore in a valiant fight against a fire which caused $15,000 damage to the estate of Mrs. Samuel T. Morse here last night.

Rushing to the scene in automobiles in response to telephone calls from Miss Frances R. Morse, who discovered the fire, these society leaders, the majority of them in evening clothes, formed a bucket brigade, and through their heroic work as firemen saved the manor house of the estate.

HOT WAVE IS WIDESPREAD

Many Deaths and Much Physical Suffering as a Result

Boston, July 12.—Weather went to par yesterday, for the first time in many months, reaching the 100 mark at the kiosk on the common, while a new record of 94 was made at the weather bureau. In the wake of this terrific rise in the atmospheric stock came death in many cases and mental and physical breakdowns.

As a result of the torrid weather one fatality occurred in Boston, one in Portland, Me., one in Providence, one in Portsmouth, N. H., a dozen or more in New York, and many others in other parts of the eastern United States. In Boston nineteen prostrations were reported during the day.

GREAT HERD OF ELKS

They Have Overcrowded All Detroit's Hotels and Lodging Houses

Detroit, July 12.—The Forty-sixth annual reunion of Elks was formally begun while Elks continued streaming into Detroit from every direction. The city's hotels are already more than filled, downtown rooming houses crowded to the utmost and tents are being occupied throughout the city.

The ceremonies incident to the formal opening of the grand lodge were held at the Lyman theatre last evening. Among those who welcomed the Elks in behalf of state and city were Governor Warner, Senator Burrows and Mayor Breitmeyer.

MRS. GOULD BECOMES WIFE OF THOMAS

Couple Will Spend Honeymoon In Tour of Europe

New York, July 12.—Mrs. Helen K. Gould, who divorced Frank J. Gould last summer, was married to Ralph H. Thomas, nephew of Washington B. Thomas, president of the sugar trust. Up to the last moment the utmost secrecy was maintained regarding the ceremony, which was performed at Mrs. Gould's home in this city.

Passage on the Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse, which sails today, has been engaged for them. Their intention is to leave the steamer at Plymouth, hurrying on to London and there beginning a motor car trip through England and Scotland in Thomas' car. Their return will not be made till next spring. Then a magnificent house will be built on the Sands Point, L. I., estate of Mrs. Gould.

The couple were married by Rev. Dr. Webster, pastor of the Brick Presbyterian church.

BONITA RAMS THE CASTINE

Gunboat Beached at Provincetown After Being Struck

During the naval maneuvers Monday at Provincetown in an "attack" on the gunboat Castine, flagship of the flotilla, the submarine Bonita, which was built by the Electric boat company of Quincy and went into commission July 16, 1909 rammed the Castine loosening gtwo of her plates and so seriously damaging her that she was beached at the east end of the harbor to prevent her from sinking.

The Bonita was attacking the Castine and came upon her while submerged. In rising to the surface the helmsman probably misjudged the distance and scraped the Castine the full length of the submarine. The attack was entirely unexpected and several of the crew of the Castine were in swimming. As soon as the impact was felt the water rushed through the damaged joints flooding hold and engine room. The ship was immediately headed for shore and grounded at full speed to prevent sinking. She remained upright and was therefore not abandoned.

The Bonita received little damage except a small dent in her armor and the loss of a portion of her rail.

Word was immediately sent to the Boston Navy yard and tugs and a wrecking lighter were dispatched to give assistance. The Castine will be overhauled today and further repaired at the Navy Yard where she will be convoyed.

VOTES FOR WOMEN

House of Commons to Pass Formal Judgment This Evening

London, July 12.—The first real formal judgment to be passed by the house of commons on the question of conferring the parliamentary franchise upon women will be taken this evening. The bill introduced by David Shackleton was brought up yesterday afternoon, when Shackleton moved its second reading.

Women already possess a municipal vote in England, and about 6,000,000 would be given the parliamentary franchise if the bill passed.

Gatigny Held In Fraud Case

Paris, July 12.—The court of Tours yesterday refused bail for the release of Count d'Aulby de Gatgny, who has been detained by the police since April last on the charge of having misrepresented the origin of paintings and the antiquity of furniture purchased by Mrs. Charles H. Paine of this city, formerly of Boston.

Noted Astronomer Dead

Berlin, July 12.—Johann Galle, for two generations a noted astronomer, died here, aged 93. He was the discoverer of the planet Neptune and of three comets.

Stingy Queen Bess.

Every one who ever did anything for Queen Bess seems to have been left with a bad debt on his books. So we find an unfortunate John Conley writing to Sir Robert Cecil that for the last two years he had been suitor for £100 for "beeves for the army" and complaining that "unless some order be taken I shall be undone." Sir Edward Hastyngs, after spending his life in serving the queen, had to pawn his wife's jewels and beg her majesty "to bestow something upon me in this my latter age." So badly was the fleet that beat the armada provisioned that Francis Drake had to seize at Plymouth ninety bags of rice, and the unfortunate owner, after ten years' waiting, was refused payment, "rice being an extraordinary victual not allowed for the navy." Nor did common soldiers fare better. The chief anxiety of all Elizabeth's ministers ought, in her view, to have been how to save most money.—London Telegraph.

The Mammoth Cave Rat.

The cavern rat found in the Mammoth cave is of a soft bluish color, with white neck and feet. It has enormous eyes, black as night, but quite unprovided with an iris. These eyes are perfectly insensible to light, and when the experiment has been made of catching a cavern rat and turning it loose in bright sunlight it blunders about, striking itself against everything, is unable to provide itself with food and finally falls down and dies. In its native depths, however, it is able to lead a comfortable enough existence, as its enormously long whiskers are so extremely sensitive that they enable it to find its way rapidly through the darkness. The principal food of the cavern rat consists of a kind of large cricket of a pale yellow color and, like most other cave dwellers, itself perfectly blind.

Poker.

A woman calls and leaves her best regards,
And when she calls she also leaves her cards,
But when man calls formality he skips;
He doesn't leave his cards—he leaves his chips.

SUNDAY SERVICES

HALL PLACE M. E.

The subject of the morning service at the Hall Place M. E. Sunday was "Christian Silence," text being taken from Matthew 27-14. "And he answered him never a word; insomuch that the governor marvelled greatly."

The pastor emphasized the difference between christian silence and the silent christian, as there are times when Christian silence will work for greater good than trying to prove the truth of their claim, but there should never be any time in the life of a true christian when they cannot tell of the love of Christ.

Sunday school was held at the close of the morning service.

The Epworth League service was omitted.

The evening text was taken from Daniel 2-35 "Like the chaff of the summer threshing floors.

WOLLASTON BAPTIST.

The Rev. Joseph Walther, of the Wollaston Baptist church, selected for his text Sunday morning Psalm 118-22. Subject, "The Rejected Stone as the Head Stone of the corner." In this text we find several lessons. Jesus Christ is the Head Stone. We may reject him, we may thrust him from us, but nevertheless, he must reign; he shall reign from sea to sea. And he shall reign forever and forever. You may refuse him all authority from your life, nevertheless, all authority is given unto him in heaven and earth.

You and I are builders of character, lives and hopes of destiny. Let Jesus govern our lives, for there is none other name under heaven given among men, whereby we must be saved. Again, beware of the seeming small things in life. The little thing which we despise and reject may become the Head Stone of the corner. And Jesus warns us not to despise one of the little ones. The little child that we despise, when it is grown man become one of the mightiest of men; may become your judge, your director. It may become the Head Stone of the corner.

Oh, my friends, let us not sit down amidst the dust and rubbish of life. Let us scatter sunshine all along the way. God made us to soar, to mount up. The stone which the builders rejected may become the Head Stone of the corner. May God make it so by his grace, by his love and by his power.

Friday evening at 7.45 the regular weekly prayer meeting will be held. It is hoped there will be a goodly number present.

Base Hits.

Rumors are persistent that Cy Young is about done for as a pitcher. But he has a fortune.

For a man who doesn't swing violently Schulte of Chicago hits a ball as clean and hard as anybody in major league circles.

Outfielder Clyde Millan, who had a miserable year in 1909, is playing grand ball for Washington this season. They do come back now and then.

Chase is the veteran in point of service on the New York team, and yet he is under thirty, and this is only his sixth season with the Highlanders.

Detroit critics concede that Russell Ford of the New York Americans is a great pitcher, but doubt is expressed there whether he lasts the year out the way he exerts his arm in throwing the spitter.

Household Hints.

A strip of emery cloth tacked to a small square board will be found useful for quickly sharpening the carving knife.

The newest silence cloth is of asbestos. It is thin and as easy to fold as a tablecloth, yet it effectually protects the table top from injury by hot dishes or spilled liquids.

A "ready made cooking cupboard" for the unexpected that always happens may contain soup, salmon, an entree, bottled peas, canned or preserved fruit and anything else which is suitable for a hurried luncheon or dinner.

Train and Track.

Since Mexico acquired control of its principal railroads six training schools for railroad men have been opened in the City of Mexico.

Between Liverpool and Manchester there is an excellent hourly express train service. Packages sent by parcels post forwarded on these trains up to 6:30 p. m. are delivered the same day.

In many of the leading industrial countries of Europe the steel railway tie is being largely substituted for that of wood. In England such ties can be marketed at $30 per ton, or less than the present cost of wooden ties.

Womanlike.

Lot's wife looked back, but why should she
Have suffered as she did? Alas,
She probably looked back to see
If Lot had turned off all the gas!

The Dragon Screen

It Led to the Discovery of a Lost Fortune

By CLARISSA MACKIE

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

When the last wagon load of furniture had turned out of the avenue into the highroad and the auctioneer had furled his red flag and driven away from the old mansion set among tall growing locusts Deborah Ames smiled quizzically at her niece.

"I suppose you think my heart's broken, Polly," she said quietly.

"I saved what I wanted, dear."

Polly Ames stared. "You are trying to be brave, you dear thing!" she cried impulsively. "If you had only listened and had let me go to work you could have saved all the things that you have always had about you."

"And of which I am dreadfully tired," interposed her aunt, with sudden energy. "Larkin says the things brought two hundred and fifty, and that will keep us a year, Polly. You see, father left the place free and clear because he did not want his daughters to work for a living. He said the income from the securities would be sufficient to support us for life. But we were never able to find any trace of them. You remember how poor mother and I searched for the papers up to the very day of her death, and I look and look now, though I am very doubtful whether father ever had them, and yet"—

"I could teach music," said Polly mutinously for the hundredth time in the past year.

"My dear," cried Miss Deborah for the hundredth time, "your grandfather Ames left an ample fortune—enough to educate you and support us for the rest of our days."

"Where is it, then?" Polly saw her own flushed face in the long mirror and beside it Aunt Deborah's tired countenance, and her tender heart smote her. "Don't let us talk about it any more tonight, Aunt Deb. You will sleep on the davenport tonight? You sold the very beds, you know," suggested Polly gently.

"Come with me, my child. You have not made a trip to the south garret this many a day, I'll warrant," smiled Miss Deborah.

In this attic were many strangely sheeted forms that crowded the small space.

Carefully Miss Deborah withdrew the dusty sheets and, rolling them into balls, disclosed a closely packed mass of furniture.

Polly gazed open mouthed. "What is it, Aunt Deb? Where did you get it? Why—it's solid mahogany! Oh, the dear tables—and the highboys! Chippendale—and Sheraton—and real colonial!" Her pretty nose was poked here and there among the treasures, and her charming face was reflected from a dozen dim mirrors.

Miss Deborah smiled sadly. "It is my very own, Polly, dear. It was left to me by my great-aunt Hester, and it has remained stored away here for twenty-five years. I planned to give this to you and Dick for a wedding gift, but I shall need it for awhile. After I am gone"—

Polly stopped her sentence with a kiss. "After you are gone, indeed!" she cried indignantly. "You know that you are to live with us as soon as ever Dick makes enough money to start a home. What a beautiful house we will have—eh, Aunt Deb?"

She waltzed the stiff backed spinster about the limited space until Miss Deborah's flying skirt caught in a projecting nail and dragged clattering to the floor a tall screen whose frame was of carved ebony paneled with heavy Chinese embroidery, now faded and dull.

Polly picked it up with a little exclamation of delight. "What is this, Aunt Deb? Why have you kept this lovely screen hidden?"

"Great-aunt Hester left it to my father, dear. He was very fond of it, and for years it stood close to his desk. When he was quite helpless we used it to encircle his chair and ward off the drafts. It grew quite old and shaky and needed mending, and as no one but a skilled workman could mend the delicate carving it was placed up here after father's death, and of course nothing has been done to it since. All the broken bits of carving are in that little bag tied to the top," explained Miss Deborah.

"Can't I take it downstairs, Aunt Deb? I'm sure Dick can mend it—he is so clever. And I will mend the broken embroidery."

"Very well, dear. Tomorrow Norah's husband will come and move this furniture downstairs; tonight, I fear, we must sleep on the davenport. It is growing late, Polly; let us get downstairs and see about supper."

Together they dragged the heavy screen down to the parlor, where Polly once more fell into ecstasies over its delicate carving and fine inlay of ivory and mother of pearl.

After supper came Dick Fraser, and Polly waited for him in the deep veranda and told him of the sale of Miss Deborah's furniture.

Dick flushed hotly and sank into a low chair with a quick gesture of impatience. "It's a darned shame!" he cried angrily. "Here am I, a great, strong, husky chap, sitting around waiting for people to come and be cured of their ills, while Miss Deborah needs a man to go to work and pull her out of her financial difficulties! I wish I'd never studied medicine. I wish I'd learned to be a carpenter—or something else!"

"Fiddle-de-dee, Dr. Fraser!" cried Polly impudently. "If it were not for you what would become of all the poor sick people in Little River?"

"What has become of them now?" inquired Dr. Fraser. "They don't fill my waiting room. They don't jingle my telephone bell, nor do they call me up in the dead of night. I wish they would!" he ended viciously.

"It's been a healthy winter," comforted Polly, "and you know Dr. Brown is going to sell his practice and go away, and there will be a chance for you then."

"I'm afraid not, honey. If I could buy the doctor's practice and his automobile and his whole outfit I'd be made, but what's the use of talking? Let us go in and see Miss Deborah. Perhaps I can help her a bit. You must be at sixes and sevens."

"Norah has worked like a major. We shall camp tonight, and tomorrow we are to have—never mind! If you come over to tea you shall have a lovely surprise!" promised Polly as they entered the house.

When they sat around the cozy little fire in the back parlor Polly brought in the dragon screen and showed it to her lover.

"Of course you can mend it, Dick," she said confidently.

Dr. Fraser did not reply. He was examining the fine carving with the eye of a lover. His skillful fingers itched to handle brush and glue pot and restore to its original beauty the dragon screen.

"I shall mend the embroidery," explained Polly, thrusting inquisitive fingers into the various holes and rips in the panels. "Look at this scaly old dragon, Dick! He is fairly peeling off."

"And this dull green eye needs to be brightened," remarked the doctor absently.

Polly brought a basket of silks and sat down near the light and gravely matched her skeins against the faded embroidery of the screen. Miss Deborah, knitting near the fire, watched her with tender interest. These two young people were the very mainspring of her existence now that so much of her life had become merged in the past.

The light shone on the dragon screen, and the golden dragons glittered until it almost seemed as if their scales moved.

"How father loved that old screen!" mused Miss Deborah.

"Will it not be lovely to have it around once more?" asked Polly, turning her head, and then the screen slipped from her grasp, and she caught wildly at the panel on which she had been working. She caught a torn fragment of one of the golden dragons, and the silk, rotten with age, fell apart in her grasp, showing the white cotton lining.

Dick jumped to catch the screen, and as he righted it there slipped from the torn panel a long, legal looking envelope bearing some memoranda in a crabbed handwriting.

"By George!" shouted the young man excitedly. "What have we here—treasure trove? Polly, girl—catch—it's yours."

Polly's eager fingers caught the envelope and gave one glance at the superscription; then she flew across the room to Miss Deborah's side.

"The lost securities!" she cried. "See, Aunt Deb; grandfather has them labeled. How do you suppose they came to be in such a place, and suppose we had never found the screen?"

"Suppose I had not sold the furniture!" quavered Miss Deborah as she opened the bulky envelope and extracted the beautifully engraved certificates. "Do look at these, Dick—I'm so excited I can't read a thing! Father must have slipped them in there absentmindedly those last days before he was taken ill."

In a very awed voice Dr. Fraser read the list of valuable securities, and when he finished with a long drawn whistle of astonishment Miss Deborah and Polly were weeping in each other's arms.

"Won't the old house look perfectly lovely?" Polly was sobbing. "All the beautiful old fashioned furniture from the garret and"—

"And Dick shall have the south wing for his offices, and the carriage house can be made into a very respectable garage," added Miss Deborah, straightening her spectacles.

"What?" demanded Dr. Fraser very independently. "I couldn't, Miss Deborah—Polly—I want to earn my own home."

"You will buy out Dr. Brown's practice," said Miss Deborah decidedly. "You can pay me back some day if you will. But you can do more real good by becoming my resident physician than waiting there on the hill for the patients that do not come."

"Polly," pleaded Dick, "I'm trying to keep my independence. Back me up. You don't think I ought to accept this from Miss Deborah?"

"Aunt Deborah," corrected Polly sweetly. Then, "If you marry me at all, Dick, it must be exactly as she say, for—it will make her awfully happy, won't it, Aunt Deb?"

Miss Deborah arose and, coming to them, clasped her long arms around them both. "I never had any children of my own," she said huskily; "you two are all I have. Don't keep me waiting much longer for my happiness!"

Then the three heads came together, gray and black and golden, and the dragons on the screen seemed to writhe and twist and wink their green eyes very knowingly as if they knew Miss Deborah would have her own way after all.

FOREPAUGH CIRCUS.

Quincy children ranging in age from three to ninety-three—are beside themselves today. All the mind pictures of the great Adam Forepaugh and Sells Brothers shows, which have been drawn for weeks, are being realized to the fullest degree.

Early this morning the big circus came to Quincy on its own trains. Never was a larger crowd in on hand to welcome a visitor than that which did honor to the big circus at the railroad yards. The order and activity of the traveling army was a source of interest and entertainment to the hosts of hosts on hand.

More quickly than one can tell the story the train loads of wonders were unloaded and hurried to the show grounds. There in quick order vacant fields were tranformed into a city of monster canvas coliseums.

After a hearty breakfast was served the show family made ready for the parade. Shortly after eleven o'clock the pageant moved. The procession was a streak of color and grandeur never before equalled by a circus. Gold paint had been showered upon it in profusion and the costumes were as gorgeous as any that ever graced the court of a king.

An impressive feature of the parade was the number of women who took part. An impressive feature about the women is that they are all of young and genteel appearance. They demonstrate that the Forepaugh and Sells Brothers shows have made the pick of the circus world in making up their roster. The parade was the best ever seen in Quincy. It was thoroughly in keeping with the rest of the big show.

The largest crowd that ever attended a circus in Quincy attended the afternoon performance. The doors opened at one o'clock and for a full hour the visitors lingered in the giant menagerie tent viewing the scores of rare animals with the circus.

At two o'clock the first performance began. It opened with a gorgeous pageant representing the nations of the earth. An especialy striking feature of this grand entree is the Egyptian chariot, on which is pictured by an artist the history of the country of the Nile.

From the exit of the pageant from the canvas there was a two hour display of the wonders that make up the big circus. Within the tent there was a moving picture of marvels. Scores of acts, the finest that extant, and gathered from the ends of the earth—brought from the crowd a chorus of Ohs and Ahs!

The circus as presented this afternoon is the same that pleased Boston, New York and Philadelphia. B yall that saw it the circus was declared the biggest and best that ever visited Quincy.

There will be another performance this evening. The doors will open at seven o'clock and the show will begin an hour later.

—Where to spend your vacation is answered daily in our larger newspapers. The seashore and the mountains, the lakes and the rivers are advertised to be the best places to recuperate, to rest, to hunt, to fish, etc. They undoubtedly are, but the cost is the problem. It is a question with many whether the average man doesn't go beyond his means in paying vacation expenses. A vacation is not a necessity, but a man and his family are better for having the respite, but the after part, aye, there's the rub.—Mansfield News.

"WAS EITHER MY LIFE OR THEIRS"

Policeman Tells of His Battle With Mob at Boston

WAS SET UPON BY THUGS

Did Not Use Revolver Until He Had Been Kicked and Bruised by Friends of Man He Had Arrested—Reputable Citizens Bear Out His Statement—One Man Dead and Another In Serious Condition

Boston, July 12.—"It was my life or theirs," declared Patrolman Leary at Station 15, Charlestown. "I had to use the revolver to keep a crowd of 500 at bay. They beat, kicked and bruised me. When I used the gun I was surrounded by thugs, all threatening to kill me."

Briefly that is how the patrolman described the scene on Chelsea bridge when he shot William Deegan, 22 years old, of Somerville, who died in the relief hospital; Robert J. Verner of Somerville, who is on the dangerous list in the relief hospital with a wound in the groin, and John Anderson of Somerville, who has a bullet wound in his foot.

The patrolman wore many marks of his battle. His face was bruised and scratched. His body showed many bruises from numerous kicks. He is in a nervous condition on account of the death of Deegan.

Captain Wyman of Station 15 received communications from several prominent persons who saw the battle between Leary and the mob. One is a former president of the Boston board of trade, while the other is a city messenger in one of the suburban cities. They all declare that the officer was justified in his act, as he acted entirely on the defensive.

In the Charlestown district court John J. Anderson and Albert Johnson were arraigned on a charge of attempting to rescue Deegan from Patrolman Leary. Both pleaded not guilty and were held in $500 for a hearing on July 21 by Judge Bragg.

Verner is a brother-in-law of Deegan. Two police officers are guarding him at the hospital and when he recovers he will also be arraigned on attempting to rescue a prisoner.

Patrolman Leary, in speaking about the shooting, said: "It was shortly after 6:35 p. m. I was walking along Bunker Hill street, near Chelsea street. A man, accompanied by a woman, told me that a number of men were using insulting language on the bridge. I went to the place and found fourteen men using profanity and talking in a boisterous manner. I told them to move along.

"Deegan at this time started to swear at me. I arrested him. On the way to the patrol box he struck me. I received several other blows and finally pulled my club. I struck Deegan. Several of them closed about me and took the club, throwing it into the river. By this time there was a crowd of 500 shouting, 'kill the cop.' I finally brought Deegan to the box. The crowd kept increasing.

"Finally I was kicked several times in the stomach; one of the prisoners held my right arm and started to punch me. After being kicked, knocked down and jumped upon I pulled my revolver and fired. It was either my life or theirs. Sergeant Webster and several other officers were soon on the scene and aided me in arresting the men."

Police Commissioner O'Meara, while admitting that an investigation is under way, declares that he will not summarily suspend Leary.

Former Cashier of Rockport Bank Remains In Jail Meanwhile

Boston, July 12.—A continuance until July 18 was granted by Commissioner Hayes in the case of George W. Tufts, former cashier of the Rockport National bank, accused of misapplication of funds of that institution. In default of $15,000 bail Tufts is kept in the Charles street jail.

The federal authorities are proceeding as rapidly as possible with the investigation of the affairs of the bank, and in a few days they are likely to have all the necessary information for the prosecution of the defendant.

BRIEFS

Probate court will be held in Quincy tomorrow morning.

Miss Mabel Hodge of Town Hill is enjoying a two weeks' vacation.

Mrs. Andrew Leavitt and two children are visiting Mrs. Leavitt's mother Mrs. John King of Centre street.

Mrs. P. Benzie and three daughters of Hill street are visiting friends in Westerly.

Miss Hilda Francis of Centre street left Monday for Laurel Park, Northampton, where she will spend two weeks with friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert R. Holmes have the sympathy of friends in the death of their baby boy. Funeral services were held this afternoon.

The anual picnic of the Hall Place M. E. Sunday school will be held July 20th at Highland Park going by special car.

Plans for a lawn party to be held the latter part of the month are being carried out by members of the Hall Place M. E. church.

Masters Harold and Robert McCormick of Hall place, are visiting their aunt, Mrs. J. Ginns of Gloucester. Their mother, Mrs. James McCormick, will join them Saturday.

EPWORTH LEAGUE.

The regular monthly business meeting of the Epworth League of the Hall Place M. E. church, was held in the vestry Monday evening. The president called the meeting to order at 8.15. After the devotional exercises the secretary's report was read and approved. Reports were also received from the four vice presidents and accepted. It was decided to discontinue the devotional services on Sunday through the summer months.

—Time was when the college and high school graduates were sure of a nice situation at fairly good pay on the eve of graduation. But many a young man and young woman who perhaps has treasured the idea that a soft snap at princely remuneration was awaiting them, will soon be awake to the fact that their school course does not ensure them any such position. In effect they will be hunting for a job and find that in most cases the salary at the start will be no larger than an uneducated boy or girl of their age can secure in a manufacturing establishment. Eight or ten dollars a week is the price offered to graduates of technical schools by many of the corporations who desire young men of that training. But promotion is rapid for the boy who is willing and capable and has had the proper fit and education. The school training will count for something later on, but just for the present the graduates of lofty ideas are many of them due for a rude jolt. —Spencer Leader.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

MISSING FOR TWENTY YEARS

Archduke John Is Officially Pronounced "Dead"

A HERO OF MANY LEGENDS

Supposed to Have Been Seen In Many Places and Several Claimants to His Title Have Bobbed Up at Various Times—Real and Final Cause of His Exile From Austria Never Became Known to Public

Vienna, July 12.—At the instance of his nephew, Archduke Joseph, the high chamberlain's court has declared that it will assume that the missing Archduke John Salvator of Austria is dead and order the distribution of his property, unless proof of his existence is forthcoming within six months.

Archduke John disappeared about twenty years ago, when he became a sailor under the name of John Orth. At various times during that period reports of the archduke's reappearance have been received from various quarters of the globe, but none of the alleged claimants to the title has been able to prove his right to it.

Archduke John of Austria, who has been the hero of so many legends since his disappearance while on a voyage from Iquique to Valparaiso, once more becomes a subject of much discussion. An Argentine senator, Eugenio Garzon, claims to have been frequently in the society of the missing archduke and of the latter's actress wife for years after his disappearance. In fact, the senator insists that the archduke was living at one of the smaller towns in the province of Entre Rios, in the Argentine republic, under the asumed name of Don Ramon until 1903, when he left for Japan.

The French author, Georges Lacour, also declared that while he was on his way to Buenos Ayres he found Archduke John living at a big hacienda on the pampas of the Rio Negro. He relates in his article that the archduke had been living there under an assumed name for fifteen years.

Emperor Francis Joseph, although he had forced him to leave Austria and to surrender his Austrian citizenship, relented when the news was brought to him that his eccentric cousin was missing, and had probably been shipwrecked. He dispatched a cruiser which spent almost a year in exploring almost every mile of the coast between Iquique and Valparaiso, as well as the adjacent islands, in the hope of discovering some trace of the prince or of his ship, the Margherita. The search proved fruitless.

Archduke John was passionately devoted to his old mother, the Grand Duchess of Tuscany, who died in 1898. As long as she lived he was wont to write to her almost daily when away from her side. He wrote to her a long and detailed letter just before sailing from Iquique, but from that time forth until she died, eight years afterward, she never received a line from him, nor the slightest information as to whether he was alive or dead.

With him on board the Margherita when she sailed were his actress wife, Milly Stubel, and a crew of German, Austrian, English and Italian sailors. Most of these people had relatives. Yet they have never given any sign of life since they sailed from Iquique with the archduke.

The archduke was a most peculiar looking man, who even in his younger days was completely bald and wore a wig, of which he was not in the least bit ashamed, being often accustomed to remove it when incommoded by the heat and desirous of cooling his head. It would, therefore, be easy to recognize him if he were alive, and the only people who claim to have seen him since his alleged death have been persons who had never seen him in Europe previous to his disappearance.

The real and final cause of his exile from Austria, his exclusion from the imperial family and from Austrian citizenship and his subsequent departure on that fateful sea voyage around Cape Horn, from which he was never to return, still remains a secret, the knowledge of which is confined to the emperor and to his chancellor, Count Goluchowski.

ANOTHER REVOLT PLANNED IN CUBA

Leaders of Alleged Plot Are Placed Under Arrest

Havana, July 12.—Colonel Jorge Valera, a mulatto, and six other persons were arrested by the secret police, charged with conspiring to start an uprising against the government.

The seven men were on their way to Vieja Bermeja, in the province of Matanzas, to which place a trunk containing arms and ammunition and dynamite had been shipped from Havana.

It is not quite three months since the last negro conspiracy against the government was nipped in the bud by the police officials. Agitation of the race question in various parts of the Cuban republic culminated on April 23 with the arrest of General Estenoz, leader of the independent party of color, and some of his associates.

Later, however, all the negro prisoners concerned in the alleged conspiracy, with the exception of the negro leader, were discharged by a special judge who was appointed to try the cases.

MILLION LEFT BY FULLER

Will of Famous Jurist Is Noticeable For Its Brevity

Chicago, July 12.—Under the terms of the will of the late Melville W. Fuller, chief justice of the supreme court of the United States, which was filed in the probate court, the children of the jurist and the direct heirs will share equally in the division of his estate, which is estimated at nearly $1,000,000.

The document provides that the estate be held in trust for the heirs during the lifetime of his children. The will is of noticeable brevity and was executed in Washington, Feb. 10, 1910.

Blamed the Last One.

A man who from all appearances had dined well, but not wisely, bought a ticket at the box office of a theater where a farce was being produced in German. The man settled comfortably back in his seat, smiling at the pretty stage setting and evidently prepared to enjoy an evening of pleasant diversion. After a time he began to look worried and leaned forward in his seat.

"Strangest thing ever sperienced," he muttered.

A few minutes later he left the theater. At the door the ticket taker offered him a return.

"Nope; don't want it," he said as he brushed it aside. "Guess that last drink went to my head. Can't understand a blamed thing them people a-sayin'. I'm goin' home to bed."—Philadelphia Times.

MAKES RAPID HEADWAY

Add This Fact to Your Store of Knowledge.

Kidney disease advances so rapidly that many a person is firmly in its grasp before aware of its progress. Prompt attention should be given the slightest symptom of kidney disorder. If there is a dull pain in the back, headaches, dizzy spells, or a tired, worn-out feeling, or if the urine is dark, foul-smelling, irregular and attended with pain, procure a good kidney remedy at once.

Your townspeople recommend Doan's Kidney Pills. Read the statement of this Quincy citizen.

P. J. Garrity, 367 Granite street, Quincy, Mass., says: "Some time ago I suffered so severely from kidney disease that I could hardly get about. I was restless at night and could not find any position that was comfortable. The kidney secretions were too frequent in passage and contained a heavy sediment at times. I was rapidly growing worse and was at a loss to know what to do, as the many remedies I tried failed to help me. Finally Doan's Kidney Pills were recommended to me and I procured a supply at the Cox Drug Store. After I had taken the contents of four boxes I was in good health. I highly recommend Doan's Kidney Pills to other kidney sufferers."

SYNOPSIS

(CHAPTER VIII—Continued.)

The reader looked at this name, wrote a page or two and inserted them. But his task seemed to afford him little satisfaction. His face wore an expression not remote from discouragement. None knew better than he the actual value, for his purpose, of the material before him—the chaff, froth, bubble of the case! Almost contemptuously he regarded it. Had he sought the unattainable?

He drew himself up suddenly as if to shake off momentary doubt or depression. Replacing his documents in the safe and locking it, he walked into a room adjoining. In a bare, square place on the wall hung foils and broadswords, and the only furnishings were the conventional appointments of a home gymnasium.

Here, having doffed his street clothes and assumed the scant costume of the athlete, for an hour or more he exercised vigorously, every muscle responding to its task with an untiring ease that told of a perfect system of training, which proved of service to him and his well being, for one night not long thereafter he was called upon to defend himself from a number of footpads who set upon him.

The episode occurred in his own street near a corner, where the shadows were black at an hour when the narrow way seemed silent and deserted. For a block or more footfalls had sounded behind him, now quickening, then becoming more deliberate, in unison with his own steps, as from time to time he purposely altered his pace. Once he had stopped, whereupon they, too, had paused.

John Steele seemed oblivious. He moved into a doorway and, drawing from his pocket a cigar, unconcernedly lighted a match. The fellows looked at him, at the tiny flame. It flickered and went out. They hesitated. He felt in his pocket, giving them time to move by. They did not do so. In a moment the others from the main highway would join them. As if disappointed in not finding what he sought, Steele, looking around, appeared to see for the first time the evil looking miscreants who had come from the direction of the Thames and, striding toward them, asked brusquely for a light. One of the fellows thus unceremoniously addressed had actually begun to feel in his shabby garments for the article required when his companion uttered a short derisory oath.

John Steele's heavy stick rang hard. The way before him cleared. But close behind now the others came fast. His door, however, was near. Now he reached it, fitted the heavy key. Had it turned as usual the episode would have been brought to a speedy conclusion, but as it was the key stuck. The foremost of those who had been trailing fell upon Steele, but soon drew back. One of them, unable to repress a groan, held his hand to a broken wrist, while from his helpless fingers a knife dropped to the ground.

A ponderous, hulking fellow about six feet three, with a shock of red hair and a thick hanging lip, cursed loudly. Obviously this one of his assailants possessed immense, unusual strength.

"Let me at him, ye!" he cried in foul and flash tongue, when John Steele suddenly called him by name, said something in that selfsame dialect of pick purses and their ilk. The ruffian paused, remained stock still.

"How the— Who"— the man began.

"Call off your fellows!" John Steele's voice seemed to thrill. "I want to talk with you. It'll be more worth your while than any prigging or bagging you've ever yet done."

"Well, I'm blowed!" Suspicion gleamed from the bloodshot eyes. "And you want to talk with me? Here's a gamey cove!"

"I tell you I must talk with you! I've got a lay better than hooking you for the dock. As for the others, they can go, for all of me."

"Oh, they can!" The big man's face expressed varying feelings—vague wonder. At the same time he began to edge cautiously away. "That would be a nice plant, wouldn't it? Let's out of this, blokies," suddenly. "This cove knows too much, and"—

"Wait!" Steele stepped forward. "I want you, Tom Rogers, and I'm going to have you. It'll be quids in your pocket and not Newgate."

"Slope for it, mates!" The big man's voice rang out. Around the corner in the direction of the Thames the burly figure of a policeman appeared in the dim light. "That's his little game!" and turned.

But John Steele sprang savagely forward. "You fool! You'll not get away so easily!" he exclaimed when one of the others put out a foot. It tripped him. John Steele's head struck the curb violently.

For some moments he lay still; then he made out the face of a policeman bending over him.

"That was a nasty fall you got, sir."

"Fall?" John Steele arose, stood swaying. "That man must not escape. Do you hear—must not?" As he spoke he made as if to rush forward. The other laid steadying fingers on his arm.

"Hold hard a bit, sir," he said. "Not quite yourself. Besides, they're well out of sight now. No use running after."

Steele moved, grasped the railing leading up the front step. His brow throbbed; a thousand darting pains shot through his brain. But for the moment these physical pangs were as nothing. Disappointment, self reproach, moved him. To have allowed himself to go down like that—to have been caught by such a simple trick! Clumsy clod! And at a moment when—

"Pardon me, sir," the officer said in a brisker tone, "but hadn't we better go in? This, I take it, is your house. You can look after yourself somewhat and afterward describe your assailants; then we'll start out to find and arrest them, if possible."

Steele loosened his hold on the railing. He appeared now to have recovered his strength. "That's just what I don't want you to do. My name is John Steele. You know of me?" And as the other returned a respectful affirmative, "It is my desire to escape any notoriety in this little matter, you understand?" Something passed from his hand to the policeman's.

Walking quickly up the steps, John Steele opened the door, murmured a perfunctory "Good night" and let himself in. But as he mounted to his chambers some of the moment's exultation that had seized him at sight of the man revived.

"He has come back. He is here—in London. I surely can lay hands on him. I must! I will!"

CHAPTER IX.

A CHANGE OF FRONT.

HE found the task no easy one, however, although he went at it with his characteristic vigor and energy. Few men knew the seamy side of London better than John Steele—its darksome streets and foul alleys, its hovels and various habitations. And this knowledge he utilized to the best advantage, always to find that his efforts came to naught.

Reluctantly John Steele concluded that the man he sought had made his way out of London; otherwise the facilities at his command were such that he should most likely ere this have been able to attain his end—find what he desired. Soberly attired, he attracted no very marked attention in the slums, breeding spots of the criminal classes. The denizens knew John Steele. He had been there oft before.

He had on occasion assisted some of them with stern good advice or more substantial services. He was acquainted with these men and women, had perhaps a larger charity for them than most people find it expedient to cherish. One man had seen the object of Steele's solicitude, and to this person, a weazened little "undesirable," the red headed giant had confided that London was pretty hot and he thought of decamping from it.

"'Arter all this time that's gone by,' he says to me, bitter like, 'to think a man can't come back to 'is native 'ome without being spied on for what ought long ago to be dead and forgot!'"

"What brought him to London?"

"I expect it was 'omesickness, sir. 'E's been a bad lot, but 'e has a 'eart, arter all. It was to see 'is mother 'e came back; the old woman drew 'im 'ere. You see, 'e had written 'er from foreign parts, but could never 'ear 'cause she had moved. Used to keep a place where a woman was found"— various reports and on the basis of which the amount of uncollected taxes has been reported each year do not agree with the warrants, and we did not find a reasonable explanation of this divergence. We found no warrants for the years 1889-1893, inclusive, and judging from what we did find in other years they might, if found, make a still wider difference. On the other hand the reports and warrants for the years 1906-1909, inclusive, agreed in every instance. The widest differences were in the years 1895, and 1900, in both cases the warrants being greater than the commitments as reported. In the other years the difference was not great in any instance and occurred both ways, nearly balancing each other.

The total amount of taxes collected by the city from its incorporation to the present time, as shown in the reports, was $7,498,796.90, of which $23,930.63 was unpaid taxes due the town and the balance of $7, 474,866.28, was levied by and paid to the city.

We present the following summary for your consideration, the figures being for the twenty-one years since the city was incorporated:

Commitments		$8,041,402.25
Abatements	$1°6,386.97
Collections	7,474,866.28
Abatements and collections		7,631,253.25
Balance of Commitments not collected or abated		410,149.00
Excess of Abatements over Overlays		16,169 90
		$427,118.90
Commitments	$8,011,402.25
Overlays	129,417 07
Appropriations	7,901,985.18
Collections	7 474,8 6.28
		$427,118.90

From the foreging figures we submit that it appears that there has been appropriated, and presumably spent, in the twenty-one years of the life of the city, $427,118.90 more than has been collected in taxes during that time.

SEWERS.

Without extended explanations we submit the following summary of figures as to sewer maintenance from 1897 to 1909 inclusive:

RECEIPTS.

Premiums	$18,691.00
Taxes	120,01 ,23
Assessments	244,055.25
Total	$382,779.48
Deficit	31,763.66
	$414,543.14

PAYMENTS.

Bonds	$168,500.00
Interest	203,984.25
Maintenance	26,868.25
Special	17,19 .64
	$414,543.14

It will thus be seen that sewers are an important factor in arriving at results and the reasons therefor.

WATER.

In the Water Department an entirely different condition obtains, as will be seen from the following summary for the years 1892 to 1909, inclusive.

RECEIPTS.

Appropriation Debt	$302.146.00
Appropriation Tax	265,385.90
Water Rates	1,276,694.55
	$1,844,220.45

PAYMENTS.

Debt	$536,400.00
Tax	362,349.60
Interest	450,1 0.94
Maintenance	211,382.52
Total	1,560, 43.06
Surplus	283,977.39
	$1,844:20. 5

Other than the preceding factors in the general situation it should be borne in mind that many of the appropriations are made for a specific amount and "and receipts" and because of incomplete and inaccurate data on the matter of receipts, except during the past two or three years, that is something which it is difficult to correctly ascertain. Another matter which enters into the case is the amount of additional appropriations which have been made from time to time by orders of the City Council and it is extremely uncertain if the records are sufficiently well kept during the entire time to obtain accurate figures.

You will thus clearly see that the present condition of the finances of your city is largely due to careless manner in which the business of your city has been conducted in the past and the easy-going manner in which the accounts were kept until recent years. We do not believe that it is a condition which can properly be attributed to any particular earlier administration, but is merely the growth of the time before more careful accounting was considered necessary and, while no system is perfect, it is a fact that we have found little difficulty in arriving at accurate conclusions during the past two or three years, the great difficulty being found in years previous to that time.

Respectfully submitted.

FATE OF FAMOUS SEA FIGHTER

Sloop of War Portsmouth to Become a Museum.

WILL BE SENT TO CALIFORNIA

Vessel Used by New Jersey Naval Reserve at Hoboken to Go to San Francisco Around Cape Horn—Government Has Given the Tonopah to Jersey Sailors In Her Place.

Nearly threescore years and ten of usefulness, first as a warship and then as a ship on which fighting men are trained, the sloop of war Portsmouth is to end her days in peace. She will be sent to San Francisco, where she will be used as a naval museum. For fourteen years she has been the home of the First naval battalion, naval reserve of New Jersey, and during all that time she has been moored to piers at Hoboken, N. J.

For several years the Jersey sailors have been cramped for room on the old wooden sea fighter, and the United States government has given to them the monitor Tonopah, a more modern ship. The Portsmouth will soon proceed to the Pacific, going around Cape Horn.

Conspicuous In the Mexican War.

The state of California has been very anxious to obtain the old sloop, for she was one of the most active craft in the Mexican war, and it was through her efforts as a blockader that California was annexed to the Union. On her arrival in San Francisco harbor the Portsmouth will be moored at the foot of one of the principal streets. She was built in 1843 in the New Hampshire city whose name she bears. Three years later she broke into fame, in June, 1846, at the outbreak of the Mexican war, when her commander, John B. Montgomery, took possession of the harbor of San Francisco, in which she was the first United States warship to enter.

In August, 1846, the Portsmouth took part in the engagement which resulted in the capture of Los Angeles on the 13th of the month. Later she figured in the capture of Monterey. The next year (1847), in October, her guns and those of the United States steamer Congress bombarded the city of Guayamas, which was reduced in a few hours.

After the close of the trouble with Mexico Captain Andrew H. Foote was placed in command of the Portsmouth and ordered to China to put an end to the attacks of the Chinese on American ships. At that time the Chinese treated all English speaking countries as enemies.

The big black ship, her sides bristling with guns, kept the Chinese quiet for a time, but there were occasional outbreaks, in suppressing one of which Captain Foote himself led his men in person.

Earned Title of the "Black Devil."

It was on Nov. 15, 1856, that Captain Foote was in a cutter crossing the harbor of Canton when one of the Chinese forts opened fire. The fact that the American flag was flying made no difference to the orientals, and when the fire was taken up by another fort Captain Foote found himself in danger of a furious crossfire of grape and canister.

Returning to the Portsmouth, Captain Foote took up a position in front of the forts and opened fire, soon silencing the Chinese guns. More than 500 Chinese were killed, and the lesson was so salutary that never again were Americans in danger.

Through this engagement the Portsmouth earned her title of the "Black Devil." This was carried until after the civil war. During the rebellion she was rather inactive, her principal service being at the blockade of the Mississippi by Farragut.

After the civil war, having become antiquated by the advent of ironclads and no further opportunities presenting themselves for her to distinguish herself, she lay at anchor at the navy yard until the Jersey naval reserve wanted her, and she was turned over to it for a training ship. For several years she was moored at the foot of Fourth street, Hoboken, and later was taken to her last berth at the foot of Fifteenth street. She is 989 tons. Fully equipped, she carried twenty-two guns and a crew of 161. The Tonopah, which is expected to arrive within a few weeks, will be moored at the same place, and the Portsmouth will be sent to the New York navy yard to be prepared for her long voyage.

New Meat Preserving Process.

Good results are expected from a new dry air process of preserving meat. The inventor of this process claims that for $100 a station owner can put up the necessary plant and treat sheep at a cost of 1 cent per carcass, and after being treated by this new process the meat may be hung in any ordinary place and atmosphere and kept good for a week.

American Firearms In Demand.

Brazil bought 5,750,000 worth of firearms in 1909 against only $1,500,000 worth in 1908. The American share rose only from $500,000 to $800,000, or $300,000 out of the increase of $4,250,000. American revolvers lead in Venezuela. Automatic revolvers sell best in England. Belgium buys American makes.

Soak the clothes over-night.

It loosens the dirt and makes the work of washing very much easier.

Use three tubs, one for table linen, one for bed and body linen, one for the soiled towels and cloths.

Wet the clothes, rub Lenox Soap Solution over the soiled parts, fold and roll each piece by itself, pack in a tub, cover with warm soapy water and let stand over-night.

TO MAKE LENOX SOAP SOLUTION:—Take a cake of Lenox Soap, cut it into small pieces, dissolve these in three quarts of boiling water. Keep water at boiling point until a solution is formed.

Lenox Soap Solution does better work than soap; and is more economical, because there is no waste.

Lenox Soap—"Just fits the hand"

Campbell's TOMATO SOUP

is made from full-grown red-ripe tomatoes ripened on the vines—luscious, juicy, perfect specimens.

The clear thick juice is all that is used in this soup, and it comes to your table fragrant and spicy; smooth as cream, and the most delicious smacking relish you ever tasted.

And you prepare it in three minutes. We have other kinds, too; and Campbell's Baked Beans with tomato sauce.

BRIEFS

A local bridge club is enjoying a trol lteyrip to Marblehead today.

The cool breeze that prevailed Monday evening was very refreshing after a hot day.

The weekly devotional meetings of the Epworth League of the Hall Place M. E. church have been discontinued for the summer.

Mrs. Joseph B. Groce of Allyne terrace who was injured in an automobile and carriage accident at North Weymouth last week is still confined to her room.

Mrs. Wilson Tisdale has retruned from Maine and is receiving the sympathy of her friends in the death of her cousin Miss Farrar, who was well known in Quincy spending much of her time here.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert M. McCurdy of 117 Elm street are giving a party this afternoon to some twenty-five friends, young and old, for their daughter Dorothy, in observance of her fourth birthday.

Petite Carrie Mooney, premier bareback rider of the Adams Forepaugh and Sells Brothers' circus, is wearing a chanticler gown in her act and it is creating much talk in the cities visited. When she appears on her beautiful Arabian stallion "Polo" in a chanticler gown made in Paris, and teh men and women of the act in Parisian costumes, it is a sight worth seeing.

A Paradoxical River.

On the African shore, near the gulf of Aden and connecting the lake of Assal with the main ocean, may be found one of the most wonderful rivers in the world. This curiosity does not flow to but from the ocean toward inland. The surface of Lake Assal itself is nearly 700 feet below the mean tide, and it is fed by this paradoxical river, which is about twenty-two miles in length. It is highly probable that the whole basin which the lagoon partly fills was once an arm of the sea which became separated therefrom by the duning of loose sand. The inflowing river has a limited volume, being fullest, of course, at high tide, and has filled the basin to such an extent that evaporation and supply exactly balance each other.

Extravagant Mourning.

Pepys' diary has this on the mourning customs of the time: On Sept. 22, 1660, when there was mourning for King Charles' brother, the Duke of Gloucester, he "bought a pair of short black stockings to wear over a pair of silk ones for mourning." Next day "came one from my father's with a black cloth coat, made of my short cloak, to walk up and down in." The problem of mourning for men must have been greater than it is now in those days, when ordinary masculine costume was less somber. On this occasion Pepys records seeing "the king in purple mourning for his brother." There is one mourning extravagance of the early eighteenth century which would scarcely commend itself—the soles of the shoes used to be blacked—St. James' Gazette.

—Over fifty applicants representing seven states have applied for the position of superintendent of schools in Brockton. It will take the committee some time to sift it down to one man.

DEATHS.

His Maternal Grandma.

A devoted father after a day's absence was met by his two little sons.

"Have you been good boys?"

Silence.

"Have you been good boys?"

"No, papa; I called graudma a bad word," said five-year-old, turning scarlet.

"Is it possible? What did you call your grandma?"

"I called her a human being."

The father, with a mighty effort, maintained his gravity and closed the scene decorously. "I must forgive you for once, but remember if you ever call your grandmother a human being again I shall have to spank you."

Professional.

"I don't like to see a woman play for money," said the bridge whist fiend.

"You don't! Why do you go to the theater then?"—Yonkers Statesman.

WALPOLE LEADS NORWOOD NEXT

Standing of Norfolk County League This Week's Games

A certain number of enthusiastic fans received the impression last winter that a good sized amatuer baseball league was a very feasible proposition so they set out and conferred with and wrote to numerous managers and finally six consented to bring teams into an amatuer league.

There are six teams in the league, all of which are good fast teams that play fast, clean ball.

Instead of bunching as is usual in a small league playing few games, the teams have separated there being a tremendously wide birth between third and fourth positions. However as few games are played it will take a very short time for either of the second division teams to cap the lead and Copeland is on the way up now.

Walpole the league leaders took the game from Quincy 3 to 2 on the Water street grounds last Saturday and Norwood and Hyde Park won from City Mills and Dorchester respectively.

The league standing is given below:

	Won	Lost	Percent
Walpole	7	1	.875
Norwood	6	1	.857
Hyde Park	4	3	.571
Copeland	2	6	.250
City Mills	1	3	.250
Dorchester	0	6	.000

Next Saturday the teams play as follows:

Dorchester at Walpole, Hyde Park at Norwood, and Quincy at City Mills.

SPORTING CHAT.

The Glovers of Atlantic won their seventh consecutive victory, 7 to 1, from the Norfolks of Dorchester.

* * *

What's the matter with Quincy? The trouble comes in shaking Randolph off.

Ralph Ford surely is going some. He is 17 years old and pitching good ball for a very fast team.

* * *

The Copelands are also in the limelight. Next Friday they leave here to play 3 games in Barre, Vt.

* * *

* * *

The Dorchester A. A. which was to have played Makaria at Merrymount Saturday failed to put in an appearance and the team and crowd were greatly disappointed. The Makarias will be in sore need of men soon as Nicoll is with Rockland, Eggleton will be away on a vacation as will "Rup" Ganzel, and Curtis and Bonney are also contemplating a trip. It will be rather tough to see anything happen to the team because they've stuck for so long.

* * *

One of the umpires in the Granite City League was not notified to show up Saturday and it looks like one on the secretary. He has been slightly backward in a number of instances.

SIRES AND SONS.

Major General Daniel E. Sickles is the oldest living civil war leader. He is eighty-seven years old, but still stalwart and active.

Edgar Bloom, a traveling salesman, of Kansas City, Mo., is deaf and dumb. He sells diamonds and carries a price list printed on a card which he hands to each merchant he visits.

The trustees of the University of Chicago have granted to Professor Oscar Bolza of the mathematical department permission to spend the rest of his life in Freiburg, Germany. He will draw the same salary he received when active.

Robert Alphonso Taft, son of the president, who has just been graduated from Yale university, is going to start work in the Harvard Law school in October. He is the first son of a president of the United States to acquire a Yale diploma.

Henry Dexter, president of the American News company in New York, ninety-seven years of age, still sits at his desk. He goes down to his office every day in an automobile and takes a very active interest in his business as well as in philanthropic affairs.

Fernando Jones, who celebrated his ninetieth birthday recently, has lived in Chicago longer than any other person. He settled there in 1835 and has lived there ever since. When he first saw the village it was nothing unusual to observe Indians upon the streets.

THE TROTTING OUTLOOK.

Fast Work Promised by Country's Leading Track Horses.

The season of 1910 promises to be graced by some of the most stirring free-for-all trots and others in the extreme fast classes that any enthusiast could desire. At least that is what a survey of the material for a series of such races would appear to give full warrant for. The following is a list of trotters eligible to such events that are now in active training or soon will be:

Uhlan, 2:02¼, bl. g., by Bingen, 2:06¼.
Jack Leyburn, 2:04¼, ch. g., by Alto Leyburn, 2:24½.
Penisa Maid, 2:04¼, b. m., by Pennant, 2:15.
Paderewski, 2:05¼, ch. g., by Constenaro, 2:16.
Sonoma Girl, 2:05¼, br. m., by Lynwood W., 2:20½.
Margin, 2:05¾, ro. m., by Time Onward.
Bob Douglass, 2:06¼, gr. h., by Todd, 2:14¾.
Sterling McKinney, 2:06¼, br. h., by McKinney, 2:11¼.
Wilkes Heart, 2:06¼, br. g., by Great Heart, 2:12½, pacing.
Allen Winter, 2:06½, br. h., by Ed Winter, 2:12¾.
Inner Guard, 2:06½, b. g., by Guardsman, 2:23½.
Ruth Dillon, 2:06½, b. m., by Sidney Dillon.
General Watts, 2:06¾, b. h., by Axworthy, 2:15½.
The Harvester, 2:06¾, br. h., by Walnut Hall, 2:08¼.
Spanish Queen, 2:07, b. m., by Onward Silver, 2:05¼.

Here are fifteen trotters with records from 2:02¼ to 2:07, to which may be added one or two others as possibilities. They include the gray gelding Locust Jack (2:06½), reported as switched to the pace, at which gait he is to be raced in the future, but whose reappearance at the trot will be not unlikely. Early Alice (2:06¾) is also named.

Uhlan is the property of Mr. Billings, who never races his horses in regular professional races for money prizes, so that the champion gelding may be described as hors concours except in some special event in which he may be allowed to race. It is also unlikely that General Watts may be seen in any races, as it has been reported that the plan is to prepare him solely for an attempt to lower the world's stallion record, the 2:02¼ of Cresceus.

But in any event there are a sufficient number of eligibles to insure a series of races which should be in the highest degree notable and in which more than one record will be in danger of being broken.

TAKES BRAINS TO RUN.

Sheppard Says Fellow Can't Break Record With Feet and Legs.

When a fellow learns how to run—when he breaks records—you can be sure that he does not do all with his feet and legs," remarked Melvin Sheppard recently.

"There is only one way to run in record time, and that is for the fellow who is attempting the feat to use his brain," continued peerless Mel. "Some acquire the necessary trait, but I have always found that calculating out just how and when to run came natural to me; that's the reason why I lowered Lon Meyer's figures for the 660 yard run and beat the world's mark established by Lunghi for the 700 yard run.

"There's nothing to it! I've trained more faithfully within the past few weeks than ever before, but I could never run as well as I did the other day just on the strength I have gathered since starting conscientious work. It was just that I have the natural gift of knowing when to do the running that counts in a race that gave me the two new records," said Sheppard.

Sheppard, running against a cold, damp, penetrating wind, created two new world's records recently that will probably stand for years to come. At the 660 yard mark he broke the tape in 1 minute 21 2-5 seconds, just three-fifths of a second faster than Meyers traveled the distance twenty-eight years ago. At 700 yards Sheppard crossed the line 1 minute 26 4-5 seconds, which was exactly three-fifths of a second better than Lunghi's record.

DIAMOND CHIPS

Oscar Stanage of the Detroit Tigers is a much improved catcher over what he was last year.

"My payroll is now $85,000," says Frank Farrell, owner of the New York Americans. "My total expenses for operating the team are $135,000."

It is soft to be an umpire today compared with five years ago. Then the players fought the umpires. Today the players cannot talk or they get put off the field.

Cy Young is about done for as a pitcher. But he has a fortune, so what does he care? He is the grand old man of baseball. When Young quits Deacon Phillippi of the Pirates will be about the oldest of the old guard left in the majors, if Deacon lasts until Cy drops out of the game.

Ed Walsh Has Four Different Spitters.

Many a spitball pitcher is content when he has just one style of delivering the moist slant, but not so with Ed Walsh of the Chicago White Sox, who is considered the best spitball pitcher of them all. Walsh now has four distinct methods of pitching the vapor ball. Three of them are thrown overhand, while one is on the order of a raise ball, being delivered underhand. The last carries a jump with it, while the other three produce a fadeaway, a drop and a curve.

ENGLISH POLOISTS COMING.

International Matches For Cup to Be Held Aug. 24 and 27.

The English invasion of polo players will take place during the latter part of August, and the matches for the International Challenge cup will in all probability be played on the grounds of the Meadowbrook club, Westbury, N. Y. The dates suggested by the Polo Association of America are Aug. 24 and 27, while in the event of a tie a third date will be agreed upon. This agreement of the Polo association committee was cabled to Major Green, manager of the Hurlingham club, Fulham, London, recently, and was in reply to a cable from the Hurlingham club asking for positive dates for the International matches.

The official announcement of the dates insures the most interesting polo contests ever witnessed in the country. While the visiting team will not be a thoroughly representative one, it will comprise several of the strongest players in the Hurlingham club, which is the strongest in England. The team will consist of the Earl of Rocksavage, Lord Wodehouse and the twin brothers F. O. and R. N. Grenfell, with the Duke of Roxburghe as a probable substitute.

The American representatives will in all probability be the same that captured the cup at Hurlingham last year. The team are members of the Meadowbrook club and consist of Harry Payne Whitney, captain; J. M. and Lawrence Waterbury and Devereaux Milburn. All these players are in good form, and little concern is felt as to the outcome of the matches. The English team will be under the management of Captain E. B. Miller, who replaces Captain Lloyd, who failed to organize a challenging four from Hurlingham.

There will be three foreign polo teams here this year. In addition to the Old Etonians, a team of Irish players will play a series of friendly matches with the eastern clubs and join tournaments that may be open to them, while F. A. Gill of the Ranelagh club is to bring a team of English players to take part in the Point Judith Polo club tournament in August, but, as with the Irish team, the Britishers are only out for sport and fun.

CRAWFORD BATTING HARD.

Clever Detroit Outfielder Has Driven In More Runs Than Any Other Man.

If an automobile had been offered by a Detroit firm for the major league player who drove in the most runs instead of the player having the highest batting average at the end of the season the man who would have the best chance of getting the car would be Sam Crawford, the heavy hitting

"WAHOO SAM" CRAWFORD OF THE DETROIT AMERICANS.

Detroit outfielder. At the end of the first two months and a half of play the warrior from Wahoo, Neb., had been responsible for fifty of the runs scored by his team, driving in this number of tallies either on actual hits, serviceable infield outs or flies to the suburban districts. The runner up in respect of timely and productive hitting was Tyrus Cobb of the same team, who had driven in forty markers.

Walter Johnson's Record.

Walter Johnson of the Washington Americans was the first major league twirler to strike out 100 batsmen this season.

MORE BURGLARS IN CITY SQUARE

Attempts Were Made Tuesday Night to Enter Two Stores

The visit of a circus to town is always accompanied with numerous small breaks. Whether they are made by boys seeking necessary funds to see the show or by the gang of crooks that follow a circus from town to town seeking to get a living at the expense of some one elese is a matter of guess work.

Early Tuesday morning the 5 and 10 cent store of H. L. Kincaide & Co. was enterel by forcing a door but nothing was taken as far as known. This morning it was reportel that attempts had been made to enter two more stores some time during Tuesday night. These stores were those of James McConnell the fruit dealer and of Sanborn & Damon the stove men. At both places the attempt to break into the stores was by forcing the rear doors. The doors showed the mark of the tools used by the burglars but they did not succeed in getting in to either store. The work looks like that of boys.

OPEN RACE SATURDAY.

The annual open and interclub races under the auspices of the Quincy Yacht club will be held Saturday afternoon off the club house at Houghs Neck starting at 3 o'clock. In addition to cash prizes offered in each class the percentages will count in the yacht racing association for the season's championship in the several classes. This race will also offer an excellent oportunity for the visiting yachtsmen to inspect the new enlarged club house.

RICARDO AJA.

The funeral of Ricardo Aja the 17 year old Spanish boy who was drowned in Ballow's quarry while bathing Sunday was held from St. John's church Tuesday. Services were conducted by Rev. P. J. Scannell. The burial was at St. Mary's cemetery.

TAX RATES.

Somerville anounced its tax rate Tuesday as $18.50 per $1,000 a decrease of 10 cents from last year. The total valuation of the city is given as $66,376,338.70 an increase of $2,717,300. The number of polls shows an increase of 492.

BRIEFS

But for the good breeze today the air would be suffocating.

The City Council Committee on Finances meet Thursday evening.

There is a fleet of about forty pleasure crafts at the foot of River street.

Mrs. J. Burton of Quincy Point was visited by her brother from New York during last week's hot spell.

Miss Olive Milbury of West Elm avenue is in New York visiting relatives.

Mrs. Jonathan Payne of Baxter street is quite ill and has been removed to the Hospital.

G.A. R. men attending the Norfolk county association outing Tuesday at Bass Point report a good time and cool weather.

NEARLY READY FOR OPENING

St. John's Parochial School to Open Next September

With the beginning of the regular school term there is no doubt that the parochial school erected in conjunction with St. John's Church will be completed and open for the reception of Catholic children. The work is almost entirely completed and with only the details of construction to finish it is certain that the school will open at the same time as the regular public schools.

In construction and in detail the building is probably the finest school building in the city. The main entrance is on Phipps street near Water street and is ornamented with gray granite, as is the entire building which is of brick and granite throughout.

In the basement of the three story structure are the heating and ventilating plans and at either extremity of the building the toilets are arranged, fitted with the most modern plumbing. The floors are entirely of cement but the piping is always accessible and so arranged as to admit of further tapping without interference with present fittings. In the centre of the basement are the boilers and the air pump which will send pure air through the various arteries of the system to vents leading through the roof. A long, broad corridor extends the entire length of the building in the rear to broad easy stairways at either end.

The entire building, between floors and in partitions and walls, is protected by expanded metal lath minimizing danger from fire.

On the first floor the main entrance occupies the center of the building and on either side are the class rooms which are of sufficient size to accommodate fifty pupils. Each room is freely ventilated and lighted by numerous windows and is provided with two cloak rooms.

Broad corridors extend the length of the building at the rear and lead to wide stairways at either end. Both corridors and stairs are thoroughly fireproof and in case of fire are amply large enough to allow the occupants to leave the building without congestion.

On the second floor are three class rooms, a store room and the supervisors office, and on the third floor are two rooms and the assembly hall which is provided with an ample platform at the right hand end. The construction on this floor is such that should more room be necessary the platform can be removed, one partition built and another class room obtained without reconstruction or further extension of the lighting wires which are arranged with this possibility in view.

Shold still further extension be necessary a three story, three room addition may be built in the rear at either end or in the centre and made accessibly by simply knocking out the partition below the windows, thus providing doors. Electric wires may be lead to any addition without changing any present line. Should an addition be placed in the centre its lower floor will be occupied by a great assembly hall with a permanent stage.

It should be understood that one or all of these additions in the rear will not disturb the present building or any addition which may have been erected. Should all three possible additions be made the building will be double the present size and exactly symetrical.

Behind the school is a field which will be used as a recreation ground and at the right, reached by a side door from the school, is the convent which will be occupied by the sisters of St. Joseph who will act as instructors in the school. This building contains every possible facility and accommodation of the most modern kind and is arranged with a view to the utmost convenience.

The work of building the school has been under the personal supervision of Rev. Fr. John J. Coan, pastor of St. John's church and the greater part of the modernity of the building is directly due to his foresight and knowledge of the work.

Fr. Coan has been in this parish for seven years but has entirely cleared the church of debt and will be able to complete the school, which will cost $80,000, without again going into debt. He is justly proud of his achievement.

QUINCY LAND IN DISPUTE

Does City of Boston or Quincy Own Land at Squantum

It is perhaps not generally known outside of the stone walls of City Hall that a large tract of land at Squantum upon which the City of Boston has recently issued permits to campers, is now owned by the City of Quincy by virtue of tax titles.

There has long been a squabble over this property between the two cities as to whether or not it should be taxed. The City of Quincy claims that it should be and has levied a tax upon it. Several years ago the question came up for considerable dispute and the City of Boston refused to pay the assessment.

Then the property was advertised for sale by the tax collector and was purchased by the city. Unless this is taken up inside of two years and the tax and interest paid the property reverts back to the City of Quincy. The two year limit expires this year. It has been reported at City Hall that the City of Boston intended to pay up but has not done so as yet.

A new phase has been reached in the situation however by an order recently passed by the City Council of Boston, appropriating $500 for the installation of a system of sanitaries and water supply.

An article in Tuesday night's Record says:

Mayor Fitzgerald's real estate expert John C. Kiley, who has investigated, the order recently adopted by the city council appropriating $500 for the installation of a system of sanitaries and water supply for the land owned by the city on Squantum head and let out to campers, reports a discovery that the city of Quincy now holds title to this property by virtue of tax titles. The total assessed value is $23,800. The order calling for the installation of the improvements is provisional with the receipt of at least 100 applications for camping privileges at $5 each, but only 60 have yet applied, and there is doubt in the mind of Supt. Rourke whether the required number will ever be received.

Mr. Kiley favors holding on the land because of an expected increase in its valuation. Corporation Counsel Babson gives the opinion that if Boston ever questions the validity of the tax deeds which the city of Quincy holds the matter will hinge on the question of whether the land was held by Boston in good faith for a public use, or for revenue or for sale. He says the fact that the city leased it to campers would be evidence that it was held for revenue and he recommends that it be sold at once and nothing done to improve it.

It was in the fall of 1908 that Tax Collector Carey sold the land of the City of Boston at Squantum for taxes. The amount due the city at that time from 1894 to and including the tax of 1907 was $7,136.74. To this should be added the tax of 1908 amounting to $487.90, which will also have to be paid when the tax title is taken up by the City of Boston. There is also due the tax of 1909 which is charged to the City of Quincy, who hold the tax title.

The two years' limit on the tax title, that is, the time the City of Boston has to redeem the land, expires sometime in August. It was during Mayor Hibbard's term as Mayor of Boston that Assessor Adams tried to arrange for the redeeming of title but Mayor Hibbard went out of office before the matter was cleaned up.

PACKARD FAMILY REUNION.

A meeting of the executive committee of the Packard Family Association was held last week at Brockton and arrangements made for the annual reunion and outing which will be held Sept. 7 in G. A. R. hall, Brockton. The banquet this year is to be served by members of the Fletcher Webster Relief corps and the affair will be under the direction of a committee of the association comprising Miss Hayward and Otis Cobb. The committee appointed to arrange for speakers is President Abbott W. Packard, Vice President Elisha Packard of Quincy and the secretary of the association, Miss Sarah L. Mecuen of Boston. The committee on music will be Walter T. Packard and the committee for the nomination of officers for the ensuing year is Walter T. Packard, Otis Cobb and Frank E. Packard.

The arrangements will include a reception to be followed by a banquet and then during the afternoon there will be speaking, entertainment and a general social affair.

AUTOMOBILE DAMAGED $350.

It is reported that it will cost $350 to repair the damage to the car of Mrs. Adelaide White that was smashed during the joy ride of John Donovan, her discharged chauffeur, when the car ran into the curbing on Washington street early Tuesday morning. Donovan and his friends in the car at the time of the accident have not been seen or heard from since leaving Quincy after having their injuries dressed.

CONTRACT TO QUINCY FIRM.

The Overseer of the Poor has awarded the contract for furnishing coal to the poor farm and to the outside poor of the city in half ton lots to J. F. Sheppard & Sons and William Cashman.

PASTORS REMEMBERED.

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

Go south and raise cabbages would seem to be a wist tip to follow. Down in the vicinity of Tennessee an amateur agriculturist reports that on a half acre he grew 225 cabbages, the smallest head weighing 8 and the largest 25 pounds, the latter being 25 inches across; 100 heads weighed from 8 to 12 pounds; one hundred from 12 to 20 pounds, and 25 weighed from 20 to 25 pounds. The entire 225 heads aggregated within a score of 3,500 pounds and brought the grower a neat profit for a half acre and a resience section garden at that.

Brookline seems to lead the way in advanced ideas as to the duty it owes its residents. It has municipal baths, gymnasiums and on Monday night gave first of a series of free dances. This form of entertainment will alternate with the municipal band concerts, which are given on Saturday evenings during July, and Wednesday evenings during the month of August. The idea of holding the free dances originated with J. Leonard Mason, director of the gymnasium, who holds that it is a good idea to allow dancing among those who have to remain in town during the summer months, and cannot afford to go to the country.

DRIFT OF OPINION.

Vacation time for the kidiets brings anything but holiday suggestions to the grown ups, who for the next two months can not turn over to overworked teachers the duty of being fathers and mothers to the small folks.

The American parent is so fearful of abridging the freedom of the children, that the modern school boy vacation is a time of the most unfettered license since the days of the jungle. On the farm there are still tasks to be done, but the town boy is as free from Adam's curse as in the sinless days of Paradise.

As itreally made a man of Adam to get out and earn his bread by the sweat of his brow, so the average boy is quite as well off if he has a few regular tasks. The trouble is that he expects pay for all he does, with a scale of prices in which even carrying a pitcher of water up stairs has its union prices. No doubt it is all right to encourage the boy, paying him for his harder tasks, but he ought also to be willing to do something every day as his free contribution toward family resources.—Beverly Times.

FOR HOLDING FIGHT STAKES

"Big Tim" Sullivan May Be Prosecuted In New York

New York, July 13.—Charles C. Nott, the assistant district attorney who is prosecutor of New York county in Mr. Whitman's absence, has decided to attempt proceedings against Timothy D. Sullivan, state senator, better known as "Big Tim," for holding the stakes in connection with the recent prize fight at Reno, Nev.

While the money was supposed to have been collected in Hoboken, Nott has been informed that the actual depositing of cash took place in Manhattan. If the police do not take the initiative, it is announced, Nott will institute the necessary proceedings himself.

TO GLOUCESTER.

The fine, newly-equipped Boston-to-Gloucester steamboats have begun their daily and Sunday trips to the quaint old fishing city of Gloucester. These cooling and highly invigorating trips are delightful in the extreme No such views of the far-famed North Shore can be had otherwise than by these splendid boats of the Gloucester line—safe, commodious, fitted with every comfort and convenience, and supplied with good music. If you want to "get next" to nature's most fascinating side, take one of these trips at 10 A. M. any week day (10.15 Sundays), and go upthe cool and enchanting North Shore.

LETTERS OF PUBLIC INTEREST

WEDNESDAY HALF HOLIDAY.

Editor Daily Ledger:

In your issue of July 11th appeared a letter signed by Albion I. Dixon relative to a weekly half holiday in answer to an Interested Citizen and upholding the working condition in the store of one of our leading merchants and protesting the use of the words "barbarous conditions."

Mr. Dixon claims the clerks of Berry Bros. store would lose in event of the weekly half holiday.

Though I have not as has Mr. Dixon been connected with the grocery and provision business for more than a quarter of a century I have been connected with it for a fifth of a century and I want to state right here that I consider the protested words well chosen. No man or number of men should have to work the number of hours each week year after year that the grocery and provision clerks do in this and nearly every other city. There is no fundimental reason why all of the business cannot be done in a 10 hour day. The hours of labor have been greatly reduced in all lines of labor but clerking.

The business is changing it is not possible to do the work today as it was done twenty years ago. It is becoming more and more a matter of nervous energy, of skill and intelligence, and less a matter of mere brute force, the reduction of hours is not only of advantage, but of necessity. Even when work is simply and purely physical it is not economical to work long hours, but a shorter day of labor is imperative when work is intense or when intelligence and diplomacy are required as they are in treating the variety of customers who come into stores. You cannot get more out of a man than is in him and if you take too much out of him one day, there will not be so much to obtain on succeeding days. If the hour cannot be reduced by opening later or closing earlier then let it be by the half holiday each week but make it 12 months in the year instead of 2. The unanimous testimony of all competent observers, teachers, ministers and sociologists has been to the effect that a reduction in the hours of labor almost invariably means an improvement in the whole moral tone of the community, a raising of the standard of living and a growth of the selfrespect of the workingman.

It is not so very long ago that Mr. Dixon was a very ardent advocate of the weekly half holiday and I doubt greatly if his letter is the free speech of an independent man. Employers have always used wage earners to defeat wage earners. When the Boston Elevated Co., wanted to save the expence of putting vestibules on their cars they sent motermen before the authorities to state that they would raher face the cold blasts of winter unprotected than to be housed it. Admiral Bowles sent a list of names of more than 700 men to Washington declaring they would rather work 9 hours than 8 but who believed any of them?

If Berry Bros. are so exceptionally fair, there is no consistent reason why they should deprive their employees of their vacation with full pay and their wo afternoons a month between May 1st and July or between August 31st and Nov. 1st. Neither is there any reason why they should be as late as 1.30 getting away if the store closed at 1. If the employer is willing for the men to get away on time they will find a way to do it and take care of his customers too.

Mr. Dixon also refers to ten or more holidays each year with full pay making the clerk's average better than workman's who does not get a cent for an hour he does not work. Does he forget that in other crafts if a workman works an hour over time he gets pay and half or double pay according to circumstances, and that the clerk gets no overtime pay? And does he forget that the 8 hour workman goes to work at 8 A, M, and quits at 4 P. M.? Does he forget that the clerk starts work not later than seven A. M. the day before the boasted holiday, quits not much earlier than 12 P. M. From 7 to 8 A. M. is 1 hour, from 4-6 P. M. are 2 hours—out to supper 7 to 12 are 5 hours—1x2x5—8 hours, one whole day extra to get a holiday and so infernal tired that the clerk can't enjoy himself and he can't find the average.

Mr. Dixon's stand regarding the stores which open Monday nights until 9 o'clock is mighty well taken.

Thanking you for your valuable space, I am very respectfully yours,

B. Russell McQuinn.

ADMIRAL CAPPS

He Resigns Important and Responsible Post

MEYER CRITICS OUT OF OFFICE

Secretary of Navy Has Clear Field For Reorganization

CAPPS TENDERS RESIGNATION

Same Experience and Course Followed as In Case of Rogers—Marks Definite Change of Policy With Respect to Construction of Future Navy—First Consideration Hereafter Will Be Military Efficiency

Washington, July 13.—The navy reorganization plan has claimed its second victim. Washington L. Capps, captain in the regular naval establishment and rear admiral by virtue of the fact that for nearly seven years he has been head of the bureau of construction and repair, has tendered his resignation, to take effect Oct. 1. It has been accepted.

Neither Secretary Meyer nor Capps will discuss Capps' sudden determination to retire from the service, but it is recalled that before a congressional committee last winter Capps bitterly opposed the plans of Meyer looking to a reorganization of the navy department.

The ideas of the sea-going officers henceforth will prevail in matters of construction. The naval service and the committees of congress dealing therewith have been sharply divided between the construction corps and the line officers. The friends of the former have held that of all the freak ideas ever suggested for incorporation in craft of the navy those advanced by the line officers have been the worst.

The fighting men, on the other hand, have argued that while the construction corps has turned out ships admirable in many details, many of these vessels have been essentially defective at certain points where they should be strongest to give them the highest fighting capacity. The technicalities involved in this clash of opinion have served to divide the navy into two hostile camps.

Upon assuming office, Meyer resolved that he could render no greater service to the navy than so to reorganize it that one line of policy should permeate its every branch. He found that while the officers of the line were teeming with ideas for the improvement of the warships, these gained no recognition unless they happened to meet with the personal approval of the chief constructor. Rear Admiral Rogers, former chief of the bureau of supplies and accounts, had his own ideas as to how the naval supply fund should be administered.

These did not agree with the ideas of Meyer, nor did the secretary relish the criticisms of his general navy yard reorganization plan which the house committee on naval affairs insisted on dragging forth from Rogers for the edification of the country. After a long and unpleasant series of disagreements, Rogers was removed from his position. A clause in the naval bill of 1911 made it possible for him to be retired without loss of rank or pay.

Exactly the same experience was had and course followed with Capps, who now relinquishes active work, except that of traveling inspection, but may retire Oct. 1, with the full rank and pay of a rear admiral.

The secretary has deemed it absolutely necessary to the success of his reorganization plans to get his two most powerful critics out of the way. This he has done, without personal injury to either and after the most careful consideration of their interests.

The removal of Capps will quiet also the controversy between the bureaus as to which shall have superior authority in matters of construction and repair.

THOUSANDS ARE NOW HOMELESS

Flames Wipe Out Two Prosperous New Brunswick Towns

1075 BUILDINGS DESTROYED

Fire Originates In Shingle Mill at Campbellton and Is Spread by High Winds—Water Mains Fail at Critical Time—Hundreds of Persons Lose All They Possessed and Are Camping Out—Flames Raged Until They Burned Themselves Out

Dalhousie, N. B., July 13.—A waste of smoking ruins extending for two miles and more and seven isolated buildings represent the town of Campbellton and the nearby village of Richardsville, which were overwhelmed by tongues of flame and firebrands driven before a gale.

Three lives were lost during the ten hours the fire raged. Dr. Beverly Sproule, a dentist, while aiding with his automobile in rescuing women and children, was burned to death by an explosion of gasolene. An infant was suffocated in the dense smoke.

Dr. W. W. Doherty of Campellton met death during the fire. He had been ill for some time, and his death occurred while he was being removed across the river to a place of safety.

Five thousand residents of Campbellton and 400 of Richardsville are homeless. One thousand buildings in Campbellton and seventy-five in the village were destroyed. The combined loss of the buildings and other property in both places is estimated at $2,500,000.

Special trains have brought tents, food and other supplies and all who cannot be accommodated in Dalhousie and in farming districts are quartered under canvas. Hundreds of persons lost all they possessed, and it was a disconsolate band of refugees who camped last night on the banks of the Restigouche.

Campbellton was the largest cedar shingle centre in eastern America. All the mills were destroyed.

The fire started in the mills of the Richards Lumber company, and, fanned by a southwesterly gale, spread to all parts of the town. The water mains failed at a critical time, and even with aid sent from Newcastle, Bathurst and Dalhousie the Campbellton people were unable to make headway against the onrush of the flames.

The fire spread to the woods and underbrush, and extended as far as Richardsville, two miles from Campbellton.

The flight of the population of the burning town was attended by many thrilling scenes. Many of the men who attempted to stay the conflagration were obliged to abandon the hose and flee for their lives when the flames overwhelmed the hundreds of wooden buildings of which the town was constructed.

Embers from great quantities of burning shingles, carried long distances by the gale, set fires by the score, and for ten hours the destruction went on. The flames burned themselves out in Campbellton and Richardsville, but the forest is still ablaze at many points.

Among the buildings in Campbellton burned were six churches, the Roman Catholic convent, hospital, opera house, grammar school building, federal government building, two newspaper offices, a dozen mills, Intercolonial railway station, roundhouse and machine shops and all of the stores in the town.

HOUSEHOLD RECIPES.

Melon Fritters. When melons are not ripe enough to eat raw they are very good converted into fritters as follows: Pare the melon, remove the seeds, then cut into circular slices, dip into fritter batter and fry in deep fat until a delicate brown ;then dust with fine sugar and serve hot.

Canary Cream. Dissolve one ounce of gelatine in one pint of water; strain and add the juice of three oranges, grated rind of one; juice of one lemon, the yolks of four eggs, well beaten with a cup of sugar; stir over a gentle fire until it thickens, then pour in a mold to eat.

Frozen Pudding. Take the yolks of eight eggs and beat, add them to one quart of cream, one pint of milk, one and a half cupfuls of sugar well dissolved in the milk and cream; put two tablespoonfuls of gelatine and soak in half a cupful of milk. Cook the custard in a double boiler ,and when it boils dissolve the soaked gelatine in it. Strain this, and flavor with vanilla or sherry as preferred. If not add a little more wine or a tablespoonful of brandy. Cool this and then freeze, when hard pack it in a mold with alternate layers of peaches, cherries and pineapples; if you have not the fresh fruit, canned may be used.

Cucumber Salad. Cut the cucumbers, after peeling, into thin slices; arrange on lettuce leaves and make a dressing of four tablespoonfuls of oil, two of vinegar, salt and pepper, a shake of red pepper along with the black or white used, and pour over the cucumbers. Have ready some chopped chives, sprinkle these over the cucumbers and serve.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

THE WEATHER FORECASTS.

One frequently hears jocular comments to the effect that the weather forecasts appearing in the newspapers and coming from the weather bureau of the government are unreliable. Such comments should not be taken seriously for it would be a grievous mistake to lose confidence in such reports. As a matter of fact the weather bureaus forecasts are 80 per cent correct. That is, eight times out of ten the prediction is verified by the event. Absolute accuracy is impossible and always will be, but the percentage of correct forecasts is remarkable and renders them of great value.—Framington News.

ALDEN FAMILY REUNION.

The annual reunion and the annual meeting of the Alden Kindred of America will be held at the Old Homestead, Duxbury, on Wednesday, Aug. 3, at 10 A. M. Reports of the officers of the association will be given. Officers will be chosen for the ensuing year and any other business that would legally come before the society will be attended to at the opening of the session.

The literary exercises will include the folowing: Address, Rev. Albert Marion Hyde, D. D., of Brockton, on "The New New Englander." This address was recently given before the Old Colony Congregational Club in Boston and was enthusistically received. Everyone will enjoy hearing Dr. Hyde as he tells the results of his investigations of present New England conditions.

Original poem, Miss Eliza A. Bates South Braintree.

Readings and "New Stories," Vernon A. Field, Chelsea.

One to three-minute addresses by different members of the association. Thirty minutes will be given for the members of the Kindred to tell their wishes as to the future efforts and aims of the organization. A chance to "Speak for yourself, John," but be ready and be brief. Not over three minutes will be allowed to any one speaker in this part of the programme. It is hoped that many valuable suggestions may result from the opportunity that will be given in this way to learn the aspirations of the Kindred.

All those who are descendants of John and Priscilla Alden, together with wife or husband and family, are cordialy invited to attend the Alden Kindred re-union. Descendants are also at liberty to bring friends with them.

A GREAT SHOW.

Under the vast area of canvas that enclosed animals from every portion of the globe and a thrilling, startling series of acrobatic acts, trained animals, bareback riders and clowns constantly moving in each of three rings of the Forepaugh and Sells circus at least forty thousand people were seated last night to see the best circus that ever visited Quincy.

In each of the three rings, elephants, horses and dogs gave exhibitions of skill and understanding, while on or over the stages between the rings acrobatic troupes gave marvelous exhibitions of skill and daring During one of the aerial acts the net beneath the bar gave away and one of the actors was thrown to the ground, but received no injuries.

The features of the performance were the assembly of the horses in the middle ring and the performance of a company of seals.

The clowns kept the enormous crowd in a tumult of laughter throughout the entire evening.

The menagerie was a most complete one and contained some rare animals beside a remarkably fine collection of elephants.

The huge gathering was thoroughly pleased with the circus and there is no doubt that it is the best that has ever visited Quincy.

THE BONITA AT BOSTON

Would Have Gone to Bottom Had Conning Tower Been Struck

Boston, July 13.—There will be an official investigation of the accident at Provincetown, when the submarine Bonita rammed the gunboat Castine. The Bonita arrived at the navy yard yesterday, coming up from Provincetown and docking just outside the big drydock. Her crew of eighteen men were put at work on the repairs and have already nearly finished.

Captain Fremont, commandant of the navy yard, says that it was the "bullnose" of the submarine which struck the Castine, as far as he has been able to learn from unofficial reports. The blow was a glancing one. Freeman is of the opinion that if the conning tower of the Bonita had been struck in the disaster, it would have upset the acids in the electric batteries and the submarine would have sunk with all on board.

THE SUGAR TRUST AND FRIARS' LANDS

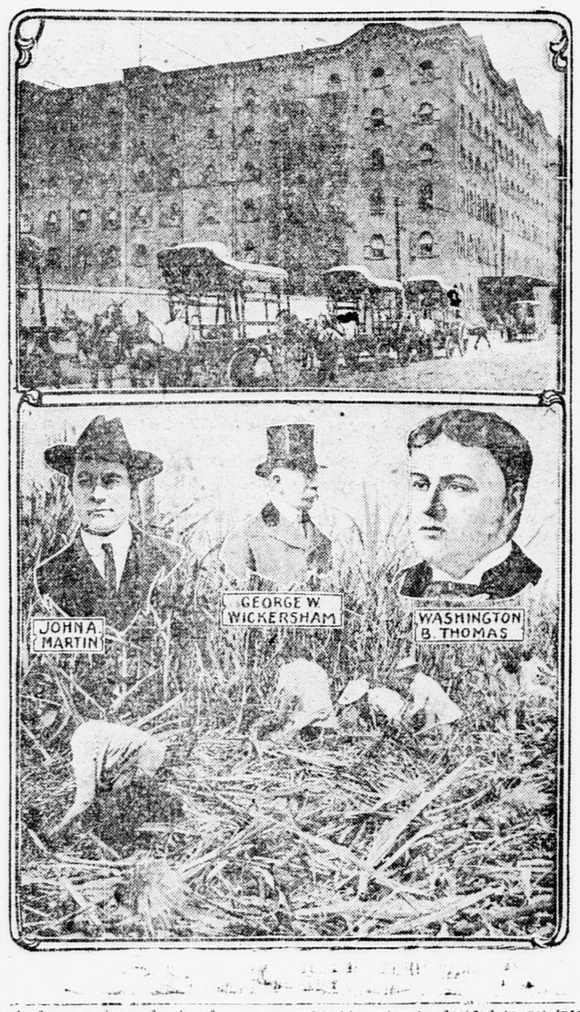

Charges of Congressman Martin Which Will Bring About a Congressional Investigation.

President Thomas' Denial—Attorney General Wickersham's Opinion Is Cited.

By ROBERTUS LOVE.

SIXTEEN years ago a locomotive fireman in Missouri, now a first term member of congress from Colorado, John A. Martin of Pueblo seems to be getting up steam for a record run of land graft charges which he declares will involve the sugar trust, the attorney general of the United States and the bureau of insular affairs, that branch of the war department which has to do with the administration of the Philippine Islands. The Martin engine of accusation takes a straight air line shoot across the Pacific ocean, with the friar lands of the archipelago as stopping point.

Congressman Martin charges in effect that the San Jose friar estate of about 55,000 acres was sold to an agent of the sugar trust as the result of an opinion from Attorney General George W. Wickersham, whose law firm represented the trust at the time he entered the Taft cabinet. Mr. Martin, under his own signature, is prodigal of accusations of subterfuge, evasion and equivocation on the part of high government officials in their efforts to explain the sale of the friar estate. General Clarence R. Edwards, head of the bureau of insular affairs and for years a close friend of President Taft, is included with the attorney general in the Colorado congressman's allegations of equivocal explanations.

Sugar Trust Head Denies.

As an offset to the Martin allegations, President Washington B. Thomas of the American Sugar Refining company has given out the following statement from the offices of that concern in New York:

"In reference to the statement of Congressman Martin, published in one of the morning papers, in regard to the alleged interest of the American Sugar Refining company in the Philippines, Congressman Martin must have been misinformed. The American Sugar Refining company has not now and never has had any interest, directly or indirectly, in any lands in the Philippines, nor has it at any time sought to acquire such interest. One of the directors of the company did purchase land on his own account, without the knowledge of or consulting with the other directors, as he considered the matter purely personal.

The crux of the Martin crusade lies in the fact that the organic law of the Philippine archipelago, enacted by congress in 1902, provides that individuals shall be limited to the acquirement of forty acres and corporations or associations to 2,500 acres of the public domain of the islands. When, last January, Mr. Martin read in a newspaper that the entire San Jose friar estate had been sold to a representative of the Havemeyer sugar interests and that the attorney general had rendered an opinion to the effect that these friar lands were not subject to the limitations put by congress upon Philippine public lands he proceeded to get busy at once and inquire into the whys and wherefores of the sale of 55,000 acres in one bunch.

Congressman Martin's efforts brought about, late in the session, the appointment of a congressional committee to go to the islands and make a thorough investigation and report.

John A. Martin is known in Colorado as a forensic fighter of the strenuous stripe. He is young—only forty-two—and represents a district which includes the greater part of the area of his state. He is a Democrat who overcame a large Republican plurality at his election in the fall of 1908. He made a spellbinding speaking tour of the forty-four counties in his district, and it was predicted by his friends that in the event of his election he would be heard from nationally. He began his career as a railroad section hand, working up to a firemanship. Then when he went out on a strike with his union he decided to get into a line of work not subject to strikes and lockouts. He studied law without attending a law school.

Now the Nemesis of the sugar trust has returned to Colorado to make a hard fight for re-election, but he declares that, whether he stays in congress or not, he will continue his crusade for the protection of the Filipino lands from exploitation. Originally, it is said, he was an expansionist, but since having made a study of the problem he has become a restrictionist. But his present fight appears to be upon his construction of the organic law relating to the islands, the congressman believing that the corporate interests have sought a loophole and apparently have found it in the attorney general's opinion that the organic law as to land acquirement limitations does not extend to the friar lands. Mr. Martin's contention is that the law covers all public lands in the archipelago.

Chairman Olmsted Cautious.

The chairman of the committee on insular affairs of the house of representatives, Congressman Martin E. Olmsted, says regarding Congressman Martin's statements as to the disposition of the friar lands:

"It would be manifestly improper for me to comment on Mr. Martin's interview. He will have ample opportunity to present to the committee any facts in his possession.

"The principal question appears to be one of construction of law. The United States acquired about 60,000,000 acres of land from Spain. This it practically gave to the people of the Philippines, stipulating, however, that no one person should be permitted to acquire more than sixteen hectares, about forty acres.

"Congress also authorized the Philippine government to buy the so called friar lands, amounting to about 400,000 acres, issue bonds to pay for them and sell the lands and apply the proceeds to the payment of the bonds. Is the Philippine government limited to the sale of forty acres to any one person? That is the disputed question. The attorney general of the Philippines, the attorney general of the United States and other good lawyers hold that the limitation applies only to the lands acquired by the United States from Spain and not to the friar lands, which were purchased by the Philippines with their own money. Mr. Martin takes a different view. So does Moorfield Story of Boston. Personally I have expressed no opinion and shall not until the committee reports."

Whatever may be the merits or the demerits of Mr. Martin's charges, it is significant that Secretary of War Dickinson and General Edwards, chief of the bureau of insular affairs, have started for the Philippines to make a personal inquiry into the matter of the sale of the friar lands. Their subordinates at Washington, in charge during their absence, observe a policy of strict neutrality. They have nothing to say, being perfectly willing to await the result of the committee's investigations.

Exploitation Long Expected.

When, a dozen years ago, the United States acquired the Philippine archipelago as the result of a brief but glorious war against Spain loud mouthed rumors were heard in the land to the effect that the fertile acreage of the Filipino people would be "exploited" by American trust interests. Mr. Taft was sent to the islands and made such a record as a civil administrator that he has become president of the United States. For twelve years the islands have been ruled by Uncle Sam, who made efforts honest and earnest to prove that the prophets of exploitation were but as sounding brass. Now the cymbals have begun to tinkle. Vague hints of the onslaught of the corporate interests are heard. Congressman Martin is by no means the only person in official life who scents spoliation. The fact that his fellows in congress got a distinct whiff of the aroma is evidenced by their vote to create the committee of inquiry.

The friar lands of the archipelago have been looked upon with gloating eyes by certain interests in the United States ever since Uncle Sam paid Spain some millions of dollars for a few thousand islands which had been won in war. The settlement of the problem of the friar lands was vexatious and delicate. Somewhere between 400,000 and 500,000 acres was the combined area of the lands held by the four orders of friars or monks. For many years these lands had been tilled by tenants, many of whom claimed ownership of the acres they occupied. Prior to American occupation there was much bloodshed over the matter. Priests were slain or imprisoned. Parish churches were closed for lack of parish priests. The Filipino natives rebelled.

Then came the United States into authority. What about the friars' holdings? That was the ticklish problem. Confiscation was proposed, but the United States has not been doing much in the confiscation line at any time since the establishment of the nation. The upshot was, after commissions named by the pope and by the United States government, that the friars' lands were purchased and made a part of the public domain.

Friar Lands Fertile.

These lands are fertile. It is said by observers who have studied Filipino agriculture that they are very choice lands, capable of producing more on the average than the other agricultural areas of the islands, acre for acre. The policy of congress and the administration was to preserve and conserve these lands, with the rest of the public domain in the islands, for the Filipino people. That is the understanding of Mr. Martin, who came to congress years after the organic law was enacted. It is the theory of many other earnest conservators.

Congressman Martin believes that not only the San Jose estate, but the Isabella and the Calamba estates, which have been sold ostensibly to individuals, in reality have been acquired by agents of corporations.

The Calamba estate is historical. It is within thirty miles of Manila by rail and is one of the richest sections in the island of Luzon. The Philippine revolution of 1896 resulted from the controversy between the friars and the tenants over the ownership of this estate. The Spaniards seized court martialed and shot Jose Rizal, perhaps the most noted Filipino of the day. The Calamba estate was claimed by the Rizal family and their tenants. Mr. Martin avers that this beautiful estate has passed into the ownership of the Dillingham sugar interests of Hawaii, "which is to say it has passed into the hands of the sugar trust."

Other Sales Criticised.

Congressman Martin takes particular notice of the sale of the Tala estate to Frank W. Carpenter, executive secretary of the Philippine government. He declares that the bureau of insular affairs, notwithstanding that the information was demanded, suppressed the name of the purchaser and would not admit that the estate had been sold at all. The Colorado congressman quotes a recent report from the director of lands at Manila, in response to a cable from Secretary of War Dickinson at the direction of the house of representatives, which indicates that Carpenter has an agreement for the purchase of the entire estate as rapidly as it becomes vacant, and he says the same report discloses the fact that Dean C. Worcester, Philippine secretary of the interior, has approved the sale to Carpenter and also a lease to his own nephew of 3,000 acres of public lands for twenty-five years at 8 cents per acre.

BRIEFS

The pipe laying at Washington and Mills streets is nearly completed.

A number of enthusiasts have laid out a tennis court on River street. It is in continual use.

Miss Isabel Albee of Prospect avenue left Tuesday for a two weeks' stay at Stockbridge in the Berkshires.

Mrs. Oscar A. Blaisdell and daughter Ruth of Grand View avenue went to Stockbridge Tuesday for a fortnight's stay.

Peter M. Sullivan, who was recently confined to his home by an attack of tonsilitis, has fully recovered from his illness.

Superintendent County of the Essex Street Postal Station, Boston, is located in his attractive new cottage on Winthrop street, Houghs Neck.

Henry H. Moody, of River street, is building a 22 foot auxiliary sailboat. She is broad of beam and will set low in the water. She will be launched in about a month.

The bathhouse is very popular now-a'-days. His honor the Mayor, Inspector McKay, Councilman Smith, Timothy J. Collins and many other prominent citizens visit it every day for a dip in the cooling brine.

Charles E. Grassick and James Robie, two well known South Quincy young men are enjoying a month's relaxation from the care of business in the White Mountains. They anticipate returning by way of Maine.

A young lady of evident refinement caused quite a furor on Arnold street recently. She stepped up to two men walking ahead of her and told them she would inform the police that they were trying to rob a third man who walked a little distance ahead. After a few words the men walked on and though a small crowd gathered there was no explanation given.

EXPECT A HARD CAMPAIGN

Senator Crane Has Political Conference With President Taft

Beverly, Mass., July 13.—President Taft talked politics yesterday with Senator Crane, Attorney General Wickersham and Secretary Nagel of the department of commerce and labor.

Their conference lasted until after 6 o'clock last night. Extreme reticence was displayed by everybody, and no statement other than that the general situation was discussed could be obtained.

During the last six weeks of the session, when the president was hammering away at the program which he finally induced congress to adopt, Crane was a daily visitor at the White House. In looking forward to a campaign, which it is admitted on all sides, will be a hard one, Taft consults Crane among the first of his advisers.

The president is reported to be satisfied with general conditions and hopeful of Republican success "all along the line."

21,000,000 SPINDLES IDLE

Represents 75 Percent of Total Number In the United States

Boston, July 13.—Figures just secured by the mill interests show that, as a result of the July shutdown, the percentage of idle cotton spindles in the United States is larger than at any time since the Civil war.

The figures give the total number of spindles in the country as 28,000,000. Of this number it is estimated that 21,000,000 are idle. Thus 75 percent of the spindles in the United States have been idle since the Fourth.

While many of the mills are now starting up, a further shutdown is planned for August.

CONFER IN SECRET

New York State Politics Discussed by Roosevelt and Hughes

Oyster Bay, N. Y., July 13.—Theodore Roosevelt and Governor Hughes spent last evening in their long expected and much heralded conference on New York state politics.

They talked in secret, and no word of the result was allowed to become known beyond the fact that the entire political situation in this state was taken up. Roosevelt had said frankly on previous occasions, however, that the defeat of the direct nomination bill by the Republican state organization would be one of the main topics of discussion.

ONCE KNOWN AS KING OF BURGLARS

"Charley Adams" Passes Away Among Friendly Neighbors

West Swanzey, N. H., July 13.—Charley Adams, the "King of the Burglars," whose name was a household word in New England a quarter of a century ago, died at his home here, where he had lived quietly for the last four years.

Although his record was well known here, he won the respect and friendship of his neighbors. His last words were: "This is the right kind of a finish, to go out among your friends."

Adams, whose real name was Langdon W. Moore, was one of the most successful and daring safe crackers that ever operated in New England. He engineered many breaks.

Adams, or Moore, was born in East Washington, N. H., in 1830. He lived with his father, who was a farmer, until his 20th year. His criminal career dated from 1865, when he robbed the Concord National bank of $306,000.

Moore said that he had paid the different police departments of the country $1,000,000 for protection.

Women's Suffrage Bill Passes Second Reading In Commons

London, July 13.—The house of commons, by a vote of 299 to 190, last night passed the second reading of the women's suffrage bill, providing for the granting of the parliamentary franchise to women who are possessed of the property qualification and who already exercise the franchise in municipal elections.

It was expected that the bill would pass the second reading, after which it was the intention of the government to shelve it.

AVIATOR ROLLS MEETS DEATH

Tragic Affair Is Witnessed by Many of His Friends

FAIL OF HIS BIPLANE BREAKS

Popular and Daring Aviator, Who Held Record For Return Flight Across English Channel, Crushed to Death While Participating In Prize Alighting at Bournemouth Tournament—Speed Too Great For His Machine

Bournemouth, Eng., July 13.—Charles S. Rolls, the famous English aviator, who won the honor of being the only man to make a round trip across the English channel from England to France, was killed in the aviation meet here.

While flying in a Wright machine in the alighting competition for a prize of $1250 his aeroplane suddenly turned a somesault, crashed to the ground and crushed the aviator to death directly opposite the grand stand.

The stand was filled with representatives of English society, who had been attracted by the fact that Rolls was to compete. Many of them were personally acquainted with or friends of the daring aviator. They cheered him as he arose in the air to a height of 100 feet, and the cheers continued as he made one circle of the aviation grounds. The cheers were silenced suddenly when it was noticed that he was having trouble.

By this time he had ascended to a height of 125 feet. Almost immediately after the first signs of trouble were noticed the aeroplane turned a complete somersault and then plunged straight down. Rolls attempted to extricate himself, but the drop was too swift. The edge of the machine caught him as the two came to the ground together and fatally crushed him. His limbs and skull were fractured and he died within a few moments after the aeroplane was lifted from his body.

The meet, which opened so auspiciously Monday, when J. A. Drexel, the young American aviator, broke all English records for altitude flights, was marked by a serious accident immediately upon the resumption of flights Tuesday. M. Audenars, a French aviator, fell in his initial flight and was badly hurt. He has a chance to recover.

Rolls saw the accident to Audemars, but after extending sympathy to the injured man, mounted his own machine. In his flight around the ground Rolls attained terrific speed.

He had just started his descent to the ground, still at the same speed, when a sharp crackling sound was heard. The cause of this was not understood at first, but it was attributed to the motor.

Upon investigation after the accident, it was found that the tail of the biplane had broken. The disaster is attributed to a slight fault in the material of the machine which left the biplane unable to bear the strain of the sixty miles an hour speed at which Rolls was flying. The machine was smashed into a crumpled mass when it swooped to the ground.

Rolls, who was 34 years old, was well known in America, he having visited the United States in 1906. He crossed the ocean to attend the auto show in New York, and to show the American public what an Englishman knew about the manufacture of automobiles. He was then an enthusiastic autoist, and was the head of the Rolls-Royce concern in England.

After returning to England Rolls interested himself in aviation and began his first real experiments with aeroplanes.

FINISHED IN FOUR ROUNDS

Youthful Prize Fighter Dies After Receiving Severe Beating

Mineola, N. Y., July 13.—Hugh Grant, 19 years old, known in the prize ring as Kid Burns, died here as the result of a terrific beating administered to him by Tommy Welch of Jersey City in four rounds of fighting at the Powhatan club here.

Grant, who was in poor physical condition, collapsed in his room in the Garden City hotel, where he was employed as a bellboy, after the fight and died of heart failure. Welch, his opponent, disappeared and the police are hunting for him.

NO COMMENT FROM HADLEY

Silent Regarding Position Offered Him by President Taft

New Haven, July 13.—President Hadley of Yale declines to comment in any way on the offer which has been made to him by President Taft of the chairmanship of the commission authorized by the last session of congress to investigate the subject of railroad stocks and bonds and to recommend a plan for bringing the issue of these securities under the supervision of the interstate commerce commission.

President Hadley replied to inquiries that he had nothing of comment in any way to make in connection with the matter.

GRAND TRUNK WINS OVER NEW HAVEN

Canadian Road Authorized to Build In Massachusetts

Boston, July 13.—In an order issued by the Massachusetts board of railroad commissioners a certificate of exigency is given to the Southern New England Railroad corporation, which authorizes that company to build a new railroad from Palmer to the boundary line between this state and Rhode Island.

This is a victory for the Grand Trunk Pacific railway in its struggle with the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad, both of which had petitioned the board for a certificate. The Southern New England is a Massachusetts corporation, created by the Grand Trunk for the purpose of building a connecting line across a part of Massachusetts.

Four reasons are given by the railroad commission for its decision to issue the certificate to the Grand Trunk and reject the petition of the New Haven. The first is the superiority of the Grand Trunk connections with the north and the west. Due weight is given to the attitude of the state of Rhode Island, to the wishes of the people immediately to be served and the priority of petition.

A better way to wash clothes.

With clean, warm water and a cake of Lenox Soap, any woman can do good work.

But she can do better work—and do it easier—if she uses Lenox Soap Solution.

This is the way to make it: Take a cake of Lenox Soap, cut it into small pieces, dissolve these in three quarts of boiling water. Keep water at boiling point until a solution is formed.

Wet the clothes, rub the solution on the soiled parts, fold and roll each piece separately, pack in a tub, cover with warm soapy water and let stand over night. Next morning, you will find that the really hard part of washing—rubbing the clothes up and down the wash-board—is not half as hard as usual.

Lenox Soap—"Just fits the hand"

AN UP-TO-DATE STOVE

Do you realize there is no longer any reason why you should use a coal range? Oil is cheaper than coal; it is lighter and easier to handle, and gives an intense heat. Provided you have the right stove, oil is more economical, cleaner and less trouble. Have you seen the

New Perfection
WICK BLUE FLAME
Oil Cook-stove

The accompanying illustration gives you only a rough idea of its appearance. You really can't appreciate it until you either use it yourself, or talk to someone who has used it. It does everything that a coal range will do—except heat the room. The New Perfection Oil Cook-Stove will do anything, from heating a kettle of water to cooking a course dinner, but it won't heat a room. It doesn't "smell," it doesn't smoke. It can't get out of order. Light it and it is ready. Turn it down and it is out. Only a woman who knows the trouble of carrying coal and cooking in a hot kitchen can appreciate what it means to have a clean, perfect stove that will cook anything, boil, bake or roast, and yet won't heat the kitchen. How is it done? The flame is controlled in turquoise-blue enamel chimneys, and directed against the bottom of pot, pan, kettle or oven, and only there. The flame operates exactly where it is needed—and nowhere else. With this stove your kitchen is cool.

Cautionary Note: Be sure you get this stove—see that the name-plate reads "New Perfection."

The nickel finish with the bright blue of the chimneys makes the stove ornamental and attractive. Made with 1, 2 and 3 burners; the 2 and 3-burner stoves can be had with or without Cabinet.

HALF A CHANCE

By Frederic S. Isham,

Author of "The Strollers," "Under the Rose," "The Lady of the Mount," Etc.

COPYRIGHT, 1909, BY THE BOBBS-MERRILL COMPANY

SYNOPSIS

(CHAPTER IX—Continued.)

"Murdered!" said the man. John Steele was silent. "And she, 'is mother, 'ad gone, 'aving saved a bit, out into a peaceable-like little 'amlet, where there weren't no bobbies, only instead bits of flower gardens and bright bloomin' daffy-down-dillies. But, blime me, when Tom come and found out where she 'ad changed to if she 'adn't gone and shuffled off, and all 'e 'ad for 'is pains was the sight of a mound in the churchyard."

"Yes; she's buried," said John Steele thoughtfully, "and all she might have told about the woman who was—murdered is buried with her."

"But she did tell, sir, at the time," quickly, "of the trial."

"True." The visitor's tone changed. "If you can find Tom give him this note. You'll be well paid"—

"I ain't askin' for that. You got me off easy once and gave me a lift arter I was let out"—

"Well, well!" Steele made a brusque gesture. "We all need a helping hand sometimes," he said, turning away.

And that was as near as he had come to attainment of his desires.

Summer passed. Sometimes, the better to think, to plan, to keep himself girded by constant exercise, he repaired to the park, now neglected by fashion and given over to that nebulous quantity of diverse qualities called the people.

"How do you do, Steele? Just the man I wanted to see!"

Near the main exit toward which John Steele had unconsciously stepped the sound of a familiar voice and the appearance of a well known stocky form broke in with startling abruptness on the dark train of thought.

"Deep in some point of law?" went on Sir Charles. "'Pon honor, believe you would have cut me. However, don't apologize; you're forgiven!"

"Most amiable of you to say so, Sir Charles!" perfunctorily.

"Not at all! Especially as our meeting is quite apropos. Obliged to run up to town on a little matter of business; but, thank goodness, it's done. Never saw London more deserted. Dined at the club, nobody there. Supped at the hotel, dining room empty. Strolled up Piccadilly, not a soul to be seen. That is," he added, "no one whom one has seen before, which is the same thing. But how did you enjoy your trip to the continent?"

"It was not exactly a trip for pleasure," returned the other, with a slight accent of constraint.

"Ah, yes; so I understood. But fancy going to the continent on business! One usually goes for—which reminds me, how would you like to go back into the country with me?"

"I? It is impossible at the moment for"—

But Sir Charles seemed not to listen. "Deuced dull journey for a man to take alone, good deal of it by coach. You'll find a few salmon to kill, trout and all that. Think of the joy of whipping a stream after having been mewed up all these months in the musty metropolis. Besides, I made a wager with Jocelyn you wouldn't refuse a second opportunity to bask in Arcadia." He laughed. "'I really couldn't presume to ask him again,' is the way she expressed it, 'but if you can draw a sufficiently eloquent picture of the rural attractions of Strathorn to woo him from his beloved dusty byways you have my permission to try.'"

"Did she say that?" John Steele spoke quickly, then, "I am sorry it is impossible, but," in a low tone, "how is Miss Wray?"

"Never better. Enjoying every moment. Jolly party and all that. Lord Ronsdale and"— Here Sir Charles enumerated a number of people.

"Lord Ronsdale is there?"

"Yes; couldn't keep him away from Strathorn House now," he laughed. "As a matter of fact, he has asked my permission to— There!" Sir Charles stopped, then laughed again with a little embarrassment. "I've nearly let the cat out of the bag."

John Steele spoke no word. His face was set, immovable.

"You mean he has proposed for her hand, and she"—Steele seemed to speak with difficulty—"has consented?"

"Well, not exactly. She appears complaisant, as it were," he answered. "But, really, I shouldn't have mentioned the matter at all. Quite premature, you understand? Let's say no more about it. And—what was it you said about going back with me?"

"Yes," said John Steele, with a sudden strength and energy that Sir Charles might attribute to the desire to make himself understood above the din of the street. "I'll go back with you at"—the latter words, lower spoken, the other did not catch—"no matter what cost!"

Sir Charles and John Steele arrived at Strathorn. This little hamlet lay in a sleepy looking dell. As the driver swung down a hill he whipped up his horses and literally charged upon the town, swept through the main thoroughfare and drew up with a flourish before the principal tavern. Sir Charles started and stretched his legs. John Steele got down.

"Strathorn House," he said to Sir Charles, "is near. I am in the mood for exercise after sitting so long and should like to walk there."

"By all means," returned the other, "since it's your preference. Pretty apt to overtake you," he went on, after giving his guest a few directions, "especially if you linger over any points of interest."

The trap which had been sent for drew up and the two men separated. Sir Charles rattled briskly down one way, Steele turned to go the other.

Soon rose before him the top of a modest steeple, then a church, within the sanctuary of whose yard old stones mingled with new. He stepped in. "Straight on across the churchyard!" had been Sir Charles' direction. John Steele moved quickly down the narrow path.

Strathorn House! A noble dwelling, massive and gray. And yet one that lifted itself with charming lightness from its solid, baronial-like foundation. It adorned the spot, merged into the landscape. Behind, the forest, a dark line, penciled itself against the blue horizon. Before the ancient stone pile lay a noble park.

Long the man looked. Through a faint veil of mist turret and tower quivered, strong lines of masonry vibrated. Wavering as in the spell of an optical illusion, the structure might have seemed but a figment of imagination or one of those fanciful castles sung by the Elizabethan brotherhood of poets. Did the image occur to John Steele? Did he feel for the time, despite other disquieting, extraneous thoughts, the subtle enchantment of the scene? The minutes passed. He did not move.

"You find it to your liking?"

Jocelyn Wray, for it was she, laughed; so absorbed had he been, he had not heard her light footstep on the grass behind.

His face changing, "Entirely!" he managed to say. And then, "I—did not know you were near."

"No? But I could see that. Confess," with accent a little derisory, "I startled you."

POLICE CHIEF AND CAPTAIN BOUNCED

Vice Mayor of Newark Evidently Means Business

Newark, O., July 13.—Before he had been in office an hour J. N. Ankele, the vice mayor, elevated to the office of chief executive of Newark upon the suspension of Mayor Atherton by Governor Harmon, had summarily removed Chief of Police Zergeibial and Police Captain Bell. He gave as his grounds for removal the non-enforcement of the county option law which resulted in the lynching of Detective Carl Etherington, Friday night.

He appointed Charles Hindel, a former deputy sheriff, as chief, and Patrolman Swank as captain. He gave them orders to commence the immediate enforcement of all laws to the letter.

As soon as the new police officials had assumed office they caused the arrest of "Vance" Moore, who is alleged to have struck Etherington just prior to the fatal shooting of William Howard. Four more arrests were made yesterday.

NO REQUEST FOR CHARLTON

State Department Won't Discuss Case, Pending Word From Italy

Washington, July 13.—Officials of the state department decline positively to discuss the case of Porter Charlton, who confessed to the murder of his wife in Italy.

It is said at the department that no formal request for the extradition of Charlton has been received from Italy, and that pending the receipt of such request it would be improper to discuss the case.

Miss Lucille M. Filer of Roxbury has returned home after a pleasant visit with Mr. and Mrs. Coleman of 150 West Elm avenue, Wollaston Park.

Mrs. J. F. Thayer of Quincy Neck is observing her seventy-fifth birthday today. She has been remembered by members of Paul Revere W. R. C. with flowers and cards.

The streets at Quincy Point are covered with a layer of dust at least three inches thick. There seems to have been no water on them for weeks.

Mayor Shea had a conference with a committee of the Central Labor Union Tuesday evening in regard to certain employes of the city doing work that should be done by craftsmen. The questions were settled satisfactory to all parties.

At the regular meeting Tuesday afternoon of Paul Revere W. R. C. those present were surprised at recess by one of their members who celebrated her second anniversary as a member of the corps by treating all to ice cream and cake. A courtesy much appreciated as the afternoon was very warm.

KATE TANNATT WOODS.

Mrs. Kate Tannatt Woods clubwoman and authoress, and one of Salem's best-known residents, died Tuesday at Buffalo, N. Y. Mrs. Woods was prominent in the women's clubs movement. She was the first auditor of the General Federation and assisted also in the formation of the Massachusetts Federation. She founded the Thought and Work club of Salem ,one of the pioneer organizations, and was its president for eight years. She had been vice president of the Women's National Press Association, the New England Women's Press Association, was an honorary member of the Southern California Press club, a charter member of the Wintergreen club of Boston, and was active in the New England Women's club. Mrs. Woods has done editorial work for Harper's, the Ladies' Home Journal and many other magazines, and was a prolific story writer.

QUINCY Y. C. CHALLENGE CUP

Work of Harpoon the Challenger Being Closely Watched

Some interesting trial races are to be held in the near future between the Sonderklasse boats and the work of the Harpoon, the new boat of Charles Francis Adams will be watched with interest by Quincy yachtsmen for they look to the Harpoon and her well known skipper to bring the Quincy Yacht club challenge cup back to Quincy.

Q. Y. C. CHALLENGE CUP.

Four times have the sonderklasse boats of assachusetts Bay come together, and four different winners have been returned. The boats in this class appear to be the most uncertain performers of any. They are constantly upsetting calculations, and often the one which has been thought to be the topnotcher falls down in the trial races for the international match.

The Harpoon, owned by Charles Francis Adams, took the first race; the Ellen, owned by Charles P. Curtis the second; the Beaver, owned by C. H. W. Foster, the third, and the Sally XI, owned by Lawrence F. Percival, the fourth. The results of the last two races show how uncertain the work of the boat is. They were sailed off Marblehead on the morning and afternoon of July 4, under almost identical conditions. In the morning race the Beaver won, while the Sally XI did not show up very well. In the afternoon the Sally XI led the class from start to finish. With the exception of the Ellen, all of the winners are this year's boats.

On August 8 the trials will be held by the Eastern Yacht Club to select the three representatives to meet the boats from Spain. Before this there will be an opportunity of seeing what some of the boats can do. This will be in the series for the Quincy challenge cup, which will be held by the Boston Yacht Club in Hull Bay, commencing July 23.

Q. Y. C. HOP.

Another enjoyable hop was held Tuesday evening at clubhouse by the Quincy Yacht club. There was a good attendance and the cool breeze made dancing a pleasure. Music was by Monk's orchestra.

The clubhouse is now so spacious that a good sized gathering never seems to make a crowd and the numerous piazzas find many occupants.

This year's committee is energetic in looking after the comfort and pleasure of those attending the hops and entertainments and it looks as though the club would enjoy one of its best seasons socially.

—The Scituate woman's club is making a most successful canvass for a building fund. Entertainments have been given by them netting several hundred dollars, and on Saturday, July 30, the members propose to give "A Midsummer Night's Dream," with the aid of well-known professional people at Briarwood, the beautiful summer home of Mr. and Mrs. George A. Lewis.

—Basins of mercury, revolved by electricity are used as reflectors for big telescopes.

SPORTING CHAT.

Did you see the circus? It looked pretty good. And wouldn't it have been convenient for those who wanted a horse for the July 4th parade?

Grethe, who twirled a few times for the Apprentices, has lost but one game out of five for the Malden Athletics.

• • •

Here's hoping that Quincy wins next Saturday. Randolph plays here and they will put the best team into the field that they possibly can. But so will Mike Shea and we'd better all see that game.

• • •

The Water street ball ground will be in very poor condition for a game after the way the circus tore it up. However the club was paid for it so they ought to fix it up in pretty good style.

• • •

The cars were absolutely mobbed after the circus.

• • •

The Makarias play at Norwell Saturday and the Ramblers have Merrymount Park though they have no game.

• • •

Quincy Y. M. C. A. will play the first game of a series with the South Quincy team at Ward Three Saturday.

• • •

There are no games scheduled in the Granite City League for next Saturday.

• • •

By the way, there have been two consecutive meetings of the Granite City League called and but two teams have responded and most noticeable of all the officers were absent. Of course it is hard to tell a week ahead what will happen but in order to succeed a proposition of this sort should be conducted on an absolutely business basis.

DAMES AND DAUGHTERS.

Mrs. W. G. Beggs of Seattle, Wash., has succeeded in growing a beautiful rose whose stem is smooth like that of a lily.

Mrs. Grover Cleveland and her daughters and son returned recently from Europe, where she has spent the past year, most of the time in Lausanne, Switzerland, where the children were in school.

Mrs. Catherine Van Voorhis of Rochester is said to have made the largest flag that ever floated over the capitol at Washington. She attended the suffrage convention recently held in Washington and in spite of her eighty years took part in all the proceedings.

Mrs. Virginia Hamersley Field has obtained permission to visit and give spiritual advice to condemned prisoners in the death house of Sing Sing prison. Mrs. Field has been conducting a Bible class at Sing Sing prison for twenty years.

The smallest grandmother in the world is Mrs. Minnie Myers of Fort Myers, Fla., who is seventy-five years old. She is twenty-seven and a half inches tall and weighs thirty-two pounds. She has been the mother of three children, the daughter with whom she now lives being a woman of average height. Mrs. Myers spends most of her time with her two grandchildren.

The Royal Box.

Queen Mary, consort of King George V. of England, is an admirable linguist. She speaks French, German and Italian excellently.

Crown Prince Ferdinand von Hohenzollern of Roumania is a keen soldier and very popular with the Roumanians. His wife, who was the eldest daughter of the late Duke of Saxe-Coburg, is one of the most beautiful women in Europe.

Yusuf Izzeddin Effendi, heir apparent to the Ottoman empire, was made minister of war when he was eighteen years of age. He was born in 1857. He was deprived of most of the large fortune left him by his father through the displeasure of Abdul Hamid, but he has gradually recovered it and is now said to be one of the wealthiest men in Turkey.

Eating For the Love of It.

Pawlow has given epicureanism in eating strong scientific support, and many of Horace Fletcher's ideas find orthodox justification. The first rule of dietetic conduct, according to Fletcher, is to eat only when one is hungry and to eat only the things from which one anticipates enjoyment. He also teaches that one must eat in the way that gives the greatest sensual pleasure—that is, by thorough chewing and tasting; also serenity of mind, pleasant surroundings at a meal, congenial friends, pleasurable conversation—in fact, everything that adds to enjoyment aids digestion. In other words, the process of digestion furnishes a beautiful illustration of the influence of mind upon matter. The inspiring stimulus is not mechanical, but psychic. The preliminary essential to the orderly assimilation of food is the keen desire for it.—McClure's Magazine.

A LITTLE HISTORY ATTACHED TO WAGNER'S OLD GLOVE.

Ever see the old glove which Honus Wagner wears on his big left hand? No? Well, here it is. Many another would be ashamed of it, but not the only Honus. Wagner would not part with it for love or money. There is a history to the glove. Wagner himself has forgotten just when he got it, but he thinks it was back about 1902. Honus knows that Herman Long, once the greatest of all shortstops, then playing with the Boston team, gave him the glove. It is a fact that Long always used a glove with a big hole in the center of it. He would buy a new glove and at once cut it to pieces, leaving an open spot in the center about twice the size of a baseball.

Long handed over one of his old gloves to Wagner. It suited him, and he has used it ever since. The glove now is a worn-out relic, but Hans hangs to it like grim death. He figures it would be the worst luck in the world for him to lose it.

Fans have time and again watched Wagner take that glove off his big left hand and throw it down toward third base. And they could always see the hole in it, for it is too big not to be noticed. Time and again it has been asked why Wagner doesn't buy a new glove.

You ask Hans that question and he will only say that he has no money to pay for one. But back of that there is the one fact that remains always prominent—Wagner is just as superstitious or sentimental as any other ball player, and he has always felt that the Herman Long glove has brought him luck. That's why he hangs on to it. It is worn to a frazzle. There is nothing to it but the bare edges. The center is all worn away, and Wagner grabs those hard line drives really with the bare hand.

RACE FOR HARMSWORTH CUP

British Motorboat Owner Will Send Entries For International Contests.

According to Commodore H. H. Melville of the Motorboat Club of America, who returned recently from England, where he has been making the final arrangements for the coming international motorboat race for the Harmsworth cup, the keenest interest is displayed by the British motorboat owners in the coming race, and many of them are coming over to attend it.

It is almost definitely settled that one of the English motorboats participating in the race will be the Maple Leaf, owned by Mackay Edgar of the British Motorboat club. The remaining two of the three contestants allowed to England will very likely carry the flag of the Motor Yacht Club of Great Britain, and there is a strong possibility that one of these will be a hydroplane.

Dr. Martin Smart of the British Motorboat club, who offered a cup as a prize in the English elimination races, anticipates being among the visiting motorboat enthusiasts to the international race at Larchmont on Aug. 20. Commodore Cummins of the Motor Yacht Club of Great Britain also expects to come over for the race with a party of ten or twelve followers of motorboat racing, among them being several titled English sportsmen.

There will be no postponement of the race on account of bad weather.

The Restless, owned by the Cheseborough brothers of the Motorboat Club of America and expected to prove one of the three American defenders, has developed wonderful speed at its tryouts, making thirty-eight miles. It is claimed by its builders that it will reach forty-five miles.

BASEBALL CHIRPS

George Lachance, the old Boston first baseman, has been appointed an umpire in the Connecticut State league.

Griffith, McGraw and Bresnahan are the hit and run managers, while Chance, Clarke and Lake are depending more on the sacrifice hit. Dooin and Dahlen are mixers.

Any ball club that is fast on the bases will win unless their opponents do some fine pitching and fielding. A loosely played game always gives a speedy team an advantage.

Bob Emslie has been umpiring steadily for twenty-five years. It was Charlie White of Spalding's, then president of the Eastern league, who gave him his first job as umpire.

Champion Batter of the Country Says When He Falls Off In Hitting He Never Worries, but Practices Hard Until He Regains Form.

By TY COBB.

[Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.]

To what do I owe my success as a ball player? There are two answers to this question. The first is that I am heart and soul in the game and, second, because I am always trying to improve on my playing. I am always practicing, and, you know, practice makes perfect. Take, for instance, when I have a batting slump. I don't worry about it. I just get out in the mornings at the ball park and practice hitting against all kinds of twirling. I like to stand up to the plate and whale away at every old kind of pitching. Some of the boys are easy to hit, while others are not. It all helps me to recover my batting eye.

Southpaw pitchers gave me considerable trouble at one time, but that was before I entered the big league. They never even bother me nowadays. Just watch me at the plate and you'll learn the reason in a minute. Against a right handed twirler I crowd the rubber and step into a curve before it breaks. Against a southpaw I drop back as far as possible and wait for the curve to break. Getting down to figures, I should say that I stand four feet closer to a right handed pitcher than I do to a left hander.

My greatest delight is to tickle the pill with runners on the bases. You may not believe me, but nevertheless it's true, I find it easier to hit the ball with the sacks occupied. The pitcher is worried, the infielders are guessing, and when you do hit the ball the flying base runners rattle and disconcert the men who are trying to handle the ball.

When men are on bases I generally lay for the first ball the twirler hands over. It's dollars to doughnuts that if he can lay that first one straight over the pan he'll do it, and I soak quite a few of them. The majority of batters will pass up the first ball, no matter if it cuts the plate in half. But you'll never get Tyrus overlooking any of that kind. Nine times out of ten I go to the plate prepared to hit the first ball if the pitcher lays it over.

I never take a long swing at the sphere any more. I like to do it, but you can't get anything in the major leagues swinging the willow. If you do the spitball pitchers would make a dunce of you in short order, to say nothing of the slabbists who have mastered a good change of pace. They'll shoot one over that looks like a pea, then feed you a slow one that comes floating up as big as a balloon. But you are set for the fast one and nearly break you back reaching for the slow ball.

In the old days the great batters were Pete Browning, Ed Delehanty, Dan Brouthers and Pop Anson, who swung on to a ball with the force of a hammer. Were any of them in the big leagues today the modern twirlers would make 'em look like jokes.

You cannot grab a wagon tongue down at the handle, reach back and swing halfway around for a curve pitcher. He'd make you look foolish, and you wouldn't have enough batting average at the end of the month to get your name in the percentage column.

The star batters of today grab their batting sticks a foot or more from the handle and, instead of swinging, aim to meet the ball flush. Nothing suits me better than to take a good crack at the leather, but I can't afford to get out of my stride, so I stick to the sure system of just meeting the ball with a halfway grip on my warclub.

Vol. 24 No. 162 — QUINCY, MASS., THURSDAY EVENING, JULY 14, 1910 — PRICE TWO CENTS

Chief Burrell Makes Queer Capture at Quincy Point

Asa S. Mitchell and Minnie M. Mitchell were arrested at Quincy Point Wednesday afternoon by Chief of Police Burrell for begging. Information was given the chief early in the afternoon that a man and woman were making a house to house canvass of the Point district soliciting funds to purchase an invalids wheel chair. The chief went looking for them and soon found them on Washington street on their way to City Square. When arrested they had $160 the sum total of their efforts at Quincy Point, and were then on their way for other parts of the city which they intended to work.

After their arrival at the police station they said that their home was in South Boston. The police of that section was communicated with and from them an interesting story of the couple was learned. It appears that some time ago the man became the joint heir with his brother to a legacy of $46,000 and it evidently turned his head. Previous to that time the man worked steadily but as soon as he learned of his good fortune work was too good for him and he quit.

The legacy did not come along as fast as expected and the result was that he soon found himself destitute for funds. Being too proud to again seek work he took his wife and went on the road seeking a living by begging from door to door for funds for an invalids wheel chair.

The man's wife when interviewed by the chief said that she very much detested begging from door to door but that her husband had forced her to do so. Both were arraigned in court this morning before Judge Pratt for begging and they were placed on probation with the advice to go to work again, at least until the legacy was forthcoming.

DANGEROUS PRACTICE.

It has been noted that the numerous small power boats which ply up and down Town River usually pass close to the public bathhouse at high tide. Not content with so close an approach, a large number of the helmsmen steer between the rafts, which are moored in front of the bath house.

This is a most dangerous practice and though it is very diverting to many experienced swimmers it is at the risk of the lives of some of the poorer swimmers who may be unable to escape being run down, or who cannot withstand the artificial waves caused by passage of these boats.

The water for a good distance past the rafts should be exclusively for swimmers and power boats warned off.

ANOTHER BREAK.

It was reported to the police this morning that burglars had either entered or attempted to enter the house of Mrs. Joseph C. Morse on Munroe road. Mrs. Morse is at present stopping at North Weymouth but her son comes to Quincy every morning and takes a look at the house before going to Boston. This morning he discovered that one of the windows had been forced open sometime since Wednesday morning. Lieut. McKay was notified and later he with Mrs. Morse visited the house. As far as they could discover not a single article was missing which leads Lieut. McKay to believe that after opening the window the parties must have been frightened away.

GETS THREE YEARS IN JAIL

Mayor of Lawrence Guilty of Conspiracy to Bribe

Salem, Mass., July 14.—Mayor William T. White, George B. Smart, Samuel Kress, ex-Alderman Matthew Burns and Ernest Dube, all of Lawrence, were found guilty of conspiracy in an attempt to bribe ex-Alderman Xavier Legrende and ex-Alderman Carl A. Woekel in an effort to have Chief James A. Hamilton of the Lawrence fire department removed from office.

Mayor White received a sentence of three years in the house of correction at Lawrence and a fine of $1000. Smart was sentenced to eighteen months, Krest to three and one-half years and Burns to two years in the same institution. Dube was paroled on giving state's evidence against the other defendants, and Thomas A. Keegan was found not guilty.

The "Lawrence bribery" case has been on trial for two weeks. The government's case was finished at 12:20 yesterday afternoon, and a few moments later the case went to the jury. Shortly after 3 o'clock the jury came in with the verdict.

Judge Schofield was not long in announcing his sentence. He spoke of the enormity of the offense against city officials for violating the dignity of their office. He also censured the other men for working in co-operation with the mayor in his illegal work.

Dube, White, Smart and Krest were in court when the verdict of guilty was announced against them. The district attorney moved that Dube be placed on probation on account of aiding in the conviction of the other defendants. This recommendation was accepted by the court and he was placed on probation.

Mayor White was first to receive his sentence. He showed much signs of nervousness. It was expected by his friends that he would probably be placed on probation on account of the dignity of his office. The court then announced the sentence, which was read by the clerk. The mayor looked downhearted and then fell back into his chair. His face was colorless.

Smart was next to be sentenced, receiving eighteen months. Krest's and Burns' sentences followed. All were much surprised.

Attorney Sullivan, who has been representing the defendants, immediately offered exceptions. He was given two weeks in which to file them.

The four prisoners were immediately taken to the detention room, handcuffed by the court officers. Shortly after 6 o'clock, accompanied by two sheriffs, the men were taken to Lawrence to commence their sentences.

It is expected, however, that bonds will be furnished for the quartet until the final disposition of the exceptions have been taken and to decide whether a new trial will be granted by the court.

Thomas A. Keegan, who is well known in Lawrence political circles, is now a free man. He was found not guilty and left the court immediately.

White, Burns, Smart, Dube and Keegan were indicted by the grand jury on May 19 last. The charge against White and the other defendants convicted was that they conspired to bribe certain aldermen to prevent, by absenting themselves, the election of James A. Hamilton as chief of the fire department.

This is the first time in the history of the commonwealth that the mayor of a city has been sentenced to prison. It is also the first time that such a large number of city officials have been indicted at one time and later convicted.

SMASHED TO SMITHEREENS

World's Record For Bullseyes Nearly Doubled by a Corporal

Wakefield, Mass., July 14.—In a phenomenal exhibition of marksmanship last night, Corporal Perry B. Scofied of Company E, Fifth Massachusetts regiment, of Medford, nearly doubled the world's record for 500 yards at the Bay State range.

He scored 116 consecutive bullseyes, the world's record, held by Captain Wise, inspector of small arms practice of the Sixth Massachusetts regiment, being sixty bullseyes.

Scofield missed the centre by a narrow margin on his 117th shot. It was 7:33 o'clock when he stepped down from the firing line.

QUINCY MAY GET TAX MONEY

Boston Officials Moving in the Squantum Matter

Now that the Mayor and City of Boston are sitting up and taking notice, is it possible that the city treasury of Quincy may be enriched with something like $8,000 for taxes of land at Squantum owned by the City of Boston upon which the City of Quincy has a tax title deed.

Several things transpired Wednesday in this now much discussed question. In the first place the squatters on the property made plans to call on Mayor Fitzgerald today to protest against the sale of the land. Mayor Fitzgerald also took a hand in the matter Wednesday when he filed with the city clerk a veto of the order adopted by the city council authorizing a charge of $5 each for permits on the city's land at Squantum. The veto will go to the city council at its session on Monday, and every indication points to the sustaining of the mayor's position.

The permits for camping lots was part of an order which provided for a transfer of $500 from the city's reserve fund to the street department, for the installation of water and sanitaries at Squantum. Although the council supposed the city still owned that land, which was purchased years ago for the establishment of a sewerage plant, the property, which is in Quincy, was sold for unpaid taxes a year ago, and the city of Quincy holds the tax title.

The mayor's veto reads:

"I am informed by the corporation counsel that the city of Quincy holds several tax claims against this property and that the exact title to it is somewhat in doubt. Under the circumstances, it seems inadvisable to charge even a nominal rental for the property, the title to which does not stand clearly in the name of the city. There is also small prospect of the required number of applications being filed. Only 60 thus far have been received, and the total of 100 applications, prescribed in your order, is not likely to be reached during the remainder of the summer season."

In returning his veto, the mayor enclosed Corporation Counsel Babson's opinion, which reads:

"In reference to the matter of this Squantum land I would say that if this land, which is not actually used for sewerage works, is held by the city for sale or revenue, and not for a public use, it is taxable, and I understand that the city of Quincy has taxed it for the last 10 years and has sold the land for taxes.

"If the validity of these tax deeds should ever come before the court for decision, the question would be, did the city hold the land in good faith for a public use, or did it hold it for revenue or for sale? The fact that it did lease it to the campers, and did put in water pipes for accommodation of tenants, would be some evidence tending, to show that the city held the land for revenue, intending to sell or lease it. The land should be disposed of as soon as possible. Meanwhile, in my opinion, nothing should be done to improve it for residence."

LEARN TO FLOAT.

"It is inexcusable for cramps to cause the death of a good swimmer," said an old and enthusiastic swimmer to a reporter the other day.

"Any normal person can float in the water," he said. "A good swimmer can learn more easily than others, and he should learn it. There may be human bodies that will be entirely submerged if unsupported, but I doubt it, and I know that such bodies are rare.

"Probably the bodies of people who have been drowned sink because they have taken in large quantities of water. Whether this is or is not the explanation is not important.

"With the air expelled as much as possible by ordinary breathing, and with no swimming movement, some part of the head will remain above the water. If the experiment is to be prolonged, it is more agreeable to throw the head back and have the nose above the water, but that is a detail.

"When you are in the water you should practice floating. It is easier to float in deep than in shallow water, but until you have learned to swim prudence demands that you remain where you can stand with your head above water. Walk out until the surface is near your shoulders. You can float in a less depth, but it is more difficult. Allow yourself to fall backward. Make no effort to prevent sinking. Let your nose point to the zenith. Your head may go under water, but it will rise again. You can take my word for it, knowing that if you fall you can stand on your feet.

"If you have followed instructions you should float the first time. The important thing to remember first, last and all the time is: Hold your breath all the time unless you know you will take in air and not water.

"You who have not learned to float may be thrown into the water. You may have a few hours or a few seconds of warning. Use those few or many seconds to get control of yourself, and there are two things you should bring to the front in your thoughts. Refrain from breathing except when you know you will take in air and not water, and if a swimmer atempts to rescue you make no effort to grasp him except when and as he requests.

"If he is a wise and a good swimmer he will not allow you to do this, as an effort to grasp him will add to his labors, and he will need all his strength."

HIGH SCHOOL LOSES TEACHER

Ralph P. Currier Elected Master Holbrook High School

The Quincy High school is to lose another of its popular teachers, Ralph P. Currier, teacher of mathematics, has been elected as master of the Sumner High school of Holbrook. The election was made at a special meeting of the Holbrook school committee Wednesday evening, Mr. Currier being selected from a number of candidates.

Mr. Currier is a graduate of Dartmouth college, class of 1908. After graduating, he came directly to Quincy, where he has since been. He is one of the most popular teachers at the High school and his leaving Quincy is to be regretted.

GRANITE SHIPMENTS.

Returns from the two railroad shipping terminals for the month of June show that the total amount of rough and finished granite forwarded from Quincy that month to have been 22,529,958 pounds nearly as much as during the month of May which was the largest month for several years. Of the June shipments Quincy Adams forwarded 5,312,908 pounds and West Quincy 17,217,050 pounds.

—Cohasset has a low tax rate, being $10.00 this year as against $11.50 last year and $12.00 two years ago.

IS ALL STRAIGHT?

Booming Quincy seems to be working in many ways. It was brought to our attention this noon that a prominent merchant, a member of the Merchants' Association, the Board of Trade ,and various other organizations had been approached by out-of-town parties who said they were writing op Quincy for a magazine and were endorsed by the Board of Trade, etc. They were soliciting advertisements for the magazine.

The merchant approached took exception to some of the statements made by the solicitors and did not give them any advertisement and is investigating to see if all is straight.

It uay be all right and the men only over jealous in representing what they hope to do, and the number of magazines they hope each organization will take.

—New York City is one step nearer to having three cent car fares, the public service commission granting on Tuesday the application of the Manhattan bridge three-cent line between the Long Island station in Brooklyn and the ferry terminal on West street, Manhattan.

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

They must have some suffragettes over in Austria. Any way they have a most unique law on aviation. It provides that no Austrian man, with female relatives of first or second degree, can ascent the air in any balloon, airship or other contrivance, unless he first have obtained permission in writing from the said female relatives. The purpose of this law is evidently to prevent complications that might arise in the event of accident.

Dr. G. Stanley Hall of Clark university, Worcester says to spank children more. His dealing with good-sized children should allow him to speak with some authority even if they are beyond the spanking age. He probably thinks he could get better results now if the rod had not been spared earlier in life. He says, and possibly he is right: "Americans protect their children too much, and it makes them precocious and disrespectful. A little slapping now and then reinforces the moral purposes of the child."

Brockton stores are closing Tuesday afternoon each week so that the clerks may have a half holiday. The Enterprise of Wednesday says: The first half-holiday left the shopping street rather deserted this afternoon, and many of the clerks in the department stores betook themselves to the nearby beaches for refreshing breezes. No baseball games or sports have been planned as yet on account of the extremely hot weather but a little later amusements will be devised for the afternoon. The dry goods stores closed at 12 and the groceries, meat and provision stores at 12.30.

Old hymns every little while come in for considerable criticism. At the Friends conference at Ashbury Park, New Jersey some of those especially objected to were "Jesus, Lover of My Soul" and "Onward Christian Soldiers." Pick up any hymn book and there will be found many hymns decidedly objectionable, the words of which the singers and congregation utterly disbelieved. Most of the hymn books now in use in the churches could be revised and pruned down one half or one third to advantage as many of them are never used by discriminating ministers. In fact we heard one Quincy minister say recently at a public gathering that in the hymn books in his church less than 100 of the 800 songs in the book were ever used or fit to be used in the services of the church.

DRIFT OF OPINION.

A man in town who decided to see what he could do in the way of making "mind triumph over" matter, says that he picked out last Saturday for his test. On the previous day he had wilted in the heat and humidity. His collar had early in the game gone by the board. His handkerchiefs were quickly used up, and by mid-afternoon the man felt like a wreck, although he got through to the end of the day all right. He had thought of the heat all day. He went to work Saturday, which was a hotter day than Friday, and he purposely kept his mind off the weather. He worked steadily and rapidly, brought himself to realize that nothing could be gained by protesting and by watching the thermometer and keeping himself nerved up over everything around him, and forgot the heat. So successful was this attitude in preserving a comparative degree of comfort that when the record-breaking figures of heat about town were announced the man couldn't believe them. His collar was unwilted, he felt reasonably comfortable, he had eaten a fairly good breakfast and dinner for a hot day or any day, and yet he had gone through the hours in a fairly comfortable state by simply deciding that he would not keep his thoughts ever on the surrounding discomfort. —Brockton Enterprise.

London is said to be considering a plan with reference to its streets that was suggested by Benjamin Franklin about a century and a half ago.—To make them slope toward the center of the roadway rather than toward the curbs.

This plan might prove a disadvantage in the case of a heavy storm, for it might often happen that there would be a very considerable torrent—sufficient, perhaps, to somewhat interfere with traffic. It would not be feasible in cities of this country because the center of the streets is often occupied by car tracks.

It represents, however, the general interest that is being taken in keeping the streets clean, an interest which is needed. Their condition is not only a matter which affects the appearance of a town or city but which has much to do with the health of its citizens.

The amount of money which is devoted to this work throughout this and other countries every year is a huge one, but its expenditure is an exceedingly necessary course.— Beverly Times.

Physicians of repute see fit to state at this unseasonable time of the year that it is not wise to eat heavily. Physicians are very wise in our generations but the best of them come to know that their science is of most account in its preventive stage. One way to prevent acute indigestion is a simple word of warning don't ask the overburdened stomach to do double duty, particularly in hot weather. The same mucous membrane that coats the digestive channel runs to the throat and head, and irritation can mount. Many a man gets sympathy from his wife for a "cold" that has been really caused by excess in eating or drinking. From now on through July and August and into September, it will pay the prudent to eat sparingly and of vegetables and fruits. No one is likely to suffer sunstroke or heatstroke who doesn't gorge, but will eat moderately of vegetable foods, take it easy and drink pure water.—Framingham News.

Is there no way by which the shocking record of Sunday drownings can be reduced? Nineteen lives snuffed out in a day is the record of last Sunday by drowning. Most of these were young people just entering upon life's activities. Somebody ought to turn attention to devising methods of preventing so many accidents. Just how it can be done The News does not know. Perhaps there is no remedy but it is saddening on Monday morning to read of the loss of life by various kinds of accidents. The press of the country has cut down the Fourth of July accidents more than one-half by its long and persistent campaign of education. Possibly it may be able to accomplish something now in the field of drownings.—Salem News.

OPPOSED TO SUFFRAGE.

The annual meeting of the Massachusetts Association Opposed to the Further Extension of Suffrage to Women was held at the home of Mrs Henry M. Whitney, 54 Beacon street Boston in May. Officers for the ensuing year were elected as follows:

President—Mrs. G. Howland Shaw vice president, Mrs. J. Randolph Coolidge. Miss Anna L. Dawes, Mrs Charles Eliot Guild, Mrs. Charles D Homans, Miss Agnes Irwin. Mrs Henry M. Whitney; treasurer, Mrs James M. Codman; recording secretary, Miss Elizabeth Johnson; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Charles P Strong; executive committee, the officers and Miss Mary S. Ames, Mrs Martin L. Cate, Miss Sarah H. Crocker, Mrs. H. L. Dodd, Miss Katharine E. Guild, Miss Elizabeth H. Houghton Mrs. Henry P. Kidder, Miss Elizabeth McCracken, Miss L. C. Post, Mrs. B L. Robinson, Mrs. R. M. Saltonstall and Miss Elizabeth P. Sohier.

NEW TYPE DESTROYERS.

The torpedo boat destroyer Sterrett, which was recently launched at Quincy, Mass., is one of the pioneers of a new and enlarged type of ocean-going destroyers that will be able to remain at sea with fleets of battleships. Boats of this kind can serve admirably as cruisers; and do heavy damage to the commerce of an enemy. They are formidable ships, of which it has been remarked that the grim old sea fighter Commodore Sterrett, after whom the new craft has been named, would have swept the Mediterranean of Barbary pirates if he had under his feet a craft of this kind.—Framingham News.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure local treatment pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

NO SLATE PREPARED FOR CONVENTION

Bay State Republicans Are to Act With Great Care

Boston, July 14.—Massachusetts Republicans will meet in Boston on Oct. 6 to nominate a state ticket. This was decided at the meeting of the Republican state committee—and that was about all that was decided. There was no slate for officers of the convention.

It was expected that the committee would select a permanent chairman, a chairman of the committee on resolutions and the four members-at-large of that committee. When the full committee met, the executive committee reported that it was not ready to present a slate of convention officers and it was agreed that all further action be postponed until a meeting to be held in August.

The leaders feel that no mistakes must be made this year and that they must make haste slowly. Great care is to be taken in the selection of a permanent chairman of the convention. Some feel that it would be better not to confer the honor upon former state officials, congressmen or prospective candidates, on the ground that this being a year when "insurgency" is rife, the rank and file must have their way without "machine" dictation.

"I WANT THE BEST MAN"

What Roosevelt Has to Say of the Empire State Governorship

Oyster Bay, N. Y., July 14.—Theodore Roosevelt gave out the following statement in reference to the New York gubernatorial situation:

"I want to find the best man for the office, the man who is most acceptable to the rank and file of the Republican party and to the independent voters. I intend to do everything in my power to see that such a man is elected."

Mr. Roosevelt's indication of his position, made less than an hour after the departure for New York of Governor Hughes, is taken as a significant sidelight on the conference between the two men. While both refused to disclose the precise subject matter of their conference, it is believed from Roosevelt's attitude that it was decided that he would take an active personal part in regard to the nomination of a candidate for governor.

SCHMITZ FOR GOVERNOR

No Opposition to His Nomination by Wisconsin Democrats

Milwaukee, July 14.—Burt Williams, former mayor of Ashland, and publisher of The News of that city, was the unanimous choice for United States senator of the Democratic state convention. A state ticket was named, to be voted upon at the primary election on Sept. 6, for places on the regular ballot at the November election. It is headed by Adolph J. Schmitz of Milwaukee, who had no opposition.

Under the primary election law in Wisconsin, nomination papers must be circulated by all candidates for office, and a certain percentage of voters' signatures obtained before candidates' names can be placed on the official ballot. The naming of candidates by the state convention eliminates a large number of candidates and insures support of the candidates named by party voters.

ASSISTANT TO PRESIDENT

Vanderbilt, Jr., Actively Interested In New York Central Lines

New York, July 14.—William K. Vanderbilt, Jr., will hereafter take an active interest in the management of the New York Central lines. At a meeting of the Central directors the young millionaire clubman was elected assistant to President William C. Brown. He will later be selected for a similar position on the Big Four and other Vanderbilt properties.

This action indicates that, in the future, the Vanderbilt interests will participate in a most active way in the executive affairs of the railroads built and developed by Commodore Vanderbilt, grandfather of Brown's new assistant.

FREIGHT RAISE SUSPENDED

Formal Inquiry to Be Made Into Cost of Transportation

Washington, July 14.—The interstate commerce commission has reached a decision to suspend freight rate advances in official classification territory. Included are those filed with the understanding that they would be suspended.

The period of suspension will be four months, in which the commission will hear shippers and railroad men on the question. The territory extends from the Atlantic coast to Chicago and the Missouri river.

Fire In Paris Theatre

Paris, July 14.—While the last act of a play was being performed at the Theatre Francais the curtain caught fire. The audience immediately started to stampede, refusing to be stayed by shouts that there was no danger. The play continued to an empty house.

FOURTH AT TOOKER'S.

The third of July at Orr's Mills was full of the stinging noises that seem to belong to very hot, breathless days. It presaged even hotter things for the Fourth of July.

Mrs. Tooker was ironing in her little, stifling kitchen. Her meek thin face was unwontedly flushed and trickling with little streams of perspiration.

Windows and doors were shut. There were no screens ,and Lavinia Tooker couldn't "abide" flies. It was the only thing she had ever felt courage enough to abide or not abide.

Adam Tooker lounged outside in the shade in his shirt sleeves. Aunt Lois Knapp, next farm, said a body hadn't only to look once at Adam Tooker's chin to see who was head of that house.

Mrs. Tooker looked at it now through the window, but she saw only the grizzled forerunners of a beard. In its firm, hard lines and masterful curves she saw no significance.

"Seems as if I never knew starch to stick the way this does!" she groaned, scraping little flakes of it from the iron with a case knife. "And just when I'm in an awful hurry too! I wish Adam would let me try that satin starch Aunt Lois brags about. But he won't. It's five cents a pound more." She sighed gently.

The sitting room door opened suddenly and Mary Tooker came out. She had some sewing in her hand.

"Why, mother," she exclaimed, "you'll melt! This kitchen's like a furnace of fire. If you'd only have the window open! But, anyway, I'll leave the sitting-room door open—that'll be some help."

"No, no, Mary, don't! There don't need to but one of us melt."

"Well, I guess I can stand it as well as you can. I'm going to see if I can't." She edged herself gently into her mothers place and wrested the iron from her tired fingers. Her sewing slipped to the floor.

Was it the influence of Independence Day forerunning it a little, that put the accent of command into Mary Tooker voice and the little jerk of mastery into her shoulders? Her mother succumbed to them weakly.

"I am tuckered," she said, "but your father's shirt's got to be done up ,and the collars and cuffs. He's decided he's going to the celebration over to Stratford."

"Yes, he said he was at dinner, mother," the girl faced about resolutely. "Why don't you go with him?"

"Me? Why, Mary Ann Tooker! Me!"

"Yes, you. I guess it won't hurt you any to have one good time in your life, I guess you deserve it. There, there, you needn't look so scared. Father won't hear me. He's fast asleep. You go up stairs and lie down, mother. I'll finish the ironing."

Mary Tooker was twenty-nine years old, and she "looked it," Aunt Lois Knapp said. Over her temples already the hair was thin and had its gray lining, which Mary kept snugly covered as long as she could. Her shoulders stooped a little. Even her skirts had renounced the follies and the frills of youth and fell scantily around her, like an old woman's.

Mary Tooker had never been young in her life. There had been a short, young month to be sure, when John Tracy came nearly every afternoon up the front walk and staidly drank tea with her out of the best china teacups, but could being young' be crowded into a month? When Mary's father came back at the month's end, the lines in his chin had deepened obstinately, and John Tracy, in pity of Mary's frightened distress had agreed to stay away.

"Until you call me back, Mary," he had said gravely, "I shall wait."

But that was years ago. Now John Tracy's hair was thinning, too, and growing gray. His shoulders stooped too. Would Mary ever call him back?

Mary Tooker ironed the sticky shirt bosom with conscientious care on July 3 in the little sweltering kitchen. Every crease she pulled out painstakingly. Every speck she sponged away, bending over it with nearsighted eyes. When the work was done, she got supper and called in her father.

"Father," she said bravely as the solemn meal went on. "I've got to go down to the village on an errand tonight. It's so hot—I'm considerable tired—I was thinking perhaps—could I have the team?" Her sallow cheeks reddened anxiously.

Mrs. Tooker held her spoon suspended in helpless dismay. Was Mary crazy? There was nothing further said until "father" had cleared his plate and drained his last saucerful of tea. Then he shoved back his chair with a rasping noise and said decidedly: "The mare's got to rest up for to-morrer. I guess you can foot it all right."

Mrs. Tooker's spoon fell clattering to her plate. There was almost relief in her face. The red flush in Mary's face flickered, died out, then woke again. The shadow of Independence Day touched her once more.

"But, father," she said, subduing the quaver in her voice with unusual success, "I'd like some money."

Adam Tooker sat down suddenly in a chair by the door—so suddenly and so heavily that the chair unduly weak in construction, succumbed to his weight.

It was unfortunate for poor Mary. "Money!" he exclaimed getting himself together stiffly. "You'n your mother are always an' everlastin'ly wantin' money. I ain't made of money. Where's the dollar I give you last week?"

"Last month," Mary quietly corrected him. "Mother had to get a new milk pail with most of that and a butter mold with the rest. I want this money to spend for us—mother and me."

"Then I guess you'll have to turn to an' earn it."

Adam Tooker was not a brutal man. There was even a secret core of unused rusty tenderness beneath the husk of selfishness, but just now his shins twinged with rheumatic pain from his fall and his temper had him in hand.

"Oh, Mary," Lavinia Tooker remonstrated querulously over the dish washing, "how'd you dare to vex your father so? He feels the heat dreadfully and I don't know's he feels real well besides. I wish you hadn't done it."

"Mother!" Mary Tooker stood up straight and impressive, even majestic. Her old young, spiritless face shone with a new light. The grace of honest indignation transformed it.

"Mother, look at me! I'm going on thirty. Do I look as if I'd ever'd spent a cent of father's money on myself, as other girls do? Do I look pretty and tasty and young? Did I ever look so? And he says I'd better earn some money!"

The scathing of her voice burned into her mother's heart. She spread out both her calloused, unlovely hands and let them speak with wordless eloquence for her. The reddened skin and worn nails bore pitiful evidence of rough work.

"Where's the money I have earned-Where's the money you've earned all this time, mother while, you've been growing old and stoopy and feeble? Where's our new dresses we've earned and laces and ribbons like other women's? Have you ever had a nice dress in your life—ever? Have I either? Where's the celebrations we've ever been to? Where's anything beautiful or easy or comfortable we've ever had or done?"

Mrs. Tooker's helpless tears fell. Was poor Mary crazy?

"Hush, hush, dearie!" she said soothingly. "You're tuckered out, what with the heat and working so stiddy. You don't know what you're saying. You go get on your hat—it'll sort of settle your feelings to walk down to the store. Law! I guess I can make out with this little mess of dishes—go way!"

At Orr's Mills the Fourth of July dawned hotter and more breathless still—the kind of a Fourth of July we have been bred to expect if all goes well.

Adam Tooker got an early start to Stratford. The women folks were left with the most of the morning's chores to do to that end. It was long before they were done'. Then Mary disappeared in her own room.

When she came out, half an hour or more later, her mother fairly gasped at the picture she made in the low, smoky doorway. Was it Mary—Mary Ann Tooker? Had she fallen asleep there in the creaking rocker and opened her eyes in heaven? For this was the way Mary would look in heaven—young and sweet and like other mothers' Marys.

"Mother, don't you know me?"

QUINCY YACHTS ARE ENTERED

Iris and Dolly II to Try For the Interbay Y. C. Cup

A special meeting of the officers of the Quincy Yacht club was held Wednesday evening to consider the selections of boats to represent the Quincy club at the Interbay Association races which are to be sailed in Narraganset bay beginning Aug. 15.

The officers selected two boats, The Iris owned by Rear Commodore Frank F. Crane and the Dolly II owned by Wallace Arnold. Both of these boats are very fast and are well known in Massachusetts waters. It is the first time however that Quincy club yachts have raced in the Interbay club races.

The Interbay club has offered a handsome cup for a prize. Other clubs that will make a try for the cup are the Narraganset, Great South , Buzzards Bay and Barnegat. It is probable that the waterways meeting will be in progress at Providence at the time of these races and the yacht race will be one of the amusement features planned for the visiting delegates.

LETTERS OF PUBLIC INTEREST

THE HANCOCK CEMETERY.

Editor Daily Ledger:

Is it not possible to put the old Hancock Street cemetery into a proper condition. It is disgracefully littered with papers and rubbish and impresses the average tourist passing through here as a sad reflection on the taste and reverence of Quincy residents. It is a really beautiful spot with its fine old trees and interesting memorials. The ragged grass and turf should be trimmed ,the paths raked, and its restfulness emphasied during this heated season.

ONE GIRL IS MADE HAPPY

Johnson Bros' Doll is Awarded to Miss Hogan

Lovers of dolls have been much interested for several months in the handsome doll displayed at Johnson Bros'. Market to be given to the child collecting the most cash checks between May 1st and July 1st. Miss Margaret Hogan of Cottage street is now the happy owner of the doll her checks amounting to $5,748.95. The next highest was Helen Rogers of Chestnut street with checks amounting to $4,342.16. Besides making one little girl extremely happy at receiving the doll the contest also goes to show that the buying public appreciates the cash system inaugurated last April by Johnson Bros and it is surely proving a success all round.

TO REMOVE STAINS FROM WASH DRESSES.

A few general rules in regard to removing stains from wash dresses will be useful just now in renovating last year's frocks for this summer's wear.

It must be understood that the sooner the spot is taken out the better will be the result; yet stains that have been in all winter are not impossible to cleanse if the work is done in the right way, says the Philadelphia Times.

For instance, boiling water poured through a tea stain will entirely remove it if the stream is kept percolating through the material a sufficient length of time, depending upon the obstinacy of the stain.

Coffee spots should be soaked in cold water until they disappear, changing the water as often as it becomes much discolored.

The stains from chocolate are not so easy to remove. They should be soaked in lukewarm water, which will be renewed as occasion requires.

Fruit stains will surely be in evidence during the coming season. If not on old garments then on new ones.

When such spots are fresh pour boiling water steadily through them, and they will usually disappear. If the water is hard, borax or ammonia in a small quantity should be added.

A grease stain on cotton or linen will usually yield to the treatment of a mixture of fuller's earth and pipe clay in equal quantities.

When any greasy substance has been dropped upon silk it can be abstracted by mixing French chalk with methylated spirits to the consistency of cream, laying it upon the stain, then covering it with brown paper and pressing with a warm iron.

Ice cream marks can be removed by this means but it must be applied at once.

A bottle of cologne is a most useful article, for it will take away smears if rubbed on as soon as they appear. It can be used alike on white or colored fabrics, cotton or woolen, without the slightest injury. Many persons make use of it all the year round, not exactly as a cleansing agent, but as an emergency. For instance, when a person is quite ready to go out and then detects some stain that has been overlooked when putting the garment away a rag saturated with cologne and applied will remedy the spot at least temporarily.

Grass stains yield to the cologne application, though a thorough bath in alcohal is perhaps more certain. Kerosene is another liquid that may be applied sucessfully to grass stains, while some recommended covering the spots with a paste made from cream of tartar and water. This should not be used in the case of colored goods, as the color is likely to disappear.

Rub fresh paint with a rag dipped in spirits of turpentine, and if this is not forthcoming rub the soiled part with both hands, as though the fabric were being washed.

Ink can be taken from white goods with tomatoes if applied freely. Cold milk is good when the stains are fresh, changing the milk as often as necessary.

FARMER JEFFRIES.

Back to the land,
To the nice soft soil
That raises no crops
Of jabs for his toil,
Goes Farmer Jeff,
Where his work will be
A picture of sweet
Simplicity.

Back to the land,
To the nature spot
Where the rain doesn't rain
Any punches hot,
Goes Farmer Jeff,
And he'll hit the ground
With a plowshare lick
That makes no sound.

Back to the land,
To the growing place
Where Johnson can't land
On his sun kissed face,
Goes Farmer Jeff,
And he loves to look
On the fields that need
No left hand hook.

Back to the land,
To the peaceful ways
That were so unlike
Those Reno days,
Goes Farmer Jeff
With a keen delight
In knowing there isn't
A nigger in sight.

Back to the land,
To the good old farm,
Away from the ringside
And its harm,
Goes Farmer Jeff,
And it's safe to swear
He's mighty darn sorry
He didn't stay there.

CAREER OF MRS. R. H. SAVAGE

Distinguished Author's Widow, Who Was Well Known as a Lecturer.

Mrs. Richard Henry Savage, widow of the celebrated author and soldier and herself well known as a lecturer and critic, who recently died in her home at New York, was the daughter of a court chamberlain in Potsdam, Germany, and an intimate of many of the present royal heads of Europe. She was Josephine Schuble, daughter of Charles Schuble, one of the "kitchen cabinet" of the father of the present emperor of Germany. When the present emperor was born Mrs. Savage, then Miss Schuble, was a mature young woman, and she delighted in carrying the young prince around in her arms. At the time of her death Mrs. Savage was sixty-seven years old.

For the last thirty years she had been identified with movements for woman's rights. Five years ago she added lecturing to her other occupations, having already gained note as a writer. She belonged to the Eclectic, Sorosis, Entertainment and other women's clubs.

Mrs. Savage had had a remarkably interesting career. At the age of sixteen she was married in Germany to Gustave Schuble, a cousin, and several years before the civil war the young couple came to America to look after cotton plantations in which they were jointly interested. The husband died shortly afterward in this country, and the young widow became a great favorite in Washington society.

In 1873 Mrs. Schuble married Richard Henry Savage, a young army officer, who, after his retirement with the rank of major, entered upon a brilliant literary career. He volunteered at the outbreak of the Spanish-American war and received a commission as colonel. He died Oct. 11, 1903. Mrs. Savage then continued her husband's work in the literary field.

In her life in the capital and the large cities of the United States and Europe Mrs. Savage met many of the distinguished persons of her time. All the presidents since Lincoln, Prince Bismarck, Count Tolstoy, Victor Hugo and others more or less distinguished were her friends.

GIRL STUDIES FOOD OF POOR.

Attends School of Technology to Acquire Knowledge.

Although Miss Helen Fales, the one girl graduate of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology to receive a degree this year, will not confirm the rumor, there is a strong probability that she will devote her time now to a study of conditions obtaining in the food supplies of the poorer classes of large cities, such as Boston, New York and Chicago.

Miss Fales, the one girl to get her degree out of 273 men classmates, has strong philanthropic leanings.

Miss Fales entered the Massachusetts Institute of Technology after having graduated from Vassar college to take up the study of the chemistry of foods particularly and to obtain a degree of bachelor of science incidentally.

Miss Fales lives in South Framingham, Mass., and belongs to the most exclusive circles, but will forego a social career and will devote her time and efforts to bettering the condition of the poorer classes who are not able to get the training to fight for themselves.

MONUMENT TO ADAM AND EVE

Washington Apple Growers Propose to Honor Memory.

A. F. Crowell, formerly deputy state horticultural commissioner of Spokane and Stevens counties, Wash., has submitted a proposal to the national apple show to erect a mammoth monument to Adam and Eve in one of the apple belts in the northwest. The board of trustees of the organization, of which Howard Elliott, head of the Northern Pacific Railroad company, is president, is discussing plans to offer a substantial prize for the most appropriate design, submitted in competition, to be awarded by popular vote at the third annual show in Spokane the week of Nov. 14.

BATSMEN TAKE LESS OF A CHANCE

In Old Days Pitchers Would Go Far to Gain Advantage.

IT'S VERY DIFFERENT NOW.

Even With the Change In Method the Batter Is In Danger—Many Instances Where Being Hit by Ball Affects Playing Ability.

When Frank Chance, manager of the Chicago Nationals, was struck on the head by a ball hurled by Pitcher Gasper of Cincinnati recently it recalled the fact that many star baseball players have lost their effectiveness through being hit by thrown balls.

That more batsmen are not injured by being hit by pitched balls speaks well for the skill of the present day pitcher. In the old days the pitcher would not infrequently let one go straight at the batter's head in order to drive him away from the plate. Such a proceeding is rare nowadays Working the edges of the plate seems to have proved more effective. Nevertheless the fire the batter faces is dangerous.

One of the worst cases of head hitting was that of Hugh Jennings, now manager of the Detroit club, by Amos Rusie. Jennings, with Baltimore then, was noted for his close hugging of the plate and his willingness to accept a base by being hit by the pitcher. He relied upon his quickness of eye to minimize the effect of the blow. Rusie had a wide, jumping curve ball. Jennings was willing to turn his shoulder, accept a deflecting blow or let it hit his shirt front or the slack of his knickerbockers. He could do this with pitchers of average curve, but Rusie's curve was too sharp in the break and too fast for him to avoid. Jennings stood close and got one full in the head. He fell flat. For four days his life was despaired of, but a powerful constitution pulled him through, though he never was the same nervy man again at the plate, and it was months before he could play.

Jennings, by the way, is an extremely durable person. While at Cornell he dived face first against the concrete bottom of an empty swimming tank. The man is a marvel of vitality and energy. He sustained two shocks that would have killed the average man, yet he is as full of energy today as a dynamo.

Roderick Wallace, the famous infielder of the Browns, had his batting efficiency seriously and permanently impaired twelve years ago when he was hit in the head by a ball thrown by "Chick" Fraser, who was then with the Louisville club. Wallace was knocked flat, and it was many days before he went to bat again. A constitution of iron enabled him to withstand the shock, but he never was quite the same hitter afterward.

Dan Hoffman, the center fielder of the Browns, was the victim of a fearful blow at the hands of Jesse Tannehill, then with Boston, some years ago. Hoffman was at the time deemed the most promising young player in the American league. He was having his first season, and a brilliant one it was. One day he made a triple, a double and a single against Tannehill in three trips to the plate. The fourth time up Tannehill hit him a terrific blow over the right eye. It almost killed the trained and muscular young athlete. Hoffman lay as if dead, and it was four days before he recovered consciousness. Then his nerves were ruined. From 170 pounds he declined to 128. He could not sleep or eat for six months, and the following season he had to get along as best he could with only one eye. Hoffman says that it has taken him six years to get back his full strength. He has never been able to hit left handed pitchers since the day he was hurt. Now, six years after, Hoffman is at the mercy of the average left handed pitcher.

Johnnie Lush, the star pitcher of the Cardinals, was hit by Andy Coakley on the neck and all but killed. His neck has never been straight since that time, and for years his health was seriously impaired.

Roger Bresnahan was hit and severely hurt by Jack Taylor in 1904. For a long time after this injury Bresnahan wore a semi-mask that protected the exposed side of his head against the pitcher.

Hundreds of lesser lights have been hit and injured to a degree less serious than those mentioned. It all goes to show that baseball is not without its great dangers, especially to men at the bat. Most of the injuries on the field have come about through collisions between fielders, such as the one that cost the life of "Hub" Collins. Collins' fatal collision was with Harry Stovey at Boston many years ago.

Batted balls injure very few players, though the way men hit them about in practice would often make one wonder that accidents are not more frequent. The most notable accident of this sort was when Schriver of Pittsburg hit William Hart of the same club on the chin with a ball batted in practice. The drive shattered Hart's jaw. It was wired up again. Hart is now fifty years old and is rated high among the pitchers of the Southern league.

WOMEN HAVE MANY SOULS

Opinion Expressed by President Hall of Clark University

Greeley, Col., July 14.—Girls turning 16 are absolutely irreligious, according to Dr. Hall, president and professor of psychology at Clark university, Worcester, Mass., who lectured at the summer normal school here. Hence it is, he continued, they are devoted to rats, puffs, psyche knots, fudge, giggles and other ephemeral things.

"The budding girl is as baffling a problem as the soul of a woman," said Hall, "and the world now knows that instead of no soul at all, woman now has one, two, three or even four more than man.

"The young girl is absolutely irreligious in her nature. She sees only the immediate present, whereas, a boy looks into the future. Her life is all emotion, and, for that reason a certain religious fervor is likely to appeal to her. She should be protected from professional religionists."

THE CASTINE FLOATED

Gunboat Will Go to Navy Yard After Temporary Repairs Are Made

Provincetown, Mass., July 14.—The gunboat Castine, which was beached on Beach Point in Cape Cod bay Monday afternoon to prevent her from sinking after she had been struck by the submarine Bonita, came off yesterday afternoon under her own steam. With the naval tug Iwana alongside, the Castine steamed into Provincetown harbor and anchored at the regular anchorage.

The Castine was making water freely, but men at the pumps were able to keep up with the inrush of water, although her bow was a foot or more lower in the water than her stern.

Temporary repairs will be made here and then the Castine will proceed to the Charlestown navy yard.

MRS. YOUNG BELIEVES IN FIGHT PICTURES

Present Outcry Hysterical, Says Woman Educator

Chicago, July 14.—Mrs. Ella F. Young, the newly elected president of the N. E. A., who is at the head of the Chicago public schools, in an interview said:

"I see no harm in the exhibition of the Jeffries-Johnson fight pictures. I believe that the agitation against them is a form of hysteria. Theodore Roosevelt entertained prize fighters at the White House and put on the boxing gloves with them and President Taft has done the same. Anything that tends to the physical development of the youth is a benefit.

"I do not believe in brutality. If these pictures are in any way repulsive, then I believe they should be suppressed, but for the life of me I cannot see why there is anything degrading in two scientific boxers battling for the championship.

"I believe that our youth should be taught to become strong and healthy men. Boxing is one form of exercise that develops all of the latent talent in them."

BRAGA'S ACTION NULLIFIED

Portuguese Government Defies Orders Emanating From Vatican

Lisbon, July 14.—A royal decree has been issued, nullifying the action of Archbishop Braga, who, upon orders from Cardinal Merry del Val, the papal secretary of state, suppressed the Franciscan Review, which he maintained, although Christian and Catholic, was not necessary to the support of the National Catholic party.

The decree declares that the archbishop has no right to execute religious instructions without the previous consent of the government, and warns him that a repetition of this action would be calculated to arouse a conflict in the country which could not be tolerated.

DEMAND FOR CHARLTON

On the Way From Rome to State Department at Washington

Washington, July 14.—Formal request for the extradition of Porter Charlton, charged with killing his wife at Lake Como, Italy, has been forwarded by special messenger from Rome to London, whence it will be sent on to Washington by the first fast mail. Word to this effect reached the state department through the embassy in Rome.

"Can an insane man be extradited?" was a question the department considered yesterday. It was decided that a person in an insane asylum at the time the request for extradition comes cannot be surrendered.

Acquitted of Woman's Charge

Boston, July 14.—Judge De Courcey ordered a verdict of not guilty, by reason of a variance, in the case of Max Paretz, who was charged with enticing Mrs. Jeannette Abrams, otherwise known as Julia Adams, to practice an immoral life in Panama.

King's Funeral Cost $202,500

London, July 14.—The elaborate funeral given King Edward cost the nation $202,500, as is shown in the supplementary financial estimate.

EDITOR SYMBOL OF RACE ADVANCE

Arrived In America Thirty-five Years Ago From Tyrol.

THOUGHT LOCOMOTIVE DEVIL.

Oklahoman Believes His Career Typifies Progress of Man In Last 400 Years and Is Proud of Fortunes He Has Won and Lost During His Life In the United States.

John Golobie of Guthrie, Okla., who is proprietor of the Oklahoma State Register, came to New York not only to see Colonel Roosevelt, but to see Castle Garden again after thirty-five years. Mr. Golobie was just ten years old when he saw it the first and last time, and he has mostly forgotten what language he spoke then. His English is perfect.

Mr. Golobie said that his life epitomizes the history of civilization and progress in the world the last four centuries.

"I don't know," said Mr. Golobie, "whether I was born a Dalmatian, a Croatian, an Istrian or what, but I do know that I came from a little district in the Austrian Tyrol, and I was only ten years old when I left. They had just heard of this country in that part of the world. I know the idea thereabout was that the earth was flat and square and on wheels, and they used to say in our village whenever we would feel the jar of an earthquake of which the full force was being felt in Italy, 'Oh, that is one of the earth's wheels jolting over a stone.'

"They did not have locomotives in that part of the world then. There was talk of a railroad being built, but the people of our village opposed it on the ground that anything driven by fire and smoke must perforce be by the machination of the devil. I was a victim of primogeniture, and my mother had saved up to give me a chance in the world. When she heard of America she determined to send me here, and I came alone, except that a German woman who spoke a little of my language took me in charge on the journey.

"I know that in Castle Garden they shot us up the wrong chute and put us in with a bunch of people whose language we did not speak. In fact, I never found anybody that did. I was a year and a half learning enough English to get along with, and I was by turns a dry nurse, a woodchopper and as I got a little older a shoemaker.

"When the Wichita boom came along I, who had gone first into insurance and then into real estate in Kansas, made $18,000 in about six months. I reinvested it again and lost it all. Then I took to writing. Considering that I sprang from darkness like that of the middle ages, I claim that my career about typifies the progress of man in the last 400 years."

$40,000 PRIMARY A PHANTOM

Congressmen Fear Sibley Will Cause National Publicity Bill.

Congressmen in Washington, especially those who do not want to pass a publicity bill for campaign receipts and expenditures, were talking in dark corners about the expenditure of $40,000 by ex-Representative Joseph C. Sibley, hero of the Archbold letter episode, who has just defeated his successor, Representative Wheeler, for the Republican nomination for congress in the Twenty-eighth Pennsylvania district.

Inasmuch as Mr. Sibley's total remuneration, counting all perquisites to his office, if re-lected to congress, will be only about $18,500 in two years, it is difficult to understand why he wants to go back to Washington when his primary nomination alone stands him a dead loss of $22,000 and he has yet to be elected, wait more than a year before taking his seat and then live two years after that. One answer is contained in Mr. Sibley's complaint about the criticism leveled against his extravagance. The gist of his argument is:

"I have plenty of money, and I want to go back to congress. Why shouldn't I?"

BERLIN HAS A NEW MIDGET.

Prince Atom Is Two Feet In Height, but Smart.

What is alleged to be the smallest midget ever exhibited is now filling an engagement at a vaudeville theater in Berlin under the name of Prince Atom. He is just over two feet tall, his height being about the same as the diameter of a phonograph horn. His parents were of normal size. He is normal in his proportions, and his mind is well developed. He is also good natured, and he loves to chat with the children who flock to see him perform athletic feats and swing the dumbbells.

America Heads Philippine Exports.

Manila, Iloilo and Cebu are the chief importing and exporting Philippine ports, Manila leading, followed by Cebu. The United States leads all other countries in both imports and exports. In imports the order is, principally, United States, Great Britain, French East Indies (rice), China, Australasia, Germany, Japan, Spain, France, British East Indies and Hongkong.

FOURTH AT TOOKER'S.

called Mary joyfully. "Why, you're crying! Why, mother!"

Her mother reached out both arms toward her suddenly. "You look—so—beautiful, dearie!" she almost sobbed.

Mary had loosened her brown hair into soft, girlish curves and tendrils, and it framed in her face with softening effect. She had put on all her scant finery, amplifying and beautifying it with surprising success. She even had flowers in her hair and a little bunch at her belt. But best of all was the pretty light in her eyes and the smiles that brought out forgotten, unused dimples in her cheeks. She was young for once in her life at least—Mary Ann Tooker, twenty-nine years old.

Over her arm she had her mother's best dress, freshly bedecked with lace ruchings in neck and sleeves.

"Put it on, mother. Put it on quick! We mustn't lose a minute. This is Independence Day."

Ah, the secret was out! It was Independence Day at Orr's Mills, at Stratford, the world over and in Mary Tooker's soul.

Mrs. Tooker made a feeble protest: "I hadn't ought to, Mary. It ain't right!"

But Mary's fingers, smoothing the thin, straight white hair, strayed out to the wrinkled forehead and lightly rested on it. Then Mary Ann Tooker leaned over and kissed her mother. Dear land alive! Mary dressed her, Mrs. Tooker meekly submitting now. Mary fastened a few flowers over her mother's thin breast.

"There now, mother, you look beautiful!" she said briskly. "I'm going to set you in the parlor in the hair-cloth rocker out of the sun. You're my company."

"Mary—why, Mary!"

"Yes, you're my company. I'm going to open a jar of preserves for your supper and cut the fruit cake—hush, you needn't say a word! I guess I can entertain my own mother on Fourth of—on Independence Day," she corrected herself quickly. "I guess so! I'm going to see if you and I can't celebrate too."

"But, Mary"—

"I was going to get a bunch of firecrackers down to the store last night. Yes, I was! Father didn't give me any money, so I couldn't and maybe I shouldn't have dared to fire 'em off. But fruit cake and preserves and our best dresses'll do."

She sat opposite her mother, stiffly upright on the slippery sofa. Her face shone. "Mother, I don't know but this is the way it feels to be young. I like it." Her voice was wistful ,earnest.

Her mother stopped rocking and looked over into her face almost anxiously.

All at once Mary went to the window. "There's John Tracy driving past," she said quietly. "I'm going to invite him in to supper too."

"Mary—dear land—Mary!"

But ary was gone. At the front door she stood under the tangle of vines and called clearly: "John! John!"

At supper they drank tea again staidly out of the best china teacups. The fruit cake appealed in mute disapprobation to Mrs. Tooker, but she took the second piece when Mary pressed her unflinchingly. What would Adam say?

Adam Tooker's day had not been full of unalloyed pleasure. He had so long to think on the drive to town, and perversely, persistently the disjointed fragments of Mary's last night's talk with her mother had rung in his ears. He had heard them as he came in from milking. He had heard them all night. He was hearing them today between the booms of the cannon and the sharp intermittent pops of the boys' fire-crackers. They ran on in his mind with troublesome reiteration ,always in Mary's shrill, indignant voice, with its wistful undertones.

Confound it! Were they going to spoil his whole day? Couldn't a man have a bit of pleasuring without being pestered to death?

The day wore on slowly to Adam Tooker, however, fast and joyous to the happy-faced families around him taking their holiday together.

Boom! Boom! Was it that, or was it the jolt and stir of hurrying feet and he clatter of high, excited voices that jarred from its sheath of selfishness the core of human tenderness entombed in Adam Tooker's soul? Or was it the echo of Mary's voice crying out bravely to him?

Never mind what—never mind when or how. It stirred and awoke. The little groups holidaying on every side of him appeared in a new light in his eyes.

Yonder a rough-bearded father was teaching his middle aged daughter to set off a firecracker, laughing hilariously at her fright. An old mother a little way farther off was dancing a grandbaby to the band's merry tune. The baby's mother looked on proudly. There, over there, a pair of lovers walked, shy and contented and unheeding ,through the crowds. The man looked like John Tracy when John was young. The girl—she didn't look like Mary!

Adam Tooker shrugged his shoulder impatiently. Were all the daughters middle aged and all the women old. A lost, tiny urchin tugged at his hand calling him "grandpa" in an imperative baby voice. He dropped the little fist then picked it up again and spent a patient hour finding the child's people.

He resolved to stay to the fireworks as he had planned to do, though he had lost the zest of the day. As the first rocket shot ino he air he heard a familiar voice near him—Mary's, "Oh, moher, isn't it beautiful?"

She was sitting on the back seat of John Tracy's wagon beside her mother. Unconsciously her shoulders were straightened and her head thrown back. John Tracy, looking back at her, took his enjoyment reflected from her happy face. Once or twice, he leaned back and readjusted the light robe over her lap and let his hand linger a minute, unhindered.

"He looks like John Tracy, too, when John was young," muttered Adam Tooker with a grim smile, "an, thank goodness this girl looks like Mary! Mary!" He went up to the wagon and touched her arm, reaching up on tiptoe. "So you come over, you an Laviny? Good evenin', John! There's goin' to be quite a show ,they say, wuth your drivin' over."

A rocket or two went up overhead without their notice. An embarrassed silence possessed the little group. When Mary spoke at length ,there was a little quiver underlying the bravery of her voice, but she subdued it resolutely as she went on.

"Good evening, father!" she said. "Ain't you tired out standing on your feet so? I guess there's plenty of room for you to sit down beside John, isn't there, John? You can just as well as not."

"Why, yes," said John. "You jump right in, Mr. Tooker—jump right in!" he cried heartily. "I was just thinking what a pity it was to waste all his room in the middle of a crowd. You get right in!"

"Yes, do, Adam," ventured Mrs. Tooker timidly. "You look real tuckered out."

But with his foot on the wagon step Adam Tooker changed his mind and stepped heavily down again. He reached up a stout forefinger and gently prodded Mary's arm.

"No," he said gravely, though under his shaggy brows his eyes actually twinkled. "No; you get in ahead, Mary, with John. "I'll set with Lavinv on the back seat. I guess that'll even us up better.

And so "evened up," they sat and watched the rockets burst into stars over their heads and trail down fainter into obscurity. On the back seat perhaps a remembrance of other years—young, loving years—came to Adam Tooker, for once Lavinia's tired hand in its loose cotton glove was sure it felt a lingering, clumsy touch.

And on the front seat Mary Tooker's Independence Day was ending with a vista of happy, independent years for her and John.—Youth's Companion.

AN ALASKAN PHENOMENON

Great Glacier Moving at the Rate of Twelve Feet a Day

Juneau, Alaska, July 14.—The great glacier in Rainy Hollow, near Haines, Alaska, is moving at the prodigious rate of twelve feet a day. Huge masses of ice are falling with thunderous noise over the precipice where the glacier discharges.

Never before has such rapid extension of the ice rivers been known in the history of the world, it is said. The theory is that avalanches caused by earthquakes are responsible for the increased flow.

The National Geographic society has an expedition in Alaska studying the phenomenon.

Gotham May See Reno Bout

New York, July 14.—Moving pictures of the Jeffries-Johnson "fisticuff" at Reno may be exhibited in this city without violation of the law, in the opinion of the corporation counsel, whose ruling was requested by Mayor Gaynor.

Opium In Diplomatic Bag

Paris, July 14.—Captain Lapique, who was carrying a diplomatic dispatch bag from Pekin, was arrested at Marseilles for concealing opium in the bag. He was sentenced to eight days' imprisonment and to pay $1000 fine.

Awaiting Word From Moffat

Washington, July 14.—Having received no word from Consul Moffat at Bluefields for thirty-six hours the state department telegraphed to him for a report on the Nicaraguan situation.

AIRSHIP DISASTER IN GERMANY

Great Craft Dashes to Earth After Crash Like a Cannon In Mid-Air—Victims Well Known to All Germans Interested In Aerial Feats—Aviator In Command Won International Race at St. Louis and Other Events

Leichlingen, Rhenish Prussia, July 14.—The death here of Oscar Erbsloeh and his crew of four men in the half mile fall of their dirigible has cast a shadow of gloom all over Germany.

The outcome of this and other serious accidents is a likelihood that further attempts at establishing an aerial line for passenger service will be abandoned.

The great arishp made the ascent when there was scarcely a breath of air stirring. It had been planned to make a long trip, and the weather conditions gave promise of a delightful excursion.

For a time the Erbsloeh was lost to view. Later it emerged from the fog and the peasants below were startled by a report like that of a cannon, and raising their eyes saw the shapeless mass come shooting down from the clouds. The gondola was torn to bits and the motor buried itself beneath the surface of the ground.

The victims were men well known to all Germans interested in aerial feats, and Erbsloeh gained an international reputation when in 1907 at St. Louis he won the international cup in the distance race for balloons. His companions were Herr Toelle, a manufacturer, of Barmen, two engineers, Herr Kranz and Herr Hoeppe, and Herr Spicke, the motorman.

The Erbsloeh was constructed last year, and had had a dubious career. The first time it descended it crashed into a clump of trees, and its occupants narrowly escaped injury. A few days ago during a trial flight a propeller was broken. The balloon, which was of the non-rigid type, had just been made over preparatory to the establishment of a passenger service between Elberfeld and nearby points.

Experts who examined the wreckage declared that the benzine tank had burst. The rubber envelope had been torn to shreds and the bow collapsed.

Oscar Erbsloeh had made many daring and successful balloon flights. In the St. Louis aerial race, when he took from the United States to Germany the international cup, which had been won the year before by Lieutenant Lahm at Paris, he covered a distance of 876 miles. Starting at St. Louis in the balloon Pommern he landed at Asbury Park, N. J., two miles further from the point of ascent than his nearest competitor, M. Le-Blanc of France.

In February, 1909, Erbsloeh made a remarkable balloon trip across the Alps. His balloon was the Berlin, and it remained in the air for thirty hours, reaching a maximum altitude of about 18,000 feet. An average temperature of about 12 degrees below zero was experienced.

The death roll of aviators is lengthened to seventeen who have been killed since Sept. 17, 1908.

AEROPLANE WRECKED

Hamilton Escapes Injury When Machine Which He Borrowed Collapses

New York, July 14.—Charles K. Hamilton, counted one of the most daring and expert of American aviators, made an attempt to fly last night at Mineola, L. I., in a borrowed machine. He wrecked it, although he escaped without injury.

Hamilton was just about to rise when the running gear collapsed and the aeroplane fell in a snarl. At the moment of rising all the weight of the aeroplane falls on the two rear wheels, and it was these that gave way.

Brandenburgh Is Not Perturbed by His Nineteenth Arrest

New York, July 14.—Broughton Brandenburgh, the magazine writer, who got into trouble by selling a New York newspaper an article purported to have been written by Grover Cleveland, was arrested here last night, charged with prevailing upon a friend to indorse and cash a check which came back from the bank marked "N. G."

"This does not perturb me in the least," said Brandenburgh. "I have been arrested eighteen times before, and once more is nothing to get excited over."

Reporter Barred by Taft

Beverly, Mass., July 14.—Harry L. It is alleged that he violated an agreement.

Other Official Advisers of President Are Widely Scattered Throughout the Country—Standpat Republicans Revive Story That MacVeagh Is Soon to Retire—Assert That Presence In Cabinet Is Embarrassing

Washington, July 14.—Charles D. Hilles, assistant secretary of the treasury, finds himself sitting on the federal government lid. Without warning anybody of his plans, Postmaster General Hitchcock left the national capital and sailed yesterday from New York for Europe.

His departure left the federal machine without a cabinet officer on guard, and for several hours the various departments were trying to discover the responsible person. They finally decided that Hilles is the man.

The prospect is that every member of the cabinet will be absent from the capital until along toward the first of September. Secretary of State Knox is spending the summer at his farm in Pennsylvania. Secretary of War Dickinson is on his way to the Philippines. Secretary of the Navy Meyer is at his summer home in Canada. Secretary MacVeagh of the treasury has settled down for the summer at Dublin, N. H. Attorney General Wickersham and Secretary Nagel of the department of commerce and labor have started for Alaska. Secretary Ballinger is visiting the Indian reservations in Montana, and Secretary Wilson of the department of agriculture is somewhere in the forest reserves of the Rocky mountains. Postmaster General Hitchcock expects to be absent five or six weeks.

With the members of the cabinet so widely scattered, there seems to be small prospect of any government business being taken up, even by the president, for several weeks.

The national capital is at least interested in a revival of the story that Secretary MacVeagh is soon to retire. The secretary's closest friends here put no credence whatever in the report. They are somewhat positive in saying that when the secretary left here he had no thought of retiring.

The fact is that some of the old-time politicians in the party have never become reconciled to the appointment of MacVeagh. The report that started several months ago that he would have to retire was traced to these standpatter Republicans—and the general belief here is that the same element is responsible for the revival of the story.

One of the secretary's closest friends said it is, of course, possible that these men eventually may persuade the president to let MacVeagh go. Several of the elder Republican senators are in the cabal that is determined to force the secretary out. They assert that he is not a Republican and that his presence in the cabinet is bound to be embarrassing when the time come for the cabinet to do something in a quiet way toward helping to bring about the renomination of President Taft.

SYNOPSIS

(CHAPTER IX—Continued.)

She looked at him curiously. "Shall we walk on toward the house? I went down into the town thinking to meet my uncle," she explained, "but as I had a few errands, on account of a children's fete we are planning, reached the tavern after he had gone."

She stepped into the path leading from the churchyard; it was narrow, and she walked before him.

"The others went hunting," she said.

She stepped quickly from the byway into the main road. "There it is," she said, pointing with a small white finger.

He moved now at her side. At the entrance, broad, imposing, she paused. A thousand perfumes seemed wafted from the garden; the rustling of myriad wings fell on the senses like faint cadences of music.

Within the stately house, near a recessed window at the front, a man stood at that moment reading a letter:

Shall be down to see you soon. Case coming on; links nearly all complete. Involve a new and bewildering possibility. Have discovered the purpose of S.'s visit to the continent. It was—

Lord Ronsdale perused the words expectantly.

"So that was it," he said to himself slowly. "I might have known"—

Voices without caught his attention, he glanced quickly through the window. Jocelyn Wray and John Steele were walking up the marble steps.

CHAPTER X.

A CONTEST.

A FEW days passed. The usual round of pastimes inseparable from house parties served to while away the hours. Other guests arrived, one or two went. Lord Ronsdale had greeted John Steele perfunctorily; the other's manner was likewise mechanically courteous. It could not very well have been otherwise; a number of people were near.

A rainy spell put a stop to outdoor diversions. The second morning of the dark weather discovered two of the guests in the oak paneled smoking room of Strathorn House.

"Believe I shall run over to Germany very soon, Steele," said Forsythe to the lawyer.

"Indeed?"

"Yes; capital case coming on in the criminal courts there."

"And you don't want to miss it, Forsythe?"

"Not I! Weakness of mine, as you know. Most people look to novels or plays for entertainment; I find mine in the real drama, unfolded every day in the courts of justice."

John Steele watched a young lad approach outside. He waved a paper in his hand and called with easy familiarity to a housemaid in an open window above:

"Telegram from London, miss."

The silence that followed was again broken by Captain Forsythe's voice: "There are one or two features in this German affair that remind me of another case some years back—one of our own—that interested me."

"Ah?" The listener's tone was only politely interrogatory.

"A case in London—perhaps you have heard of it? The murder of a woman, once well known before the footlights, by a one time champion of the ring—the Frisco Pet, I think he was called. I once puzzled a bit over that one; investigated it somewhat on my own account, don't you know."

"In what way?" Steele's manner was no longer indifferent.

"Then it attracted you, too, as an investigator?" murmured the captain in a gratified tone. "For your book, perhaps?"

"Not exactly. But you haven't yet told me," in a keen, alert tone, "why you looked into it 'on your own account.' It seems simple, obvious."

"That is just it," said Captain Forsythe, rising. "It was perhaps a little too simple, too obvious!"

"You attended the trial of this fellow?"

"The last part of it; wasn't in England when it first came on, and what I heard of it raised some questions and doubts in my mind. However, I didn't think much more about the case until a good many months later, when chance alone drew my attention more closely to it. Was down in the country, when one night I happened to get on this almost forgotten case of the Frisco Pet, whereupon the landlord of the inn where I put up informed me that one of the villagers in this identical little town had been landlady at the place where the affair occurred."

"The woman who testified no one had been to her place that night except"— John Steele spoke sharply.

"This fellow? Quite so." Captain Forsythe walked up and down. "Now, I'd always had a little theory. Could never get out of my mind one sentence this poor, ignorant fellow uttered at the trial. 'Seems as if I could remember a man's face, a stranger's, that looked into mine that night, your lordship, but I ain't exactly cocksure.' 'Ain't exactly cocksure,'" repeated Captain Forsythe. "That's what caught me. Would a man not telling the truth be not quite 'cocksure,' or would he testify to the face as a fact?"

"H'm! Very interesting, Forsythe. Very ingenious. Quite plausible."

"The landlady's testimony excluded the face, made it a figment or an imagination disordered by drink." Captain Forsythe waved his hand airily.

"You went to see this woman?"

"Out of curiosity, and found she was, indeed, the same person. She seemed quite ill and feeble. I talked with her about an hour that day. Tried in every way to get her to remember she had possibly let in some other person that night, but"—

"But?"

"Bless you, she stuck to her story," laughed Captain Forsythe. "Couldn't move her an iota." One of the listener's arms fell to his side, his hand closed hard. "Quite bowled over my little theory, don't you know. Of course I told myself it didn't matter. The man convicted was gone—drowned."

NEW WIZARD OF THE AIR.

Oman Promises Wonders For His Gyroplane.

STARTS ON LAND OR WATER.

St. Louis Inventor Expects to Carry In His Monster Airship a Hundred Passengers at One Hundred Miles an Hour—Machine Can Stand Still at One Spot In the Air Indefinitely.

The incorporation of an aerial navigation company at St. Louis has revealed plans for a commercial passenger airship that rivals the wildest dreams of Jules Verne. Officials of the company declare that within a year they will have a ship that will carry up a hundred passengers in a forty mile wind and at a speed of 100 miles an hour.

The machine is the invention of J. W. Oman, formerly of San Antonio, Tex., but at present at St. Louis. One is in process of construction in the shops of the inventor at St. Louis. The inventor claims that his ship can start either from the land or water. He declares it will ascend straight into the air or can be launched in the manner of an aeroplane.

May Be Built In Any Size.

The new airship is called a gyroplane, so named from the fact that it is a combination of gyroscope, the helicopter and the aeroplane. Its promoters say it can be built in any size from a two man runabout or a seven passenger touring car to a monster of the air that will carry fifty or a hundred passengers.

"A thirty or forty mile breeze would be a help rather than a hindrance to our machine," said the inventor the other day. "We will maintain absolute equilibrium in anything short of a cyclone. The usual obstacles that prevent the flight of an ordinary airship will be as nothing to this machine of ours."

It is planned to construct machines that will maintain a regular service between cities and states and even countries.

Carries Four Huge Propellers.

The gyroscope and the helicopter are familiar principles in heavier than air navigation, but never before have they been applied in the manner employed by Oman. The model of his ship is fitted with four huge propellers, twelve feet in diameter, which may be used in turn for drawing the machine from the ground or carrying it through the air.

The machine has been inspected by government engineers and pronounced superior to all others, it is declared. Ten patents have been granted, covering almost every feature of the machine. The machine is to be constructed entirely of aluminium and macadamite and besides carrying four propellers is fitted with two engines.

The inventor asserts the machine can be made to stand still at one spot in the air for an indefinite time. "We could drop a thousand bombs on a warship from a height of two miles without moving a foot," he declared. Oman has studied aerial navigation twenty years.

The Alexandrian Library.

The library at Alexandria suffered plunderings on various occasions, but it remained practically intact until A. D. 650, when it was destroyed by the Saracens under orders of the Caliph Omar. Thus disappeared a noble collection that had endured some 930 years.

Galileo's Telescope.

Galileo's telescope, by which he discovered the satellites of Jupiter in January, 1610, is carefully preserved in the Museum of Physics and Natural History in Florence. Galileo's was the first practical telescope made.

HAPPY WOMEN

Plenty of Them in Quincy, and Good Reason for It.

Wouldn't any woman be happy,
After years of backache suffering,
Days of misery, nights of unrest,
The distress of urinary troubles,
She finds relief and cure?
No reason why any Quincy reader
Should suffer in the face of evidence like this:

Mrs. George L. Nott, 39 North Street, Quincy, Mass., says: "I have every reason for holding a high opinion of Doan's Kidney Pills. I was troubled a great deal by headaches and dizzy spells which were so seaere at times that I had to grasp something for support to keep from falling. My sight was also affected, spots often appearing before me and my back ached intensely. Hearing of Doan's Kidney Pills, I procured a supply at the Cox Drug Store and began their use. I was helped from the first and after I had taken the contents of five boxes, I was cured. Other members of my family have used this remedy with equally good results."

BRIEFS

Joseph Cappiferri of Water street has returned from a vacation in New Hampshire.

Carlo Bracchi of Franklin street will spend two weeks with relatives in Brockton.

Edward J. Parmenter and his daughter Alice are spending a two weeks vacation on the Maine coast.

Water street is now as muddy as it was dry and dusty before yesterday's shower.

Miss Ethel Randall of Spear street is confined to the house with tonsilitis.

Warren Edwards who has been making his home in Washington is in town on a few days business visit. He will return to Washington the latter part of the week.

Harold Curtis only son of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse F. Curtis of Upland road sailed Wednesday from Boston on the Devonian for a two months' trip abroad.

Two young men, Cole and Morrison by name, raced from Alpha hall to Quincy Point bridge and back last night, a distance of about four miles. The former finished in 24 minutes but the latter did not finish.

SPORTING CHAT.

Today the Copelands leave for Barre, Vt. for their series against the strong team representing that city. Like Quincy Barre has a considerable granite industry—in fact is almost entirely supported by it,—and there are numerous granite workers from Quincy working there who will be greatly interested in the games. The team leaves Quincy this afternoon and will play the first of the series Friday with a double header following on Saturday. The backers of the team are confident of winning at least two games and there's every reason to believe they will.

Saturdays Old Colony League game will be by far the most important and best attended of those yet played on the Water street grounds. Quincy and Randolph are tied for first and will play for the lead. Every player will be in the best of trim and both managers will use every trick known to the game to take the game. Randolph has a fast outfit but comparison gives Quincy the advantage and if the boys play in the form they have exhibited in the last few games the win should be Quincy's.

* * *

The Fore River Apprentices are without a game for Saturday. Hereafter Grethe will pitch and as Newcomb's hand is well he will receive. Boyle split his hand in last Saturday's game.

* * *

Fitzgerald of the Hardys was in a queer mixup. He was registered in the Granite City League by two teams and played with either one for some time. Finally to avoid complications he was asked to remain with one or the other and picked the Hardys.

* * *

Three weeks ago a protest was entered by a G. C. L. team. There is an advisory board to investigate such matters but they have not as yet been notified of the protest.

* * *

"Jip" Saunders of the Bigelows is a versatile player. He can cover any position and is a first rate pitcher.

* * *

A road map lighted by electricity has been invented for the use of automobiles.

GOOD PRIZES ARE OFFERED

Large Field of Yachts Entered for Open and Interclub Races

Prizes aggregating $100 in cash will be competed for by seven classes Saturday at the open and interclub yacht races under the auspices of the Quincy Yacht club. The classes that will compete are Class D. A. B. C. and S. and open and cabin power boats. Prizes of $8. $5. and $3. will be given in classes D. A. B. C. and S. and prizes of $5, $3, and $2, in the two power boat classes.

No prize fill be given a yacht that does not defeat a competitor and no second prize will be given unless three boats start and no third prize unless five yachts start.

The preparatory signal will be fired at 3 o'clock and the warning gun five minutes later. The open power boats will start at 3.10, the cabin power boats at 3.15 and the other classes at intervals of five minutes in the following order, A. C. D. B. S. The time limit is 3 hours.

John O. Hall is the chairman of the judges who will include J. J. Harland of the South Boston club, George H. Crawford of the Mosquito club, L. E. King of the Winthrop club, C. F. Mower of the Lynn club, W. J. Jones of the Wollaston club, R. J. Huntly of the Columbia club, Howard Gannett of the Squantum club and C. W. Chapin of the Cottage Park club.

A lunch will be served at the club house after the races.

CANNON WITH LIQUID SPRINGS IS SENSATION.

Wonderful Target Work Achieved by British Invention.

A new cannon with liquid springs, which is said to have achieved unprecedented results, is shortly to be delivered to the British war office from the Elswick firm of Sir W. E. Armstrong, Whitworth & Co. The experiments which have recently been carried out at Silloth, Cumberland, are said to have resulted in the weapon answering every call made upon it and to have more than realized the expectations of the inventors.

The gun is a 14.3 pounder, similar in make to the latest pattern breechloading guns, with the exception that in this latter springs are used in the recoil apparatus. These have been done away with completely in the new weapon, and a liquid, which is the firm's patent, and air have been substituted in the recoil cylinders.

By this means it has been proved possible for the gun to remain in the same position while ten shots are being fired. The gun needs only laying once to insure this feat, and while the experiments were in progress all the shots hit the object aimed at. In fact, five of the shots went through practically the same hole in the bullseye, a remarkable result, never achieved before in the annals of gunnery.

In place of the two recoil cylinders on the gun carriage which carries the running out rods and springs there are five chambers containing the liquid and air.

FULLER LIKED BOILED DINNER

Late Chief Justice Also Smoked Cheap Cigars.

The New England boiled dinner and other dishes, like pork and beans, boiled codfish and pumpkin pie, best appealed to his appetite. It was said in Washington that the Fuller Saturday night dinner was baked beans and nothing else, and this story is told:

One evening the chief justice, possibly forgetting that it was Saturday, asked a distinguished English jurist home to dinner with him. When the beans came on the Englishman promptly declined them. Mrs. Fuller showed some embarrassment, whereupon the Englishman amiably said: "Never mind. I'll make it up in the next course." "But, good Lord," exclaimed the chief justice, "there isn't any other course!" And there wasn't.

In addition to being a very small eater, the chief justice was a moderate smoker of modestly priced cigars. He was said to smoke the same kind of cigars, as far as they were obtainable, that he smoked when he was struggling hard to establish a living law business in Chicago in the old days. He said he was attached to these cheap cigars by ties of sentiment and tender recollection and that nothing else would taste so good to him.

LONDON DROPS TEDDY BEAR.

Caesar Dogs, Modeled on King's Pet, Now the Rage.

The Teddy bear has been supplanted in London by Caesar, the late king's dog, who has been reproduced in toy form as the newest plaything for children. He has been copied as faithfully as possible with his rough coat made of plush and all his joints movable. Attached to his collar is a medallion with the inscription "I Am Caesar," which King Edward had engraved on the silver medallion the original Caesar always wore fastened to his silver collar.

Meanwhile the real Caesar is quite unconscious of his fame and is resting at Sandringham until he goes with Queen Alexandra to Denmark. He has settled down once more to an ordinary existence and consents to eat and drink, thanks to the ministrations of the veterinary surgeon, who has been untiring in his efforts to keep the little dog alive and well.

Straw Rides In Autos.

Automobile straw rides are Washington's new hot weather fad. Two gasoline trucks of high power were seen on the Washington-Baltimore pike recently on their way to the Monumental City. The usual quota of cow bells, watermelons and giggling girls were aboard.

DAVIS IS ATHLETICS' STANDBY

Mack's First Sacker One of Best Players and Field Generals.

There is just one individual of Mack persuasion, not even excepting the incomparable Eddie Collins, whom the Philadelphia American league team cannot spare without irreparable loss.

That man is Harry Davis, Mack's captain, who today is one of the best all around first basemen in the fast set. Hal Chase of New York is sprier and younger in years than Davis, but for actual good to a team Davis is the king of all fast basesmiths in the big show.

The oldest man on the team, Davis is today one of its leading pacemakers in batting and run getting, while, in addition, he is the whip of the club.

Davis' worth to the Athletics cannot be found in the batting and fielding statistics issued each year by President Johnson. His value does not end in driving a brother Mackman home with a base hit, although he performs this office as much as anybody else on the team.

It was Davis who aided Mack in tutoring the young players into stars and who is keeping them on their toes all through the game. He is to the team on the field what Mack is to them on the bench. Mack on the bench cannot get into the play as it comes up. In Davis he has a man who carries out Mack ideas on the field. Mack on the bench and Davis on the field form the combination that has put the Athletics where they are today.

There is only one first baseman who excels him in fielding. Hal Chase is the greatest fielding first baseman of the age. Davis is the equal of Chance and the superior of all others. When his batting ability and generalship are added to his mechanical ability it is easy to see why he is often called the king of them all.

For nine consecutive years Davis has batted hard and conscientiously for the cause of Mack. Not one season in the nine has he failed to show uncommon ability. If the Athletics win the championship this season it will be mainly due to this reason—Mack on the bench and Davis on the field.

SAY OUR HORSES CAN'T STAY

Englishmen Admit Their Speed, but Deny They Have Stamina.

Commenting on the poor performance of the American colt Sir Martin in the Gold cup at Ascot, where he finished nowhere, the English critics say again that Yankee racers have great speed, but can't stay. Sir Martin's rating last year was a most peculiar one. In the Derby he fell just before reaching Tattenham corner and not only put himself out of the running, but it has been thought ever since that he actually prevented William IV. from winning.

How much there is in the theory cannot now be determined, but it is a fact that William IV. was interfered with by Sir Martin, and yet he finished in third place, only half a length away from Minoru, the winner. The subsequent running of Sir Martin as a three-year-old gave ground for a calculation that he should have beaten everything in the Derby except Bayardo. In last year's Cambridgeshire Sir Martin ran a fine race when, having the worst of the weight by long odds, he was third to Christmas Daisy and Mustapha. As the race came off in very heavy ground it was probably not to his liking or he might have done better.

The day following, when the ground had dried up and was much better for going, the American colt put up a record performance in the Durham handicap. He won with the top weight, but was not seen in public again until he won the Coronation cup at Epsom. This event was over the mile and a half course, and Sir Martin put up a capital performance.

Commenting upon the quality of American horses, Vigilant in the Sportsman says:

"It is remarkable, however, that horses bred in America have generally been distinguished for speed rather than stamina, though there have been notable exceptions."

Ballots That Ask Fool Questions.

The Short Ballot organization, which advocates making all little offices in state and city governments appointive instead of elective, so as to make politics easy for every citizen to master, has issued a list of eccentric instances of offices that are elective by popular vote.

For instance, in Indiana the voters of the state are invited to select a good man for state statistician and another for state geologist. Considering how the legislature frets over the difficulty of making people understand how to make out their ballots correctly, it is a curious blindness which overlooks the difficulty the people must have in determining which candidate is the greater expert in technical jobs like these.

Colorado, Oregon and Washington elect the state printer.

In Texas the ballots make the people decide who shall be inspector of hides and animals. In seven states the ballots carry the office of insurance commissioner. Dairy and food commissioner is an elective office in Ohio. In South Dakota attempts are being made to make the warden of the state prison and the superintendent of the state insane hospital elective instead of appointive.

In Pennsylvania the men who count the votes are elected in each district. A few years ago the triumphant verdict of the people in a certain ward favored one Clarence Boyd for this office. Years later it developed in court that no such man existed, and the people asked themselves, "How many such dummy names are we electing each year?"

The governor of Montana not long ago sent a message to the legislature advocating the amendment of the constitution to make the state mine inspector, state veterinarian and state printer elective, "thus to remove," he pleaded, "the last element of monarchy from our beloved state."

After all, the most foolish ballot query of all is the common one "Who shall be coroner?"

To all these foolish questions no one but the politician finds it worth while to give a serious answer. Little and technical administrative officers are elected, but never selected, by the people. Their presence on the ballot makes "machines" absolutely necessary to handle the business of nomination in the absence of any real public sentiment in the matter. If electing a host of officials instead of just the ones at the top has really anything to do with democracy, what must we think of the federal government with only three elective offices and 300,000 appointive ones? The short ballot movement, which seeks to reduce the number of elective offices, so that plain, ordinary, busy citizens can know what they are doing on election day, proclaims that the federal plan is more democratic than one which by electing too many makes effective citizenship a difficult profession.

The Short Ballot.

Americans rarely realize that our custom of electing ten or twenty public officials at one time is absolutely unique among the nations.

Of course our people do not really select each of the ten or twenty; they only elect them. No electorate on earth ever had in mind at one time so many favorites. So the politicians do the real selecting beforehand by pasting a trademark label, such as "Republican" or "Democrat," on certain men, and the people, if they like some one prominent candidate who bears it, will vote for every one else with that same label. That is why we get good mayors and bad aldermen. And that is why the politicians, with their strength united on specific programs for minor nominations, can elect rascals while the clumsy, well meaning public is making up its mind about the head of the ticket.

In a village it is easy for the electorate to choose a host of local officers, because the people know the candidates. In a city or state it is easy for the people to choose a few officials, because they can learn to know the candidates by hearsay. But when the number becomes large the avenues of information become choked, and the public, having no definite ideas of its own, votes blindly by the trademark labels, and the boss who attaches the indispensable labels to the candidates becomes master.

The number of elective officials must be reduced till it comes within the scope of effective public discussion. Passing the candidates through the limelight a few at a time will make possible real selection and real government by the people. The cure is summed up in the words "short ballot." "The long ballot is the politician's ballot; the short ballot is the people's ballot."

The most harmful of our many political superstitions is the common notion that there is something democratic about electing a multitude of officials. That isn't democratic—it's *un*democratic, because it makes citizenship a profession and thereby disbars the bulk of the people from effective participation. Democracy means control by the people, not always election by the people.

Tell an Englishman that we hold twenty elections in one day and he will say we are fools to attempt it. Tell him that we even have to have a short ballot movement organized for the purpose of explaining to the people that the plan isn't working well and he will be sure we are fools.

Respond to Blue Eyes.

"Every little while physiologists come to the front with some advantage accruing to people who have blue eyes," said the city salesman. "Well, I discovered a point that they have never mentioned. A jeweler told me. He is manager of the jewelry department of a big store. I applied to him for a situation for my wife's cousin.

"'What's the color of her eyes?' he asked.

"'Brown,' I said.

"'Bring her down and I will take a look at her,' he said, 'but I am afraid she won't do. People with a certain shade of blue eyes make the best jewelry salesmen. Many customers who buy jewelry want some one to try it on so they can get the effect of the stones when worn. There is something about deep blue eyes that brings out the best lights in most jewels. Take notice and you will find that two-thirds of the jewelry salesmen in New York have blue eyes.'"—New York Times.

QUINCY PICKPOCKET ARRESTED IN BROCKTON

Arthur Smith Held by Brockton Officers for Quincy Police

He is Alleged to Have Robbed W. J. Barry on a Wollaston Car

Arthur Smith who is alleged to be one of the light fingered gentry and who is wanted in Quincy for picking the pocket of W. J. Barry on a street car early in March was arrested as a suspicious character at Brockton Wednesday and was held for trial until Saturday.

The circus was at Brockton Wednesday and the police inspectors picked up three suspicious characters and locked them up for safe keeping. Thursday Inspector Sherlock of the Boston Police was called in to look the men over. He immediately recognized Smith as a man wanted in Quincy for picking the pocket of W. J. Barry.

On March 12 the day of the launch of the submarine Salmon Inspector McKay and Officer Larkin arrested three alleged pickpockets on the car which brought the crowd from the launching. The car was crowded that day and the two officers riding on the rear platform had their suspicions attracted to three men. One jumped off near Scammell street where he was arrested by Lieut. McKay and the other two were captured when they left the car in City Square.

The men proved to be James Grant alias John Carney, William Kelley alias William Howard, alias Big Nose Brown and James Ryan. The latter had seen the other two men and Smith together outside the Fore River yards and thinking they were reporters remained near them in the hopes of getting in to see the launch. Smith got away at that time.

When the cases were called in court the following Monday they were identified by Barry as the men who relieved him of his money on an electric car at Wollaston.

The Ryan boy was held as a witness and the other two for the grand jury. The grand jury found an indictment against Carney, Howard and Smith.

Carney is now in the Massachusetts reformatory and Howard is in the states prison at Charlestown.

Up to the present time the police have never been able to find any trace of Smith as he has crossed Quincy from his calling list. When the circus was in Quincy Tuesday it was thought some of the light fingered gentry might be present and a sharp lookout was kept for them. They have probably learned that Quincy is a good place not to visit for no one was apprehended and no losses by pickpockets have been reported.

As soon as Smith was identified by Inspector Sherlock the Quincy police were notified and when Smith is arraigned in court at Brockton Saturday morning Inspector McKay will be on hand to give him the glad hand upon his release. He will probably be arraigned in court Monday morning.

ST. MARY'S LAWN PARTY.

The committee in charge of the Annual Lawn Party of the St. Mary's Parish will meet this evening and the final reports will be received from them as to the various details for tomorrow's affair at the grounds of the Parochial residence on Crescent street. From the present indications the affair will be the best of its kind ever held in this city. The various committees have worked faithfully and well on the matter and from the advance sale of tickets the crowd will be a record-breaker.

The athletic sports and the amusements for the children will be in order in the afternoon and the list of events are as follows; for the boys, 75 yards dash, 100 yards dash, potato race, three-legged race, and sack race; for the girls, 50 yards dash, raisin race, egg race, candle race, potato race. The refreshments have been unsparingly supplied and the little ones are assured of an ample sufficiency of ice cream, candy and everything which goes to make the youngster's paradise on earth.

The evening will be devoted to dancing, concert and an illumination. Joyce's orchestra will furnish the dreamy waltzes, dizzy two-steps, gliding schottisches and merry quadrilles on the large dance-board. The grounds and booths will be handsomely illuminated and decorated and the ladies, handsomel y gowned and smiling will preside over the various tables.

ON THE WAY HOME.

The submarine Salmon left Hamilton Bermuda on the last leg of her voyage of 2,000 miles on Wednesday and should arrive in New York this week. She is being convoyed by the tug Underwriter.

URGED PUBLICITY.

Among the speakers at the leather men's outing at Salem Willows on Thursday was Hon. Alfred W. Donovan of Rockland, president of the Boston Boot and Shoe club and he urged using printer's ink and the need of publicity. He said in part:

"The shoemakers and tanners of New England have been all too slow in recognizing the importance to their industry of that scientific and persistent publicity we hear so much about in the business world today— the application of that drop of ink which makes millions think—but I am glad to say that they have at last begun to think of turning over a new leaf.

"Never in the history of our trade has there been such an awakening as that which has taken place during the last 12 months, led by the progressive New England Shoe and Leather Association, aided by some of our other grand trade organizations. A new sun seems to have risen above our business horizon, and so strenuous have been the efforts of our leading association to arouse the New England trade from its lethargy, to awaken it to the possibilities of domestic and foreign trade extension ,to arouse it to some of dangers that threaten it from both within, and without, to inculcate in the minds of its members the value of printers' ink judiciously applied, to emphasize the 'Made in New England' doctrine and to broaden the vision of us who, it is to be feared, have been bordering on commercial narrow-mindedness, that not only the entire shoe and leather industry of America but that of some of the lands across the sea have been constrained to 'sit up and take notice.'

"As has been so well said, it is about time we found out whether we are headed for the East or for the West.

"We have got to do our merchandizing and our advertising on the big broad scale that marks the operations of our competitors. We have got to set forth New England quality and New England prestige in the advertising pages of the newspapers, trade journals and magazines. We must blazon our supremacy as shoemakers upon the very cases that carry our footwear to the four corners of the earth. It is a shame that New England manufacturers, since the Civil War, have permitted three billions of the four billion cases of shoes they have produced in that period to go forth without a single identifying mark."

Y. M. C. A. NOTES.

C. M. Gifford, physical director of the Y. M. C. A., and who is in charge of the playground, has narrowly escaped pneumonia and is confined to his home.

The twenty-five boys who went with boys' work director Chester Clee to camp two weeks ago will be home tomorrow. They break camp tomorrow morning and will be home about noon.

MISUNDERSTANDING.

There has been some misunderstanding in regard to the forthcoming article on Quincy in the New England Magazine. While the presidents of the different associations have expressed themselves of the belief that the article would be a good thing for Quincy, they did not agree to take any certain number of copies.

—"My Daddy Is a Grand Old Man" was the spirit of special sermons by several pastors in Spokane churches on the occasion of Fathers' Day, June 19, and many endorsed the movement, originated by Mrs. J. B. Dodd of this city, by wearing red roses in their coat lapels. Mayor Nelson S. Pratt declined to issue a proclamation, calling upon the residents of Spokane to observe the day, giving as his reason that he has no desire to stand sponsor. "Besides," he added, "we already have enough special days." This, however, did not deter Mrs. Dodd in her ambition. She broached the plan to a number of ministers of the gospel and others, asking: "With all due respect to mother, what is home without a father?" The answer came full and strong: "Come to think of it, we're some pumpkins after all. We've been overlooked for many years. Let's take our light from under the bushel. We'll celebrate! We'll have a real holiday." They did and in doing they placed "dad" upon a high pedestal, not as "the old man," but as father, the head of the house, king for a day. Mrs. Dodd is working to extend the movement all over the nation.

RENO PICTURES NOT FOR QUINCY

Mayor Shea Will Prohibit Fight Pictures in Quincy

Mayor Shea said Thursday evening that he should use his best efforts to prevent the Johnson-Jeffries moving fight pictures from being shown in Quincy. In doing this the Mayor has fallen in line with Mayors of other Municipalities and will carry out the wishes of many people who look upon the exhibition of such pictures as having a tendency to lower the moral standing of the community.

The Mayor has been appealed to by numerous citizens to prevent these pictures being shown in Quincy. He has also received several petitions in regard to the question including those from the young peoples societies of the Bethany and First Presbyterian churches.

Formerly all licenses for public halls and amusements were granted by the City Council. The law was changed a few years ago however placing the granting of such licenses solely in the hands of the Mayor excepting the licenses for Sunday amusements which are issued by the state police. There are several moving picture places in the city that hold week day licenses and a word to them from the Mayor in regard to these pictures will probably be all that is necessary. Should his request in this matter be refused it would be but a simple matter to revoke the license.

When seen Thursday evening Mayor Shea said that while some of the Boston daily papers were running pictures of the fight he did not believe it a good thing to have moving pictures of the fight shown in Quincy as he agreed with the churches and religious societies that it would have a tendency to lower the moral standing of the city and he would therefore use his best endeavor to prevent their being shown in Quincy.

GRAND PICNIC PLANNED.

The 28 trade unions of the city are planning for a grand parade and celebration to be held in Quincy on Labor day, Sept. 5. William Kelley has been elected as president and Charles W. Hanscom, secretary of the general committee and they are busy getting the general plan into shape. As now outlined the several unions will march from their headquarters to City Square thence to New Downer Landing, where the outing will be held. Here there will be field and water sports, base ball, dancing, boating, etc.

Good prizes will be offered for the several athletic events and a large number of entries are assured. Another meeting of the general committee will be held July 25.

MALDEN'S CENSUS.

The municipal census of Malden shows the population of that city to be 43,854 an increase of 2328 during the past year.

WANTED TO JOIN CIRCUS.

Little Nettie Gale dazzled by the brilliancy of the show, and filled with a desire to become a performer, ran away from her home, and attempted to ride to Brockton with the circus Wednesday. Her father found a note which she left, and caught the train just in time.

OFF TO BARRE.

BODY BLOW TO PATENT BOOZE

Sale of More Than 200 Patent Medicines Prohibited

People who reside in dry towns and who have depended on perfumed and patent medicines etc, with which to appease the appetite for stimulent will have to look for some other substitute for the internal revenue bureau at Washington has put the law on more than 200 preparations which hereafter may only be handled by drug stores only after a government liquor license is paid.

These preparations, including many well known because of their wide advertisement, were examined by the chemists of the treasury department and held to be insufficiently medicated to render them unfit for use as a beverage or take them out of the class of alcoholic beverage.

Treasury department officials said they believed that many of these preparations were concocted mainly for sale in "dry territory" where the prohibition laws made it impossible to obtain legally anything with a liquor flavor. It is estimated that there are 40,000 druggists in the United States, slightly more than half of whom pay the $25 yearly special tax which permits them to sell the preparations involved. Other stores which continue to vend these mixtures now will be required to pay the tax, and the United States treasury will be enriched accordingly.

Sec. MacVeagh has issued an order fixing a standard of medication to govern the chemists of the internal revenue bureau in passing on the question of the amount of alcohol that may be used in medicinal preparations in the future, so that they may come within the requirements of law. Alcohol will be permitted only to the amount necessary to hold in solution all medicine used or to extract or preserve the same. Each prescribed dose of a mixture must contain a normal dose for an adult of drugs or medicines of recognized therapeutic value.

BROCKTON'S TAX.

A decrease of 20 cents in the tax rate from last year is what the Brockton assessors announced Thursday, that is the rate for 1910 is $20.-30. The total valuation of the city is $43,354,541.75 an increase of $1,152,-650 from last year.

—Henry Abrahams of the Boston C. L. U. said a friend recently pointing out a chandelier said: "Abrahams, you cant find an American laborer who can make every part of that chandelier. Such a laborer you'll have to find in Europe." The speaker told the N. E. A. that this story pointed out one weakness of our labor education."—Boston Record.

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

Chief of Police Pierce of Milton has the right idea of making his department helpful to the residents of that town. He has a notice in the local paper requesting residents closing their house while away to notify him that the department may have oversight of the property.

Circus day in Brockton brought pleasure to some who never expected to attend a circus again. Mayor Clifford asked for and received tickets for every inmate of the City Farm. All the inmates who desired and who were physically able to attend the big show were encouraged to do so and carriges were used to convey several of them to the grounds. Good for Brockton's Mayor.

Quincy people are either very sympathetic and generous or very gullible as witness the man arrested Thursday for begging at Quincy Point and having in his possession over $150 handed out to him presumably to buy a wheel chair with. Without regard to who the chair was for, for without investigating people deliberately handed over their money and thereby encouraged laziness and crime.

When able bodied men and women beg from door to door and are too lazy to do honest labor they should not be encouraged to continue their career. Promiscuous giving is conceded by philanthropists to do much harm and it also helps to make criminals.

Many women say they cannot be so hard-hearted as to turn any one from their door hungry but do these women realize that every tramp they feed or give money to injures themselves and the recipient for a really poor or self-respecting person would not beg from house to house and the chances are they may return the kindness by burglarizing the house later on.

If in doubt refer the object of charity to the Overseer of the Poor, the Women's club, or King's Daughters and if the case is needy it will receive attention.

Better be hard hearted than encourage crime. There are too many back door visitors about this summer and doors should be kept fastened and suspicious people watched. Also have out a friendly eye for the neighbor's vacant house.

DRIFT OF OPINION.

With the advent of the circus everybody sits up and takes a little notice. Why? Because, largely, it takes us all back for a moment to boyhood days. A man doesn't expect to see anything especially new; the circus has run for a long time and has drawn the earth with a finetooth comb in the hunt for attractions, and genuine novelty would be hard to discover. But the elephant still goes round, and the smell of the sawdust is there, and here and there in the menagerie it is possible that one may find something in the animal line that is not precisely what one found as a boy; and there is pleasure for old eyes in watching the little folks enjoying every minute, and experiencing the same wild joy that we did twenty-thirty, forty or fifty years ago. We still listen a minute to the barker outside the sideshow tent, hoping that we may find something that is novel in his hallyhoo. We still take a chance, perhaps in the beauty show, to see if they raise them any prettier in South Boston and in lower New York then they raised them thirty years ago. The peanut boy, the lights, the "gentlemanly announcer" risking his soul by telling the audience that "the gentlemanly attendants will now pass among you for the last time this evening selling tickets for the unequalled concert that follows the show;" the plunge outside into stygian gloom after it's over, and perhaps the visit to the railroad yards to see a train made up and the animals loaded on board; after all the circus is pretty good fun, isn't it? And the beauty of it is that whether the circus is first-class or just ordinary, you get just about so much fun out of it at every visit.—Brockton Enterprise.

Recently a boy of 19 threw a stone at a moving train of cars, broke a window and injured a passenger. He was arrested and taken to court, where he pleaded guilty and was fined $50 and given a term in prison. He expected to pay a small fine by reason of his plea of guilty, but when he heard the sentence he, for the first time, realized that he had committed a crime of some magnitude. By the time he has served out his sentence and paid his fine, or worked it out, he will understand that stoning railroad trains is not a diversion that pays. If other judges who have to pass upon such crimes would be equally firm when sentences are handed out there would be fewer instances of this form of amusement that children and youths indulge in. Generally the ones who throw stones at trains are young children, but occasionally those of older growth are guilty of the practice. This latter class will take note of what befell the youth above referred to and restrain the evil impulse to injure property and persons. —Lynn Item.

The Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis states that $15,000,000 is spent annually in this country on "fake" consumption cures, and that "for this sum the victims receive nothing in return, but are often permanently injured and in many cases deprived of the chance for a real cure." Drugs are of no benefit in consumption. Rest, nourishment, fresh air and sunlight compose the only prescription that fits the case.

It will not be to the credit of our government or very flattering to our judicial common-sense if the self-confessed murderer Charlton is allowed to go free. If he is sane he should be punished for his brutal crime whether Italy requests his extradition or not; if he is insane he should be confined where he will have no opportunity to further exercise his mania. WHITE DECLARES HE IS STILL MAYOR

Makes Appointment and Issues Licenses In Prison Cell

Lawrence, Mass., July 15.—The mayor's office of this city is at present located in cell 25 of the Lawrence county jail. In this cell Mayor White occupied the first hours of his three-year sentence by signing half a dozen licenses for moving picture shows and reappointing License Commissioner Mitchell.

The 85,000 citizens of this city are in a turmoil of excitement and are awaiting with breathless anxiety the decision of City Solicitor Murphy as to whether Mayor White is to continue to administer the affairs of the city from his cell.

"I am the mayor of Lawrence;" declared White. "I emphatically intend to administer the affairs of Lawrence from my cell, and to follow out all my duties as mayor."

It is stated in Lawrence, and in Boston as well, that the attorney general of Massachusetts is to be asked to render a decision.

Moving Picture Syndicate to Fight Edict of Mayor of Boston

Boston, July 15.—Notice has been served upon Mayor Fitzgerald by a representative of the moving picture syndicate which has control of the Jeffries-Johnson fight pictures, that the syndicate intends to fight Mayor Fitzgerald's edict against the showing of the fight pictures in this city.

The representative in question has informed the mayor that his syndicate is determined to show the pictures in this city and also to fight the matter out to the bitter end in the courts if they are interfered with.

Mayor Fitzgerald's reply was: "Go ahead and fight if you want to. You will find us all prepared to make things interesting for your company."

Gets Divorce and Heavy Alimony

Albany, July 15.—Alimony of $5000 a year, the custody of their only child, Barclay, 5 years old, with a $1000 allowance for his support, was granted along with an interlocutory decree of divorce to Mrs. Anna C. McClure from Archibald J. McClure, the well known society man, in the supreme court at Kingston.

Shook Discharged by Court

Boston, July 15.—After a hearing in the municipal court Judge Wentworth discharged Arthur G. Shook, aged 42, a choir singer, who had been accused of fraudulently obtaining entertainment at an inn and evading boardbills.

Payne-Aldrich Tariff Bill Condemned as Unjust and Illogical—General Revision of Tariff Downward Is Demanded—"Despotism" Known as Cannonism Should Be Rendered Impossible—High License Favored

St. Albans, Vt., July 15.—The Green Mountain Democracy gathered in St. Albans to select party candidates for governor and lieutenant governor of Vermont. In addition the Democratic conventions of the First and Second congressional districts of the state were held here during the day.

The convention was one of the most harmonious in the history of the party. The platform says in part:

"We condemn the Payne-Aldrich tariff bill as unjust and illogical and demand a general revision of the tariff downward. We particularly commend the independent Republicans and Democrats in the present congress for their attempts to defeat this act.

"We favor an honest trial of reciprocity with all the world and particularly with our neighbor, the Dominion of Canada.

"We condemn that despotism on the part of the speaker of the national house of representatives known as Cannonism. To prevent this form of tyranny we favor an amendment to the United States constitution, if necessary, which will render this method of overriding the rights of the citizens absolutely impossible. We lament the fact that members of the Vermont delegation in congress were not found voting with those who have been successful in ridding the country for awhile at least of the abuses known as Cannonism.

"We condemn the present federal corporation tax law and recommend its repeal.

"We demand the passage by the next Vermont legislature of a resolution ratifying the proposed amendment to the United States constitution providing for the levying of an income tax."

On state issues, the principal planks were one declaring that the present high license liquor law had resulted in great good to the state and one demanding the passage by the next legislature of laws reforming the present methods of taxation so as to wipe out the so-called double taxation.

Following the presentation of the resolutions and their adoption by the convention, the following state ticket was nominated by acclamation:

Governor, Charles D. Watson, St. Albans; lieutenant governor, Rev. John B. Reardon, Springfield; secretary of state, C. L. McMahon, Stowe; state treasurer, John W. Thurston, Island Pond; auditor of accounts, F. F. Platt, Brattleboro; attorney general, H. C. Shurtleff, Montpelier.

FOOD SUPPLY IS SHORT

People of Campbellton Are Bravely Bearing Their Misfortune

Campbellton, N. B., July 15.—Major Marsereau says that in Campbellton they have provisions sufficient for only two more days, and asks taht arrangements be made for a further supply at once.

This telegram has been turned over to the proper authorities here, and arrangements will be made at the earliest possible moment to supply the need.

There are still hundreds of people without shelter, but with the arrival of 500 tents from the military stores the situation will be changed.

With all their misfortune and desolation, the thousands of destitute are cheerful and not complaining, being thankful that they are not in worse plight.

Farmer Adopts Novel Method to End His Life With Shotgun

Williamsburg, Mass., July 15.—The body of Frank W. Wells, a prosperous farmer, was found in a field half a mile from his home, a shotgun lying beside the body and a bullet wound in the breast.

Wells had removed his right shoe and evidently fired the shot by using his toe to move the trigger.

No cause, other than a recent illness, is known for the act. Wells was 40 years old and leaves a widow, one daughter and two sons.

NEW YORK OUT-VENICES FAMOUS WATERWAY CITY.

More Islands, Rivers and Canals About Manhattan.

Venice, the queen of the Adriatic, with her 157 interlacing canals that form 118 islands, is less of a water city than is the metropolis of America, for New York has a greater navigable water front than any other city in the world. The waters within the boundaries of Venice could be swallowed up by the currents that ebb and flow within New York and make no perceptible addition to them. New York has just as much moonshine and lots more water, and, though the guitar and musical voice of the gondolier are not heard, other voices, less romantic, are heard on almost every sort of craft that floats in water.

New York's islands are more in number than those of Venice, and in Jamaica bay alone are as great possibilities as the lagoon of Venice ever presented for a beautiful city—still remaining possibilities. If Venice were placed in the center of that bay there would be more expanse of water around it than there is now in the entire lagoon of Venice.

In New York city are 204 miles of navigable water front, from the unpretentious kills of Staten Island to the great Atlantic that washes the Coney Island shore and beaches of Rockaway. Much of the city is islands, and what is not are great peninsulas more than half surrounded by water.

Richmond alone has nearly forty miles of shore line, and Manhattan has thirty more miles where bows of the greatest ships that float can reach over the land. Queens and the Bronx have fifty miles, which embrace the westerly end of Long Island sound, and the winding shores of Brooklyn, with the great Jamaica bay, make up the rest.

SOBER CONGRESS IN ANDORRA

Parliament of Tiny State Ruled by Tradition.

The parliamentary procedure of Andorra, the tiny independent state which lies sandwiched between France and Spain, is of the quaintest kind. Parliament having been called for a certain day, the honorable members arrive in groups on horses or mules shod with the usual Andorran footgear—white corded sandals.

The Sasa de la Valls serves at the same time for palace, parliament and prison, not to mention stables for the members' steeds. After stabling the animals on the ground floor the members ascend to the hall of deliberations, change their sandals for shoes and put on the official costume—a long black sort of robe and a huge three cornered hat. These when not in use hang in a row on pegs at the bottom of the hall.

The next proceeding is mass in the chapel, tiny and bare, dedicated to the Holy Ghost; then comes a meal served on an oaken table without a cloth and eaten off antique pewter plates. Between every two members stands a huge porron, and each drinks in turn out of this pitcher. In this home of archaicism everything is done according to tradition. Even the daily menu is the same today as it was centuries ago.

AUSTRALIA FIGHTS HERB.

St. John's Wort Spreads Over 20,000 Farming Acres.

Just thirty years ago a woman at Bright, Victoria, planted in her garden a few seeds of St. John's wort sent her from the old country. The woman's intention was to have one or two of the plants at hand for medicinal purposes. The hardy weed, however, soon spread beyond the garden, and before any one had grasped the magnitude of the evil it had been carried by cattle along all the main stock routes and jumped the Victorian watershed into Gippsland.

It has now completely taken possession of something like 20,000 acres of agricultural land, and the agricultural department of Victoria is spending thousands of pounds in the endeavor to eradicate it, some of the methods tried costing nearly £50 an acre.

AERIAL FREIGHT LINE HERE.

Arizona Aviator to Haul Machinery In Monoplane.

Dr. J. J. P. Armstrong has contracted with Arthur Williams, an aviator of Douglas, Ariz., to convey placer mining machinery from Douglas to a property in the Chihuahua mountains, in Mexico. The distance is about 300 miles. The machinery is such that it can be carried only in 100 pound lots.

Williams owns and operates a monoplane. This is probably the first contract calling for the commercial use of a heavier than air machine.

NORTHFIELD CONFERENCE.

The Young Women's Conference at East Northfield, which was concluded Wednesday evening, has been remarkably successful. The Rev. J. Stuart Holden of London, who, it was feared at first would be unable to speak, gave a strong series of talks toward the end of the Conference. The Rev. Ozora Davies of Chicago, Miss Margaret Slattery of the Fitchburg Normal School, Rev. George S. Cady of Dorchester and Rev. John McDowell of Newark were the other principal speakers. Large delegations from girls' preparatory schools and various churches made a sum of delegates over 400. The Conference was enlivened in the afternoon by baseball games, a grand Field Day, a tennis tournament and many drives. The tennis tournament was very close, being finally won by Miss Edith White of the New York City Missions, a former champion.

The Home Missionary Conference opened Thursday with an address by Congressman William S. Bennett of New York, now at the head of a special commission on Naturalization.

The dates of the remaining Conference are:—Women's Home Missionary Conference, July 14-20; Summer School for Sunday School Workers, July 15-22; Summer School for Women's Foreign Missionary Societies, July 21-28; General Conference of Christian Workers, August 4-21; Bible Study Courses and Special Lectures, August 23d to about October 21st.

WOMEN DEMAND SENSATIONALISM

Japanese Editor Solves American Newspaper Secrets.

STUDIES AFTERNOON EDITION.

Kokumin Shinbun to Have One, So Chief Circles Globe to Study Methods—New York and Berlin Papers Local, While London and Tokyo Journals Are General In News.

Women are responsible for the sensationalism of American papers. The fact has been divulged after a world study of the principal journals by G. Date, editor of the Kokumin Shinbun, Tokyo. Mr. Date is a shrewd, painstaking observer. His paper is a morning publication. It contemplates starting an evening edition.

Wherefore Mr. Date started around the world to find out just how other countries made afternoon papers. He went across Siberia to St. Petersburg, thence to Berlin, London, Zurich, Poland, the Danube district in Austria, Vienna, Paris and back to London. After studying papers in these centers he came to the United States recently, and he has been an exceedingly busy man during that period.

English Papers Not Local.

"The papers in London," said he, "differ from the papers in New York. They have a general circulation throughout the kingdom. You have so many centers that your papers are local and pay little attention to anything outside of your own neighborhoods. Berlin is like New York. The papers are confined to local matters because the government is a confederation like yours and there are many centers.

"Our situation is more like that of the English. We have the second circulation in the empire, printing 180,000 copies a day. Of these more than 100,000 papers go outside of the city into the provinces. We are copying the American papers largely.

"I find that your papers are not daily papers—they are hourly papers. This makes it hard for you to verify all of your stories and accounts for many mistakes, but you can always correct them in the next edition.

"Your papers appeal more to women than to men as compared with other countries. Women are sensational in their nature, and that makes your papers a little more sensational than those of other lands, I think.

Women Cause Sensationalism.

"Women in your country are very much more active than in any other place, and so your papers must be more active and enterprising in providing for them, and therefore sometimes more sensational.

"The policy of our paper is imperialism. It is a political paper. But we have been friendly to the United States and have received many evidences of the favor of the people. President Taft visited our office when he was in Japan, and when your fleet came to visit us an officer did us the favor to send us a wireless report of the fleet's whereabouts when there was much speculation about it in Tokyo.

"We have four correspondents in America—one in New York, one in Chicago, one in Washington and one in San Francisco. We have not as yet telegraph wires in our offices, but expect to have them this year."

DREAMED THE "BATTLE HYMN"

Mrs. Julia Ward Howe's Birthday Recalls Incident.

The recent celebration of the ninety-first birthday of Mrs. Julia Ward Howe, the famous American lecturer and authoress, recalls the fact that she actually dreamed the words of her stirring song, "Battle Hymn of the Republic."

In 1861, when the American civil war was at its height, some one suggested to her that she should write some new words to the tune of "John Brown's Body," which they had heard the soldiers singing. Mrs. Howe replied that she had often wished to do so.

That night she went to bed and to sleep, as usual, but awoke suddenly in the early dawn to find, to her astonishment, that the wished for lines were forming themselves in her brain. Rising hastily, she secured a scrap of paper and a pencil and scribbled down the verses, hardly conscious of what she wrote.

Then she returned to bed and immediately fell asleep again, not without a feeling, however, that something important had happened to her. Within a few days the "Battle Hymn" was on the lips of every supporter of the northern cause.

Toy Balloon's Long Journey.

A toy balloon that had been seventeen days in the air and had traveled all the way from Cincinnati was picked up on a farm near Three Bridges, N. J., by Abram Shonek. He found pinned to the frail craft the card of Miss Zeba Goldstein of 241 Shielto street, in the city named, and he wrote her a letter. In a reply received the other day Miss Goldstein wrote that she had sent many of the toy balloons into the air and heard from some of them, but never from a distance of 600 miles as the crow flies.

A Woman Passes Two Existences In One House

By EDITH V. ROSS

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

My love for Edward Lane began when we were both so young that neither of us could remember a time when it did not exist. His father's place was but a short distance from ours. Indeed, the rear line marked the limits of both places. On one side of this line was the playground of the several children, boys and girls, including Edward and myself, who lived in the neighborhood. I can remember as far back as when I was seven years old and Edward nine that in playing keep house he and I always played the part of husband and wife. There was a swing on this playground, and Edward's father put up articles for a boys' gymnasium. A little house four or five feet high was built for us girls and furnished with toy furniture. At times we would leave our dolls there all night, first putting them to bed.

When I grew taller I could not understand how I could have stood upright in that little house. And what seemed more remarkable to me was that Edward could have done so, for he was always a large child. And I remember that when he had been away to school for a long while and came back he was taller than the house.

By this time we were growing out of childhood into that intermediate period when, though boys and girls may feel love, they are not likely to express it. It is a period of transition from child love to real love. The boy mind is taken up with athletic sports, while the girl hides her secret almost from herself. Indeed, so nebulous is this period that in my own case it is difficult for me to recall my exact feelings. I remember them faintly and as existing at intervals. They were rather a small portion of my girl's existence than the whole of it.

When I was sixteen I was awakened to the true condition by the marked preference displayed by another girl for my Edward. From that time my love became the principal instead of a minor part in my life. I failed to conceal my jealousy from him, and this brought out his own consciousness of what was between us. There was no formal declaration, no conventional giving of the hand, not even the lovers' kiss. He merely said something about the other girl. I know not what, but it assured me there was no change in our position since the days when we played husband and wife at keeping house—no change in the position, but a great change in the condition. It had then been like a winter bud, but it was now swollen under a spring sun, ready to put forth leaves.

I sometimes wished that I could have experienced the proposal that other girls seemed to regard the next most important moment in their lives to their marriage. Edward and I had no occasion for a proposal. Our love was rather, as I have said, an unfolding of a bud than the birth of a butterfly. The only abrupt part of it was when he gave me the first kiss. I have always treasured that in lieu of a proposal.

When we were married great changes had occurred. I was left alone in the world. So it was arranged that we should occupy my house. Our living room was on the second floor, overlooking the playground where we had pretended to be husband and wife. The faint dream of childhood had been developed to a realization of almost perfect happiness. If there could be a perfection on earth, these five years of my life, from twenty to twenty-five, were such a condition. Two children were born to us, a boy and a girl. What seemed strange to me was that, though I gave them a boundless love, that which I bore their father, instead of being diminished, was increased. Truly love must be, like space, infinite.

Up to this point there had been an expansion of happiness. Suddenly there came a check. Our youngest child sickened and died. I have described with some minuteness what I have likened to the gradual unfolding of a flower. I have no heart to give more than a brief mention of its blighting. Within a few months after the first death a second occurred, and within another year I lost my husband.

For a time I was in a sort of collapse, in which I did not take enough interest in my surroundings to be affected by them. After one has met with a serious accident or has been operated upon by a surgeon the senses are deadened; then comes the beginning of pain. It was so with me. When I became myself my surroundings were painful to me. Some persons similarly situated nurse their grief by living in such surroundings. I longed to get away from them. Friends advised me to seek recovery in the many new scenes and interesting objects that are to be found abroad. I took their advice. I sailed for Europe, leaving the place where I had been so happy in the hands of an agent for sale. One thing I was resolved upon—never to return to it.

It may be considered that my story is one of coincidence. It is more than that. It is an illustration of the very different conditions that may occur in the life of a single person. Masters of romance have maintained that there should not be in song or story but one love. Playwrights never bring a second on to the stage. They portray rather romance than real life and do not give all that real life needs. They are of the same order as the people of India who believe that the wife should die on the funeral pyre of her husband.

I may be weaker than some women or I may be stronger. Possibly I may have less depth of feeling, though that I will not admit. I saw only in nursing my grief a dreadful life before me. I recognized the principle that no two absorbing ideas can occupy the brain at one time. I did all that I could to interest myself in what was about me. True, I did not at first succeed, and when I did only partially so. I dreaded the word forget, and yet I realized that to avoid suffering I must temporarily forget. I forced myself to feel that after a time I would be reunited with my loved ones and that meanwhile I must, except occasionally, put them out of my mind.

I made my home abroad. Three years after my bereavement I married again. I did so partly because I was lonely, partly because I wished for a man to rely upon, as is natural to any woman, partly because the man I married assured me that I could give him an interest in life and lastly because I became attached to him. He was an American, like myself, and, being wealthy, gave himself up to study. He lived abroad that he might write books which required his presence among the subjects of which he wrote.

For five years after our marriage we continued our residence abroad. During this period children were born to us. There was a tacit mutual agreement between us that I should not talk about the world in which I had lived. I saw that he would rather leave that to me, considering himself as having no part in it, and I had no desire to make him a part of it. He was absorbed in his literary work, and if I ever told him even where I had lived he soon forgot it.

Then he was called to America on the matter of some property that needed his attention. It was agreed between us that he should leave me and our children in Lucerne, where we were then living. He expected to be absent not more than two months, but soon after his arrival in America he was induced to write for a publisher a work necessitating his presence in America. He suggested my coming home with the children, but left me to consult my own feelings in the matter.

I had never intended to return to the United States, dreading lest it would reawaken me to my lost world. But with a husband and children that world had receded further and further from me till the consciousness of it had grown very dim. I wrote my husband that I would go back to the western hemisphere and remain there. I was tired of moving about from one place to another and the children were coming to that age when they should have steady instruction at school. Our boys I preferred to bring up in America. I therefore suggested to my husband that he buy a place in which we might settle. He replied that he agreed with me and would carry out my suggestions. Later he wrote me that he had bought a place in the suburbs of the city wherein it would be necessary for him to do his work.

We arrived after dark. I was delighted at our reunion, as were the father and the children. I did not ask where our home was to be. I intended to be satisfied with it, pleased with it, wherever it was. We took a train and in less than an hour alighted at a station, where a carriage was waiting for us. It was very dark when we reached our home and I saw nothing of it till I stood in the hall. Then I caught at a banister to prevent my falling.

I was in the house I had left more than ten years before with a blighted heart.

"My dear!" exclaimed my husband, starting toward me.

But in a twinkling I had recovered myself. And what had enabled me to do so? The sudden appearance of an object. Ah, those objects that come to us! How much more valuable oftentimes than realization! I must at least for the present spare my good man the inexpressible pain of knowing what he had brought upon me.

"Nothing," I replied. "A little giddiness at having been so long rolling at sea."

"Nothing you don't like, is there?" he asked anxiously.

"On the contrary, I am very well pleased. Let us see the rest of it."

He took me into every room in the house, a house that had been sold twice since I had parted with it and both times with the furniture included. Not for the world would I have betrayed that these rooms, closets, corners, with every bed, table, bureau, had been familiar to me from childhood. But when it was over I passed the night alone in a room opening into one occupied by the children.

No tongue or pen can describe what that night was to me.

When morning came I found that if I could endure the first shock I could endure more. I deferred from day to day telling what had happened. My husband was delighted with his purchase, and before I had gained heart to tell him my secret he had become a fixture in it. Months passed, then years. My husband is now an old man and my children are grown. None of them know that their mother has been living in her second earthly world.

And yet, after all, this coincidence has not brought me unhappiness. I have been living two existences, both of which are dear to me, the one near by, the other in the far past and future: the one of flesh and blood, the other of spiritual form. In time it will be a spiritual mingling of the two.

GAEKWAR CAN AFFORD GIFTS.

Tributes to King George Cannot Dent Enormous Fortune.

The gaekwar of Baroda is now in the United States on his way to England and has with him gifts for the new king which are reported to be of extraordinary splendor and value. The maharajah can well afford to be liberal, for he is one of the world's richest men.

His collection of jewels is said to be the finest in the world. He possesses a diamond necklace that is surpassed nowhere. It is composed of 200 brilliants of marvelous purity and would easily sell for more than a million dollars.

Another of his treasures is a carpet four yards square in which are woven rubies, diamonds and pearls to the value of $4,000,000. It represents three years' work by skilled artists and jewelers.

Novelty In Equine Headgear.

A new style of horse's hat has appeared on the east side of New York city. The inventor, a driver, says that it is more sightly than the old straw slot eared protector and satisfies those comfort requirements which the other did not. In shape the new headpiece resembles a tennis racket. The flap is meant to extend far enough downward between the eyes to protect the brain, which, the designer says, lies beneath a horse's forehead and not between his ears, as the old hat would seem to indicate. The smaller end is fashioned to extend backward and fasten to the top of the bridle. The inventor hopes to make his creation the fashion.

Telltale Envelope.

Luther W. Charlton of Washington has invented an envelope that cannot be opened without detection. A spoon shaped tongue is cut in the flap of the ordinary envelope, to which it remains attached by a slender stem. The under flap of the envelope has two folds on the inside, under which the shoulders of the spoon shaped tongue rest when the envelope is closed and sealed.

Lower Californian Fish.

Baracouda, rock cod, halibut, white sea bass, rock bass, mackerel, whitefish and other varieties are said to abounded in the waters of Lower California.

The Poisonous Poppy.

In Turkey if a man falls asleep in the neighborhood of a poppy field and the wind flows from the field toward him he becomes narcotized and would die if the country people, who are well acquainted with the circumstances, did not bring him to a well or stream and empty pitcher after pitcher of water on his face and body.

Wooden Heels.

The so called "French" heels for women's shoes are made by hand of birch wood that has been seasoned at least two years.

Missouri's Lead Mines.

The lead mines of Missouri, which have yielded tens of millions of dollars and are not yet half worked out, were orginally discovered by a boy and a dog. The dog was chasing a rabbit and fell into a hole, and it was in getting him out that the boy found a piece of ore and took it home to show his father.

Safest Place on a Train.

The safest place to ride in a railroad train is in the middle of the middle car on the right hand side. Thus the danger of being injured in fore or aft collisions or side swipes is minimized. This is old, but will bear repeating.

Camel Caravans.

Nearly 90,000 camels are used in the vilayet of Bagdad as beasts of burden, and with donkeys they form the only means of carrying goods to inland points. Camel caravans go in "strings," seven camels to the string, with two men in charge. For a camel 450 pounds is a good load, the pack being divided into halves.

PARAGON PARK.

They have never had anything approaching the crowds that are going to "Paragon Park" Nantasket this season. It is unique in all its appointments and never has it been so rich in it attractions. Manager Dodge is contemplating the establishment of a temporary roof garden as the most feasible way of taking care of his greatly increased patronage this season. Although he has increased his former capacity of 1,000 people at tables in the Palm Garden by serving meals on the veranda he still finds that it is an almost nightly occurence that guests are kept waiting for tables in the rush hours. An extension of the Palm Garden would require too elaborate construction in the height of the season, but a way may be found to serve on the roof. The fireworks every Wednesday and Saturday night continue to be great attractions. The free open air circus features, such as La Diva Venus, Speedy ,the Stanleys, Demon and Aroza in balloon ascensions and triple parachute drops are mightily interesting the Paragon visitors, while the statuary electric fountain in the center of the lagoon is a constant source of delight. The music this season is better than ever.

WILL REFUTE INSANITY PLEA

Brother of Mrs. Charlton Wants Murderer to Be Tried

IS NOT SEEKING VENGEANCE

Files Appeal That Extradition Be Granted That Justice May Be Done —Says He Has Sufficient Vital Evidence to Convict Man Who, He Claims, Committed Deliberate Murder In Cold Blood

New York, July 15.—Every possible effort to force the United States to turn Porter Charlton over to the Italian authorities so that he can be tried for the murder of his wife is being made by Captain Henry H. Scott, a brother of the murdered woman.

Letters written by Charlton within a couple of hours before he killed his wife and interviews with men and women with whom the murderer talked while on his way to this country on the steamer Princess Irene after the crime, are in the hands of Scott's lawyer, and these will be used to fight the contention that Charlton is insane if this is attempted by his lawyers in the fight against extradition.

The petition that Charlton be turned over to the Italian government for trial is expected to reach Washington on Saturday, and will be presented at once to the secretary of state's office. It is believed that an appeal that the extradition be granted has already been filed by Scott, and that he will go to Washington to appear in person and tell what he knows of the crime and ask that the murderer be tried.

Captain Scott has given out a statement in which he says:

"I believed that when I discovered Charlton my country would then step in and see, not that my sister's death was avenged, for I have not been seeking vengeance, but that justice be done. I have been asking only fair play, justice and a trial, so that the same conditions may be allowed to govern this case as all others when a crime is committed and discovered. I have secured sufficient competent evidence, in the opinion of my counsel, to establish beyond the slightest doubt three vital points:

"First—That Porter Charlton murdered my sister in cold blood in a manner that required time and deliberation to accomplish, and that subsequent to the murder every act to hide his crime showed deliberation and forethought.

"Second—That at the time of the commission of the crime he was sane.

"Third—That Porter Charlton is now sane."

The Italian government has not yet received a reply to its request for Charlton's extradition. A dispatch to the London Daily Chronicle states that the New Jersey authorities desire to subordinate the question of his extradition to the condition that Italy shall accord reciprocity in such matters. This, however, is quite impossible, as the Italian code forbids the extradition of Italian subjects who have committed crimes in foreign countries.

Mrs. Tyson to Become Bride of Lieutenant Cotton, Who Leaves Army

Baltimore, July 15.—President Taft has accepted the resignation of Lieutenant Bruce Cotton of the Coast Artillery corps, stationed at the famous Fort McHenry, Baltimore, and it is reported that the lieutenant, who is a veteran of the Spanish-American war, is to marry the beautiful and wealthy Mrs. Jesse Tyson of this city.

Both Cotton and Mrs. Tyson are en route to Europe, and it is expected that they will meet abroad, wed and spend their honeymoon there.

Mrs. Tyson was Miss Edyth Johns, a Baltimore belle, when she met Jesse Tyson. She was considerably younger than her husband. When he died he left her an immense fortune, and she has had an army of suitors ever since.

Paris, July 15.—Military aviators engaged in a mimic aerial battle at Vincennes. The Blues, representing the attacking force, beat the Reds, the defending force. Both forces carried guns to a height of 100 metres.

The Reds suddenly encountered the Blues, who fired, and the Reds were obliged to retreat and were declared defeated. The Blues flew to Chalons to report their success.

Lynn Decides on Filtration

PERILOUS BALLOON TRIP

Aeronaut Glidden and Two Passengers Are Caught In Whirlwind

Lowell, Mass., July 15.—Seized in the grip of a small-sized cyclone, the balloon Massachusetts, piloted by Charles M. Glidden and carrying as passengers Charles A. West and William M. Bunting, was dragged by the whirlwind nearly a quarter of a mile, in spite of the efforts of Glidden to anchor it, and landed on the tops of the trees in a deep forest. All the men in the basket escaped.

Glinned declared that it was his worst experience in forty-six ascensions. The accident to the balloon will probably make it impossible for any aeronaut to obtain either life or accident insurance in American companies, for Bunting, who is a director of the Penn Mutual Life Insurance company, made the trip in the Massachusetts in order to test for himself the dangers of aerial traveling before assenting to any change in the policy of insurance companies favoring aviators, and said that on his return to earth that he believed that the risks of navigation in the air were so great that he could not recommend insuring them.

MAYOR ATHERTON RESIGNS

Had Been Suspended From Office Following Lynching at Newark

Newark, O., July 15.—Mayor Atherton, against whom charges of neglect of duty during the riot of Friday night, when Car Etherington was lynched, had been made, has resigned. He was under suspension by Governor Harmon for thirty days pending an investigation into his conduct as mayor of the city.

Adjutant General Weybrecht's report of the Newark lynching, turned over to Attorney General Denman, severely arraigns Sheriff Linke, who resigned his office.

General Weybrecht said the sheriff not only evaded executive duty, but in a measure encouraged the mob in its work. He said sufficient troops to preclude the possibility of the lynching would have been furnished if word had been sent to his department.

Atherton was four times elected mayor of Newark. John M. Ankele, vice mayor, is now the head of the city government.

NEW ENGLAND MILK RATES ARE CHECKED

Interstate Commerce Commission to Make Investigation

Washington, July 15.—Acting on the complaint filed by the Boston Dairy company, D. Whiting & Sons, H. P. Hood & Sons and other dairy interests in Massachusetts, the interstate commerce commission ordered a suspension of the tariff of the Boston and Maine railroad and other carriers announcing increased rates on milk from various New England points to Boston, pending investigation of the reasonaableness of the rates.

This action also affects the Maine Central and the St. Johnsbury and Lake Champlain. The decision followed a hearing by the commission.

The petitioners set forth that in making expenditures for terminals, ice plants, creameries, etc., they relied on the continuance of the old carload rates. These rates, they say, have resulted in giving the farmers better prices and the consumers cheaper milk. It is said that the new rates, filed June 28, average about 50 percent higher than the old ones.

BURIED UNDER CEMENT FLOOR

Body of Long Missing Wife of a Doctor Is Found

HEAD BATTERED WITH CLUB

Effort to Hasten Destruction of Remains by Stab Wounds and Quicklime—London Police Believe Supposed Murderer Is on Steamer Bound For New York With a Woman Disguised as a Boy

New York, July 15.—A cable dispatch received at police headquarters from Scotland Yard, London, asks that all incoming steamships be watched for Dr. Hawley H. Crippen, an American, who is charged with the murder of his American wife, Belle Elmore, a music hall actress. Scotland Yard has started a world-wide hunt for Crippen.

Mrs. Crippen disappeared last February, and her body has just been found buried under the cement floor of the house the Crippens occupied at 39 Hilltop Crescent, Islington, a suburb of London.

The autopsy shows that Mrs. Crippen's head had been beaten in with a club. There were many stab wounds on the body, but apparently they had been made after death to hasten the destruction of the body by quicklime.

Mrs. Crippen was born in Brooklyn and had relatives living there. Crippen was born in Coldwater, Mich., 50 years ago, and was graduated from a medical college in Indiana. They were married in this city about fifteen years ago and were well known here and in Philadelphia.

Crippen was the London agent for the Munyon Remedy company of Philadelphia, the Dean Drug company and the Dr. Ent Institution, a Paris concern making a specialty of treating the deaf.

The Scotland Yard detectives believe that Crippen is on his way to New York on a steamship that sailed from England last Saturday. He dropped out of sight last Friday night. There is another woman in the case, and she is with him.

The woman is described in the Scotland Yard dispatches as Ethel C. Leneve. She is posing as the wife of Crippen. She was Crippen's typewriter in his London office in New Oxford street.

Mrs. Leneve is of French birth, but was reared in London. She is 27 years years old and very good looking. From information they have gathered the Scotland Yard men believe that she is traveling disguised as a boy.

The assumption is based upon the fact that Crippen bought a boy's suit shortly before he disappeared. Crippen himself is small of staure and slight of build. He has scant sandy hair, a fresh complexion and at the time of his disappearance wore a long mustache, which doubtless has been cut off ere this.

A formal charge of murder and mutilation has been made against Crippen by the Scotland Yard authorities. There will be no difficulty about extraditing him if he is caught.

At the time the murdered woman married Crippen she was a prepossessing girl of very fine figure. She was of Polish descent, and told her friends that her father was a nobleman who had been driven from his country.

Strike Riot In New York

New York, July 15.—Three thousand strike sympathizers fought police and strike breakers near the Williamsburg sugar refineries. A score were injured on each side. The arrival of a boat load of non-union men brought on the trouble.

AT THE BOSTON THEATRES

COLONIAL THEATRE.

They are giving "$3,000,000.00" to re-open the Colonial theatre on Monday, August first. That is to say that they are going to open the season with a big musical corporation entitled "Three Million Dollars," on that date. Charles Marks, who is well known as the producer and manager of Richard Carle's former successes "The Spring Chicken," "The Tenderfoot," "Mary's Lamb," etc., will be responsible for the welfare of "Three Million Dollars." This is his first individual production ,and is said to be the most elaborate of all the successes he has been interested in. "Three Million Dollars" is in Three Acts and was written by Edgar Allan Woolf, (a nephew of the late Ben Woolf of the Boston Herald) Lyrics by David Kempner ,and music by Anatol Friedland. Prominent in the list of Spendthrifts are such well-known artists as Juliet who created quite a furore in Boston ,in vaudeville a few months ago. Mark Smith who played the title role in "The Traveling Salesman" during its record breaking run of five months at the Park theatre; May Bo'ey ,one of America's cleverest character comediennes; Louis A. Simon, who will have a new speciality with his famous ladder skit; Arthur Conrad, who was a hit in " Bright Eyes"; George Lydecker, late of "The Man Who Owns Broadway." While there are sixty beautiful young ladies in "Three Million Dollars" none of them are to be known as the chorus. No indeed, they will be known with the dignified title of "Gilt Edged Heiresses." Mr. Marks considers this trade-mark for his beauties so valuable that he has applied for a copyright. "Three Million Dollars" will give matinees on Wednesday and Saturday and after the summer run at the Colonial theatre, goes direct to New York.

AMERICAN MUSIC HALL.

Always on the alert to give his patrons the very best that the market affords, Lindsay Morison has engaged for this coming week to present at the American Music hall the most widely discussed play of the last decade "The Clansman" by Rev. Thomas Dickson. This will be the first time that this piece has ever been presented at any theatre in Boston although several efforts were made to bring it here during the last two seasons. So much newspaper publicity has been devoted to the "Clansmen" that little comment is necessary. Suffice it to say that it is a powerful exposition of the race problem which in this country today is growing more and more serious as time goes on. The scenes are all laid in the south and it deals with the negro question which has agitated the minds of America's greatest statesmen since the time of Abraham Lincoln. In securing this piece for its first Boston presentation, Mr. Morison has turned a trick which stamps him as one of the most progressive stock managers in America. The full strength of the company will be used in the production including Wilson Melrose, Rosalind Coghlan, Theodore Freibus, Mary Sanders, Rose Morison, Katherine Clinton, William Hasson, Richard Pitman, Edward Nannary and Valerie Valaire.

KEITH'S THEARE.

Next week at Keiths there will a bill of more than usual interest from the fact that it will contain a number of artists who have condensed their best offering from musical comedy and the legitimate stage into a few minutes for vaudeville. One of the most prominent of these will be Elizabeth Brice, who was recently featured with Nora Hayes in "The Jolly Bachelors" at Lew Fields' Broadway theatre in New York. Another is Charles King, who took George M. Cohan's place in "The Yankee Prince," and who will at Keith's do some of his Cohan stunts that made such a hit on Broadway. Another couple from the legitimate are the Dolly Sisters, who last season appeared in the big theatre scene in "The Midnight Sons," and were one of the hits of that production. Connolly and Webb will be a team new to Boston ,with a splendid comedy called "A Stormy Finish," in which some excellent piano playing is introduced. Una Clayton and company will present Miss Clayton's latest sketch, called "His Local Color." Other features of the bill will be Stelling and Revelle ,the acrobatic clowns from the New York Hippodrome; Tom Mahoney ,the story teller; Miss Fannie Fish the whistler, and the 3 McGradys, Scotch imitators and archers.

MISS KATHERINE ELKINS

Once Reported Fiancee of the Duke of Abruzzi

TO WED AN AMERICAN

Miss Elkins Reported Engaged to Lieutenant Hitt of Illinois

Washington, July 15.—The most notable wedding of the capital promised for the early days of the next social season will be that of Miss Katharine Elkins, daughter of Senator Elkins, and Lieutenant William F. Hitt, son of the late Congressman Robert R. Hitt. The Duke of the Abruzzi will be one of the guests, it is said.

This announcement was made by friends of Hitt at the Chevy Chase club, and Miss Elkins' family will announce it when she returns from abroad in October.

LARCENY OF NEARLY $500.000 CHARGED

Boston Brokers Plead Not Guilty to Indictments

Boston, July 15.—On indictments charging them with the larceny of nearly half a million dollars, with keeping a bucket shop and with conspiracy to steal from several persons unknown, Arthur B. Sederquist, Harry F. Curtis and John E. Barry of the brokerage firm of Sederquist, Barry & Co., were arraigned in the Suffolk superior criminal court and each pleaded not guilty. They were each held in the old bail of $20,000.

The last two indictments, charging them with maintaining a bucket shop and with conspiracy to steal, are made public for the first time.

The men were arrested last October and arraigned on the first indictment, but did not plead to it at that time.

Judge DeCourcy allowed the defendants ten days to file special pleas.

D. E. Bigelow and P. L. Freeman, New York brokers, are also named as defendants. Efforts will soon be made to extradite them and bring them to Boston to plead to the indictments.

STARVING IN FILTHY CELL

Pittman Living on Charity When Found by American Consul

Washington, July 15.—Confined in a filthy cell six by five feet, unfed save by charitable strangers, William Pittman, the American captured by the Madriz government forces near Bluefields, was found in an overcrowded local prison at Managua, Nicaragua, by Consul Olivares.

The consul, who is stationed at that point, telegraphed the state department that he visited Pittman, discovered the revolting conditions, and through protest forced Dr. Madriz to furnish the adventurous American better prison accommodations.

Pittman, whose relatives live at Cambridge, Mass., told Olivares that he left Greytown July 4, and that since then his captors had failed to provide him with food, leaving him altogether dependent for subsistence upon charity. Pittman was starving.

WANT TEN-HOUR DAY AT ELEVEN-HOUR PAY

Strike of Pennsylvania Road Employes Is Threatened

Philadelphia, July 14.—Representatives of the conductors, trainmen and yardmen on the Pennsylvania railroad lines east of Pittsburg, Erie and Buffalo notified General Manager Myers that a majority of the men had voted "yes" on the ballot which empowered the men's general committee to call a strike of 15,500 men unless they reached an agreement with the company on the matter of wages and working conditions.

Myers informed the delegation that the Pennsylvania railroad is willing to meet the conditions which prevail on other roads, providing that the company is put to no additional expense. Another conference will be held today.

At the conference with Myers A. B. Garretson, of the Order of Railway Conductors, set forth the demands of the men and said that as the vote sustained the action of the committee in asking for a ten-hour day with the same pay as under the present eleven-hour system, the committee could do nothing but insist upon compliance with these terms.

"JOHNNY ON THE SPOT"

Railroad Officials Get News of Train Smashup at First Hand

Portsmouth, N. H., July 15.—Assistant General Superintendent Folger, Superintendent Merritt and his assistant, Henry Scannell of the Boston and Maine railroad, were on the spot yesterday afternoon when a wreck occurred.

At the coal docks a big string of coal cars jumped the track on Market street crossing, crashed into the office of the wharfinger, H. B. Downs, and piled up in the highway. Downs, who was inside, escaped uninjured. Three of the cars were smashed.

HALF A CHANCE

SYNOPSIS

(CHAPTER X—Continued.)

A shrill whistle smote the air. Steele's glance turned to the window. The boy, having delivered his message, had left the door. With lips puckered to the loud and imperfect rendition of a popular street melody he was making his way through the grounds. Involuntarily the man's look lingered on him. "A telegram from London? For whom?"

"Beg pardon!" A footman stood in the doorway. "Sir Charles' compliments to the gentlemen, and will they be good enough to join him in armory hall?"

John Steele turned quickly to the servant, so quickly a close observer might have fancied he welcomed the interruption. "Captain Forsythe's and Mr. Steele's compliments to Sir Charles," he said at once, "and say it will give them pleasure to comply."

As Steele and his companion, together with Jocelyn Wray, who had joined them, entered the armory hall sounds of merriment and applause greeted the ear.

"A little contest with the foils, a fencing bout! Good!" exclaimed Forsythe.

Jocelyn Wray walked over to the group, and Forsythe followed.

"Bravo, Ronsdale!" A number of people applauded.

"He has won. Now the reward! What is it to be?"

"Not so fast! Here are others."

"True." Ronsdale looked around with his cold smile. His glance vaguely included John Steele and Captain Forsythe.

"Count me out," laughed the latter. "Not in my line, don't you know, since I joined the retired list."

"However, there's Steele," Sir Charles, pipe in hand, remarked.

"Do you use the foils, Mr. Steele?" asked Jocelyn Wray.

He moved forward. Lord Ronsdale stood near her, bending over with a slightly proprietary air.

"I"— Steele looked at them. "Only a little."

"Then you must try conclusions with Lord Ronsdale!" called out Sir Charles. "As victor over the rest he must meet all comers."

"Nothing to be put out by being beaten by Ronsdale," interposed an observer. "Had the reputation of being one of the best swordsmen on the continent; has even had, I believe," with a laugh, "one or two little affairs of honor."

"Honor!" Steele's glance swung around, played brightly on the nobleman.

The latter's face remained impassive. He lifted his foil carelessly and swung it. The hiss that followed might have been construed as a challenge. John Steele tossed aside his coat.

Ronsdale's eyes suddenly narrowed. Expectancy made itself felt in his manner. "Aren't you going to roll up your sleeve?" he asked softly. "Usually find it gives greater freedom of movement myself."

"Perhaps you are right," Steele said coolly, and, following the nobleman's example, he pushed back his sleeve. The action revealed the splendid arm of the perfectly trained athlete, marked, however, by a great scar extending from just above the wrist to the elbow.

"Bad jab that, Steele!" cried Sir Charles. "Looks as if it might have been made by an African spear!"

"No." John Steele smiled.

"Not very old," said John Steele.

"If there's a good story back of it we'll have it later," Captain Forsythe remarked.

Their blades crossed. Ronsdale's suppleness of wrist and arm, his cold steadiness, combined with a knowledge of many fine artifices, had already made him a favorite with those of the men who cared to back their opinions with odd pounds.

"Ten to five!" one of the men near her called out jovially. "Odds on Ronsdale! Any takers?"

"Done!"

Jocelyn saw John Steele draw himself back sharply just in time. She also fancied a new, ominous gleam in his eyes. His demeanor underwent an abrupt change. If Ronsdale's quickness was catlike the other's movements had now all the swiftness and grace of a panther.

"Hello!" Through the swishing of steel she heard again the man at her side exclaim, make some laughing remark, "Perhaps I'd better hedge"—

But even as he spoke, with a fiercer thrusting and parrying of blades, the end came. A sudden irresistible movement of John Steele's arm and the nobleman's blade clattered to the floor.

"Egad! I never saw anything prettier!" Sir Charles came forward quickly. "Met your match that time, Ronsdale."

The nobleman stooped for his foil. "That time, yes!" he drawled.

Steele found himself walking with Jocelyn Wray toward the window. Across the room a footman now approached Lord Ronsdale and extended a salver.

John Steele's glance flashed toward Ronsdale. The telegram, then, had been for— He saw an inscrutable smile cross the nobleman's face.

A door closed quietly as Lord Ronsdale went out.

The afternoon of that same day there arrived at the village of Strathorn from London a discreet looking little man who, descending at the Golden Lion, was shown to a private sitting room on the second story. In about an hour he was joined by Lord Ronsdale.

"Well"—he spoke quickly—"I fancy you have a little something to tell me, Mr. Gillett?"

"'A little something!'" The latter rubbed his hands. "More than a little! The special inquiry which your lordship mentioned just as he was leaving my office proved for a time most illusive."

"You mean the object of John Steele's visit to the continent?"

"Exactly. And, the object of that visit solved, I have now a matter of greatest importance to communicate, so important it could only be imparted by word of mouth." The police agent spoke hastily and moved nearer.

"Indeed! You have reached a conclusion, one that you sought to reject perhaps, but that wouldn't be discarded?"

Mr. Gillett looked at him earnestly. "You don't mean—it isn't possible that you knew all the while?"

"Let us start at the beginning."

"True, your lordship." Mr. Gillett swallowed. "As your lordship is aware, we were fortunate enough in the beginning to find out through our agent in Tasmania that John Steele came to that place in a little trading schooner, the Laura Deane of Portsmouth; that he had been rescued from a tiny uncharted reef, or isle, on Dec. 21, some three years before. The spot, by longitude and latitude, marks, through an odd coincidence, the place where the Lord Nelson met her fate."

"A coincidence truly," murmured the nobleman. "But at this stage in your reasoning you recalled that all on board were embarked in the ship's boats and reached civilization, except possibly"—

"A few of my charges between decks? A bad lot of ugly brutes. The story of John Steele's rescue," went on Mr. Gillett, "as told by himself, was well known in Tasmania. A lawyer by profession, he had been passenger on a merchant vessel, the Mary Vernon of Baltimore, United States. This vessel, like the Lord Nelson, had come to grief. All of those in John Steele's boat had perished except him. Some had gone mad through thirst and suffering. Others had killed their fellows in a frenzy. Being of superb physique, having been through much physical training"—the listener stirred in his chair—"he managed to survive, to reach the little isle, where, according to his story, he remained almost a year."

"A year? Then he set foot in Tasmania about four years after the Lord Nelson went down," observed the nobleman, a curious glitter in his eyes. "Four years after," he repeated, accenting the last word.

"Such were the details gathered in Tasmania," answered the police agent

BRIEFS

The Eaton Ice Co., has put a large new auto truck in commission.

The Sunday schools of the First Presbyterian church and Calvary Baptist church will hold their annual picnics at Nantasket Saturday.

Henry R. Holden, president of the New England Leather and Shoe Finders Association was among those who enjoyed the field day of the leather and shoe men of New England at Salem Willows on Thursday.

It is more than probable that President-elect Hermes Fonseca of Brazil, who is to visit America in August, may visit the Fore River shipyard as it is announced he is to visit the most important shipyards of the country.

Mrs. Fred C. Merrill of Fayette street is entertaining two boys from the Children's Mission at her summer home "Pineacres" in Pembroke. The estate borders on a lake and the children are enjoying swimming, boating, fishing and other pleasures.

Mrs. Henry Parker Quincy of Boston and Dedham sister of Hon. Charles Francis Adams, had an unwelcome visitor on Thursday; fire destroying the cottage at Dark Harbor, Maine, which she had leased for the season.

Just as the circus train was about to start Wednesday for Brockton four youngsters were discovered on the bumpers all ready for a ride. Their intentions were nipped in the bud and four disappointed boys watched the train and circus out of sight.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles C. Hearn and Charlie arrived home from their automobile trip Thursday evening. They left Quincy Monday morning and have been to the White Mountains. They report a most enjoyable trip without a mishap of any kind to the automobile.

Horace F. Bates has been appointed principal of the High school at Hanover Centre. He is a native of Quincy, a Harvard graduate and has taught four years at Brewster and last year at Huntington. Mr. Bates and family will move to Hanover the last of August.

AFFAIRS MIXED.

Although confined in jail Mayor White of Lawrence continues to fulfil the duties of the office of Mayor and as a result affairs are considerably mixed in that city. The citizens are now anxiously awaiting the opinion of the City Solicitor on the question.

OBLIGED TO SIGN.

Although Mayor Wood of Somerville vetoed two licenses for the transportation of liquor the aldermen passed the licenses over his veto and the Mayor is against his will obliged by law to sign the licenses.

DIRECT TO HIGHLAND PARK.

Electric cars will run from the Braintree depot on half hour time to South Braintree, Randolph, Avon, Montello, Brockton and Campello.

Beginning Saturday, July 16, the Old Colony Street Railway Company will inaugurate an innovation in its service which will provide the people of Braintree with a direct through line between Braintree depot and Campello. This line will run to South Braintree, thence through Randolph, Avon, past Highland Park, through Montello and Brockton. On this service large, double-truck cars will be operated and they will leave Braintree on a half-hour schedule at 5 and 35 minutes past each hour. This will give Braintree for the first time a service which will enable them to reach the southern part of Randolph, Avon and the northern part of Montello without changing cars. The through fare from Braintree depot to Campello will be 15 cents and the run will be made in an hour and twenty-five minutes.

Perhaps one of the most interesting features to the people of Braintree will be the possibility and convenience which this new service will open up for visists to Highland Park which will give them a pleasant ride during the warm days with an abundance to interest them when they reach there. The fare to Highland Park will be 10 cents and the time will be 52 minutes.

Highland Park this year has been greatly changed and improved, many new buildings have been erected, a new carousel or merry-go-round which is one of the largest in New England is in full operation, there will be vaudeville and high class musical shows every afternoon and evening in the hteatre, a big roller coaster, a splendid dance board and numerous other amusement features. This year the management of the park purposes to spend many thousands of dollars in special free, out-of-door attractions. Every afternoon and evening of next week there will be a big captive balloon which will give people an opportunity to rise in the air a thousand feet and be sure of returning to earth again. The following week, the Royal Scottish Bagpipers will apear and after that Strobel's mammoth airship, Daredevil Dash and a number of other features which are among the best that can be secured.

The last car for Braintree depot will leave Highland Park at 10 P. M., which will give plenty of opportunity to enjoy the many attractions which will be offered there.

SPORTING CHAT.

Games scheduled for Saturday are: Quincy vs. Randolph at Water street grounds.

Fore River Apprentices vs. Neponset Wanderers at Ward Two.

Ramblers vs. North Somerville at Merrymount Park.

Y. M. C. A. vs. South Quincy at Ward Three.

Copelands at Barre, Vt.

I have a communication from one of the limber-legged brotherhood who dot our roads at night while training for some imaginary meet. It reads: "James Morrison of Quincy is out with a challenge to any amateur runner for a race of from one to five miles. Address, 11 Cottage avenue, Quincy.

Why doesn't some one pick this up?

All out for the big game at Water street tomorrow. Johnnie Glaze will absolutely pitch for Mike Shea's boys and it looks like a corking game.

Ben O'Brien who covers left garden for the Ramblers returns the ball to the plate as fast and true as any of the junior tossers about Quincy.

* * *

It remains to be seen what changes tomorrow's play will bring about in the Old Colony League. Every one in this man's town is rooting for the local boys.

* * *

There are no scheduled games in the Granite City League, though some of the teams may play off postponed games.

Track athletics dont seem to have a hold in Quincy. In most cities there are one or more clubs that are devoted entirely to track and field events and meets are frequent, but here it is different and except for a few men who do road work in training for long distance runs there is nothing doing. A good track is a mighty interesting thing and some one ought to start one going. The cost needn't be large.

The Quincy Cricket club, a new organization for which Professor Frank Wrigley is responsible, played the acknowledged champs of Boston, the West Indians and did very well considering it was their first game. They batted first as they were the visiting team. The final score showed them the losers by 7 wickets and 43 runs.

JANE ADDAMS IS NAMED FOR TOGA

Unofficial Choice For Senate of Illinois Women.

SUFFRAGISTS PUSH CLAIMS.

Insist That With Equal Suffrage Charges of Corruption Like Those Against Lorimer Would Not Be Possible—Find Voters Receptive During Auto Tour of State.

"Jane Addams for United States senator."

This is the plea of the representatives of the Illinois Equal Suffrage league during their recent automobile tour of that state, and their solution of Illinois' political chaos in answer to the daily queries put to them in regard to the legislative bribery situation brought to a climax in Chicago in the trial of Lee O'Neil Browne. Miss Helen M. Todd, who has been a member of the vote seeking party of tourists, sounded the Addams slogan.

Found Public Anxious.

"Throughout Illinois on our trip," said Miss Todd, "we found the people in a most overwhelming state of agitation over the recent alleged bribery disclosures in connection with the election of United States Senator Lorimer. Everywhere the people, on learning that we were from Chicago, where the big bribery trial of a state representative was going on, were clamoring for the latest news of the situation. And our answer has always been the same.

"Our argument has been and is," she continued, "that if we were allowed the right of suffrage and the attendant privileges of electing women as representatives of the people our politics would be purified immediately. There never would have been cast on the history of our state such a blemish as the recent disclosures of official corruption, reaching to the very roots of our legislative system, have effected.

"Senator" Addams Beyond Corruption.

"Could you ever imagine 'United States Senator Jane Addams' involved in an accusation of buying votes for her election to the country's highest legislative body? Never! If the state's best women could have taken the places which men like Lee O'Neil Browne, Charles A. White and all the others who are involved in the big graft disclosures are accused of disgracing this awful state of corruption in politics would never have resulted."

SCHOOL BANKS ARE POPULAR

Long Island Scheme Has Spread Over the World.

The system of school savings banks started twenty-five years ago by J. H. Thiry of Long Island City, N. Y., has prospered amazingly. In 1,168 schools in 118 cities of this country over $5,000,000 has been deposited. The New York city school children have saved fully $1,500,000. The system has spread to twenty-three states and also to Porto Rico, Hawaii and the Philippines.

It has also been adopted in other lands, having been cordially welcomed in Canada. In nine years $270,000 has been deposited in the schools of Toronto alone. In France there are banks in 11,000 schools, with more than $1,500,000 francs deposited. Algeria has also taken up the plan. In South and Western Australia it has been made a part of the postal savings system.

More than 10,000,000 children have participated in this good work.

SMALL PITCHING STAFFS CARRIED

Modern Managers Rely on Fewer but Dependable Twirlers.

IDLENESS PROVES INJURIOUS.

Foolish to Have Many Slab Artists While Most of Them Sit on the Bench—Pilots In Big League Beginning to Realize Folly of It.

That long pitching strings are no longer necessary and that four or five dependable men are worth two or three times that number of ordinary twirlers is a fact.

Previously the necessity of having seven men, each one ready at all times to take his turn at box, was a point that was emphasized by managers. And during last season, too, the major league manager who did not have at least six available men for the box figured that he was heavily handicapped in the fight for the coveted bunting.

Things have changed, however. The wonderful work of the Pittsburg pitchers last season and the now very patent fact that four twirlers practically did the brunt of the work for the Pirates have given managers and owners cause for believing that too many pitchers are worth hardly as much as none at all.

Last season, with Camnitz, Willis, Maddox and Leifield performing in their turn, the Pirates were up in the race throughout the entire season, and they finally drew away easily from all other competitors at the end. In previous years it was the pitching of Mordecai Brown, Pfeister, Overall and Reulbach that won for the Cubs, and every one for years has realized that Christie Mathewson has been the real mainstay of the Giants. This only goes to show the value of one good pitcher to a team. With four dependable boxmen the ordinary manager should be reasonably well satisfied.

In 1909 the Red Sox had one of the biggest strings of pitchers in the country. They had Hall, Karger, Wood, Cicotte, Matthews, Arellanes, Pape, Wolter and Schlitzer at the season's end, while previously there were Ryan, Chech, Steele and Morgan as members of the pitching corps. And yet had Morgan pitched the ball for Boston that he did for the Athletics and Young had been retained, these two, with Arellanes and one other reliable man to take his turn in the box, might easily have beaten out both the Athletics and Tigers and brought the pennant to Boston.

The better part of the pitching for Connie Mack's club was done by four men, Plank, Bender, Krause and Morgan, and they are doing the same thing this year. Four or five regular men on any team would be worth double as much as a string of nine or ten men with only one or two of them in first class pitching condition.

Too many pitchers are a hindrance instead of a help. If Cicotte, Wood and Wolter had been in shape to help out Arellanes last season the pitching staff of the Red Sox would not have been the weakest in the American league. But the wildness of Wood, the injury to Cicotte and the bad start that Wolter got in the spring handicapped the team so heavily that Arellanes was forced to do pretty nearly half the pitching for his team.

Managers and owners both are beginning to realize the folly of keeping five or six ablebodied men upon the bench while the bulk of the work is left to a couple of good men and a lot of second stringers. Traveling is expensive, and salaries today are at a pretty high figure. If the work could be got out of five men the saving both in traveling expenses, salary and general efficiency would be considerable and owners would be willing to tack a snug slice on to the compensation of the five dependable men who could go in and do their regular stunts.

LONG TRIP IN LAUNCH.

Chicago Woman and Son Travel 6,312 Miles In Great Cruise.

A remarkable river, ocean, canal and lake motorboat journey was concluded recently when the Catherine M., a thirty-five foot cruising launch, carrying Ralph M. Pearson and his mother, Mrs. Kate Pearson, came into dock in Chicago river.

May 3, 1909, the boat started from the spot at which she docked and completed the cruise down the Mississippi to the Atlantic, along the Gulf coast, north along the Atlantic coast, up the Hudson, through the Erie canal, across Lakes Erie and Huron, through the strait of Mackinac and up Lake Michigan to the river—6,312 miles.

Will Row For the Championship.

Ernest Barry, the English champion, has left England for South Africa, whence he will travel to the Zambezi, where on Aug. 18 he will row Arnst for the world's sculling championship. Barry was in splendid shape when he left England and very confident of making a good race for the title. He is a fine oarsman and has created new records on the Thames during his training for the forthcoming trial.

Royal Mistakes.

Sovereigns and princes are strangely given to making astonishing mistakes while dealing with dates. The inscription on King Edward VII.'s coffin that he died in the ninth year of his reign instead of the tenth is only an example of many similar errors. In November, 1858, Queen Victoria wrote to the late king to inform him that he might consider himself emancipated from parental authority and control, as he was now eighteen years old and therefore of age. Her majesty's letter, which was very long, was a quasi sermon, and it ended by informing the then Prince of Wales that he would be forthwith made a knight of the Garter and a colonel in the army. How Queen Victoria and Prince Albert fell into so extraordinary a mistake it is impossible to understand, for the prince had only then completed his seventeenth year. Dean Wellesley, to whom the young prince showed the letter, at once detected the serious error into which the queen had fallen, but he thought it best to say nothing.—London Truth.

Got Full Measure.

All yesterday James had played truant from school, and when the irate master raised his cane threateningly James burst into a flood of tears.

"Please don't lick me, sir," he sobbed.

"And why should I not lick you, pray?" thundered the schoolmaster.

"W'y, sir, 'cos I think I've 'ad enough!" gasped James. "Yesterday the boy as I played truant with and I fell out and he licked me, and a man we threw stones at caught me and licked me, the driver of a cart we hung on to licked me, the owner of a cat we chased licked me. Then when I got home mother licked me, and after that father licked me, and then mother licked me again for calling her a sneak for telling father."

"Well," responded the master grimly, "by this time one licking more or less won't make much difference, and it seems hard I shouldn't have my whack. Come here, sir!"—London Answers.

WILL OBSERVE ANNIVERSARY

Plans for 25th Anniversary Swedish Baptist Church

The Swedish Baptist church at Brewers corner is to observe its twenty-fifth anniversary from July 21 to July 24.

Thursday evening there will be a concert at half past seven. On Friday and Saturday evenings at half past seven preaching by Rev. John P. Westerberg of Kanne, Pa., and Rev. John Bjork of Pittsburg, Pa., and Rev. pastors of the church.

Sunday beside the usual services of the day there will be a special service at half past three in the afternoon. A cordial invitation is extended to all to attend these services.

SCHOOL PICNICS.

It required three large cars to convey the Sunday school of the First Presbyterian church and their friends on their annual picnic today at Nantasket. The special cars left City Square at 9.30 and they were a happy party. Two hours later the Sunday school of the Calvary Baptist church also took special cars in City Square for Nantasket.

BETTER TRAIN SERVICE.

A mass meeting in the interest of better train service from all stations in Quincy will be held under the auspices of the Board of Trade Wednesday evening at Alpha hall. All who are interested in having better train service are invited to attend the meeting and express their views on the subject.

CITY COUNCIL BUSINESS.

It is more than probable that the City Council will adjourn Monday night for its summer vacation. The meetings this year have been strenuous ones as a rule yet a large amount of business has been cleaned up so that there is little left in the calendar that can not wait until fall and cooler weather. Among the most important matters are the two new school buildings. One for Montclair and the other for Wollaston. Sites for the buildings have been selected and the School Committee has selected the architects to draw the plans.

The school committee has adjourned until September and it is doubtless if the plans for the buildings will be ready to send to the council before September.

There are three loan orders pending in the council, one being the consolidated loan of $56,825. These are now before the Finance committee and they are expected to report on them at the meeting Monday evening.

FRIDAY NIGHT'S FIRE.

The alarm from Box 173 at 5.57 Friday evening was for a slight fire in the house at Newcomb square owned by the Young estate. The fire started from some unknown cause on the shelf of a closet and while it made considerable smoke the flames did not work out although they burnt through the top of the closet. The fire was extinguished with a chemical stream. The loss will not be heavy.

WARD 4 PUBLIC LOT.

Now that the city has purchased the lot of land bounded by Copeland, Common and West streets the West Quincy Improvement association is moving to have the city put the lot in condition suitable for a recreation ground.

The lot is a triangular one and if it was graded and grassed over it would make a pretty place. Then a few seats placed there where people could rest and West Quincy will be satisfied.

TODAY'S COURT.

Edward E. Glomsted was fined $20, Joseph Stacio, Jr., $25, Thomas J. Healey $15 and George A Field $15 for exceeding the automobile speed limit at Milton.

Vinanzo Salamati was fined $5 for assault at Weymouth.

John Conroy was fined $10 for disturbing the peace at Houghs Neck.

GRAND TIME AT OUTING

Woman's Relief Corps Entertained by Mrs. W. J. Tilley

Something like forty of the members of Paul Revere Womens Relief corps were entertained Thursday by Mrs. Mary P. Tilley at her home at Houghs Neck. The party all prepared for a good time left Quincy at 11 o'clock and were warmly greeted by Mrs. Tilley who extended the right hand of fellowship to all. Two hours later found the ladies seated about the tables at Norteman's where they had an opportunity to partake of one of the best shore dinners ever set before a party of ladies. Considerable time was consumed at the dinner table for the day was warm and there was nothing to hurry them.

General conversation was in order during the dinner and the merry laugh of the ladies was evidence enough that they were having the time of their lives. Dinner over an adjournment was made to the home of Mrs. Tilley where the afternoon and early evening was spent in a social manner with vocal and instrumental music. Ice cream and cake were served during the afternoon. It was 8 o'clock when bidding their hostess good night the ladies took the car for home having passed one of the most enjoyable outing that they had ever had.

WEYMOUTH.

Miss Susie King has returned from a visit in Dorchester.

Miss Ethel Keene is at home from Mechanics Falls, Maine.

Mrs. Bessie Tirrell and Mrs. Nellie Bryant have returned from an extended visit in Florida.

Postmaster Frank M. Drown leaves today for his annual vacation which he will spend in Maine.

Mrs. John Nash of Front street is the guest of her daughter, Mrs. Frank H. Walsh of Quincy.

Miss Alida Allen, formerly of this town but now of Philadelphia, is renewing acquaintances in town.

Mr. W. A. Baker of Washington street has returned from an enjoyable trip through Nova Scotia.

The Misses Lizzie and Annie Connell are rusticating at Hampton beach.

Miss Doris Taylor will rusticate at Crawford Notch, N. H., for the summer.

The many friends of Mrs. James H. Flint will be grieved to know that she is quite ill at Houghs Neck, where they are spending the summer.

Mrs. Fredrick Dale of Florida, nee Alice Britton, is the guest of her mother, Mrs. Catherine Britton of Washington street.

A large number of the parish and Sunday school of the First Universtlist church enjoyed their annual picnic at Nantasket on Thursday.

After an extended visit with his son in the west and his daughter in Wrentham, Fred Ferguson has returned to his home on Washington street.

Mrs. Alfred Fisher, who has been visiting realtives in town returned this week to her home in Philadelphia She was accompanied by her sister, Miss Alice Crocker, who will remain for a visit.

SECOND WEEK SUMMER SCHOOL

Instruction in Cooking, Nursing, Swimming and Business

The second week of the Summer School was brought to a close on Friday morning. During the week the girls have been taught a great deal of useful information. Members of the cooking class were taught to make bread, coffee, to cook eggs in various forms and to cook cereals. After preparing the meal, the girls served it and then cleared up the kitchen and left it in perfect order. This work was in charge of Mrs. Stanley Bone.

Mrs. Kennedy, the nurse, taught the girls how to remove clothing from a patient and give a bath in bed. The older girls were taught how to take pulses and temperatures.

Miss Bass is teaching the girls how to swim besides giving gymnastics to each girl in the school. For recreation they are learning folk dancing.

Miss Eagan the teacher in the business course is teaching the girls how to answer advertisements for positions.

Besides all this work Mrs. James M. Nowland, Miss Clara Thompson, Mrs. A. M. Parker, and Miss Wilhelmine Birse are teaching mental arithmetis, spelling, geography and story work. Miss Clara Thayer is conducting a class in Current Events with a little of the history of Quincy tucked in here and there.

Miss Georgianna Lane gave the girls a fine talk on Friday upon "How a Picture Grows." With easel, crayon and paper she showed how an artist builds his composition and how all lines must lead to the central figure. She illustrated her points by showing the children Raphael's Sistine Madonna and the Madonna of the Chair. She told the story of the pictures and showed the children how the thought of the artist could be expresesd on the canvas, and which the central figure was. The children listened intently. A prize will be given for the best reproduction of her talk.

Miss Mary Nowland, principal of the Madawaska Training School, Fort Kent, Maine, was present and gave the girls a most delightful talk upon "Manners." She showed the girls how much more popular a well mannered child is and how much his elders will love and respect him if he has consideration and thought for others beside himself. The talk was tactful and of the sort that sinks in. Miss Nowland is the sister of James M. Nowland, Esq. She is visiting in Quincy.

WANTS A PLAYGROUND.

Every once in a while the Houghs Neck Associates bob up with a new want. This time it is a public playground. They want the city to purchase the land formerly occupied by the Norteman Ice Co. and the Association has appointed a committee to call the attention of the City Council to the matter and request the purchase of the land. Several of the wants of this section are now under consideration by the Council.

BOSTON'S LITTLE DAILY.

The Boston Evening Record is well represented this year at Houghs Neck. If additions keep arriving the beach will be honored with a special press bureau. Bring them along.

Mary J. Manning, that popular little cashier of whom the office thinks so much, is summering at Boyden's cottage, Nut Island avenue. She got a little sunburn the first day at the beach.

Miss Sadie Daherty, known for her sunny smiles, swings her pen all day on the books, and makes a grab for her hat on the quitting stroke, and then sprints for the steamer. She is with friends on Bird street.

Henry E. Boone, that stately gentleman, will forsake his job as manager's assistant, August 1st and dig clams on Rock island. Harry can fish too!—if you take his word for it.

Charles E. Decker, one of the ad. men is anchored at the beach among the "all year rounds." He is one of those docile quiet fellows who always keeps out of trouble. Nuff Sed.

"Isn't that soldier a perfect love!" cried Arriet.

"No," said 'Arry. "'E's a dear. A grenadier."

SECOND WEEK SUMMER SCHOOL

Instruction in Cooking, Nursing, Swimming and Business

The second week of the Summer School was brought to a close on Friday morning. During the week the girls have been taught a great deal of useful information. Members of the cooking class were taught to make bread, coffee, to cook eggs in various forms and to cook cereals. After preparing the meal, the girls served it and then cleared up the kitchen and left it in perfect order. This work was in charge of Mrs. Stanley Bone.

Mrs. Kennedy, the nurse, taught the girls how to remove clothing from a patient and give a bath in bed. The older girls were taught how to take pulses and temperatures.

Miss Bass is teaching the girls how to swim besides giving gymnastics to each girl in the school. For recreation they are learning folk dancing.

Miss Eagan the teacher in the business course is teaching the girls how to answer advertisements for positions.

Besides all this work Mrs. James M. Nowland, Miss Clara Thompson, Mrs. A. M. Parker, and Miss Wilhelmine Birse are teaching mental arithmetis, spelling, geography and story work. Miss Clara Thayer is conducting a class in Current Events with a little of the history of Quincy tucked in here and there.

Miss Georgianna Lane gave the girls a fine talk on Friday upon "How a Picture Grows." With easel, crayon and paper she showed how an artist builds his composition and how all lines must lead to the central figure. She illustrated her points by showing the children Raphael's Sistine Madonna and the Madonna of the Chair. She told the story of the pictures and showed the children how the thought of the artist could be expresesd on the canvas, and which the central figure was. The children listened intently. A prize will be given for the best reproduction of her talk.

Miss Mary Nowland, principal of the Madawaska Training School, Fort Kent, Maine, was present and gave the girls a most delightful talk upon "Manners." She showed the girls how much more popular a well mannered child is and how much his elders will love and respect him if he has consideration and thought for others beside himself. The talk was tactful and of the sort that sinks in. Miss Nowland is the sister of James M. Nowland, Esq. She is visiting in Quincy.

WANTS A PLAYGROUND.

Every once in a while the Houghs Neck Associates bob up with a new want. This time it is a public playground. They want the city to purchase the land formerly occupied by the Norteman Ice Co. and the Association has appointed a committee to call the attention of the City Council to the matter and request the purchase of the land. Several of the wants of this section are now under consideration by the Council.

BOSTON'S LITTLE DAILY.

The Boston Evening Record is well represented this year at Houghs Neck. If additions keep arriving the beach will be honored with a special press bureau. Bring them along.

Mary J. Manning, that popular little cashier of whom the office thinks so much, is summering at Boyden's cottage, Nut Island avenue. She got a little sunburn the first day at the beach.

Miss Sadie Daherty, known for her sunny smiles, swings her pen all day on the books, and makes a grab for her hat on the quitting stroke, and then sprints for the steamer. She is with friends on Bird street.

Henry E. Boone, that stately gentleman, will forsake his job as manager's assistant, August 1st and dig clams on Rock island. Harry can fish too!—if you take his word for it.

Charles E. Decker, one of the ad. men is anchored at the beach among the "all year rounds." He is one of those docile quiet fellows who always keeps out of trouble. Nuff Sed.

"Isn't that soldier a perfect love!" cried Arriet.

"No," said 'Arry. "'E's a dear. A grenadier."

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

Local business conditions do not seem to be very active just now and there appears to be a general lull all along the line. This is perhaps largely due to the hot weather and also the fact that many people are away on vacations.

If the people of Lawrence allow their Mayor, who is serving a three years' term in jail for bribery, to govern the city from the jail it reflects on the entelligence of that community. By his crime he is disqualified from further filling the position of Mayor.

Washington street residents are complaining of the dust on that street this summer. Perhaps if the road was oiled oftener and more thoroughly done it would improve conditions. The car track should be oiled and also both gutters. There is considerable dust flies from cars and autos using the car tracks.

The grim total of deaths from wrecked airships shows that a vast improvement in this line must be made before the general public can be induced to trust to the "sky line." No doubt the time will come when navigation of the air will be common and a trip from city to city will be an everyday affair. At present however, the ever reliable train or trolley is much to be preferred.

Some of the people who found fault because of the long rainy spell some weeks ago have been complaining lately over the heat. Nature makes no mistakes and the best way to do is to accept the weather conditions philosophically. One of the blessings of summer in this part of New England is the east wind. It is entirely independent of the scientific observations of the weather bureau and no man can predict at what minute it will spring up and turn a hot humid day into a season of delight with its cool salt breath.

One of the most beautiful drives in Quincy for autos or carriages is that to Houghs Neck, or would be under different conditions. The road has many pretty curves, is well shaded with glimpses along the way of country and ocean, but conditions are such that a ride over the road is seldom one of pleasure. The road is in bad shape and inches deep in dust most of the time. From the Centre to the cemetery there should be a good sidewalk and the street thoroughly watered. From the cemetery down to Houghs Neck the roadway should be oiled or watered enough to preserve the road and insure comfort to those driving over it. At Houghs Neck there should be sidewalks on both sides of Sea street. If the residents of Houghs Neck, the associations and councilmen of Ward One would get together on something of this kind it would benefit many.

DRIFT OF OPINION.

The value of a submarine as an attacking force was demonstrated on Monday, when the Bonita rammed the gunboat Castine, and would have destroyed her had the impact occurred a little further out to sea. As it was, the gunboat had barely time to reach shallow water where she was beached. The Castine was the flagship of the fleet of submarines that were maneuvering in Provincetown bay. The boats were engaged in a sham attack on the Castine. The Bonita miscalculated the distance and gave the gunboat a bump that would have sent her to the bottom except for the nearness of shallow water. If the submarine can do this in drill practice what may she not do in actual warfare? This style of boat is proving its efficiency. One of the class has proved her seaworthiness by a trip of 800 miles. With great fleets, composed of the heaviest war vessels afloat, to challenge the supremacy of the seas, and submarine boats to reinforce the visible fighting ships upon the surface and aeroplanes to circle in the upper air currents and drop bombs upon the vessels of an enemy, the American people may feel reasonably safe from invasion by any foreign power. The era of great battles on the ocean is near its end.—Lynn Item.

No man in connection with the recent teachers' convention talked more sound, practical sense than W. A. Hawkins, superintendent of the Jordan, March Co., store in Boston. He spoke as one who has had experience with the products of our schools. What he said should be read and treasured by every parent and by all having to do with our schools. Here it is:

"The child's prayer to the teacher should be: Give us that which will help us to earn our daily bread; and this is the answer to the prayer: Teach the boy to write a good plain hand and to express himself in the English language with precision and brevity; teach him to spell correctly; teach him to do examples in common arithmetic, such as addition, subtraction, extension, discount and percentage; inculcate honesty, truthfulness, courtesy, accuracy, initiative, persistency, and a love of hard work into that boy, and you have answered his prayer."

Instead of these essentials, we devote most of our time to things which Mr. Hawkins does not mention, among them the fads and fancies forced upon us by legislators who are led around by the nose by publishers and by those who make a "specialty" of some fad. The criticism of our schools should not fall too heavily on local school authorities, because they are hampered by recent senseless legislation.—Salem Evening News.

STOUGHTON MUSICAL SOCIETY.

The annual summer outing of the Stoughton Musical Society was held on the grounds of the president, Joseph Belcher of Randolph Saturday afternoon July 9th and although the weather was extremely warm. The outing proved a decided success in every way. The grounds of the president adjoin those of the Baptist church to which the society adjourned when rendering their musical program which consisted first of a fine orchestral performance which was followed by old time tunes for which this society is celebrated. These were interspersed with vocal and violin solos of rare merit. After the closing chorus "Great is the Lord" the society adjourned to the lawn of the president where they were bountifully served to ice cream, lemonade, etc.

After an hour spent in social converse the society passed a rousing vote of thanks to the president for his pleasing and bountiful entertainment and all voiced the sentiment that it was one of the most delightful outings ever held by this society. Mr. Faunce led in the closing hymn of America after which the society dispersed to their homes.

HIGHLAND PARK.

Every afternoon and evening the week of July 18, the people of Braintree ,and vicinity will have the opportunity of taking a ride to the skies in a real, genuine balloon. The balloon ,however, will be at all times in a postion where it is connected with the earth. This connection will be in the form of a rope attached to a windlass and operated by a motor, which is fully capable of bringing the rider to the heavens back to earth safely.

As a special attraction during the week the Old Colony Street Railway Co. has contracted with Prof. Myers to place at Highland Park his famous captive balloon. Prof. Myers is one of the oldest balloonists in the country; as a matter of fact, he was the first man to put a gasolene motor into an airship of any sort. The balloon will rise a thousand feet in the air ,and from this height one of the most magnificent views ever seen will unfold itself before the vision of the passenger who takes the trip. The experience of such a trip in the air is something which cannot be equalled. The professor's experience dates from 1878. He is one of the largest manufacturers of balloons and airships in the world and is regarded the most experienced operator with hydrogen in the country. At world's fairs his flights have always been conspicuous.

Boston Helps Fire Sufferers

MAY NOT HAVE LEFT ENGLAND

Search For Crippen Is Begun on the Southeast Coast

DRAGNET IS OUT FOR SLAYER

Now Seems Hardly Possible That He Can Long Escape Capture—Motive For Murder Baffles Police—Woman's $5000 Wardrobe and Her Jewelry Left Undisturbed After Her Death—Detectives Still Seeking Evidence

London, July 16.—The police have resumed their search of the tragic house at 39 Hildreth Crescent, determined to uncover every trace of the murder of Belle Elmore, the actress, whose body was found buried in quicklime in the cellar. Detectives trained to such work have begun an examination of all the floors and walls, tapping and at times demolishing them.

The hunt for Dr. H. H. Crippen, the American husband of the murdered woman, and for Ethel C. Leneve, his stenographer, is being pushed on with fresh vigor, every possible avenue of their flight being looked into.

The police have received an important clew indicating that the missing doctor and his girl companion are still in England. A thorough search of the southeast coast resorts was immediately begun.

Under the direct orders of the minister of justice every police official in France has taken up the hunt for Crippen.

At the request of the British authorities the German police have also instituted an extensive search for Crippen.

The motive for the murder, according to the police, is a baffling problem. One theory advanced is that the murderer beat his victim in a sudden fit of rage.

The fact that the woman's wardrobe, worth fully $5000 at a conservative estimate, and her jewelry were left undisturbed after her death, the police say, is regarded as significant.

The police are making a close examination to ascertain what insurance was carried on Mrs. Crippen's life. Advices from her relatives in New York say big policies were carried.

Inquiry of the officers of the Music Hall Artists' guild led to the declaration that the funds of the union, of which the murdered victim was treasurer, were believed intact.

An aspect of that case that has attracted much attention on the part of the authorities is the report that Miss Leneve, who had been Crippen's stenographer for several years in spite of his wife's plea for her discharge, married Crippen after Belle Elmore's disappearance. If she did, she is his third wife. Her marital status would be of great import as bearing on her ability to testify regarding the case.

Mrs. Walter Leneve, the girl's mother, insists that the couple now sought are married, but was forced to admit that her daughter, when asked had never been able to produce a marriage certificate.

Professor Pepper, the home office analyst, continued his examination of the body and especially the dug out part of the basement, as well as of the hairpins and other articles recovered by the police. The terrible mutilation of the body hinders absolute identification, and may prevent the production of the corpus delicti if a charge of murder is laid against anyone.

Steamers Closely Searched

New York, July 16.—The first of the big liners on which it was thought Dr. Crippen might reach here from England, whose police have requested his arrest, passed up the bay yesterday, after having undergone a search at quarantine which failed to reveal any sign of Crippen. The steamer was the big Lusitania, which left England on Saturday, when Crippen was supposed to have taken passage for this country in company with Ethel C. Leneve.

All other steamers from English ports reaching here within the next few days will be searched by the New York police. German lines which touch at an English port will be searched by the Hoboken police on their landing in that city, and no avenue of entrance to this country will be neglected in the effort to apprehend the fugitive.

Rich Clubman Seeks Divorce

Swampscott, Mass., July 16.—Eben B. Phillips, millionaire and prominent clubman, has filed a divorce libel against his wife, Lena F. Phillips, naming Raymond S. Joo, a nurse, as corespondent. Mrs. Phillips was divorced from her first husband, Amos B. Phillips, a Lynn barber, and a distant relative of the present millionaire plaintiff, in 1903.

Had Himself Chopped to Pieces

Toledo, O., July 16.—Jumping into a clay mixing machine and allowing the steel blades to cut and mangle him, is the way William Moore, 34, committed suicide at the workhouse here, where he was a prisoner.

TWO WOMEN KILLED BY TROLLEY CAR

Mother and Daughter Were on a Visit to Worcester

Worcester, Mass., July 16.—Mrs. Ozy Dufrault, 54, and her daughter, Mrs. Rosie Hanlon, 28, of Exeter, N. H., who were visiting another daughter, Mrs. John Richards, of this city, to help her care for her sick baby, were knocked down and killed by a street railway car last night.

Another daughter, Miss Mary Dufrault, had been left at the house with Mrs. Richards and the baby, while the other two went down town on some errands.

While they were crossing the track directly in front of their house a Springfield car came down the grade at a 25-mile clip. The motorman saw the couple on the track when he was fifty feet away, and although he threw the air and emergency brakes on so that passengers in the car were thrown from their seats, the heavy car did not stop in time.

The scene of the accident is on the outskirts of Worcester, at the foot of a down grade, and the cars run down at a terrific rate of speed.

VICKSBURG AT CORINTO

Gunboat Ordered by Washington to Afford Protection For Pittman

Washington, July 16.—The gunboat Vicksburg, which has been at Panama for the last few days for coal and supplies, has left for Corinto, on the west coast of Nicaragua, on orders from Washington.

She will remain at Coronto indefinitely to insure proper treatment to William P. Pittman of Cambridge, Mass., the American mining engineer, who was captured by the Madriz forces while engaged in laying mines during the recent battle at Bluefields.

For several weeks Pittman was confined at the bluff near Bluefields, and an American naval officer visited him every few days. About ten days ago, however, he was surreptitiously removed to Managua.

Castine Not Badly Damaged

Boston, July 16.—The actual damage to the hull of the gunboat Castine, which arrived at the navy yard here to undergo repairs on account of damage sustained by being rammed by the submarine boat Bonita during practice off Provincetown, is so slight that it can be repaired within a day or two.

Woman Balloonist Killed

London, July 16.—Viola Spencer died at Coventry of injuries sustained when, after a balloon ascension, her parachute failed to open.

MADE SILVER COIN MOULDS

Clergyman Pardoned by President to Re-establish His Citizenship

Washington, July 16.—President Taft has granted a pardon to take effect July 17, the date his term would expire, to Rev. James R. Kaye, who is now serving a term of six months in the Peoria house of correction for making moulds in the similitude of silver coin.

Kaye had filled pulpits in Presbyterian churches at Lincoln and Wheaton, Ills., and while at the former place, to increase his Sunday school attendance, he conceived the idea of offering medals to the children.

In experimenting with a view of making the medals he made plaster moulds, using coins as a model.

The experiment was unsuccessful and the moulds were thrown away. Subsequently they were found and Kaye was arrested for violating the law.

It was claimed in Kaye's behalf that there was no fraudulent intent involved, and the president, in order to re-establish his citizenship, granted him a pardon.

GRANTS TRIAL SEPARATION

Judge Believes Couple Will Be Reunited Before Half Year Expires

Poughkeepsie, N .Y., July 16.—In the supreme court here Justice Morschauser granted Mrs. Elizabeth Burger a six months' separation from her husband, Mortimer Burger, a Staatsburg machinist.

The court remarked that "absence makes the heart grow fonder," and he filed an order which cancels the separation after six months, believing the couple will become reunited

SUPT. CONWAY WILL BE HOST

Outing of Street Railway Clerks at Highland Park Today

Assistant General Superintendent John T. Conway of the Old Colony street railway is acting as host at Highland park today at the outing of the clerks in the Boston general offices of the Old Colony and Boston and Northern companies.

The party is due to arrive shortly after noon by special electrics and there will be more than 75 of them. In fact, all that can get away from the Boston offices, and there will also be some present from the Brockton office, and Hyde Park ad Quincy, where division offices are also located, will also probably send delegations. There will be ball games, sports and supper will be served at the park, and the party will return by electric about 9 o'clock.

Supt. Conway was busy all day Friday getting things in readiness for the outing and a good time is assured. Today is also the day when the new line from Braintree to Avon and Campello goes into service.

BRAINTREE HIGHLANDS

Miss Helen Emery is again at the family summer house on Washington street, after a month's stay at Alton Bay, N. H.

Miss Elizabeth Chase of Washington street is the guest of relatives in Cambridge for the remainder of the month.

TO CHANGE NAME.

The N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. has notified the petitioners for the change of name of the railroad station now known as Mayflower Park to Braintree Highlands ,that their petition has been considered favorably ,and that the name will be changed officially September 1. Notice has already been given to the conductors and the new name will appear in the fall time tables.

The new name was suggested by R. S. Hubbard, and a petition prepared by him was circulated first at an open meeting of the club now known as the Braintree Highlands Neighborhood club, which was highly in favor of the change. Later largely through the efforts of Harry Lake the petition received the signature of nearly every resident of the district. Some time ago Mr. Hubbard was given to understand by the railroad officials that the change would be made in all probability, but formal notice was not given until Thursday of this week. The name, however, began to be used to designate the section ,and as employed in the Observer-Reporter called forth much favorable comment from people living in other portions of Braintree.

The application of the name Mayflower Park to a limited section of the town, cutting off, as it did ,the extreme southern part from South Braintree, has brought about some uncomfortable conditions for those people living nearest the Holbrook line. Their nearest public telephone has been listed in Randolph, their mail is addressed to South Braintree, their express packages come to Holbrook, and their railroad station has been Mayflower Park, while they have belonged to none of these communities. Confusion has resulted.

The adoption of the new name is gratifying to practically all the people living in Braintree Highlands.

Went Back on His Authority.

Leslie Stephen's single meeting with Freeman, the historian, was in the nature of a collision. "I came in contact with him only once," he said. "He wrote a life of Alfred for the Dictionary of National Biography under my editorship, but declined to do more because we had a difference of opinion as to whether Athelstane should be spelled with an 'A.' That was, I confess, a question to which I was culpably indifferent, but I had taken competent advice, and my system (I forget what it was) had been elsewhere sanctioned by the great historian Stubbs. Now, as Freeman was never tired of asserting the infallibility of Stubbs, I innocently thought that I might take refuge behind so eminent an authority. The result was that for once Freeman blasphemed Stubbs and refused to cooperate any longer in an unscholarlike enterprise."

Stated a Fact.

"Do you see the horizon yonder where the sky seems to meet the earth?"

"Yes, uncle."

"Boy, I have journeyed so near there that I couldn't put a sixpence between my head and the sky."

"Oh, uncle, what a whopper!"

"It's a fact, my lad. I hadn't one to put."—Pearson's Weekly.

Boston, July 16.—That "Elijah" Sandford's barkentine Kingdom was in Massachusetts waters is the report of Captain Godfrey of the excursion steamer Cape Ann, which runs between Boston and Gloucester. The Kingdom has for some days kept out of reach of anxious process servers.

According to Godfrey the Kingdom was sighted about 3 p. m. while the Cape Ann was returning from Gloucester to Boston. The Kingdom was kept standing back and forth, all sails being set.

As the Cape Ann steamed by, the Kingdom put in towards shore until about two miles off Swampscott. Then a small boat was seen to put out from shore, containing two women and a man at the oars, and run alongside of the barkentine, which the women boarded. The Kingdom then put about to the eastward.

HUB CUSTOM HOUSE TO BE INVESTIGATED

Special Agents Will Begin Their Work on Sept. 1

Boston, July 16.—Arrangements for a special investigation of the Boston customs house, to start Sept. 1, are now completed, according to advices received from the treasury department in Washington.

The same corps of special agents who inspected the customs service in New York will repeat their work here. The board consists of eight members who will work in connection with the surveyor and collector.

In addition to making a thorough investigation of the accounts, methods of appraisal and inspection of goods and baggage, the special agents will attempt, it is said, the grading of the day customs inspectors.

The question of undervaluation at the appraisers' stores, which has been rumored about the port for years, will get a thorough probe for the purpose of stilling the cry one way or another.

The importation of sugar and hides, the two most valuable articles of import at this port, will also be thoroughly investigated.

Tramp Arrested For Taking Bath In Public Drinking Fountain

New Castle, Pa., July 16.—"Martin Walter, tramp, taking a bath," was the name of a prisoner and the charge written on the blotter at police headquarters. The charge prompted newspaper men to seek an interview, during which Walter said:

"This is the first time I have ever been arrested. I didn't steal any of the watre; not even a drop got into my stomach."

Policeman Nelson, who made the arrest, said he had found Walter with soap and towel scrubbing himself in a public drinking fountain. Walter told Mayor Lusk that he liked to wash even if he was a tramp, and he was promptly released.

SUPT. CONWAY WILL BE HOST

Outing of Street Railway Clerks at Highland Park Today

Assistant General Superintendent John T. Conway of the Old Colony street railway is acting as host at Highland park today at the outing of the clerks in the Boston general offices of the Old Colony and Boston and Northern companies.

The party is due to arrive shortly after noon by special electrics and there will be more than 75 of them. In fact, all that can get away from the Boston offices, and there will also be some present from the Brockton office, and Hyde Park ad Quincy, where division offices are also located, will also probably send delegations. There will be ball games, sports and supper will be served at the park, and the party will return by electric about 9 o'clock.

Supt. Conway was busy all day Friday getting things in readiness for the outing and a good time is assured. Today is also the day when the new line from Braintree to Avon and Campello goes into service.

BRAINTREE HIGHLANDS

Miss Helen Emery is again at the family summer house on Washington street, after a month's stay at Alton Bay, N. H.

Miss Elizabeth Chase of Washington street is the guest of relatives in Cambridge for the remainder of the month.

TO CHANGE NAME.

The N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. has notified the petitioners for the change of name of the railroad station now known as Mayflower Park to Braintree Highlands ,that their petition has been considered favorably ,and that the name will be changed officially September 1. Notice has already been given to the conductors and the new name will appear in the fall time tables.

The new name was suggested by R. S. Hubbard, and a petition prepared by him was circulated first at an open meeting of the club now known as the Braintree Highlands Neighborhood club, which was highly in favor of the change. Later largely through the efforts of Harry Lake the petition received the signature of nearly every resident of the district. Some time ago Mr. Hubbard was given to understand by the railroad officials that the change would be made in all probability, but formal notice was not given until Thursday of this week. The name, however, began to be used to designate the section ,and as employed in the Observer-Reporter called forth much favorable comment from people living in other portions of Braintree.

The application of the name Mayflower Park to a limited section of the town, cutting off, as it did ,the extreme southern part from South Braintree, has brought about some uncomfortable conditions for those people living nearest the Holbrook line. Their nearest public telephone has been listed in Randolph, their mail is addressed to South Braintree, their express packages come to Holbrook, and their railroad station has been Mayflower Park, while they have belonged to none of these communities. Confusion has resulted.

The adoption of the new name is gratifying to practically all the people living in Braintree Highlands.

Went Back on His Authority.

Leslie Stephen's single meeting with Freeman, the historian, was in the nature of a collision. "I came in contact with him only once," he said. "He wrote a life of Alfred for the Dictionary of National Biography under my editorship, but declined to do more because we had a difference of opinion as to whether Athelstane should be spelled with an 'A.' That was, I confess, a question to which I was culpably indifferent, but I had taken competent advice, and my system (I forget what it was) had been elsewhere sanctioned by the great historian Stubbs. Now, as Freeman was never tired of asserting the infallibility of Stubbs, I innocently thought that I might take refuge behind so eminent an authority. The result was that for once Freeman blasphemed Stubbs and refused to cooperate any longer in an unscholarlike enterprise."

Stated a Fact.

"Do you see the horizon yonder where the sky seems to meet the earth?"

"Yes, uncle."

"Boy, I have journeyed so near there that I couldn't put a sixpence between my head and the sky."

"Oh, uncle, what a whopper!"

"It's a fact, my lad. I hadn't one to put."—Pearson's Weekly.

ILLUSTRATED QUINCY.

The August issue of the New England magazine will publish at the request a number of Quincy's leading citizens an illustrated article on the city of Quincy.

The Board of Trade, Merchants' Association, Granite Manufacturers association, Fore River Ship Building Co. and banks are showing great interest in the article and it is expected that it will aid in booming Quincy as a manufacturing and residential city.

Articles of this nature published before by this magaine have been so successful in their purpose there is no doubt of the value of this form of publicity.

Taken in connection with the boom days the city has recently had, it should give added stimulent to business in the near future.

The article will deal with the business and social life of the city and will also have an able sketch of past history of the city.

UNION CHURCH MEN'S CLUB.

The Men's club of the Houghs Neck Union chapel will hold a public installation of officers Monday evening at 8 oclock. All men of Quincy and Houghs Neck are most cordially invited to attend. This club started in May with 13 members and has now grown to 33. Its object is to bring fraternally together its men to promote clean entertainments and be a general organization for the betterment of the district. It has some of the best men at the beach on its charter and applications for many more. Prepartions are under way for a pleasant surprise to the general public which will mature within the next thirty days. Notice of which will be given later. Visit the club on July 18, and bring a friend.

JAMES M. GUFFEY

He Is a Multi-Millionaire, but Short of Ready Cash

INDEBTEDNESS OF $6,700,000

Receiver Appointed For Man With $17,000,000 Assets

OIL MAN IS EMBARRASSED

Colonel Guffey Has No Ready Money With Which to Make Heavy Payments Now Due—National Committeeman Who Opposed Bryan Seeks to Prevent Sacrifice of Stocks and Bonds of Great Value

Pittsburg, July 16.—Colonel James M. Guffey, national Democratic committeeman for Pennsylvania, who figured so prominently as an object of attack by the Bryan adherents at the last national Democratic convention in Denver—a multi-millionaire oil man—has gone into the hands of a receiver, who was appointed last evening by Judge Swearingen in the common pleas court of this county.

The action was taken upon a bill in equity filed by J. H. Galey. John S. Willard, who is familiar with Guffey's affairs, was named as receiver.

The bill alleges that Guffey's indebtedness is about $6,700,000, of which about $950,000 is unsecured, that the defendant has no ready money with which to meet the payments due, and that certain creditors are threatening to sell his collaterals and enter suit.

It is further asserted that Guffey has assets of over $17,0000,000, a large part of which is stock of the J. M. Guffey company, and the West Virginia company, two coal companies which own 136,700 acres of coking coal in the state of West Virginia.

These properties are asserted to be worth at least $15,000,000, and the bill in equity maintains that they are estimated to contain two billion tons of coal, which at a profit of 1 cent per ton would realize $20,000,000. Other assets of Guffey to the value of two or three millions consist of stocks and bonds of other corporations.

All of these stocks and bonds are pledged as collateral and the receivership was found necessary to prevent a sacrifice of this collateral. The order of court restrains all creditors from disposing of any of the collateral securities or other assets of Guffey pending further order of the court. Guffey said:,

"I very much regret that to conserve all of my estates a receivership becomes necessary. This course affords absolute protection for all my obligations, as well as protection for myself.

"My assets are more than double the amount of my obligations. I don't expect the receivership to continue any great length of time."

MUST DIE FOR MURDER

Governor Draper Refuses to Commute Sentence of Napoleon Rivet

Boston, July 16.—Napoleon Rivet, convicted of murdering Joseph Gailloux at Lowell, must die in the electric chair. This was decreed by a refusal by Governor Draper to commute the sentence of the murderer, and notice of his refusal was sent to his attorney.

The governor states in his letter that he does not find that the new evidence submitted is of sufficient importance to set aside the sentence of the court, which was pronounced after a fair and impartial trial.

Shootup In Florida Church

Tampa, Fla., July 16.—Three negroes were shot to death here in a church last night. At least fifty shots were fired through the windows. Congregational differences are believed to be the cause.

MOTHER-IN-LAW IS HIS MOTHER

How a Postal Employe Solved a Perplexing Problem

MAKES STEPSISTER HIS WIFE

Stepfather and Maternal Parent Bestow Parental Blessing on Couple Who Stole Away to Be Married After Parents Had Vainly Tried to Discourage Match on Account of Nearness of Relationship

New York, July 16.—At last the perplexing mother-in-law question has been solved—not by a Solomonic dispenser of law or regulator of human affairs, but by Frank Gannon of Corona, L. I.

Inasmuch as it is sometimes apparently impossible in the course of human events to avoid annexing one of these desirables, or undesirables, as the case may be, Gannon decided that he would make sure that his mother-in-law would be what he termed "all to the merry." So, paradoxical as it may seem, he made his own mother his mother-in-law.

That he made a good choice is evidenced by the fact that his mother has showered her maternal and also mother-in-law blessings on him and is helping him and his wife, who, of course, in her daughter-in-law, to furnish their home and settle down. And consequently today the son, his mother and mother-in-law and his wife are all happy and delighted.

Here is the solution of the tangle: When John Padian of Corona, a widower, with one daughter, wedded Mrs. Frank Gannon, a widow, with two daughters and one son, about two years ago, and all decided to live in the same house, Dan Cupid took a mental note of conditions and lingered around.

His waiting bore fruit when Mrs. Gannon's son Frank and Miss Anna Padian stole quietly out of the house and made a line for the home of Rev. John O'Toole and were married.

The parents had tried to discourage a match on account of the relationship of stepbrother and stepsister, but to no avail. When the couple went back smiling to their parents' home and said they had just been married, the parents felt sorry they ever offered an objection and immediately gave the parental blessing.

The bride was a telephone operator in the Flushing exchange and very popular with her associates. The bridegroom is employed in the New York postoffice. The couple have started housekeeping in Corona.

PLEASED AT "OPEN DOOR"

China Is Fully Satisfied With the Russo-Japanese Agreement

Pekin, July 16.—In acknowledging the receipt of the text of the Russo-Japanese convention, which was presented to the foreign office by the diplomatic representatives of the contracting parties, China expresses her satisfaction over the avowed purpose of Russia and Japan to adhere to the terms of the Portsmouth treaty.

The government, further, expresses pleasure over the mutual pledge for the maintenance in Manchuria of the status quo and the principle of the open door for commercial development.

NEGOTIATIONS STILL ON

Pennsylvania Railroad Strike Situation Is Less Strained

Pittsburg, July 16.—A crisis which seemed to threaten in wage negotiations between the Pennsylvania railroad and their 25,000 conductors and trainmen was considerably relieved last night.

After a two hours' conference between railroad officials and a general committee representing the 10,000 men involved on lines west of Pittsburg, it was announced by the committee that negotiations were still on and th esituation was much less strained.

"BIG BILL" HAWLEY LOSES

Claim Against Mrs. Gould For Alleged Loan Thrown Out of Court

New York, July 16.—The claim against Mrs. Katherine C. Gould, former wife of Howard Gould, for $2428, made by "Big Bill" Hawley, was thrown out of court by Justice Giegerich.

The application was dismissed upon the application of counsel for Mrs. Gould. Hawley, whose real name is Woodward, based his claim on an alleged loan made originally in 1894.

STEAMERS CRASH IN FOG

Fears That the Regulus May Have Gone Down Off Nantucket

New York, July 16.—The Kaerina and Regulus, British tramp steamers, were in collision about twenty-five miles off Nantucket. Both were seriously damaged, and it is feared that the Regulus may have gone down, as she disappeared immediately after the crash.

The disaster became known here when the Kaerina, which left Tuesday for the Orient, limped into port.

According to the report of her skipper, the Kaerina was proceeding cautiously because of the thick weather. Without any warning heard by those on the British steamer, the Regulus loomed up out of the fog and crashed into the Kaerina head-on on the port side abaft the engine room, making a big hole in the steamer's side.

As the Regulus sheered off after the crash it could be seen from the Kaerina's decks that she was badly damaged about her bow. Just how serious her injuries were, however, was not learned, as the Regulus was speedily swallowed up by the fog and the crew of the Kaerina had their hands full in keeping their own vessel above water.

TRAVELING SINCE 1906

Man Who Was Drawn 25,000 Miles by Dogs Wins Wager of $10,000

Los Angeles, Cal., July 16.—William Brown of St. John's has arrived here in a cart drawn by four dogs, saying that his arrival completed a 25,000-mile journey in his unusual vehicle, thereby winning a wager of $10,000.

As a result of a discussion among members of the National Sporting club of Newfoundland, Brown says the money was put up in 1906 to be paid to him providing that, after leaving St. John's without money, he traveled a distance equal to the circumference of the earth within seven years.

After traveling through the eastern states, he says, he took a steamer to Europe, having obtained the money for his passage by selling pictures of his outfit. He traveled through Ireland and England as well as the continental countries.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

NO REASON FOR IT

When Quincy Citizens Show the Certain Way Out.

There can be no just reason why any reader of this will continue to suffer the tortures of an aching back, the annoyance of urinary disorders, the dangers of diabetes of any kidney ills when relief is so near at hand and the most positive proof given that they can be cured. Read what a Quincy citizen says:

James P. Daugherty, Hammond Place, Quincy, Mass., says: "I have used Doan's Kidney Pills and am glad to let other sufferers know what they have done for me. I was bothered a great deal by back ache and had but little strength or energy to do my day's work. I took many so-called kidney cures, but did not succeed in finding relief until I began using Doan's Kidney Pills which I procured at the Cox Drug Store. I was surprised and gratified at the prompt way in which they relieved me. My back was soon strong and free from pain and I felt better generally. I would go to considerable trouble to induce anyone to use Doan's Kidney Pills, as I have so much confidence in them."

SYNOPSIS

A party of titled passengers on a ship bound for Australia visit a section "below decks" where a gang of convicts sentenced to deportation are confined. The ship, the Lord Nelson is wrecked. A convict, the "Frisco Pet," jumps overboard with Jocelyn Wray, a pretty little girl. The convict, after returning the girl to her friends is himself later cast away alone on a deserted island. Years have passed. Lord Ronsdale and other members of the party wrecked on the Lord Nelson, including Jocelyn Wray, go to the criminal courts in London to hear John Steele, a famous young lawyer, try a case. Steele and Jocelyn meet and form a liking for each other. Lord Ronsdale, who would marry Jocelyn, forms a violent dislike for Steele. Ronsdale had at the wreck of the Lord Nelson prevented the rescue of the "Frisco Pet" by a lifeboat. Ronsdale is startled at the sight of a tattoo mark on Steele's arm. Ronsdale puts a detective, Gillett, on Steele's trail to establish his identity. He is certain Steele is the "Frisco Pet." Steele, none other than the "Frisco Pet," begins a hunt for Tom Rogers, the only man who can establish his innocence of the murder for which he had been deported years before. Steele visits Strathorn House, where Jocelyn Wray, Lord Ronsdale and others are present.

(CHAPTER X—Continued.)

"Go on," said Lord Ronsdale.

"From the mate of the Laura Deane, the schooner that rescued him from the isle, and one of her crew whom I managed to locate at Plymouth, as I have informed your lordship by letter," answered Mr. Gillett. "These men now furnish lodgings to seamen and incidentally shanghai a few of them for dubious craft. Both of them, the mate and the sailor, recalled the man of fine bearing and education whom they found on the little isle, a sort of Greek statue, half clothed in rags, so to speak, who made his personality felt at once on these simple, ignorant fellows. At the spring on the little island the seamen filled their water butts. This kept them several days, mixing labor with skylarking, during which time one of them picked up something—a pouch marked with a name."

"Which was?"

Mr. Gillett leaned forward, spoke softly; Lord Ronsdale stared straight ahead. "Of course," he said; "of course!"

"This, I will confess, startled, puzzled me," continued the police agent. "I tried to explain it in a dozen different ways. Then it was that the line of special investigation helped. John Steele's outing to which you directed my attention was passed on the continent. After a good deal of pains we discovered that he visited a certain large building in Paris.

"This led to an inspection of the tenants. They proved of all sorts and kinds. The place was a beehive. Hundreds of people entered and left every day. At this time I happened on an item in a periodical about some remarkable work in a certain line by a high class medical specialist. Here is the paragraph."

Lord Ronsdale took the slip of paper the other handed him and briefly looked at it. "You visited this person?"

"Yes, as his office address was mentioned as being in the large building we were interested in. But at the moment I had no suspicion that John Steele's pilgrimage to Paris could have been for the purpose of consulting"—

"An eminent specialist in the line of removing birthmarks," read the nobleman, glancing at the slip of paper, "or other disfigurements"—

"One question, my lord. He is discerning—knows that you are"—

"Knows? Yes. He found that out one day in Hyde park."

"And yet he comes down here, dares to leave London, where at least his chances are better for—but why?"

"Why?" Lord Ronsdale's smile was not agreeable. "When does a man become illogical? When does he accept chances, however desperate?"

"When?" The police agent's tones expressed vague wonder. "Why, when—there is a woman in the case," suddenly—"a woman or a girl."

"Is there anything else you have to tell me?" asked Lord Ronsdale.

"Only one thing, and it may have no bearing on the case. Some one who has not been seen in these parts in years, the red headed son of the landlady where the Gerard murder occurred, has been back in London, and—Steele's looking for him, for what purpose I don't know." The nobleman moved quickly. "But he hasn't found him—yet. Apparently the fellow took alarm, knowing the police agent might want him, and vanished again."

—Broken lenses matched. Oculists prescriptions for glasses carefully filled at short notice. Williams, optician, 1473 Hancock street, Quincy. Tel. 279-3. Residence 323-3.

"I have made my plans," he finally said. "And—I intend to act."

"Where?"

"Here, and at once."

CHAPTER XI.

REVELATIONS.

NIGHT at Strathorn House. John Steele walked slowly on the broad stone balcony toward the ballroom. There he had stopped; then, stepping to the balustrade, he stood looking off. The night was warm. In the sky stars seemed trying to maintain their places between dark, floating clouds. The sound of music was wafted from within. John Steele listened. They were beginning once more to dance. He stepped toward the window and paused. His eyes seemed searching the throng. They found what they sought—a slender, erect form, the gown soft, white, like foam; a face animated, joyous. For an instant only, however, he saw the beautiful features; then as Jocelyn turned in the dance around her waist glimpsed a black band tipped by slender masculine fingers; above, a cynical countenance. Or was it all cynical now? A brief glance showed more than the habitual expression, a sedulousness, some passionate feeling. Lord Ronsdale's look seemed once more to say he held and claimed her—that she was his or soon would be.

The moments passed. A distant buzz replaced melody—the human murmur, the scraping of strings. From the forest came a faraway cry, the melancholy sound of some wood creature. He continued motionless, then suddenly wheeled swiftly.

"That is you, Mr. Steele?" A voice, young, gay, sounded near. Jocelyn Wray came toward him. From her shoulders floated a white scarf. "You have come out for the freshness of the garden? Although," she added, "you shouldn't altogether seclude yourself from the madding crowd."

"No?"

Did she note the strangeness of the look she seemed to have surprised on his face? Her own glance grew on the instant slightly puzzled and showed a passing constraint. Then her manner became light again. "No. Especially as— You are leaving tomorrow, I believe?"

"Yes." He tried to speak in conventional tones, but his gaze swerved from the graceful figure with its dim, white lines that changed and fluttered in the faint breath of air, stealing so gently by them and away. "My time is almost up—the allotted period of my brief Elysium!" he half laughed. "I have enjoyed myself immensely—much more than I deserve."

"Have you?" She glanced at him. A flicker of light touched the strong face.

It seemed difficult for him to speak. Finally he said:

"I have neglected or forgotten the pleasure," with a slight laugh, "of congratulating you. Is that the word? Or Lord Ronsdale—he, I believe, is the one to be congratulated."

"Congratulated?" Her face had changed, grown colder. His hand grasped the stone balustrade, but he forced a smile to his lips. "I cannot imagine who has started—why you speak thus. Lord Ronsdale is an old friend of my uncle and mine, too, but that is all. You are mistaken."

"Mistaken?" The word broke from him quickly. The strained expression of his face gave way to another he could ill conceal.

"Goodby!" he said slowly. "I am leaving rather early in the morning. I shall not see you again."

"Goodby—at least until we meet in London," she ended lightly.

"That may not be."

"Why, you are not thinking of deserting your dingy metropolis?"

He did not answer.

Did she realize he was saying goodby to her for all time? She held her head higher, pressed her lips slightly closer; then she sought to withdraw her hand, but he, as hardly knowing what he did or yielding to sudden, irresistible temptation, clasped for an instant the slim fingers closer. They seemed to quiver in his.

John Steele breathed deeply. He continued to regard her, so fair, so beautiful. An instant and he bent. A breath or his lips swept the delicate white fingers; then he dropped them. Her hand swung back against the cold stone. On her breast something bright, an ornament, fluttered, became still. Behind a bird chirped. Her glance turned toward the ballroom.

"I"—

Other voices, loud, merry, coming from one of the open French windows interrupted.

A BOSTON GIRL'S BUDGET.

A Sunset Service for the Serious of Soul—Beaches Bring Relief and Blisters to Hub's Inland Visitors—How Ancient Puritans "Fixed Up Castle Island for a Pleasure Park for Poor People"—Just Dance on Ship Board and Your Dinner Wont Budge—Boston Gets Credit as Cradle of Public School Music.

The intense heat of recent days has driven the visiting school teachers and other conventionites as well as the natives of the Hub to seek relief and sunburn at the beaches. Groups of visitors, some of whom have never before seen the salt water or slapped a seaside sand flea debate on the various points of interest in Boston Harbor, on the different kinds of vessels passing or anchored in the waters of the Bay, and in general exhibit the most lively interest in everything marine. It is equally interesting not infrequently to hear the information vouchsafed by the well intentioned but somewhat mixed Bostonian regarding the various islands, forts and other landmarks of the harbor. One loquacious if inaccurate pilot of a small group of educators pointed out Fort Independence, the oldest active fortification in the United States, and remarked, "That island there is Castle island. They built a pier out from the mainland a long time ago, and fixed up the island like a fort for a pleasure park for the poor people. You ought to see the crowd there on Sundays and holidays."

A picturesque portion of the programme of the Episcopal conference which has lately been under way at the Episcopal Theological school in Cambridge is the sunset service which is held each evening. As the sun nears its setting the delegates congregate under the trees in the school yard, and cluster around the speaker. A small organ is moved out on the lawn and furnishes music for the singing. It is a novel and empressive sight, and is thoroughly enjoyed by the theologians.

Credit to Boston as the cradle of public school music was specifically given at the great educational convention which has just closed by Charles I. Rice, director of music in the Worcester schools. Everybody knows, of course, that when a young person of today wants to make a living as supervisor or teacher of music in some American school system he, or she, heads straight to the Conservatory in Boston to secure the requisite training. Not everybody, however, even in New England realizes how old this primacy in musical education really is. Mr. Rice's paper showed that the first attempt to introduce music into the public schools of any city was made in Boston in 1836. It was successful the year following. The credit for the departure rests mainly with three men: Dr. Lowell Mason, the most famous music teacher of his day and grandfather of the present generation of Masons who have done so much to encourage musical art at the New England Conservatory and elsewhere; George J. Well, one of the pioneers in the popularization of classical music and Samuel A. Eliot, father of former President Eliot of Harvard and for many years a member of the school board of Boston, a man of refined taste and imaginative capacity. Since the efforts of these three men were crowned with success the movement has spread until there are now few school systems of any size which are without provisions for musical study and the work of supplying competent teachers, centralized in Boston, has grown to great proportions at the world's largest and best equipped conservatory. People sometimes wonder what becomes of the thousands of young men and young women who throng the class rooms of the music school Huntington Avenue. There certainly is no chance for all of them to be Nordicas and Homers or even to hold enviable positions in symphony orchestras or grand opera choruses. How do they all make a living after they leave school? The answer is easily found by examination of the records of New England Conservatory alumni, thousands of whom are found to be engaged at good living salaries as supervisors of music in public schools or as teachers of music in private institutions.

"Follow the leader" is an old game; it is the greatest of modern games, according to an article on "Democracy and Industrial Leadership" by Frederick W. Coburn of this city, in the July number of the Editorial Review—a contribution, by the way, which is of especial New England interest because the illustrations are drawn from the conduct of that great efficient and quasi military organization, the Boston Elevated Railway Company. Starting with a criticism of the company's method of handling its men made by a well known rabbi, eminent among social reformers, the author shows how necessary it is to the safety of the traveling public, who takes nearly three hundred million rides a year over the lines of this system, that the minutest regulations of the rule book which each employee carries in his pocket, shall be implicitly obeyed. "It is far more immportant," he says, "to those who use the cars that the motorman or conductor shall be familiar with that book than with the provisions of the Constitution of the United States. He may have no idea of the composition of the electoral college, may never have cast a vote, and still be a very useful citizen if he lives up to his public service duties." As a contrast to the thorough going and beneficent militarism of the Boston Elevated Company an organization which by universal admission is surprisingly well run from the point of view of the safety and comfort of its passengers, Mr. Coburn refers pointedly to familiar conditions on some of the steam railroads on which, as was startingly brought out in the "Confessions of a Railroad Signalman," individual initiative and the spirit of independence have had large play. "The traditional railroad in the United States," he writes, "has been run cooperatively by rought and ready men, constituting an intelligent democracy of the kind that is the expressed or implied ideal of many social reformers. With none too much of the military spirit that involves generalship, discipline, respect for constituted authority, the trains have been entrusted to a body of fine, independent citizens to act on their own initiative. These representatives of American democracy in the industrial world have killed and maimed the public and themselves at the rate of a hundred thousand a year. The comparative freedom of the eletric railway company in question from serious accidents is a sign of the success of applied militarism." Various anecdotes told of the firmness and justice with which the discipline of this transportation company is maintained certainly give a feeling of assurance that the interests of the public who patronize the Boston street cars are not neglected on account of any fine spun theories of democracy.

Trip the light fantastic and your mal-de-mer will vanish. A sudden decrease in seasickness is predicted as a consequence of a recent discovery of the Countess de Pierrefeus. If you are travelling on the water one of these days and you hear sounds of pattering feet and huming on all sides, you may know that the dancing cure is in process. Mme. de Pierrefeu has found out, quite accidentally, that if one dances a few minutes immediately upon rising in the morning there is not the slightest danger of anything else coming up. An Athenian intellect is needed to explain. The well known Boston society girl who has become a noted barefoot dancer sets forth her conclusions thus: "Seasickness is nothing but a lack of corelation between the feet and the brain induced by a slight oscillatory motion beneath the feet. It need not be a violent motion. The slightest motion is sufficient to induce seasickness. At least I have discovered the cure. It is nothing more nor less than the constant motion of the feet on arising every day, so that the brain is adjusted to any motion, great or small, which may be generated beneath the feet during the day" Therefore, you who are poor sailors, get up and dance a jig if you can find room in youh stateroom, and then be about all day enjoying the glorious salt air.

Paymaster Haughey Dismissed From Navy on Embezzlement Charge

Boston, July 16.—Assistant Paymaster Lawrence G. Haughey has been dismissed from the navy, with the approval of the president, on a charge of embezzlement.

Haughey had a trial by court martial, after which he was fined ten numbers as a consequence of culpable inefficiency. On a rehearing of his case, the findings of which were made public yesterday, he was dismissed from the service.

The charges grew out of the disappearance of $3000 from the safe of the gunboat Castine while it lay at the Boston navy yard during Haughey's absence ashore.

BRIEFS

Charles E. Gill chairman of the Park Commissioners leaves today for Casco Bay, Me., where he will remain until the first of August.

For the remainder of July and during August the Epworth League of the Hall Place M. E. church will omit the regular devotional meeting usually held at 6.15 P. M. and unite with the general Gospel service Sunday evening at 7 o'clock.

The chorus that has been so faithful in giving their services to the Memorial Congregational church, both young and old ,are planning a trip to Plymouth the last of the month. The trip is under the supervision of William Harding who has been at the head of the music committee for the past year.

The Rockland Standard is publishing items of news which appeared years ago in its columns and this week among those of thirty years ago in July 1880 appears the following: Married in Quincy June 20 by the Rev. Mr. Snively, Franklin Poole of Rockland to Miss Madeline Hayden of Quincy."

TODAY'S OPEN RACE.

A large number of entries have been received for the annual interclub race this afternoon under the auspices of the Quincy Yacht club. The races are scheduled to start at 3 o'clock and with a good breeze, a spirited race is assured.

Sporting Notes.

The University of Illinois football squad has been presented with ovals with which to practice during the summer vacation.

The Federation of American Motorcyclers will hold its annual meet at the Point Breeze race track, Philadelphia, Aug. 12 and 13.

Tom Longboat and Alfred Shrubb may run a feature fifteen mile race at the Scotch Caledonian games at Boston Aug. 7. Neither has run for several months.

A Costly Prayer Book.

Queen Elizabeth used to carry about with her suspended by a chain of pure gold a book called "The Golden Manual of Prayer," a dainty volume of 300 pages bound in "hammered virgin gold." One side of this costly volume gave a representation of the judgment of Solomon, the other the brazen serpent on the cross in the desert.

—When W. H. Van Slyke, cashier of Merchants & Miners' bank at Chelan, Wash., married Miss Mary B. Baker, also of that city ,a few days ago, a peculiar marital relation was formed. The bride is a sister of Mrs. J. B. Van Slyke, second wife of the father of the bridegroom ,and therefore is an aunt to her own husband. Mrs. W. H. Van Slyke's sister is now her mother-in-law and her father-in-law is also her brother-in-law. Mrs. J. B. Van Slyke is step-mother to W. H. Van Slyke, also his sister-in-law and his aunt-in-law. J. B. Van Slyke is a brother-in-law to his son and is also his father-in-law. Some one has figured out that if children are born to the couple their grandfather will also be their uncle and their aunt would become their step-grandmother, their father would be their step-cousin and their mother would become their great aunt-in-law.

DEATHS.

ENDICOTT—In East Weymouth, July 15, Mrs. Charles W. Endicott, aged 48 years and 2 months.

ATHERTON HOUGH SCHOOL.

The Atherton Hough school building which is to be finished by September is being put up in a manner that warrants the estimate. Already the walls of the building are erected and ready for the roof girders and though of course no finishing work has been done yet it will no doubt soon be taken up.

The building is about one hundred feet removed from the street at the junction of Sea street and Manet avenue, exactly opposite the Houghs Neck fire station. It is two stories high and finished with granite. Two class rooms will be on each side of a main hall and extend the depth of the building and on the first floor the principal's office will be located. The most modern heating and ventilating systems possible will be installed and numerous windows assure ample light.

The building will be a great convenience to those parents and children who have heretofore had to look to the Coddington school for the priveleges of the public schools.

SPORTING CHAT.

The Rockland Standard published yesterday allows thatMatty Nicoll can slide hases in a class by himself. He swiped two. And it also dopes Quincy to win today which leads one to feel sure the Rockland Standard is a well edited sheet.

* * *

The interclub open races are being run off at Quincy today. There is bound to be the hottest rivalry and the cup race contenders can be doped fairly well.

* * *

Two or three Quincy horses have taken blue ribbons at the weekly meets of the Dorchester Driving club. The events are run off on the speedway around Franklin Field.

* * *

Boston is surely hitting the pace. The White Sox and their best pitchers have fallen before the mighty bludgeons of the Red Legged men and it isn't their hitting ability alone because every man has been contributing brilliant fielding displays every day.

* * *

Connie Mack who runs the Athletics, thinks the Boston team will contend with his own club for the flag as they are a better road team than any in the league. Besides look what they've been doing with Lord out of the game.

* * *

The Apprentices are up against the team that administered a fall to another Quincy team not long ago. It will certainly be close work for the Fore River boys to win.

* * *

The Makarias had to patch up their team for today, only five regulars being in harness for the trip to Norwell.

* * *

Park Commissioner Gill was a visitor at the bath house yesterday. He was surprized at the number of bathers and agrees with Instructor Starr that the plant should be enlarged.

* * *

G. H. Eggleton, captain of the Makarias, will be out of the game the next few Saturdays as he left for Philadelphia and Atlantic City on Friday. Eggleton will be greatly missed as his center fielding is always one of the features of the game.

The Third Derelict

A Hairbreadth Escape From Death

By BRADFORD K. DANIELS

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

As the Ylang rounded the headland I noticed them off to the starboard, two hulks, red with rust, awash under the branches of the big trees that grew in a dense forest far out into the shallow water of the lagoon. One steamer was wedged in between great boles, the tops of its masts showing oddly above the overhanging greenery. The other lay well over upon its side, like some portly marine monster that had taken shelter there from the tropic sun. How any person not a positive idiot could have blundered into such a place passed my comprehension.

The repeated blasts from our whistle had roused the owner of the cocoanut grove that was to furnish us our cargo, and presently the white drill suit and pith helmet which we always associate with the white man in the tropics appeared in the stern of a boat which glided out from under the trees. Before our gangplank was fairly lowered a tall, rawboned young English man, distinctly of the "gentleman" type, came over the ship's side and introduced himself as Shackleford, the man with whom I had contracted to carry a load of nuts to Liverpool.

"No, I haven't a black on the place," he explained in response to an inquiry of mine as we took our places in his flat bottomed boat, manned wholly by Chinamen, and started for his bungalow, whose corrugated roof blazed in the intense sunlight through a rift in the cocoanut grove. "It costs three times as much for Chinese labor, but for some reason I can't get a nigger to come near the plantation."

"That's strange."

"Wait till tonight and you'll hear as horrible row as you ever heard. Then you'll know. The mountains back there are alive with apes. That is why I put up a twenty-five foot high barbed wire fence."

That evening we were sitting in the bungalow, sipping whisky and soda and swapping yarns about Penang, when a volley of barks, sharp as the rattle of musketry, made me spring up in alarm.

Shackleford put down his glass and haw-hawed. "It's only those blasted apes," he explained when he had managed to control his mirth. "Take down that rifle and come along."

Armed with Winchesters, we made our way to the edge of the grove nearest the spur of the mountain. As we approached a chorus of snarls greeted us, and in the clear starlight I saw a host of infuriated apes hurling themselves against the barbed wire fence.

For a time the brutes paid little heed to our fusillade. Then, under the leadership of a huge gray ape, they broke and made for cover.

The great grizzled brute was the last to retire, and at the edge of the jungle it turned and gibbered at us in a way that made my flesh creep. It seemed to voice the fathomless hatred of the whole jungle world for the usurper man.

The next morning on our way back to the steamer I asked Shackleford about the two wrecks.

"Oh, I fancy the fool captains could not steer straight," he replied lightly. "Longstreth—that's the chap I bought the grove from—said that both ships were loaded with cocoanuts. He would not talk much about it, though—too sour to talk about anything."

Later, to satisfy my curiosity, I rowed over and had a look at the hulks, and as I examined them I noted two facts that kept me speculating for days. Before either steamer went into its present position the boats had been hastily slashed away, and there wasn't a single cocoanut to be seen in either hold.

That night I spent ashore again with Shackleford, and when I returned to my ship the following morning I found it in an ominous state of excitement. Usually the Chinese portion of it occupied the forward part of the main deck, eating and sleeping in the corners among the steam winches. The lascars had always claimed the forecastle head, where their tall, gaunt bodies and swathed heads seemed an inseparable part of the ship. Now, however, race and caste were forgotten, and turbans and pigtails mingled promiscuously in groups that whispered eagerly in a dozen corners.

At sight of me they quickly dispersed, but with those two rusty hulks looming up yonder as object lessons I took prompt measures to forestall a possible mutiny. Summoning the first mate—a half caste from Calcutta that I had picked up in Penang when MacPherson died of cholera—I locked the door behind him, left my revolver on the table, where he could meditate upon its use as we talked, and then asked him a few pointed questions. He turned white under his dinky skin, but soon pulled himself together and began to lie to me. I knew it by the way his eyelids flickered. The bay was too hot for even a Chinaman to live on; the lagoon was full of sharks; the typhoon season was coming on—these and a dozen other reasons for leaving at once slipped from his oily tongue and left me more puzzled than ever.

After that experience I spent no more nights ashore, but watched continually for the slightest hint of rebellion. Early the next morning when the cocoanuts began to arrive on the big bamboo rafts I noted with a grin of satisfaction that all hands set to work packing them into the hold with an alacrity which they had never before manifested in my service.

The following evening we put out to sea, the men working like demons to get away before night shut down. Shackleford laughing all the while at their eagerness to be rid of what he declared to be "the finest spot east of Suez." His Chinamen—I shall never forget that last glimpse of them—squatted upon the empty bamboo rafts, their cues wound about their unshaved heads, the sweat still streaming down their naked bodies to the flimsy cotton pantaloons corded about their waists, and viewed our departure out of their narrow eyes with features as impassive as those of a stone Buddha. What did they know about the two rusty hulks, the gray "thing" that haunted them, and what had they told my crew? I wondered. Worn out with a trying week, I turned in.

A shock hurled me from my berth, and as I groped about in the darkness for the key of the door the sound of crashing timber and of branches trailing across the cabin window made me guess my surroundings. Springing on deck, I turned instinctively to the wheel, and there, bowed over it like an old man and clutching the spokes with hairy hands, was a huge gray ape—the very monster Shackleford and I had failed to bring down the night of the raid upon the cocoanut grove!

At sight of me it relinquished its hold upon the wheel and sprang at me, baring its teeth in sudden rage. Whipping out my Colt, I began to fire and back away and brought it down with a shot in its gaping mouth just as it was reaching out its horrible corded arms to seize me. As it collapsed with a gasping shudder at my very feet I sprang backward from sheer repulsion and in doing so fell into the lagoon through a hole in the railing that the thick branch of a tree had carried away.

Not till then did the full significance of what had transpired dawn upon me. Crew there was none, but apes from the surrounding trees and the two rusty hulks that had so puzzled me and that now lay on either side came swarming upon the steamer till they covered everything—winches, forecastle head, the empty davits, the spare anchors, the very rigging—with a gray, writhing mass that struggled and fought and screamed in a wild rush for the cocoanuts, which could easily be reached through the main hatch, left open to prevent overheating. Swimming round to the rudder, now completely out of water above the madly racing screw, I climbed up beyond the reach of sharks and listened to the appalling pandemonium till the last cocoanut must have been removed from the hold, when the brutes gradually dispersed through the forest.

Afraid to venture back on deck, at daylight I mounted a piece of the round house that had been swept overboard and made my way on the incoming tide up the channel which led to the plantation. On the edge of the grove I paused in incredulous wonder, and then the truth came home to me. Under a fierce attack of the apes the wire fence had at last given way, and the cocoanut grove was in ruins. Shackleford's bungalow I found in a state of pillage so complete that only the four upright posts remained, and the flimsy huts occupied by the Chinese laborers were scattered about as if struck by a typhoon.

Not far from the ruins I found Shackleford's beautifully stained meerschaum pipe trampled into the earth by a host of passing feet, and protruding from under a tattered cocoanut leaf was a Chinaman's cue, streaked with gray, but no Celestial at the severed end. Prepared for the worst, I was hastening down the newly beaten path toward the jungle, when a groan to my left attracted my attention, and, rushing over, I found Shackleford and his Chinamen neatly trapped under the barbed wire fence.

"You see," Shackleford explained when I had pried up the edge of the deadly netting which they were unable to raise with their bare hands because of the inch long barbs, "we were poking the bally brutes off the fence with sharpened bamboos and having no end of fun when their weight doubled the whole thing over and shut us into as fine a little fort as a fellow could wish for. Ha, ha!"

Shackleford, followed by a score of bedraggled Chinamen, crawled out stiffly from his involuntary but lucky imprisonment and looked ruefully at his blood spattered clothes. "They ripped and tore at the netting like a lot of mad devils," he continued, "and the blood from their lacerated feet came through on us like a shower of warm rain, but none of us was hurt except Ah Cong over there. He was a bit careless and let his pigtail stick out through the netting. Lucky thing I had a knife, you sour old heathen!" turning to a grizzled Chinaman whose cue had been severed close to his head, "or that big ape that got hold of the end of it would have pulled it out by the roots." And Shackleford laughed uproariously as he reached for his pipe, examined the coloring with the eye of a connoisseur and then began to dig the dirt out of the bowl. "But I don't understand what made the brutes all quit and go tearing away toward the bay," he added thoughtfully as he opened his tobacco pouch.

For answer I led him down to the third derelict and showed him the empty hold.

QUINCY BOY TARGET FOR UNKNOWN GUNNER

Face and Leg of Walter L. McConarty Filled With Double B Shot

Was Standing in Doorway of Father's Barn When Hit

Walter L. McConarty, the 10-year-old son of Peter McConarty of 5 Pearl street was the target for an unknown gunner about 5 o'clock Saturday afternoon while standing in the doorway of his father's barn. The boy had just driven some of his father's cows into the barn and stood in the doorway looking about the yard. Suddenly he heard the report of a gun and the next instant felt a sharp sting in his face and leg as the shot hit him.

With a loud cry of pain he dropped to the floor and was lapsing into unconsciousness when his father and mother reached him.

Dr. Sheahan was summoned by telephone and the lad was rushed to the City Hospital in the doctor's automobile where it was discovered that one shot had gone through the lower lid of the left eye and entered the eyeball. Other shot had hit him in the face and leg.

After his wounds had been dressed the boy said that he saw no one with a gun in that neighborhood and did not see from what direction the shot came. The first he knew was hearing the report of the gun and then feeling the sharp stinging sensation in his face and legs.

It is thought that the shot might have been fired by some returning hunter who had been in the woods in that vicinity. From the position where the boy stood, however, it is thought that the shot came from the direction of Water street, a thickly settled Italian district .

Chief Burrell was notified and with several officers began a systematic investigation but was not able to locate the party who discharged the gun. Neither has Mr. McConarty a known enemy and the general belief was that the shooting was accidental as far as the boy being shot is concerned.

TODAY'S COURT.

William Lyndon, George Messinger, James Sullivan, for drunkenness, fined $3.

William Barry, James McFadden, John Harris, for drunkenness, fined $10.

James Sweeney, John Collins, Hubert DeCoste, John Harris, for assault on an officer, continued until July 25. John Harris fined $25.

August Anderson, vagrancy, committed to State Farm.

William I. Ralph, for violation of auto laws, fined $10.

SALMON ENDS LONG JOURNEY

Successful Trip of Submarine For Distance of 1600 Miles

Submarine Salmon which left for a 1600-mile run to Bermuda and return in a trial for ocean-going submarines, has returned to Fore River, where she is now at the Electric Boat company's yards.

The Salmon started from the Fore River ship yards on July 5, and, averaging nine knots an hour, arriving at Hamilton, Bermuda, on the 10th.

When she left Boston she was submerged all except the conning tower and the periscope, and made the entire trip submerged to that extent. The men therefore were below the water line on the entire trip, and for two days on the outward journey the boat was closed up and the air remained breathable.

The boat was provisioned for the voyage and carried 6000 gallons of gasolene, which was enough to make the trip both ways, but at Bermuda they took on extra provisions and 3000 more gallons of gasolene, so that they would be well supplied in case of an emergency.

On the out-bound trip all were seasick except Captain Momm, Flanagin, the cook, and one of the crew. The boat left Fore River with Gregory C. Davison, vice president of the Electric Boat company, which equipped the Salmon, in command, and Captain Momm, who will have command of the boat in future, was second in command. The boat also carried a crew of twenty-one men, all of whom were from the United States navy.

The return trip was made in better time and under better conditions. The average speed was ten knots an hour. They left Bermuda on the 13th, and sighted the Nantucket lightship on Friday night. The Salmon was forced to lie there for twenty-four hours on account of the heavy fog.

From there a slow trip was made to Provincetown, where they stayed until Sunday morning. They made a rapid run across the bay, averaging twelve knots, to Fore River, where they docked at the yards of the Electric Boat company.

The Salmon was accompanied on the trip by the Storm King, which is one of the largest ocean-going tugs in the United States service. The Storm King had a very bad trip, and beside the crew being seasick, they were continually bothered by minor accidents.

Captain Momm said that the trip had been a great success, and had definitely proved that submarines were capable of making ocean trips without a tug accompanying them to act as pilot.

Captain Momm in talking over the trip said: "We far exceeded the speed which we expected to make. The one great hardship of the voyage was the forced abstinence from tobacco of any kind. I fear that the men missed this more than anything else, and during their hours of rest they seemed at a loss for something to take its place. Matches are strictly against the rules, as is any kind of fire, because it is not unusual for gases to escape and then an explosion would be inevitable if fire in any form happened to be about.

"We kept the boat closed as tight as a drum for two days on the way down, and did not have the least sign of bad air. We were equipped with 4800 cubic feet of air, which was held in twenty-eight tanks, but we did not use any of it either way, and beside the two days when the boat was closed for hours and were not forced to use the reservoir supply of air."

OFFICER MALONE ASSAULTED.

While arresting John Harris, who had been put off a late train at West Quincy, Saturday night, Officer Malone was hit and kicked and assailed with stones by a number of friends of Harris. It was not until Malone had his prisoner at the box that the attack took place. He was hit and kicked and a stone struck his helmet. He broke his twisters while trying to hold Harris and put the handcuffs on him.

After the wagon had taken the prisoner to the station house Officer Malone secured warrants for John Collins, James Sweeney and Herbert DeCoste. They were in court this morning and their cases were continued until July 25. Harris was fined $25.

THOMAS MAGEE.

Thomas Magee a long and well known resident of Quincy passed away early this morning at the summer home of his daughter, Mrs. W. H. North at North Scituate aged 85 years. Mr. Magee was born in Braintree, March 14, 1825 but with the exception of a few years when he resided in Hingham has always made his home in Quincy.

His early life was passed on a farm. Later he became interested in the bakery business and was associated with the late William A. Hodges for many years. He also conducted a bakery business in Hingham at one time. When the civil war b'oke out he was among the first to offer his life in defense of his country's flag. He served his country for three years being mustered out at the close of the war as a member of Co. M. First Mass. Heavy Artillery. During one of the famous battles he was wounded in the leg and was taken prisoner and was confined in many of the famous rebel prisons of the south. He was eventually exchanged and after recovery again joined his regiment. At the close of the war he returned to Quincy and took up business pursuits. Some years ago advancing age compelled him to give up active business. Since that time he has made his home with his daughters.

August 5, 1851 he married Caroline Penniman. Two daughters and a son were born to them. Susie C., who married William H. North, Eliza M., who married Charles B. Tilton and who died two years ago, and George T. Magee, the present clerk of the City Council. He is also survived by his widow.

He was a member of Paul Revere Post 88, G. A. R., and the Union Prisoners of War Association.

Funeral services will be held from the residence of Charles B. Tilton, 24 Merrymount road Wednesday at 2 o'clock.

MILK WAGON SMASHED.

The milk wagon of Charles Hodgkinson collided with an electric car at the corner of Hancock and Temple streets Sunday afternoon. The wagon was considerably damaged and about sixty quarts of milk spread about the street. John Revenni the driver was thrown out but not injured.

SYRIAN SPLIT SEIZED.

Sunday Chief Burrell and a squad of police raided the Syrian boarding house at 173 Quincy avenue occupied by a family named Joseph and seized several bottles of beer and wine and a case of empty beer bottles. The police also seized a bottle containing a deep blue liquor which had the odor of perfume but which the police say is Syrian split, a popular drink with that class of people.

"I wonder why Maxim's flying machine is so long about getting out?" queried the scientific boarder.

"As near as I can figure it out," said the Cheerful Idiot, "the trouble seems to be a detective flew."—Ex.

RAIN SPOILS GARDEN PARTY

St. Mary's Garden Party Postponed Until Tonight

A more disappointed set of people would have been hard to find than those who assembled Saturday afternoon at the grounds of the parochial residence of St. Mary's parish, Crescent street, in expectation of enjoying the annual lawn party of the parish. About 1000 people were in attendance during the afternoon and enjoyed the program until the festivities were interrupted about 7 o'clock by a heavy rain storm. At this time it was decided to postpone the balance of the program until this evening, when the rest o fthe program will be carried out. Mayor Shea, several members of the City Council and other city officials were present.

The grounds were, by far, arranged the prettiest of any garden party held this year. About 25 large arc-lights had been strung about the grounds and numberless Japanese lanterns gave the grounds a very pretty appearance. The different booths and tables were tastefully decorated and gave a very pretty color effect. The colors used in decorating the various tables were as follows: West Street table, green and white; Copeland and Crescent Street table, orange and white; Common Street, pink and white; Willard and Grove Streets, red and white; Parkway table, blue and white. The dancing board was trimmed with red, white and blue bunting and large flags.

During the afternoon a hurdy-gurdy party was in progress and was enjoyed by the large crowd. The various amusements, including the African dodger, cane board, doll rack and "Aunt Sally" were well patronized and furnished much fun. The athletic sports took place during the afternoon and the winners were as follows:

75-yard dash for girls over 12—Won by Mary Manning.

75-yard dash for girls under 12—Won by Mary Martin.

Egg race for girls over 12 years—Won by Agnes Monahan.

75-yard dash for boys over 12 years—Won by Ernest Duane.

75-yard dash for boys under 12—Won by Patrick Stanton.

Sack race for boys under 12 years—Won by George Kane.

Sack race for girls—Won by Margaret Manning and Esther Knight.

INSTALLATION OF OFFICERS.

At a meeting of Quincy Branch Irish National League held Sunday evening in Cahill's hall, Water street, the following named officers were installed for the ensuing six months by Edward Lawton of Brockton, Past President of the Branch.

President—John J. Byron.

Vice President—Richard Gray.

Rec. and Fin. Secretary—Daniel Ahearn.

Treasurer—Enos Costa.

Sergeant-at-arms—Michael Burns.

Executive Committee—Nicholas Lecount, Michael Burns, Michael Daly, Peter McConarty, George D. Cahill.

The meeting was well attended and considerable interest was manifested in the National convention of the United Irish League, which will be held in Buffalo in September.

At the next meeting a delegate will be elected to represent the branch at the convention, which will be attended by a delegation from the Irish Parliamentary party and the true condition of political affairs in the English parliament so far as it affects the welfare of Ireland will be explained by John E. Redmond, T. P. O'Connor and Joseph Devlin, M. P. S. A splendid convention is assured and Quincy branch, the oldest in the country, will be represented.

An active committee was appointed to make arrangements for the annual outing of the members and their families. Interesting addresses were delivered by the installing officer, president and other officers.

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

Mr. Roosevelt has only cracked the silence, but one could hardly say he has broken it.

One advantage in taking a vacation late in the summer is that one may learn from his friends of a lot of places not to go.

It was certainly tough on the "interests" to have the Interstate Commerce Commission and Mr. Roosevelt open their mouths on the same day.

Evidently America's most distinguished citizen is on as friendly terms with the President of the United States as he was with the crowned heads of Europe.

Of all the legislation that has passed Congress in the last 10 years, the act establishing the Postal Savings Banks is by far the most popular. From all over the country came letters demanding that these Banks be established in every post-office, so that the people with small sums of money may deposit the same with "Uncle Sam," and draw a small percent of interest thereon, and at the same time, rest assured that "Uncle Sam" is a good, honest banker, who pays his depositors dollar for dollar. The Postmaster General is making tremendous efforts to establish these Banks for the people in all parts of the country, and in a few months it is predicted that Postal Savings Banks will be "doing business" in every county in the United States.

DRIFT OF OPINION.

A good many persons, perhaps we might say, most persons, are unaware that business generally is bad. In some ways it is little better than three years ago, but the country does not feel the effects of it as it did then. There has been so much talk, especially by certain buncombe congressmen, about the "remarkable prosperity" that the general public has been deceived. The Boston News Bureau states that one-half the woolen mills machinery is lying idle today. The cause of this is not difficult to find. The cost of living has mounted so high that the common people have little left to invest in woolens or anything else except bare necessities. The cost of living is high mainly because of the combinations which control the output, as the meat packers control the meat situation, as a few cotton speculators controlled the price of cotton, as the fruit trust forces up prices of fruit from the west. As was said in The News a few days ago, the United States government has figures to prove that between the producer, in other words, the farmer, and the consumer, 57 per cent. of every dollar which we pay for food, is swallowed up. The wholesaler and the retailer get it, the former the lion's share.—Salem News.

"Count your marcies, count your marcies, my dear," was good old Grandmother Comfort's never-failing advice when things went wrong with those around her.

She was not unsympathetic or unkindly; quite the reverse. She was a philosopher in her homely fashion. Her philosophy was from the heart and for the heart. She knew that if she could only get people to count their "marcies" the list would be so long that it would crowd out altogether the ills that at first sight loom up so large.

It is a simple, effective remedy for all ills—yes, for the real as well as the fancied ones.

Have you lost money and are reduced from comfort to poverty? Then remember the time when plenty and comfort were yours. Many people never know these at all.

You cannot have lost more than you possessed. Think of the possession rather than of the loss. Happy memories, at least are still yours, unless you give them up willfully.

Have you seen the grave coldly and grimly close upon a loved one? Then be thankful that you had that loved one as long as you did. Let grief be sweetened and assuaged by gratitude for the joy that you had. Surely grief for a loss cannot overwhelm the joy of having had; for sorrow is but the shadow of a blessing.

"Count your marcies," and the wholesome joy of them will drive away your troubles, as the sunshine dissipates the darkness and the mists.—Beverly Times.

RELIEF FOR PITTMAN

American Prisoner In Nicaragua Must Be Decently Treated

Washington, July 18.—Following a telephone conversation with President Taft at Beverly, the state department announced that steps would be taken to relieve William Pittman, now in prison in Managua.

At the same time it was announced that the department had, upon the strength of reports appearing in the press, telegraphed Consul Moffatt at Bluefields, directing him to ascertain whether Dr. Lawrence Burgheim, an American citizen, is held prisoner by the Madriz forces. It is said that the doctor is compelled to treat the wounded at the Bluff.

A brother of Pittman appealed to President Taft in behalf of the prisoner. This resulted in the telephone conversation and in the decision to do what may be necessary to relieve the condition of Pittman.

Managua, July 18.—William P. Pittman, who was captured by the Madriz forces near Bluefields and brought here, is now confined in a commodious cell.

WOMAN LAWYER'S FAT FEE

Gets $32,500 For Administering Property of a Harvard Man

Chicago, July 18.—Mrs. Mary E. Miller has been granted $32,500, the largest fee ever given a woman lawyer, by the vote of the jury that heard her suit against the brothers of John B. Lloyd, a Harvard student, whom she had kept under espionage.

She had administered his property after it was discovered that he had spent a large part of it in buying automobiles for a Boston woman.

Mrs. Miller was retained by the three brothers of John B. Lloyd to prevent the young man from squandering his fortune on a Boston woman known as "The College Widow." He is said to have bought for her a house and several automobiles.

The suit was tried before Judge Gibbons in the circuit court, three weeks having been required to hear it.

JAIL IS NO LONGER OFFICE OF WAYOR

Decidedly Chaotic State of Affairs In Lawrence

Lawrence, Mass., July 18.—The attitude of the Essex county house of correction officials against permitting Mayor White to transact municipal business within the walls of the institution, as he had done during the two days following his incarceration, seems to have determined that President Jordan of the board of aldermen will perform the duties of chief executive, at least until the decision of City Solicitor Murphy on the question of the mayor's status is rendered.

One remedy which has been suggested for the chaotic state civic affairs are in here is a commission form of government.

Missing Soldier Dismissed

Concord, N. H., July 18.—Captain Frank Buder of the Fourth coast artillery of New Hampshire was dismissed from the service by order of Governor Quinby. He has been missing since last March.

Honor For Woman Lawyer

Saco, Me., July 18.—Mrs. Eva E. Bean, practising attorney of this city, has been admitted to the United States circuit court at Portland, the first woman in Maine to receive the honor.

WHEN THE TIDE IS LOW.

Sometime at eve when the tide is low,
I shall slip my mooring and sail away.
With no response to a friendly hail
Of kindred craft in a busy bay.
In the silent hush of the twilight pale,
When the night stoops down to embrace the day.
And the voices call in the water's flow,
Sometime at eve when the tide is low,
I shall slip my mooring and sail away.

Through purple shadows that darkly trail
O'er the ebbing tide of the unknown sea,
I shall fare me away with a dip of sail,
And a ripple of waters to tell the tale
Of a lonely voyager sailing away
To mystic isles where at anchor lay
The craft of those who have sailed before,
O'er the unknown sea to the unknown shore.

A few who have watched me sail away,
Will miss my craft from the busy bay
Some friendly barks that were anchored near,
Some loving souls that my heart held dear,
In silent sorrow will drop a tear.
But I shall have peacefully furled my sail,
In moorings sheltered from storm and gale,
And greeted the friends who have sailed before
O'er the unknown sea to the unknown shore.

A. R. U. STRIKE OF 1894.

Men involved	100,000
Loss to railroads	$7,500,000
Strikers' wage loss	$2,000,000

The threatened strike on the Pennsylvania Railroad company's lines if it is called is likely to prove the most serious similar trouble since the American Railway union strike of 1894, which had Chicago for its center.

The employees on the lines both east and west of Pittsburg have voted for a strike by overwhelming majorities, and the preliminary conferences with General Manager W. Heyward Myers of the railroad system brought the announcement that the company could consider no concessions involving increased expenses.

President A. B. Garretson of the Order of Railway Conductors insists he is committed absolutely to the contention that no settlement can be reached except upon condition that the railroad grant the present eleven hour wage for a ten hour day.

Tonnage Loss Claimed.

A heavy loss in freight tonnage is claimed by the Pennsylvania company, the general manager insisting that it has 25,000 freight cars and 250 locomotives idle on this account.

Arthur Hale, chairman of the committee on relations between railroads of the American Railway association, whose figures are accepted as authority by the traction managers of the country, recently compiled a statement showing that on June 30 last there were 125,644 surplus or idle freight cars owned by 158 railroads throughout the United States. This total is divided into 59,611 ordinary box cars, 28,702 coal, gondola and hopper cars, 3,237 flat cars and 34,034 of other kinds.

In a group including twenty-three railroads in New York, New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland and eastern Pennsylvania doing business directly or indirectly with New York city the same figures show a total of 33,163 idle cars divided as follows: Box cars, 11,897; coal, gondola and hopper cars, 8,854; flat cars, 291, and all other kinds, 12,139.

Deducting 25,000 cars, the number given by General Manager Myers of the Pennsylvania railroad as being idle on that system, this leaves only 8,163 idle cars owned by twenty-two railroads in the five states mentioned.

Shoemakers Won First Strike.

It is interesting to recall in connection with the threatened strike that the shoemakers were the first strikers in his country of whom there is any record. Three hundred of them struck for higher wages in 1796 in Philadelphia, and their demands were acceded to.

The first railroad strike, according to Harper's Encyclopedia of United States History, occurred in 1877. But in 1894 came the strike which is perhaps the most notable in the history of this country. It began with the strike of 1,000 employees of the Pullman Car company for higher wages. These men were connected with various railroads centering at Chicago, and 100,000 men were affected. The railroads lost $700,000 in property during this trouble and in earnings $5,000,000. The strikers lost $2,000,000 in wages, and after this immense sacrifice on all sides the strike was a failure.

Swiss Invent New Cure.

People of Switzerland, so a Paris paper reports, invent all kinds of cures to attract visitors to their country. Just now it is the asparagus cure in Valais. There is an abundance of asparagus in the Rhone valley, and tons are exported to various countries of Europe. The cures begin about the end of May, and the patients make asparagus their principal diet.

HOUSEHOLD RECEIPTS.

Hickory Nut Ice Cream. One pound of hickory nut kernels, two cups of sugar, one quart of cream ,two tablespoonfuls of sugar, burnt brown. Pick over the kernels carefully for pieces of shell ,then pound them in a mortar with a little sugar and water added. Set two spoonfuls of sugar over the fire without water and let it melt and brown. Pour in a little water to dissolve it, then add it to the cream with the sugar and nut paste and freeze in the usual manner. This may be packed in brick moulds, in layers, put down and frozen firm.

Lemon Ginger Punch with Mint. Make an unusually strong lemonade, using five lemons and a cup of sugar to each quart of water. To every quart of lemonade allow one quart ginger ale. Put both together in a big punch bowl, with a piece of ice. Have ready a number of sprigs of mint carefully washed. Bruise the stems and lower leaves between the fingers so as to bring out the flavor o fthe mint. Half an hour before serving put into the punch bowl.

Salad Dressing. Mix the yolk of one raw egg with one-half teaspoon of salt one teaspoon of mustard, one teaspoon of sugar, one saltspoon of celery salt, six drops of onion juice and a few grains of cayenne. Add one cup of oil, drop by drop t first ,then increasing the quantity until finally it may be added by teaspoons. When thick and oily in appearance, add lemon juice, using in all two tablespoons, and just before serving stir in one-half cup of sour cream.

Ham and egg sandwiches. Mash the yolks of four hard boiled eggs while still warm ,and rub to a paste with a tablespoon of melted butter and a bit of mixed mustard. Add one-half cup of finely chopped ham and the white of the eggs chopped very fine. Spread white bread with above and cut into triangular pieces.

Boston, July 18.—Losing control of his new touring car, Edward H. Munch, owner of a Boston lunch room, was instantly killed when the machine turned turtle while going at a high rate of speed near Wareham.

The easy way to wash clothes.

Take a cake of Lenox Soap, cut it into small pieces and dissolve these in three quarts of boiling water. Keep at boiling point until a solution is formed.

This solution will do better work than soap—and without any waste.

Rub the soap solution on the soiled parts, fold and roll each piece separately, pack in a tub, cover with warm soapy water, let stand overnight, and in the morning you will find that the really hard work of washing—the rubbing on the washboard—is not half as hard as usual.

Many Women who are Splendid Cooks

dread having to prepare an elaborate dinner because they are not sufficiently strong to stand over an intensely hot coal range. This is especially true in summer. Every woman takes pride in the table she sets, but often it is done at tremendous cost to her own vitality through the weakening effect of cooking on a coal range in a hot kitchen.

It is no longer necessary to wear yourself out preparing a fine dinner. Even in the heat of summer you can cook a large dinner without being worn out.

Cautionary Note: Be sure you get this stove—see that the name-plate reads "New Perfection."

New Perfection
WICK BLUE FLAME
Oil Cook-stove

Gives no outside heat, no smell, no smoke. It will cook the biggest dinner without heating the kitchen or the cook. It is immediately lighted and immediately extinguished. It can be changed from a slow to a quick fire by turning a handle. There's no drudgery connected with it, no coal to carry, no wood to chop. You don't have to wait fifteen or twenty minutes till its fire gets going. Apply a light and it's ready. By simply turning the wick up or down you get a slow or an intense heat on the bottom of the pot, pan, kettle or oven, and nowhere else. It has a Cabinet Top with shelf for keeping plates and food hot, drop shelves for coffee, teapot or saucepan, and even a rack for towels. It saves time, worry, health and temper. It does all a woman needs and more than she expects. Made with 1, 2, and 3 burners; the 2 and 3-burner sizes can be had with or without Cabinet.

LARGE FLEET OF STARTERS

All Kinds of Weather at Q. Y. C. Open Race Saturday

Fluky weather greeted the fleet of 34 yachts that participated in the open and interclub race under the auspices o fthe Quincy Yacht club Saturday afternoon. At the start there was a wholesail northeast breeze that gave promise of holding throughout the race. The fleet had hardly completed the first round of the triangular course when the wind flattened out to an almost dead calm, turning the race into a drifting match. Then the wind freshened again and then it rained, shutting off the view of the racers from the club house. Then it cleared and there was another calm streak.

All of the boats, however, finished inside of the time limit.

As usual the interest o fthe spectators centered in the cape cat class, particularly the Iris and Dolly III, the two boats selected to represent the club at the Interbay club races at Providence next week.

Weather conditions were such however that neither of these boats showed up particularly well. The Dartwell of Vice Commodore Whittemore was the first to cross the line with the Iris second. Corrected time however placed the Iris in third position and the Hustler in second place.

In Class A four o fthe seven starters withdrew before the finish and the Eleanor owned by W. L. Jefferson had an easy win. She was sailed in the race by ex-Commodore George F. Sawyer, Jr. of the Squantum club, her former owner.

In Class B there were but two entries and the Anna C was an easy winner. The Violet won in Class C, the Warweenock in class S and the Beachcomber in the cabin power boats.

In addition to percentages in the Y. R. A. M. there were cash prizes aggregating $100.

WHITE SOX LOSE.

In a somewhat poorly played game the Hamilton's of Lynn, got the best of the Royal White Sox on French's Common Saturday. The Hamilton's jumped onto Moralis for three two baggers and a single, netting three runs in the first inning. Coose played first for the White Sox and put up a good game Moralis struck out 5, Gallagher fanned 2, and Hart who pitched the last inning retired three on strikes passed three and hit one. He was wild but very speedy. Only six innings were played owing to rain. The final score was 9 to 4 in favor of the Hamilton's.

LETTERS OF PUBLIC INTEREST

WEDNESDAY P. M. CLOSING.

Editor Daily Ledger:

In looking over your issue of July 13, I ran across a letter on the Wednesday half-holiday question signed by B. Russell McQuinn in answer to mine which appeared on the 11th.

Now, Mr. Editor, I am not looking for any newspaper notoriety, neither do I intend to allow reflecting insinuations to pass unnoticed so I desire to take up a little more of your valued space.

Mr. McQuinn says the words "barbarous condition" are well chosen. I again differ with him as the dictionary gives the meaning of barbarous as uncivilized:—rude—savage—brutal—I do not think that any of the above definitions apply in any sense to any retail grocery and provision store in the city and will leave the decision to the reading public as to whether the use of the words are correct or not.

Mr. McQuinn also says that the hours of labor have been reduced in all lines of labor excepting clerking. He is decidedly wrong in that statement because when I came to Quincy in 1886, stores were keeping open four nights a week till 8.30 or 9 and Saturdays till 10 or after and just previous to that, most of the stores had a practice of opening Sunday morning for 2 or 3 hours. I think Mr. McQuinn's present employer will endorse the above statement. Afternoons off were almost unheard of at that time so I think the reading public will again agree with me that hours of labor for the clerk have improved some.

Mr. McQuinn also states that not long ago I was "a very ardent advocate of the weekly half holiday." As a matter of fact I do not think he ever heard me strongly advocate the Wednesday closing either in the clerks' hall or in conversation as I have always believed in the afternoon off scheme. I have done some committee work as a member of the Clerks' Association toward a half holiday in the past and while manager of the Quincy Co-operative store, I always agreed to close when others did but have done it because the majority favored it and it seeemd the only way some clerks could get an afternoon off but you can put me on record, Mr. Editor, as one who believes in keeping open during business hours and having regular afternoons off instead of closing.

Regarding the part of his letter which insinuates that my letter was not free speech, etc., I wish to say that neither Berry Bros. or any of their employees knew of the letter until it was printed and neither do they know this one is going in. My only reason for answering "Interested Citizen" was because someone, without courage enough to sign his own name for publication, either through malice, jealousy or ignorance cast reflection on a concern which uses their help the best that help can be used, pays the best of wages and gives their clerks all privileges that conditions warrant, and in writing as I did I only voiced the opinion of the entire working force of the store consisting of 4 girls and 18 men. Mr. McQuinn in his enthusiasm over his long hours that he has to work has got his figures slightly mixed up as he starts his eight hour man at 8 o'clock and stops him at four, making 7 hours a day instead of 8 hours and then further on he figures the clerk working till 12 o'clock the night preceding a holiday when as a fact they get through work from 1 to 2 hours earlier than that time.

I will admit that a clerk's hours are long and exacting but I believe that he receives more in the long run for his labor than the average working man or mechanic.

In conclusion, let me say that if I felt that I was using up all my "nervous energy, diplomacy, skill and intelligence" working under such terrible conditions as Mr. McQuinn pictures, I should certainly get out of the business right away and save it all for some trade or occupation which mean 8 hours each for labor, rest and recreation. Thanking you for the above space I remain yours respectfully,

Albion I. Dixon.

Quincy, July 18, 1910.

—About once a month we read of a near-by bank having to close its doors because of the speculations of an employee. To a careful business man the fact that a bookkeeper, or a cashier, or a teller can so manipulate figures and reports that he can go on for years stealing thousands of dollars and not be detected, seems to be evidence that there is not a reliable banking system in vogue. Perhaps the system could be changed so that it wouldn't be so easy to steal. —Mansfield News.

SUNDAY SERVICES

WOLLASTON BAPTIST.

The Rev. Joseph Walther, pastor of Wollaston Baptist church, selected Duet. 1:8, for his text, for the morning service.

The people of Canaan were bidden by God to take possession of the land set before them by him. Today we are bidden by God to take possession of the great blessings that he has given us, such as: "The boon of Salvation;" "The great gift of God's power and spirit;" "The Word of od;" "Prayer."

"The boon of Salvation" is a great boon to men. Christ came to live upon this planet and to die, and it is his desire that we may all enjoy its riches. Many are however, ignorant or unbelieving with respect to it.

How great the gift of God's power and spirit is, no one can fully comprehend. Sometimes those who have the spirit in their souls are most humble, yet unconscious that their face is shing with the glory of God. The need that power so much in our personal lives, in activities in our public ministries in our work for God and humanity. We do noa enjoy this blessing as we might.

"The Word of God," is a great gift to the children of men. There is none like it revealing the God the Father ,and God's law, and purpose, and showing also the power of Satan and how we may overcome him.

"Prayer." "What is privilege there is in prayer. How many of us can testify "What a privilege to carry everthing to God in prayer." Yet, there are some who never utilize prayer unless in emergencies or when in trouble.

We must co-operate together in these blessings. God has done his part. He has set the land before us and we are to possess the "boom of Salvation."

May God by grace lead and guide us into all his riches of grace, love and power.

Friday evening at 7.45, regular weekly prayer meeting. A cordial welcome is extended to all.

TAFT'S "DAY OF REST"

It Is Occupied by Receiving a Number of Callers at Beverly

Beverly, Mass., July 18.—Sunday was hardly a day of rest for President Taft, for in addition to attending church with Mrs. Taft in the morning, he had many callers during the day.

Among the visitors during the afternoon was Archbishop O'Connell of Boston, who motored down to Burgess Point and paid his respects. Then there were many callers here on political errands, among them being representatives from Maine and Ohio.

For ten days Beverly will be lonesome, and the fifteen-hour-a-day clerks at the executive office will heave a great sigh of relief when the Mayflower sails away this afternoon for the coast of Maine.

NECKTIES ARE HIS FAD

Delmas Returns to California With a Eighty-Five of Them

San Francisco, July 18.—Delphin M. Delmas, the California attorney who won fame in the fiasco of the first Thaw trial and who subsequently remained in New York to practise law, has returned here to spend the months of August and September. Delmas brought eighty-five neckties with him from New York.

The fad of the barrister lies in neckties. He carries them around with him and at times changes his tie several times a day.

Mr. Delmas' wardrobe is the envy of his friends and admirers. In addition to his eighty-five neckties he has brought thirty pairs of shoes with him from New York

Eight Hurt In Car Crash

Worcester, Mass., July 18.—Eight persons were injured, two of them seriously, when a trolley car struck a stationary engine on Foster street, knocking the engine and a large derrick over into a hole where half a dozen laborers were at work. The car left the rail and so collided with the engine.

Drownings In New England

Boston, July 18.—The waters of New England claimed five victims yesterday. In addition one other had his neck broken by a dive in shallow water, and no hopes are given of his recovery. All but one of the fatalities were due to rowers capsizing or bathing accidents.

Fatal Elevator Accident

Boston, July 18.—His head caught between the first floor and the flooring of the freight elevator in which he was ascending from the basement of Carter, Rice & Co. where he was employed as a shipper, Pierce A. Williams was killed almost instantly.

His Part.

"Who is the responsible person in this firm?" asked the brusque caller of the office boy.

"Can't tell you, sir," replied the pert lad, "but I'm the one who gets all the blame."

NATIONS TO HAIL CENTURY'S PEACE

World to Celebrate With America, Britain and Canada.

IS GHENT TREATY CENTENNIAL

Andrew Carnegie Heads Committee to Arrange Demonstration In 1914 and Erection of Memorial Bridge Across Niagara River—Taft and Sherman Interested In Plans.

Preparations for a celebration in 1914 of the centennial of the treaty of Ghent, marking 100 years of peace between this country and Great Britain, will be begun at once. It is proposed to commemorate the event by a joint celebration in which all the nations will be invited to participate.

The plan first was discussed during the administration of President Roosevelt, and at the Harvard commencement a year ago the Hon. W. L. King, minister of labor of Canada, urged that a memorial be erected upon the frontier at Niagara.

Carnegie Heads Committee.

As a result the matter was discussed at the Mohonk peace conference, and at a meeting in June a temporary committee on organization, which later was made permanent, chose Andrew Carnegie chairman, William H. Short secretary and John A. Stewart chairman of the executive committee of one hundred.

The committee will be composed of 250 or more men and women from every state, territory and dependency of the Union. The executive committee will be composed of 100, with a subexecutive committee of twenty-five. State governors are being asked to join the committee as vice presidents, and an advisory committee of twenty-five important citizens will be chosen.

Taft Is Interested.

President Taft has evinced interest in the work, and a delegation has arranged to visit Beverly to confer with him and to offer him the position of honorary president of the national committee. Vice President Sherman will be asked to serve as honorary vice president.

The first meeting of the general committee will take place late in the fall, and in the meantime a special committee will go abroad to discuss the plan in England and in Canada.

No plan of celebration has been decided upon, but it has been suggested that the program include the erection of a monument, preferably a bridge, over the Niagara river, carrying out the idea of Minister King.

SNOW NEW BIRTHMARK CURE

London Surgeons Use Carbonic Acid Gas at 100 Below Zero.

A novel cure for lupus and birthmarks is being used at a London hospital, the curative agent being carbonic acid gas in the form of a "snow" 100 degrees below zero.

The snow is gathered on a piece of green baize from a cylinder of gas liquefied under pressure. It is then scraped off and placed in a small, hard rubber cylinder, where it is pressed down until it forms a hard, icy button.

This button is applied to the disfigurement for thirty seconds a day, leaving each day a perfectly white patch of frozen tissue. The intense cold freezes the part for a second or two, and severe local inflammation follows, leading to a breaking down and absorption of the abnormal tissues.

This heals in the natural way, leaving the skin surface practically normal.

WEALTH OF KANSAS LEARNING

Courses at University Number 859; Necessary Years 113.

A student of the University of Kansas who is fond of figuring has been studying the new annual catalogue, now being mailed, and finds that there will be 859 courses offered in the university next year. A young man or woman with the ambition of completing all these courses would need to prepare to go to school 113 years. If he lived twelve blocks from the university, says this authority, he would traverse in walking to and from his classes a distance of 119,000 miles, or more than four and a half times the distance around the world.

PRINCETONIANS GOOD TUTORS

Many Work Way Through College by Extra Jobs.

At Princeton university the tutoring system has been very highly developed. That a number of men have worked their way through Princeton by tutoring and that the total sum earned by them for one year was $14,000 have been made known in a report issued by the Princeton Tutors' association. This is an organization of undergraduates. Tutors get from $1 to $2 an hour, and some of them have made $16 a day and cleared $1,000 a year.

"I studied it at school."

"Do you think you remember enough of it to make you a competent juror in a poison case?"

"I'm not sure."

"Do you remember any of the formulas?"

"Let me see—two."

"Only two?"

"Yes, sir."

"Are they in a poem?"

BRIEFS.

Frank Schinnick of Campello is spending a week in this city, the guest of friends and relatives.

Mrs. Willie E. Stoddard and niece Mrs. Guy Elliott were guests last week of friends in Brookville.

Arthur R. Gould, the dentist, has opened an office in the Adams building in the rooms formerly occupied by the late W. G. A. Pattee.

Miss Ella Darling returned Sunday from a two weeks' vacation pleasantly spent at the home of her parents, in Nauwigewauk, N. B.

Mrs. James T. Fuller and son Charles have returned to their home in Bryantville after a visit of several weeks to Quincy friends.

Dr. and Mrs. C. W. Garey and son returned Friday from an automobile trip to Kittery, Maine, and report a fine time and lovely weather, nothing happening to mar the trip.

Mr. and Mrs. F. P. Nichols returned to their home on Whitwell street, Sunday after enjoying two weeks' vacation pleasantly spent at the home of their parents in Bath, Maine.

Mr. and Mrs. G. Eggleton of Spear street sailed last week on the Commonwealth for New York and from there went to Atlantic City, where they will be guests of Mr. Eggleton's parents for a few weeks.

THE MEADOW BROOK.

Martha Shepard Lippincott.

O what delight the meadow brook
Has given childish hearts;
How loath the child when called away,
From all its charms departs.
He fain would linger paddling there,
Or fishing in the stream;
And what a lovely place it is
To idly sit and dream.

And watch the ripples passing by,
Or insects swimming there.
While seated by the meadow brook
Life loses all its care.
Our minds in dreamland float away;
As we oft take a book,
Enjoying it with such content
Down by the babbling brook.

While birds sing gaily, in the trees,
Their joyous songs of glee,
While nature, in a happy mood,
Seems tuned for harmony;
And softly murmuring, the brook
Flows on its course serene,
While creeping close to hear its song,
Green blades of grass are seen.

Perhaps some happy lovers may
Be seated by the stream,
For you will often find that there
They love to sit and dream;
Where close to nature's tender heart,
With all the world away,
There, hand in hand, they love to list
To what the brook will say.

"My little brothers can count up to twenty," said Jimmieboy to a visitor. "That is , Frankie can count up to ten and so can Buster, and that makes twenty—ten apiece."

TRYING TO FIND OUT HIS DUTY

Candidate Fahey Denies Any Intent to Retire

HE WANTS TO BE GOVERNOR

States That His Course May Be Changed If Subsequent Events Prove Such Action Necessary—Has Been Assured That Foss Will Not Run Against Him—His Position Outlined In Formal Statement

Boston, July 18.—James H. Vahey, in a statement made public, declares he has no intention of withdrawing from the contest for the Democratic nomination for governor.

Mr. Vahey says that from all he can learn Congressman Eugene N. Foss has no intention of running for governor, and that Foss' statement to him was that he favored Vahey's candidacy and would do all he could to advance the interests of the man who headed the ticket on which he had second place a year ago. The statement says in part:

"I have no intention of withdrawing from the contest for the nomination. I have Mr. Foss' assurance that he would not think of being the candidate against me. I have no intention of being arrayed against him.

"I am trying as hard as any man who was ever placed in such a peculiar and difficult position to find out exactly what my duty it. If I reach the conclusion after deliberation and reflection that my clear duty to the people of the state and to my own conscience requires me to change the course which I have already marked out, I shall have no hesitation whatever in performing that duty with all the courage and strength I possess.

"I am only interested in the success of the principles for which I have been fighting these many years. They are greater and loftier than any personal ambition of mine. So far as I am concerned I shall do nothing to jeopardize in the slightest degree the victory which is bound to come this fall if the men who are entrusted with responsibility and power in the leadership of the Democratic party will exercise the sound sense which this exigency requires.

"I have every confidence that Mr. Foss is actuated by the same motives, and will pursue the same course, because I blieve that he desires the success of these principles rather than the gratification of any personal ambition, however lofty and honorable it may be."

CANNON WON'T GIVE UP

He Expects to Make Several Political Speeches In Kansas

Emporia, Kan., July 18.—Speaker Joseph G. Cannon arrived here from Winfield Sunday, and despite the heat he made the five-hour trip without any discomfort.

Notwithstanding he was overcome by the heat while delivering a Chautauqua address at Winfield, Cannon asserts he is feeling as vigorous as ever, and against the advice of friends he is determined to begin today a series of political speeches in the Fourth Kansas congressional district.

However, he qualified his announcement that he will keep his speaking engagements by saying that he will not attempt to fill all the dates if he suffers from the heat during his speech here today.

TRYING TO STOP WAKES

Will Be No More In Ireland, If Catholic Clergymen Can Prevent It

Worcester, Mass., July 18.—That ancient institution known as the wake must go. That is, Rev. John J. McKeon of Straide, Ire., says there is no use in wakes as they have been conducted for the last five or six centuries.

There will be no more wakes in Ireland, if the Catholic clergy of Ireland can prevent it, he says, and he thinks it would be a good plan if the wakes in the United States were to fall in line.

Father McKeon was talking about the wakes in A. O. H. hall. He is in the United States for the purpose of raising funds to erect a church at Straide beside the grave of Michael Davitt.

FATTENING HOGS ON MILK

Farmers Decline to Sell Lacteal Fluid at a Decided Loss

New York, July 18.—Northern New Jersey farmers are feeding their milk to the hogs rather than sell it to the large milk dealers at the prevailing price, which is three-quarters of a cent less than it costs to produce it.

The exchange price now is 2½ cents per quart, and some of the dreameries in Warren county are paying only 2 cents.

French Railroad Men to Strike

Paris, July 18.—A general strike has been decided upon by the National Railroaders' union. After a meeting last night, at which this decision was taken, the strike committee was instructed to rush arrangement.

ACCIDENT ON FIRST TRIP

Twenty Persons Injured When New York's "Monorail" Topples

New York, July 18.—Twenty persons were injured in the first commercial trip of the new monorail service between City island and Bartow. Howard Tunis, the inventor, who was motorman, broke a rib and one passenger broke a leg. The others were hurt only slightly.

Although described as a monorail, the only car the company yet owns did not depend for its stability on a gyroscope. For support and traction it ran on a single rail, but twin guide rails overhead, hung between pillars and lateral braces on either side of the right of way, held it in balance.

While the car was running thirty miles an hour one of these guide rails worked loose and the car tilted forty degrees, piling the frightened passengers in the lower angle. The pillars at either side of the car prevented it from toppling utterly and the brakes brought it to a stop before worse damage was done.

CARGO LOSS OF $100,000

Three Steamers Scorched, With Probable Loss of Three Lives

Boston, July 18.—Examinations disclosed that the three Metropolitan steamers injured by fire were not so badly damaged as at first feared. Steamer James S. Whitney, which was beached Friday at Vineyard Haven to facilitate extinguishing a fire in her hold, reached Central wharf yesterday.

The fire damage to the Whitney herself will be slight, it is thought. The heaviest loss will be to her cargo. An officer of the steamer said that the cargo loss would probably be about $100,000.

The most serious phase of the fire on the Dimock was the probable death of three of the crew who are missing. The loss to the vessel and cargo is estimated at about $2000.

CONFERENCE MAY BRING ABOUT PEACE

Pennsylvania Road Expected to Make Concessions to Men

Philadelphia, July 18.—Hope that the conference today between the members of their committee and General Manager Myers of the Pennsylvania Railroad company will result in a clearer understanding of their demands by the railroad officials, and that the necessity for a strike will be averted, is expressed by A. B. Garrretson, president of the Order of Railway Conductors, and W. G. Lee, the head of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen.

While the head of the conductors' organization is reticent and refuses to add anything to the statements he has already made public regarding the controversy, Lee expresses his belief that the ten-hour standard the men ask for can be put into effect by the company without its making any sacrifice.

AFTER FIVE-YEAR BATTLE

Mrs. Hartje Granted Decree of Absolute Divorce From Millionaire

Pittsburg, July 18.—A decree of absolute divorce to Mary Scott Hartje from her husband, Augustus Hartje, the millionaire paper manufacturer of Pittsburg, was granted by Judge Fraser in common pleas court.

The Hartje divorce case first broke upon the public five years ago, when Hartje filed suit against his wife, naming as corespondent Tom Madine, who had been in the employ of the Hartjes. Later he named Clifford Hooe, a negro stableman.

Hartje was particularly anxious to get the divorce, but Mrs. Hartje was determined to clear her name and sustain her countercharges of brutality. Thousands of dollars have been expended by both sides for legal services and detective work.

REPTILE TEN FEET LONG

Skeleton Found Imbedded In Rock Far Below Earth's Surface

St. Charles, Mich., July 18.—Workmen in mine No. 2 of the Robert Gage Mining company have found what is supposed to be the skeleton of a prehistoric reptile, similar to a water lizard.

The bones were found imbedded in the rock 225 feet below the surface and appear to be those of a saurian about ten feet in length.

AN ALLEGED EMBEZZLER

Pittsburg Surprised at Arrest of Man Prominent In Church Work

Pittsburg, July 18.—Pittsburg financial, religious and social circles were shocked by the discovery that Albert H. Eames, former elder and until recently Sunday school superintendent of the Tabernacle Presbyterian church here, has been arrested and is held under heavy bail on a charge of embezzlement of funds from his employer, Alexander R. Peacock, a local millionaire.

Eames was given a secret hearing before Alderman Martin, who held him under bail for court. While the offense specified in the complaint of Peacock claims but $14,000 stolen, it is claimed the peculations of Eames extended over two years' time and amounted to more than $150,000.

MORSE MAY BENEFIT BY IT

Parole of Federal Prisoners May Begin In a Few Months

Washington, July 18.—Charles W. Morse, the New York banker, now serving a fifteen-year sentence in the federal prison at Atlanta, may yet be set free. Preliminary steps have been taken by the department of justice to put into effect the law enacted at the last session of congress for paroling United States prisoners, thus establishing a practice adopted by probably one-half the states.

It probably will be two or three months before any paroling of federal prisoners will take place. Probably 2500 prisoners are now in the federal penitentiaries who will be affected by the law sooner or later.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

City Is Being Searched For Dr. Crippen and Ethel Leneve

IMMUNITY FOR THE LATTER

Will Escape Prosecution If She Will Come Forward and Disclose Her Whereabouts—Alleged Slayer Did Not Disappear Until After Discovery of Wife's Body—Detectives Resent Criticism From America

London, July 18.—Despite the efforts of an army of sleuths, professional and amateur, Dr. Hawley H. Crippen and his typist, Ethel C. Leneve, have not been found. All England has been shocked by the cruel murder of his wife, Belle Elmore, the American actress, and the watch for Crippen and the Leneve woman is general.

After looking over the case again the officers of Scotland Yard have reached the conclusion that the crime was committed either at midnight on Jan. 31 or on midnight Feb. 1. Mrs. Crippen was seen dining at a restaurant on Monday, Jan. 31. On the Wednesday morning following the Music Hall Artists' Guild received a letter announcing Mrs. Crippen's departure for New York. The woman, it is figured out, was probably killed between the periods mentioned.

Miss Leneve's aunt confirms the police discovery that Crippen and Miss Leneve had planned to leave London on July 2. Being lulled by the non-discovery of the body, Crippen apparently thought it safe to remain longer and did not flee until after the discovery.

The detectives of Scotland Yard resent the criticism in some American newspapers that they have carelessly allowed a murderer to escape. The men of the yard do not explain why they did not shadow Crippen after they had extracted a pledge from him that he would not leave the country. Critics assert that they should have shadowed him because of his conflicting stories in regard to his wife's disappearance. It is said if this had occurred in New York Crippen would have been promptly arrested on suspicion, but the English law forbids arrest on suspicion.

There is no doubt that the Scotland Yard men are chagrined over the fact that they permitted Crippen to escape. They are pinning their hopes of discovering him now upon an appeal to the Leneve woman. They have inserted advertisements in various newspapers in which they, in a disguised manner, promise her immunity if she will come forward and disclose her whereabouts.

While all ports are being watched for the doctor and the woman, the police still believe the couple are concealed somewhere in London, and accordingly the hunt for them is proceeding here.

NO PAY FOR INSPECTORS

Law Reorganizing Lighthouse Board Found to Contain a "Joker"

Washington, July 18.—A "joker" has been discovered in the legislation providing for the reorganization of the lighthouse board and establishing it on a civilian basis instead of under the military naval supervision which has prevailed for years.

As an important element in the reorganization congress provided for the appointment of civilian inspectors, but diligent search has failed to discover anywhere in the law any appropriation to pay such inspectors for their services.

SYNOPSIS

(CHAPTER XI—Continued.)

"Jocelyn!" they called to her. Faces looked out. "Jocelyn!"

"Yes!" She was walking rapidly from him now, a laugh, a little forced, on her lips.

John Steele moved slowly down the stone steps leading to the garden below. He could go, and she would never know she had honored by her friendship, had sheltered beneath her roof, one who— As he walked down the dimly lighted path somebody, a man, standing under the trees at one side, at that moment touched his arm.

"I should like to speak with you, sir!" said a voice, and, turning with a quick jerk, Steele saw the familiar features of Gillett, the former police agent, behind him other men.

"What do you want?"

The Scotland Yard man coughed significantly. "Out here is a nice, quiet place for a word or so," he said in his blandest manner. "And if you will be so good"—

John Steele's reply was as emphatic as it was sudden. A laugh burst from his throat. With the quickness of thought he launched himself forward.

* * * * * * * * *

In a corridor on the second floor of Strathorn House the voice of Lord Ronsdale was heard. It was followed by that of Jocelyn Wray.

"Never fear! They'll get the fellow yet," my lord had said.

Jocelyn answered mechanically.

"Although it was most bungling on their part to have permitted him to get away," Ronsdale went on. "I hope, however, this little unexpected episode won't disturb your rest." An instant the steely eyes seemed to contemplate her closer. "Many going away tomorrow?" he asked, as if to divert her thoughts from the exciting experience of the evening before leaving her.

"Only Captain Forsythe and—Mr. Steele."

Did he notice the slightest hesitation on her part before speaking the last name? My lord's eyes fell: an odd expression appeared on his face.

As the door closed behind her young mistress a maid came quickly forward. "Did you learn anything more, Miss Jocelyn, if I may be so bold as to ask, from the police agent? Who the criminal was or"—

"The police agent only said he was an escaped convict, no ordinary one, who had escaped from London and was making for the sea. They got word he was at the village and followed him there, but he managed to elude them, and they traced him to Strathorn House park, where he had taken refuge. The police did not acquaint Sir Charles, Lord Ronsdale or any one with their purpose, thinking not to alarm us needlessly beforehand. And— I believe that is all."

A moment the woman waited. "I—shall I"—

The girl looked before her. Tiny flames from the grate heightened the sheen on her gown. They threw passing lights on the somewhat tired, proud face. "I shall not need you, Dobson," she said. "You may go. A moment." The woman, who had half turned, waited. Jocelyn's glance had lowered to the fire. In its reflection her slim, delicate fingers were rosy. She unclasped them and smoothed the brocade absently with one hand. "One or two are leaving early tomorrow. You will see—you will give instructions that everything is provided for their comfort."

The maid responded and left the room. A faint shout from somewhere in the gardens, far off, aroused Jocelyn. The girl looked around, but immediately silence again reigned. She got up.

Again the sound. This time she placed it—the creaking of the giant branch of ivy that ran up and around her own balcony. The girl paused irresolutely, her hand on the heavy, ancient hanging. Leaning forward, she waited, but the noise stopped. She heard nothing more, told herself it was nothing and was about to move out again when her gaze was suddenly held by something that passed like a shadow—a man's arm—on the other side of the nearest window, between the modern French curtains, not quite drawn together. The window opened wider, noiselessly, but quickly. Then a hand, strong, shapely, pushed the curtains aside. The intruder acted as one certain of his ground, now drawing the window draperies quickly together behind him as if seeking to escape observation from any one below. He stepped out into the room.

Did the intruder hear a sound, a quick breath? His gaze swerved to the opposite end of the room, where it saw a living presence. For a moment they looked at each other. The man's face turned very pale; his hand touched the back of a chair; he steadied himself.

"I thought—to enter armory hall. Did not know your rooms were here," he managed to say in a low tone, "at this corner of Strathorn House."

She did not answer, so they stood silently, absurdly. The man had to speak first. He pulled himself together. The bad fortune that had dogged him so long, that he had fought against so hard, now found its culmination. It had cast him of all places at her feet. So be it. Well, destiny now could harm him little more.

"I had hoped you would never know, but the gods, it seems"—he could even laugh—"have ordained otherwise. 'Fata obstant.'"

He stopped. A suggestion of pain crept into her expression. But the laugh returned to his lips, the luster to his eyes.

"A good many people have their pasts. Can you imagine what mine may have been?"

She seemed to stand in a hateful dream. Looking at him—the torn evening clothes, his face, pale, different. Listening to him—to what?

"A convict!" said the man. "Yes, that's what I was. Had been in jails—jails! And was sent out of the country years ago—transported. But time went by, and the convict thought he might safely come back—boldly, with impunity. The years and circumstances had altered him, wrought great changes. He felt compelled to return—why is of no moment—believed himself secure in so doing and was until chance led him out of his accustomed way—to new walks, new faces, where lay the danger, the ambush, into which he who thought himself strong like a weak fool walked or was led blindly."

The blue eyes bent like stars now on this man in her room standing before her with bold, mocking face as if his dark eyes read, understood every thought that passed through her brain.

"You! Then it was you—John Steele—that they"—

"The convict they tried to arrest? Yes."

"You? I don't"— Her voice was almost childlike.

"I will help you to—understand!" An ashen shade came over his face.

The man paused. There was a strange gleam in the dark eyes that lingered on her. Its light was succeeded by another, a fiercer expression. For the first time she moved, shrank back slightly. "I'm afraid I used a few of them roughly," he said with look derisory. "There was no time for soft talk. It was cut and run—give 'leg bail,' as the thieves say." Did he purposely relapse into coarser words to clinch home the whole damning, detestable truth?

"But it was a close call out there in the garden! They were before the convict in the woods. He must needs double back to the shadow of the house! At the bottom of a moat he looked up to a balcony overhead, small as Juliet's, though I swear he thought it led to armory hall, not here. Had he known the truth he would have stayed there first, and— But, as it was, he heard voices around the corner; afar, men approaching. The ivy at Strathorn House is almost as old as the house itself, the main branches larger than a man's arm. It was not difficult to get here, though I wish now"—he dared smile bitterly—"they had come on me first."

She moved slowly out into the room. His face was half averted. He did not turn, although he must have known she was near. With his back toward her he gazed down at the soft, bright hues of the rug and on it a white thing, a tiny bit of lace, a handkerchief that some time before had fluttered to the floor and had been left lying there.

"But"—she spoke now—"you—you who seemed all that was—I can't believe—it is impossible, inconceivable!"

"I have told you the truth because"—the words broke from him—"I had to! Must I"—despite himself there was an accent of acutest pain in his voice—"repeat it?"

"Oh," she said, "it was infamous!"

The word struck him like a whip and lashed his face to a dull red. The silence grew.

"I would not presume to dispute or to contradict any conclusion you may have reached." He spoke at length in a low, even voice. "I had not, as I said, intended this last, this most inexcusable intrusion. You have now only one course to pursue"—his gaze turned to the long silken bell rope on the wall—"and I promise not to resist. Well?" he said.

She had suddenly stopped. In the hall voices were heard approaching. He, too, caught them.

"That simplifies matters," he remarked.

"Jocelyn!" The voice was that of Sir Charles. "Are you there?" She did not answer. "Kindly unlock the door."

NORFOLK, SS.

Supreme Judicial Court in Equity

CHARLES D. SIAS ET AL., TRUSTEES,
VS.
HERBERT T. CHASE ET AL.

In the matter of petition, filed in said Court June 28, 1910, for construction of will of Caleb Chase, late of Brookline in said County.

This is a petition in equity in which the petitioners, Charles D. Sias, Benjamin S. Palmer and William T. Rich, as Trustees under the will of Caleb Chase, represent in substance as follows:—

The said Caleb Chase by his will dated January 21, 1899, after making certain specific pecuniary bequests and devises, bequeathed and devised the residue of his estate to said petitioners in trust to pay the net income thereof to his wife, Salome B. Chase, so long as she should live, and upon her death to divide and distribute all the rest and remainder of the trust estate (after paying therefrom certain pecuniary bequests) among the survivors of the following named legatees (who respectively had received legacies under his will,) each survivor to receive such a proportional part of said remainder as the amount of his legacy bears to the sum remaining to be distributed, namely:—Erastus Chase, Mary E. Nickerson, George Nickerson, Frank E. Chase, Herbert T. Chase, Phoebe Sisson, Helena A. T. Nickerson, Erastus W. Nickerson, Arthur L. Nickerson, George Nickerson, Jr., Annie E. Ginn, Darius Chase, Mary E. Townsend, Charles H. Chase, Frederick W. Chase, Caleb Chase, Polly Ellen Eldredge, Charles Baker, George A. Baker, Howard Baker, Mary Sherman, Hope M. Baker, Ozias C. Baker, George W. Baker, Daniel W. Baker, Emma I. Thatcher, widow of Darius Chase, Abbie Hibbard, Anthony Kelley, his wife, Joshua C. Kelley, Edward A. Kelley, Chester B. Kelley, Herbert W. Kelley, Cora M. Berry.

Said Salome B. Chase, widow of the testator, died on March 26, 1910, and the trust having terminated on her death, the question arises as to how said residuary trust estate shall be distributed among the remainder-men.

Of said legatees 24 survive the testator and are hereinafter referred to as the "First Class," and 9 died before the death of the testator and are hereinafter referred to as the "Second Class," and one died after the death of the testator and before the death of his widow and is hereinafter referred to as the "Third Class."

The amount of the bequests to the said legatees being the basis of apportionment of the residuary trust estate, the question arises as to what of said legacies are to be considered in making the apportionment and what are to be eliminated on account of the death of the legatees before the death of the testator.

The testator provided as above by his will that each survivor of said legatees should receive such a proportional part of the residuary estate "as the amount of his foregoing legacy bears to the sum remaining to be distributed,"—and afterwards he provided by his first codicil, dated December 26, 1899, as follows:—"And whereas, upon mature reflection, I do not wish the legacies to any one of the persons named above to lapse by reason of his or her death prior to my decease, or for other cause, I now direct that no legacy to any one of the persons named shall lapse, but that, if any one of those named above shall predecease me, his or her share shall be distributed as if it were his or her intestate estate."

There were nine of said legatees who died before his death, namely; Erastus Chase, Mary E. Nickerson, Frank E. Chase, Darius Chase, Hope M. Baker, Ozias C. Baker, George W. Baker, Daniel W. Baker, George A. Baker, and one, Polly Ellen Eldredge, died after his death.

In regard to the above matter several questions arise in regard to which said petitioners ask for instructions and especially in regard to the following matters:—

1. The testator directs that upon the decease of his widow "my trustees to so divide and distribute all the rest and remainder of said trust fund among the survivors of my legatees named below," and the question arises whether he means those surviving at the time of his death or at the time of the death of his wife.

2. Of the legatees who died before the death of the testator (2d Class above) Erastus Chase and Mary E. Nickerson do not come (not being named therein) within the provision of said clause in regard to lapsed legacies and the question arises whether their heirs-at-law or representatives under the provisions of law in regard to lapsed legacies or otherwise are entitled to be distributees in the right of said Nickerson and Chase respectively, or as, with others, heirs-at-law and representatives of said testator,—and what share or right, if any, of or to the residue of the trust estate the heirs-at-law or legal representatives of said Chase and Nickerson would be entitled to. It has furthermore been claimed and the question arises as to whether the heirs or representatives of Erastus Chase can take under the provisions of said clause of the first codicil in regard to lapsed legacies, the claim being as follows;—in said clause the testator says—"Whereas by my said will I gave to my brother Erastus Chase ten thousand dollars, I now give to him an additional ten thousand dollars," etc.,—"and whereas by said will I gave a legacy to each of the following named persons, to wit:" (then follow the names, which do not include that of said Erastus, of legatees who have predeceased the testator)—"And whereas upon mature reflection I do not wish a legacy to any one of the persons named above to lapse," etc.;—the claim is that Erastus Chase is to be considered as one of the persons "named above" and therefore that his heirs or representatives are to take his share.

3. As to the other legatees who died before the testator and who come within the provisions of the clause of the first codicil in regard to lapsed legacies (they having been named therein), so far as such clause may be applicable, the question arises whether the testator only refers to the lapsing of a "legacy" and whether a distributive share of the residue of the trust estate can be regarded as coming within the above provision, and is included in the definition of the term "legacy."

4. As said Polly Ellen Eldredge did not predecease the testator, but died after his death, and the testator provided if any one "shall predecease me his or her share shall be distributed" as intestate estate, the question arises whether said provision as to lapsed legacies is applicable to her interest in the trust estate.

5. If it shall be found by the Court that the said provision of the codicil in regard to lapsed legacies is not applicable to the interests under the residuary trust of said legatees of said second class and third class, the question arises whether the heirs-at-law or representatives of such legatees will take irrespective of such provision, and under the provisions of law in regard to lapsed legacies or otherwise, or what share, if any, they would be entitled to.

6. To summarize the above questions the question arises which of the persons named in said three classes and the heirs-at-law and representatives of which of said persons deceased are to share in the distribution of the residuary estate.

7. The names of the persons having been so determined, several subsidiary questions arise as follows:

8. The question arises as to what is to be regarded as the distributive share of said Erastus Chase and Mary E. Nickerson, the said Erastus having been given $10,000, in the will and an additional $10,000, in the first codicil, and said Mary E., having been given $5000, in the will and an additional $5000, in the second codicil.

9. The question arises whether in the distribution and payment of shares of deceased legatees their respective husbands or widows, now living or living at the death of the testator, shall be considered and take as heirs-at-law and by right of such deceased legatees.

10. The question arises as to the distribution, as intestate estate, of the share of a deceased legatee whether the trustees should pay the share to his administrator or executor or directly to those who would be ultimately entitled to it, and furthermore whether the testator meant the distribution to be made, as intestate estate, (in case the legatee had died intestate) as of the time of the death of said Caleb Chase, or as of the time of said legatee's death.

11. The question arises as to the construction of the phrase,—"My trustees to so divide and distribute all the rest and remainder of said trust fund among the survivors of my legatees named below that each survivor shall receive such a proportional part thereof as the amount of his foregoing legacy bears to the sum remaining to be distributed,"—and how are the calculation and apportionment to be made under the above provision, and whether all the trust estate is so disposed of, or whether any portion of such estate is to be considered as intestate estate of said testator.

12. If any portion of the estate of said testator shall be found to pass as intestate estate, said testator having died on November 23, 1908, and his widow, Salome B. Chase, on March 26, 1910, and he having made provision for her in his will, and she not having waived the provisions of the will but received her share thereunder, the question arises whether she, as his widow or as a statutory (or otherwise) heir-at-law or interested in his estate, as of the time of his death, is by the executors of her will to take the same share of his said intestate estate as if said testator had died intestate.

13. All the foregoing matters are in reference to the distribution of the personal estate, which is a part of said trust fund.

14. The following questions are in regard to the distribution of the real estate or the proceeds of sale thereof. By his will the testator devised a life estate in all his real property to his wife, Salome B. Chase, with the remainder over upon her death to his niece, Cora M. Berry, and then by his codicil of January 21, 1899, he revoked the gift of all said remainder to Cora M. Berry, and only gave to her the estate in remainder of his homestead estate in West Harwich, Massachusetts, (making no provision for the disposition of the balance of all his real estate in remainder). In his will he had devised "all the rest and remainder of my estate to said Sias, Palmer and Rich, the survivors and survivor of them, in trust for the following uses and purposes," (to his wife for life with remainder over to certain legatees as hereinbefore set forth), and the question arises, (1) whether the said balance of the estate in remainder has vested in said trustees, (2) as to what their duty is, if such real estate is now vested in them, (3) whether to sell the same and convert it into money and divide the proceeds among the legatees of the residue of the trust estate, and, if so, in the same proportions as the personal estate of said residue is to be divided among them or in what proportions, (4) whether they shall convey such real estate by deed to said legatees of the residue of the trust estate, and, if so, in the same proportions as the personal estate of said residue is to be divided among them or in what proportions, (5) whether said remainder estate has vested in them at all or is to be considered as undevised real estate of the testator, which would be disposed of as if he had died intestate.

And the petitioners, being in doubt as to the proper construction to be given to said will and codicils in relation to the matters set forth in said petition, pray that the Court will hear said matters and instruct your petitioners in regard to the same and the questions which arise as therein stated, and especially,—

First. To whom the residue of the personal estate of the trust fund or estate which shall be in the hands of your petitioners as trustees as aforesaid at the time of the final termination of the trust and the final distribution of the trust estate is to be distributed, made over and paid, and in what proportions.

Second. What disposition, if any, shall be made by your petitioners of the real estate in Massachusetts which belonged to the testator, except his said homestead estate, so called, in West Harwich, which was devised to said Cora M. Berry.

Third. For such other and further instructions as to the Court shall seem meet in the premises.

And now it appearing that certain of the respondents, to wit:—Bessie Brown of San Francisco, California, William P. Baker of Niagara Falls, New York, William P. Baker (administrator of Ozias C. Baker) of Niagara Falls, New York, Edwin M. Baker of Monticello, Iowa, Corinda M. Berry of Denver, Colorado, Annie M. Chase of Fort Scott, Kansas, Herbert T. Chase (administrator of Erastus Chase) of Grand Rapids, Michigan, Charles H. Chase of Villa Rica, Paraguay, Herbert T. Chase of Grand Rapids, Michigan, Annie R. Redman of Montclair, New Jersey, Idella Stone of Berkeley, California, Mary E. Townsend of East Oakland, California, Emma B. West of Aztec, New Mexico, reside out of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts and are beyond the jurisdiction of the Court and personal service by sheriff of this Commonwealth cannot be made upon them.

It is ordered that the said William P. Baker, William P. Baker, administrator of Ozias C. Baker, Edwin M. Baker, Herbert T. Chase, administrator of Erastus Chase, Herbert T. Chase, Annie R. Redman appear within one month, —the said Bessie Brown, Corinda M. Berry, Annie M. Chase, Idella Stone, Mary E. Townsend appear within two months,—the said Emma B. West appear within three months and the said Charles H. Chase appear within six months from the first Monday of July next and answer to said bill.

Rev. E. W. Virgin of Dedham, former pastor of the M. E. church at West Quincy, is to supply that pulpit next Sunday.

Harry S. Glover of Washington street is at Magnolia, for the summer, having accepted a position at that place.

Miss Marion Morrow has returned to her home in Montello after a week's visit to Quincy relatives and friends.

Archie Thayer, the Houghs Neck orator, can always collect a crowd and Sunday evening he gave quite a discourse which helped to liven up the street at the end of the car line.

News of the Copeland games at Barre, Vt., was slow in reaching Quincy. Had the team been fortunate enough to win the news would have travelled fast.

Libels for divorce were filed at the Superior court at Dedham on Friday by Annie H. Betts from Frederick H. Betts and Esther J. Clark from John A. Clark, all of this city.

After a two weeks' vacation, part of which was spent in New Hampshire, Miss Edith MacVitie of Whitwell street resumed her duties at the Ledger office today.

The submarine Salmon attracted considerable attention from yachtsmen in Quincy bay Sunday noon as she steamed up the channel to the Fore River shipyard from her long run to Bermuda.

Two well known and obliging young ladies, Miss Isabelle Michael and Miss Eileen Barrie are missed from the store of D. E. Wadsworth & Co. this week. Miss Barrie will cruise the water for two weeks, while Miss Michael will sojourn among the hills of Vermont.

Several passengers on a Houghs Neck car had a scare last evening when a boy let go a baby carriage which started down a banking directly in the path of the car. When the carriage reached the street it tipped over and the car passed by much to the relief of the passengers. The baby was probably somewhat bruised when rescued, but had a lucky escape.

☞Beautiful Alpha hall is to open for a season of refined moving pictures and illustrated songs on Thursday evening. A special feature is to be made of music. Two soloists will sing the latest songs. The shows will be such as will especially appeal to women and children.

FINNISH CHURCH HOLDS OUTING

Parish and Friends Have Enjoyable Day at Park

An outing was held Sunday at Merrymount park by the Finnish Congregational church, attended by over 500 members of the parish and friends. Much of the day was passed with music, speeches, etc., for entertainment, there being bands of music and singing by the church choirs, and the Finnish Male chorus.

Speeches were made by Messrs. E. Sward, H. Tuori and J. E. Lillback. A poem written by Mrs. Ida Hakkila was read by her and received with appreciation. The National hymn was sung with fervor.

The outing was in the interests of the Finnish summer school. The party broke up early in the evening in time for the people to attend the usual Sunday evening service at the church at seven o'clock.

SERIOUSLY ILL.

William Harkins a well known business man is seriously ill at his home on Goffe street. Mr. Harkins has not been in the best of health for some months although he has been able to be about. Sunday morning as was about to enter his carriage to attend church he sustained a shock and soon became unconscious. His condition today is reported as being serious.

STORMING CITY HALL.

Officer Bishop arrested a disturber in City Square Sunday night and as the police box in the square was out of commission took his prisoners to City Hall to telephone for the patrol wagon. While waiting for the wagon the young man's friends swarmed about the rear door of the hall and it looked at one time as though they contemplated storming the hall and rescuing the prisoner.

BRIEFS

Meeting of City Council tonight.

The Assessors expect to announce the tax rate this week.

The temperature is somewhat cooler today from what it has been for the past two weeks.

George W. Nash and daughter Miss Louise Nash of Abington formerly of Wollaston are at Bethlehem, New Hampshire, for a few weeks.

Miss Dorothy Sayward of Winthrop avenue returned Saturday from a two weeks' stay at Meredith, New Hampshire.

Mrs. George Taylor and sons Theodore and Harvey of Winthrop avenue have gone to Montreal to remain six weeks.

Commissioner Bainbridge says he will not award the Hancock street paving contract until after the consolidated loan order is passed and signed.

Inspector of Plumbing J. J. Kenily and Mrs. Kenily, who recently returned from their wedding trip are located for the summer at Houghs Neck, where they have a cottage on the bay side.

Several members of Paul Revere W. R. C. and friends are to hold an outing at Bass Point, Nahant, Tuesday. Some will go by boat, others by electric cars. All are looking forward to a fine time, but are sorry that the "silent one" who now belongs to the laboring class will be unable to be with them.

Had All His Nerve With Him.

In a downtown stand up lunch place, where the chief source of the waiters' revenue is in the form of tips and where the patrons are supposed to step lively so that those who wait may be accommodated, a man has been coming of late who brings a newspaper with him and reads it leisurely, sometimes for half an hour, while he takes his modest luncheon. The waiter at whose station he planted himself one day recently was prepared for the emergency, and when the man had finished reading his paper the servant handed him two others with the remark: "Maybe you'd like to see these?" The other waiters, knowing of the plot, looked to see the man wilt, but were disappointed. He took the papers with thanks, continued reading, and finally, when he asked for his check, asked also whether he might keep the papers.—New York Tribune

GRANITE CITY LEAGUE.

The Granite City League leaders, in the absence of a league game, played the Colonials of Dorchester, in easy fashion by a score of 12 to 0. The largest number of runs were scored in the third and fifth innings though the errors of the visitors held the Adams boys out of the earned run column.

The pitching and all-round playing of Charley Knight was again the feature of the Adams performance. J. Collins, Brownrigg, Hennessey and Smith were the heavy hitters while the fielding honors were divided between the phenomenal Barry and D. Collins on the first station. Collins substituted for McDonald who played with Makaria and acquitted himself nobly. The work of the team as a whole was a big feature of the game. For the Colonials, Horneman played well.

APPRENTICES LOSE.

Owing to the rain which soaked both the field and balls the Fore River Apprentices fell before the Neponset Wanderers 9 to 8.

After the heavy downpour the teams went onto the field for the fifth inning with the Wanderers at bat. The pitcher and fielders were unable to handle the ball and the Neponset boys wandered around the bases seven times. It was only the rain that saved them from 8 to 0 defeat.

The Apprentices collected eleven hits to the Wanderers three.

CRANCH A. A. 13, GLOVERS 0.

The Cranch A. A. defeated the Glovers of Atlantic by a score of 13-0 in a 6 inning game at Atlantic. The features of the game were the hitting of F. Galvin and Erickson for Cranch, both making clean drives for three bases, Galvin making 4 hits out of 4 times at bat and the pitching of Smith, who allowed but 5 hits.

NORWELL 3, MAKARIA 0.

With a patched up team of uncertain ability, the Makarias went to Norwell for their second game and surprised themselves by holding Norwell to three runs although they were unable to score themselves. Russ Bates got two good hits and led the team at the bat.

LUCKY THIRTEEN.

The Ramblers won their thirteenth game Saturday at Merrymount Park from the North Somerville team. Except for one game dropped to Wellfleet the Ramblers have not met defeat. Rice for the Ramblers struck out the first nine men.

The home team got six three baggers and were allowed twelve passes. Fowler and O'Brien excelled in the field.

COPELAND'S VANQUISHED.

In Friday's game between Copeland and Barre, Vt., the first of a series of three to be played at Barre, pitcher Collins of Quincy was unable to hold the Vermont batters and the entire team being in poor shape after their long, tiresome trip at night were unable to bat or field in their usual excellent form. The men were willing to work hard but were in no condition to do so.

In the second game, played Saturday, Barre again came in ahead, 11 to 9. The third game was not played since Barre, with two wins got the series.

Barre strengthened team in anticipation of this series and five Dartmouth varsity players were in the line-up and two New England league players. Copeland was therefore at a great disadvantage in every way.

QUINCY'S NOW THE LEADERS

Defeat of Randolph Splits Tie. Other Saturday Games

Quincy 3 — Randolph 0.
Lincoln 6 — Rockland 4. (12 innings)
Dewey 2 — Stoughton 1.

The league standing:

	Won	Lost	Per.
Quincy	7	3	.700
Randolph	6	4	.600
Weymouth	5	4	.545
Lincoln	5	5	.500
Rockland	3	6	.333
Stoughton	3	7	.300

The Lincoln-Rockland game was a heart breaker of 12 innings' duration. Up to the ninth, Rockland held the lead 4 to 1, but in that inning after a short intermission on account of rain, Lincoln came forth and collected three tallies, tying the game and in the twelfth made two more and held Rockland down.

Weymouth took Stoughton into camp in a tight game the batteries doing great work.

The Quincy-Randolph game is given below.

With the lead in the Old Colony League dependent upon the efforts of the Quincy men Saturday they went onto the field with the utmost confidence that they would prove superior to the Randolph pennant chasers and came home with the bacon. Johnny Glaze and "Pat" Willard, the latter a southpaw beaver, indulged in a first class pitcher battle and but for a leak in Willard's support the score would have still closed but not for one instant did Glaze's support falter no matter how difficult or quick the play and while they were unable to meet the curves of the Randolph slabman with great frequency the boys took quick advantage of every chance on the bases and tallied three times to their opponents none.

The first tally came in the third session. Donovan, with two strikes on him, singled and stole second. Fish fouled to Shaw. On Doherty's attempted one hand stop of Glaze's bad roller which got by, Donovan scored the first run which later proved to have been sufficient to win the game. In the seventh Connolly smashed a corking double in to left center. Donovan rapped to the box but Willard made a miscue and Connolly scored Donovan taking second, drawing a throw which led to another miss and he crossed plate with the third and last run.

Randolph was never dangerous, being at all stages of the game completely at the mercy of the ex-Dartmouth twirler. In only one inning did an opposing runner reach third. In the seventh on two singles in succession Shaw took third but Glaze forced Henry to tap him an easy one. Cash popped another to the box and Alden ,the only time he hit sent an easy one to Duggan.

The rain that started at the first of the sixth did not seriously inconvenience the players although some one started the cry of "Call the game."

NORFOLK CLUB OUTING.

The Norfolk club ,a strong Republican organization, held its annual outing at Nantasket last Saturday. At noon the members and guests assembled at Rowes wharf, Boston, and took the 12.20 boat and after a short reception at Hotel Nantasket a shore dinner was served to nearly 300 gentlemen. All the cities and towns in Norfolk county were well represented by the county commissioners, representatives, and political leaders. Hon. Samuel R. Moseley of Hyde Park was chairman of the Press committee and being a large man he wore an extra large badge. The general commitee consisted of Hon. W. O. Faxon, Stoughton, George L. Barnes, South Weymouth and Henry D. Humphrey, Hyde Park. Eugene C. Hultman of Quincy, Henry M. Storm of Braintree and Louis E. Flye of Holbrook were active on the reception committee.

After dinner President Charles H. Pearson called the meeting to order and said that one of the primary objects of the organization was to get out the republican vote and he appealed to each member to make an individual effort to induce his neighbor to vote election day. He introduced as the first speaker Gov. Draper as "one of the best governors Massachusetts or any other state ever had." The governor was given three rousing cheers.

Speaking of the national administration Gov. Draper said that it has made good. The republicans ,he said must not forget that they had a candidate for the U. S. senate (cheers for Lodge.) The governor said he was sure that the republican candidates this fall would defeat any candidates the democrats might nominate.

Senator Henry Cabot Lodge was next introduced and he gave a comparative table of wages paid postmen in Europe and in United States and showed that the highest wages paid abroad was in London, where carriers receive from $4.62 to $8.57 a week. Here he said the average pay for a letter carrier is $20.19 a week. What is true of the postmen, he said, is true of other occupations, and the protective principle had made this scale of wages in this country possible.

He closed by referring to state issues ,and said Gov. Draper was one of the best governors the state has ever had and it was the duty of the republicans to see to it that he got the majority he deserves.

Congressman John W. Weeks was introduced as one of the best congressmen the state has ever had. He good-naturedly referred to the sensatorial contest, saying that Heaven knows he is not mixing in a contest where colleagues are involved. But before a change is made he admonished republicans to be sure that good and sufficient cause is shown.

He saw no reason why Gov. Draper should not be continued in office, for in his opinion the present state chief executive had made an upright ,fearless, able governor.

Referring to the tariff, Mr. Weeks said it seemed to be popular to knock the measure, but in his opinion it was one of the best protective tariffs ever passed. He said he was satisfied that if the people would investigate what the last congress had done they would enhusiastically indorse its work.

Speaker Walker got loud applause when he arose to speak. He aroused considerable enthusiasm by saying that the republicans were going to win this fall.

Chauffeur Tips.

When the engine breaks down begin operations by lighting a cigarette. Take your time about it. This impresses the bystanders with your skill and coolness.

Lift the bonnet and peer into engine for a few minutes, whistling meanwhile. Walk round the other side and repeat.

Do the necessary repairs. Don't forget to lie on your back in the road beneath the car. The crowd will expect it.

Should the crowd grow restive offer its most noisy member the opportunity of taking your place.

If he happens to be in the business and accepts your offer let him do the work.

Start the engine, watch it for a minute and then replace bonnet.

Do not drive away at once. That would be inartistic. Maneuver with the clutch until the crowd grows joyous in expectation of another failure and then drive off smartly.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Art Maxims.

Nature is ever interfering with art.—Emerson.

The impressions of beautiful things make art.—Vernon Lee.

Without religion art, if it is not insignificant, lacks at least the highest significance of which it is capable.—G. Lowes Dickinson.

Detail in itself is not condemned by any art, and the highest art is that in which detail is most exquisitely elaborated.—Lafcadio Hearn.

STAKE OF $50,000 FOR PRIVATE FIGHT

Fifty Men Back New Offer For Johnson and Jeffries

Reno, Nev., July 18.—That there are some sporting men who seem determined to bring Jeffries and Johnson together again in some kind of a return fight at some place, is demonstrated by the following private message received in this city by a business man from a man who is in close relation with sporting affairs in San Francisco:

"Fifty men here in the hotel (naming a prominent hotel of San Fransisco) to pay $1000 each to see Jeffries and Johnson fight in a big room, and I positively believe it will come off."

This comes from such a reliable source as one of the most noted managers in the ring for the last several years, but whose name is withheld from publication. The message has the stamp of good faith in so far as its brief statements go.

Animal Oddities.

A whale can remain under water for an hour and a half.

The swiftest animal is the ostrich, which can do a mile a minute.

Every eight months ostriches are plucked, and each plucking yields about a pound of feathers.

The turkey's real name was oocoocoo, by which it was known to the Cherokee Indians and so called from its call.

In the Long Ago.

"Adam," asked Eve, "what are you doing?"

"I'm discovering Mars," he said, looking down at her to rest his neck. "I wonder if it has any inhabitants."

From which we learn that Adam already knew about as much concerning Mars as the modern astronomers do.—Chicago Tribune.

HITCH OVER LOAN ORDERS MAKES NECESSARY ANOTHER MEETING

Minority Report Increasing Salary of Firemen Is Substituted, but Fails to Pass, and is Laid on Table

Long Debate over a Small Appropriation Order for the Rebuilding of Oak Street; Also Over Surface Drainage Order

Orders aggregating nearly $29,000 in addition to a consolidated loan order of $56,825 as a substitute for different loan orders adopted at recent meeting, were passed at Monday night's session of the City Council and sent to the Mayor. These included $12,140 for surface drainage, $10,000 for sewer extensions, $1,000 for Assessors' plans and several orders for the rebuilding of streets. The meeting was not a long one and there was but little debate.

It was the intention of the Council to adjourn for the summer at this meeting, but an amendment to one of the loan orders makes another meeting necessary.

Councilman Clark, McDevitt, Snow and Woodward were absent.

GAS EXTENSION.

The Gas Co. petitioned for permission to lay mains on Larry place, and the petition was referred to the Committee on Streets.

Several applications for minor licenses were referred to the License committee.

CONSOLIDATED LOAN.

The Finance Committee reported ought to pass on the consolidated loan order for $56,825. Order passed.

ASSESSORS' PLAN.

The Committee on Finance reported ought to pass on the order appropriating $1,000 for Assessors' plans of Ward Four. Order passed.

LOAN ORDERS.

The Finance Committee reported ought to pass on the loan order for $9,400 for street rebuilding. On roll call the order failed to pass, 14 voting yes and 3 no. Vote reconsidered and order laid on the table.

The Finance Committee reported an amendment to the loan order for $5,800 for street rebuilding and police station plumbing. The amendment strikes out the appropriation of $1,700 for Merrymount road. Report accepted and order placed in the calendar.

SEWER EXTENSIONS.

The Committee on Finance reported ought to pass on the order appropriating $10,000 for sewer extensions. Order passed.

ADDITIONAL FIREMEN.

The Committee on Finance reported an amendment to the order for additional permanent firemen for the Houghs Neck apparatus. The amendment makes the order take effect Jan. 1, 1911. Order passed.

WHITWELL STREET.

The Committee on Finance reported ought to pass on the order for $1,400 for a gravel sidewalk on Whitwell street. Order passed.

REFUNDING ORDER.

The Finance Committee reported ought to pass on the order refunding the sums paid for fireworks' licenses. Order passed.

TAX REFUND.

The Committee on Finance reported ought not to pass on the orders refunding taxes to P. J. Murphy and J. A. Billings. Report accepted on the Billings order. That relating to the tax of P. J. Murphy was laid on the table.

FIREMEN'S SALARIES.

The Finance Committee reported ought not to pass on the order increasing the salaries of the permanent firemen.

Councilman Smith offered a minority report that the order ought to pass, and moved substitution. He said the order would give the firemen the same salaries as policemen. He knew many would accept positions in fire department at present salaries but that should not count. In recent years there had been no increases for firemen, but the cost of living had increased. It would be fair to use firemen and police alike. The city should pay a fair salary.

The minority report was substituted, by a vote of 10 to 7, and the question came on passing the order.

Councilman Cherrington spoke in favor, saying it was 18 years since the salaries of firemen had been increased. Believed they should have same pay as police. They were liable to be called out for duty in case of riot.

Councilman Whiton opposed. He could not see the justice of paying a driver $1000 or $1,100 and the Chief Engineer but $800. When time came for increases he would begin with Chief.

Councilman Cherrington said Chief was permitted to attend to his private business. Further he had not asked for increase.

Councilman Flynn favored the order. Firemen run great risk. He claimed they were poorer paid in Quincy than in some towns. They deserve an increase.

Councilman Bolster opposed on general principles as we should not increase city expenditures.

Councilman Whiton said a very small percentage of those who work in Boston get $20 per week, and $17 in Quincy was better. Our firemen are not underpaid, and run no great risks. Why, in travelling about as I do on the trains I run a greater risk. It would be different if we could afford it.

BUSINESS MAN DEAD

William Harkins, Well-Known Mason, Passes away

William Harkins, for forty years one of Quincy's well known business men, passed away Monday evening at his home at 108 Goffe street as the result of a paralytic shock Sunday morning. Mr. Harkins sustained a slight shock some months ago but apparently soon recovered, and while not in the best of health has been able to be about. Sunday morning as he was about to take his carriage to attend church he sustained another shock. He immediately became unconscious, and remained so until he passed away.

Mr. Harkins was born in Ireland 58 years ago. He came to this country when a young man and has resided in Quincy for about 40 years. He had for many years been associated with his brother John Harkins in the mason business and as such was well known. By close attention to business they built up a large buiness in their line.

Some years ago he built himself a handsome residence on Goffe street where he has since resided. Besides a widow he leaves five daughters and two sons. One of his sons is Dr. John F. Harkins, a well known physician of Worcester.

FIRE AT BRAINTREE.

Fire broke out this morning in the ell of a house occupied by the family of Mr. De Angelo in the Rosedale district at Braintree, and caused damage to the extent of about $200. The alarm was rung in from Box 48 and the fire was extinguished soon after the arrival of the fire department.

HALL PLACE M. E. CHURCH.

The subject of the Sunday morning sermon was "Impartiality of Divine Grace" the text being taking in Act. 1:34. During the service the pastor Rev. Carl H. Raupach baptised four children. The Sunday school met as usual at 11.45 with a good attendance. The Epworth League united with the regular evening meeting at 7 o'clock the pastor speaking on the topic "The Christians Reward Here."

NO TURNOUT.

The much talked of turnout for the Squantum cars which was to be opposite Conant street on Squantum street has been done away with, and two cars run on the half hour time from six to nine in the moring and five until seven at night. This new arrangement is much appreciated by the crowds at Squantum who go to Boston in the morning and return at night,

RUNAWAY.

There was quite a lively runaway in City Square on Monday evening and for a few minutes it looked as though someone would be injured. The runaway was about 6 o'clock at a time when City Square is full of people. The horse was one of F. H. Crane & Sons and started from their office on Saville street. The horse dashed across Hancock street narrowly missing several pedestrians. He then ran into Saville avenue just skipping the automobile of C. C. Hearn, and continued down the avenue until the team struck the automobile of Fred Austin when the horse was stopped. Some little damage was done to Mr. Austin's automobile.

LONG CRIMINAL RECORD OF QUINCY PICKPOCKET

Big Arthur Smith has Served About 20 Years In Prison Since 1874

Is Wanted By Quincy Police for Picking Pockets on Street Cars

Arthur Smith, known as Big Arthur who is wanted by the Quincy police for robbing W. J. Barry on an electric car last March was sentenced to six months at Brockton Saturday for picking pockets. Lieut. McKay was on hand with a warrant for Smith and had he been released would have brought him to Quincy. The warrant has gone to Plymouth jail with Smith and if he gets the $400 bail to prosecute his appeal he will be immediately arrested on the Quincy warrant.

According to the evidence brought out at Brockton Big Arthur is known all over the country as a professional pickpocket and thief and has served twenty years in Sing Sing. His record as brought out at Brockton is an interesting one.

Arthur C. Smith, or Thomas Farrell the name in which he first became publicly recorded as a pickpocket 36 years ago, is one of the best known "dips" in the country and has been at the game nearly 40 years. He was 38 in 1899, according to the New York criminal identification bureau and that would make him 50 now, but he gave his age Wednesday, when arrested, as 58 and at that time tried to have it understood that his name was Arthur C. Clark, which would have made an additional alias to the many he already enjoys. The records say that his name is best known as Arthur Smith and that his aliases are Gleason, Thomas Farrell, James Williams, McLean, Lee, Gilsey, Gilman, Gilmore, Chute, etc. His New York and Boston rogues' gallery pictures show him with a moustache and wonder was that Sherlock was able to recognize him as he is now in smooth face.

His record in New York begins August 5, 1874, when he was taken for petty larceny from the person and sent to Sing Sing for five years, the first instalment of 20 years he was sentenced to serve in that famous prison according to the "Big Arthur" Smith data that the local police obtained. He did not serve all of his 20 years in Sing Sing as he was shifted from there on several occasions, serving out his sentence in Clinton, Auburn, etc.

As Tom Farrell, August 9, 1881, he was given one year for petty larceny from the person in New York city. June 18, 1882, he was found guilty of larceny from the person in New York

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

The Congressional elections seem to be about the only excitement nowadays.

Have you estimated on the tax rate for 1910? It was $20.40 in 1909, and $20.50 in 1908. These are the only two years it reached $20.

Watermelons are higher than ever in price this season. How about that? There is no tariff in watermelons, is there?

The corset manufacturers are to have a trade journal. As an appropriate mast-head motto, let us suggest "We are here to stay."

A German scientist has figured that the power expended by the people of the world in chewing gum would be sufficient to propel a railroad train at sixty miles an hour from now until the retirement of Bryan from politics.

Other cities should go to Waltham for the recipe telling how to reduce the tax rate. Waltham's rate is only $16.80 a drop of $1 from 1909. This was done on a very small gain in valuation, the increase in real estate being $332,600, and the increase in personal estate $347,145. The city assessed 100 more polls.

The N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. timetable as published in this paper was original with the Daily Ledger and is popular with commuters, telling at a glance the quick trains, and the minute of arrival. Other papers recognize a good thing in adopting it. Many people carry a clipping from the Daily Ledger in their pocket.

A New York minister in the course of his sermon lately, said that Mr. Carnegie and other millionaires got used to the feeling of giving away a million, and advised others to try the same to experience the joy of giving. But to this advice the answer of the majority will be an eager inquiry of how first to get the million.

DRIFT OF OPINION.

The money situation is really better than at one time anticipated, although we are approaching a period when firmer rates must be expected owing to crop requirements. The policy of retrenchment adopted by many of the banks, especially in the interior, is having a beneficial effect. Reports of national banks for the last quarter show that many of these institutions have been able to strengthen their reserves compared with the previous report of March 29. The improvement in bank reserves, however, has been chiefly in the East and Central West. Many of the Southern and Southwestern institutions still show decline in reserve strength. In these sections no doubt further liquidation imposed by interior bankers unsure imposed by interior bankers, unwelcome as it may have been, will inevitably result in strengthening the credit situation. There is still more or less apprehension of a money squeeze in certain sections of the interior, though the increased working power of money arising from lower prices and dull trade will undoubtedly tend to mitigate any undue stringency. The New York banks are now in a better position to afford assistance to the interior, and our ability to secure further assistance from abroad is also unquestionable. Gold imports have commenced earlier than expected, and the prospects are for a considerable influx of the precious metal during the coming autumn. Money abroad is easy.—Henry Clews, N. Y. Banker.

Hats off to Mrs. Anna T. Steinauer. She says, "teaching girls to cook fudge, cake and other extravagances and to weave mats is not part of modern school work. Last year her boy was required to learn to weave mats and she asked that he be excused as mat weaving by hand is unknown in these days of machinery. At the same time her boy could not read and write correctly. Another bright thing she said was that there are men on the Boston school board who would never have got there if they had been educated by the curriculum of the present day.—Salem News.

The socialist administration of Milwaukee is considering a plan whereby all tenement houses and places of bad reputation will be labeled with the name of the owner of the property.

They believe that such a method of bringing to the public knowledge the names of owners of property would deter its use for immoral purposes and that it would influence owners of tenement buildings to keep them in better condition.

Maybe the Milwaukee recorder of deeds will not be kept on the jump transferring titles the day the first property owner's name is tacked over the door of a brothel!—Beverly Times.

PRESIDENT ON TRIP TO COAST OF MAINE

Will Make Speeches at Eastport, Rockland and Bangor

Beverly, Mass., July 19.—With guns crashing the presidential salute of twenty-one guns, Burgess Point reverberated with the noise of the welcome to President Taft as he boarded the Mayflower for the ten days' cruise to Maine. The band played the national anthem and the president's blue flag was run up on the main truck. Five minutes later the Mayflower was steaming down along the north shore.

The president has consented to make three speeches at different points in Maine. The first visit ashore will be at Eastport, where the first speech will be delivered. The second speech will be at Bangor on the 3d, and the third will be delivered at Rockland on the 26th. Mr. Taft will spend three days at Bar Harbor.

HOUSEFLIES BANE OF ALL HUMANITY

Kill Them Now and Avoid Disease In Your Family Hereafter.

Greatest Carrier of Deadly Typhoid Germs Known to Scientists.

THE fly referred to in this article is the one most commonly found in our houses, the Musca domestica of Linnaeus.

Speaking broadly, man has made the housefly. It has developed along with the human dwelling. If we had no closed in dwelling places it is doubtful if the housefly as at present constituted could continue to exist. It thrives simply because we afford it food, protection and breeding places.

FEMALE HOUSEFLY RESTING ON GLASS AS SEEN FROM ABOVE.

It is at this time of the year that the housefly takes on life for the ensuing summer and autumn. Eggs laid last fall are ready to hatch. At first it is only a little worm, wriggling its tiny grublike form in some incubating pile of filth, usually the manure pile, the outhouse or the mound of rubbish or garbage in the back yard. In this condition it is easily killed, and it should be the duty of every person to kill it now. The housefly could not exist if everything were kept perfectly clean and sanitary. Exterminate the fly worms, do away with its breeding places, and there will be no flies.

Why It Is Called Typhoid Fly.

The common housefly is coming to be known as the "typhoid fly," and when the term becomes universal greater care will be exercised in protecting the house from its presence.

Flies swallow the germs of typhoid in countless millions while feeding on the excreta of typhoid patients. As a result they spread a thousand more typhoid germs in their excreta than on their feet.

Flies kill a greater number of human beings than all the beasts of prey and poisonous serpents, for they spread disease which slays thousands.

As soon as the fly comes out of its shell it is full grown and starts out in the world to make a living, and if your home is not clean it knows it, for the fly can discern an unclean odor for miles.

As much as flies like odors of filth they dislike clean smells, and where the former will attract the latter will repulse them. A pleasant smelling substance—the fragrance of flowers, geraniums, mignonette, lavender or any perfumery—will drive them away.

Most of our diseases are caused by invisible germs that lodge and grow in our bodies, destroying our tissues or poisoning us with their excreta. These germs may be brought to us from some sick person by whatever is large enough to carry them and has the opportunity. Combine this fact with what every one knows about flies and we see at once the tremendous importance of flies as carriers of human disease germs.

Feet of Flies Are Deadly.

Look closely at the picture of the fly resting on the glass and viewed from below. Look at the feet and observe that each foot is equipped with two claws and two light colored pads. The fly clings to rough surfaces by means of the claws and to smooth surfaces by a combined action of the claws and pads. The fly's pads are covered with thousands of minute short hairs sticky at the end. There is no suction—merely adhesion.

All its grownup life the fly has to manage with sticky feet. Imagine our plight if the soles of our feet were sticking plaster, perennially renewing its stickiness.

To such inconvenience the fly is constantly subject, and it is this that has bred into it the habit of frequently preening itself, particularly the feet. These are constantly becoming clogged with adhering substances, and this contamination the fly must assiduously remove if its feet are to act properly in supporting it on slippery places. If this contamination is too sticky to rub off the fly laps it off, and it then passes off in its excreta.

The fly lays its eggs in the manure pile or other objectionable filth. All the germs—all the imaginable abominable microbes—fasten themselves on the spongy feet. It brings them into the house and wipes them off. The fly you see walking over the food you are about to eat is covered with filth and germs.

If there is any dirt in your house or about your premises or those of your neighbors it has just come from it. Watch it as it stands on the sugar industriously wiping its feet. It is getting rid of disease germs, rubbing them on the sugar that you are going to eat, leaving the poison for you to swallow.

This does more to spread typhoid fever and cholera infantum and other intestinal diseases than any other cause.

Contact Brings Disease.

Disease attacks human beings only when they are brought in contact with it. For instance, you cannot get typhoid fever unless you swallow the germs of typhoid, and you do not swallow these germs unless they get on the food you eat or in the liquids you drink or on the glasses or cups from which you drink.

Intestinal diseases are more frequent whenever and wherever flies are most abundant, and they and not the summer heat are the active agents of its spread.

There is special danger when flies drop into such fluid as milk. This forms an ideal culture material for the bacillus. A few germs washed from the body of one fly may develop into millions within a few hours, and the person who drinks such milk will receive large doses of bacilli, which may later cause serious sickness.

Strike at the root of the evil. Dispose of waste materials in such a way that the housefly cannot propagate, for flies breed in horse manure, decaying vegetables, dead animals and all kinds of filth. So look after the garbage cans, see that they are cleaned, sprinkled with lime or kerosene oil and closely covered.

Screen all windows and doors and insist that your grocer, butcher, baker and every one from whom you buy foodstuffs does the same, and remember that a large percentage of flies breed in the stable.

There is more health in a well screened house than in many a doctor's visit.

After you have cleaned up your own premises inspect the neighborhood for fly breeding places. Call the attention of the owner to them and if he does not remove them complain to the board of health.

Keep flies away from the kitchen. Keep flies out of the dining room and away from the sick, especially from those ill with contageous diseases.

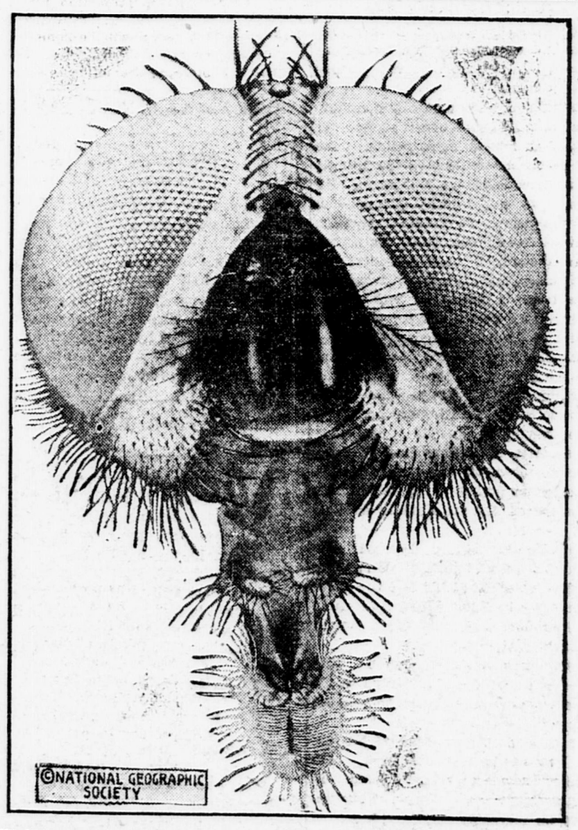

Simple Means of Killing Flies.

To clear rooms of flies carbolic acid may be used as follows: Heat a shovel or any similar article and drop thereon twenty drops of carbolic acid. The vapor kills the flies.

A cheap and perfectly reliable fly poison, one which is not dangerous to human life, is bichromate of potash in solution. Dissolve one dram, which can be bought at any drug store, in two ounces of water and add a little sugar. Put some of this solution in shallow dishes and distribute them about the house.

Sticky fly paper, traps and liquid poisons are among the things to use in killing flies, but the latest, cheapest and best is a solution of formalin or formaldehyde in water. A spoonful of this liquid put into a quarter of a pint of water and exposed in the room will be enough to kill all the flies.

To quickly clear the room where there are many flies burn pyrethrum powder in the room. This stupefies the flies, when they may be swept up and burned.

FRONT VIEW OF THE HEAD OF A HOUSEFLY—STUDDED AREAS ARE COMPOUND EYES.

VALUABLE FLY DON'TS.

Don't allow flies in your house.

Don't buy foodstuffs where flies are tolerated.

Don't allow your fruits and confections to be exposed to the swarms of flies.

Don't let flies crawl over the baby's mouth and swarm upon the nipple of its nursing bottle.

QUINCY PEOPLE GOING AWAY FOR ANY PART OF THE SUMMER SHOULD HAVE THE DAILY LEDGER SENT TO THEIR VACATION ADDRESS AND KEEP POSTED ON HOME NEWS.

Q. Y. C. LADIES DAY

Large Clubhouse Will be Appreciated

The annual ladies' day of the Quincy Yacht club will be held next week Wednesday and as usual will be the occasion for a large gathering of the club members wit htheir ladies and friends. The program for the day differs but little from other years. There will be a review and sail starting at 3 o'clock and returning at 5.30. The steamer Houghs Neck, the launches F. L. Harvey and the Alert have been chartered for the use of the guests, so that all who desire may participate in the review and sail.

While the sail is in progress those who remain on the clubhouse verandas will be entertained with a promenade concert by George Monk's orchestra who will also furnish music for the concert and hop in the evening. The larger hall and clubhouse will be appreciated.

On the return from the sail a lunch will be served in the club house hall by C. C. Whittemore. No one will be admitted to the club house without a ticket. Should Wednesday prove stormy the ladies' day will be postponed until the following day.

GOOD SELECTION.

The yachting editor of the Globe says:

The selection o fthe catboat Lris, Frank F. Crane and Dolly III, W. W. Arnold, to represent Massachsuetts bay in the interbay match for cats to be sailed in Narragansett bay, beginning Aug. 15, was a most judicious one.

The Cape catboat association has other boats well fitted to maintain its credit in the match ,and either Dartwell or Busy Bee would have made a good second to the champion Iris. The choice rested, therefore, on the performance to date of the boats and that of Dolly has been consistently good. She is a new boat and her crew are not yet fully accustomed to her ways, and not trained, perhaps, to make the most of her, as they will be later. B y the time she comes to the line in the match she should be considerably faster around a course than now.

Dolly III is the sort of boat the Cape catboat association has aimed to foster—the big, roomy, able "horse," such as they build at Osterville, where she came from.

The Iris, 22 years old ,and still the fastest catboat, by her record, on the Atlantic coast ,does not come under the rules of the association as laid down for new boats, in the matter of freeboard and a few other features. Her place in the class is that of all boats built prior to the adoption of the rules. Her honors are many and with Crane sitting as bland as Buddha at her wheel, she will give some of the slick ones from the other bays a run for their money.

With two such representatives Massachusetts bay should be able to take at least a fall or two out of the men from down the coast.

FLAG RAISING.

Camp Wachusett, at Rutland, Mass., held a flag-raising on Evacuation day, Through the efforts of Mrs. Charles C. Ewell, mother of Miss Elvira Ewell, the flag was presented by Paul J. Revere, W. R. C, of Quincy. The flag was raised by Miss Anna Hogan, chief of the camp, and as the breeze caught "Old Glory" members and friends numbering fourteen, joined in singing "The Star Spangled Banner" and other patriotic songs. A light collation was served and with three cheers for the flag, Paul J. Revere Corps, the chief, and Camp Wachusett, the party broke up, declaring that the few hours spent in Camp Wachusett had been very enjoyable ones.

TODAY'S COURT.

Robert Carlson and Charles Nolstrom were fined $10 each for drunkenness at Quincy.

Arthur W. Lowell was fined $20 for exceeding the automobile speed limit at Milton.

John McGelorey was fined $15 for drunkenness at Milton.

Michael Joseph and Louise Joseph were arraigned for violation of the liquor law at Quincy. They were held in $300 each until next Saturday.

Gertrude Barnes was arraigned for assault at Quincy. Case placed on file on payment of costs.

CITY COUNCIL

Councilman Bryant obtained from City Solicitor McAnarney an opinion that order if passed would not go into effect until next January.

The order failed to pass, the vote being 10 to 7 as follows:

YES—Cantfill, Carey, Cherrington, Ericson, Flynn, Gardner, Histen, Loud Nowland, Smith—10.

NO—Bolster, Branch, Bryant, Moir, Richards, Sandberg, Whiton—7.

ABSENT—Boyd, Clark, McDevitt, Snow, Woodward—5.

NOT VOTING—President Hobbs.

Councilman Cherrington moved reconsideration. Councilman Bryant opposed.

Vote reconsidered and order laid on table.

MERRYMOUNT ROAD.

The Finance Committee reported ought not to pass on the order appropriating $1,700 to rebuild Merrymount road. On motion of Councilman Ericson the report was laid on the table.

POLICE STATION PLUMBING.

The Finance Committee reported ought to pass on the order appropriating $400 to plumb the cells of the police station and connect with the public sewer. Order passed.

SOUTH WALNUT STREET.

The Finance Committee reported ought to pass on the order appropriating $2,800 to rebuild South Walnut street. Order passed.

LARRY PLACE.

The Finance Committee reported ought to pass on the order appropriating $500 to rebuild Larry place. Order passed, Councilman Whiton voting no.

OAK STREET.

The Finance Committee reported ought to pass on the order appropriating $400 to rebuild Oak street.

Councilman Flynn argued in favor of the order.

Councilman Whiton opposed. The money could be expended to better advantage elsewhere.

Councilman Branch could not understand how South Walnut street only cost $1 per foot and this street cost $2 per foot.

Commissioner Bainbridge said this could be a solid permanent job and would require $400.

In reply to a question of Councilman Nowland the Commissioner said he could not do the job out of his regular street appropriation. If the job could not be done right it was better not to touch it. It is the only cross street between Main and South Walnut.

Councilman Flynn said the Street committee went into this improvement thoroughly. If we do not rebuild this street, South Walnut street may as well be left alone, as the water from this street will gully South Walnut street. Oak street is in a dangerous condition and a disgrace.

Councilman Whiton—When you come to talk of necessity why don't the committee do something about the main thoroughfare to Houghs Neck.

The order was passed, 14 voting yes and 3 no.

CALENDAR.

On motion of Councilman Smith it was voted to take up the calendar.

The orders granting the Telephone Co. permission to make underground connections, a location for poles, and for attachments were passed.

The order granting the Electric Light Co. a location for poles was passed .

The order assesing half the cost of permanent sidewalks built in 1909 on abutters was passed.

SURFACE DRAINAGE.

The order appropriating $12,140 for surface drainage came up for its final passage.

Councilman Nowland thought half that amount would be sufficient and he moved to lay the order on the table.

Councilman Ericson opposed. It was useless to spend money on streets unless they are drained.

Councilman Bryant said surface drainage was the most important part of street building.

The motion to lay on the table was lost. The order was then passed, Councilman Nowland voting no.

STATE HIGHWAY.

Councilman Bryant offered an order transferring the sums received from the State for building Quincy avenue to the appropriation for Miscellaneous Highways to which cost had been charged. Order adopted.

Councilman Whiton offered an order granting the use of the Council chamber to the Educational Committee of the Quincy Women's club on Aug. 10. Adopted.

Councilman Moir offered an order changing a light on Billings road. Referred to Executive.

On motion of Councilman Bryant, it was voted that when the Council adjourn it be for one week.

Councilman Ericson offered an order requesting the Committee on Public Buildings to look into the matter of a site for a playground in Ward One and report before the first meeting in October. Adopted.

Adjourned at 9.29 until July 25.

city and sent to Sing Sing again for five years, June 27, 1890, as Tom Farrell he was found guilty of grand larceny in the second degree and sent to Sing Sing again for four years. As Arthur Gleason on Sept. 2, 1905, he was arrested as a "dip" in New York city, found not guilty and discharged.

As Arthur Gleason, Oct. 18, 1895, he was given five years more in Sing Sing for grand larceny in New York city. As Arthur Smith, Feb. 1, 1900, he was given three months in the New York city workhouse for disorderly conduct. Oct. 20, 1900, as Arthur Gilman he was arrested for grand larceny in New York city and was discharged. As Arthur Gilsey, Feb. 18, 1901, he was given three months in the New York city workhouse for disorderly conduct.

Under the name or Arthur Lee, Oct. 21, 1901 he appeared in Boston, was taken for larceny from the person, "dipping," and sentenced to 12 months in the House of Correction. March 1, 1903, at Nashua, N. H., he was taken again as Arthur Lee on a charge of larceny from the person and was discharged. As Arthur Lee in August, 1904, he was taken in Brooklyn as a suspicious person and was discharged.

As William Lee March 25, 1905, he was taken as a "dip" in Buffalo, N. Y., and was railroaded out of the city. As Arthur Lee again in April, 05, he was picked up at Cleveland, O., believed to be his native city, and was given 30 days in the workhouse and fined $50.

After that he blew back east and Nov. 3, 1906, was raked in in Boston as a "dip" and was discharged.

As Arthur Smith on April 8, 1907, he was nabbed in New York city again for petty larceny from the person and was sent to Blackwell's Island for six months. April 28 of the present year he was taken in New York city under the name of William Gilmore as a suspicious person and taken before Magistrate Appleton, a former Brockton boy and son of the late Officer Oliver Appleton ,a brother of Royal Appleton and was discharged.

Smith has a case on file in Boston which can be called for sentence any time, as he was allowed his liberty on condition that he get out of the State and keep out. In March he was one of a bunch that was cornered by police at Quincy working the street car crowds and an indictment was secured against him at Dedham and Marshal Tower has taken the precaution to have this on hand today to make sure that he man didn't get away to work in other places.

Smith's rogues' gallery pictures in Boston and New York show him with a moutache and it was thus that Sherlock always knew him. But Sherlock's eagle eye recognized the man as the detective was passing on a street car and with Grace the chase was started that rounded up the bunch.

—A. F. Crowell ,formerly deputy state horticultural commissioner of Spokane and Stevens county, Wash., has submitted a proposal to the National Apple Show to erect a mammoth monument to Adam and Eve in one of the apple belts in the Northwest. The board of trustees of the organization, of which Howard Elliott head of the Northern Pacific Railway company, is president, is discussing plans to offer a substantial prize for the most appropriate design, submitted in competition, to be awarded by popular vote at the third annual show in Spokane the week of November 14. Ren H. Rice, secretary of the apple show, announces that if Mr. Crowell's plan is adopted by the trustees ,arrangements will be made to erect the monument early next summer and have it in readiness for the dedicatory services the third week in November, 1911. President Taft and representative men and women from all parts of the country will be invited to attend and participate in the ceremonies at the unveiling of the monument.

Gaynor Leaves but Two on New York's Great White Way

New York, July 19.—Under the new dispensation of Mayor Gaynor, there now remains in a city of nearly 4,000,000 just six places where a wayfarer abroad after 1 o'clock in the morning may walk in through the front door and order a drink within the law.

The mayor's scrutiny of the all-night license list resulted in a second cut by which the thirteen remaining from the original forty odd, when the mayor took the subject first under advisement, were still further abridged. Those penalized include many names known from coast to coast.

Only two places in all the merry midnight section now remain open legally after 1 o'clock. Down town four places retain their all-night licenses, all of them supposed to be of benefit to those engaged in all-night newspaper work.

GREAT COLLECTION TAKEN

Overseer Voliva Is In Possession Again at Zion City

Chicago, July 19.—Silver coins and bills a foot and a half deep were thrown into a tri-colored barrel placed before the pulpit at Zion City tabernacle by the followers of Wilbur Voliva, general overseer of the Christian Catholic Apostolic Church of Zion and successor to John A. Dowie, who marched over the north shore city and took formal possession of the buildings which again came into their control through the action of the federal court dissolving the receivership.

It was like a revival of the old days of Dowie. The call for the free will offering preceded a march about the city, and thousands of men, women and children filed past the barrel that stood before the pulpit and cast therein their offerings, ranging from 5 cent pieces to $20 bills.

GETS PAYMASTER'S JOB IN THE NAVY

How a Young Social Lion Surmounted Annoying Obstacles

Washington, July 19.—Corporal Albert J. Myer, Jr., U. S. A., the young Tech graduate whose money and social ambition made it inconvenient for him to be a soldier by day and a social lion by night, will solve his personal problems by entering the navy as assistant paymaster.

Young Myer desired to follow the career of his grandfather, General Myer, for whom Fort Myer, near Washington, is named. Twice he failed to enter West Point, because he was only an alternate and not a principal, and then he enlisted and was made a corporal in the army.

He studied hard and made a good soldier, but his wealth and social popularity brought him into contact with his superiors in the drawing-rooms of Washington, and finally his dilemma so worked on his mind as to upset him when he took his examinations for promotion to a commission. He failed, but turned to the navy, and soon will be commissioned as assistant paymaster, with prospects of rapid promotion.

Breaking Up Attacks on Spooners In Parks at New York

New York, July 19.—For the protection of couples who are wont to do their summer spooning on the benches in the parks against the attacks of ruffians who hide in the shrubbery many special policemen carrying blue lanterns were placed on duty in Crotona, Claremont, St. Mary's, Bronx and Van Cortland parks.

Since the opening of the park season many complaints of assaults by ruffians were filed with the park department. Couples seated on the benches frequently were beaten, the dresses of women torn with hooks or soiled by ink or other fluids thrown upon them and men's hats carried away or ruined by mischief makers, who evaded capture by hiding in the shrubbery.

EARNED FORTUNE WITH HOOPSKIRT

Joseph Thomas Enlarged Upon Modest Bustle.

INVENTOR IN MANY LINES.

Death of Crinoline Creator Recalls Evolution of Sewing Machine and Sulphur Match Maker—Was Native of France, but Lived In America For Sixty-four Years.

More than half a century ago two men sat in a dingy room working hard to perfect a contrivance for sewing, and the result of their efforts was the first sewing machine. One of the inventors was Joseph Thomas, who died recently at his home in Hoboken. He was eighty-three years old and for the last three months had been bedridden.

Thomas was an inventor of many machines that have brought millions to those who bought the patents, and one of his ideas was the hoopskirt, which was popular with women from 1850 to 1870. Thomas had always been a keen observer, and in many instances his wife aided him in inventions, telling him what was needed by women.

When he was a mere boy he noticed the bustles worn by women, and when out with his wife one day they talked of the peculiarities of feminine fashions. "I wouldn't wonder that they would soon have bustles all around the skirts," he remarked.

Fortune In Crinoline.

It was not long afterward that Thomas launched the hoopskirt, and he soon found that even at $300 a dozen he could not make them fast enough for the demand. He was offered thousands of dollars and first rejected all offers. At that time he had several other ideas, and when finally he received an offer from a Philadelphia concern of $50,000 he accepted it. That amount of money meant a good deal to a poor inventor in those days, and Thomas was regarded as one of the coming millionaires. The Quaker City firm made hundreds of thousands from Thomas' invention. The idea went from here to Europe and thence to European countries.

Thomas then settled down to perfect his other ideas, and the sewing machine came next. He did not get any money for that, as he was employed as one of the draughtsmen in a machine company. But he earned a big salary, and his employer made a handsome present to Thomas and George Blees, the other inventor.

Thomas left the company when he found he had enough money to devote himself to other ideas. He realized the necessity of a machine for the manufacture of sulphur matches without recourse to the old method of dipping small sticks into a prepared solution. He made the machine.

Inventor From Youth.

Thomas was nineteen years old when he came to America from a small town in the vicinity of Paris. His father had made small inventions, and from the time the boy started going to school he showed a keen interest in all the different pieces of machinery. When Thomas arrived in this country he had little money, and it was while he was working in a machine shop in Paterson that he met his wife. That was sixty-four years ago.

Thomas was a brother of General Thomas, who fought with great distinction in the Franco-Prussian war. The soldier brother received the Legion of Honor from the French government and was retired with other honors.

AMERICAN CANS POPULAR.

Malays Use Them For Every Imaginable Purpose.

To the Malay peninsula every year go about 1,300,000 one gallon tin cans containing American petroleum. Consul General Du Bois of Singapore writes:

"Thousands of the cans are used as water buckets. The interior of a Malal, a Tamil or a Chinese home contains American tin cans of all sizes and shapes put to some useful purpose. Sleves are made by puncturing holes. Thousands of dustpans are made from the cans by removing one side, curving two sides and attaching a large wooden handle. Baking and cooking utensils of all kinds are also skillfully manufactured from them and may be seen in thousands of homes.

"For storing articles of food against ant onslaughts the tin can is a blessing. Hundreds of men are engaged in manufacturing tin cans into funnels, pepper and salt casters, cocoanut and nutmeg graters, lamps, biscuit tins, tea and coffee pots, ladles, mugs, cake patties, Chinese pipes, oil pumps, money boxes and the framework for false teeth.

"So necessary has the American tin can become to these people that to be deprived of its manifold uses would cause a real hardship."

Illinois to Boom Poultry.

As a result of action at a meeting of the Illinois State Poultry association at Springfield recently a department of poultry may be established in connection with the state university at Urbana. The members favorably passed on a proposition to have drafted a bill authorizing such a school and appropriating $10,000 for the purpose. Governon Deneen promised his aid in bettering poultry growing conditions in Illinois.

BRIEFS.

Full moon Friday.

Paul J. Revere W. R. C. has suspended meetings until August 23.

Evening tides this week and a good moon.

A hop will be held tonight by the Quincy Yacht club at the club house at Houghs Neck.

Mrs. James Hector of Goddard street leaves Wednesday for a six weeks' visit at Halifax, N. S.

Miss Helen M. Goodell of Wellesley is the guest of Miss Margaret Read for two weeks.

Mrs. Thomas W. Davison and Miss Jordine Davison are in Clinton for a week.

Mrs. William Jacobs of Houghs Neck entertained her daughter, Mrs. John H. Cusick last week, who enjoyed meeting old friends.

Preparations are being made by the junior chorus of the Memorial Congregational church for a lawn party to be held in Keller's field Saturday afternoon and evening.

Word has been received from Henry Welch of Hancock street, of the great success he is meeting with at Sparhawk hall, Ogunquit, Maine. This is the second summer that Mr. Welch has held the position of head bell boy throughout the season. He will return in time to enter his sophomore year at M. I. T.

Rev. A. R. Atwood of Paterson, N. Y., formerly of Quincy Point, has been elected chairman of the executive committee of the Croton Valley Ministerial Association. This organization is composed of ministers of different denominations between Amenia and Mt. Kisco who meet each month for literary purposes.

—The practice of publicly "hazing" newly married couples ,and pursuing them with noisy and otherwise annoying demonstrations, has become a decided nuisance wherever it is in vogue, and in some places the authorities have taken steps to suppress it. The mayor of Chester, Pennsylvania, has taken a stand in the matter that will meet with general approval. He has issued orders to his police force that no public demonstrations of this sort shall be permitted in future. The barbaric custom should be put an end to everywhere, and the police should act if people have not the good taste to do other than make public exhibitions of themselves.—Milford Gazette.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

Boston Landlord Shoots Lodger Dead During a Quarrel

Boston, July 19.—James Farrell, 46 years old, a lodging house keeper at 906 Washington street, shot and killed James A. Lawson, 38, a lodger at the same address, last night, following a renewal of a quarrel that began Saturday night, when two of Lawson's friends were ejected from the house. Two shots were fired.

Patrolman Healy ran to the house and placed Farrell under arrest. Lawson was found dead at the foot of a bed with a bullet wound on the left side of his face and another through his arm and side.

Mrs. Lawson is a niece of Mrs. Farrell. All have lived in the house about a year. When searched, a quantity of opium and morphine was found on Farrell.

CANNON WON'T QUIT SPEAKERSHIP FIGHT

Says That "Muck-Raking" Periodicals Cannot Scare Him

Emporia, Kan., July 19.—Speaker Joseph G. Cannon is in the speakership race to stay. This he made evident in his speech here, in the course of which he said:

"They wanted me to pledge that I would not be a candidate for speaker if the Republicans have a majority of the next house.

"But as long as God lets me live, the muckraking periodicals and the so-called independent or progressive Republicans shall not make me say that I will not be a candidate for speaker any more than they shall make me say, if I am again elected to congress, that I will not vote when my name is called."

The speaker was much affected by the heat, but ice applications to his head and neck restored him and he spoke with his customary vigor.

BRIDE-TO-BE DISAPPEARS

Perhaps Kidnapped as Hour Set For Wedding Drew Near

New York, July 19.—Believing that she was kidnapped by a rival suitor, detectives are hunting for Mazie Cullen, 17 years old, who disappeared two hours before she was to have been married. Wedding guests had assembled when word came that Mazie could not be found. Her fiance, John Fernanda, is distracted.

That she was carried away or lured to some house and detained is the general belief. The girl went to St. Mary's Roman Catholic church two hours before the ceremony was to be performed. She seemed in the best of spirits. Passing around the corner of Leonard street she disappeared.

ABBREVIATED HONEYMOON

Indiana Bride of a Fortnight Files a Plea For Divorce

Terre Haute, Ind., July 19.—Mrs. William Horseley has filed suit for divorce against former Sheriff Horseley. He was a recent candidate for mayor and is known as "Big Bill." The couple were married two weeks ago. She asks $10,000 alimony.

On the arrival at home after the marriage in Chicago, his long-time housekeeper denied them admission. Horseley had her arrested.

ADVICE FROM OYSTER BAY

Results In Straightening Out the Conservation Muddle

TWO SPEAKERS ELIMINATED

Editor Who Has Bitterly Criticised Taft Administration and Glavis' Counsel Will Not Participate in Congress at St. Paul—Minnesota Stalwarts, Who Had Made Objections, Have Been Quieted

Oyster Bay, N. Y., July 19.—Theodore Roosevelt says that the differences among those interested in the success of the conservation congress at St. Paul have been settled and that he will speak before the congress on Sept. 6. He has been informed that his friend, W. R. Nelson, editor of the Kansas City Star, and Louis D. Brandeis of Boston, who represented L. R. Glavis in the Ballinger-Pinchot investigation by congress, will not be able to attend, as originally planned.

It is reported from St. Paul that the announcement that Nelson will not speak at the meeting has restored harmony and quieted those who were trying to disrupt the national conservation congress, called to meet in September.

Governor Eberhart and other organization Republicans set a movement on foot a few days ago to have St. Paul withdraw the invitation. Objection was made to the appearance of speakers like Nelson, who has been a bitter critic of the Taft administration, and to Brandeis, whose anti-administration attitude is also well understood.

Not long after the trouble started, however, B. N. Baker, president of the congress, was notified by both Nelson and Brandeis that they could not be present, both having recollected that they had important engagements elsewhere.

It is strongly suspected that Roosevelt had a hand in persuading Nelson and Brandeis that it would be a wise thing to withdraw. It is known that Roosevelt informed the officers of the congress that any serious interference with the program of the congress would lead him to withdraw his acceptance of the invitation to visit St. Paul.

Mr. Roosevelt's speech at St. Paul probably will be the most important of his western tour. He is going to try to keep all political pilgrims from Sagamore Hill for a week. He wants to catch up with his correspondence and prepare the speeches he intends to make in the west. No political conferences will be held here this week unless Roosevelt changes his mind. He will go to The Outlook office today and probably will talk with political visitors who call upon him there.

INQUEST CONTINUED

But Little Light on the Murder of Wife of Crippen

London, July 19.—At the inquest into the death of Belle Elmore, for whose murder Dr. H. H. Crippen is being sought the world over, John Nash, a theatrical manager, said that he noticed the Leneve woman wearing Belle Elmore's jewels after the latter had supposedly gone to California. Afterward he was told that Mrs. Crippen had died in California.

Mr. Nash declared that he had questioned Crippen closely as to the exact place of death and other details, but received only unsatisfactory details.

"I went to Scotland Yard immediately," he said, "and asked immediate action."

The inquest was adjourned till August 15.

War Department Settles After Lapse of Thirty-Nine Years

Washington, July 19.—If any one doubts that Uncle Sam often is tardy in settling his just debts all they have to do to dispel that illusion is to ask Brigadier General Harry R. Anderson, U. S. A., retired, to whom the government has acknowledged that he has had coming to him for some thirty-nine years a small amount of government cash—$240.10.

Fair minded people will think that Uncle Sam, to do the handsome thing, ought to pay the general interest on the money he has not had the use of in this long period, but your Uncle Samuel never pays interest on such debts.

WOOD AIRSHIPS TO CROSS ATLANTIC IN 48 HOURS.

German Plans to Utilize Trade Winds With Power.

William Rettig of Berlin is completing an airship he says will make the trip from America to Europe in forty-eight hours. It is 426½ feet long, 45.9 feet beam and traveling at an altitude of 3,000 feet will carry thirty passengers.

Herr Rettig, instead of being a visionary, is a distinguished architect, engineer and scientist.

Furthermore, Herr Rettig is negotiating with an American company to construct several airships, the company intending to organize a super-atlantic airship line on a strictly business basis. Herr Rettig said:

"Reckoning that the trade winds—which, it is established, blow across the Atlantic at a height of 3,000 feet—have a speed of thirty miles an hour (which is not uncommon) and calculating that my airship's speed will increase the pace at least thirty miles an hour, as it will, my ship will easily traverse the distance from the American to the European coast in about forty-eight hours."

"Wooden airship" sounds fanciful, and when the aeronautical experts first heard of Herr Rettig's invention they shook their heads almost sadly.

It happens that Rettig knows what he is talking about. He is an expert in woods. There is scarcely any test of the resisting power, weight and other qualities of the woods most used that he has not made.

He is building his airship of Canadian fir, and he declares that 2,000 times as much gas escapes through the stuffs that balloons are made of now as leaks through fir wood. Besides, the fir is very light and immensely strong.

"I shall carry about thirty passengers from America and about fifteen from Europe," he said.

"Of course there will be proper sleeping accommodations."

SWISS BUILD WONDER BRIDGE

Over Two Hundred Feet High and a Thousand In Length.

Switzerland today has in the process of construction a railway bridge which when finished will prove one of the most stupendous feats of engineering skill in the world.

The bridge is being constructed across the Welsbach and is a part of the new Swiss railway line connecting Toggenburg with Lake Constance. It is over 200 feet in height and 1,000 feet in length, but these figures do not convey an idea of the stupendousness of this immense structure.

Tremendous obstacles have had to be overcome in constructing the railway, including the building of eight other viaducts totaling a mile in length, besides several tunnels that have had to be cut through the solid rock. The entire line is only twenty miles long.

The herculean task of building the Welsbach bridge, however, causes all the other constructions of the line to pale into insignificance. It is a tremendous structure built upon pyramidal columns, which appear like giant sectioned legs of some curious crawling insect as one stands far down the river valley and looks upward.

CHINESE REVERE THE PRESS

Burn Old Papers In Pagodas, Fearing Blindness.

Two years ago the Peking Gazette celebrated its millenary. Originally it appeared at intervals and in a very rudimentary form. Today it is modern, its diurnal publication being three editions.

Great changes have been made in fifty years, and since the Boxer rebellion the number and boldness of the newspapers have increased. There are seven different styles of writing—viz, the ancient, the literary, the flowery, the common, the "demivulgaire," the familiar and the epistolary. The papers for the people are printed in the common style, and some have adopted the new alphabet sanctioned by the government.

Greater reverence is shown to the press in China than in other countries. Old papers are never put to base uses. They are collected and burned in the pagodas. The Chinaman believes that profanation of newspapers is followed by blindness.

AVIATION SUNBURN IS LATEST

Atlantic City's Curious Ones Victims. Dilatory Air Sailors Cause.

The flying machine demonstrations at Atlantic City boomed the sale of sunburn lotion. Bathers remained in the surf for a longer period than they planned when they first entered the breakers because of the tantalizing postponement by aviators from hour to hour awaiting the wind to die down.

Others remained exposed to the sun on the beach and on the board walk for like reasons. When the sun is brilliant it leaves its caress or impression upon all exposed cuticle, and there are thousands of visitors who suffered what they call "aviation sunburn." The druggists had just the thing to relieve the smarting, with the resultant effect of tills filling rapidly.

Edward's Death Affects Styles.

To be fashionable next fall men must wear mourning, the advance styles being black patterns, with just a sprinkling of white spots to relieve in a slight degree the somber effect. London is mourning the death of King Edward, and London is where they create styles for men.

Backache, sideache, headache.

Early symptoms of kidney ills.

Urinary troubles, diabetes, Bright's disease follow.

A Quincy citizen tells here the way to keep the kidneys well.

Mrs. George McDonald, 133 1-2 Quincy Street, Quincy, Mass., says: "I have more faith in Doan's Kidney Pills than in any other remedy I have ever known of and it gives me great pleasure to publicly recommend them. For at least six months I was feeling all out of sorts as the result of kidney trouble. I became tired easily and had but little strength or energy to do my housework. Pains through the small of my back annoyed me a great deal. A friend, knowing of my condition, advised me to try Doan's Kidney Pills and I procured a supply at the Cox Drug store. A short time after beginning their use, I was helped and I now feel like a different person."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

2500 MEN QUIT ON GRAND TRUNK

Wage Demands of Conductors and Trainmen Are Refused

AN AUTOMATIC STRIKE ORDER

Trouble Affects Central Vermont Lines—Railroad Company Claims It Has Done the Best It Can In Increases Which It Offered Employes—Satisfactory Agreement Reached by Pennsylvania Road and Its Men

Montreal, July 19.—Conductors and trainmen of the Grand Trunk and Central Vermont railways to the number of 2500 obeyed an automatic strike order at 9:30 o'clock last night.

On Sunday, when the members of the strike committee left here, each man carried a sealed envelope to be opened at that hour calling a strike unless a telegram had previously been received which, upon comparison with a copy enclosed in the envelope, stated otherwise. No such telegram was sent and the strike became effective at 9:30.

Under the terms of the strike order trains which began their runs before 9:30 were to be taken through to the terminal by the men in charge. After that the company was expected to look after its own interests.

President Hays of the Grand Trunk had this to say of the situation:

"We have done the best we can, having regard to the interests of the shareholders and of the men themselves. We have offered substantial increases in wages. For instance, we give conductors between Montreal and Portland an increase from $110 to $135; between Montreal and Brockville from $90 to $140 a month; between Montreal and Toronto from $110 to $140, and baggagemen from $70 to $85, and brakemen from $55 and $60 to $80.

"On mileage rates conductors of through trips are to be raised from 2.90 to 3.36 cents a mile, and brakemen from 1.90 to 2.25 cents.

"On the runs between Montreal and Ottawa conductors are raised from $110 to $140 a month; baggagemen from $75 to $85, and so on.

"When I put this to the men I said further that this was a large increase, but that if they did not think it satisfactory there was still another alternative. I said I was willing in such case to go to the arbitration of a board of expert railway men as to whether or not the proposition was fair and would be willing to abide by their decision.

"Further, I said to the representatives of the men: 'Suppose a strike is brought on, with all its disturbance of conditions and business. What shall we do eventually but settle it as I have proposed? You will have displaced a great many men, created great losses all over, and got no further ahead.' But they refused to listen to this."

Each Side Claims Victory

Philadelphia, July 19.—General Manager Myers of the Pennsylvania railroad, and the committees representing the 15,000 trainmen and conductors employed on the lines of the road east of Pittsburg, agreed on a basis for the settlement of the wage controversy. Each side claims to have gained all that it had been outstanding for in the negotiations which have been in progress for the past six months and which culminated in the strike vote by the employes.

The proposal offered by the railroad officials and accepted by the men includes a minimum day of ten hours, as detailed by the New York Central award.

On certain runs, where the company's present rate is higher, the rate will not be disturbed.

The classification of these exceptional runs and the question of overtime were left to be decided at conferences between the various members of the committees and the division superintendents of the lines which they represent.

HELD ON ARSON CHARGE

Former Salem Policeman Is Charged With Setting a Fire

Chelsea, Mass., July 19.—Fred Merchant of Salem, formerly a policeman in that city, was held in $10,000 by the Chelsea court for a hearing on a charge of arson.

Merchant was arrested in connection with the fire early on May 25 in the unoccupied tenement house in the rear of 276 Second street, this city, which did $5000 damage to that building and $1000 damage to a dwelling opposite. Several persons were rescued by the police.

Fleeing Bank Cashier Caught

Philadelphia, July 19.—J. H. Lowery, a bank teller, who disappeared from Utica, N. Y., and was later charged with embezzling $115,000 from the Utica National bank, was captured in this city.

Woman Fatally Burned

Taunton, Mass., July 19.—While investigating a noise in her children's room Mrs. Frank Martell tripped and fell with a lamp in her hands, and was so badly burned that she died.

SYNOPSIS

CHAPTER XII.

AN ANSWER.

THE girl made no motion to obey, and the knocking was repeated. Mechanically she moved toward the threshold. "Yes?" All the color had left her face. "What—what is it?"

"Don't mean to alarm you, my dear, but Mr. Gillett thinks the convict might be concealing himself somewhere in the house; indeed, that it is quite likely. So we are making a little tour of inspection."

"I," she seemed to catch her breath—"it is really quite unnecessary. I have been through them myself."

"Might have known that!" with an attempt at jocoseness. "But thought we would make sure. Good night, then!" They went.

The man in the room stood motionless now, his face like that of a statue save for the light and life of his eyes.

"The other way would have been preferable," he said.

"What were you"—she hesitated, emphasized oversharply the word—"transported for?"

"What does it matter?"

True! What did it matter to her? He had been in prisons before, by his own words.

"Your name, of course, is not John Steele? What was it."

He looked at her—beyond, to a storm tossed ship, a golden haired child, her curls in disorder, moving with difficulty, yet clinging so steadfastly to a small cage! His name? It may be he heard again the loud pounding and knocking; held her once more to his breast, felt the confiding, soft arms.

"What does it matter?" he repeated.

She spoke mechanically. "When you found yourself recognized, why did you come here—to Strathorn House—incur the danger?"

"Why?" He still continued to look straight before him. "Because you—were here!"

"I?" she trembled.

"Oh, you need not fear!" quickly. "You!" a bitter smile crossed his face. "And now!" his voice sounded harsh, tense, and he stepped toward the balcony.

His words, the abrupt action, what it portended, aroused her.

"No, no!" The exclamation broke from her involuntarily. "There—there may be a safer way! Wait!" Bright spots of color now tinted her cheeks. She went quickly toward the door she had left. She listened, turned the key, then, opening the door, stepped hastily out into the hall.

Whatever her purpose, only the desire to act quickly, to have done with an intolerable situation, moved him. Once more he looked toward the window through which he had entered. First, however, before going, he bethought himself of something—an answer to one of her questions. She should find the answer after he was gone. His fingers thrust themselves into a breast pocket. He took out a small object wrapped in velvet. An instant his eyes rested upon it; then, stooping, he picked up the bit of lace handkerchief from the floor and, laying the dark velvet against it, placed the two on the table.

Would she understand—the debt he had felt he owed her long before tonight, that sense of obligation to the child who had reached out her hand in a different life, a different world? No. She had of course forgotten. Still, he would leave it, that talisman so precious, which he had cherished almost superstitiously.

When a few minutes later the girl hastily re-entered the room she carried on her arm a man's coat and hat. Her appearance was feverish, her eyes wide and shining.

"Your clothes are torn—would attract attention! These were on the rack. I don't know whose, but I stole them—stole them!"

She spoke quickly, with a little, hard note of self mockery. Her voice broke suddenly. She looked about her.

The coat and hat slipped from her arm. She looked at the window. The curtain still moved as if a hand had but recently touched it. She stared at it incredulously. He had gone. He would have none of her assistance then; preferred— She listened, but caught only the rustling of the heavy silk.

She became aware of a throbbing in her head, a dull pain, and, mechanically seating herself near one of the tables, she put up her hand and started to draw the pins from her hair, but soon desisted. Again she began to think, more clearly this time, more poignantly, of all she had experienced, listened to, that night.

She, a Wray, sprung from a long line of proud, illustrious folk! And he? The breath of the roses outside was wafted upward. Her eyes, deep, self scoffing, rested without seeing on a small dark object on a handkerchief on the table. What was it to her if they took him—what, indeed? Her fingers played with the object, closed hard on it. Why should she care if he paid the penalty—he, a self confessed—

Something fell from the velvet covering in her hand. She was vaguely aware of it gleaming there on the cold white marble, a small disk—a gold coin. Then slowly she took it as if asking herself how it came there on her handkerchief, which, she dimly remembered, had been lying on the floor. Some one, of course, must have picked up the handkerchief, but no one had been in the room since she had noticed it except—

More closely she scrutinized it, the shining disk on her rosy palm. A King George gold piece! Above the monarch's face and head with its flowing locks appeared a tiny hole, as if some one had once worn it. Beneath, just discernible, was the date, 1762. She continued to regard it, then looked again at the bit of velvet near by. It had been wrapped in that carefully—for what reason. Like something more than what it seemed—a mere gold piece.

"1762." Why, even as she gazed at the cloth, felt it, did the figures seem to reiterate themselves in her brain? "1762." There could be nothing especially significant about the date. Yet even as she concluded thus by some introspective process she saw herself bending over, studying those figures on another occasion. Herself, and yet—

She was looking straight before her now. Suddenly she started and sprang up. "A King George gold piece!" Her hair, unbound, fell around her, below her waist. Her eyes, like sapphires, gazed out from a veritable shimmer of gold. "Date"— She paused. "Why, this belonged to me once as a child, and I"—

The blue eyes seemed searching—searching. Abruptly she found what she sought. "I gave it to the convict on the Lord Nelson." She almost whispered the words. "The brave, brave fellow who sacrificed his life for mine." Her warm fingers closed softly on the coin. She seemed wrapped in the picture thus recalled.

"Then how"— Her brows knitted; she swept the shining hair from her face. "If he were drowned, how could it have been left here by"— Her eyes were dark now with excitement. "Him? Him?" she repeated. "Unless," her breast suddenly heaved, "he was not drowned, after all. He"—

A sudden shot from the park rang out. The coin fell from the girl's hand. Other shots followed. She ran out upon the balcony, a stifled cry on her lips. She stared off, but only the darkness met her gaze.

Not far from one of the entrances to Regent's park or the hum of Camden Town's main artery of traffic lay a little winding street, which because of its curving lines had long been known as Spiral row. Into this byway there turned late in the night of the second day after that memorable evening at Strathorn House a man who, looking quickly around him, paused before the closed gate of one of the dwellings. After a moment's hesitation the man pulled the bell, waited for some time, but no response came. When from the end of the street he heard a vehicle coming rapidly toward him he more firmly jerked at the handle of the bell. This time his efforts were successful. A glimmer as from a candle appeared at the front door, and a few minutes later a dark form came slowly down the graveled walk.

"Good evening, Dennis," said the caller. The faint gleam of the candle revealed the drowsy and unmistakably Celtic face of him he addressed, a man past middle age, who regarded the newcomer with a look of recognition. "I'm afraid I've interrupted your slumbers. This is rather a late hour at which to arrive."

"No matter, sir. Sure and I sat up expecting you, Mr. Steele, until after midnight and had only just turned in when"—

"What?" The newcomer, now fairly within the garden, could not suppress a start of surprise, which, however, the other, engaged in relocking the gate, did not appear to notice. "Expecting"—

"Although I'd given up thinking you'd be here tonight," the latter went on. "But won't you be stepping in, sir?"

The other silently followed, walking in the manner of one tired and worn.

"My master did not come back with you, sir, from Strathorn House?"

"No; Captain Forsythe's gone on to Germany."

ARRANGING A "FREEZEOUT"

House Membership May Be Restricted by Republicans

SAY 410 SEATS ARE ENOUGH

Democrats In the South May Lose Some Congressmen If Plans Are Carried Out—Marvelous Gain In Oklahoma Disturbs Calculations In Figuring on Ratio of Representation—Where Republicans May Gain

Washington, July 19.—The Republican plan to reduce southern Democratic representation in congress reappears in the determination of the leaders to restrict the membership as much as possible under the new census. The house now numbers 391. On the probable basis of the new enumeration, it would number 410.

The leaders are now pointing out that with its present membership it is unwieldy and they would like to reduce the list to 350, on the ostensible ground of expedition of business. States like Missouri, Texas, Georgia and Alabama have grown rapidly and will be entitled to larger representation but the Republicans calculate that the population gained here will be lost to other states from which emigration has been large.

The figures at present used by the computers for the Republicans will make the basis of representation 220,000. If those figures will increase the membership of the house more than twenty, the basis will be raised, as it is determined that the total number shall not go above 410.

It is estimated that the southern states, not counting Delaware and West Virginia, will show a population of a little more than 29,000,000. With the ratio fixed at 220,000 this would give that section one or two more representatives than at present. If the population should exceed 29,000,000, the ratio will be raised enough to keep down the number of representatives, even though it should hurt some of the northern states.

Oklahoma comes in to disturb the calculations of the Republicans. The gain in that new state has been marvelous, and is estimated at enough to give her five or six new representatives, and Oklahoma is usually classed as a southern state. So its gain will be taken from the older southern states.

In New York the great gain has been in the city of New York, which, of course, will redound, so far as congress is concerned, to the benefit of the Democrats, but in the electoral college that gain may go to the Republicans. According to the present figures New York, Massachusetts, Pennsylvania, Illinois, Ohio and Minnesota will reap all the gains that will be made in the north, and if the total number can be kept down to 410, as the Republican leaders hope, the states mentioned will be the only real gainers, as what will be gained by Missouri, Texas, Alabama and Oklahoma will be taken from other Democratic states.

Should the ratio of representation be kept at the present figures and the membership of the house be increased accordingly, the great gainers, it is believed, will be New York, Pennsylvania and the states in the middle west. Under such a distribution it is figured that the north will gain between thirty-five and forty representatives and the south twenty-three to twenty-five. Some of the Republican leaders are earnestly urging this solution of the question, as it would give the Republican section a greater preponderance than it now has.

TUFTS FOR GRAND JURY

Former Cashier of Rockport Bank Waives Examination

Boston, July 19.—George W. Tufts, former cashier of the Rockport National bank of Rockport, who is accused of misapplication of the bank's funds, waived examination when he appeared before Commissioner Hayes. Tufts was ordered held for the federal grand jury, which sits in September.

The amount of the bail bond required was reduced from $15,000 to $5000, owing to the fact that examination of the bank's books proved the shortage was much less than at first suspected. It is likely the shortage will be under $6000.

"One" as a Pronoun.

I have never been smitten with the use of the word "one" as a pronoun. It takes a word juggler to attempt it and get away with it. Unless one feels that one has won one's spurs in this respect and can extricate oneself from the mess one gets oneself and one's readers into one should avoid the use of the word one in referring to oneself as one would a plague.—London Idler

Baltimore and Soft Crabs.

The genuine soft crab, or Brachyura baltimoriensis, is the most delicate as it is the most delicious of all victuals. It will no more bear transportation than a zephyr or a daffodil. The moment it is taken from its native deep it begins to lose bounce and flavor, and once it has left the Chesapeake littoral it is no longer eatable. That is why the soft crab is a superb delicatessen in Baltimore and a bitter disappointment everywhere else. So sensitive is it, indeed, to climate and handling that it is impossible to get a decent soft crab anywhere west of the first tollgate on the Frederick road. In Pittsburg, where embalmed soft crabs are offered in the gilded lobster palaces, their flavor is that of glucose. In Chicago the soft crab is a mere curiosity, to be gaped at, but not eaten. Baltimore alone has the genuine article, and it is fortunate for Baltimore that it cannot be transported. If it were possible to ship soft crabs the whole earth would bid for them, running up their price to $1, $5 and perhaps even to $100 a dozen.—Baltimore Sun.

A Teacher In the Making.

She was a popular young normal student who had been to a party the night before, and as a consequence was "not prepared" in the geography class. The woman instructor, true to her method of drawing upon the general knowledge of a student rather than to permit a failure, after eliciting two or three inconsequential "stabs" from her fair but jaded disciple, asked for the products of China.

The victim brightened. "Tea," she asserted, preparing to sit down.

"Yes, and what else?" encouraged the instructor.

The young woman smiled with sweet hopelessness.

"Now you can mention others, I am sure. Just think about it."

"Ten," drawled the flutelike voice of the pretty girl, "and," puckering her forehead with an intellectual tour de force, "and laundry work."—Youth's Companion.

Quick Cure.

Once there was a man who made life miserable for all he met by eternally harping about his aches and pains.

He would discourse on the subject of his dyspepsia, and he would almost interrupt a religious service to tell of his rheumatic symptoms.

If he had a stitch in his side he had to pester his friends with it, and a headache helped him make everybody unhappy.

At last a bright young woman, to whom the man applied for sympathy, cured him of all his ailments.

When he was in the midst of a catalogue of his sufferings she said sweetly:

"Yes, it is strange how many of these things afflict a man as he begins to grow old."

That man never even had a symptom after that.—Wilbur D. Nesbit in Judge.

When Men Were Branded.

A curious relic of bygone times, probably the only one in England, still stands at Lancaster castle. It is a strong iron holdfast, into which the prisoner, who in olden time had been sentenced to be branded as a malefactor, had his hand thrust and locked. The branding iron after being made red hot at the end was pressed against the "brawne of the thumb," and on being withdrawn the letter M branded on the unfortunate prisoner's flesh indicated from henceforward that he was a malefactor. The ceremony was performed in the presence of the judge and jury and in open court, and the brander invariably turned to the judge after he had done his work and exclaimed, "A fair mark, my lord!" It is over 100 years since the instrument was last used on two men sentenced to imprisonment for manslaughter.

His Maiden Speech.

It is related that when the Earl of Rochester in the reign of Charles II. rose to make his maiden speech in the house of lords he said: "My lords—my lords, I rise this time for the first time—the very first time. My lords, I divide my speech into four branches." Here there was an embarrassing pause of some seconds. "My lords," the earl then ejaculated, "if ever I rise again in this house you may cut me off, root and branches and all, forever."

OFFICE MEN VICTORIOUS

At Field Sports of Boston Gear Works Employes

The picnic and field day of the employees of the Boston Gear Works was held in the lower field at Merrymount park on Saturday afternoon. By the interest manifested in the event, the success of similar affairs in the future is assured. The features of the day were a series of sports for which prizes were awarded and an exciting baseball game.

Carlton won the 100-yard dash for single men, and the hop-step-and-jump, with Sandbloom as a close second in the latter event.

Halquist won the 100-yard dash for married men, and Myers was high man at quoits. Among the other winners were Stowers and Black.

A number of the ladies were present and watched the events with interest. Refreshments were served.

Composing a committee in charge of the affair were: Frank Burgess, Harry Burgess, George L. Colburn, Frank Innes and Fitzgerald.

In the ball game the shop team was defeated by the office team, by a score of 4 to 3. The summary follows:

BOY IN CHAINS.

The children of Chestnut street were very much exercised today because little Charlie Boothby, one of their number, about eight years of age, was confined in his yard with both legs chained together at the ankles and a weight attached. During the noon hour the boy with the shackles on got as far as the Y. M. C. A. playground. So much pity was excited that Special Officer Charles H. Johnson investigated. He visited the home of the boy and caused the chain to be removed. The chain had been put on with pinchers, and was not easily taken off.

GRANITE OUTING.

President Murray of the Granite Manufacturers' Association, received word from the Barre association this morning, stating that they had given up the idea of holding their annual outing in Quincy this year, and that they would remain at home. President Murray says that he will call his committee together in a few days to arrange for the annual outing of the Quincy association. The date of place of the outing has not been selected, but the outing at Bass Point was so successful last year that the manufacturers will probably go there again this year.

—John Johnson has been appointed town treasurer of Hyde Park to complete the term of the late Gideon H. Haskell.

SPORTING CHAT.

Not so bad for Manager Shea, is it? Four straight is a fine record. Now we have the lead of the Old Colony league there is hardly a chance to displace us, for the team is running in top notch condition and Johnny Glaze is going to serve the shoots, so it's hard to see where the rest of the team get off.

• • •

Did you ever see a prettier throw than Lonergan makes and there's nothing to beat him playing his bag.

• • •

Alden of Randolph is surprisingly weak at the bat. Saturday he struck out twice, and popped an easy one to Duggan. However, it was not what he did but the way he did it, that showed up his inability to hit.

• • •

Doherty, the Rockland short stopper was a correct imitation of a sieve. On one from Glaze he tried to pick the ball with one hand and foozled, and on another he fumbled and threw wide.

• • •

Willard is a fine pitcher for one so young, but it looks from the stand as though he had to work his head off to stick with the game. If that is so, and he keeps it up for the glory of pitching in the League, he will probably contract glass arm.

Donovan, the Yale 1912 man, is a good find. He collected two hits Saturday, and played the game in good form.

• • •

The rain in the seventh nearly caused a riot. Some one yelled "Call the game," and the crowd took it up, but Randolph thought they had a chance and wouldn't stand for it. As a gentle reproof Quincy brought in two more tallies that inning.

• • •

Norwell got on in the fifth on an error by Doherty and stole two bases in succession.

• • •

The Ramblers have won their unlucky thirteenth game and have lost but one. There's a really fast junior team. The individual playing doesn't show so much but team play and knowledge of the game just bulge out all over. After the game the crowd doesn't talk about this or that individual but about the Ramblers.

• • •

The Granite City League has made three exceptions to the sixteen player rule and one exception to the rule requiring the susension of a player for two weeks after his transfer.

• • •

Honey Curtis and a companion are chasing flies—the kind that bit—on a sattle boat on the way to Hingland, and Eggleton is rolling up and down the Board Walk at Atlantic City.

• • •

Mary McDonough, Elsie Ackeroyd and Rose Pitonof will grace Houghs Neck on some Sunday at an early date. They will start from there on a five-mile race to Winthrop.

• • •

J. J. Barrett ,the Irish marathoner who beat Longboat, is at Houghs Neck. He's just over from the sod and "intends to stay."

BRIEFS

Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Wilkins and daughter Ethelyn of Old Colony avenue are enjoying a month at the picturesque town of Mahone Bay, Nova Scotia.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur K. Smith of Wollaston avenue are registered at the St. Aspinquid, Ogunquit, Maine. Next week they go to Pigeon Cove to remain a week.

The House Was Shaky.

When John Quincy Adams was eighty years of age he met in the streets of Boston an old friend, who shook his trembling hand and said. "Good morning, and how is John Quincy Adams today?"

"Thank you," was the ex-president's answer. "John Quincy Adams himself is well, sir; quite well, I thank you. But the house in which he lives at present is becoming dilapidated. It is tottering upon its foundation. Time and the seasons have nearly destroyed it. Its roof is pretty well worn out. Its walls are much shattered, and it trembles with every wind. The old tenement is becoming almost uninhabitable, and I think John Quincy Adams will have to move out of it soon. But he himself is quite well, sir; quite well."

With that the venerable sixth president of the United States moved on with the aid of his staff.

Proud of It.

The Lady—Poor tramp! Have you anything in your life to be proud of? The Hobo—Yessum. I never beat nobody out of no laundry bill.—Cleveland Leader.

PROTESTS ALLOWED

Revised Standing in Granite City League

The game between the Fore River Apprentices and the Cranch A. A. teams in the Granite City League which was protested by the Apprentices was the subject of a somewhat lengthy discussion at a meeting of the league directors Monday night. The written protest and denial from the teams in question had been submitted to the secretary, but he had not notified the advisory board as he should have, therefore the board took the matter into their own hands, and the evidence of both sides was submitted.

This game was played July 9 and was won by Cranch, 8 to 7. It is claimed by the Apprentices' captain that on four occasions in the ninth inning of this game, coachers of the Cranch team—which team was at bat at the time and the Apprentices in the field—one or more at a time stepped inside the coachers' lines at third base and laid hands on the runner, who by the way, eventually scored the tying run.

In accordance with the rule this should have caused the baserunner to be declared out by the umpire, who did not, however, take any action save to warn in one case as pointed out by the Apprentices' captain.

The Cranch representative asserts that at only one time did the coacher encroach on the players' ground, and retired immediately upon warning from the umpire, and that this occurred before a foul ball had been returned to play.

In view of the fact that the evidence was so conflicting, and that no particularly violent offence was charged, the advisory board ordered the game to be played over at the earliest convenient date.

A second protest from Cranch, on a game played against the Bryants was decided in favor of Cranch, they being awarded the game. In a game played July 9 which Cranch lost 9 to 8, a Bryant player being out running to first base put his hand in the way of a thrown ball and allowed the runner ahead of him to score. Bryant also played a pitcher whose name was not registered with the secretary and two ununiformed men. No denial was entered by Bryant.

The resignation of Secretary Frank J. Cronin was accepted and James E. Neary was elected his successor.

League games to be played on Saturday are: Apprentices vs. Bryant at Ward Two; Adams vs. Cranch at Ward Three; Bigelow vs. Hardy at Ward Four.

The standing of the league with changes as effected by decision on protests:

	Won	Lost	Per.
Adams	4	0	1.000
Apprentices	3	1	.750
Cranch	3	2	.600
Bryant	2	3	.400
Bigelow	0	3	.000
Hardy	0	4	.000

An Innocent Accomplice.

A smuggling story in which a woman fooled her unsuspecting husband is told in the Century. The husband was a retired general, a martinet in discipline and overscrupulous regarding even the shadow of laxity in the performance of his own obligations. "No smuggling was to be permitted," he told his wife, and before leaving Paris he insisted on making a full list of every dutiable article in his possession. Unknown to him she bought several yards of venetian lace. How to hide it was a problem until she thought of ripping the lining of his overcoat and hiding the lace inside. She regarded her cunning as a tremendous joke, and to this day he does not know how she laughed to herself when, wearing that very same coat on the dock, he drew himself up to his full military height and, with free conscience, pointed to a tray containing "all his purchases." No idea of anything so serious as defrauding the government had ever entered her frolicsome mind.

The Point Proved.

"Why did you quit your job?"
"The boss said I was a fool."
"But he didn't discharge you, did he? Did you resign just for that?"
"Yes."
"Well, I guess the boss was right."—Cleveland Leader.

CLOSE RACES IN BOTH LEAGUES

Last Year's Winners Are Not Likely to Repeat.

ATHLETICS HAVE GOOD CHANCE

Connie Mack's Team Picked by Many to Capture Gonfalon In American. Chicago Appears Strongest In National League.

With the major league baseball season half over it begins to look very much as if neither winner of last year will repeat. It is too early to make any predictions, for there is ample time for a general shifting of the positions held by the teams in the National and American leagues before Oct. 15, but on the form shown so far by Detroit and Pittsburg it looks as though some other club would fly the banner in each league this year.

Hughey Jennings has not given up hope of landing his fourth pennant for Detroit, and as the Tigers have had a reputation of making a strong finish ever since Jennings took charge of them this team must not be counted out of all chances for the championship. The Detroit team of 1910 does not look like the team that has won the pennant three times in succession. The Tigers spurted and made up a lot of ground lost in the first two or three weeks of the season, but they have fallen back again, and it will take an unusual reversal of form to bring them to the fore.

Detroit does not play with the dash and spirit which characterized its work last year and the year previous. Jennings works just as hard and still has all the old fire and spirit, but his team lacks the speed on the bases, the terrific slugging and that spirit of confidence which made the Tigers a team to be feared at any stage of the game, no matter how far behind they were in the score.

Unless Detroit takes a brace very soon the team will be so far down in the race that it will be impossible for it to regain the lead with such teams as the Athletics, New York and Boston ahead of it and all going at a winning clip.

From present indications it looks as if there was an excellent chance of the American league race being won by an eastern team. The Athletics are running a race that will be hard to beat, but New York is sticking pretty close, and the Bostonians are playing in great form. With these three teams in such grand shape Detroit does not look to have a chance at present, but Jennings' crew have been further back than they are now and won out. They still have a chance to repeat unless the other three clubs continue their winning career.

Of the Athletics, New York and Boston, the former appears the strongest, and if Mack's pitchers hold out and no accidents occur to weaken the infield the Athletics have a splendid chance to capture their third championship pennant.

The American league race looks like a close contest to the finish, and the team with the staying qualities will win out.

The National league race is almost as big a problem to solve as the American. Chicago looks to have the best chance at present, but New York is making a great fight, and the Pirates have at last shown something of their last season's form. The Giants have been playing in and out ball, however, and with a pitching staff that cannot be relied upon outside of Mathewson, McGraw's clan appears to have a contract on its hands that it can hardly fill.

By bolstering up his pitching staff Frank Chance put the Cubs in the running again, and the team's hitting strength and ability to play inside baseball make it a strong choice for the pennant. Weakness in the box has practically kept the Pirates out of the race so far this season, but with a half season to go the Pirates may make a strong finish, and if the pitchers regain their form Chicago and New York will have to keep hustling to bar the Pirates out of first place.

New York's weakness so far has been against second division teams, Boston and Brooklyn throwing several jolts into the Giants' aspirations.

COMMENTS ON THE ACCOUNTANTS REPORT

Severe Arraignment of the City on Appropriations and Collections Not Justified

But Have Receipts and Overlays Been Large Enough?

The recent report on the financial condition of the city by the expert accountants employed by the Mayor has occasioned very little comment or inquiry, and has had no effect on Councilmen, a majority of whom seem ready at all times to vote for appropriation orders, regardless of debt and interest.

Accompanying the report were several tables which would doubtless be of interest to taxpayers, which the Daily Ledger hopes to print at an early date.

For the present, however, the Ledger will refer only to the printed report. The accountants have compiled a summary showing the amount collected in taxes in the 21 years of the city government, the abatements, overlays, appropriations, etc., and their conclusions as summed up in the following paragraph are a severe arraignment of the city.

"From the foregoing figures we submit that it appears that there has been appropriated, and presumably spent, in the twenty-one years of the life of the city, $427,118.90 more than has been collected in taxes during that time."

The accountants seem to assume that all taxes levied have been collected, or that all taxes uncollected are worthless. It is undoubtedly a fact that quite a sum is worthless, but not $400,000 or half of that, or even $100,000. The Daily Ledger learns from the City Book of 1909 just issued that $402,229.98 were due on account taxes Jan. 1, 1910, as follows:

Tax of 1895,	$982.81
Tax of 1898,	574.35
Tax of 1899,	570.03
Tax of 1900,	914.85
Tax of 1901,	834.74
Tax of 1902,	1,645.55
Tax of 1903,	1,914.38
Tax of 1904,	1,793.30
Tax of 1905,	2,494.00
Tax of 1906,	4,643.80
Tax of 1907,	5,877.23
Tax of 1908,	88,928.98
Tax of 1909,	287,055.96
Total	$402,229.98

In addition to this there are about about $15,000 due for other taxes such as sewers, sidewalks, street sprinkling, etc., so that the uncollected taxes are really about $427,118.90 as stated by the accountant. But this is a different interpretation than given in the report. From Jan. 1 to July 1 payments on these back taxes amounted to $155,330.96. Unquestionably a

INSTRUCTION CAR FOR THE STREET RAILWAY

The Old Colony Street Railway Company has recently organized a new department which it is believed will tend greatly to the general advantage not only of the road itself but of its employees and the general public. It is a step in advance. It is the culmination of a great amount of thought, study and effort. This is the department of instruction. H. W. Irwin has been engaged as the superintendent of instruction and under his direction an instruction car has been fitted out at considerable expense. This car it is believed is the most perfect and complete of anything of the sort used anywhere in the world, and its arrival in Quincy is awaited with interest.

It is proposed throughout the company's system to take classes of car men in small numbers at a time and give them practical instruction in electricity and its application to the operation of a car. The results which it is hoped to attain are manifold. In this car it is possible to demonstrate the practical operation of every electrical device which comes into the mechanism of any trolley car. It is possible to show what should be done and what should not be done under all conceivable conditions. It can be demonstrated exactly and plainly what will happen if the improper thing is done.

As a result of the practical teaching which the car men will receive through the mediumship of this car, which will be taken from division to division, it is believed that passengers will be looked out for more carefully, accidents generally will be reduced, the cost of operation decreased, which means that it will be possible to give the public better service, and that the economy of operation to the highest extent will be attained.

Mr. Irwin, before engaging himself in the work of outfitting this car, spent several months investigating what has been done along this line by other companies throughout the country and the result is believed to be far superior to anything of the kind in operation anywhere. It is believed that the mistakes of others have been overcome, while many new ideas have been added. At first glance the equipment of this car would appear to an ordinary layman, unfamiliar with the operation of cars or the eccentricities of electricity, to be extremely complicated, but as a matter of fact, everything is arranged in such a way that it really is very simple.

For this instruction car, one of the large 30-ton semi-convertible cars has been remodeled. The exterior remains practically the same, but the interior shows a wonderful transformation. All of the seats have been removed and in their places have been installed various motors, air breaking systems and other features that enter into the operation of a car in such a way that they may be torn apart, or put together, or explained in an easily understood way. An expert instructor is in charge of the car.

Perhaps one of the most interesting features of the car is the demonstration board which shows the working of the car motors upon the cars. They are operated by controllers and by various switches. It is possible to demonstrate with this board not only the workings of a four-motor car but also of a two-motor car. There are lights to show the amount of resistance so that it can be clearly indicated just what happens when the controller handle is not properly manipulated and also what happens when it is.

There are hand- throw block signal boxes in the car which are also explained in every detail. As a matter of fact, the car is so completely equipped that there is no possible accident nor electrical trouble of any description that might occur on any car in the system that cannot be reproduced immediately, and the why and the wherefore of it all explained.

PUNISHMENT WAS TOO SEVERE

Charles Boothby Fined Heavily for Putting Shackles on His Son of Eight Years

Pitiful Case Which Enlisted Help from His Neighbors

The case of the Commonwealth vs. Charles Boothby and Florence Boothby ,his wife, for assault on their eight-year-old son came before Judge Avery in the District court this morning. Boothbay is a lineman employed by the Electric Light company and resides at 47 Chestnut street.

Tuesday at about 12.30 o'clock, the boy, his bare legs bound together by a brass chain closely and tightly held in place with wire which had been put in place with a pair of pinchers, hobbled from his home to the playground at the Y. M. C. A., where his plight caused the greatest sympathy. The police were notified and Officer Dhooge was sent to investigate. Special Officer Charles H. Johnson also heard of the case and in company with Officer Dhooge proceeded to the lad's home, and found him at the rear of the house, there being no one else about at the time. His first efforts were directed toward removing the shackles from the boy's legs but they were so rigidly bound as to necessitate the use of plyers in their removal. The boy could not tell why he had been bound.

Mrs. Boothby appeared in the meantime and refused to lend assistance in the boy's release, or to explain the case, except to state that it was her husband's wish. On the stand she admitted that she was forced to consent to the chaining.

Boothby testified that the boy was in the habit of staying away from home all day and until late at night and sometimes for days at a time. He considered the use of the chain proper and better than a beating.

The chain, which was exhibited to the court, was an ordinary dog leash of brass links with ends bound together. As the child's legs were covered with raw mosquito bites the brass might easily have caused blood poisoning.

After receiving the assurance of both Boothby and his wife that they would take better care of the child and not detain him in such a manner again, Mrs. Boothby was discharged and Boothby fined $25.

The occurrence has caused considerable popular indignation, and the fine is regarded as none too severe.

THE NEW PLAYGROUND

West Quincy Anxious for Its Improvement

The Ward Four Improvement Association very much desire that the public plot bounded by Copeland, Common and West streets should be put in a more attractive condition. The plot is a triangular piece, and was recently purchased by the city. It was formerly occupied as a granite yard and is filled with rocks as well as being overgrown with weeds. What the Improvement society desire is that the plot shall be graded and sown down with grass and the fence that now surrounds it removed. This done and seats placed there it will be a very attractive spot and will be a great improvement on the present unsightly place.

At a recent meeting of the City Council an order was introduced by Councilman Smith requesting the Park Commissioners to inform the Council as to the probable cost of putting the plot in good condition.

Chairman Gill of the Park Commissions is out of town at the present time and no report will probably be made until he returns. As the Council will probably adjourn next Monday for the summer it will be late in the year before any definite action is taken.

KATHERINE CRANE.

A wide circle of friends young and old were grieved to learn of the passing from this to the heavenly home early this morning of a sweet young life, little Katherine, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Emery L. Crane of Whitney road.

Since spring when her illness developed a heart trouble, much anxiety has been felt but her patience and hopefulness as well as her age lead the family and friends to hope for recovery but it was not to be.

In the home the father and mother; the two brothers Richard and Donald, and the aunt have the sympathy of neighbors and friends who mourn with them for the bright presence of one who has day by day endeared herself to many.

QUICK AUTO TRIP.

Fire Commissioner Carroll of Boston made a quick run to Quincy from Nantasket on Tuesday night. He was at his summer home at the beach when notified of the large stable fire at Jamaica Plain, and securing an automobile made the run to Quincy in 22 minutes. He was met in City Square by an automobile from Boston, which had been summoned by telephone. A change of autos was quickly made, and Commissioner Carroll was rushed to the scene of the fire.

TODAY'S COURT.

Albert N. Locke, for violation of auto laws at Milton, was fined $15.

Mrs. Florence Boothby of Quincy, for assault, discharged.

Charles Boothby for assault, fined $25

Albert Leighton and Thomas Kearns, for larceny at Milton, continued until July 19.

FOUR-DAYS' CELEBRATION

Swedish Baptists to Observe Silver Anniversary

The four-days' celebration of the 25th anniversary of the Swedish Baptist church at Brewers corner will open Thursday evening with a concert at the church at 7.30.

On Friday evening, at 7.30, Rev. John P. Westerberg, of Kanne, Penn., will deliver an address; and on Saturday evening Rev. John Bjork, also a former pastor, will preach.

On Sunday, in addition to the regular services of the day there will be a special anniversary service in the afternoon at 3.30, when the pastor, Rev. A. P. Hanson and several clergymen will take part. The public is cordially invited.

G. A. R. OUTING.

About 400 enjoyed the annual outing on Tuesday of the Norfolk county G. A. R. and W. R. C. at Bass Point. The trip was made by steamer from Boston. Massachusetts department officials were guests of the day, and most of the posts in the county were represented. A fish dinner at the hotel was the great attraction of the day. It was an ideal day.

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

It is true, as a contemporary states, that Oklahoma is suffering from overcapitalization, but think what a constitution the state has.

In selecting a new Secretary of the Interior, the President would prefer to find some one who has already been investigated.

Consul General Griffiths reports that the post-card picture business is on the wane in London. Encouraging to say the least.

Mexican jails are reported overflowing with prisoners. Either the jail accommodations are inadequate or else the vote for Mr. Diaz's rival is larger than supposed.

Senator Gore's idea that it is all wrong to rob Poor Indian Lo is generally indorsed. Poor Lo probably does not suspect that his name ever will be anything other than Poor Lo, nevertheless.

The court case today shows that there are limits to which parents may go in punishing little children. It is often a difficult matter, but they should not govern by fear. More supervised playgrounds would help.

It becomes more and more evident every day that the Quincy police did a good job when they arrested on suspicion the pickpockets who attended the launching last March. Arthur Smith certainly has a long record.

Certainly the recent report of the expert accountants has done but little in reaching the real trouble in the finances of the city of Quincy. The main trouble lies in the fact that the tax rates have been too small to meet all the appropriations, abatements and taxes that are not collected.

DRIFT OF OPINION.

Another Boston young man excuses his thievery from his employer with the assertion that his pay was insufficient. Perhaps it was. He was a shipping clerk; and there is a general impression that the salary of shipping clerks is not stupendous. As an inside, if the young man wanted to make more money, he had better have chosen the occupation of a plumber or a painter, either of which return larger pay for fewer hours than the work of the ordinary shipping clerk. That, perhaps, is an observation which would apply as well to other young men, equally dissatisfied with their wages, but who have managed to keep honest. What were the facts in this particu'ar case, we do not know; ordinarily, the man who steals from his employer, and then pleads an insufficient renumeration as the reason, is found to put his stealings into extravagances or vices. The lack of moral perception which is the impulse of the one is also the impulse of the other. Those instances in which such stealing is the result of dire necessity are comparatively rare. Besides, the agreement to work is also an agreement to be honest; and that ought to have some consideration.—Norwood Messenger.

President Taft has just ratified a parcels post connection with Austria-Hungary by which the people of that country are permitted to send to any part of the United States packages up to 11 pounds in weight at the rate of 12 cents a pound. If an American citizen of Framingham wished to send out a box or package it could weigh no more than four pounds and the postage would be 16 cents a pound. There is a delicious absurdity in this mail arrangement and it is a wonder that people put up with it. The rates within the country should certainly be at least as liberal as those freely granted to the people across the water. Why a nation supposed to be businesslike tolerates such a discrimination against itself is a mystery. Some time the people of this country will get wise enough to order for themselves the same mail privileges that they extend to foreigners.—Framingham News.

BOATING PRECAUTIONS.

If you go boating this summer, take a few precautions that are simple, but may save your life and the lives of your companions. Don't rock the boat. Don't offer to take people out rowing unless you know how both to row and to swim. Merely because it looks so easy when an expert manages a boat, don't infer that anybody can learn how to take care of a boat just by watching or that things marine come to some people intuitively.

When you are about to hire a boat see to it that the craft is safe nd seaworthy and provided with life preservers or their equivalent. You don't expect accidents. But if accidents happened only when we expected them, they would be gloriously few. Even though you are sure you don't need them, take a stout bowline, enough life preservers (or boards, if life preservers are unavailable) to go round, an anchor, a big can to bail with and an extra pair of oars.

In getting into the boat, be sure to step right into the bottom over the keel. If this is too far to reach, step into the middle of the seat and then down. Have some one steady the boat while you do this. Step on the gunwale only if you want to capsize. Distribute the weight as evenly as possible. When once in the boat, don't stretch out to pick waterlilies or to grasp the pier. Let the person in the bow land first, taking the bowline and steadying the boat for the others.

If by any chance you do upset—keep your head and watch for a chance to seize the upturned boat, any floating planks, or the life preservers.—Boston Herald.

TO GLOUCESTER.

The fine, newly-equipped Boston-to-Gloucester steamboats have begun their daily and Sunday trips to the quaint old fishing city of Gloucester. These cooling and highly invigorating trips are delightful in the extreme No such views of the far-famed North Shore can be had otherwise than by these splendid boats of the Gloucester line—safe, commodious, fitted with every comfort and convenience, and supplied with good music. If you want to "get next" to nature's most fascinating side, take one of these trips at 10 A. M. any week day (10.15 Sundays), and go upthe cool and enchanting North Shore.

DAMES AND DAUGHTERS.

Mrs. Custer, widow of General Custer, will write a history of her husband's part in the civil war.

Mrs. Charles G. Ames is president of the School Voters' league in Boston. The object of the league is to study school conditions.

Mrs. Clara Bancroft Beatley has been elected for her eighteenth consecutive term as superintendent of the Sunday school of the Church of the Disciples in Boston.

Mme. N. G. Cheremeteff, who recently won the Grand Prix, a prize worth some $60,000, is the first woman who ever carried off the rich stakes in the French racing classic. She is a great lover of horses.

For many years Mrs. Belva Lockwood has devoted herself chiefly to the practice of law and has won a wide reputation as a lawyer. She is a familiar figure before the supreme court of the United States.

Miss Job of Queenstown, Tasmania, is said to be the only woman who has ever sat within the bar at a Wesleyan Methodist conference. When she first took her seat one minister protested that the conference was composed only of ministers and laymen and that they had no power to admit the best lady in the land.

—One of the unique features in connection with the National apple shows in Spokane, November 14 to 19, and in Chicago, November 28 to December 4, will be a series of apple packing contests for county, state, national and international championships, with suitable trophies and cash premiums to the winners. Square and diagonal packs of the various recognized tiers in regulation Northwestern boxes will be used in single, five and 10-box contests, open to all. It is also likely there will be a contest for teams in packing a full car or 630 boxes. There is much rivalry among packers in the several valleys in the Northwest, where grading and packing has reached a degree of perfection not yet attained elsewhere, and it is expected that many of the cracks in Washington, Oregon, Idaho, Montana and other states, possibly Colorado and California, will enter. Plans for the contests have not yet been worked out, but it is expected a full announcement will be made early in August.

FONSECA WON'T VISIT US

Doctors' Orders Compel Distinguished Brazilian to Remain at Home

Washington, July 20.—Marshal Herdes da Fonseca, president-elect of Brazil, has been compelled to abandon his projected visit to the United States during August by imperative orders from his physicians.

News to this effect was received by John Barrett, director of the international bureau of American republics, in a cablegram from Jose Rodrigues, the Brazilian editor, who had been making the arrangements for Marshal Fonseca's trip to this country.

JUDGE TERMS LABOR UNIONS A "TRUST"

Declares That They Are Inimical to Freedom of Citizens

Boston, July 20.—Judge Richardson granted an injunction, after a hearing, to the Meade-Morrison company of Cambridge, where a strike is in progress, against the officers and members of Boston Lodge No. 264 of the International Association of Machinists.

In granting the injunction Richardson said: "Every man is entitled to work for any number of hours and for any wage that is satisfactory to him, without interference or fear of violence.

"Combinations of capital into what is known as trusts has aroused much criticism throughout the country, but it seems to me that the labor organizations have formed a trust, inimical to that freedom which the laws of the state guarantee to every citizen."

WHITE REMAINS IN JAIL

His Status as Mayor of Lawrence Is Not Yet Determined

Lawrence, Mass., July 20.—Mayor William P. White remains in the house of correction continuing his work of can-seating while President Jordan of the aldermen, as acting mayor, looks after the details of executive work, and City Solicitor Murphy holds in abeyance his decision on the question of White's status as mayor. The city solicitor says he might possibly be ready today to announce his opinion, but he is not certain about it.

A call for a special meeting of the city government to act on the death of ex-Mayor Tewksbury was issued by Jordan. This is the first time since he assumed the duties of acting mayor that he has had occasion to call a meeting of the lower branch.

AFTER WORLD-WIDE SEARCH

Doctor Who Swindled His Bride Out of $13,500 Is Arrested

Detroit, July 20.—Charged with swindling a Brooklyn woman out of $13,500 and several valuable bonds soon after marrying her, Dr. Henry B. Keeler was arrested here. In company with him, a woman, who, it is alleged, posed as his sister and assisted him in getting the $13,500, is also held.

According to the police the authorities of America and Europe have been searching the world for the pair, and the detectives say that the doctor has been searching the world over in pursuit of health. He came here for treatment.

Troops to Quell Spanish Strike

Lowell, Mass., July 20.—The board of police last night announced that it would refuse consent for the exhibition of fight or boxing pictures here.

SLEEP IS EASY ON TROLLEY LINE

No Smoke, Noise, Dust or Tips In Illinois.

CORN BELT CARS ARE MODELS

Run From Peoria and St. Louis and Have More Conveniences Than Are Found on Pullmans—Nine Foot Blankets and Sheets a Comfortable Feature of Service.

Smokeless, dustless, noiseless sleeping cars with "tipless porters" are now in operation through the corn belt of Illinois, running from Peoria, where they make whisky, to St. Louis, which produces beer. These cars are owned and operated by the biggest electric railway system in the world.

Besides the above inducements, this road serves its sleeper passengers with hot coffee and rolls in the morning, and this service carries with it no extra charges.

It is the intention of this electric road to safeguard its passengers from monetary loss while on the sleepers. A feature of the cars is a burglar proof plush lined steel locker built in the wall at the head of each berth. The conductor holds one key and the passenger the other.

Illinois System Leads.

Illinois now boasts the greatest interurban system in the United States, operating over 500 miles of perfectly ballasted track, doing a general express and freight business and building a $5,000,000 double track two mile bridge across the Mississippi river at St. Louis. This, when completed, will be the heaviest and finest bridge to span the river.

However, this is not a tale of the interurban, but of what is asserted to be the finest sleeping cars in the world. Two of these have recently been completed by the American Car and Foundry company at St. Charles, Mo.

These cars are trailers and are drawn by a regular motorcar. This does away with motor and air brake compressor vibration and insures a quiet ride. As the power is noiseless and there is no ringing of bells or tooting of whistles, a more comfortable ride is given than on the steam roads.

The cars are fifty-six feet over all, twelve feet nine inches high and nine feet three inches wide. Instead of the old familiar deck roof, a survival of the horse car days, these cars have what is known as the turtle back monitor roof. The side walls go flush to the roof line, and the roof is rounded.

The outside of the car seems peculiar owing to the roof and the windows in the upper berths. There are two of these in each berth. These windows are double and are equipped with screens. At the head and foot of each berth in the roof there is a ventilator which can be opened and closed by the passenger. These features make the upper berths as attractive as the lower and obviate that suffocating effect so noticeable in ordinary cars.

At one end of the car are a smoking room and toilet facilities for the men, and at the other are the women's toilet room, a heat compartment and linen lockers. The two end compartments are equipped with the National sleeper sections, which in the daytime make up into seats similar to those in use on the Pullmans.

Long Sheets and Blankets.

Besides the regulation berth curtains there are separate curtains for each upper and lower berth. There is a call bell in each berth, and the deck lights in the top of the car are arranged so that the light will not shine into the upper berths. The sheets and blankets adhere to the Kansas law and are all nine feet in length. The cars throughout are furnished in solid mahogany.

Each berth is supplied with berth lights, current for which is supplied from storage batteries. This insures a steady light for reading.

The present service is between Peoria and St. Louis, a distance of 193 miles. The cars leave each terminal at 11:30 p. m., arriving at 6:30 a. m. Regular Pullman rates are charged, with the exception that a reduction of 25 cents is made for the uppers.

LONDON USING TELEWRITER.

Users Write Message Instead of Talking Into Phone.

London has beaten New York in one feature of up-to-dateness. It has the first "telewriter" exchange in the world, which was recently opened. The telewriter is a device for writing by wire. One subscriber to the service calls the number of another through a telephone attachment on the new machine and then sits down and writes what he wants to say, the message appearing on a roll of paper at the other end of the line.

So far London has only forty subscribers to the new system, confined to a small section of the business center, but before long it is hoped to extend the wires all over the city and to make the service as general as the telephone.

Sparrow Hawks Kill Sparrows.

With a pair of sparrow hawks attached to long cords so that they can't get away Thomas Champ of Salisbury, Lancaster county, Pa., is clearing his place of the pesky sparrow.

SAVINGS BANK INSURANCE.

At the present time over $1,300,000 of insurance is in force in the Banks having insurance departments, and there are agencies in 75 of the leading industries of the State. From the beginning there has been a steady gain in the amount of insurance; and this movement is now so thoroughly established that its success is beyond question. Recently arrangements have been made to establish agencies in such representative firms as the A. E. Little & Co., Lynn; Bliss & Perry Co., Newburyport; A. J. Bates Co., Webster; Walter Baker Chocolate Co., Milton; and the Gorton-Pew Fisheries Co., Gloucester. For the first time since the beginning of Savings Bank Insurance the textile mills of the Commonwealth have become interested. The Lancaster Mills of Clinton, the Naumkeag Steam Cotton Works of Salem are ready to establish agencies and the Boott Mills of Lowell are likely to do so very soon. Another important development is the fact that Mr. Arthur H. Lowe, President of the Parkhill Manufacturing Company of Fitchburg, has offered to furnish the Special Guaranty Fund of $25,000 in order that the Fitchburg Savings Bank may open an insurance department. This offer is under consideration by the Board of Trustees and it is anticipated that before long one of the strongest insurance departments of the State will be established in the Fitchburg Savings Bank.

LETTERS OF PUBLIC INTEREST

WEDNESDAY HALF HOLIDAY

B. R. McQuinn Again Replies to A. I. Dixon

Editor Daily Ledger:

The matter of a weekly half holiday has become a matter of public interest. The wage earners of the country constitute a large portion of the public, and it has become practically a universal custom throughout the country in almost all branches of business to allow a weekly half holiday throughout the summer months, in some instances through the whole year.

Most businesses allow it to be a Saturday afternoon, but in some branches of the retail trade it is impossible to suspend work on Saturday at noon time, so to conform to the laws of circumstances, Wednesday afternoon has been decreed the better time to suspend labor and seek enjoyment and rest.

The retail clerks throughout the country claim, and no reasonable person disputes the claim, that they should be allowed at least one half day for recreation, a time when they can give their families the benefit of their companionship, when they can enjoy their children.

The purchasing public appreciate the justness of their claim and advocates it, the majority of merchants admit and approve of it, and themselves desire it, feeling they would rather know their place of business is closed and standing still while they are seeking an afternoon of enjoyment, than to go away leaving the management to others, who, though their intentions might be of the best, would allow some error that might cost much more than the proceeds of a half day's business.

I have no desire to prolong the discussion with Mr. Dixon. "It is always possible to pick a straw from a broom," but he gives the meaning of the word "barbarious" as "brutal." Just so. Now, if compelling either man or beast to work an exceedingly long day, every day, isn't brutal, then I fail in my conception of that word too.

He claimed I am wrong in stating that conditions have not improved for clerks, but he has to go back a quarter of a century to find a time when conditions were worse than at the present time. He might have gone back further in history, to the using of clamshells and stones as currency, he then would have shown a still greater improvement as nickles and dimes are much nicer to handle.

But, have conditions improved? The work of today is so much more intense that it over balances the benefits of the reduction in the number of hours. Display and store decoration did not play as important a part in business 25 years ago and competiton wasn't as keen as at the present time.

Back in the last century, though, stores were open four nights a week until 8.30 or 9 o'clock, a great part of the time was spent in conversation among the clerks or with customers, who were rarely in a hurry. Or with regular habitants of store back rooms who collected for their after supper smoke and chat. Those things fortunately are reminiscences of last century as should be the present long hour system.

I admit I was in error to the extent of one hour but I don't think it impaired my argument. But in fairness to myself and such merchants as do not keep open their places of business as many hours as I figured, let me state that as Mr. Dixon's first letter was mainly concerning the hours and conditions of Berry Bros. store, the hours quoted by me were those of Berry Bros.' store but enough was struck out by the press management as to change it to make general in its application.

I fail to conceive how Mr. Dixon's associates in the Clerks' Association would put him on a committee or how he could consistently accept the appointment, or expect to perform his duty to his associates, if he was not an advocate o fthe weekly half holiday.

A reduction in the hours of labor means a strengthening of the workman, the growth of a keener intelligence, and an improvement in home life. After a man has labored an excessively long day, having taxed to the utmost his muscular energy, depressed by an over expenditure of vital forces, it is not much wonder if he seeks stimulus in alcohol or in other crude pleasures. A man who has worked hard for 10, 12 or 14 hours is in no fit condition to enjoy books, pictures, music or the sane pleasure of a well regulated family life.

B. Russell McQuinn.

COMMENTS ON REPORT

more prompt payment of taxes would be advantageous to the city, for there are today outstanding $445,000.00 in temporary loans in anticipation of taxes.

It is not surprising that the accountant could not reconcile the annual appropriations and the commitments, for each year the City Council has made appropriations in excess of the $12 limit, it being estimated that the receipts would provide for the difference. In 1909 the appropriations in the annual budget (aside from debt, interest, water and sewers) amounted to $369,674.40, as will be seen on page 46, but the commitment to the Assessors (on page 190) was only $339,393.68. Thus every year $30,000.00 or more is appropriated in excess of the amount raised by taxation. In 21 years this would amount to more than $600,000.00 in excess of the appropriations.

What the taxpayers would like to know, is whether the "receipts," so-called, have been large enough each year to meet appropriations in excess of the $12 limit. Whether the overlays have been large enough to provide for abatements and for taxes that must be abated.

Comments on the sewer and water figures will be made later.

TRAIN SERVICE.

If any one has a grievance against the train service of Quincy, to or from any of the stations of the city, they will have an opportunity to be heard this evening at a mass meeting to be held under the auspices of the Board of Trade at Alpha hall. The demands of the different stations are not the same, and the revised schedule was quite a revolution, but the company will doubtless improve the service if their patrons point out where the yare needed. There seems to be a call for one or two more trains from Quincy to Boston between 7 and 8 A. M., say at 7.20 and 7.50. In the fall a theatre train about 7.10 would be appreciated. More trains from Boston are wanted between 8 and 11 P. M., particularly about 10.50.

ON PROBATION.

James M. O'Connor of 306 Hancock street, was found guilty of assault this morning on the charge of his wife, who testified that he threw a plate at her. She was not struck. The couple have for some time been unable to live together with any degree of comfort and Mrs. O'Conner desired a separation. There was no action on this request, and O'Conner was warned and placed on probation until December 1.

QUINCY OF YEARS AGO

Henry Flynt for 55 Years Tutor at Harvard College

(Historical Paper No. 25.)

Among the Quincy celebrities of 200 years ago was Henry Flynt, who taught the youth of Harvard University in the early days of its existence longer than any other person, and longer than the corporation desired that any other person should teach.

"Tutor Flynt, son of the Rev. Josiah Flynt ,of Dorchester and grandson of the Rev. Henry Flynt, of old Braintree, was born in 1676. His early youth and most of his life were passed, either as a student or instructor, within the walls of Harvard College. He held the office of tutor fifty-five years. During sixty years he was fellow of the corporation, and through almost the whole period he also served as clerk of the Board of Overseers. He was respected by his contemporaries, and his name and character thus intimately interwoven with the history of the College, long continued favorite topics of reminiscence among its graduates. His learning and ability were sufficient for the several stations he occupied, and his zeal and fidelity in the discharge of his duty were unsurpassed. His long continuance in office evidences that he was useful and acceptable.

He was mild in his notions of government, an advocate of gentleness in punishing offenders ,and although the custom of the age required great solemnity in administering discipline ,tradition represents him to have been ever ready to temper severity with a smile, often apologizing to them by remarking that 'wild colts make good horses.' By constitutional tempearment Flynt was inclined to firmness and moderation.

Possessing a clear and discriminating intellect, he was also characterized by great steadfastness in opinion, but without obstinacy or obtrusiveness. In the religious controversies which divided the Province and broke the peace of the college, he oftener kept aloof than mingled, 'thanking God for their ignorance who thought him not Orthodox.' When occasion called, he preached discourses—serious, practical, and instructive, leaving doctrinal disputes to the contentious.

"The experiment of a tutor seventy-nine years of age was sufficiently inconvenient, and caused the government of the institution to guard against a similar occurrence in the future. Soon after the resignation of Mr. Flynt, a vote passed both boards "that no person chosen henceforth into the office of tutor shall abide therein more than eight years."—Quincy's Hist. of Harvard College, Vol. II, pp. 82-3.

"At the time of an earthquake, when some students who had been waked up by the noise and shaking, ran to the room of their old, respected tutor, as if for shelter from nature's rage, he calmly said to them, 'Poh, boys! go back to your room; earthquakes never do any harm in these high latitudes.' In his corporal appearance, he was rather short and thickset. Some twenty sermons of his, and a Latin oration at the interment of President Wadsworth, were published."

The following anecdote is an extract from an entertaining narrative written by David Sewall of a journey from Cambridge to Portsmouth, in 1754, made by Tutor Flynt of Harvard College, and Mr. Sewall, then an undergraduate—afterwards Judge Sewall, and friend of President John Adams, among whose papers this manuscript was found, and read by the Hon. Charles F. Adams before the Massachusetts Historical Society in 1878. This narrative was published by the society ,and is now to be found among its printed proceedings:—

"After dinner, we passed through North Hampton to Greenland, and after coming to a small rise of the road the hills on the north of Piscataqua River appearing in view ,and a conversation passed between us respecting one of them which he said was Frost Hill. I said it was Agamenticus, a large hill in York. We differed in opinion, and each of us adhered to his own idea of the subject. During this conversation, while we were descending gradually at a moderate pace and at a small distance and in full view of Clarks tavern ,the ground being a little sandy but free from stones or obstructions of any kind, the horse somehow stumbled in so sudden a manner, the boot of the chair being loose on Mr. Flynt's side, threw Mr. Flynt headlong from the carriage into the road; and the stoppage being so sudden, had not the boot been fastened on my side, I might probably have been thrown out likewise. The horse sprang up quickly, and with some difficulty I so guided the chair as to prevent the wheel passing over him; when I halted and jumped out, being apprehensive from the manner in which the old gentleman was thrown out, it must have broken his neck.

Several persons at the tavern noticed the occurrence ,and immediately came to assist Mr. Flynt; and, after rising, found him able to walk to the house, and after washing his face and head with some water, found the skin rubbed off his forehead in two or three places ,to which a young lady, a sister of William Parker, Jr., who had come from Portsmouth with him and some others that afternoon applied some court plaster. After which, we had among us two or three single bowls of lemon punch, made pretty sweet, with which we refreshed ourselves, and became very cheerful. The gentlemen were John Wendell, William Parker, Jr., and Nathaniel Treadwell ,a young gentleman who was paying suit to Miss Parker.

"Mr. Flynt observed, he felt very well, notwithstanding his fall from the chair ,and if he had not disfigured himself he did not value it. He would not say the fault was in the driver; but he rather thought he was looking too much on those hills. John Wendell was just upon the point of marrying to a Miss Wentworth and he (Flynt) was asked if he had come at this time to attend the wedding. He replied he had not made the journey with that intent, but if it happened while he was at Portsmouth he should have no objection of attending it.

"I was directed to pay for one bowl of the punch and the oats our horse had received ,after which we proceeded on towards Portsmouth; Mr. Treadwell and Miss Parker preceded us in an open chair. William Parker was going on to Kensington, where he was employed in keeping school, and J. Wendell returned on horseback to Portsmouth. The punch we had partaken of was pretty well charged with good old spirit ,and Father Flynt was very pleasant and sociable. About a mile distant from the town there is a road that turns off at right angles (called the Creek Road) into town, into which Mr. Treadwell and Miss Parker (who afterwards married Captain Adams) entered with their chair. Upon which Mr. Flynt turned his face to me and said, 'Aye, prithee, I do not understand their motions; but the Scripture says, 'The way of a man with a maid is very mysterious.'"

It was the custom in the early days of the college for students to present their tutor or professor who had heard their yearly recitations ,a present of some kind. Hall, in his book of college words and customs, page 322, relates the following anecdote in relation to a present given to Tutor Flynt:—

"Many years ago, some of the students of Harvard College wishing to make a present to their tutor, Mr. Flynt, called on him, informed him of their intentions and requested him to select a gift which would be acceptable to him. He replied that he was a single man, that he already had a well-filled library ,and in reality, wanted nothing. The students, not all satisfied with this answer, determined to present him with a sliver chamber pot. One was accordingly made of the appropriate dimensions, and inscribed with these words—

'Mingere cum bombis
Res est saluberrima lumbis.'

"On the morning of Commencement day, this was borne in procession in a morocco case, and presented to the tutor. Tradition does not say with what feelings he received it, but it remained for many years in a room in Quincy. (This room is still called Flynt's study in the house of the Colonial Dames on Hancock street) known as the Dorothy Q. house where he was accustomed to spend his Saturdays and Sundays ,and finally disappeared about the beginning of the Revolutionary War. It is supposed to have been carried to England." Tradition does not relate whether it was deposited as a curiosity in the British Museum or not.

BRIEFS.

The Quincy Day Nursery is to be moved into new quarters.

Miss Annie Kane of Willard street is spending her annual vacation at Vineyard Haven.

The City Council Committee on Public Buildings and Streets will meet Friday evening.

Delightful weather thus far this week, and a marked contrast from the hot uncomfortable days of last week.

Miss Teresa Keating has returned from Northampton, having completed the summer course at the Institute of Music Pedagogy.

The clerks in the Assessors' office are working nights this week in order that the tax rate may be announced as soon as possible.

If you are not satisfied with the train service on the N. Y., N. H. & H. it is up to you to attend the mass meeting tonight at Alpha hall.

The Dorcas society of the Universalist church is to have an outing at Nantasket Thursday night, leaving the Square on the six o'clock car.

The main sewer is being extended across the old Graham property from Washington street to Sumner street, and the "Dublin district" will be sewered.

Judge Pratt is sitting at the district court three days a week during the present month. Judge Avery takes the first three days and Judge Pratt the last three.

Mrs. George Geddes, Jr., and daughter Hazel came on Tuesday from Rochester, New York ,to visit her parents Mr. and Mrs. William O. Phelps of Prospect avenue.

There have been so many calls at the Quincy Day Nursery for women for washing, cleaning, etc., that the supply is not equal to the demand, therefore the ad in the Ledger will be discontinued for the present.

It is understood that the street railway is to erect a freight depot for its trolley freight business at the northerly end of its car barn on Hancock street. The land is now being filled in with ashes and tracks are being laid into it.

Freaks of Lightning.

Lightning has struck, plucked feathers from and insides out of chickens and, better than some cooks, roasted them to a proper turn for the table. It has roasted apples on the tree and corn on the stalk and has struck goober and potato vines and cooked the goobers and tubers in the very ground.

Give, if thou canst, an alms; if not, afford instead of that a sweet and gentle word.—Robert Herrick.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

QUITS AS HEAD OF WELLESLEY

Trustees Accept Miss Hazard's Resignation With Regret

NOTED AS WOMAN EDUCATOR

Poor Health Causes Her to Relinquish Presidency of Girls' College After Serving Eleven Years In That Position—Great Advance Under Her Administration—She Is Without College Education

Wellesley, Mass., July 20.—Miss Caroline Hazard, president of Wellesley college for the past eleven years and one of the best known women educators, has resigned and her resignation has been accepted by the board of trustees of the college.

Her life history shows her to be one of the most remarkable women in the country. When she was installed as president with elaborate ceremonies many critics disturbed themselves over the fact that Miss Hazard is not a college graduate and had no degree.

It was pointed out with pride by Wellesley college, in brushing this difficulty aside, that their new president was a scholar, poet, traveler, painter, musician, author, and a woman of wide executive experience and personally attractive.

Miss Hazard's administration has been the longest in the history of Wellesley, and under it the growth in number of students, in equipment and in prestige has been noteworthy. The trustees and alumnae credit Miss Hazard with a large share of the responsibility for this fine showing, and for that reason the former accepted the resignation with the deepest regrets.

For some months it had been known that the president was in poor health and that her condition had caused her to be hampered in her work, and yet all hoped that she would be able to continue as head of the college. Miss Hazard is at present in the White Mountains of New Hampshire. In her letter to the trustees she says in part:

"No office can offer a woman greater opportunities. While at times they are overwhelming, yet their inspiration is such that ordinary measurement is impossible. It is because I appreciate the greatness of the office that I am forced to lay it down."

Miss Hazard was born in Peace Dale, R. I., on June 10, 1856. She was educated by a governess and tutors and at Miss Mary A. Shaw's school, Providence; then by private study abroad. In 1899 she was honored with the degree of A. M. from the University of Michigan; in the same year with Litt. D. from Brown university, and 1905, with LL. D. from Tufts college.

The trustees have named a subcommittee to draw up resolutions expressing their deep regrets at Miss Hazard's resignation, and these will be acted upon at a later meeting. Several of the trustees are abroad now and so it is likely that nothing definite will be done looking to the choice of her successor until fall.

Wellesley had been founded only a quarter of a century when Miss Hazard, daughter of one of Rhode Island's most distinguished families, entered upon her duties, work which contained much of promise and yet was somewhat experimental, for twenty-five years in the history of a college are not many.

Among the great improvements in equipment during Miss Hazard's administration may be mentioned the four big dormitories—Pomeroy, Cazenove, Beebe and Shafer—the splendid gymnasium and the handsome library with its 65,000 volumes.

COLLECTOR OF CUSTOMS

President Appoints Negro to Important Position at Washington

Washington, July 20.—Whitefield McKinley, a negro real estate agent of this city, has been appointed collector of customs here, the technical designation of the office being the port of Georgetown, D. C. News of McKinley's selection by President Taft was received here from Secretary Norton at Beverly.

It is stated that the appointment signifies the succession of negroes in important federal positions. McKinley came to Washington from Charleston in 1884 and has taken an active part in politics.

Twenty-Two Horses Burner

Boston, July 20.—Twenty-two horses were burned to death in a fire which caused a loss of $25,000 last night in the stables of the Allen & Fox Express company at Jamaica Plain.

George's Coronation Next June

London, July 20.—King George signed a proclamation fixing the coronation for an unspecified date in June, 1911.

NOTORIOUS CROOK CAUGHT

Makes a Business of Rifling Bags on Departing Ocean Steamers

Boston, July 20.—Pictures in the rogues' gallery and finger prints revealed that William Walker, who was arrested on the steamer Calvin Austin, is "Gus" Raymond, the notorious thief, forger and swindler. He was taken to the municipal court and held in $1200 for a hearing.

Just as the steamer was leaving the dock a woman went into her stateroom and found a man rifling her bag. She called for help, and employes overpowered the man and turned him over to the police.

Walker was an associate of the reformed bank robber, Langdon Moore, who died recently in Swanzey, N. H., and was connected with the Wilkes-Elliott gang of forgers in New York. "Doc" Minchin, the notorious real estate swindler, was one of his partners.

Many years ago Raymond started a scheme of rifling the bags on departing ocean liners. He would get into staterooms while the passengers were saying goodbye to their friends. He is 57 years of age and has a dozen aliases.

BOMB FOR DUKE OF AOSTA

Italian Prince Barely Misses Assassination by Young Anarchist

Naples, July 20.—A boy of 13, declared to be a full-fledged and fanatical anarchist, hurled a bottle-bomb at the Duke of Aosta while the prince was leisurely proceeding through the streets in his automobile. The bottle just missed the duke's head, glancing along the side furnishings of the car, which prevented its smashing when it touched the pavement.

The police seized the boy at once. His father was declared to be one of the most rabid anarchists of the city if not of all Italy, and the lad is said to have imbibed anarchism from the time of his babyhood.

The bottle was cautiously picked up and sent to the police department of explosives. A cursory examination is said to have revealed it to be one of the deadliest kind of glass missiles.

FARRELL ADDICTED TO USE OF DRUGS

Indirect Cause of His Being Held on Murder Charge

Boston, July 20.—Murder is the charge which the police have placed against James F. Farrell. He shot and killed James H. Lawson with a revolver. Lawson was his relative by marriage and lived in a boarding house at 906 Washington street, of which Farrell is the landlord. Farrell was taken before Judge Murray and arraigned. He was held for the grand jury without bail.

Morphine and opium are said to be responsible for Farrell's act. He has been addicted to the use of the drugs, says Chief Inspector Dugan, for the last ten years and many times has had strange hallucinations. He has imagined all sorts of wrongs and has been led to believe that persons were trying to injure him. Lawson, the police say, has done all he could to break Farrell of the habit and his attempts at persuasion finally became more or less forcible. Instead of stopping the habit Farrell would think that Lawson was trying to quarrel with him.

TAFT AT EASTPORT

Makes a Little Speech In Which He Sidesteps Political Matters

Eastport, Me., July 20.—Beginning his ten days' stay in Maine, President Taft reached the northeast corner of the United States. It was the first time a chief magistrate of the nation had visited this section of the state.

The president spent an hour and a half ashore and after an automobile trip which carried him to all points of interest on Moose island, he made a ten minutes' speech. Following the purpose he announced from Beverly, he did not touch on politics.

The president expressed a new hope that closer commercial relations with Canada may be established during the next twelve months.

BURGHEIM NOT DETAINED

Movements of American Doctor In Nicaragua Are Not Restricted

Washington, July 20.—Reports that Dr. Lawrence Burgheim, an American physician in Nicaragua, was being forcibly detained with the Madriz troops are denied in a report of an investigation into his case received by the state department.

Dr. Burgheim was physician to General Irias, the Madriz commissioner in eastern Nicaragua, but served of his own will. He recently quit the Madriz service unmolested, the reports say, and is now in charge of one of Estrada's hospitals in Bluefields.

Couple Aged Seventy to Wed

New York, July 20.—Blushing very much like the young couple that applies for a marriage license, Rev. Hermann Tausky, aged 70, and Mrs. Barbara Heilman, also 70, obtained the necessary document from City Clerk Scully.

STRIKE SEEMS TO GAIN FORCE

Complete Tieup of Freight Traffic on the Grand Trunk

MAKESHIFT CREWS AT WORK

Company Confining Its Efforts to Moving Pasenger Trains—Partially Crippled Service Maintained During First Day of Strike—No Attempt at Interference by Men Who Have Quit Work In Canada

Montreal, July 20.—A complete tieup of freight traffic, a partial abandonment of local passenger service, but a maintenance of all passenger trains on the main ine, were the results of the first day's strike of the Grand Trunk conductors, trainmen and yardmen.

The union men responded to the strike call practically to a man, the trains that were moving being manned by officials of the road and strike-breaking crews that have been held in reserve for several days.

The move of the railroad officials in closing the shops at various points also gave them a number of practical trainmen who were willing to take out trains.

Officials of the road acted as conductors on some of the through trains, and Superintendent of Terminals Farrell was at the throttle of the switch engine used to make up trains in the Toronto yards.

The company at present is confining its efforts entirely to moving passenger trains, although local officials express confidence that within a few days freight traffic will be resumed.

Cars of perishable freight are on the sidings at various points, which from present indications will be a complete loss.

Every precaution is being taken to prevent rioting and forces of special officers were sworn in.

The strike up to this time has been conducted in a most orderly way, however, no point in the province reporting any attempt at interference with the efforts of the company to move its trains.

The same conditions exist on all the divisions throughout the province. Passenger trains are moving, but freight is absolutely at a standstill.

Many Locomotives Idle

Montpelier, Vt., July 20.—All freight traffic in and out of Montpelier is tied up tight by the strike of trainmen on the Central Vermont railroad. Some local passenger trains are running out of the city, but the crews are made up of either strike-breakers or station agents and office employes.

Six freight locomotives are laid up at Montpelier Junction and the "subject to delay" provision is imposed on all freight received at the freight yards for shipment.

Passenger Service Hampered

Berlin, N. H., July 20.—Grand Trunk trains between Portland and Montreal and intermediate points have been running through here, but have been anywhere from fifteen minutes to two hours or more behind schedule time.

No freight trains are moving, and no attention is apparently being given to this branch of the service by the officials.

Big Strike In England

London, July 20.—A strike that threatens to reach serious dimensions has broken out among the employes of the Northeastern railroad, many thousands having quit work. Traffic is disorganized.

No notice of the intention to strike appears to have been given by the men, who declare that the strike is in "protest against the generally tyrannical methods of the officials."

Unasked Raise For 4000 Men

Louisville, July 20.—Four thousand Louisville shop employes of the Louisville and Nashville railroad, when they opened their pay envelopes yesterday, found therein an unsolicited increase of 6 percent.

MAD AUTHORESS A SUICIDE

Mrs. Philbrick First Takes the Life of Her Young Daughter

Miles City, Mont., July 20.—Mrs. Helen Philbrick, author of several books, among them "The Idiot and the Insane," and known as the mad woman of the Rockies, murdered her 11-year-old daughter by chloroforming her on her ranch near here.

Mrs. Philbrick followed this act by committing suicide by taking prussic acid. She was well known in Boston and California.

Drexel In Long Flight

Bournemouth, Eng., July 20.—A. J. Drexel, Jr., the American aviator, carried a passenger in a Bleriot monoplane from Bournemouth to Beaulieu in Hampshire, a distance of thirty-five miles.

SYNOPSIS

(CHAPTER XII—Continued.)

The servant's glance rested now in some surprise on the newcomer's garments—a gamekeeper's well worn coat and cap—and on the dusty, almost shabby looking shoes.

"A wager," said John Steele, noting the old orderly's expression. "From Strathorn House to London by foot within a given time, don't you know. Fell in with some rough customers last night who thought my coat and hat better than these."

"I beg your pardon, sir, but"— The man's apprehensive look fastened itself on a dark stain on the coat near the shoulder.

"Just winged me—a scratch," replied John Steele, with an indifferent shrug, sinking into a chair near the fire, which burned low.

"One moment, Dennis." John Steele leaned back. The dying embers revealed a haggard face. His eyes half closed as if from lack of sleep, but immediately opened again. "You spoke of expecting me. How," he said, stretching out his legs, "did you know"—

"Sure, sir, by your luggage. It arrived with my master's heavier boxes that he didn't take along with him over the wather."

His luggage there—where no one knew—could have known—he was going! The place he had selected under what he had considered propitious circumstances as a haven, a refuge, where he might find himself for a brief period comparatively safe, could he reach it, turn in without being detected! This last he believed he had successfully accomplished, and then to be told by the man— All John Steele's excuses for coming in this unceremonious fashion that he had planned to put to the servant of Captain Forsythe were at the moment forgotten. Who could have guessed that he would make his way straight hither—or had any one? An enemy, divining a lurking place for which he was heading, would not have obligingly forwarded his belongings. What then? Had Jocelyn Wray ordered them sent on with Captain Forsythe's boxes and bags in order that they might be less likely to fall into the hands of the police?

"Here you are, sir." The servant had entered and re-entered, had set the table without the man in the armchair being conscious of his coming and going. "Remembered my master inviting you once when you were here to pitch your camp at Rosemary Villa any time you should be after yearning for that quietood essential for litterary composition and to windin' up the campaign on your book. So when I saw your luggage"—

"Exactly." It was curious the man should have spoken thus, should have voiced one of the very subterfuges Steele had had in mind himself to utter to show pretext for his too abrupt appearance. But now—

As he ate mechanically, but with the zest of one who had long fasted, John Steele listened; again a vehicle went by; then another.

John Steele rose with an effort. No, there was nothing more he required except rest! Which room would he prefer, he was asked when he found himself on the upper landing. The man had put his things in a front chamber, but the back one was larger. John Steele forced himself to consider. He even inspected both of the rooms. That on the front floor had one window facing the row; the second chamber looked out over a rear wall separating the vegetable garden of Rosemary Villa from the shrub adorned confines of a place which fronted on the next street. The visitor decided on the former chamber. He carefully closed the blinds and drew across the window the dark, heavy curtains. This would answer very well. Excellent accommodations for a man whose own chambers in the city were now in the hands of renovators—the painters, the paperhangers, the plumbers. And the back room? He paused as if considering the servant's assumption of his purpose in coming hither. He might as well let the fellow think.

No one must know where he was under any circumstances. His voice sounded almost jocular, at singular variance with the heaviness, the weariness of his face. He, the old servant, had been a soldier, knew how to fulfill, then, a request or an order. Something crinkled in the speaker's hand, passed to the other, who was now busying himself with the bath. The man's moist fingers did not hesitate to close on the note.

Half an hour later John Steele, clad in his dressing gown, sat alone near the fire in his room. Every sound had ceased save at intervals a low creaking of old timber.

John Steele smiled grimly, but soon his thoughts seemed floating off beyond control, and, rising suddenly, he threw himself on the bed.

The afternoon was well advanced when, as half through a dream, John Steele heard the rude jingling of a bell. The loud and emphatic closing of the front gate served yet more speedily to arouse him. Hastily he sat up. His head buzzed from a long needed sleep that had been oversound.

"So it's the meter man you are?" John Steele recognized the inquiring voice as that of the caretaker. "Sure, you're a new one from the last that was here."

"Yes; we change beats occasionally," was the careless answer. John Steele sprang from his bed and crept very softly toward the hall. "A new man"—He heard them talking again after a few minutes. He remained listening at his door, now slightly ajar.

"There must be a leak somewhere from the quantity you've burned. I'll have a look around; might save your master a few shillings."

John Steele locked his door. The "meter man" crossed the upper hall and stepped, one after the other, into the several rooms. Having apparently made there the necessary examination, he walked over and tried the door of John Steele's room.

"This room's occupied by a visitor," interposed the servant, "and he's asleep now. He wouldn't thank you for the disturbing of his repose."

"All right. I'll not wake him. Don't find the leak I was looking for. Will drop in again."

John Steele, pushing back the blinds a little, looked out of his room. The man who had reached the front of the place glanced back. His gaze at that instant, meeting the other's, seemed to betray a momentary eagerness. Quickly Steele turned away. No doubt now lingered in his mind as to the purpose of the visit.

CHAPTER XIII.

FLIGHT.

STEELE mounted the stairs to the attic. From the high window there he could see, around a curve in the row, a loitering figure. Quickly coming down to the second story, he began cautiously to examine from the windows the situation of the house in relation to adjoining grounds and neighboring dwellings.

To the right the top of the high wall shone with the customary broken bits of glass; the rear defenses glistened also in formidable fashion. He noted, however, several places where this safeguard against unwonted invasion showed signs of deterioration. In one or two spots the jagged fragments had been broken or had fallen off. These slight breaks in the continuity of irregular, menacing glass bits he fixed in mind by a certain shrub or tree. Against the rear wall, which was of considerable height, leaned his neighbor's low conservatory, almost spanning it from side to side.

"Sure, sir, I don't know whether it's breakfast or supper that's waiting for you." Captain Forsythe's man had reappeared and stood now at the top of the landing looking in at him. "It's a sound sleep you've had."

The servant was now eying the visitor dubiously. John Steele wheeled, a perfunctory answer on his lips, and, going to the dining room, swallowed hastily a few mouthfuls.

He made up his mind as to his course then, the last desperate shift. Amid a turmoil of thoughts a certain letter he had had in mind to send to Captain Forsythe occurred to him, and, calling for paper and pen, he wrote there, facing the window, feverishly, hastily, several pages. Then he gave the letter to the servant for the postman, whose special call at the iron knocker without had just sounded. The letter would have served John Steele ill had it fallen into his enemies' hands, but once in the care of the royal mails it would be safe. If it were, indeed, that person at the gate and not some one—

"One moment, Dennis!" The man paused. "Of course you will make sure it is the postman?"

"As if I didn't know his knock!" he said, departing.

John Steele's pulses now throbbed expectantly. He had obtained a key to the gate and moved toward the front door. By this time the darkness had deepened, and, key in hand, he stepped out.

AN INCREASE OF $6,000,000

Paid by Meat Packers to Farmers In Last Six Months

STORY OF BANK CLEARINGS

Reflects Magnitude of Live Stock Industry In the Northwest, Which Is Becoming Still More Extensive—Record Prices For Hogs, While Sheep and Lambs Are Also Sold at High Prices

St. Paul, July 20.—A gain of $6,000,000 in the amount paid to the farmers of the northwest by meat packers and other buyers of live stock at South St. Paul is indicated by the figures of the Packington bank clearings for the first six months of the present year. From January to July the total was $24,340,000.25, while $18,342,401.73 was the total for the same period in the past year.

While part of the gain in banking operations is to be attributed to the growth of South St. Paul, President Flanagan of the Stock Yards National bank ascribes by far the greater portion of the increase to the enlarged operations of the market and the higher prices that packers have paid for stock purchased from the farmers. The average gain of $1,000,000 a month at the South St. Paul yards reflects the growing magnitude of the live stock industry in the northwest and also that of the local market.

It further indicates that farmers in general are engaging more extensively in live stock raising because of the increased profits and that confidence in the business has been restored since the 1907 season and is now more firmly fixed among northwestern farmers.

President Flanagan says that he places no confidence in the reports that have come from some sources that the fall business at the stock yards will be materially affected by the heavy marketing of stock during June, caused by the drying up of pastures. He cited similar forecasts made about this time last year with regard to the 1909 run, and points out that the predicted falling off in business failed to materialize, but that, on the other hand, all previous records for expenditures for live stock at South St. Paul for corresponding periods were shattered.

Prices received by farmers for hogs during the six months' period just closed were by far the highest ever paid during so extended a period of time and account, in large measure, for the $6,000,000 gain. In spite of the fact that receipts of hogs during the first six months this year were only 373,458, compared with 438,876 last year, a loss of nearly 15 percent, packers have paid more money for hogs than during the same time in 1909.

Cattle prices have not undergone the sharp changes which have been apparent in the swine trade, and at present are on a very satisfactory summer level from the standpoint of the stockman.

Values of sheep and lambs, which have but recently worked to a low level because of heavy runs at all markets of the country, have been high during the greater part of the first half of this year and packers have paid record-breaking prices for this stock also. Receipts increased about 8 percent over last year.

GAS WORKS WRECKED

Bursting of Gasometer Demolishes Plant of the Zeppelin Company

Friedrichshafen, July 20.—The gas works of the Zeppelin Airship company were demolished by an explosion. Seven persons were injured. The cause of the accident has not been ascertained.

The gasometer burst and the surrounding walls were blown to a great distance. Several cottages in the vicinity fell in heaps of ruins at the shock, while other neighboring buildings lost their windows and doors.

The detonation was heard for many miles around, causing a panic in the district and even among those residing on the opposite side of Lake Constance.

SIXTY PERCENT DIVIDEND

National City Bank of Cambridge Will Distribute $232,000 to Creditors

Cambridge, Mass., July 20.—A first dividend of 60 percent, aggregating $232,000, to the creditors of the National City bank of Cambridge, has been authorized by the treasury department at Washington. The dividend will be distributed to depositors this week.

The bank was capitalized at $100,000 and went into receivership on Feb. 23, after the thefts of George W. Coleman were revealed. The claims against it aggregate $389,000.

Fisherman Adrift Six Days.

Sydney, N. S., July 20.—After drifting about for six days in a dory, with only a few clams for food, Antine Cahelle, one of the crew of the schooner Olympic of Gloucester, was rescued by the steamer Sygna and brought to Sydney.

She saves her strength, keeps her health and is better able to enjoy the summer.

The New Perfection does everything that any other stove can do—all the family cooking, baking, washing and ironing. No smoke, no dust, no odor. Heat is applied directly and not wasted. A turn, and the flame is out.

The New Perfection stove has a Cabinet Top with shelf for keeping plates and food hot, drop shelves for the coffee pot or saucepans, and nickeled towel racks.

It has long turquoise-blue enamel chimneys. The nickel finish, with the bright blue of the chimneys, makes the stove very attractive and invites cleanliness. Made with 1, 2 and 3 burners; the 2 and 3-burner stoves can be had with or without Cabinet.

'PHONE LINE FROM LONDON TO GOTHAM

It Is Among the Possibilities of the Near Future

London, July 20.—Telephonic communication between London and New York may be looked for before long if a new submarine cable recently laid across the English channel by the British postoffice answers expectations.

The cable, which extends from Dover to Cape Gris Nez, is the first of its kind laid in tidal waters. The tests so far made have given very satisfactory results. The new cross-channel cable will be opened for public use between London and Paris as soon as the French government has completed the connecting land lines.

The tests made lead to the belief that telephonic communication between England and the continent of Europe will be revolutionized, and, as improvements are effected, will bring spoken communications between London and New York within the bounds of possibility.

"CHAMPION MEAN MAN"

Maintained Wife and Four Children on Fifteen Cents a Day

Philadelphia, July 20.—On the declaration of his wife, Mary E. Benson, that he allowed her only 15 cents a day to maintain herself and four children, Stephen Benson was held in $400 bail for court on the charge of non-support.

Magistrate Beaton in hearing the evidence told Benson he was the "champion mean man" that had ever appeared before him.

Tufts Out on $5000 Bail

Boston, July 20.—George W. Tufts, former cashier of the Rockport National bank, who has been held for the September grand jury on a charge of misapplying funds of the bank, was released on $5000 bail yesterday.

Spanish Envoy to Leave Rome

Madrid, July 20.—The government confirmed the report of the immediate return to Spain of Marcus De Ojeda, Spanish ambassador to the Vatican, because, it is said, of ill health.

Pyramid of Cheops.

Vast as modern skyscrapers are, not one has yet equaled the weight and massiveness of the pile of great stones which the swarming human ants of the Nile valley laboriously dragged together thousands of years ago until they had built the pyramid of Cheops. It would make a solid block 500 feet square and 330 feet high.

His Preference.

The skimpy novel I abhor,
For I am thrifty
And want a lot of reading for
My dollar fifty.

With careful spending,
The tale will have, as like as not,
A tragic ending.

BRIEFS

Clarence Fouche leaves for New York in a few days to take a special course for school music supervisors.

The Sunday school of the Hall Place M. E. church went to Highland Park today for its annual picnic.

Mrs. Faxon Billings and two children are spending their vacation in Danbury, New Hampshire.

Mrs. Dicey of Pope street, Montclair, is spending the month of July in St. John, New Brunswick.

The Misses Marion and Helen Browne of Elm avenue are the guests this week of friends in Billerica.

Miss Mollie G. Brown of Willow street has returned from several weeks' visit in Boothbay, Maine.

Norfo'k county probate court was held at Dedham today, and the session at Brookline July 27 will be the last until September.

Mrs. Theodore Parlee of John street, Mrs. Arthur Keeler of Tyler street, and Mrs. Agnes Kinneburg of Myrtle street are to attend the camp meeting in Douglass, this week.

Ralph P. Currier, who has been elected as master of the Sumner High school at Holbrook, will make his home in that town when the school opens.

Dr. C. J. Lynch, who is a regular attendant at the Y. M. C. A. and an enthusiastic follower of athletic events, is in Longwood this afternoon at the tennis tournament.

Several photographers from Boston papers were in City Square this morning trying to get snap shot pictures of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Boothby, whose child was chained on Tuesday and who were in court for assaulting the child.

A lawn party and festival is scheduled for Saturday afternoon and evening, to be held by the ladies of the Park and Downs Congregational church on the grounds of the old Melville estate, corner of Beach and Morton streets.

A warrant has been placed in the hands of Chief Burrell, ordering him to kill or cause to be killed all dogs not licensed and collared and to prosecute the owners of the same. The wise dog owner will therefore lose no time in having his pets licensed.

Since the reports of hold-ups have been circulated an unusual number have applied to the Mayor for permits to carry revolvers. A good many people would be much better off without a revolver in their pocket. A good pair of legs is much better in most cases.

Two carloads of happy children from the Union chapel at Houghs Neck passed through Quincy this morning on their way to Randolph grove, where they will hold their picnic. Another carload of children from an East Milton church also went to the same grove this morning.

DEATHS.

BRIEFS

Miss Edith Hoyt of Hollis avenue, who broke her leg a few weeks ago by stepping in a clam hole while bathing, is slowly improving.

S. L. Hirtle, plumber, has removed to the store recently vacated by the dry goods concern of A. G. Olney on Newport avenue, which sold out to Raymond a short time ago.

Rev. John Garland preached a powerful sermon at the Atlantic Methodist Episcopal church Sunday, on "Appreciation," taking for his text, "Say it."

ROCKLAND COURSE.

The permanency of the naval trial course off Rockland was assured Monday by the arrival at Rockland of Pickens Neagle of the navy department, who is arranging the final details for the purchase of land on which to erect four large towers to take the place of the present inadequate range marks.

Congress, at its last session passed the bill which provides for the purchase of the necessary land and it looks now as though it could be acquired without the aid of condemnatory proceedings.

BOATS NOT NAMED

Which Will Enter the Quincy Cup Races

Unless boats are named by challenging yacht clubs on or before Friday, July 22, they cannot enter the Quincy cup series which begins on Saturday.

All representatives must furnish an official certificate of measurement signed by Starling Burgess, the official measurer. These yachts have been named: The Sally XI of Corinthian Y. C., the Bonnie of Hingham Y. C., and the Harpoon of Quincy Y. C.

The Sally XI. is owned by Lawrence Percival, the Bonnie by George W. Hightman and the Harpoon by C. F. Adams 2d.

The challenging clubs which have not yet named their representatives are the Eastern Y. C., the Manchester Y. C., the Sippician Y. C., and the Beverly Y. C.

The Ellen owned by Charles P. Curtis will be the defender for the Boston Y. C.

SPORTING CHAT.

Those two games in Boston yesterday must have been the real cream. The scores of 2 to 1, and 4 to 2, certainly indicate fast baseball and the fans who took the games in were certainly in luck. It seems the Cobb outshone Speaker yesterday, the latter going the whole day without hitting, but then Cobb has off days too. That's three straight from the "Tigers."

• • •

A new secretary has been elected in the Granite City League. He should fulfill every duty of his office such as keeping the umpires posted as to where they will work and letting the treasurer know who does work, in keeping a record of every game played, of protests and postponed games and as required by the constitution of the leagues, sending full scores of all games played to the local sporting sheets for publication the day following the game. In cases where he is required to act he should do so promptly.

Quincy has beaten every team in the Old Colony league at least once, and Randolph has fallen thrice before our pennant chasers. In turn Quincy has lost to Lincoln, Dewey and Rockland.

At the Ward Three playground away out in left field there is what is called "the creek," a little stream that trickles along extending the entire length of the field. Every ball that is knocked along the third base foul line with any force at all goes into the water, and is therefore in rather poor condition. Some of them are not recovered. Couldn't the city be prevailed upon to erect a little coping along the brook about nine inches high which would effectually block the rolling balls. Failing this the energetic Ward Three fans could do so. It would save a lot of baseballs and trouble.

—Men of long experience in the newspaper business say that it is one of the most singular things connected with the work that otherwise sensible business men can be induced to invest money in the most forlorn newspaper outfit, provided a smooth talker presents the matter to them. There's a certain fascination in being "connected with a newspaper" that a good many cannot resist—and besides there's the possible big profit. Where one newspaper is a success a dozen fail. Many papers are being printed today at a loss, even right in the city of Boston.—Salem News.

WITH A LOUD NOISE

Trolley Wire on Norfolk Downs Circuit Parts

Quiet Wollaston Park had a lively fifteen minutes shortly before 5 o'clock on Tuesday afternoon when the trolley wire on the Downs circuit parted near the corner of Elm avenue and Phillips street, with a noise resembling a cannon. The heavily charged wire barely missed a group of children at play nearby, and the loud report caused the horse attached to the order wagon of a local fish market to run away, throwing out the driver. Other than a shaking up, the latter was not injured, and horse and wagon were finally captured without further injury. The repair car was soon on the scene, and service was resumed a short time after.

DROWNED AT NANTASKET.

While bathing at Surfside, Nantasket, on Tuesday afternoon, Richard J. Smith of South Weymouth was caught in the undertow and drowned. Late in the afternoon the body was washed ashore. Mr. Smith was 42 years of age and a postal clerk at the Dorchester station.

THE HAY CROP.

Bulletin No. 134 of the Massachusetts Agricultural Experiment Station should be in the hands of all those interested in the production of hay. This bulletin contains three papers by Professor Brooks ,written originally for the Crop Reports of the State Board of Agriculture, on the following subjects: "The Hay Crop," "The Management of Mowings," and "Clovers." The first paper discusses the position and importance of the hay crop in Massachusetts, and shows that average yields are far below what they should be. It presents the results of numerous experiments and makes suggestions as to methods of seeding and the use of manures and fertilizers, both in preparation for the crop and for top-dressing.

On Nagging.

My son taught me a lesson on the subject of "nagging" when he was but four years old and one that I have never forgotten. He had been guilty of a small misdemeanor and had tried to wriggle out of it by not telling the exact truth. I gave him a mild spanking and, as has always been my custom, talked the matter over afterward. I began by saying, "Now, Robert, if you had told me the truth I should not have punished you."

He stood before me, scraping one foot along the carpet, and he looked up at me and said, "What would you have done?" And I answered, "I should have only talked to you." "Well," he drawled, "how long would you have talked?"

He is a big boy in high school now, but when times arise requiring a reprimand and I get started I still hear that little voice, "How long would you have talked?" and I go right to the point and say what I have to say on the subject; but, in the boy's own language, I "cut it short" and never refer to it again unless it is absolutely necessary.—Harper's Bazar.

Killing a Bull Without a Weapon.

Cayetano, a famous Spanish toreador, once was strolling across a meadow with a couple of friends when his attention was attracted by an old and infuriated bull which was galloping toward them with lowered head and erect tail. Cayetano had no weapon, not even a cane, but he seized a dust coat which one of his friends was carrying over his arm. As soon as the bull got close to them Cayetano bade his companions make their escape while he engaged the animal's attention. Using the coat as a capa, he drove the bull crazy with fury, stepping aside with the deftest agility at each of the animal's charges. In this manner he caused the bull to turn sharply in the midst of its onward rushes until finally an ominous crack was heard, and the bull fell in a heap, with its backbone broken by the sudden wrench given by the animal's abrupt swerve.

MANY WANT TO FIGHT JOHNSON

Champion Being Swamped With Challenges From Unknowns.

WILL HE MEET LANGFORD?

Critics Believe Boston Negro Is Only One Who Has Chance to Beat Title Holder—Two College Athletes After Colored Man.

By TOMMY CLARK.

As was to be expected, new pugilistic phenomenons are popping up all over the country and hurling challenges at Jack Johnson right and left since he defeated Jeff. Some of them have done but little boxing, but figure that owing to their great strength and build they would be a match for the colored man. Of course no one who knows anything about boxing will consider for one minute that Johnson will pay any heed to the challenges of these fellows.

Two college athletes, one from the University of Michigan, the other of Harvard, are among the white men who have hopes of winning back the heavyweight boxing title for the white race.

These men are Albert Benbrook of the Michigan college and Earl Van Meter Long, who has been a student at the Cambridge seat of learning for two years.

Among the bunch of ambitious men who are willing to risk their future health in a battle with Johnson are Frank Smith, the Chicago White Sox pitcher, and Larry McLean, the Cincinnati catcher. These men are on record as being willing to fight the champion. They are fine athletes and somewhat buggy on the boxing game. Playing baseball is one branch of sport, fighting another, and these two fellows had better stick to their chosen profession.

Looking over the long list of men who desire to oppose Johnson in the ring, he finds that there are only two who stand any chance of getting on a match with the champion, and they are Sam Langford and Al Kaufman. There are many experts who believe that the former would stand an excellent chance of defeating Johnson should the pair ever meet. In fact, he is the only man at this moment who is fitted physically and scientifically to meet the champion in a twenty-four foot ring. Langford is conceded to be the most formidable hitter and quickest finisher known to the ring since Robert Fitzsimmons' freckled mauleys became so brittle he was afraid to take a punch at even an inflated bag.

Although Langford would concede forty pounds in weight and almost five inches in height, which would seem to be an insurmountable handicap, yet he is willing to go into the ring with the big Galveston fighter. As Johnson also would have a great advantage in reach and Langford is not proof against a left hand jab, it can be seen that the smaller man would be likely to receive a terrific punching before he would be able to get to close quarters and turn loose his own Queensberry artillery. But Samuel is confident that if he ever got close enough to land one of his catapultic punches on Johnson the title would change hands in a hurry.

Kaufman's chances of defeating Johnson are very slim. At the training camp Johnson just played with Al. In fact, he could put Kaufman away any time he chose to. As far as Benbrook, Long, McLean and Smith are concerned, they have very little chance, if any, of getting a match or of beating Johnson if they do. If Langford cannot turn the trick Johnson will remain champion for many years to come.

COMMITTEE APPOINTED ON TRAIN SERVICE

Many Complaints Voiced at the Mass Meeting Against the New Schedule

Not Confined to Any Particular Station

As a result of the mass meeting of Wednesday evening, at Alpha hall, a committee of 13 will endeavor to get better train service for all the Quincy stations of the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. The meeting was held under the auspices of the Board of Trade, and President Eugene R. Stone presided. Ex-Representative Frank E. Badger was elected secretary.

Chairman Stone in opening reviewed the situation at length. He said that a few years ago Quincy had more trains to and from Boston than today. The dissatisfaction now, however, was not so much in the number of trains as in the schedule. The Boston Gear Works and other large employers of labor complained because their men were not accommodated in getting to and from work. There was need of a midnight train from Boston. We are not here to fight the railroad, but to find out the needs, and then ask the railroad to improve the service.

J. B. Keefe, a Boston letter carrier, said all carriers must report at 6.45 A. M. That for years there was a train from Quincy at 6.12 which arrived at 6.33 and allowed twelve minutes. Now the train at 6.21 arrived at 6.38 or later and was too late, so that it was necessary to use the 5.14 train.

W. P. Chase of Wollaston had a simlar grievance as he was required to report at 6.45 A. M.

Frank E. Badger of Atlantic said he had in his pocket a petition signed by nearly 100, who remonstrated because South Boston had been cut out of the schedule. Many Quincy people worked in the vicinity of the South Boston station ,and it took them longer to get to their work.

Chairman Stone said Quincy was one of the best paying stations on the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R., and fares were high. For these reasons it was entitled to better train service. Railroad was going back instead of going ahead. Would go first to railroad, and if necessary to Railroad Commissioners.

W. S. Hamlin thought the railroad discriminated in favor of South Shore travel. That many of the expresses which went through Quincy without stopping were often half filled. Real estate interest in Quincy demanded better service.

John L. Miller, the chairman of the School Committee, thought Quincy Adams, the worst hit of all. It had lost nine trains from the winter schedule when it should have more. Before the change there were 29 outward where now there were but 23. Formerly there were 27 inward, now 24..

Slower local trains had taken the place of quick trains. There were not enough trains to Boston between 7 and 10 A. M. If one wanted to go to the theatre in Boston he must take the 5.56 train for the 7.28 was too late. Ladies had lost a popular train about 1 P. M. The Granite Manufacturers' Association had passed a vote demanding better service or return to the old schedule. Was sorry old schedule was changed.

Ex-Councilman H. Everett Crane said Mr. Miller had neglected to tell how long it took Quincy Adams trains to get to Boston—35 to 40 minutes if they had good luck. Was greatly inconvenienced. Recently we have tried to boom city but railroad seems to be right against us. He had heard that railroad had taken $1,200 on a single Saturday at Quincy station, which was big patronage.

Ex-Councilman Andrew Milne also regretted the loss of so many quick trains at Quincy Adams.

A. L. Whitman said he liked the old schedule best. He cited cases of slow transit. About time for city to wake up and get better service.

Charles J. Axburg said schedule was changed to increase profits of railroad. We should protest vigorously for better service.

Councilman C. A. Ericson said better service was needed between Quincy and South Braintree and Brockton.

Chairman Stone said there was need in Quincy of united action, and criticised the lack of general interest in public affairs.

Archie Thayer, who had addressed an outdoor gathering in City Square, said the reason why we did not have better service was because we do not send the right men to the Legislature. He was surprised that we should have to beg for good service. People should demand it. The single fare of fifteen cents to Boston was too high.

A. R. Blades did not think we should ask better service as a favor, but should demand it. Our legislators and the Mayor should secure better service for us.

A. L. Whitman moved a committee of five.

H. L. Kincaide favored the apointment of a committee of two from each ward. He characterized the train service as "rotten," and would have the hearing held in Quincy rather than Boston.

Mr. Milne believed West Quincy wanted to be left out, as it had better service.

John Kane, however, objected. He said there were not cars enough on the West Quincy trains, and that generally he had to stand. Objected also because South Boston was cut out, as it now costs more to get to work.

Voted that a committee of two from each ward be appointed.

Nominations were made from the floor and the committee includes:

Ward one,—H. L. Kincaide and H. E. Crane.

Ward Two,—T. J. Collins and F. H. Smith.

Ward Three,—John R. Richards, R. E. Foy and E. W. Connors.

Ward Four,—E. J. Sandberg and James F. Burke.

Ward Five,—Arthur Murphy and Charles M. Bryant.

Ward Six,—George K. Snow and Frank E. Badger.

The committee was authorized to elect substitutes. Voted that a meeting of committee be held Friday evening at rooms of Board of Trade.

A committee of five from the Board of Trade ,and three from the Granite Manufacturers' Association ,will probably cooperate with this committee.

The committee from the Board of Trade includes: Eugene R. Stone, T. L. Williams, W. A. Hamlin, Frank Burgess, W. H. Teasdale, W. E. Piper, and Charles C. Foster. The committee from the Granite Manufacturers' association is as follows: John L. Miller, Andrew Milne and Henry McGrath.

—Some of the western railroads will use wireless so that trains can be run in all kinds of weather.

CUP RACES OF THE PAST

Challengers Have Won Four Out of Eight

Another series of races for the Quincy cup will begin on Saturady in Hull bay and will probably be continued the most of next week as three victories by one boat are necessary to win, and there are eight entries.

Five races were necessary in 1909 to decide the best yacht entered. In the first four the Ellen and the Wolf, representing the Boston and the Eastern clubs, each won two, and then the Ellen had almost a walkover.

The cup was offered by the Quincy Yacht club in 1898 as a perpetual challenge trophy open to all clubs to be raced for by boats not exceeding 21 feet waterline.

Eight series of races have now been held for the Quincy cup. Four times the cup has been successfully defended by its possessors, while four times challenging yachts have won. In turn it has been in the possession of the Quincy, the Manchester, the Corinthian, the Quincy and the Boston clubs, as will be seen by the cup record which follows:

WEST QUINCY PICNIC

Sunday School Enjoy Day at Highland Park

The annual picnic of the Hall Place Methodist Episcopal Sunday school was held Wednesday at Highland Park. A special car conveyed the people from the West Quincy depot to the Park, leaving West Quincy at 9.10 and making the run in about an hour and three quarters.

Upon arrival at the Park a picture was taken of the entire Sunday school, after which the people dispersed to various parts of the park until dinner.

At two o'clock races and athletic sports were held for the boys and girls in the lower field, two prizes being awarded for each event.

Some of the members of the Sunday school took a trip in the balloon which made the first ascent about 2.30 P. M.

At 4 P. M. members of the Sunday school, both young and old were given two free rides on the roller coasters and a free ride on the merry-go-rounds, which were much enjoyed.

Not the least of the fun makers was a mirror, which when approached immediately flattened out the approacher to less than one-half of his normal height at the same time greatly increasing his width, making him look almost round, and a great deal of time was passed in posing before this mirror. The one enjoyed by stout people however, was so arranged that upon approach to it the person's height was increased while the width was decreased. Both mirrors created a great deal of fun and merriment.

The car left the park on the return trip at 6 P. M. During the home ride the crowd kept up an almost incessant noise, cheering, singing hymns as well as many other popular songs, enjoying it as only happy picnickers know how. The trip was made in about two hours, the car arriving in West Quincy about 8 o'clock, with a tired but very happy lot of passengers, all enthusiastic in their praise of Highland Park and the generous treatment of the company.

—Forty-seven million dollars will be spent for ne wsubways in New York.

MAYOR ONE OF PALL BEARERS

At Funeral This Morning of William Harkins, the Contracting Mason

Floral Tributes Make a Beautiful Display

The funeral of William Harkins, for many years one of Quincy's well known business men, was held this morning from his late residence on Goffe street, and was followed by services at 10 oclock at St. John's church. A solemn high mass of requiem was celebrated with Rev. Howland J. Harkins of Amesbury ,a nephew of the deceased as celebrant; Rev. John J. O'Donnell of Abington, a classmate at the Holy Cross college of Dr. John F. Harkins, as deacon; Rev. John J. Casey ,as subdeacon and Rev. John J. Coan, as master of ceremonies.

The Gregorian mass was sung by the regular choir under the direction of John Mahan organist. At the offertory Miss Mary McConarty sang "Pie Jesu," and after the absolution service Dr. Daniel B. Reardon sang "Tremens Factus" from the "Dies Irae."

The remains were encased in a solid mahogany casket and there was a wealth of beautiful flowers from the family and friends.

The burial was at Randolph where prayers were said at grave by Rev. William T. Deasey, Rev. John J. O'Donnell and Rev. Howland J. Harkins.

The bearers were Hon. William T. Shea, John W. McAnarney, James F. Burke, Charles C. Hearn, Edward J. Murphy and Thomas H. McDonnell.

FUNERAL OF THOMAS MAGEE.

The funeral of Thomas Magee was held Wednesday afternoon from his late residence, Merrymount road, and was attended by many relatives and friends. The services were simple in accordance with the wish of the family, and were conducted by Rev. C. L. Paddock, who spoke briefly of the army record of the deceased, who had reached the ripe old age of four score years and five. The burial was at Mt. Wollaston cemetery ,and was private, brief prayers being said at the grave by Rev. Mr. Paddock. There were many beautiful flowers sent by loving friends, which almost hid the casket from view.

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

Most of our plutocrats are convinced that honesty is the best policy, although they have never tried it.

"Why do women not borrow money from one another?" inquires a writer of feminine persuasion. Every husband has his suspicions, of course.

While a St. Louis surgeon was operating for appendicitis the other day, a thief robbed him of $50. This probably cost the patient an extra $75.

Roosevelt says he cannot talk for two months. Strange, most everyone has the opinion that he could talk for a year and not be seriously inconvenienced.

A blind man in Kansas City, Kansas, announces his candidacy for Representative. Senator Gore, of Oklahoma, is such a big success that blind candidates are likely to become popular everywhere.

Although a majority of the City Council voted in favor of the $48,000 loan order to install water meters throughout the city, the minority seem to have the best of the argument, and the Daily Ledger is pleased that the order did not receive the necessary number of votes. An appropriation of $48,000 on a 30-year loan meant a larger sum for interest, or over $100,000 for meters, in addition to what has already been expended. The contention of the Daily Ledger, that the installation of meters would not decrease the Metropolitan assessments upon the city, is well borne out by the Boston Transcript, under date of July 20. After giving figures showing a big reduction in the consumption of water in the district in June, 1910, as compared with June, 1909, in which Quincy did its share (a reduction from 3,043,700 gallons per day to 2,979,500 gallons) the Transcript says:

"This large saving of water, brought about by the exercise of more care by householders and others after the installation of meters, would seem to promise that water will be considerably cheaper to consumers, but there is little probability of a marked decrease in the cost to the present generation; in fact the saving of water that is being made in Boston is likely to result in an increase of the rates elsewhere, and communities which have been careful in the consumption of water and which have used meters, instead of being rewarded for their care by lower cost, will probably have to pay more.

"This situation comes about from the fact that the cost of the metropolitan water system is very largely in interest and sinking fund requirements, which will be diminished very little for some years to come. The total cost last year was $2,360,746.28 and the fixed charges for interest and sinking fund amounted to over 80 per cent. The interest charge was $1,395,403.49 and that for sinking fund, $520,331.43. Until it is possible to make a substantial reduction in the water debt therefore, little saving can be made in this direction. The only possible saving is in maintenance, and with the immense system to be kept up there will not be any very material change in the cost of maintenance for some years.

"The result is that with two-thirds of the cost of the system apportioned according to consumption and one-third according to valuation and the cost remaining approximately the same, the charge upon Boston will decrease and that upon the other cities and towns in the district will increase."

The Daily Ledger maintains that the basis of the apportionment of assessments upon cities is entirely wrong. That the whole, or at least 80 per cent, should be based upon the valuation of cities. Then the rich cities would pay according to their wealth, whereas now they are favored.

DRIFT OF OPINION.

To point out the inconsistency that prevails in objecting to one line of moving pictures in the interest of the public morals while ignoring the demoralizing effects of others, a newspaper writer tells of seeing portrayed at one moving picture show in New York bloody murders, sudden deaths, suicides, and other morbid spectacles whose harmful effect upon the many young people in the audience could hardly be doubted. One realistic presentation was of the distressing death of an old woman in dire poverty and the recourse of her daughter to drink to cover her want and misery. Another series of pictures revealed all the details of preparation for death by gas asphyxiation, including the plugging of cracks and keyholes with paper and other too-enlightening details of an undesirable object lesson. Certainly the moving-picture show business needs more supervision. But that such objectionable aspects of it as are here pointed out do actually exist cannot properly be used as a plea for no interference in the introduction of other objectionable features.—New Bedford Standard.

But, my friends, there is no man in this country whom we cannot dispense with almost without missing him, not one. On the other hand, and in contrast, there isn't one of these great safeguards of life, liberty, property and freedom written into the fundamental instruments of government in this country that we can dispense with and still preserve our liberty and our freedom, that is to say, still preserve our free government, and that again is to say our government of laws as distinguished from a government of men.—Mayor Gaynor of New York.

ALLIANCE IS URGED WITH UNITED STATES

Chinese Press Sees Violation of the "Open Door" Principle

Pekin, July 21.—Announcing an early reply to Japan and Russia, the semi-official press states that China will protest against the new combination of these two powers as endangering not only the rights of China, but the equal opportunity rights of the other powers, guaranteed to them by China's treaties.

With significant unanimity the leading papers pronounce the new agreement to be manifestly aimed against America and Germany, as well as against China.

They assert that Great Britain promoted it for the purpose of halting the American advance in Manchuria, and forming practically a quadruple alliance against Germany in Asia and Europe. They argue that China's only hope lies in the closest relations—an alliance if possible—with America and Germany.

They charge that Japan's action is a wilful violation of the provisions of the secret protocol whereby Japan is pledged not to negotiate with Russia relative to railways without first consulting China and inviting China's participation in the negotiations.

COULD NOT HAVE SET FIRE

Man Accused of Incendiarism Was Out of the City

Chelsea, Mass., July 21.—Fred Merchant, the former Salem police officer, who had been arrested on a charge of arson, was discharged by Justice Cutler.

The government failed to show that Merchant had any connection with the fire he was charged with setting. The defense showed to the satisfaction of the court that on the morning of the fire Merchant was not in Chelsea and had not been for several hours previous.

Crushed to Death by Stone

Rutland, Vt., July 21.—Buried beneath twenty-five tons of marble and dirt, which slid down upon him while he was running a drill in a pit in a West Rutland marble quarry, Ira Baker, aged 19, was instantly killed.

Flour Blamed For Appendicitis

London, July 21.—Sir Lauder Brunton, speaking at a health congress at Birkenhead, expressed the opinion that the prevalence of appendicitis coincided with the alteration in the method of grinding wheat.

—If every state in the Union except Nevada refuses to allow a prize fight within its borders, will it not be a reflection upon all the states—save that one so redolent of easy-divorce and easy morals—to allow reproductions of the Johnson-Jeffries fisticuffs to be shown in the moving picture houses? It's bad enough for the newspapers generally to have been helping in the development of a depraved taste without carrying the sentiment further, especially when the police power has the remedy at its disposal.—Spencer Leader.

Children Cry
FOR FLETCHER'S
CASTORIA

SOME YELLOW ORCHIDS.

The story begins in the coffee room of the Westbeach hotel, where Gen. Vandall, late commanding the Third Chowringhee Chargers, now retired vice Featherleigh, his senior major, sat at breakfast with his son Peltoe, who had recently quitted Cambridge, and was reading for the bar. A greater contrast than that presented by the fine old Indian warrior and his son and only child cannot be imagined. For the general was over six feet in height, broad-chested and stalwart; Peltoe was pale, five feet six, narrow chested and with sloping shoulders of the champagne bottle type. Even in their appetites the father and son were dissimilar, for, while Peltoe toyed languidly with an egg and muffin, the general had disposed of three broiled kidneys ,and now, having poured out his third cup of coffee, he was vigorously spreading marmalade on toast.

"This sea air gives a deuce of an appetite," he observed, as he encountered his son's pale-gray eye.

"You had one when you came down," Peltoe observed. "I don't remark any difference."

"No? By the way, you don't seem to get on, my dear fellow, "said the general. "Perhaps I ordered things you don't much fancy. When you and I have seen a little more of each other, we shall fit in better don't you know. At present I'm rather out," He put up his eyeglass. "God bless me, my boy! I wish I knew whom you were like! Nobody in my family nobody on your mother's side that I can call to mind . . I wish I had seen a little more of you when you were a boy."

"You wouldn't have liked it," said Peltoe.

The General felt that there might be some truth in the remark.

"Perhaps no—perhaps not!" He lighted a huge Partaga and took up the paper which the waiter had just placed at his side.

"'List of arrivals,'" he quoted. "The hotel seems uncommonly full. 'Sir Frederick Ouswill, K. C. S. I., and the Misses Ouswill'—I knew the old man when he was Commissioner for Mandalay. As for those girls, the youngest is forty, and they've trotted round the globe since they were in their teens, looking for husbands. 'Judge Cobley'— if that's the Poona man who pronounced his own decree nisi in '98, in the absence of the regular divorce court judge, shall not be surprised. The world's uncommonly small. 'Hugoson—Mrs. Hugoson and Miss Sylvia Hugoson.' Now there is another name I have reason to know, and, upon my word . . . . My dear Mrs. Hugoson ,is it really you?"

And the General sprang up as briskly as a boy, as a fair, handsome, high-bred looking woman in black accompanied by a pretty brown-haired, hazel-eyed girl of seventeen, rose to leave a neighboring table.

"Major Vandall!', Mrs. Hugoson cried giving the old warrior both her white, jeweled hands to shake and shake again. "General now. How stupid of me not to remember! And how nice of you to know me at once —after all these years!"

"Should have known you anywhere. By George, it's not possible to mistake you! Why, your walk would distinguish you among a million women," the General declared. "And is this tall young lady really the baby I used to know?"

"Sylvia, "said her mother ,as the girl lifted her hazel eyes demurely dimpled in a smile; "actually Sylvia, whom you used to pet as a twelve-months old tot, grown up and as tall as her mother."

"Should say it was incredible if I hadn't a card of the same sort in my own hand."

Peltoe got up as his father beckoned, and went through the ceremony of introduction with lanquid composure ,nodding elegantly to either lady and saying, "How d'ye do?"

"He looks pale." Mrs. Hugoson turned a maternal glance upon the pasty features of the young man. "You are here for the sake of his health?"

"Upon my word," admitted the General, "I believe we are here for the sake of mine! Eh, my boy?"

Peltoe nodded. "Liver and other Anglo-Indian things," he explained, indicating his parent; "though you would hardly think it to look at the pater."

"I certainly should not," said Mrs. Hugoson, warmly. Then she mentioned that she was going for a walk upon the pier, and the two ladies went away to put on their hats, while the General and Peltoe waited in the vestibule.

"Nice sort of a woman, rather," observed Peltoe, as he lighted a cigarette.

"Charming!" The General uttered the word emphatically as he nipped the end off a fresh cigar.

"Must have been a pretty girl—What?" said Peltoe.

"A lovely girl!" acquiesced the general. "I met her at Simla," he said reflectively, "sixteen years ago. She had been married about three years to Hugoson ,of the Bays. Haw!—hum!" He coughed and twisted the great moustache.

"Hugoson was, between ourselves, rather a bad hat. Played high, drank hard made love to other women and neglected his wife. She was very much admired ,and under such circumstances another sort of girl might have kicked over the traces. She kept straight." His keen eyes shone with a softened light, he heaved a broad-chested sigh and bit hard on his Partaga. "She was a woman to live for and die for."

"Sixteen years ago," said Peltoe, with a cool little sneer.

"Sixteen years ago!" said the General. "Bless me, it seems like yesterday! And here she comes with her hat on. The only woman I ever met who could put on a hat in less than three-quarters of an hour!"

A week or two slipped away, and Gen. Vandall and his son were much in the society of Mrs. Hugoson and her pretty daughter. They sailed in the bay ,they drove to various points of interest in the neighborhood, they perambulated in the Esplanade and patrolled the pier to the music of the local band, whose strictly classical programme caused Peltoe intense if hidden suffering, which Miss Sylvia Hugoson, walking demurely by his side, detected and delighted in.

"He is such a limp young man, ,mammy!" she said to her mother. "And the more he sucks his umbrella handle the limper he seems to grow. Can he be the dear old general's son really ,or was he changed at a kindergarten by mistake? There must be something wrong somewhere."

"He is like his mother, dear," returned Mrs. Hugoson quietly. "She was a whity-brown kind of woman, I remember, who had no opinions—except about other women and servants. And he has lived with relatives in England all his life, and seen comparatively nothing of his father, who is really not a 'dear old' man, darling. Why, he cannot be more than fifty-six!"

Sylvia had her own opinion as to the amount of veneration due to the age of fifty-six, though she said nothing but—

"Was he very handsome, Mammy, when you knew him years ago?"

"I thought him old, then," said Mrs. Hugoson, laughing; "for I was a mere chit, and he was forty. But he was then as now, a magnificent specimen of manhood."

"And Peltoe looks as though he had been grown in a cellar and fed on silk-worms," said Sylvia, with a little grimace; "and when we were walking on the cliffs yesterday, and the General jumped over that high stile and then offered you his hand, Peltoe climbed over very carefully and then sat down with his back to me. 'Thought I'd give you a lead,' he said. And when we met some cows on the way up to the Flagstaff, he turned pale, or, at least, pasty, and changed sides, I verily believe, just to get me between him and the poor, harmless old crumples."

"He is a modern young man, darling, of the studious, unathletic kind. And all men can't be soldiers. And his father is devoted to him. He tells me that he has a genius for jurisprudence and will do wonders at the bar. And—Sylvia, I should like you to be kind and nice to him, for the general's sake."

And Mrs. Hugoson sighed a little and smiled a little, for the general's desire that Peltoe should find favor in the eyes of Sylvia was to her a sign that nothing remained of the romance of old but a pleasant memory; while at that moment the general was saying:

"I wish, my dear fellow, that you would manage to look a little more alive when you're in the society of that charming girl! A dead cod on a fishmonger's slab, I give you my word, couldn't convey a plainer idea of absolute apathy!"

"Why, hang it, pater!" Peltoe protested, "what do you want me to do? Men don't ogle women and strike attitudes as they did in the era of Beau What's-his-name. And in these days of tennis and golf and bicyclin', girls have got to be independent. They resent bein' treated like babies or sacks of sawdust. They're proud of looking after themselves ,and holding their own with the men—and all that sort of thing."

"Confound it!" shouted the general; "it is not a question of bodily inferiority, sir! It's a question of chivalry, of manners, of politeness, of—of decency! As for holding her own with you, Miss Sylvia could outride you, out-run you, outjump you, outwalk you, and outswim you without turning a hair. I'm sorry to say it, my dear fello——"

"Don't mind me!" said Peltoe. "Miss Sylvia is quite welcome. I don't trade on my muscles," he added, ending with his pale smile——"This is the Age of Brains, not the Age of Brawn."

"Nor shall it be the Age of Incivility," said the general rather grimly, "as long as I am here to enforce my views upon the question of due courtesy to ladies; not by argumentum

LASHED WHITE WOMEN WITH LEATHER BELT

How Negro Leader of New Sect Dealt With His Followers

Washington, July 21.—Washington police have begun a searching investigation into a new religious sect, following revelations made by white women, who, it is alleged, have been blindly obeying the commands of Jonah S. Sturdivant, a negro preacher.

The women now declare that the negro not only taught his followers to fast, but that he beat them with a leather belt in a religious frenzy.

The investigation thus far shows that the negro, who is now serving a prison sentence in Baltimore for bigamy, is wanted by the police of New York and Philadelphia.

Two girls are now said to be at the point of death as a result of fasting and scourging their bodies in the belief that God would open the prison doors for the negro preacher.

SHOWS LOSS OF MEMORY

Friends of Jeffries Say He Has Lately Become a Pitiful Sight

San Francisco, July 21.—Some curious information about Jeffries comes from Burbank, near which town the defeated pugilist lives on his alfalfa ranch. One letter says:

"Although I have been with Jeffries every day since he returned, I can't figure out just what's the matter with him, but the fact remains that he has aged ten years since you and I saw him last at Rowardennan, and he surely is a pitiful sight now.

"He is stoop-shouldered and has a far-away look in his eyes that reminds me of a person whose mind is not altogether sound. He droops his head and rambles in his talk like a 10-year-old child."

Others who have seen Jeff lately say he shows loss of memory and goes around humped over like an old man, paying no attention to what is said in his presence.

EXILED FROM WASHINGTON

Penalty Imposed Upon Three High Officers of Marine Corps

Washington, July 21.—Most of the officers of the marine corps who were recently reprimanded for various offenses prejudicial to discipline will be punished by exile from Washington, the headquarters, and the post most coveted in the service.

Colonel Laucheimer, headquarters adjutant and inspector, who requested the appointment of the court of inquiry, has been ordered to the Philippines. Colonel Denny, headquarters quartermaster, one of the candidates for the position of commandant of the corps upon the retirement of General George F. Elliott in October, is ordered to San Francisco for duty. Colonel Doyen is detached from duty at the marine barracks at Annapolis and ordered to the Bremerton navy yard in Washington.

FALLS BLAZING TO GROUND

Aeroplane Struck by Lightning, but Aviator Escapes Injury

Barcelona, July 21.—While he was making a cross country flight Aviator Ehrmann's aeroplane was struck by lightning and fell blazing to the ground. The aviator escaped uninjured.

There has never been a more startling aerial exhibition than that which Ehrmann unwillingly afforded, and those who witnessed it could hardly believe their eyes when the airman emerged from the singed framework none the worse for his experience.

He was sailing along at a moderate height when he got in the path of a sky bolt. Instantly the aeroplane was enveloped in flames, its canvas wings shrivelled up and, clinging to the skeleton of his craft, Ehrmann came down with a thud.

GAEKWAR'S WIFE AMAZED

Has Something to Say of "Ignorance" of American Women

London, July 21.—The Gaekwar and Maharanee of Baroda arrived on the Mauretania from New York and are now in London. The Maharanee said:

"I thought American women were well educated and intelligent, yet they asked me the most ridiculous questions in New York. They wanted to know whether I was an East Indian or West Indian, or perhaps American Indian, and they inquired whether Baroda was in Bombay or Bombay in Baroda. Such ignorance amazed me."

Park Closed to Sleepers

Bayonne, N. J., July 21.—Because several church members complained that young women of prominent families had been sleeping in the city park here during the hot wave, the park has been closed to all outdoor sleepers by order of the chief of police.

Danderine
Grows Hair
and we can
PROVE IT!

DANDERINE is to the hair what fresh showers of rain and sunshine are to vegetation. It goes right to the roots, invigorates and strengthens them. Its exhilarating, stimulating and life-producing properties cause the hair to grow abundantly long, strong and beautiful. It at once imparts a sparkling brilliancy and velvety softness to the hair, and a few weeks' use will cause new hair to sprout all over the scalp. Use it every day for a short time, after which two or three times a week will be sufficient to complete whatever growth you desire.

A lady from St. Paul writes in substance, as follows:
"When I began using Danderine my hair would not come to my shoulders and now it is away below my hips."
Another from Newark, N. J.
"I have been using Danderine regularly. When I first started to use it I had very little hair, now I have the most beautiful long and thick hair anyone would want to have."

NOW at all druggists in three sizes 25c, 50c and $1.00 per bottle

Danderine enjoys a greater sale than any other one preparation regardless of kind or brand, and it has a much greater sale than all of the other hair preparations in the world combined.

Cut This Out
FREE To show how quickly Danderine acts, we will send a large sample free by return mail to anyone who sends this free coupon to the KNOWLTON DANDERINE CO., CHICAGO, ILL., with their name and address and 10c in silver or stamps to pay postage.

CHICAGO WOMAN EDUCATORS' PRIDE

Mrs. Young's Handling of City's Schools Praised.

RECEIVES A $10,000 SALARY

Defeated Six Male Candidates For Position, Then Amputated Curriculums of Fads and Runs Big System on Common Sense, With the Old Log Schoolhouse as Starting Point.

Chicago's public school system is coming in for pretty close attention just now, and all because for the first time in its history a woman is running it. That woman is Dr. Ella Flagg Young, who was elected president of the National Educational association in Boston the other day.

There are other woman Ph. D.'s in this country, but Mrs. Young is the first woman chosen to run the public school system of a big city, a job requiring no end of executive ability. Chicago's school population is only second in size to New York's, and Mrs. Young wields authority over thousands and thousands of children and hundreds of teachers.

Receives $10,000 Salary.

Mrs. Young gets a salary of $10,000 a year and hence is one of the highest paid woman workers in this country. She is sixty-four and began to teach when she was sixteen. She has been a widow twenty-five years. The University of Chicago gave Mrs. Young her Ph. D. several years ago when she was already looked upon as being in the front rank of educators.

Although she was born in New York state, Mrs. Young has lived in Chicago practically all her life, has been principal of its normal school and a professor in the University of Chicago. She is editor of the Educational Bimonthly and a member of the Chicago Woman's club and the Everyday club. So much do they think of Mrs. Young that they have the Ella F. Young club in Chicago made up of woman principals in the schools.

MRS. ELLA FLAGG YOUNG.

Defeated Six Men.

Mrs. Young defeated six men for the position she now holds. It was said that she won over the board of education in her favor by sheer force of her personality.

Mrs. Young believes in cutting out some of the fads. At the time of her election she was quoted as saying:

"The time has come to put a check on the fads and to ask ourselves which of them are really useful. We must not confuse the real purposes of teaching by too many trimmings. Much that was good was added to the old log schoolhouse curriculum, but much that was useless was added also."

A radical change in the study of German in the Chicago public schools, which involves the elimination of Gothic type and German script, is under consideration by Mrs. Young in connection with the revision of the course of study now under way.

Two reasons are given by Mrs. Young for her desire to use Roman type and English script in place of the German characters. She claims that Gothic type and German script are harder on the eyes than the type and script used by English speaking people and that pupils who attempt to learn both the English and German script usually are poor penmen in both languages.

Noted Relics For Mexican College.

The magnificent marble pillars, statuary and carved work that belong to the old San Augustin convent have just been acquired by the Mexican department of public instruction with the interior decorations of the National university. Most of these will be used in remodeling the interior of the aula magna, or general lecture hall of the university.

Chinese Exports Heavy.

From Hankow there were invoiced to the United States during the first three months of 1910 Chinese articles to the value of nearly $1,000,000, mainly cowhides, $327,557; goatskins, $306,220; wood oil, $215,590; antimony, $19,814; frozen eggs, $31,085; gallnuts, $9,238.

COUNTRY HOUSE MENUS

The building up of a menu, always an art, is never more so than in summer, when other senses must be consulted, appealed to and refreshed in addition to that of the palate.

The modern housekeeper is becoming a past mistress in the art of preparing cool or cold dishes which take the place of the hot ones without any loss of taste, and even sometimes with an improvement of flavor.

What more charming home dinner or hospitality, for instance, than a country house table, with its airiness, the fresh green beyond the windows, the scented breezes fanning the diners, and a menu like the following:

Jellied soup, salmon mayonnaise, sweet-bread croquettes, orange ice, squabs with corn fritters and lettuce, frozen peaches, cake, coffee.

The jellied soup item may be somewhat puzzling to the housekeeper who hears of it for the first time, yet it is extremely simple to prepare and is tasty enough to be worth the slight extra trouble. Use either a well-made home consomme or the canned soup, (with a dash of sherry added afterward or any flavor desired.) To either of these add just enough powdered gelatin to make it jelly a little, according to the amount in hand, following the rule on the package. Cool, place in cracked ice until serving time, and serve in boullion cups. With it pass tiny crisp crackers or wee sandwiches of graham or whole wheat bread.

The salmon given in this menu is the fresh fish boiled whole, chilled and served with mayonnaise. With it pass sliced cucumbers.

Let the orange ice come to the table in halves of orange skins and with the squabs serve lettuce, Boston or escarole, with French or cream dressing.

Another cool and tasty combination would be stuffed melons, fish souffle, cold roast chicken, potatoes, asparagus, frozen tomato salad, President's custard, cake, iced tea or hot coffee.

For the stuffed melons choose those of rather small size and cut in half. Carefully remove seeds and fibre, but not the pulp. Fill each half with the usual diced fruit mixture and decorate with a few red berries or cherries.

Another way to stuff the melon is to fill up the hollows in the smaller halves with large dice of pulp cut out from larger fruit and serve with a dash of sherry, or plain.

For the fish souffle pick over the cold boiled fish and heat it with a small cup of rich cream sauce to one of fish. Simmer together a moment, and add the beaten yolks of three eggs. The mixture is then replaced on the fire for two minutes longer and cooled. Beat the whites stiff, fold into the cream fish, and bake forty minutes. It must be timed carefully, as it cannot stand even a short time without spoiling.

The tomato salad is most delicious and will be new on many tables. Extract the juice from fresh tomatoes which have been chopped, or drain off the liquor from the tinned vegetable, if need be, to the amount of a quart. Add five heaping tablespoonfuls of granulated gelatin, two teaspoonfuls of salt, one-half teaspoonful paprika. Lastly add a half cupful of freshly grated horseradish, (this last may be omitted if preferred where the flavor is not liked.) Fill small moulds, place in a lard tin, and bury in ice and salt for five or six hours. Unmold each shape just before serving time on a nest of chickory leaves, and pass with this a bowl of rich mayonnaise into which an equal amount of stiffly whipped cream has been stirred.

Pit large sweet cherries and roll them in powered sugar till they will take up no more. Make a custard by adding eight lightly beaten egg yolks to one and a half pints of boiling cream, which has been sweetened with one cup of sugar. Stir till it becomes thick. Flavor delicately with rose-water, and just before serving lightly mix the fruit through it. Serve in grapefruit glasses.

Simple, too, but refreshing with its scattering of dishes hot and cold would be a little dinner or luncheon planned somewhat like this:

Shredded pineapple, cream of cauliflower, crab meat, Newburg, jellied tongue with macedoine of cold boiled vegetables or hamburg roast, with vegetables in brown sauce. Almond blanc mange, cake, iced cocoa.

The pineapple for this relish is shredded very fine, sweetened with powdered sugar, chil'ed and served in individual glasses, with or without the addition of a little sherry, rum of maraschino decorated with maraschino cherries.

The cream of cauliflower soup, which is most delicate and appetizing, may be prepared from a left-over portion of a flower. Cook tender, press through a fine sieve, thicken the milk, as usual, add the cauliflower puree, and serve very hot with a little whipped cream on each portion. Pass with it hot toasted squares.

For the crab meat entree, the tinned product may be used if the fresh crabs are not to be had. For the Newburg sauce use one cup of cream, the beaten yolks of three eggs, two tablespoons of sherry, half a teaspoonful of salt. Heat, stirring till it thickens, add the meat and let it heat once more. Or heat the crab meat in an ordinary rich cream sauce and serve each portion on a crisp hot corn fritter.

For a summertime menu a jellied meat dish such as the tongue suggested above, makes a welcome change.

With it can be offered a macedoine of cold, diced vegetables on lettuce leaves masked with mayonaise.

Or offer instead a hamburger roast which is hamburger steak molded in one piece and surrounded with pretty vegetable balls cut from carrots and turnips with a potato cutter. Serve hot with a brown sauce.

With this menu, by way of novelty, may be introduced a salad, each portion of which consists of a ripe banana sprinkled with crushed walnut meats arranged on lettuce hearts with French dressing.

For the desert make a rich cornstarch custard with two or more eggs, but instead of flavoring with the usual lemon or vanilla, use almond extract. Or flavor and tint the cornstarch with raspberry juice, mold individually and serve with fresh berries on each saucer and a spoonful of whipped cream on top.—N. Y. Times.

A Mohammedan Festival.

Taboots is an Indian festival in connection with the celebration of the month of Moharram, which begins the year of the true Mohammedan. This festival commemorates the death of Prince Hossein, the grandson of Mohammed, who met his death in battle after ten days' fighting against King Omar. The word taboot, from which the festival takes its name, means literally a tomb, and it is always built in front of the homes of some rich and important Mohammedans and under a temporary shed built for this purpose. The taboots are made from thin bamboo strips covered with highly colored paper, and it is always decorated with isinglass, gold and silver paper, glass balls and much red and green paint. On the ninth day of the festival of Taboots the taboots are carried in a possession through the streets of the various cities in India. On the tenth day all the taboots are thrown into some river, and thus ends the Mohammedan festival of Taboots.—Boston Herald.

Primitive Fire Fighters.

As late as the end of the sixteenth century in London the sole method of extinguishing fires was by means of contrivances known as "hand squirts." These were usually made of brass, with a carrying capacity ranging from two to four quarts of water. The two quart "squirts" were two and a half feet in length, one and a half inches in diameter at their largest part and but half an inch at the nozzle. On each side were handles, and three men were required to manipulate a "squirt." One man on each side grasped the handle in one hand and the nozzle in the other, while the third man worked the piston or plunger, drawing it out while the nozzle was immersed in a supply of water which filled the cylinder. The bearers then elevated the nozzle, when the other pushed in the plunger, the skill of the former being employed in directing the stream of water upon the fire. Such primitive contrivances are said to have been used during the great fire of 1666.

Mythical Horses.

Pegasus ("born near the source of the ocean") was the winged horse of Apollo and the Muses. Bellerophon rode this animal when he charged the Chimera.

Sleipnir ("the black horse of Odin") had eight legs and could carry his master on sea as well as land. This animal is believed to typify the wind, which blows from eight different points.

Al Borak ("the lightning") was the horse commissioned by Gabriel to carry Mohammed to the seventh heaven. He had a human face and the wings of an eagle. Every step he took was equal to the farthest range of human vision.

According to Thessalian legend, the first horse was miraculously brought forth by Neptune striking a rock with his trident.

BRAZIL'S LEADER IS ON WAY HERE

President Elect Fonseca Highly Entertained In Europe.

IS SOLDIER AND STATESMAN.

Marvelously Popular In Own Land Despite Anti-military Feeling—Great South American Republic Possessor of Most Formidable Warship Now In Commission and Heavy Immigration.

The visit which is announced of Marshal Hermes da Fonseca, the leading soldier and the president elect of Brazil, may be regarded as a step toward more intimate relations between the United States and the great South American republic. Since his election last March the marshal has been visiting the capitals of Europe, palpably, though not avowedly, with political intent.

Brazil, as was shown at the last Hague peace conference, is more than eager to impress herself on the world as, if not quite, yet a first class power, at least soon to attain that rank. The marshal, who is a man of brilliant parts and now clothed with some of the dignity of the office he is soon to hold, is an informal ambassador of no small impressiveness.

Month's Stay In America.

Marshal Fonseca is to stay a month. This will leave him ample time to make a call on President Diaz of Mexico and to visit one or two of the leading South American republics on his way home should he so desire, for his inauguration as president does not occur until Nov. 15.

Probably the most elaborate program ever prepared for the entertainment in the United States of a dignitary from South America is being arranged for General Fonseca. From the time he lands in New York until his departure he will be kept on the go, seeing the sights of America and being entertained with much display.

Charge Silva of the Brazilian embassy is arranging for the presentation of General Fonseca to President Taft at Beverly. Immediately after that formality he will visit Valley Forge, Pa., to meet Secretary Knox. Receptions are being planned at Philadelphia, Boston, Washington, Chicago and Pittsburg.

To Inspect West Point.

On account of his own accomplishments in military organization the Brazilian will be taken to West Point and to Annapolis to inspect the schools there.

He is by far the most distinguished representative of Brazil who has appeared in this country since the Emperor Dom Pedro made his visit in 1876. He has a marvelous popularity among his own people, as was shown in his election to the presidency despite the anti-military feeling, which is strong in Brazil.

He has also met with high recognition abroad. He attended the army maneuvers in Germany in 1908, and the kaiser then singled him out for special attentions and honors.

The first of Brazil's three Dreadnoughts has already arrived at Rio de Janeiro. It is perhaps the most formidable warship now actually in commission. The second, the Sao Paulo, is to be ready for service in October.

In 1909 there was an extension of 19,649 kilometers (roughly 12,000 miles) in the Brazilian railway system. In a few months more 2,383 kilometers, or about 1,430 miles, additional will be open to traffic.

Immigration Is Large.

In 1909 85,410 immigrants landed in Brazil. Of these 61,162 paid their own expenses; 23,083 of them were agriculturists. At present thirty-one colonies are in process of development, of which thirteen are backed by the states, the federal government merely guaranteeing to supply the colonists. The enterprising state of Sao Paulo is backing six colonies out of its own resources.

The weak spot so far in the national life is its finances. The last financial year left a deficit of nearly 16,000,000 Brazilian dollars (about 54 cents to the dollar) in gold and nearly 11,000,000 in paper (about 30 cents to the dollar).

BRIEFS.

The offices at City Hall are receiving their midsummer cleaning.

A whist party will be held at the Quincy Yacht club house tonight.

A regular meeting of the Ward 4 Improvement Association will be held tonight at Dolans hall.

Miss Hilda Francis of Centre street has returned from Northampton, where she spent her vacation.

Harold and Waldo Fraser of Quincy avenue, East Braintree, are spending a week at Cole beach and Providence, R. I.

The weather may not suggest coal but the prudent householder will do well to fill up his bin if he has not already done so.

The cup committee of the Quincy Yacht club have secured the auxiliary yacht of Thompson B. Crane as a tender for the cup races to begin Saturday.

The annual lawn party of the Hall Place M. E. church will be held Wednesday, July 27, at 7 Hall place. Extensive plans have been made for an enjoyable evening.

Alpha hall opens tonight for a season of refined moving pictures and illustrated songs. There are to be two shows each evening and special matinees Wednesdays and Saturdays for women and children.

TODAY'S COURT.

Griswold Stowe and William E. Rose were fined $15 each for exceeding the automobile speed limit at Milton.

—Every human being has a right to earn a living ,and, preliminary to the task of earning a livelihood, every human being has a right to be made fit for honorable and self-supporting toil. Any one, rich or poor, who begins active life with the consciousness that those who have controlled education and development up to that time have failed to furnish for him such preparation has a just grievance. The children of the rich have even more cause for complaint if they find themselves in such a predicament, because they have a double disability of ignorance and a training which has unfitted them for the rough-and-tumble of life. The poor boy may not have been well trained, but at least he is accustomed to meeting obstacles and overcoming them. Individual initiative and personal adventure in search o fa working place and vocation are much more interesting than any ready-made programme of occupation and progress.—Christian Register.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

NEW ENGLAND HIT BY STRIKE

Outbreak In Vermont and Massachusetts Mill Closes

DEPUTIES AT ISLAND POND

Left There to Quell Any Further Disturbance After Governor Makes Personal Investigation—Passenger Service Undisturbed, but Freight Congestion Continues—Strikers Obeying Leaders to the Letter

Boston, July 21.—One outbreak at Island Pond, Vt., the closing of a mill at Monson, Mass., because of a lack of supplies and the resumption of the complete passenger schedules on almost every line marked the second day of the strike on the Grand Trunk and Central Vermont railroad systems in New England.

A few freight cars were moved at isolated points and one train of twenty cars, bound from Montreal to Portland was moved during the day; but with this exception the tie-up of the freight traffic is as complete as it was on Tuesday.

The closing of the mill at Monson was the direct result of the freight tie-up, the Somerset Woolen company being unable to procure sufficient stock to continue operations and closing at noon for the remainder of the week. If conditions continue as at present, other mills at different points will be obliged to follow the example of the Somerset company.

Governor Prouty visited Island Pond, Vt., accompanied by forty-two armed deputy sheriffs, to investigate the attack made on strike-breakers brought there by the Central Vermont railroad.

He said that he he stood ready to call out the militia to quell any disturbance, if necessary, but he did not think that such a step would be necessary.

The governor left Island Pond last night, but the armed deputies remained there to keep the situation well in hand. He said that he did not look for further trouble in Island Pond or any other point in Vermont.

Twenty-five of the strike-breakers who were taken to White River Junction, Vt., to fill the places of the strikers, threw up their places last night and are awaiting an opportunity to return to New York. Their action was due partly to sympathy with the striking trainmen, and partly to dissatisfaction with the work.

Strike-breakers from all parts of the country are pouring into New England to take the places of the striking trainmen and switchmen. The breakers are being distributed throughout the territory operated by these roads in New England preparatory to manning the day trains.

The strikers are using their best efforts to dissuade them from accepting the proffered position. In several instances they have already been successful.

The strikers are obeying the instructions of their superiors to the letter and are keeping away from the railroad stations and this is believed to be in a large measure responsible for absence of clashes and violence.

Grand Trunk Sees Victory

Montreal, July 21.—"The backbone of the strike will be broken by Saturday." This was the assertion of Vice President Fitzhugh of the Grand Trunk railway in regard to the strike of its conductors and trainmen.

The railroad officials realize that the freight situation is rapidly becoming acute. Carloads of perishable freight are standing on sidings far and near, and unless it is possible to begin to turn the wheels soon the property loss will be large. Food supplies and crop transportation are vitally involved, it is stated. Shipping interests are not happy over the situation. They see shrinking tonnage for outgoing steamers. A generally expressed opinion is that the strikers will be able to continue the freight train holdup two or three days longer at least.

BREAD CAST UPON WATERS

It Returns to Georgia Man In Form of Fortune of $700,000

Macon, Ga., July 21.—Shortly before the Klondike gold boom, W. V. Miller, a motorman of this city, met J. F. Curley, a miner, stranded and without funds. He took him in, fed him and gave him money with which to travel as far as Birmingham.

That was the last he heard of the bread cast upon the waters until he received word this week that Curley had died in Dawson City and left him a fortune estimated at $700,000.

Boy Set Fire to Seven Buildings

Chicago, July 21.—In order to "get even" because a "big fireman" chased him away from a fire engine house, Leroy Holmer, 12 years old, admitted he set fire to seven buildings. The fires caused several thousand dollars damage.

Flames Destroy Three Towns

Winnipeg, Man., July 21.—Jaffray, Three Forks and Bayness Lake, mining and lumber towns in the Sloan district, have been destroyed by forest fires.

SOME YELLOW ORCHIDS.

bacu—what d'ye call it—you're too old for thrashing unfortunately!—but by controlling the exchequer. I hold the key of the pay-chest, remember, my boy, and in spite of 'liver and other Anglo-Indian things,' there's a good deal of life in the old dog yet. Haw!—hum!" And the general vigorously twisted the tremendous mustache.

"I'm sure I'm amendable to anything you wish," the young student of jurisprudence amended hastily. "What do you want me to do, Fetch and carry, dance attendance ,and so on; Miss Sylvia will be awfully bored, but I'll do my best."

"Thank you, my boy; thank you!" the general said, putting his brown, sinewy hand on Peltoe's narrow shoulder. Then he added: "I wish I could see you married, my dear fellow, to a girl as sweet and good as Miss Sylvia."

"There are lots about,"—Peltoe was beginning ,and then he saw the general's drift. "You want me to propose to her—really? You want us to be engaged? Why, of course, if you are so set on it!"

The general roared with laughter.

"Do you think her mother's daughter is to be got for the mere asking? Upon my word, my boy, I believe you're either a confoundedly subtle humorist or an infernal young—" He broke off. "We'll shake hands on the bargain that you'll do your best to make yourself agreeable, and pay the necessary petits soins, and so forth. I'd give a good deal to see a grandchild of mine with those eyes," the general said, and he did not refer to Peltoe's.

Thenceforth, Peltoe's attentions to Miss Sylvia Hugoson became marked—for Peltoe.

"He is awfully funny when he is polite," said Sylvia in confidence to her mother. "He hands me a chair as though it were a milestone, and fetches me a cushion or a kitten or a cup of tea with an air as though he were astonished at himself. He paid me a compliment yesterday. When I asked him whether he didn't think there were a great many pretty girls down here, he said, 'I'm not thinking about pretty girls—I'm thinking of you!'" And Sylvia's laugh rang out like a peal of silver bells. "Oh, Mammy, he is so stupid and so wrapped up in himself!"

"Dear," pleaded her mother, "are you quite sure you could never care about him as girls care for their sweethearts? Sylvia ,the general has spoken to me. He has set his heart upon a match between you and Peltoe, and his heart is so great and true and kind, I should be sorry to wound it—"

"Mammy, tell me, would you marry Peltoe just to please his father?" asked the girl with sudden seriousness.

"Ah, no! No, of course, my dearest!"

"If Peltoe were the father and the General the son, I should courtesy and say, 'Yes, thank you.' But" said Sylvia, with a dimple showing near her pretty chin, "I know I should never be fond of my papa-in-law!"

Mrs. Hugoson laughed, and then sighed.

"Let the young man down as gently as you can, Sylvia, if he says anything—particular—today."

"Oh, the cunning old General!" cried Sylvia. "Is that why he has asked us to picnic at Lulworth Chine?"

"Well, dear, said the mother placidly, "it is a pretty place!"

"Peltoe would spoil the Garden of Eden," Sylvia's response. And really Peltoe in a suit of tan-colored tweeds, chosen to match the color of his hair, with knickerbockers emphasizing the absence of his calves, a check golfing cap, and a green necktie, was not a romantic object. The General viewed him with sore dismay.

"Where does the boy buy his clothes?" he muttered ,as , luncheon over, he watched the attentive Peltoe obediently squiring Sylvia ravishingly dressed and radiant with mischievous coquetry under the loveliest of hats.

"Where are they going?" asked Mrs. Hugoson.

"Down to the Chine, I belive," said the general. "My dear lady, I sent them off on purpose. You know I wanted an opportunity for the boy to say to your daughter what I wish to heaven I had the chance to say to her mother years ago.'"

"Ah, my dear friend, it is useless!" said Mrs. Hugoson, as the general's white moustache touched the hand he taken in his own. "She does not love him—never could love him. There is no sympathy between my child and your son—strange as it seems to say it. Come, let us follow them."

And they did. Lulworth Chine, as all visitors to Westbeach know, is a deep ,heavily wooded canon about a mile long ,at the bottom of which runs a river, foaming over jagged rocks. Beautiful ferns and orchids grow in the precipitous sides of the cleft, watered by the tinkling sprays and the foam of the torrent, and the gathering of these is attended with a certain amount of danger—as Peltoe reminded Miss Hugoson when that young lady saw and coveted a delicate tuft of pale-yellow blossoms that grew in a crevice down below.

"They're only weeds, don't you know," said Pelto; "and the man who tried to get them would run what I call a pretty near chance of breaking his neck—not of knocking out his brains against those rocks in the water down there, because thé kind of a man who does that sort of thing wouldn't have any." He smiled, pleased with his own wit. "And I hope you'll let me bring you a bouquet—regular hothouse orchids, properly wired—this evening ,since you're so fond of them."

A smothered roar startled the young people. They turned. There stood the general, pale with anger, in his eyes a look of contempt beneath which poor, unheroic Peltoe visibly quailed.

"Excuse me! Do I understand," asked the general ,that terrible gaze fixed upon his son, "that Miss Sylvia wished for a flower that is growing down there ,and that you—my son—have refused to procure it for her?"

"I—I——" Peltoe began; but his voice trailed away in a whimper. "How can a man do what isn't to be done? It's sheer suicide—to go down there."

"Hold my hat and stick!" said the general sternly.

"Oh, general, no!" pleaded Sylvia. "I don't care for the flowers. I don't indeed!

"Look here, pater," began Peltoe. But the general cut him short.

"Sir, you are a coward, though you are my son! Madam"—he turned proudly to Mrs. Hugoson—"I beg you, for the honor of my name ,to ask me for those flowers."

"Oh, general!" said Mrs. Hugoson, blanching and shuddering after a glance into the depths, "I cannot."

"Anne, I beg of you to ask me for those flowers!" pleaded the general, looking in her eyes.

"Please fetch me them, general," said Mrs. Hugoson obediently, but white as death. And the gallant old general went down, and, after a breathless interval of suspense, came up again, scratched and dirty and blown, and with his rather tight-fitting coat split across the shoulders but with the yellow orchids in his hand, and so pleased was he with his exploit that he presently pardoned Peltoe.

"Perhaps I was hard on you," he said, later on. "You've been brought up by your mother's people, and brought up soft. But a man who's afraid to risk his bones doesn't stand much chance with women"—the general nodded gravely across the dinner table—"and I am afraid your love affair is off, my boy."

"But yours being well on sir," said this student of jurisprudence, "you haven't any reason to complain."

There was a short silence. Then the general spoke: "We are to join the ladies after dinner. If Mrs. Hugoson wears those yellow orchids, I shall ask her to marry me."

"And he did, and Mrs. Hugoson said "Yes!"—The Sketch.

Half a Chance

By FREDERIC S. ISHAM,

SYNOPSIS

(CHAPTER XIII—Continued.)

At first he walked toward the front on the gravel that the servant might hear him, but near the entrance he paused, hesitating, to look out. As he remained thus some one who had been standing not far off drew near. John Steele stole around the place until he reached the back wall.

There he examined his position, felt the top, then placed his fingers on the wall. It was about six feet high; but, seizing hold, he was about to spring into the air, when behind him, from the direction of the row, a low metallic sound caught his attention. The front gate to the Forsythe house had suddenly clicked. Some one had entered.

John Steele looked back. Even as he did so a number of figures abruptly ran forward from the gate. He waited no longer, but drew himself up to a level with the top of the wall. The effort made him acutely aware of his wounded shoulder. He winced, but set his teeth hard and swung himself over until one foot came in contact with the iron frame of the greenhouse next to the masonry. To crawl to the end of the lean-to, bending to hold to the wall and then to let himself down, occupied but a brief interval.

He heard behind him an imperative knocking at the front door of Captain Forsythe's house, succeeded by the noise of feet hastening into the house.

For some time nothing save these sounds was wafted to the listener. Then a loud, disappointed voice, sounding above another voice, came from a half opened window. John Steele stood still no longer. Great hazard, almost certain capture, lay before him in the direction he was going—the street this garden led to would be watched—but he could not remain where he was. He moved quickly forward. As he neared the house, more imposing than Captain Forsythe's, a stream of light poured from a window. Through this bright space he darted quickly, catching a fleeting view of people within, several with their faces turned toward him. Close to a side of the square looking house he paused, his heart beating fast. To attempt to reach the gate, to get out to Surrey road, little doubt existed as to what awaited him there. He remained motionless. Sharp twinges again shot through his shoulder. Then on a sudden he became unmindful of physical discomfort. A plan of action that had flashed through his brain held him oblivious to all else. It offered only the remotest chance of escape, but still a chance, which he weighed, determined to take! It had come to him while listening to the merry voices within the room near him talking of the gay dinner just ended, of the box party at the theater that was to follow.

Already cabs were at the door. A servant walked out and unlocked the gate, and with light badinage the company issued forth. As they did so John Steele, unobserved, stepped forward. In the semidarkness the party passed through the entrance into the street. Taking his place among the last of the laughing, dimly seen figures, John Steele walked boldly on and found himself a moment later on the sidewalk of Surrey road. He was aware that some one, a woman, had touched his arm as if to take it, of a light feminine voice and an abrupt exclamation of surprise. Walking swiftly to one of the last cabs, he sprang in.

"A little errand first, driver," he called out. "To"—and mentioned a street—"as fast as you can." The man straightened, touched his horse with his whip, and, wheeling quickly, they dashed away.

As they did so John Steele thought he heard exclamations behind. Looking through the cab window, he saw at the gate the company gazing after him, obviously not yet recovered from their thrill of surprise following his unexpected action. He observed also two men on the other side of the street, who now ran across and held a brief altercation with one of the cabmen. As they were about to enter the cab several persons in the party apparently intervened, expostulating vigorously. It was not difficult to surmise the resentment of the group at this attempted summary seizure of a second one of their cabs.

"Those men must not overtake us, cabby. Go where you will! You understand?"

The man did. His fingers closed quickly on a sovereign, and once more he lashed his horse. For some time they continued at a rapid pace, now skirting the confines of the park, now plunging into a puzzling tangle of streets, but wherever they went the other cab managed always to keep them in sight. It even began to creep up nearer. From his pocket John Steele drew a weapon. His eyes gleamed ominously. The pursuing hansom drew closer. Casting a hurried glance over his shoulder, he again called up to the driver.

"It's no use, guv'ner," came back the reply. "This 'oss 'as been out longer than 'is."

"Then turn the first dark corner and slow up a bit, for only a second. Afterward go on your very best as long as you can."

Another sovereign changed hands, and shortly afterward the vehicle dashed into a side street. It appeared as likely a place as any for his purpose. John Steele, hardly waiting for the man to draw rein, leaped out as far as he might. He landed without mishap, heard a whip snap furiously and darted back into a doorway. He had just reached it when the other cab drew near. For an instant he felt certain that he had been seen, but the pursuers' eyes were bent eagerly ahead.

"This'll mean a fiver for you, my man," he heard one of them shout to the driver. "We've got him, by"— A harsh, jubilant cry cut the air; then they were gone.

John Steele did not wait. Replacing the weapon in his pocket, he started quickly around the corner. His cabman could not lead them far; they would soon return.

Which way should he move? His face burned with fever; he did not heed it. A long, broad thoroughfare as he walked on had suddenly unfolded itself to his gaze. One side of this highway shone resplendent with the flaring lights of numerous stands and stalls displaying vegetables and miscellaneous articles.

About to turn back from this animated scene, John Steele hesitated. The road ran straight and sure toward the destination he wished to reach, while on either hand lay a network of devious ways.

He decided, crossed the street. Lights gleamed in his face. He pushed his way through the people unmolested and strode on, followed only by the noise of passing vehicles and carts.

On, on John Steele moved; on, on. Time passed. It would be a hard battle, but once in that part of the city he was striving to reach he might find those willing to offer him shelter—low-born, miserable wretches he had helped. In their midst was the one man in the world who could throw a true light on the events of the past, enable him to—

Behind him some one followed, some one who drew ever nearer, with soft, skulking steps which now he heard—

"Mr. Steele!" Even as he wheeled his name was called out.

Before the sudden fierce passion gleaming on John Steele's face, the bright flame of his look, the person who had accosted him shrank back. His pinched and pale face showed surprise, fear. Almost incoherently he began to stammer.

Steele looked about. They two, as far as he could see, were alone.

"I ask your pardon." The fellow found his voice. "I'll not be troubling you further, Mr. Steele."

"You were about to beg—of me?" John Steele smiled.

Dandy Joe began to shuffle off in a spiritless way when—

"You are hungry?" said John Steele.

"A little, sir."

"A modest answer in view of the actual truth, I suspect," observed the other. But, although his words were brusque, he felt in his pocket. A sovereign—it was all he had left about him. When he had departed post-haste for Strathorn House he had neglected to furnish himself with funds for an indefinite period. A contingency he should have foreseen had risen. For the present he could not appear at the bank to draw against the balance he always maintained there. John Steele fingered that last sovereign, started to turn, when he caught the look in the other's eyes. Did it recall to him his own plight but a short twenty-four hours before?

"Very well!" he said, and was about to give the coin to the man and walk away when another thought held him.

This fellow had been a link in a certain chain of events. The temptation grew to linger with him, the single, tangible, though paltry and needless figure in the drama he could lay hands on. John Steele looked around. In a byway he saw the lighted window of a cheap oyster buffet. Motioning to the man, he wheeled abruptly and started for it.

A few minutes later found them seated in the shabby back room. A number of faded sporting pictures adorned the wall. One—how John Steele started!—showed the Frisco Pet in a favorite attitude.

GREAT LABOR FIGHT ENDED

Peace Agreement Signed by the Bucks Stove Company

CONTROVERSY OF TWO YEARS

Arose Over Dispute as to Working Hours of Metal Polishers—Officers of Federation of Labor Will Not Be Prosecuted—Their Appeals From Jail Sentences For Contempt Are Now Before Supreme Court

Cincinnati, July 21.—A peace pact of great importance to organized labor and to the country as well was reached here between officers of the American Federation of Labor and members of the Stove Founders' National Defense association. The effect of the agreement is to end the bitter warfare between the Federation of Labor and the Bucks Stove and Range company of St. Louis.

The association and the stove company, through representatives here, announced their withdrawal from the prosecutions against President Gompers, Vice President Mitchell and Secretary Morrison of the American Federation of Labor in the contempt cases now pending against them.

While the prosecutions hanging over Gompers, Mitchell and Morrison have passed out of the hands of the stove company which instituted them and are now pending in the United States supreme court at Washington, representatives of the stove company and of the National Defense association, by the articles signed, agree to withdraw their attorneys from the case.

The controversy between the American Federation of Labor and the Bucks Stove company began about two years ago, when the late James W. Van Cleave, president of the stove company, sought an injunction against Gompers and others from publishing his company as on the "unfair list." It was upon an alleged violation of this injunction that jail sentences were pronounced upon Gompers, Morrison and Mitchell. Van Cleave died some months ago. His death, it is said, in a measure was due to worry over the long fight in the courts.

Under the agreement the company and labor officials will meet in St. Louis within thirty days to work out the details of wages and working conditions in conformity with the union shops of competitors of the company. Until then it will not be known whether the company is to become a union shop. The trouble between the company and the labor unions had its inception in a dispute as to whether the metal polishers should work nine or ten hours a day.

Awaiting Wickersham's Action

Washington, July 21.—Until officials of the department of justice have communicated with Attorney General Wickersham, now en route to Alaska, no announcement will be made here concerning the procedure which may be had in the pending prosecution of officials of the American Federation of Labor, growing out of their trouble with the Bucks Stove and Range company of St. Louis.

Notwithstanding the agreement reached in Cincinnati to end the warfare, no assurances are forthcoming ing that the cases against Gompers, Mitchell and Morrison for contempt of court will be discontinued.

"QUEER" COINS IN PRISON

Materials For Making Alloy and Moulds Are Discovered

Boston, July 21.—An outfit for making counterfeit money and a lot of bogus half dollars ready for "shoving" have been discovered in the Charlestown state prison. Prison officials are reticent, but admit that an investigation is being made.

Amazed at the impudent daring of the gang of convicts who had set up their plant and were making and circulating the spurious money under the very noses of the prison officials, Warden Bridges is having every inch of the prison buildings carefully searched. The material for making the alloy, the moulds and a number of the bogus coins have already been discovered.

$60,000 Windfall For Janitor

Springfield, Mass., July 21.—A. E. Craw, janitor of the Lyman street skating rink, has recived a letter from Charles C. Anderson of Plattsburg, N. Y., administrator of the estate of James C. Craw, an uncle, announcing that he is the heir under his dead uncle's will to $60,000.

Railroads Suspend Freight Advances

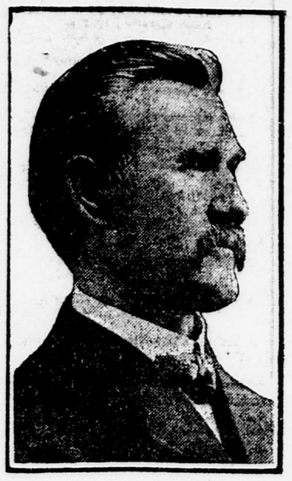

Washington, July 21.—A committee representing eastern railways notified Chairman Knapp of the interstate commerce commission that advances in freight rates recently scheduled will be suspended voluntarily until Nov. 1 next.

Tragedy Witnessed by Thousands

New York, July 21.—Several thousand suburbanites at the Grand Central station saw a man crushed to death by a Tarrytown train. The victim was John E. Felter, 63 years old, a retired business man of North Tarrytown.

GOVERNOR CARROLL

Charged With Making Libelous Statements

CRIMINAL LIBEL CHARGED

Governor of Iowa Indicted as Result of Certain Published Statements

Des Moines, July 21.—Governor Carroll was indicted for criminal libel by the Polk county grand jury. The indictment is the outgrowth of a long investigation by the grand jury of affairs at the Iowa industrial school for girls.

It is alleged in the bill that the governor made libelous statements concerning John Cownie, former chairman of the state board of control, in an article published in the Des Moines Capital of May 24 in which the governor set forth at length his reasons for demanding the resignation of Cownie.

POLICE THINK RAWN ENDED HIS OWN LIFE

Family of Railroad President Say Burglar Caused Death

Chicago, July 21.—Ira G. Rawn, president of the Chicago, Indianapolis and Louisville railroad, Monon route, died of a bullet wound at his summer residence in Winnetka, fifteen miles north of Chicago.

Members of Rawn's family say he was killed by a burglar. The police are working on a theory that Rawn killed himself. As a basis for their suicide theory the police advance several reasons.

Friends and business associates of the dead man say he had been looking badly for several weeks. Some attributed Rawn's worried expression to the investigation of the conspiracy by which the Illinois Central railroad claims it was mulced out of hundreds of thousands of dollars. This is now going on in court. The outcome of this investigation, it is said, would have involved Rawn at least indirectly.

THIEF BREAKS DOWN

Admits Guilt Just as Jury Enters With a Verdict of Acquittal

Chicago, July 21.—Benjamin Bisno watched the clock in Judge Barnes' courtroom for an hour and a half, imagining every minute that the jury was getting nearer and nearer a verdict in his trial on a charge of stealing $1600 worth of clothing.

Then, just as the first of the returning jurors made his appearance in the doorway, Bisno leaped to his feet and told the judge he was guilty. He was sentenced to five months in prison.

When Bisno had been led from the courtroom the verdict was opened, just for curiosity, and it read "not guilty," but it was too late to help Bisno.

FIVE STITCHES IN HEART

Delicate Surgical Operation Is Expected to Save a Man's Life

Philadelphia, July 21.—Holding the beating heart of a living man in the palm of his left hand, while with his right he made five stitches, between the beats, into a wound made in the organ by a knife when the victim was stabbed during a quarrel, Dr. Francis T. Stewart, at the Pennsylvania hospital, probably saved the life of Joseph Spence, 23.

After sewing up the wound Dr. Stewart put the heart back in its place, stitched up the incision in the side and Spence was sent back to the ward with a good chance of recovery.

Sneezed to Death

New York, July 21.—Joseph Bennerschied, aged 51, sneezed himself to death in a restaurant. After shaking pepper into his soup he was seized with a fit of sneezing and ruptured a blood vessel.

Victoria, B. C., July 21.—News was brought by the steamer Suverie from the Orient that the Japanese government has ordered four military airships in France.

LEFT HER HOME WITH $10,000

Woman Who Deserted Her Family Is Mysteriously Strangled

BODY IDENTIFIED BY HUSBAND

Wealthy Business Man Faints When He Makes Discovery In Brooklyn Morgue—Says He Had Sought Wife Vainly Since She Disappeared Three Months Ago—Greek Peanut Vender Held Pending Investigation of Crime

New York, July 21.—M. S. Hettrich, a wealthy business man of Pierpont, N. Y., identified in the Brooklyn morgue a woman found strangled to death in a furnished room house at 6 Norman place, Brooklyn, as his wife, who left him and his two children three months ago and disappeared with $10,000 in cash, mostly her own money. No money was found in the possession of the woman or in her apartments.

Hettrich, when he first saw his wife's body, threw up his hands, exclaiming: "My God, it's she!" and then fell to the floor in a faint. Detective Barry, who accompanied him to the morgue, and the keeper, James McGuire, lifted him into a chair, where he revived.

"She was my wife. She left our two children and me mysteriously. Why she went away we never knew, and perhaps never will. Oh, my poor children!" said the heart-broken husband.

"She had a happy home, two lovely children, all the money she wanted, everything. We were living happily. She gave no intimation that she intended to leave home. Three months ago she kissed the children goodbye and went away, as we supposed, on a shopping tour. We never saw her after that."

Mrs. Hettrich, whose identity was not disclosed until her husband viewed the body, was found murdered in her room. She had evidently been killed only after she had made a desperate struggle for her life. Evidences of a struggle were plentiful in the little room.

She was found on the floor with the impression of fingers deep in her neck. The murderer had evidently got a firm grip on her throat, shutting off her breath and preventing her from making an outcry. The police say she struggled while she was in his grasp and that during that time the room was disarranged. Her strength soon waned and they think the murderer kept his hold until he was certain life was extinct.

Nothing was found in the room to indicate the identity of the woman. She was good looking and wore expensive clothing. She was known to the landlady as Mary Hendrick and also as Mary Selkner. A search of her effects indicated to the police that she had come from a wealthy family, for her wearing apparel was chiefly of silk and expensive material.

Mrs. Hettrich was last seen alive by the landlady and others in the house Sunday evening. She was not seen Monday at all. The police believe that she was strangled Sunday night, judging by the condition of the body. A physician declared that she had been dead more than twenty-four hours at the time she was found.

The woman's husband read a newspaper account of the tragedy. For three months he had been making an exhaustive search for his wife. He had visited morgues, hospitals and asylums in the hope of finding her.

In Norman place Mrs. Hettrich was the associate of Greek street pedlers and others of the lowest social stratum and was murdered by one of them, according to the theory of the police, in an outburst of jealous rage.

Several Greeks in the neighborhood had been in the habit of calling upon the woman frequently, and one of them, Stevis Polimanakas, a peanut vender, was arrested as a material witness. It was he who discovered the murder and informed the police.

NO TRACE OF CRIPPEN

British Detectives Offer Reward For Capture of Alleged Murderer

London, July 21.—While Scotland Yard detectives are searching diligently for Dr. Crippen, the American who is wanted in London in connection with the disappearance of his actress wife, Belle Elmore, and his stenographer, Miss Leneve, they confess to being as much in the dark with regard to his whereabouts as ever.

Late last evening the Scotland Yard authorities were sending out thousands of descriptive pamphlets in English and French offering a reward for the apprehension of the American dentist.

Youthful Fiend Sentenced

St. John, July 21.—Eight years in the penitentiary was the sentence imposed upon Charles McLaughlin, 15 years old, who had enticed boys of from 5 to 8 years of age into the woods and to barns, where they were stripped and beaten until they were in a semi-conscious condition. No motive for any of the assaults is known.

KEEP THE KIDNEYS WELL

Health is Worth Saving, and Some Quincy People Know How to Save It.

Many Quincy people take their lives in their hands by neglecting the kidneys when they know these organs need help. Sick kidneys are responsible for a vast amount of suffering and ill health, but there is no need to suffer nor to remain in danger when all diseases and aches and pains due to weak kidneys can be quickly and permanently cured by the use of Doan's Kidney Pills. Here is a Quincy citizen's recommendation.

Nicholas Albanese, 16 Gilmore street, Quincy, Mass., says: "I was annoyed by attacks of backache for some time, often while at work sharp, shooting pains darted through my loins, causing me great misery. I also had dizzy spells and my sight seemed to be affected. I tried many remedies, but did not receive relief and as a last resort, I decided to try Doan's Kidney Pills. I procured a box at the Cox Drug Store and in a short time after using them, I was helped. I have no hesitation in giving Doan's Kidney Pills the credit for my cure."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

DYSPEPSIA

"Having taken your wonderful 'Cascarets' for three months and being entirely cured of stomach catarrh and dyspepsia, I think a word of praise is due to 'Cascarets' for their wonderful composition. I have taken numerous other so-called remedies but without avail, and I find that Cascarets relieve more in a day than all the others I have taken would in a year."

BRIEFS

A Washington dispatch reports more than 250 salary promotions in the Boston postal district to take effect July 1. Quincy men will benefit.

William H. Hyman of Baltimore, Md., who represented the M. E. B. A., No. 5, at the National convention in Washington, D. C., in 1907, 1908 and 1910 is in town for a few days.

The city treasurer will receive bids until 12 M., July 27, for $56,825 of 4 1-2 per cent consolidated miscellaneous bonds. The bonds are dated July 1, 1910, and mature $11,825 in 1911; $6,000 annually 1912 to 1914 inclusive; $5,000 annually 1915 to 1918 inclusive; $4,000 in 1919 and $3,000 in 1920.

About forty of the members of the Ladies' Society connected with the M. E. Swedish church met at the home of Mrs. August Viden, Penn's Hill, Wednesday afternoon ,and had a most enjoyable outing. After the business meeting a general good time followed and refreshments served. These meetings are held every month at the home of some member, thereby promoting sociability among the members.

STORES MAKE A MISTAKE.

Editors Daily Ledger:

Accept my appreciation and thanks for article "Houseflies Bane of All humanity." The stores of Quincy are very unwise in exposing so much of their meats bread stuffs and fruits for sale where in spite of their attempt at protection the flies are seen swarming over everything. Their excuse is they sell more if customers see the food. Some may, but many do not buy such stuff.

Mrs. A.

Quincy, July 21, 1910.

WELCOME A SON TODAY.

The members of St. Chrysostom's church at Wollaston will be pleased to learn of the birth of a son today to their former rector, Rev. A. E. Clattenburg, Devils Lake, North Dakota. The telegram to the Daily Ledger reports Mrs. Clattenburg as doing well.

In the summer season it is almost a necessity to know of some reliable preparation such as the "No-scent" advertised in the Ledger by the Warren Chemical Co., of Somerville.

Wide-awake merchants are keeping right before the buying public this summer and advertising their goods. Ledger ads bring results because it is a home paper; a family paper full of clean home news. Its circulation which is five times larger than any other in the city, makes it a good advertising medium.

WOLLASTON Y. C. SAIL.

The Wollaston Yacht club could not have selected a brighter moonlight evening for its first sail of the season than Wednesday night. Most of the yachts of the club were out, and all had their full compliment of guests. The yachts to participate were Thordis, Capt. F. E. Dawes, Eleanor, Capt. W. L. Jefferson; Navajo, Capt. A. L. Warren; Leader, Capt. Taylor; Louise, Capt. Charles F. Richardson; Aspinquid, Capt. R. C. Crocker; Kitten, Capt. Hollis; Ursula, Capt. J. Frank Merrill.

After the sail a social dance was held at the club house in which nearly 200 participated. The dancing was in charge of W. J. Jones and A. J. Podbury.

MOTORMAN DEAD.

Michael Pitts, for many years employed as a motorman on the street railway, died this noon at his home 968 Hancock street, aged about 45 years.

Mr. Pitts took a severe cold last winter, which developed into pneumonia. He apparently recovered from this attack, but complications set in which have confined him to his home ever since. At times he was able to enjoy the warm sun from his piazza yet all the time he was growing weaker. He has been very low for several days and his death was not unlooked for. He leaves a widow, one son and two daughters.

NO TRAPS AT HINGHAM.

According to an agreement made between Chief of Police W. I. James and the Hingham motor club, says the Globe ,the automobile "traps," for which the town has a wide reputation have been temporarily abolished.

The Hingham Motor club was organized a short time ago. One of the principal objects of the organization is the promotion of careful and considerate operation of motor vehicles within the limits of the town. The executive committee of the club, after several interviews and some communications with Chief James, has received from his the following:

"I agree to abolish the traps in Hingham if motorists agree to the following:

"First—To run their cars at a speed not exceeding 15 miles an hour in the thickly settled portions of the town.

"Second—To slow down at all curves or corners where the view is obstructed.

"Third—To sound their horns at all intersecting streets.

"If, after a reasonable time motorists do not conform t othe above, I reserve the right to reestablish the trap system. W. I. James.
"Chief of Police of Hingham."

In behalf of the Motor club the committee has accepted the requirements of Chief James, and urges all motorists to observe them within the limits of the town.

SPORTING NOTES.

Four Quincy men won prizes on Wednesday at the field day of St. Catherine's church of Somerville held at Combination park. Lucien H. Thayer won the 100-yard dash in 10 3-5 seconds. Eugene Marceau won the 880-yard run in 2 minutes 57 seconds, having a handicap of 44 yards the same as the second man. In the mile run A. R. Marceau won third place, the handicap of the first man being 90 yards, and the second man 50 yards. In the 440-yard dash George D. Sullivan took the second prize. The entry list was large.

HALCYON DAYS IN SPORT.

Oh, for ye good old days of sport
When Arthur ruled ye famed Round Table,
When every champion of ye court
At coming back proved quite, quite able!

No purse of gold was e'er in sight
To pay ye smiter or ye smitten,
No novelist spoiled paper white
In telling how ye fight was fytten.

No authors (price, one word ten cents)
Wrote columns on ye brutes abysmal
Nor protoplasmic elements
Nor other high browed language dismal.

No tour of ye ten, twent and thirt
Would make ye lucky winner wealthy,
But he must don ye iron shirt
And fight some challenger quite healthy.

And at ye end of some great match
Ye base reformers, with their strictures,
No mollycoddish plots could hatch
And stop, perforce, ye moving pictures.

ICE, GOLD AND ESKIMO HINDER ALASKA CENSUS.

Cannot Be Finished Before Spring. Doubled Population Expected.

The Alaska census, including the enumeration of all the inhabitants of the northern territory, may not be completed before next spring, according to A. N. Evans, in charge of the bureau of education.

The entire census will not be finished along the coast before winter because of the difficulty of finding any one at home. The residents of the coast towns and villages either are in the interior prospecting or off the coast on islands engaged in fishing and canning salmon and other fish.

The work of counting the people in Alaska was begun last October with a view of getting all the white people during the winter season, when they usually are idle. The stampede to the newly discovered gold diggings drew hundreds from each camp, and the census takers were compelled to follow the miners to the interior to get the required data.

The most difficult district for the enumerators and where the influence of the bureau of education has been least felt is in the Kuskokwim region. Here the work of the census takers was in the hands of Dr. C. D. Scott. Untold hardships were endured by the doctor, who traveled over 3,600 miles to obtain data. He lost three guides and forty dogs on the trail. In all he counted less than 500 souls. The trip required seven months, and he was paid $15 per diem by Uncle Sam for his work.

In the districts where government agents never have had dealings with the natives the Eskimos were distrustful and would not give the information to the interpreters. They often carried the white men and their native talkers out of their camps by force and set their dogs on them.

It is estimated, according to the information already collected, that the northern territory will show more than double the number of people it did ten years ago, in spite of the fact that in 1900 the population was greatly increased by the Klondike gold stampede.

BEAUCHAMP, VERSATILE PEER

But Drawing of Social Lines Sometimes Went Wrong.

Lord Beauchamp, who succeeds Viscount Wolverhampton as lord president of the council, is one of the most versatile of peers. He succeeded his father as seventh holder of the earldom when he was nineteen and shortly after coming of age was a member of the London school board and mayor of Worcester.

At twenty-seven he became governor general of New South Wales and there was noted, among other things, for the exclusiveness of his official entertainments.

The story goes that for one function he issued tickets of different colors—blue ones for the more important guests and yellow for those who stood not quite so high in the social scale.

By some error a certain dignitary and his wife got cards of different colors and on arriving at Government House were requested to enter by different doors. The lady's anger rose, and she paralyzed the flunky by exclaiming, "I'll let them see that my husband and I are not a seidlitz powder!"

ZION CITY TO BE RESTORED.

Dowie's Successor Wins Long Fight For Noted Town.

Wilbur Glenn Voliva, overseer of Zion City, Ill., and protege and supplanter of the late John Alexander Dowie, has been placed in a position eventually to get absolute control of Zion City and its industries by a federal court order.

Judge K. M. Landis has accepted the bid of a Chicago real estate firm for the assets of the Dowie estate, and Guy D. Thomas, receiver, was ordered to dispose of it to the realty firm for $700,000. Under a previous contract the realty firm will transfer the estate to Voliva for $900,000. Of this sum Voliva paid $50,000 at the time the contract was drawn up. He will have eight years to pay the $850,000.

STORIES OF THE DIAMOND.

"Germany" Schaefer Talks About Playing the Infield.

SECOND HARDEST POSITION.

Man at the Keystone Station Is Given Better Chance to Show Up Than Any Other Player—He Generally Lasts Longer In Game.

No. XVI.
By HERMAN SCHAEFER.
[Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.]

What are the important qualities for a successful infielder in the major leagues today? Well, the only players who become successful infielders are those with a natural aptitude for baseball. A good mechanical player who can hit at a fair clip may make good and hold a position in the outfield, but when he comes to the infield he must be a quick thinker, fast fielder and a natural player as well.

How many baseball fans have thought of the build of these infielders and the part that plays in determining the qualification for a certain position? For instance, take the first baseman. He must be a tall, rangy fellow who can cover ground, but more especially one who has a reach to catch throws a trifle wild. Height and reach are valuable in stepping forward to meet thrown balls. Many a first sacker who understands his position robs a batsman of hits merely by stretching out to meet them. In the course of a season this one or two feet advantage will mean a score or more less base hits.

Speaking of the second baseman or the shortstop, I will say that the latter should be a short, chunky fellow, something on the dachshund order, for he has to gather the ball in from all positions while on the run, so the lower they are to the ground the better. The majority of the third sackers in the major leagues today are small men or fellows of medium height, but it is not essential there.

As you know, second base is the key to the infield. Second sack gives a player an opportunity to show up better than any other position, and I believe a player will last longer in the game in this position than any other—that is, if he is a natural and not a made ball player. A second baseman should go for short flies and depend on the outfielders for the coaching, as they are in a better position to judge the ball. The keystone stationer should go in for the short throw with the catcher, sending the ball down for a man and a runner at third. This play requires practice and a good throwing catcher. When running down a man between the bases go after him on the jump and get him under full headway before throwing the ball.

Recently I was asked who I thought was the gamest man in baseball. I know I have been in the game for many years, but I'll tell you I have not had the chance to size them all up, but I will hand a lot of candy to my present side partner, Kid Elberfeld. Some years ago when I was playing second base for the Detroit Tigers I had a little experience with the Kid. The latter is game to the core. No matter what you do to him, he will take it without batting an eye. But you have to watch out when his chance comes. When he was playing with New York he got me once when I wasn't looking for anything and gave me a pretty hard bumping as I came back to the bag. I tried to get back at him and learned how luck will break against a fellow. The next time I went to bat I passed the word that if I reached first no one was to give me the signal, because I would go down on the first ball pitched, having an engagement at second. I had a good lead and was away with the pitch. But there wasn't a chance to get Norman, because Catcher Kleinow pulled him off the bag with a wide throw, and I had to keep on for third without a chance to exchange compliments. I was ready for the Kid when the time came. He reached first, and I tipped O'Leary that I would take the throw if he stole. When he came down I was all ready, with my elbows in the right place. He came in just as I wanted him to, spikes first and feet up in the air. But the throw was short, and I had to run in to get the ball. Afterward Elberfeld told me he had me dead if I hadn't pulled off the bag. But that's what he thought.

Jones Makes Difference.

No use talking, Tom Jones stiffens up that Detroit team. He fields in grand shape, hits the ball hard, and he's got the stuff. You cannot find him sticking around any infirmary if there is a chance for him to wax into action and get into his garb.

Hit In Head, Bats Good.

Catcher Street of the Washingtons was hit on the head by a ball in Detroit and has been batting good ever since. McAleer was hit on the head by a fist in Detroit, and the Washingtons have been going at a fast clip ever since.

Rooting Does Not Always Help.

Hugh Jennings is not sure that rooting helps a ball team in the long run. The players become accustomed to the rooting on the home grounds and miss it on the road.

ARGENTINA BATTLESHIP WILL BE A MONSTER

As Much Larger Than Arkansas as That Battleship Surpasses the North Dakota

Argentina Is Broader, Bigger and More Freeboard

The most complete statistics relative to the Argentine battleship, building at Quincy, is contained in an article published in The Navy this month. A comparison is made with the United States battleship Arkansas which is considerably larger than the North Dakota, which was recently built at Quincy. The North Dakota is of 20,000 tons displacement, while the Arkansas will be 26,000, and the Argentina much larger. The Argentina is broader, bigger and has more freeboard, and calls for greater speed. The Navy gives these statistics:

Length over all—Argentine, 585 feet; United States, 526 feet; breadth on load water line—Argentine, 98 feet; United States, 93 feet 21-2 inches; mean draft, trial displacement—Argentine, 27 feet 6 inches; United States, 28 feet 6 inches; displacement, normal—Argentine, 27,500 tons; full load—Argentine, 30,200 tons; United States, 27,243 tons.

TWO CLUBS MAY FORFEIT RIGHT TO ENTER QUINCY CUP RACES

Have Failed to Name the Yachts Which Will Represent Them in Series Which Opens Tomorrow

This is the last day on which challenging yacht clubs can name the yachts which will represent them in the Quincy Cup races which begin tomorrow. Two of the clubs have not been heard from and they may be too late. It is assured however, that there will be six yachts in Saturday's race as follows:

Ellen (defender),—Boston club.
Cima,—Manchester club.
Nel—Eastern club.
Harpoon—Quincy club.
Bonivee—Hingham club.
Sally XI,—Corinthian club.

Nothing has yet been heard as to the names of the challenging boats which may represent the two Buzzards Bay clubs, the Beverly club and the Sippican club.

The Ellen, therefore, as far as known, is the only yacht that participated in last year's races that will complete this year and she is the defender instead of the challenger.

The races will be sailed in Hull bay and as stated above will start Saturday.

The time of the race which was set for 10 o'clock, has been changed to 10.45, which will enable racing men to get down from Boston in time to see the races.

GAS PROFITS INCREASE

Net Earnings Were $8,576 The Past Year

The net earnings of the Citizens Gas Light Company of Quincy show an increase of $12,238 for the year ending June 30, 1910, over the preceding year, according to the report of the Massachusetts Gas Companies just issued.

Here are the figures for the month of June for four years:

June 1907,	deficit $457
June 1908,	deficit 691
June 1909,	deficit 354
June 1910,	surplus 1,702

The increase in the gas output of the Quincy company for June was 29 per cent plus, compared with 32 per cent plus for June 1909. For the year however the increase of the gas output was 36 per cent. plus compared with 32 per cent plus for the preceding year.

The net earnings of the Quincy company for four years follow:

Year Ending
June 30, 1907,	deficit $5,554
June 30, 1908,	deficit 8,065
June 30, 1909,	deficit 3,662
June 30, 1910,	surplus 8,576

The percentage of increase of gas output for the year was much larger in Quincy than eleswhere. The increase of the Boston Consolidated Company was less than 3 per cent, and for the East Boston company less than 18 per cent, compared with Quincy's 36.82.

BAPTIST ANNIVERSARY

Swedish Church Established Twenty-five Years Ago

The first of the series of services in celebration of the twenty-fifth anniversary of the Swedish Baptist church was held Thursday evening at the church on Granite street and was largely attended. The program on the opening night included singing by the choir of the Bethel beach church and the regular church choir.

Pastor Westerberg, the first pastor of the church, spoke briefly in the way of congratulation, as did also Pastor Bjork, a former pastor, and Rev. A. P. Hanson, the present pastor. The address of the evening was given by Pastor Lindstrom of Brockton. All of the addresses were in the Swedish language.

Tonight there will be a service at 7.30, at which the sermon will be delivered by Rev. Mr. Westerberg.

The Swedish Baptist church was organized June 5, 1885, but it was not until June 20, 1886, that Rev. John P. Westerberg became its first pastor. Previous to that time services had been held in Wilson's hall and were conducted by Rev. A. E. Ludin of Boston and Rev. A. J. Holm of Campello. Rev. T. A. Englund succeeded Rev. Westerberg in May 1899, and remained as pastor until 1901, when he was succeeded by Rev. John Bjork. Pastors since that time have been Rev. A. E. Lysell and Rev. A. P. Hanson, the present pastor, also began his pastorate July 2, 1908.

The present church home was commenced under the pastorate of Rev. Mr. Westerberg and was completed and dedicated May 10, 1896. Its cost was $6,500.

Wide-awake merchants are keeping right before the buying public this summer and advertising their goods. Ledger ads bring results because it is a home paper; a family paper full of clean home news. Its circulation which is five times larger than any other in the city, makes it a good advertising medium.

LARGE SUM INVESTED IN AUTOMOBILES

The Assessors Found About 300 Valued at Over $200,000 This Year

There Are Now 25,531 Registered in Massachusetts

Some idea of the amount of money Quincy people have invested in automobiles may be learned when it is known that the aggregate assessment placed upon by the assessors this year is over $200,000. There are quite a number of trucks used by different firms, but the larger part of the cars are used for pleasure. The assessed value of these cars ranges from $50, which is the value set upon some car that can be heard coming half a mile away, to $1,200 for one of those noiseless running cars that creep silently upon you so that it is only by the honk, honk, of the horn that causes one to turn about and step lively.

The total number of cars of all kinds found by the Assessors in their annual trip about the city in April and May was 297, and the average value as found by the Assessors is $695.

While the assessed value, as shown by the Assessors books, is $206,000, that figure does not represent all, for there are many cars in their list owned by corporations which are taxed in another way, upon which no assessed value is shown. For illustration the books show that the Fore River Ship Building Co. own an automobile, but as that company is a corporation no value is placed upon it. As a matter of fact, however, the actual value of the car when purchased a few months ago was over $6,000. There are quite a number of similar cases, so that it would be safe to say that $250,000 would be nearer the amount invested in these pleasure vehicles.

It is interesting to know who the Quincy people are who are fortunate enough to own automobiles, and the Daily Ledger therefore prints below a complete list as taken from the books of the assessors. The list besides giving the owners name gives the make of the automobile, and the registration number which is displayed.

It will be noticed in some cases in the list, that no number is given, and in some cases the make of the car is not given. This is due to the reason that at the time the automobile was assessed the owner had not been assigned his registration number.,

During the first six months of 1910 there were registered in Massachusetts 25,531 automobiles, an increase of

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

A dispatch from Washington in today's issue will be of interest to battleship contractors and shipbuilders in general. It is a decision of the Attorney General relative to the eight-hour clause to be inserted in the contract for the new battleship to be awarded in a few months.

The dispatch intimates that it is a victory for the private shipbuilders, but it looks more like a victory for the Steel trust against whom labor waged its battle. It is not easy to reach the makers of material that enter into a battleship. The government may regulate hours on battleships, that is work done at the shipyards, but to say where the Fore River company shall buy its material is another question.

Unless the Fore River Company is ready to put its shipyard in Quincy upon the eight-hour basis for all employees, it probably will not put in a bid for new battleship soon to be awarded. Should some other company get the contract, it could under the ruling of the Attorney General, take a sub contract for turbines or other machinery.

DISASTER AT FORT MONROE

Ten Artillerymen Killed When Breech-Block of Gun Blows Out

Norfolk, July 22.—Ten enlisted men men were killed, three were fatally and three less seriously injured and one commissioned officer was hurt in the blowing out of the breech-block of a 12-inch gun at Fort Monroe. The explosion occurred during an attempt to stop an imaginary fleet from passing the fort and thus reaching Washington.

The accident was due to the premature explosion of a full charge of powder, but what caused it is unknown and probably never will be. All who were in sight of the gun when the explosion occurred were killed.

Most of the dead lost their lives from being struck by burnt powder, which, before consumption, is in large grains and heavy. Only the breech-block was blown from the gun, and that is not known to have struck anyone. All the killed and wounded belonged to the Sixty-ninth company of coast artillery.

HUSBAND CLAIMS BODY

Woman Slain In Squalid Flat to Be Buried at Home

New York, July 22.—Permission was granted by the Brooklyn authorities for the removal of the body of Mrs. John Herterich, who was found brutally murdered in a furnished room at 6 Norman place, to her old home in Piermont, N. Y., which she deserted, leaving her husband and two children three months ago, for an existence in New York.

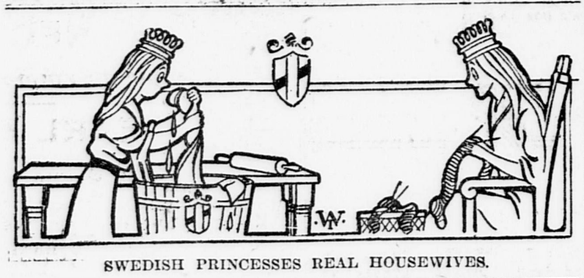

In Piermont she was accustomed to exery luxury, a fine home, plenty of money, automobiles, yachting and other recreations, but in Brooklyn she lived in squalor and misery.

She would have been welcomed back in her old home for the sake of her two children, but she was, her friends said, too proud and at the same time too broken-hearted over the step she had taken to face her husband and the little ones again. The last days of her life were spent in regret over her action. The police have found no clue to the murderer.

—The people could rule if they chose ,and they could get what they wanted if they wanted it bad enough to make practical assertion of the right to rule. It is easy to say that representatives in congress and the state legislatures ignore their campaign promises ,that presidents and governors play politics instead of devoting their energies to promotion of the public welfare and that partisan leadership hoodwinks the body of the voters and leads them by tricks and subterfuges to support men for office who have neither patriotic motives nor ability to qualify them. But after all, it comes back to the failure of the electorate to exercise the power belonging to it.—Norfolk, Va., Pilot.

SWEDISH ROYAL LIFE HAS ITS DRAWBACKS

THE Duke of Westgotland, a younger brother of the king of Sweden, and his wife, who was Princess Ingeborg, eldest daughter of the king of Denmark, are believers in the simple life. Their two children, Princess Margaret, eleven years old, and Princess Martha, nine, are taught to do every kind of housework. They even have to wash their own clothes in a plebelan washtub.

SWEDISH PRINCESSES REAL HOUSEWIVES.

The tubs they wash their emblazoned handkerchiefs in must be scrubbed out and turned up in the sun to dry by the princesses' own fair hands, and the holes in their royal stockings they must darn themselves. They have to make their own beds in the morning, shake out the rugs, rinse out the hand basins, put the sponges out in the air to sweeten, after which they have time to sit down and make themselves little house jackets to do the rest of their housekeeping lessons in.

Princess Margaret is not particularly handsome, though she doubtless will be the bride of some handsome cavalier. Her sister Martha is a sweet, rather thin faced child with a "soul's awakening" look in her eyes, and she gets most of the sympathy.

Smart young officers think her little hands should not be allowed to get rough with soap and water in the washtub, and there have been several more or less private protests. But the parents have always answered:

"My dear young man, when Martha is old enough to stop washing for fear of spoiling her hands she will be just old enough to be proud she knows how. Her husband she shall choose herself, as shall her sister, and we believe she will choose one that likes a woman who knows how to do everything in the house. Then she will have no trouble in getting things properly done for her."

BETTER LOOK BEFORE SIGNING

Russian an Object Lesson For Careless Public Officials.

City officials who sign documents without taking the trouble to read them gain a lesson from an experience which recently befell M. Veritelnikoff, governor of Kostroma, Russia. The event excited some surprise, as the governor was a thoroughpaced reactionary and noted for his zeal in crushing out any manifestations of progressive life in the government over which he ruled. No reason for his resignation could be adduced, and it remained a mystery for some time. But this is the secret:

M. Veritelnikoff was so occupied that he often signed documents brought to him by his subordinates without troubling to read them. Taking advantage of this, one of his enemies secured his signature to a letter which was dispatched to the ministry of the interior and caused such astonishment that a telegram was sent to Kostroma ordering the governor to come immediately to St. Petersburg.

When M. Veritelnikoff arrived the letter was handed to him. To his utter surprise, it contained his resignation. He read with amazement such passages as "I am absolutely no use and incapable of ruling the government confided to me," followed by a confession of failure and the statement, "I have made a mass of blunders." But he could not dispute that the signature at the end of the letter was his.

He owned that he often signed papers without knowing their contents and had sufficient sense of humor to tender his resignation on the spot. Under the circumstances M. Stolypin could do nothing but advise the czar to accept it.

PARIS TO SPEND $200,000,000

Will Be Used For Boulevards and Public Buildings.

The municipality of Paris has been authorized to borrow the immense sum of nearly $200,000,000. Half of this will be used for the upkeep of municipal edifices and the erection of new buildings and for parks and promenades. The other half will be used for the creation of new boulevards and highways and the maintenance of the old.

One of the interesting units in the scheme for improvement is a projected letter X bridge. If erected it will cross the Seine, one branch connecting the Rue de Rennes with the Rue de Louvre and the other forming a junction between the wharf of the Louvre and the wharf Conti. A single pier rising from the Seine will hold the center of the bridge up.

WARSHIPS SOON ANTIQUATED

Weight of Projectiles and Displacement Grow Steadily.

The newly launched Ersatz Frithjof, Germany's tenth Dreadnought, replaces the old battleship Frithjof, built in 1891, which has become obsolete under the twenty year limit enforced in Germany in reckoning the efficiency of battleships. A comparison of the new and old ships is interesting:

	1891.	1901.
Displacement, tons	4,049	22,000
Length, feet	267	490
Horsepower	4,800	28,000
Speed, knots	14	20
Cost	$875,000	$11,000,000
Armament, inches	3, 9.4	12, 12.2
Armament, inches	8, 3.4	14, 5.9
Armament, inches		20, 4.1
Weight of gunfire	1,614	14,120

Thus, while the displacement is only multiplied five times in the modern vessel, the weight of metal thrown in one discharge of all guns is over eight times as great as in the other type.

ENGLAND HAS BEERLESS BEER

Looks and Tastes Like Real, but Does Not Stagger.

Consul General John L. Griffiths of London furnishes the following information concerning a new temperance drink now being introduced in England:

There has been recently placed on this market a beverage which, it is claimed, is nonintoxicating and still resembles and tastes like the intoxicating beer. It is brewed from malt and hops only and has no preservative in it. It does not look unlike beer, and the taste is very similar. It is made of precisely the same materials as the best English home brewed ale, but alcohol is almost entirely eliminated, and it is stated that there is no chemical admixture of any kind. The amount of alcohol produced by the brewing process in this beverage is given as nine-tenths of 1 per cent, which is less than the percentage to be found in any of the ginger ales, stone beers and other temperance beverages.

The process by which this beverage is made is the invention of a French scientist, while certain modifications were made by one of the professors of the Paris Pasteur institute and an English brewer. Two kinds are made —ale and stout. The ale, it is claimed, has the flavor of a light beer, and the stout tastes almost exactly like a good quality of London stout.

FIRM INSURES EMPLOYEES.

Policies Given as Bonuses In Novel Merit System.

An innovation by a publishing concern at Glen Ridge, N. J., is being watched with great interest by manufacturers and employers of labor generally in New Jersey and by labor unions.

The company has insured every one of the 150 men and women employed in its plant as a kind of merit system, and the size of the policy is indicative of the esteem in which the employee is held. The insurance takes the place of a bonus in appreciation of extra work and loyalty.

In each case the employee selected the person who was to be the beneficiary, and the company paid the premiums and will continue to pay them so long as the employee remains with it. When he leaves or is discharged the policy is given to him, and he may continue it or permit it to lapse.

The policies do not provide for any accident insurance and are written upon the lives of the persons insured. The company cannot benefit in any way, although the keeping up of the policies will cost many thousands of dollars every year.

YANKEE GRANITE FOR SCOTS.

Aberdeen, Home of Building Stone, Likes Carolina Variety.

Regardless of the fact that Aberdeen is the home of Scotch granite, a granite company of that city has imported a large shipment of the stone from quarries in South Carolina. Why the Scotch company expects the venture to prove successful regardless of the cost of transport across the ocean and the excessive cost of quarrying in the United States as compared with similar work in Scotland is told by the following extract from an Aberdeen publication:

"It is expected that there will be a demand for the American granite because the trade is suffering badly from a scarcity of good gray stone for polished work. All foreign granite coming to this country is brought because there is a demand for a variation from native stones and on account of special beauties in color."

ARMED CAMP IN VERMONT

White River Junction Railroad Yards Heavily Guarded

STRIKEBREAKERS ATTACKED

Greeted With Volley of Stones at West Lebanon—Stonethrowers Dispersed by Deputy Sheriffs at Windsor—Pistol Flourished at Girls by Conductor—Grand Trunk Is Moving Freight, According to Officials

White River Junction, Vt., July 22.—With two score or more heavily armed strike-breakers camped here in the railroad yards and a number of instances of violence in the stoning of the substitute men on Central Vermont passenger and freight trains during Thursday, the strike situation has assumed a more serious situation than at any time since the opening of the trouble.

The first act of violence which has occurred here took place when a stone thrown at a passenger train struck a strike-breaking brakeman between the shoulders and nearly knocked him from the car.

Last night, as a strike-breaking crew was returning from switching freight cars across the Connecticut river to the Boston and Maine yards in West Lebanon, they were met with a volley of stones just as they were leaving the West Lebanon yards. The strike-breakers declared the stones were thrown by railroad men. No one was hurt, and Deputy Sheriff Stearns, who was in the yard, took steps to prevent the attack from assuming a more serious form.

A mob of nearly 200 men met the evening train which pulled in at Windsor from the south at 8:01 o'clock last night, and as the husky armed strike-breaker conductor stepped from the train he was met with a volley of stones.

The stone-throwers were standing a short distance above the station. The conductor of the train was unhurt and no one suffered injury as far as could be learned. Deputy sheriffs cleared the locality of men and prevented any further demonstration.

John Burke, a strike-breaking conductor on the New London train, was arrested at Brattleboro, charged with flourishing a revolver at a group of girls who, he said, had called him names. He was released on bonds for a hearing July 30.

The movement of freight between the Central Vermont and Boston and Maine roads was greatly facilitated during the day and last night.

The first through freight to leave for the south over the Boston and Maine road since the strike began went out from the West Lebanon yards at 5:15 last night, being made up of the cars which had been transferred from the junction during the day.

The strike-breakers are quartered in an old building in the junction railroad yard and in two sleeping cars drawn up on a siding near the station.

As Viewed at Montreal

Montreal, July 22.—"Freight" continues to be the slogan and the problem in the Grand Trunk railway strike. The strike leaders reaffirm that all are quietly awaiting an expected time when the railroad will find resumption of its freight business impossible and will make such wage overtures to the strikers as will induce them to return.

At company headquarters, however, there is optimistic persistence in high pressure work in freight crew construction, freight yard clearance and betterment of the local suburban passenger service and it is stated that the strikers have been eliminated wholly from the situation.

INVOLVED IN SCANDAL

Supposition That Monon Railroad President Feared to Face Trial

Chicago, July 22.—Death came to Ira C. Rawn, president of the Monon railroad, supposedly from a bullet fired by himself, but certainly on the eve of possible exposure as a central figure of what is declared may be one of the greatest railroad scandals of the country.

Counsel for the Illinois Central railroad, when confronted with a verbatim copy of questions and answers at a recent investigation of the company's affairs, admitted that the foundation had been carefully laid with intent to show Rawn as primarily responsible for years of crooked car contracts.

Long Drive With Goat Team

Washington, July 22.—Having driven a team of angora goats a distance of more than 4000 miles as the result of a wager, Captain V. Edwards, a ranch owner of San Diego, Cal., arrived here from San Diego.

Bay Rum Kills Soldier

Portland, Me., July 22.—As a result of drinking bay rum, James R. Rockley, aged 22 years, a private in the Eighty-ninth company, coast artillery, died here. He was stationed at Fort Williams.

BY FLIPPING A COIN

Treasurer of a Long Island Fire Department Is Chosen

Riverhead, L. I., July 22.—The flip of a coin decided who should be elected treasurer of the Riverhead fire department. There were two candidates, John S. Howe, secretary if the Riverhead Trust company, and Ellis S. Duvall of the Suffolk County bank.

When the directors of the fire department met four voted for Howe and four for Duvall. A coin was finally tossed and Howe won.

WHITE MAY RESIGN

Rumor That Lawrence Aldermen Will Elect New Mayor

Lawrence, Mass., July 22.—As a result of a statement made to newspaper men by City Solicitor Murphy it is rumored in the city that Mayor William P. White, serving a three years' sentence in the house of correction, will resign his office and that the board of aldermen will elect a new mayor.

The city solicitor, whose opinion on the mayor's legal status has been eagerly awaited for some time, would not say whether he thought the mayor could still legally act as the city's chief executive, but merely stated that he had told White his opinion, and that the mayor was willing to do what was right.

Indian Skeleton Dug Up

Plymouth, Mass., July 22.—The skeleton of an Indian, more than six feet in height and in perfect condition, was found here by workmen at a depth of only a foot and a half below the surface of a street.

Candidates File Declarations

Concord, N. H., July 22.—Clarence E. Carr of Andover, N. H., filed with the secretary of state a declaration of his candidacy for governor on the Democratic state ticket. Henry H. Metcalf filed a declaration of his candidacy for congress from the Second district.

Just the Contrary.

"I suppose you're one of those idiots that touch wet paint to see if it's dry."

"No, I'm not. I touch it to see if it's wet."—London Punch.

HANDS AROUND.

Judd Mortimer Lewis.

A little bit of laughter,
A little bit of song,
A little bit of frolic,
How it helps the world along!
A little bit of kindness,
A word of hearty cheer—
Oh, hands around, my brothers,
The little while we're here.

A little of good fellowship,
A little "go and win,"
To the man that's on the ladder,
To the fellow going in.
A smile of consolation.
A word of hearty cheer
To the fallen one my brothers—
It isn't long we're here.

A helping hand to raise him,
To put him on the mend—
Oh just a hand to help him,
It isn't much to lend.
A step or two beside him
Until his way is clear,
A godspeed at the parting—
It isn't long we're here.

A stooping by the wayside
To train a wayward bloom,
A light a-down the pathway
To lighten up the gloom;
A song and double shuffle.
A ringing laugh and clear--
Oh, hands around, my brothers,
The little while we're here!

ALLEGED PICKPOCKET

Arrested at Houghs Neck After Lively Chase

Henry Miller, who says that he is 21 years of age, and that he resides at 13 Oneida street, Boston, was arrested at Houghs Neck Thursday evening by Inspector McKay after an exciting chase, for attempting to pick the pocket of Michael J. Walsh of Sea street, Houghs Neck.

Walsh with some compaions arrived in City Square on a Brockton car shortly before 7 o'clock. When the passengers began to leave the car three young men crowded about him and one of them, said to be Miller, attempted to pick Walsh pocket. Walsh says that he felt a hand inside his vest pocket where he carried his pocketbook. Without turning to see whose hand it was he grasped the wrist and drew it back. At that, it is said, that Miller's companions pushed him off of the car out of the way, and they then managed to lose themselves in the crowd.

Walsh had $38 in money in his pocketbook and the first thing he did was to make sure that was all right. But for a boy named Carrigan who stood in the crowd and saw the whole transaction the crowd would probably have got away. He kept his eye on Miller and told Inspector McKay that the fellow took a car for Houghs Neck.

Accompanied by Walsh and the boy, Inspector McKay took the next car for Houghs Neck. When they arrived the boy saw Miller standing in front of the Casino ,and pointed him out to the officer. When they started for him Miller ran. Inspector McKay chased him through back-yards and over fences, until Miller apparently thought that he had again lost himself. Shortly after Inspector McKay spotted him on the piazza of an pick the pocket of Walsh, Miller stoutly denied the assertion and said that he had just hired the cotage for the season and was looking it over. unoccupied house smoking a cigarette, and immediately grabbed him.

When accused of attempting to He was, however, taken to Quincy and locked up on the charge of attempted larceny from the person. He was later bailed out and appeared in court represented by counsel.

Before the case was called, however, Inspector McKay telephoned to Boston for Inspector Sherlock, who knows about every pickpocket in the country, to come to Quincy to look the fellow over, and see if he could recognize him. Inspector Sherlock came to Quincy on the 10.15 train.

After looking Miller over Inspector Sherlock said that he was a new one to him.

When arraigned in court Miller asked for a continuance until next week Saturday ,and was held in $1,000 bonds until that time.

ARGENTINA BATTLESHIP

sides, 11-inch back, 3-inch top; connin gtowers, forward 12-inch ,after 9-inch; barbettes, 9-inch armor details United States, thickness and distribution not known, but believed to be approximtaely as heavy and efficient as for the Argentine ships, with possible exception of bottom (anti-torpedo) protection ;doubtless the armor scheme of these United States vessels will closely resemble that of the Delaware and Florida classes.

He Needed a Prodding.

His arm was round her waist, her hand was on his shoulder, and they were walking through the fields as they had been wont to do for nine long years.

"Em," said he, "we've been coortin' a tidy time now."

"Nine year come nex' August bank holiday, George."

"I told you, fust start off, as how I shouldn't be in no hurry to git married, Em."

"You didn't tell no lie about it, neither, George," she declared, with a sigh.

"You're a-talkin' as if you was sorry that I'm a man o' my word, Em," he said reprovingly.

"Well, George," she replied, "now you mention it I have bin thinkin' this last year or two that if you could see your way to go back on your word just this once it wouldn't be amiss."—London Mail.

—The Northwestern elevated railroad of Chicago has not only posted a notice forbidding its employes to use liquor in any form when on duty, but it also refuses to allow an employe to come to work if there is even the smell of liquor about him when he shows up for duty. It is the policy of the road to discharge employes who are recognized as users of liquor either off or on duty. If found to frequent saloons when off duty they are deemed habitual users of liquor and subject to dismissal. A similar policy is in force on every railroad entering Chicago. What is true of Chicago applies generally throughout the business world. The old type of hail-fellow-well-met commercial traveler, whose first thought was to "take a drink," is rapidly passing. There are few of them left capable of attracting custom, who are tolerated because of long service, but the young men entering on that line of work either cut out liquor for themselves or are compelled by their employers to do so.—Healthy Home.

SCIENTIFIC COOLING.

All the long day I think about the snow,
The whitened pond, the frost king's frozen lair,
The berg's cold sides, the gleaming icy floe,
The tempest's bluster and the north wind's blare.

All the night long I dream of Greenland's shores,
The ice thatched cottage of the Eskimo,
The ice bound sledge, the somber sky that lowers,
The winter's night that moves so chill and slow.

I muse and dream of arctic ice and chill
Until my veins run cold these summer nights
And often wake and fancy that the shrill
North wind roars through my bones and bites.

And thus ofttimes while others wilt with heat
And lean all limply like a wetted rag
I have to put on my half frozen feet
An extra blanket and hot water bag.

BIG MEASURES AWAITING NEXT CONGRESS' ACTION.

Merchant Marine and Injunction Regulation Are Among Them.

There is trouble ahead for the next session of congress. Several tough propositions in the way of big bills are on the program. Among them are those for merchant marine and the regulation of injunctions. Then there are the measures to create the Appalachian and White mountain forest reserves and to permit the federal incorporation of railroads and other common carriers.

The fragments of the Taft legislative program which failed of congressional enactment at the session just ended are already being culled over and put in trim for next winter. The following calendar is already made up:

To create the Appalachian and White mountain forest reserve.

To build up the merchant marine by a system of ship subsidies.

To regulate the granting of injunctions.

To permit the federal incorporation of railroad and other common carriers.

To regulate the issue of stocks and bonds of transportation companies.

The enactment of additional conservation measures, eight bills remaining without action.

To establish a bureau of public health.

To encourage the study of agriculture and the mechanical arts, for which an appropriation of $10,000,000 is proposed.

A form of civil government for Alaska.

Modification of the Sherman anti-trust act.

Codification of the postal laws and reorganization of the postal system.

A plan for the retirement of civil service employees.

To expedite litigation in federal courts.

Beyond these there are many minor matters to come up for action. Among them are the Rockefeller foundation charter and a measure for the regulation of cold storage.

Two important investigating committees will make their reports and possibly a third one. It is certain the Ballinger-Pinchot committee will report its findings to congress, and the committee which is to make the inquiry into the election of Senator Lorimer will do likewise.

CHEROKEES TO AID SINGER.

To Raise $30,000 Fund For Redskin Prima Donna.

That Suzanne La Homa, the stage name of Mrs. Horace McDaniels, may be able to finish her musical education under the best instructors in foreign countries the proposal has been made that each Cherokee citizen give $1 of his share of the $3,500,000 soon to be paid to the Cherokees by the federal government. This would make a fund of nearly $30,000.

Suzanne La Homa is a Cherokee by birth, being a member of the widely known Cobb family. Two years ago Mme. Schumann-Heink consented to hear Suzanne La Homa sing and became her patron, taking Suzanne with her to Berlin and choosing a teacher for her. Mme. La Homa lately returned to her home that she might show her friends what progress she has made.

RIDS GOLF LINKS OF MOSS.

New Machine Combs Out Sod Successfully.

The fact that the sod of golf courses and bowling greens in England is often covered with a considerable quantity of moss in the early spring has led to the designing of a device to be used either with a lawn mower or as a separate implement that tears up the moss and allows the young grass to come up. It also tears out the hard, dry tufts of old grass, for which purpose it could be used advantageously on the golf courses of this country.

The device, which is called a moss extractor, is a light toothed wooden cylinder. It is fitted to a lawn mower by taking out the knife cylinder and removing the sole plate. The teeth do not merely brush the top of the grass, but actually comb it out without harming the young grass.

Special Tires For Aeroplanes.

The demand for special tires for aeroplanes has grown so large in the last year that at least one big tire concern has made the providing of such tires a branch of the business. The special requirements are strength coupled with extreme lightness and resiliency. They must be strong for the work they have to do when the machine is on the ground and yet so light that they add but little weight.

FURNITURE MOVING
BY AUTOMOBILE TRUCKS

We operate two powerful automobile delivery trucks and promptly attend to long distance moving.

By this modern and quick method you obviate the annoying delays heretofore necessary when goods had to be packed, carted to freight—transported by freight with all the usual delays and customary rough handling—carted at the other end—and then unpacked.

Distances from 40 to 75 miles are readily covered in a day and goods loaded in the morning are delivered in new home the same day, at an expense in many cases less costly than that of old time methods.

RHODE ISLAND HAS 542,674 POPULATION

Census Returns Show Large Gain Over Those of 1900

Washington, July 22.—Census returns of Rhode Island give it a population of 542,674 an increase of 26.6 percent, as compared with 428,556 in 1900.

Providence, 224,326, as compared with 175,597 in 1900; Pawtucket, 51,622, as compared with 39,231 in 1900; Woonsocket, 38,125, as compared with 28,204 in 1900; Newport, 27,149, as compared with 22,034 in 1900.

The population of Rhode Island has been announced at this early date to meet the needs of the legislature, which will convene early in August for the purpose of redistricting the state.

These returns are of a somewhat sensational character. Were the whole country to gain at this rate we would have a population of 98,000,000. The striking phase of it is the increase of the larger cities, Pawtucket and Woonsocket adding in the decade more than 30 percent to their population of 1900, while Providence adds nearly 28 percent. The smaller cities exhibit only moderate growth.

MILLIONS SEE CEREMONY

Royal Proclamation of Crowning of New King of Great Britain

London, July 22.—Medieval pomp and ceremony again held sway in this city when the coronation of George V next June was proclaimed to the millions that make up London's population.

The brilliant ceremony was similar in detail to that of the proclamation of accession, but was marked by dull and threatening weather. The streets were thronged, however, thousands of American tourists who missed the accession proclamation turning out.

It is estimated that fully 2,000,000 persons watched the display. Several women were bruised and fainted in the jam, but none was seriously injured.

SHORT CUT TO NEW YORK

New Line From Boston by Way of the Cape Cod Canal

Boston, July 22.—It is announced to complete the canal, but the Newly acquired Commonwealth pier in South Boston will be used as a dock for a line of steamers which the road intends to operate between Boston and New York through the Cape Cod canal.

It will take two years and a half to complete the canal, but the eNw Haven authorities are looking ahead to changes which it is believed the canal will bring about, especially in transportation by water.

POSTAL BANK FACES SNAGS

Several Problems Which Are Not Easy of Solution

WORK FOR CENTRAL OFFICE

About Ten Million Passbooks Will Be Sent to and From It Twice a Year—Force of Probably Four Thousand Bookkeepers Will Be Engaged on the New Work—Several Months Before System Will Be In Operation

Washington, July 22.—The postoffice department is beginning to face some of the cold realities of the postal savings bank law. For days the special department commission, headed by H. H. Thompson, superintendent of the division of finance, has been wrestling with the formation of plans for organization and preparing a report for the trustees.

The board finds that about six million depositors use the banks in Great Britain and partly from this basis have estimated that ten million persons in time will patronize the postal banks in the United States.

It will be necessary for each postoffice handling the money to keep two ledgers or a total for the service of from eighty thousand to one hundred thousand. It may gladden the heart of the bookkeeping fraternity to learn that probably four thousand bookkeepers ultimately must be employed on the new work.

Several devices for giving receipts to depositors have been examined, among them postal cards and coupons, but so far the financial sharps of the commission have been unable to discover how the government can avoid issuing a passbook to every depositor as every other bank of deposit does.

It is believed also that it will be necessary to establish a central office, probably in Washington, for the computation of interest, and this will necessitate eventually the sending of about ten million passbooks to and from this office twice a year.

The special commission is meeting daily and hopes soon to present figures showing the estimated cost of the new system. It was announced some time ago that even if the plans for instituting the postal banks were complete, it would be several months before the government could print and distribute the books and documents needed to put the system in operation.

DEATH OF REV. DR. RUGG

Head of Templars, Trustee of Tufts College, and an Author

Providence, July 22.—Rev. Dr. Henry W. Rugg, grand master of the Grand Encampment of Knights Templar of the United States, and grand master of Masons of Rhode Island, died at his home here of a complication of diseases.

He was a trustee and secretary of the corporation of Tufts college, which conferred the degree of doctor of divinity upon him in 1878, and was well known as a Universalist minister. He was a thirty-third degree Mason and an honorary member of the supreme council of the northern district of Massachusetts. He was born in Framingham, Mass., Sept. 3, 1833. He was the author of several books of historical nature and also on Masonry.

SAIL OVER SIX STATES

Aeronauts In Record Trip From Philadelphia to Rhode Island

Pascoag, R. I., July 22.—The balloon Philadelphia II, rising from Philadelphia, picked out Rhode Island for its landing place and after traversing over six states and journeying nearly 300 miles, came down two miles south of Pascoag, 235 miles air line from Philadelphia.

The balloon was piloted by Thomas E. Eldridge, president of the Philadelphia Aeronautical Recreation society. The passengers, also of Philadelphia, were Fred C. Underhill and his son, Andrew B. Underhill.

In distance and duration of time, 12 hours 5 minutes, the trip broke two Quaker City records. The highest altitude reached was 10,550 feet, or but ten feet less than two miles.

SWINDLER OF BRIDES

Much-Married Dr. Keeler Is Said to Have Very Bad Record

New York, July 22.—That Dr. Henry B. Keeler, now under arrest in Detroit, aided by his wife posing as his "sister," married a half dozen women in New York city and vicinity and then swindled them out of from $5000 to $10,000 within the last three years, is the assertion made by Captain Coghlan, in charge of the Brooklyn detective bureau.

The captain declares that already he has received four complaints, and that he has heard of several more. An estimate of the money obtained in this way, he says, would amount to about $75,000.

Farmer Uses Razor on Throat

Newfield, Me., July 22.—Joseph Nutter, aged 60, a prosperous farmer of this town, committed suicide by cutting his throat with a razor.

Getting Desperate.

Some of the office buildings in the large cities are constructed apparently with the idea that every possible square foot of space must be utilized for renting purposes. The corridors are narrow, the passageways to the elevator shafts hard to find and the stairways located in obscure corners. There may be fire escapes, but they are equally obscure, and a stranger would not know where to look for them.

The occupants of a room on the seventh floor of a building of this kind, devoted to the uses of a fire and life insurance companies' agent, were surprised one day by the sudden entrance of a wild eyed man who seemed to be laboring under strong excitement.

"Say," gasped the intruder, "will some of you fellows please throw me out of this building!"

"What for?" asked one of the clerks.

"I've been trying for fifteen minutes to find a way out of it, and I can't."

They did not throw him out, but piloted him to the elevators, and he succeeded at last in making his escape.—Exchange.

Nearly a School Scandal.

What might have been a terrible sensation, calling for public investigation and much newspaperiety, was averted by the visit of a shocked mamma to one of our public primary schools. A friend of the mother was calling at the house and asked the little daughter, "How do you like your teacher?"

"Oh, my teacher is nice," answered Tot, "but she is always asking us for a cigarette."

"What?" cried the lady and the mamma in horrified tones, seeing contamination of the morals of Tot under the teachings of a modern bachelor of the feminine gender.

"Yes, mamma. She says, 'Cigarette, cigarette.'"

The next day mamma visited the school. As she entered the class room the teacher was calling first to one child and then to another, "Sit erect, sit erect!" while Tot flashed a glance of intelligence and "Didn't I tell you so?" at her mother.—Wasp.

It Is a Wise Child.

An official of the immigration bureau at Ellis island told a story of a wise little immigrant child.

"A little girl came over in the steerage in search of her father, whose name she gave us. We sent for the man, and he came and looked at her.

"'I can't tell whether this is Mary or not,' said he. 'I haven't seen Mary since she was a baby about three months old. How can I tell, then, whether this is Mary or not?'

"It was a question we couldn't answer, so we looked from him to the child and from the child back to him, remaining silent.

"Finally, when we were all at our wits' end, he looked earnestly at the child and said plaintively, 'Am I your father?'

"And the wise little child answered quickly, 'Yes, you are.'

"And so we made her over to him."—New York Press.

"Hang on Tight."

When a smoking car with thirty-five passengers jumped the track, a railroad engineer in the car, off duty, yelled to the passengers to "hang on tight," and while the car turned over no one was hurt.

"Hang on tight" is good advice in most upsets. The man who hangs on tight to himself when his temper is upset will get through without hurting either himself or others. The man who "hangs on tight" to his earnings ends with a competence. The man who "hangs on tight" to his place when business upsets come generally holds down his job. The man who "hangs on tight" when discouragement or even disaster upsets others is a man to be hopeful about, because he will keep right side up whatever else turns over.—Philadelphia Press.

Saved by a Dream.

"Hints conveyed by dreams are occasionally worth heeding," says the London Chronicle. "The late Lord Dufferin when in Paris dreamed that he was in a hearse on the way to the cemetery. A few days later, as he was about to enter the elevator of a certain hotel, he was startled to find that the attendant was a double of the driver of the hearse in his dream. He thereupon promptly left the elevator and walked upstairs. The car ascended without him, but as it neared the top something in the mechanism gave way, and the passengers met their death. Had they also, one wonders, been forewarned in a dream?"

A Voracious Monster.

The most voracious of all marine beasts of prey is the orca, or killer whale. It reaches a length of twenty-five feet, and its jaws bristle with teeth from four to six inches long and as sharp as a dirk knife. Its digestive power is proportioned to the tremendous efficacy of its jaws. It seems also to be an atrocious glutton, as one specimen examined contained in its stomach thirteen porpoises and fourteen seals.

Private Shipbuilders Win, According to Wickersham

AMENDMENT TO NAVAL BILL

Eight-Hour Law Found to Be Applicable Only to Navy Work Done Upon Vessel Where It Is Built—Does Not Apply to Machinery or Other Material Made Elsewhere to Enter Into Building of War Craft

Washington, July 22.—By the narrowest kind of construction of the eight-hour law in its application to the construction of naval vessels Attorney General Wickersham probably has made it practicable for private shipbuilders to take government contracts without disorganizing their plants.

This is the amendment to the naval bill that was proposed by Representative Fitzgerald of Brooklyn, and the enactment of which has raised a serious question as to whether or not private firms will bid for warships, with the possibility that the government would be forced to construct most of them at the Brooklyn navy yard.

The decision is just the kind desired by the navy department; it places the narrowest possible construction on the act. The attorney general cites the original eight-hour law which is made applicable to warship construction, and then says:

"I think it is clear that the provision in the naval appropriation act must be construed to apply simply to work done upon the vessel at the place where it is built, and not as applying to the manufacture of machinery or other material elsewhere which is to enter into the construction of the vessel."

"This means," said an official of the navy department, "that the eight-hour law is to apply only to the construction of the hull at the private contractor's plant; also to the installation of whatever armor, machinery and other equipment may be manufactured elsewhere. All this outside work may be done without regard to the eight-hour limitation. Only after it has been delivered at the ship contractor's yard and is being installed on the vessel is the law to affect such material.

"This is a great victory for the government. It will solve many of the objections to the law, and I think that contractors will now freely bid for battleship contracts."

The decision is likely to lead to trouble. The amendment was framed in part to strike a blow at the Bethlehem Steel company. Just before the amendment was adopted congress received a report of labor conditions at the Bethlehem company's plant, showing the men were being worked twelve or fourteen hours a day and otherwise being mistreated.

It was the intention of Fitzgerald that the eight-hour law should apply to the manufacture of armor and other steel parts for warships. The attorney general's decision exempts outside firms from the operation of the law. There seems little doubt that if the government and the private armor manufacturers proceed on this theory the labor organizations will carry the question into court.

There is still some doubt whether private contractors will bid for the new battleships, the torpedo boats and other vessels recently authorized. They have said all along that they would not demoralize their working forces by putting some of the men on the eight-hour basis, as would have to be done in undertaking to build battleships under the Fitzgerald amendment. Some of the firms have been every emphatic in this position.

It is believed, however, that the narrow construction placed on the law by the attorney general will induce most of the big firms to bid. The department has considered the construction of both the battleships at the Brooklyn yard in the event of the private firms refusing to do this work. The same situation applies to the building of the two revenue cutters authorized at the recent session.

SYNOPSIS

(CHAPTER XIII—Continued.)

Steele spoke now. His dark eyes shone strangely. A sardonic expression lurked there. The proprietor could bring his companion a steak if he had one. Large or small? Large, with an enigmatical smile.

The proprietor hustled out.

A voice, hoarse, that of a man, was heard:

"The blarsted fog is coming down fast."

The smaller man drew back. A shiver seemed to run over him. "They are a long while about the steak," he murmured.

"Your testimony helped to send him over the water, I believe?" said Steele, pointing out the picture of the Frisco Pet to Dandy Joe.

"How do you— I ain't on the stand now, Mr. Steele!" A spark of defiance momentarily came into Dandy Joe's eyes.

"No, no!" John Steele leaned back. "The harm's been done so far as you are concerned. You as a factor have disappeared from the case."

"Glad to hear you say so, Mr. Steele I mean," the other's voice was uncertain, cautious, "that's a matter long since dead and done with. But as for my testimony helping to send him over the water"—

"Or under!" sotto voce.

Joe swallowed. "It was true, every word of it."

"Good!" John Steele spoke almost listlessly. "Always stick by any one who sticks to you, whether a friend or a pal or a patron."

"A patron!" From the other's lips fell an oath.

"But even if there had been something not quite—strictly in accord—which there wasn't"—quickly—"a man couldn't gainsay what had been said," Dandy Joe began.

"He could," indifferently.

"But that would be"—

"Confessing to perjury? Yes."

"Hold on, Mr. Steele!" The man's eyes began to shine with alarm. "I'm not on the"—

"I know. And it wouldn't do any good if you were."

"You mean"—in spite of himself the fellow's tones wavered—"because he's under the water?"

"No; I had in mind that even if he hadn't been drowned, your"—

"Wot! Hadn't?"

"That," said John Steele, "doesn't matter. The principal subject of any consequence relating to you is the steak, which is now coming." As he spoke he rose, leaving Dandy Joe alone at the table.

For a time he did not speak, sitting before a cheerless fire that feebly attempted to assert itself.

Once when the proprietor stepped in he asked, without looking around, for a certain number of grains of quinine with a glass of water—they probably kept it at the bar. Yes; the man always had it on hand and brought it in.

By this time Dandy Joe had pushed back his chair. His dull eyes gleamed with satisfaction, also perhaps a little calculation. He was thinking. A certain matter in which self interest played no small part had come to mind. Joe regarded him covertly. "Asking your pardon for referring to it—but you've helped so many a poor chap—there's an old pal of mine what is down on his luck, and he was asking of me for a good lawyer who could give him a straight talk."

"I am not at present"—Steele experienced a sense of grim humor—"looking for new clients."

"Well, I thought I'd be mentioning the matter, sir. You see, he's been out of old England for a long time and was going away again, when wot should he suddenly hear but that his old woman that was died and left a few hundred pounds or so—enough to start a nice little pub for him and me to run—only it's in the hands of a trustee, who is waiting for him to appear and claim it."

"You say he has been out of England?" John Steele stopped. "How long?"

"A good many years. There was one or two little matters ag'in him when he left home, so he wanted to see a lawyer and find out, in any case, how he could get his money without"—

"The law getting hold of him. What is his name?"

"Tom Rogers."

The blood surged to Steele's temples. "You can give me this Tom Rogers' address." He could barely control his voice in his agitation.

"I, sir—you see, I can't quite do that, for Tom's laying low, you understand. But if you would let him call around quiet-like on you"—

"On me?" Steele spoke slowly. "I hardly think the case will prove sufficiently attractive." The proprietor stepped in. Steele took the change that was laid on the table, leaving a half crown, which he indicated that Dandy Joe could appropriate.

"Better not think of going now, sir," the proprietor said to John Steele. "Never saw anything like it the way the fog has thickened."

Dandy Joe stepped toward the door. "I'm going to have a try."

John Steele waited a moment, then with a perfunctory nod walked quietly to the front door. He looked in the direction his late companion had turned. His figure was just discernible. In a moment it would have been swallowed by the fog, when quickly John Steele walked after him.

CHAPTER XIV.

THROUGH THE FOG.

THE dense veil overhanging the city, while favorable to John Steele in some respects, lessening for the time his own danger, made more difficult the task to which he now set himself. He dared not too closely approach the figure before him lest he should be seen and his purpose divined. Once or twice Dandy Joe looked around, more perhaps from habit than any suspicion that he was followed.

At a crossing, where opposing currents had met and become congested, utter confusion reigned. From the masses of vehicles of all kinds, constituting a seemingly inextricable blockade, arose the din of hoarse voices.

Joe essayed to cross. By dint of dodging and darting between restless horses he reached the other side. A sudden closing in of cabs and carts midway between curbs held John Steele back. He caught quickly at the bridle of the nearest horse and forced it aside. An expostulating shout, a half scream from somewhere greeted the action. A whip snapped, stung his cheek.

"Turn back. Get out of this somehow, cabby!" He heard familiar tones, saw the speaker, Sir Charles, and, by his side—yes, through the curtain of fog, so near he could almost reach out and touch her, he saw as in a flash Jocelyn Wray!

She, too, saw him, the man in the street, his pale face lighted up ghostlike from the mist. A cry fell from her lips, was lost amid other sounds. An instant eyes looked into eyes, hers dilated, his unnaturally bright, burning! Something struck him—a wheel. He half fell, recovered himself, managed to reach the curb.

Dandy Joe had disappeared. The hope of attaining his end through him, of being led to the retreat of one he had so long desired to find, had proved illusive.

John Steele did not go far in mere aimless fashion. Leaning against a wall, he strove once more to plan, but ever as he did so through his thought the girl's fair face, looking out from enshrouding lace, intruded.

He forgot his purpose, when a figure coming out of a public house through one of the doors near which he had halted caught his attention. Dandy Joe, a prodigal with unexpected riches, wiped his lips as he sauntered past John Steele and continued his way, lurching a little.

For a time they two seemed the only pedestrians that had ventured forth that night in a locality so uninviting. Through the gulchlike passage swept a cold draft of air. It made little rifts in the fog and showed an entrance—a dim light. At the same time the sound of the footsteps in front abruptly ceased.

For a few minutes Steele waited. He looked toward the place Dandy Joe had entered. It was well known to him and, what seemed more important, to Mr. Gillett. The latter would remember it in connection with the Frisco Pet and presumably turn to it as a likely spot to search for him who had been forced to leave Captain Forsythe's home. That contingency—nay, probability—had to be considered. The one person he most needed to find had taken refuge in one of the places he would have preferred not to enter. But no time must be lost hesitating. He had to choose. Dismissing all thought of danger from without, thinking only of what lay before him within, he moved quickly forward and tried the door. He entered, felt his way in the darkness through winding passages downward, avoiding a bad step—did he remember even that?

How paltry details stood out! The earthen floor still drowned the sound of footsteps. The narrow hall took the same turns.

AT THE BOSTON THEATRES

KEITH'S THEATRE.

There has been a series of summer sensations at Keith's and not least of which was "The Maid of Mystery," whose identity is still secret, and for the coming week there will be another exceptionally strong bill, a feature of it being plenty of laughing material. Laura Burt and Henry Stanford, whom last season were with the New Theatre company, will appear in a sketch called "The Order of the Bath," that contains some of the most amusing situations placed upon the stage in a long time. The bath is really a bath room and by a spring lock a young society girl and a typical Englishman are locked in it for the night. The situation is decidedly humorous ,and Miss Burt and Mr. Stanford get all there is out of it. Another feature will be the Temple quartet, unquestionably the best male quartet now in vaudeville. Julia Frary is also on the bill ,and other features are Lamaize, Bennett and Lamaize, acrobateic clowns; De Haven and Sidney, the dancers; the four Readings; and other big features which will be announced later.

AMERICAN MUSIC HALL.

Practically everybody in New England and at least a majority of the rest of the people of the country are familiar with Newton Newkirk's "Bingville Bugle" which has been a big comic feature of more than a score of representative newspapers. This coming week Bostonians and those living within a reasonable radius of the Hub will have their very first opportunity of becoming intimately acquainted with all the famous characters of that feature. Mr. Newkirk has dramatized "Bingville Bugle" and although showered with offers from other managers to have the opportunity to produce it first, he has arranged with Lindsay Morison to have his stock company present it at the American Music hall this coming week. In other words reproductions of Bijah Barker, Hen Weathersby, Bud Hinkley, Seth Dewberry, Amelia Tucker, Doc Livermore and all other Bingville characters will be seen in the flesh on the American Music hall stage. Ordinarily the premiere of such a play "Bingville Bugle" would excite considerable comment but Mr. Lindsay Morison's securing of new material at all times is nothing out of the ordinary. Critics who have read Mr. Newkirk's manuscript and have seen the play in rehearsal are of the unanimous opinion that it is far better than any rural play yet produced in America. In addition to being chock full of good wholesome comedy, it contains a beautiful love story which forms the basis of the theme and which furnishes splendid opportunities for the work of which Mr. Morison's players are known to be capable.

Hetty Green Preparing to Turn Them Over to Her Only Son

New York, July 22.—To assume direction of his mother's business affairs Edward H. R. Green of Texas is here. He is the only son of Mrs. Hetty Green, the richest woman in America.

Mrs. Green is in her 75th year, and is beginning to feel the burden of her wealth and the pressure of duties involved by her investments in many companies. Green is 42 years old, has lived the life of an active man of affairs and politics, and is thoroughly equipped to take up the threads of his mother's business.

TAKE INEXPENSIVE WEDDING JOURNEY

Seventy-Year-Old Couple Visit Aquarium and Have Lunch

New York, July 22.—Rabbi Herman Tausky and Mrs. Barbara Hillman, each 70 years old, were married by Rabbi Theors. Their wedding journey consisted of a trip to the Aquarium. They will live at 116 East One Hundred and Twelfth street, where Mrs. Tausky has lived for the last twenty-seven years.

After they were married and visited the Aquarium they had breakfast in a restaurant. The bridegroom had a roast beef sandwich and a large cup of coffee. The bride had a baked apple, ice cream, charlotte russe and a demi tasse.

SOME FINE GUNNERY

Artillerymen Smash Target to Pieces In Full Service Practice

Boston, July 22.—Captain Stitt and the Fourth company of artillerymen from New Bedford are being awarded the palm for being the best marksmen to date of the coast artillery corps.

In the full service practice at the 10-inch rifles at Fort Warren their gun pointer fixed the distant target so accurately that the last two shots fired from Battery Bartlett knocked the target into smithereens.

This piece of marksmanship came during the practice given the reserves yesterday in the firing of full service charges. The first of the projectiles from the 10-inch gun struck the target plumb full and tore a hole in the canvas so large that nothing but the uprights were left standing.

MARSHALL CAUGHT IN THE QUAKER CITY

He Denies Taking Part In the Fleecing of Coleman

Philadelphia, July 22.—When arraigned before Commissioner Craig in the federal building, John R. Marshall denied that he had any connection with the swindlers that fleeced George W. Coleman of Cambridge, Mass., out of $300,000 he stole from a banking institution there.

The accused man admitted, however, that he knows John H. Strohsneider of New York, familiarly called "Jack" by faro players, and "Big Bill" Keliher, both of whom have been arrested in connection with the fleecing of Coleman.

"Send me back to Boston," he said at the hearing, "and I'll prove my innocence."

Marshall was arrested while in the company of a woman who was living with him here and who Marshall says is his wife. In Boston, the police declare, she was Mrs. Nellie Penn, and ran a boarding house.

CONFEDERATES UNKNOWN

Convict Counterfeiter Refuses to Enlighten State Prison Officials

Boston, July 22.—Confederates of the convict counterfeiter caught plying his trade in Charlestown state prison have not yet been run down, although the prison officials and secret service agents are turning the institution inside out in their hunt for other members of the coiner band.

That the counterfeiter, who passed a spurious half dollar on a fellow convict in payment of a bet on a prison ball game, and in whose cell the mould and metal for making coins were found, had one or more assistants is regarded as certain, but he refuses to render the investigating officers any assistance in this respect.

The Long Silence.

"Yes, we are pretty comfortably fixed here," admitted a veteran employee in the reading room of the Congressional library when a visitor envied him his soft berth and comfortable surroundings. "But there's one thing we long for—yes, thirst for with a burning thirst. That's noise—a real, nerve racking, ear splitting noise. The long hours of soft silence, the dead stillness of everything about, grows so oppressive that at times we could shriek out. We get into a sort of sickroom tiptoe and a low tone of voice that finally degenerates into a whisper even at the telephone. "She uses Lenox Soap."

That is pretty good evidence of a woman's qualifications as a housekeeper.

It shows that she knows values.

For it is a fact that Lenox Soap is good value—it is cheap AND good.

Lenox Soap—"Just fits the hand"

A Storekeeper Says:

"A lady came into my store lately and said:

"'I have been using a New Perfection Oil Cook-Stove all winter in my apartment. I want one now for my summer home. I think these oil stoves are wonderful. If only women knew what a comfort they are, they would all have one. I spoke about my stove to a lot of my friends, and they were astonished. They thought that there was smell and smoke from an oil stove, and that it heated a room just like any other stove. I told them of my experience, and one after another they got one, and now, not one of them would give hers up for five times its cost.'"

The lady who said this had thought an oil stove was all right for quickly heating milk for a baby, or boiling a kettle of water, or to make coffee quickly in the morning, but she never dreamed of using it for difficult or heavy cooking. Now—she knows.

Do you really appreciate what a New Perfection Oil Cook-Stove means to you? No more coal to carry, no more coming to the dinner table so tired out that you can't eat. Just light a Perfection Stove and immediately the heat from an intense blue flame shoots up to the bottom of pot, kettle or oven. But the room isn't heated. There is no smoke, no smell, no outside heat, no drudgery in the kitchen where one of these stoves is used.

Cautionary Note: Be sure you get this stove—see that the name-plate reads "New Perfection."

BRIEFS

Special Saturday bargains are advertised by the Payson-Mitchell Co.

A Washington dispatch today relative to the eight-hour clause will be found of interest to shipyard men.

James H. Elcock, the overseer of the poor, left Thursday for a brief business trip to New York.

In some places they spread oil on streets. In Quincy they just put it on. There were puddles enough of oil in City Square to cover quite a space.

Miss Helen F. O'Reilly of Brook street is at Montreal to attend the golden jubilee of her aunt Mother Superior Mary of St. Theresa of the Holy Cross convent at St. Laurant.

The annual garden party of the Harbor outing vacation club of Boston an organization composed of working women, will be held at Squantum next Wednesday.

T. L. Williams and son will leave Saturday by boat for Rockland, Me., and will visit several towns along the coast, It will be Mr. Williams first vacation for fifteenth years.

Seventeen members of the Dorcas club enjoyed the annual outing of the club on Thursday evening. They left by car at 5.55 and most of their time at the beach was spent at Paragon park. They started for home at 10 o'clock, well pleased with the trip.

There was a good attendance of ladies and gentlemen at the whist party at the Quincy Yacht club house Thursday evening. The party was one of the social events arranged by the house committee and was a very enjoyable affair.

A regular meeting of the Ward Four Improvement society was held Thursday evening at Dolan's hall. The meeting was well attended and there was a general discussion on the needs of the ward. No special action, however, was taken upon any of the matters that came up for discussion.

MOVING PICTURES.

There was a good attendance Thursday evening on the opening night of the moving picture show given by the Alph Amusement Co. Shows were given at 7.15 and 8.30, and in addition to a number of movin gpictures shown there were illustrated songs by Ralph Hawkes and Miss Anna Hammond. The pictures were all of the better class and the illustrated songs of the kind that appeal to refined tastes. Special matinees for ladies and children are given on Wednesday and Saturday afternoons, and there will be a change of pictures Mondays and Thursdays.

FOUR MEN RESCUSED

None to Soon for Disabled Boat Soon Sank

But for the prompt work of James A. M. Nash, janitor o fthe Quincy Yacht club house, and J. L. Harvey, four men would probably have been drowned Thursday afternoon in Quincy bay. The four men put out from Hull in a sailing dory. There was a good breeze blowing,and when they got into the West gut a sudden puff of wind caused the frail craft to turn turtle. Messrs. Nash and Harvey saw the overturned dory near Peddocks island and the men struggling in the water.

Both immediately put out in power boats and hastened to the rescue. In the meantime the four men were clinging to the overturned dory. When the rescuers reached them one man was unconscious, and the other three were nearly exhausted . They were pulled aboard the rescuing power boats and taken to the Quincy Yacht club house, where restoratives were given them, and after some time they revived. When asked their names the men refused to give them as they did not want their names to be published. After their clothing had sufficiently dried out they returned to Hull by cars from Quincy. Shortly after being rescued their dory sank.

POPULAR NEW LINE.

The people of Quincy are finding the new service which the Old Colony Street Railway Company has inaugurated between Braintree depot and Campello by way of Randolph and Avon very convenient as a means of reaching Highland Park, which this year is one of the most popular amusement resorts in southern Massachusetts. By making use of this route, the fare from Quincy to Highland Park is 15 cents while the running time is greatly shortened and there is only the necessity of one change at Braintree. The last car leaves Highland Park on the return at 10 P. M., giving plenty of time to enjoy the various attractions which the park affords.

Aside from the high-class performances in the theatre ,the dance board the big Cavioli organ and many other regular features, next week there will be an unusually interesting free, outside show. This will be in the form of a series of concerts afternoon and evening by the Royal Scottish Bagpipers ,one of the most unique and famous musical organizations in the world.

TODAY'S COURT.

Michael Walsh and Dennis McGee fined $5 each for taking clams from prohibited flats at Quincy.

Manuel Salvatore was fined $16 for having eight short lobsters in his possession at Cohasset.

Henry Miller was arraigned for attempted larceny from the person at Quincy and was held in $1,000 until Saturday, July 30.

—Practically a recommendation from his pastor will be required by a New York man after Aug. 1 to get an automobile license. The new law effective that dates provides that no man addicted to drink or drugs or who has been in a number of accidents due to his own carelessness will be permitted to run an automobile in that state. The law is to be enforced right up to the handle. Drivers, whether owners or chauffeurs, will be closely watched and reckless running will be followed by revocation of license. In this way it is hoped to make the streets and highways of the state safe and sane.

TEAMSTER RUN OVER

Reported to Have Broken Leg And Fractured Ribs

Thomas Holland of Kent street, a teamster, was severely injured this morning near the quarry of C. H. Hardwick & Son, when his horses started. Holland stood on the pole of his wagon, between the two horses, when they suddenly started and threw him off. Before he could recover himself the team passed over him. Fortunately, however, it had not been loaded. The police ambulance was called and he was removed to his home refusing to be taken to the hospital. It is reported that he received a broken leg and had some of his ribs fractured. He was attended at his home by a physician.

SPORTING NOTES.

Local baseball fans are looking forward to Saturday's game at Merrymount park between Makaria and Malden Athletics. Makaria defeated Malden's champions 1 to 0 early in the season, and a great game is anticipated. The Malden boys play fine ball and with Grethe and Queen in the box against Stan Bates something ought to happen. So be with the crowd and enjoy a good game at Merrymount park at 3.30 P. M.

The Quincy Cricket Club will play their second match against the West Indian Athletic club on Saturday at Franklin Field, at 3 P. M. The third match will be played at Quincy.

"Black Bart," Road Agent.

Charles E. Bolles, known to fame as "Black Bart," was incomparably the most conspicuous character in the history of western stage robbers. From 1875 to 1883 "Black Bart" is known to have committed twenty-seven stage robberies single handed. Northern California stage drivers stood in constant fear of this unique desperado. On various occasions the drivers were able to give a good description of his figure, hair, feet and hands, yet no clew to his actual identity was gained during the eight years of his stage robbing career. He was finally betrayed by a laundry mark on a cuff which had dropped from his wrist when opening a treasure box which he had taken from a Wells Fargo stage in San Joaquin valley. When he was finally captured in San Francisco the detectives were amazed to find the famous "Black Bart" a slight, quiet mannered man of fifty-five, familiar in face to all the San Francisco detectives. He had for years frequented a little restaurant near police headquarters where many of the detectives dined.—W. C. Jenkins in National Magazine.

Got It at Last.

It is told of a distinguished professor of history that, in an address before a woman's club on "Obscure Heroes of the French Revolution," he had reached the point where one of them, nobly resolved to essay the rescue of a friend doomed to the guillotine, sought a parting interview with his sweetheart before making the almost hopeless attempt. The professor had a moving voice and was eloquent. The assembly of women, many of them already near tears, hung breathless upon his words.

"Biddy, diddy," said he pathetically, then coughed slightly and went back. "Hiddy biddy"— Something was evidently amiss. He tried again.

"Biddy hiddy diddy doo."

By this time the ladies looked puzzled and the orator desperate. Drawing a long breath and speaking with painful deliberation, he at length conquered the elusive syllables and said:

"Did he bid adieu?"—Youth's Companion.

A Lincoln Anecdote.

Jaspar Alban Conant tells the following anecdote of Lincoln in the Metropolitan Magazine:

"One of the comical characters in Washington during the war was jolly old Isaac Newton, the Philadelphia Quaker whom Lincoln appointed commissioner of agriculture—a new office just created by congress. Newton, who tried and at the same time amused the president, had made his reputation on a dairy farm. Beyond this he knew little of agriculture.

"Hearing which, I could not refrain from asking Lincoln why he had appointed such an ignorant man to the office.

"'Because I think he's competent enough to attend to all the agriculture we will have till the war is ended,' was the answer."

QUINCY CUP RACE
HELD IN HULL BAY

Captain Bartlett's Three Cheers.

A series of Revolutionary scenes were given in a London theater some months after the close of that memorable war. On the one side was the English army in full red coated uniform, with every button in its exact place. Opposite them was the American army, composed, as the theater bill stated, of "artisans, cobblers and tinkers," arrayed in their working dress, with buttons of every size and hue. When the curtain dropped, Captain Bartlett of Plymouth, Mass., the captain of a ship then in port, stood up in his seat in the pit and, in a voice as if given from a quarterdeck in a squall, called, "Three cheers for the artisans, cobblers and tinkers who were too much for King George and his redcoats," and, with a wave of his hat, he gave these with a will. For a short time there was silence in the theater, followed by an enthusiastic John Bull appreciative cheer for the pluck and assurance of the Yankee captain, who became the lion of the city, receiving invitations to clubs and free tickets to theatrical and other entertainments while he remained in port.

Just a Little Too Smart.

A scrubwoman in a Paris theater found a magnificent diamond stomacher in a box in sweeping up. The honest old soul determined to restore the stomacher to its owner, and the owner, of course, wasn't long in turning up, a young woman splendidly dressed and on the verge of hysteria. "Oh, have you found my stomacher?" she cried. "It is a chef d'oeuvre of Lalique of the Place Vendome." "Calm yourself, madame," said the scrubwoman. "Here is your stomacher." And she produced it from her pocket. The other took out a fifty dollar bill, pressed it on the honest scrubwoman and departed with her stomacher hurriedly. But an hour later another lady called. "Have you found my stomacher?" she asked, smiling. "I think I left it in my box." "Why, yes, madame, but if it was your stomacher," said the scrubwoman, "a thief has got it. She got it this morning. She gave me $50 reward." "Why, the stomacher was imitation," the lady said. "It only cost $5. Your thief is $45 out."

Mr. Gladstone's Catch.

"How many members of this house," asked Mr. Gladstone once in the course of a debate on electoral qualifications, "can divide £1,330 17s. 6d. by £2 13s. 8d.?"

"Six hundred and fifty-eight," shouted one member.

"The thing cannot be done," exclaimed another.

A roar of laughter greeted this last remark. But it was true nevertheless. You cannot multiply or divide money by money. You may repeat a smaller sum of money as many times as it is contained in a larger sum of money, but that is a very different thing. If you repeat 5 shillings as often as there are hairs in a horse's tail you do not multiply 5 shillings by a horse's tail. Perhaps you did not know this before. Never mind; you need not be ashamed of your ignorance, for it was shared, as has been demonstrated, by the entire house of commons (bar one member), including the then chancellor of the exchequer.

Hunter and Hunted.

A nearsighted sportsman strolled into a little hotel on the shores of Loch Carron and complainingly said, "Just seen a seal, shot at it three times and missed it each time."

At dinner an hour later he sat next to a tourist who had a bandage round his head.

"Had an accident?" asked the sportsman.

"Accident!" growled the other. "Attempted murder, you mean. I was having a bath about an hour ago when some lunatic with a gun fired at me three times from the shore and shot part of my ear off. I don't know why such animals are allowed out without a license."

Then silence reigned supreme.—London Telegraph.

Lavishness.

"In days of old luxurious people had cloth of gold placed beneath their feet."

"Yes," replied Mr. Chuggins. "But those times were comparatively economical. Now we want nothing less expensive than rubber tires between us and the earth."—Washington Star.

There Was No Music.

"What is the greatest fib that ever impressed itself on your experience, Snapper?"

"Well, by all odds, the worst one I ever heard was that your quartet perpetrated last night when they came round to the house and sang 'There's Music In the Air.'"

The Terms of Exchange.

"We wish to arrange for an exchange of prisoners," announced the South American dictator.

"On what basis?" inquired the leader of the other side.

"The usual basis—eight generals for a good, husky private."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Quick Sprint.

Sandy Pikes—Dat rich guy in de bungalow took quite a fancy to me. He took me around to de stable, showed me de $5,000 bulldog he had just bought and asked me if I could beat it. Gritty George—And what did you say? Sandy Pikes—Nuttin'. I just beat it.—Chicago News.

Was Willing.

Smith—You and Jones don't seem to be as friendly as you were. Does he owe you money? Brown—No, not exactly, but he wanted to.

SWEDES PLAN OLYMPIC GAMES

FOOTBALL ON BARRED LIST.

Golf, Hockey, Lacrosse and Many Others Dropped—Judges of the Events Will Be Selected From Other Countries Than Sweden.

The international Olympic committee held its meeting at Luxemburg, where the program for the Swedish Olympic games was discussed. A number of changes from the list of events given at London were effected. Several competitions were dropped and some new ones put on. Such sports as hockey, football, golf, lacrosse, polo on horseback, tennis, rackets and boxing were dropped. The Rev. S. de Courcy Laffan, the English delegate, spoke in favor of including boxing, but after an objection from Colonel Balch of Sweden the "manly art" was tabooed. The standing high and broad jumps have been relegated, as also the 400 meter hurdle race. The pentathlon, or five event all around contest, will be revived, but it will be different from that at Athens in 1906, as there will be a 1,500 meter run instead of wrestling.

Then there will be a decathlon, or ten event all around, the list being given below. The question of judging the events was discussed at length, and the Swedes will appoint foreigners, but they must not exceed one-third of the whole jury. Any country sending an entry of five events will be entitled to have a representative on the international jury. No cable or telegraph entries will be received by the Swedish Olympic management.

In the athletic program the following events have been suggested: One hundred meters, 200 meters, 400 meters, 800 meters, 1,500 meters, 5,000 meters and 10,000 meters, all flat races for individual entries, with 110 meter hurdles and a five mile steeplechase in which four of the entries for each country will run as a team and will score as such, though all entries will also be considered as individual entries for individual prizes in the same race. It was pointed out by the English representatives that a relay race of only 400 meters, each man in the teams of four being given 100 meters, would be very dangerous, and its consideration was postponed. A relay race of 1,600 meters was proposed with teams of four, each to run 400 meters, and another team race of 3,000 meters was suggested in which five could enter and three could score. In jumping the items were high and broad jump (both standing and running in each case), pole jump, hop, step and jump and a further variety which had better for the present be described as a Swedish jump.

The antiquated and mistaken item of the discus "as at Athens" has finally been dropped from the Olympic program by the decision of the international committee at Luxemburg, and, though the discus will still have two competitions, both of these will be in the "free style," but in the first the athlete will throw with one hand (either right or left), and in the second he will throw with each hand, the score he makes with his right being added to that made with his left to form a total. Exactly the same method will be followed in the score for putting the weight, which therefore has two competitions, and in throwing the javelin held in the middle, but the javelin has a third competition as well, for the "free style," in which a man may hold it how he likes and in either hand provided he uses no aid except his hand in throwing. Both the hammer and the tugs of war will be the same as in London.

A walking race of ten kilometers was added at the special request of the British representatives, but it will be seen that the field events still considerably preponderate over the track races, and this superiority is increased by the inclusion in the athletic program of a pentathlon and a decathlon, in each of which new and independent entries have to be made, as similar performances done in other events will not count. The pentathlon will consist of the broad jump, 200 meters flat, discus, javelin and 1,500 meters flat. The decathlon will include on the first day, 100 meters flat, broad jump, weight, 400 meters flat, high jump, and on the second day, hurdles, discus, pole jump, javelin, 1,500 meters flat. A challenge cup has also been offered by Baron Pierre de Coubertin for a "modern pentathlon," consisting of, one, a foot race over obstacles; two, shooting; three, swimming; four, a test of horsemanship; five, a competition in either boxing, fencing or wrestling.

"Kitty" Bransfield Makes Record.

"Kitty" Bransfield, the Philadelphia Nationals' first baseman, recently made a record of runs scored and driven in that may not be equaled for years. In a recent game at Forbes field the Philadelphia player got five hits, two of them triples, and not only scored three runs himself, but drove in eight others. Kitty's hitting alone gave Philadelphia eleven runs.

COMMITTEE AT WORK

Will Give Attention First to Needs of Workingmen

The committee on better train service appointed at the meeting held Wednesday evening under the auspices of the Board of Trade met last evening at the rooms of the Board of Trade in the Adams building. Henry L. Kincaide presided, and there was an informal discussion on the train service in general and the best method of procedure.

It was decided that a sub-committee be appointed to wait upon the railroad officials in regard to immediate needs, particularly workingmen's trains from Quincy Adams that do not now make the South Boston stop.

This committee includes Henry L. Kincaide, Timothy J. Collins, Walter E. Piper, William H. Teasdale, Frank E. Badger and Herbert C. Snow. The committee will meet tomorrow afternoon to arrange for the conference.

It was voted to call a meeting of the general committee some evening next week to hear suggestions as to a general revision of the timetable.

BRAZILIAN BATTLESHIP.

A cable from London to the Herald says: The new battleship Rio de Janeiro; which is being built by a British firm for the Brazilian government, will according to the plans, be by far the biggest in the world, displacing 32,000 tons, mounting 12 five-inch guns and costing approximately $14,500,000.

The original Dreadnought displaces 17,500 tons. Great Britain's biggest warship, the Lion, to be launched in August, has a displacement of 26,000 tons.

CITY COUNCIL PLANS.

An adjourned meeting of the City Council will be held Monday evening and unless present plans fail the Council will adjourn until September. It was planned to adjourn a week ago but an amendment to one of the loan orders made another meeting necessary. Three committees have met this week, and there promises to be considerable business to demand the attention of the members of the Council on Monday.

—The executive committee of the Atlantic deeper waterways convention to be held at Providence, R. I., has just made provision for a gigantic clambake at which it is expected to seat 2,500 people. It will be held Sept 2 and is to be the largest clambake ever given in the state.

PROFIT AND PLEASURE

At Sessions of Summer Schol for Girls

The Summer School for girls at the Women's club house on Goffe street has completed one-half of its work. The past week has been a strenuous one, each teacher feeling that the time was short and that she must make the most of every moment.

Girls in the Cooking class reported that they had made bread at home during the week. One girl had made six loaves, another girl had made eight, and yet another girl had made ten loaves of bread which were used in the girls' homes. Besides bread, the girls have made biscuits, sponge cake, and they have learned to make "a good cup o ftea."

The Business class girls are working upon letter writing. The letters are in the form of applications for situations.

The largest number of girls are registered in the Home Nursing class. Every day the room in which Mrs. M. J. L. Kennedy gives her lesson is crowded to overflowing. The girls are very anxious to learn how to take care of the sick. Mrs. Kennedy has taught the girls how to prepare light nourishment for sick persons. One lesson was upon soft solids. Then came a lesson upon burns, bruises, and an elementary lesson upon hemorrhages and some simple directions as to what to do in these cases.

The causes of fits and some easily remembered directions in regard to general treatment of these cases; how to restore persons who have been exposed to drowning, with demonstration of the treatment; diarrhoea, its causes, proper food while this condition lasts, instruction in how to use the home remedies and necessity for medical advice were impressed upon the girls.

The success of this course is due to the rare qualities of the teacher. She is a woman with a fund of knowledge and with unusual ability to impart it. Her pleasing personality and sympathetic nature no doubt account for her ability to hold such a large number of girls and receive such good attention.

Miss Birse, who is teaching geography and the sort of miscellaneous information that girls can only get by her sort of direct training, holds her girls by the hour and they seem reluctant to go when their time is up.

A large number of girls have been taught the swimming motions and need now practice to make them swimmers. All the girls in the school will have the swimming instruction. The folk dancing which Miss Bass is teaching the girls is quaint and picturesque.

Friday Mrs. Walter E. Burke entertained the girls most delightfully. She told the girls how Mr. Hughes had recently classed Dickens as one of the famous educators and she showed them that the reason for this was that he tried to reform the school by writing about the poor ones. She told a little about the various schools of which Dickens had written and gave a vivid picture of the "Squeers School." Mrs. Burke then told the story of David Copperfields' life in a most interesting manner. This was followed by a few jungle stories for the younger girls. The morning was one of profit and pleasure.

—Walter M. Dunbar, president of the Brockton Retail Merchants' Association seems to be a versatile man for in the absence of the pastor of the East Bridgewater M. E. church will occupy that pulpit on Sunday, Aug. 14 and conduct the service.

NEW CONTRACT AT FORE RIVER

Large Amount of Work Beside the Battleship

Business is humming at the Fore River shipyard, for several new contracts have recently been received.

The latest is a steam trawler to be christened the Ripple. This makes two new trawlers as the company has the Foam well under way. The success of the Spray in this kind of fishing is very evident, for she makes frequent trips and brings in large fares at Boston.

The company is also building two large car floats for the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R., and has a contract for a passenger and freight steamer to run between New Bedford, Martha's Vineyard and Nantucket.

The mammoth battleship for Argentina is rapidly taking shape and progressing very satisfactorily.

Good progress is also being made on the new office building which the company is erecting on East Howard street near the present office building.

A report of the Massachusetts Gas Companies this week shows that the three colliers built at the Fore River —the Malden, the Melrose and the Everett —are making good. Their earnings during the year ending June 30, 1910, were $57,278. The total coal shipments since the company began business March 1, 1909, aggregate 2,931,594. About three-fourths of the June shipments were for outside consumers.

NEW YORK BOY CHAINED.

New York also has a case where a child was cruelly chained. A dispatch of Friday says: With a heavy four-foot iron chain padlocked to his ankle ,and the other end of it fastened securely to the family washtubs, Rosario Nichitto, a 10-year-old boy, was found today by Agent Leggett of the Children's Society.

The boy, when taken to the court, told Justice Wyatt that he had been chained there by his father three days ago. He slept under the washtubs, he said, and had had nothing to eat in that time ,except a crust or two of bread his mother had thrown him. The lad said that once before he had been chained up for three weeks, and it appeared from the society records that he had been found wandering homeless on the streets last May, declaring his parents had driven him away from home. He was later paroled in their custody. His parents will be summoned for a hearing.

QUINCY CHALLENGER TAKES FIRST RACE

Charley Adams Familiar With Hull Bay and Sails Harpoon to Victory

Her Closest Rival Was the Ellen

It had been expected for several weeks that there would be eight yachts in the contest this year for the Quincy Challenge Cup, but the Beverly and Sippican clubs of Buzzards bay had no boats which would undertake the sail around Cape Cod, and at the last moment it was found that the Bonivee of the Hingham Yacht club did not measure within the requirements of the sonder class, and was therefore disbarred.

The yachts to come to the line this morning were:

Ellen (defender),—Boston club.
Cima,—Manchester club.
Eel,—Eastern club.
Harpoon,—Quincy club.
Sally XI,—Corinthian club.

HOUR POSTPONED.

It was the intention to have started today's race at 10.45 but some of the arrangements were not complete, so that the start was postponed until 11.25. The wind is west and light.

The course selected is to buoy off Peddock island and thence to buoy off Strawberry Hill, and repeat—10 1-4 knots.

FIVE STARTERS.

At 11.25 the five boats were off. The Quincy challenger was first, and the Cima second, followed by the Eel, Ellen and Sally XI. The Harpoon continued in the lead and the Ellen became her most formidable rival.

At the first turn the Harpoon was leading by 2 minutes 22 seconds, the time being as follows:

FIRST TURN.

	Turn	Made	At
Harpoon	11	45	08
Ellen	11	47	30
Sally XI	11	57	21
Cima	11	55	25
Eel	11	49	46

SECOND TURN.

At the second turn the Ellen had pulled up and was only 30 seconds behind as will be seen by these figures:

Harpoon	12	27	09
Ellen	12	27	39
Sally XI	12	28	26
Cima	12	28	43
Eel	12	28	06

THIRD TURN.

The Harpoon got the best of it on the next leg and the time was:

Harpoon	12	55	55
Ellen	12	57	18
Sally XI	1	02	08
Cima	1	04	55
Eel	1	02	03

FOURTH TURN.

On the next leg the leaders had it hot, but the Ellen passed the Harpoon:

	Turn	Made	At
Harpoon	1	32	26
Ellen	1	32	16
Sally XI	1	42	20
Cima	1	43	55
Eel	1	42	40

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

The blueberry season is on in full swing and there are said to be large quantities of the fruit in the meadows just waiting to be picked. The berries are easy to gather and command a good price especially in the cities where the restaurant keepers are besieged by their patrons with orders for blueberry pie or cake to say nothing of that famous hot weather dish, blueberries and milk. In Maine the berries abound in countless numbers and their sale brings in money to hundreds of people.

At this season of the year the doctors are kept busy attending to people who suffer the consequences of excess in eating or drinking. It is a good plan to curtail the meat diet a little and eat more fruit and cereals. Give your stomach a little rest if you can, it probably needs it, and above all things keep away from the ice water tank. As one authority says writing on the subject, use it if you want to but externally rather than internally. In other words, bathe hands and face in it but don't drink the stuff.

The President is away on his yacht for a short time to get a little rest and dodge the cares of office if he can. He must however suffer the penalty of being a public man and make a speech now and then, if nothing more. He is wise to take to the water and get off shore where he at least may be able to dodge the camera fiends but even here he is pursued by the call of the wireless. In the matter of vacations as well as in many other ways the common everyday citizen has much more freedom than the chief executive of the nation.

Is it any wonder that we hear of highway robberies, etc., within the town limits when even the small boys are noticed rehearsing all the vivid details of a hold up? Only this week a youth of tender years was observed on the street, arms in air, while a larger boy with pistol levelled at the youngsters heart searched his pockets for money and valuables. The little drama was concluded in very realistic fashion by the robber snapping the weapon at the victim's head and shouting to him in a voice of thunder: "Now die." Only child's play perhaps but still the little scene showed to a thoughtful observer that lawlessness and deeds of violence are becoming so common and are so widely exploited that even the children are fascinated and think it necessary to emulate the actions of their elders.

MY HOUSE.

James B. Kenyon.

I have a little house somewhere;
Around it, thick and long,
The cool grass stands and nightly there
The cricket pipes his song.

The stars through still and dewy hours
Lean o'er the quiet place,
While fairy hands festoon the flowers
With shreds of silver lace.

The door is narrow, rude and low,
Yet takes the dawn's first kiss;
Before it the June roses blow
And the wild clematis.

Above its lintel year by year,
The sparrow builds and sings,
And there, on zephyrs borne, career
A thousand filmy wings.

There oft a wild, shy music wakes;
Winds many an elfin horn;
And there flash into amber flakes
The footprints of the sand.

I have a little house somewhere;
Sole tenant I shall be;
And when at length I rest me there
I shall sleep dreamlessly.

Little Miss Muffet. "I don't thuppothe I ought to go awound all alone with a gentleman like you, Mr. Donkey Boy, but I gueth it's all wright. The donkey is as good as most chaperons."—Harper's Bazar.

AFTER COURTSHIP BY MAIL

Man Who Tahooes Tobacco and Liquor Weds a Rich Widow

San Francisco, July 23.—R. H. Foster of Dalton, Mass., won the hand of Mrs. A. M. Atwood, a wealthy widow of New York, whom he met for the first time less than two weeks ago in Oakland, because he does not use tobacco or liquor.

The pair ,both of whom are well advanced in years, made a hasty trip to San Rafael, where they were married. The nuptial knot was tied after several weeks of courtship by correspondence and the newly wedded couple are now on a honeymoon trip.

Mrs. Atwood recently placed an advertisement for proposals with a matrimonial agency of Los Angeles and Foster's response came.

According to her own statement, Mrs. Atwood is worth about $100,000. She paid the expenses of Foster's courtship, hotel and sundry bills of both herself and Foster, and bought him some new clothing.

A NEW EXPLOSIVE

More Powerful Than Dynamite but of Decidedly Harmless Character

Hartford, July 23.—Prominent business men in Connecticut have incorporated the American Carbonite company and are about ready to start manufacturing at Melrose, Conn., a new explosive.

It is declared to be of higher power than dynamite or nitroglycerine, but of such a harmless character that it can be hammered with impunity, jarred about on a railroad train, shot with cartridges or touched with lighted matches, without exploding.

W. H. Palmer, an English engineer, says the new explosive cannot be exploded without the use of a special detonator, the composition of which is secret. He asserts that a mule loaded with it fell over a cliff at Panama and landed in a group of workmen, but the only damage was done by the mule's hoofs.

VACATION SPEECH AT BAR HARBOR

President Entertains a Composite Crowd on Village Green

Bar Harbor, Me., July 23.—President Taft spoke to an audience of several thousand people on the "Village Green" here. It was a composite crowd of the smart set, Bar Harbor townsfolk and farmers who drove in from all points within a twenty-mile radius.

The president said that he had found that the American people had learned one thing in the last generation, and that was how to take a vacation. He said that after the hard work, the nervous force expended during the fall, spring and winter, it is necessary to take two or three months' vacation if a man would keep capital for the work to come.

With this as an introduction the president praised Bar Harbor as a vacation resort. He took a good-natured fall out of the Maine prohibition law and brought laughter from the crowd when he congratulated Bar Harbor people on having a climate that was more exhilarating than champagne and without the after consequence.

HELD IN $10,000 BAIL

Marshall May Furnish Government With Important Information

Boston, July 23.—John R. Marshall, whose continued hearing was held in Philadelphia yesterday, will be brought to Boston by a federal deputy marshal and will be arraigned here. The fugitive from justice, who will be charged with conspiracy to defraud the National City bank of Cambridge, waived all technicalities and he was held in $10,000 bail for trial here. In default of bail he was sent to prison until a warrant of removal can be obtained from one of the United States judges.

When Marshall reaches here he will be given an examination and there are persistent rumors that he will assist in finding Martin J. Walsh, who is wanted by the department of justice as a conspirator with "Big Bill" Keliher in aiding George W. Coleman to misapply the funds of the wrecked bank.

CURE FOR TUBERCULOSIS

Druggist Who Was Near Death Made Well by Rattlesnake Venom

Rochester, N. Y., July 23.—Henry Hoefen, a druggist of this city, who was in the last stages of tuberculosis a year ago, and who has been treating himself with crotalin or rattlesnake venom, has been pronounced cured by the physician who told him that he could not live.

The same physician told him yesterday there were no indications of tuberculosis and that the cavities in his lungs had been healed. Hoefen had suffered twenty-one severe hemorrhages.

Mormons Must Quit Germany

Berlin, July 23.—The minister of the interior has signed orders for the expulsion of twenty-one Mormon missionaries, most of whom are Americans or Englishmen, and they will be conducted to the frontier.

OPEN AIR SERVICES.

The Massachusetts Home Missionary society is putting up a large tent at Squantum Park in which the Rev. T. W. Davison of Atlantic will hold religious services every Sunday afternoon at three o'clock. After which a Sunday school session will be held. The first service will be held tomorrow. During Mr. Davison's absence the Rev. E. C. Whitney of South Sudbury will have charge of the meetings. It is hoped in time that a chapel will be built at Squantum, but the tent will be used for this season.

MILTON

Lawn mowers are unknown at Cunningham park, yet the lawns look very attractive. A herd of sheep keep the grass trimmed much better than a lawn mower can.

James Sweeney, clerk in the East Milton post office ,accompanied the Elks to the convention of the grand lodge at Detroit last week.

A large number of children attended the picnic at Randolph grove this week making the trip in a special electric car.

Chief Choate in his new automobile makes quick time in answering alarms of fire. He is one of those who can speed it up without danger of being arrested for exceeding the speed limit.

Vacations are now in progress in the police and fire departments.

The Thursday evening club have begun to make plans for their social events next winter.

The East Milton Improvement association has voted to cooperate with West Quincy in their efforts to have the street car line continued over Granite avenue to connect with the Adam street line of the Boston Elevated. Such a line would be greatly used by East Milton people.

It is noticed that the Sunday golf players on the Montclair links never get over the Milton line on Sundays They know full well that Chief Pierce would promptly bring them into court for violation of the Lord's day act.

FOUND OPIUM PILLS ON A PUBLIC DUMP

Children Ate Them and Two Are Dying as a Result

Webster, Mass., July 23.—Eight children, the oldest only 13 years of age, are seriously ill at their homes here and two will probably die as a result of eating opium pills which were picked up on a public dump and mistaken for candy.

None of the children are yet out of danger and all hope for the two who were most eager to get the most of the "candy" has been practically abandoned.

In the families of John Pepka and Michael Mrowkowski the despair is deepest, for each man knows that there is little hope for one of his children. Three other children of Pepka are asleep under the influence of the drug at his home, while Mrowkowski's other child is also seriously ill.

A son of Pepka's brother and a little girl playmate of his children are the other two who partook of the "candy."

BREECH WAS NOT LOCKED

Artilleryman's Explanation of Explosion Which Caused Many Deaths

Norfolk, July 23.—While the official report to Washington gives the cause of the accident which killed eleven men as premature explosion, the real cause is asserted by an artilleryman to have been as follows:

A new system, recently adopted, was being used in rapid fire, this being the fourth time it had been used. The signal fell to close the breech.

To accomplish this a crank has to make three complete revolutions and the breech locks on the third turn; investigation proves the breech was not locked, showing a miscount.

Congressman Fined In Boston Court

Boston, July 23.—Congressman Joseph F. O'Connell was tried on the charge of distributing campaign literature near the polls, adjudged guilty by Judge Churchill and fined the maximum, $20, for such a misdemeanor under the election laws.

Alleged Lynchers Are Freed

Cairo, Ills., July 23.—Verdicts of not guilty were returned in the cases of twelve citizens, charged in indictments with having been leaders if the mob which stormed the Alexander county jail and attempted to lynch the negro, John Pratt.

CARDINAL GIBBONS

Celebrates 76th Birthday Anniversary Today

REACHES 79TH MILESTONE

Cardinal Gibbons Quietly Observes His Birthday In Native City

Baltimore, July 23.—James, Cardinal Gibbons, is today 76 years of age. At his home in this city this great churchman is quietly observing his birthday, receiving the great number of prominent visitors who call to tender their respects and congratulations.

Yearly, on this day, the cardinal's home is flooded with messages from friends and well-wishers from every quarter of the globe, as well as gifts without number.

Cardinal Gibbons was born in Baltimore and has spent practically his entire life in this city. He has won the love and respect of men and women in every walk of life, regardless of their religious beliefs. He was made cardinal in 1887.

MAYOR OF LAWRENCE THROWS UP HIS JOB

Concludes He Cannot Handle It While He Is In Prison

Lawrence, Mass., July 23.—Mayor William P. White of Lawrence, serving three years in the Lawrence jail for conspiracy to oust from office Fire Chief Hamilton, resigned to the city council last evening. The action was taken upon the advice of his counsel.

Mayor White in his resignation admits he can no longer perform his duties as chief executive, and reiterates his former declaration of innocence of wrong-doing.

Until his successor is appointed, Thomas M. Jordan, president of the board of aldermen, who has been acting mayor since White was jailed, will continue in office.

HITCH ON THE MAINE

Error In Date of Approval May Delay Raising of Battleship

Washington, July 23.—Because the house appropriation committee inserted the words "approved May 10" instead of May 9 in the bill appropriating $200,000 to supplement the sum set aside for raising the wreck of the battleship Maine from the mud of Havana harbor a year's delay in executing the job may be the result.

Shortly after its passage the army engineers reported that $100,000 was not sufficient with which to make a proper start and an item of $200,000 was inserted in the urgent deficiency bill. The clause making provision for this appropriation set forth that it should be expended for raising or removing the wreck of the Maine "in accordance with the provisions of the act approved May 10, 1910." The act referred to was approved on May 9, and not May 10.

SURVIVES 11,000 VOLTS

Painter Frightfully Burned by Electricity Is Expected to Recover

Port Chester, N. Y., July 23.—Eleven thousand volts of electricity passed through the body of Michael Foley, and although he is frightfully burned he still lives, and there is a chance that he will recover.

Foley was painting the overhead structure which carries the power wires of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad here, when he slipped and his right arm slid along the feed wire, while the side of his body pressed against a steel pillar.

FUNERAL OF MOTORMAN.

The funeral of Michael Pitts, who died at his home 933 Hancock street, Thursday, took place today at his late home. Solemn high mass of requiem was celebrated at St. John's church at 9 o'clock. Rev. J. J. Coan was celebrant of the mass. The regular choir sang with John Mahan as organist. Mary Burns sang the Pie Jesu after the elevation.

The funeral was well attended and the flowers very noticeable. One beautiful piece entitled "Gates Ajar" stood at least six feet high. The body was escorted from the house to the church by the Carmen's local union No. 253 headed by President John Faircloth and an electric car draped in mourning.

The union proceeded from the church to St. Mary's cemetery, West Quincy, where the body was interred.

The pall-bearers were Edward Faircloth, Thomas Craig, Frank Pitts, Thomas Forrest, Patrick Dennehy, John Malone.

Mr. Pitts leaves a widow and four children.

—B. C. Gregory, the superintendent of schools at Chelsea, died suddenly yesterday.

CHAUFFEUR ARRESTED

Charged With Larceny of Auto Wrecked in Quincy

Boston papers report the arrest of John Donovan, 22 years old, of Roxbury, for the larceny of the automobile of Mrs. Adelaide White, which was wrecked in Quincy early Tuesday morning, July 12, at the corner of Washington and Edison streets. The car was valued at $2,600 and was damaged to the extent of $350 or more and then deserted.

Investigation showed that the machine belonged to Mrs. White and that Donavan was a chauffeur who had been discharged that afternoon. He went to the garage that night with two friends, according to the police and went for a joy ride. The speedometer when examined showed that the automobile had been going at a very high rate of speed when the accident happened.

MIDSUMMER MAGAZINES.

August Everybody's is a fortunate combination of delightful summer fiction with articles of wide interest and true importance. As pertinent to the coming campaign, Frederic C. Howe contributes, under the title, "Ask Your Congressman," a suggestion of real practicality looking toward the betterment of national conditions. "Boy-Power Applied," by Frederick Mather Caldwell, is the story of a juvenile republic where the youths we call "delinquent" are given a fair chance to redeem themselves—and do it. "The Question 'How?'" is one of Dr. William Hanna Thomson's essays in fine philosophy, always uplifting and suggestive. "Instead of an Article" is an inside story of magazine editing, with some correspondence about Pittsburg between the editor and Mayor Brand Whitlock of Toledo as the text. In fiction, Lloyd Osbourne opens the Magazine with one of his most delightful love stories, "Detty the Detrimental." Harry Allyn writes a humorous boy-and-tramp story, Juliet Wilbor Tompkins offers a strong and simple story of married life, and Jack London contributes one of the best of his South Sea character studies. The noteworthy serial, "A Successful Wife," moves swiftly toward its closing chapters. The departments are bright and interesting as always, and the whole tone of the magazine is in keeping with its reputation and with the season.

The following is a list of leading articles for August, in the Technical magazine: Making a Business of Flying, T. R. MacMechan and Carl Dienstbach; Oregon and the Water Grabbers, Randall R. Howard; Campaigning Against the Fly, George P. Cheney; Farm Homes for the City Homeless, F. G. Moorhead; Measles and the Mouse, Richard E. Benton; Gold Eagles from Fishes, Fulton G. Marshall; Record Run on Electric Railway, C. B. Edwards; Search for Elixir of Life, Edfrid Bingham and Wilfred Roques; Passing of the Steam Train, Samuel O. Dunn; Predicting Nature's Explosions, Ralph Bergengren; Steel Takes a New Field, Hartley M. Phelps; Popular Science and Mechanics Supplement.

National Magazine for August is a souvenir edition for National Education Association. As such special attention has been given to Boston. The frontispiece contains a bird's-eye view of the city and a map in colors. Among the contributed articles are "Boston's Latin Quarter," by Mitchell Mannering "Seeing Boston"— with the Rubbernecks; a record made by visitors from the West that gives pertinent and timely hints to the tourists. "Where Is the Pension Foundation Headed?" by A. E. Winship, and an editorial, "Welcome to the Teachers," with a picture of the "Dorothy Q" house, Quincy, and another of Longfellow. Among other contents we notice the discussion of "Affairs at Washington," by Joe Mitchell Chapple "The Nobility of the Trades, "by Charles W. Hall; "Curtiss' Flight for the World's Prize," Sanford E .Stanton. Ample space is given both to story and verse.

Lippincott's Magazine for August contains as usual a complete novel, "The Mystery of Mary," by Grace Livingston H. Lutz; "The Monster in the Car," by Kate Masterson—a study of the 20th century woman's passion for the motor-speed mania and its attendant evils and vagaries; "In the Dog Days," by Carl H. Grabo; "The Dear Old Farm," by Thomas L. Masson, Walnuts and Wine, etc.

—Electric pumping stations are becoming common in Kansas.

BRIEFS

Rev. Joseph Eames of Trinity Episcopal church, Bridgewater, will preach at Christ church during the month of August while Rev. and Mrs. Richard E. Armstrong are enjoying a few weeks' vacation.

Rev. E. E. Jones who is to speak in the Wollaston Baptist church Sunday morning was baptisized and ordained to the gospel ministry in this church, but for several years has labored as a missionary in China.

A lawn party under the auspices of the Pilgrim Fraternity was held Wednesday evening on the grounds of the Washington Street church, which were prettily decorated with Japanese lanterns. An orchestra furnished music, and ice cream and refreshments were on sale. Fortunes were told by James E. Hayden who was incognito.

Rev. Charles B. Ames ,assistant minister of First church, goes on July 25 to spend two weeks in the Maine woods. During his absence, Rev. Paul S. Phalen, of Hingham, will attend to any calls of the parish upon the minister's service.

The Washington Street Congregational church will be closed the month of August during the vacation of the pastor Rev. Mr. Marshall.

During the absence of Dr. Hardy the pulpit of Bethany church will be supplied by Rev. P. H. Epler of Worcester, Rev. J. V. Clancy of Beverly, Rev. Archibald McCord, D. D., of Taunton, Rev. T. W. Bishop, D. D., of Grand Rapids, Mich., and Rev. George P. Knapp of Boston. Dr. Hardy has joined his family in New Hampshire where he will rest from ardous duties until September.

Orders authorizing a large amount of the work on the battleship New Jersey were received at the Charlestown navy yard Thursday. The task will continue a number of workmen in employment for some weks.

U. S. scout cruiser Salem, which arrived at the Boston navy yard on Thursday with the body of Oliver Bibeault of Providence, gunners' mate, second class, who died on the ship Wednesday night of blood poisoning, wil lremain at the yard for a week or two. The Salem will have a complete examination of her turbine engines and auxiliaries.

HOUGHS NECK

It is expected that Miss Mae McDonough, a South Boston girl, will make an attempt on Sunday to swim from City Point to boat landing of John J. Powers at Houghs Neck.

Another meeting of the Houghs Neck Associates will be held next Wednesday.

It is doubtful whether the new Atherton Hough school will be ready for occupancy on Sept. 1.

First prizes at the whist party of the Ladies' Associates were won by Mrs. R. J. Douglas and Bert Brown. Second prizes went to Mrs. A. E. Woods and W. H. Rubert, and third prizes to Mrs. A. E. Boutilier and Miss A. E. Stanton. Consolation prizes were awarded Miss A. W. Hudson and Mr. Wilson.

—Total elctrical exports for the month of April were nearly $1,500,000.

PAROLES FOR BAD BANKERS

Likely to Reduce Big Colony In Leavenworth Prison

PROVISIONS OF THE NEW LAW

After Serving One-Third of Sentence Convicts May Be Released If They Have Good Prison Records—Must Report Regularly to a United States Marshal—New Law May Be Extended to Help Military Prisoners

Leavenworth, Kan., July 23.—Of the 2500 prisoners confined in the three United States penitentiaries at Fort Leavenworth, Atlanta and McNeill's island, Wash., it is estimated that more than one-third are eligible to paroles under the new federal parole law passed at the last session of congress.

To be eligible to parole a prisoner must have served one-third of the sentence imposed upon him. Only life prisoners and those convicted of rape or incest are ineligible. Under this law the bankers' colony at the federal prison here will be greatly reduced in numbers.

One of the first to be released from the bankers' colony very likely will be Frank S. Bigelow, the Milwaukee banker. John R. Walsh of Chicago will have to serve nearly eighteen months yet before becoming eligible. Unless he is pardoned before that time he probably will be paroled immediately that he becomes eligible. Of the Indiana and Pittsburg bankers now serving time here nearly all will be eligible as soon as the law is put in operation. The first meeting of the parole board will be held some time next month on a date yet to be fixed.

It is said here that nearly every long-term prisoner in the penitentiary has obtained a copy of the parole law and is industriously studying its provisions. These in brief are that the applicant shall have served one-third of his sentence and that he have a good prison record. After release the convict must report regularly to the United States marshal of the district in which he is living.

It will be the aim of the parole board to send paroled prisoners, whenever possible, to their home towns, on the theory that, where he is known, he is less likely to get into difficulties.

Representative Anthony of this city, who co-operated with Warden McClaughry in perfecting the parole law and in pushing it through congress, is preparing a bill for the next session to extend the parole law to the prisoners at Fort Leavenworth. This is the only military prison in the country. There are about 600 military prisoners there now, most serving sentences of less than five years.

This bill is likely to encounter considerable opposition from the army, on the theory that desertion is much too common as it is and that the strongest deterrent is that the deserter, when captured, must become a convict. On the other hand, there is a strong sentiment for such a law, on the theory that it is unjust to make a man a convict and disgrace him forever for what, in civil life, would be the mere breaking of a contract.

EPIDEMIC IS FEARED

Rain Adds to Suffering of Campbellton's Fire-Stricken People

Campbellton, N. B., July 23.—Rain pouring down in torrents until late last night since 3 o'clock yesterday morning, soaking through everything, has made the town of Campbellton a miserable spot. In addition to the discomfort of wet clothing, wet bedding and the chilling east wind, the rain has started the decay of all vegetable matter left by the fire and there is a stench that is sickening arising from the steaming ruins, which brings forth the fear of a scourge of disease.

The heavy rain made it impossible for many of the 3000 people who are living under canvas to get down the hill to the relief station after their day's rations.

Mutiny In Madrid Prison

Madrid, July 23.—A grave mutiny broke out at the prison here. The fighting lasted for three hours, and was only ended by the calling in of troops. The soldiers intimidated the mutineers by firing in the air.

Regan Heads Hibernians

Portland, Ore., July 23.—National Vice President James J. Regan of Minneapolis was elected national president of the Ancient Order of Hibernians over Matthew Cummings, incumbent.

Ban on High School Frats

Geneva, N. Y., July 23.—The board of education has placed a ban on high school fraternities. The new rule requires students to resign from fraternities before returning to school in the fall.

Ocean Liners.

Steamship working hours are four on and eight off to the end of the voyage.

The Cunarders serve broken bits of butterscotch candy along with the afternoon tea aboard ship.

An 11,000 ton ship running fifteen miles an hour will consume 150 tons of coal per day. A 30,000 ton ship going thirty miles per hour will use up 1,100 tons.

Travelers at sea like to talk of the steadiness of ships—other than the one they are on board of—and to give remarkable examples of freedom from shake and sickness. One fact remains—when the sea kicks up, the voyagers on any craft, however large, soon learn that they are not navigating on a billiard table.—New York World.

The Barber's Idea.

Bentley had been out late the night before, or, rather, he had stayed in late in a little affair, and about all he had left to show for it in the morning was an old fashioned away-from-home-made headache. In hope of relief he had sought his old friend, the barber, and the latter had been busy on Bentley's head and face for the past hour.

"By Jove, Karl," said Bentley as the barber rubbed the top of his head, "that feels mighty good, I can tell you. The man who invented massage was not only a genius, but a benefactor to the whole human race. They ought to put up a statue to him. There's nothing like it when a fellow feels seedy. There's only one trouble about it."

"Vot iss it?" asked Karl, hoping that perhaps he might overcome the difficulty.

"Why, it's all on the outside," said Bentley. "If there were only some apparatus that would enable you to get inside a fellow's head and clear out the pains of the morning after, what a blessing it would be."

"Vell," said Karl, "I t'ink that maybe some day dose vacuum cleaner fellers vill do dot already. Vot?"—Harper's Weekly.

The Practical Goat.

M. Jules Renard was the mayor of Corbigny, in the Nievre. Every Sunday he contributed to the Journal de Clamecy, and this is the sort of things he used to give the peasants. Writing of the Journal Officiel, posted up on the wall of the mairie and which no one ever reads, he said:

"I had forgotten the goats. One of them never misses a number. Standing on its hind legs, with its front legs resting on the poster, it moves its horns and beard from right to left, like an old woman reading. When it has finished reading, as the official sheet has an appetizing smell of fresh paste, the goat eats it. After nourishing the mind one must feed the body. Thus nothing is lost in the commune. What a pity that all novel readers have not the stomach of this practical goat! They might then eat the books they had read, buy more, and so the man of letters would in the end be able to eat in his turn."—Paris Letter to London Globe.

A Japanese Anthem.

The majority of national anthems are not conspicuous for beauty, either of words or music. The only one composed by a musician of the very first rank is the Austrian anthem, for which Haydn is responsible. And in no country has the composition of a really great poet been adopted except in Norway, where Bjornson's stirring lines beginning "Yes, we love this country," serve as the national anthem. The Japanese have a daintily worded anthem which Captain Brinkley translates as follows:

Until this grain of sand,
Tossed by each wavelet's freak,
Grows to a cloud girt peak,
Towering above the land;
Until the dewy flake
Beading this blossom's gold
Swell to a mighty lake—
Age upon age untold,
Joy to joy manifold
Add for our sovereign's sake.

The Yellowhammer.

Once upon a morning dreary as I lingered, still a-weary,
In the warm and downy covers, which with rest I loved the more,
While I thought of further napping suddenly there came a tapping
As of some one soundly rapping, rapping on the upper floor.
"'Tis the hired girl," I muttered, "rapping on the upper floor.
I have heard her dress before."
—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

On the Trail.

"Do you see that man going along with his head in the air, sniffling with his nose?"

"Yes. I know him."

"I suppose he believes in taking in the good, pure ozone."

"No. He's hunting for a motor garage, I believe."—London Sketch.

Kept Apart.

"If women would only be bolder,"
Declared the suffragette,
"And just stand shoulder to shoulder
We'd win the ballot yet."

But one woman candidly told her
When she at last had hushed:
"We can't stand shoulder to shoulder.
We'd get our hats all crushed."
—Louisville Courier-Journal.

The Smitten Smites.

"Alma likes me," remarked Johnny confidentially.

"You are very vain, my boy, I fear," remonstrated his mother. "What reason have you for saying such a thing?"

"Cause she's always running up and biffing me in the back."—New York Times.

FREIGHT WELL CLEANED UP

Trains Again In Operation In Northern New England

MONTREAL MERCHANTS BALK

Will Not Feed Strike-Breakers, So Provisions Are Shipped From Maine For Grand Trunk Crews—Notice of Raise In Wages Posted In Portland Terminals—Strikers Accept Arbitration, After Rejecting It

Portland, Me., July 23.—"The freight at the Portland terminals is as well cleaned up now as it has been at any time since spring," said Trainmaster Connolly of the Grand Trunk, last night.

Five freight trains left Portland yesterday and so far as known are moving along as usual.

Mr. Connolly said that the merchants at Montreal had refused to sell provisions to the company for its new employes and last night a quantity was shipped up along the line from this city. The company is also building a boarding house at Island Pond to accommodate its employes there.

An important feature of the progress of the strike in this city was the posting about the company's terminals of a new schedule of wages, which is a substantial increase over what prevailed when the strike was declared. The new schedule offers conductors between Portland and Montreal $135 a month, baggage men $85 and brakemen $80. Conductors had been paid $110 a month and the others a like proportion.

The increase is not what the men asked, but is more than they were said to have been offered.

Local Way-Freights Resumed

Island Pond, Vt., July 23.—Twenty-three carloads of beef and grain from the west, billed to Portland, arrived here last night. One freight train from Portland arrived during the day and two others are en route. This morning the local way-freights, east and west, resumed for the first time since the strike of trainmen on the Grand Trunk was called.

Several deputies who have been on duty almost continuously for the past four days, were dismissed last night, all danger of serious trouble having passed.

Strike-Breaker Fined

White River Junction, Vt., July 23.—A strike-breaker who was arrested for flourishing a revolver was arraigned in the local court and a small fine imposed. Judge Darrah intimated that further cases of the kind would be severely dealt with.

Trainmen Agree to Arbitrate

Montreal, July 23.—Vice President Murdock, representing the general committee of the Grand Trunk and Central Vermont Conductors and Trainmen, accepted Minister of Labor King's suggestion for arbitration of the Grand Trunk war dispute by a board to be named by the government. He sent a telegram to Ottawa to that effect.

Mr. King telegraphed from Ottawa making a new effort to secure the consent of the Grand Trunk and the unions to arbitrate. He asked for an unqualified acceptance or rejection of a proposal to submit the dispute to a board appointed by the government, without regard to its personnel. Murdock's message was the strikers' acceptance of the terms. A reply from the Grand Trunk is awaited.

The decision of Murdock came as a surprise, because he had already refused to accept the government's arbitration plan.

YOUNG "WHITE WINGS"

Mayor of Milwaukee Would Have Children Keep Streets Clean

Milwaukee, July 23.—Prizes for children, in connection with keeping the streets of Milwaukee clean and the elevation of the "white wings," giving trustworthy ones power of arrest for violation of health ordinances, are among the recommendations embraced in a special message of Mayor Emil Seidel (Social Democrat), which he will have printed and sent to every member of the common council at once.

"The place to begin is with the child," says the mayor. "The boy and girl can be an auxiliary to our street-cleaning forces. Let us reward the child that adds to the greatest extent in removing litter from the streets, alleys or vacant lots."

"IN A BAD WAY"

Many a Quincy Reader Will Feel Grateful for This Information.

When your back gives out;
Becomes lame, weak or aching;
When urinary troubles set in,
Your kidneys are "in a bad way."
Doan's Kidney Pills will cure you.
Here is local evidence to prove it:

Mrs. F. Olsen, 197 Whitwell Street, Quincy, Mass., says: "For some time my back was weak and gave me a great deal of trouble. I could not sit up in a chair for more than a few minutes at a time without having severe pains in my back. I was also subject to headaches and dizzy spells and at times was very nervous. I was becoming discouraged when Doan's Kidney Pills were brought to my attention. I procured a box at the Cox Drug Store and through their use received immediate relief. I did not expect to be speedily cured, as my condition was so serious, but I can say that the results could not have been more satisfactory. In a few weeks I was restored to good health. Doan's Kidney Pills certainly have my highest endorsement."

SYNOPSIS

A party of titled passengers on a ship bound for Australia visit a section "below decks" where a gang of convicts sentenced to deportation are confined. The ship, the Lord Nelson is wrecked. A convict, the "Frisco Pet," jumps overboard with Jocelyn Wray, a pretty little girl. The convict, after returning the girl to her friends is himself later cast away alone on a deserted island. Years have passed. Lord Ronsdale and other members of the party wrecked on the Lord Nelson, including Jocelyn Wray, go to the criminal courts in London to hear John Steele, a famous young lawyer, try a case. Steele and Jocelyn meet and form a liking for each other. Lord Ronsdale, who would marry Jocelyn, forms a violent dislike for Steele. Ronsdale had at the wreck of the Lord Nelson prevented the rescue of the "Frisco Pet" by a lifeboat. Ronsdale is startled at the sight of a tattoo mark on Steele's arm. Ronsdale puts a detective, Gillett, on Steele's trail to establish his identity. He is certain Steele is the "Frisco Pet." Steele, none other than the "Frisco Pet," begins a hunt for Tom Rogers, the only man who can establish his innocence of the murder for which he had been deported years before. Steele visits Strathorn House, where Jocelyn Wray, Lord Ronsdale and others are present. Steele, in love with the girl, has recognized her as the one he rescued at the wreck of the Lord Nelson. Ronsdale tries to have Steele arrested at Strathorn House. Steele reveals to Jocelyn that he was once the "Frisco Pet," her rescuer. Jocelyn aids Steele in escaping to London. Steele gets traces of Tom Rogers, whose testimony he requires.

(CHAPTER XIV—Continued.)

A slant of light like a sword, from the crack of a door, gleamed on the dark floor before him. He stepped toward it. The low sound of men's tones could be heard—Joe's; a strange voice, no, a familiar one, that caused the listener's every fiber to vibrate.

"And what did you say when he pumped you for the cote?"

"That you would rather call on him."

"And then he cared nought for the job? You're sure"—anxiously—"he wasn't playing to find out?"

The other answered jocosely and walked away. A door closed behind him. For a time the stillness remained unbroken. Then a low rattle, as of dice on a table, caused John Steele to glance through a crevice. What he saw seemed to decide him to act quickly. He lifted a latch and stepped in. As he did so a huge man with red hair sprang to his feet. From one great hand the dice fell to the floor. His shaggy jowl drooped. Casting over his shoulder the swift glance of an entrapped animal, he seemed about to leap backward to escape by a rear entrance when the voice of the intruder arrested his purpose, momentarily held him.

"Oh, I'm alone! There are no police outside." He spoke in the dialect of the pickpurse and magsman. To prove it, John Steele stooped and locked the door.

The small bloodshot eyes lighted with wonder. The heavy brutish jaws began to harden. "Alone?"

The other tossed the key. It fell at the man's feet. John Steele walked over to the opposite door and shot a heavy bolt there. "Looks as if it would hold," he said in thieves' argot as he turned around.

"Are ye a gaby?" The red headed giant stared ominously at him.

"On the contrary," coolly, "I know very well what I am doing."

A question interlarded with oaths burst from the other's throat. John Steele regarded the man quietly. "I should think it apparent what I want!" he answered. As he spoke he sat down. "It is you," bending his bright, resolute eyes on the other.

"And you've come alone?" He drew up his ponderous form.

John Steele smiled. "I assure you I welcomed the opportunity."

"Do you know what I am going to do to you?"

"I haven't any curiosity," still clinging to thieves' jargon or St. Giles Greek. "But I'm sure you won't play me the trick you did the last time I saw you."

The fellow shot his head near. "You're the swell cove who wanted to palaver that night when"—

"You tried to rob me." John Steele laughed. "Do you know the penalty for attempting that game, Tom Rogers, alias Tom-o'-the-Road, alias"—

The man fell back. "Who are you? By ——!" he said.

"John Steele."

"John Steele?" The bloodshot eyes became slightly vacuous. "The ——? Then you used him," indicating savagely the entrance at the back, "for a duck to uncover? I'll burke you for that!"

John Steele did not stir. "How? With the lead or"—

The fellow lifted his hairy fists. "Those are all I"—

"In that case"— Steele took the weapon on which his hand had rested from his pocket, and, rising with alacrity, he placed it on a rickety stand behind him—"you have me a little outclassed. About seventeen stone. I should take it. I barely turn thirteen myself. However," tossing his coat in the corner, "you look a little soft—hardly up to what you were when you got the belt for the heavyweight championship. Do you remember? The Frisco Pet went against you, but he was only a low, ignorant sailor and had let himself get out of form. You beat him—beat him"—John Steele's eyes glittered; he touched the other on the arm—"though he fought seventeen good rounds. You stamped the heart out of him, Tom!"

The red headed giant's arms fell to his side. "How do you"—

"I was there!" An odd smile crossed Steele's determined lips. "Lost a little money on that battle. Recall the fourteenth round? He nearly had you, but you played safe in the fifteenth, and then—you sent him down—down." John Steele's voice died away. "It was a long time before he got up," he added, almost absently.

"You know all that?"

"And all the rest!"

"See here, what's your little game? Straight now, quick! You come here without the police. Why?"

John Steele's reply was to the point. He stated exactly what he wanted and what he meant that the other should give him. As the fellow heard he breathed harder. He held himself in with difficulty.

"And so that's what you've come for, mister?" he said, a hoarse guffaw falling from the coarse lips. John Steele answered quietly. "And you think there is any chance of your getting it? May I be asking," with an evil grin, "how you expect to make me, Tom Rogers," bringing down his great fist, "do your bidding?"

"In the first place, by assuring you no harm shall come to you. It is in my power to avert that in case you comply. In the second place, you will be given enough sovereigns to"—

"Quids, eh? Let me have sight of them, mister. We might talk better."

"Do you think I'd bring them here, Tom-o'-the-Road? No, no!" brusquely.

"That settles it."

"In giving you your choice of doing what I ask or of being turned over to the traps."

"The traps!" The other fellow's face became contorted. "You mean that you"—

"Will give you up for that little job unless"—

For answer the man launched his huge body forward, with fierce swinging fists. He beat, rushed, strove to close. His opponent's lithe body evaded a clutch that might have ended the contest.

The other came at him, muttering. The mill was unduly prolonging itself He would end it. His fist struck at that face so elusive, but crashed against the wall. Like a flash Steele's arm lifted. The great form staggered and fell.

Quickly, however, it rose, and the battle was resumed. John Steele's every muscle ached. His shoulder was bleeding anew. The need for acting quickly, if he should hope to conquer, pressed on him. Fortunately, Rogers in his blind rage was fighting wildly. John Steele endured blow after blow; then, as through a mist, he found at length the opening he sought—an instant's opportunity on which all depended.

Every fiber of his physical being responded. He threw himself forward. The weight of his body, the force of a culminating impetus, went into his fist. It hit heavily full on the point of the chin beneath the brutal mouth. Tom Rogers' head shot back as if he had received the blow of a hammer, and he threw up his arms. This time he lay where he struck the ground.

John Steele swayed. With an effort he sustained himself. Was it over? The prostrate man did stir now. He groaned. John Steele touched him with his foot.

"Get up," he said.

John Steele went to the stand, picked up his revolver and then sat down at a table. "You're as foul a fighter as you ever were," he said contemptuously.

CHAPTER XV.

THE LAST SHIFT.

THE candle burned low. It threw now on grimy floor and wall shadows of two men, one seated at the table, the other not far from it. Before John Steele lay paper and ink, procured from some niche.

"Where were you on the night this woman, Amy Gerard, was found dead?"

A momentary expression of surprise, of alarm, crossed the bruised and battered face. It was succeeded by an angry suspicion that glowed from the evil eyes. "You're not trying to fix that job on"—

"You? No."

"Then what did you follow him here for—to pump me? The Yankee that got transported is"—

"As alive as when he stepped before you in the ring!"

"Alive?" The fellow stared. He looked at Steele closer. "Blame if there isn't something about you that puzzles me," he said.

"I represent him—the Yankee."

"Well, he got a good one. You know how to use your fists, mister."

"Better than this Frisco Pet did once, eh, Tom?" The man frowned. "But to return to the subject in hand. That question you seemed afraid to answer just now was superfluous. I know where you were the night the woman was shot"—

John Steele leaned forward and said something softly.

"How'd you find that out?" asked the man.

Crippen Steals Across the Border of Southern France

ANDORRA PLACE OF REFUGE

Extradition Will Be Difficult Should He Succeed In Reaching the Republic—Miss Leneve Believed to Have Committed Suicide at Bourges—Detectives Now Have Evidence That Crippen Committed Murder

London, July 23.—Dr. Hawley H. Crippen, the American sought in connection with the death of his wife, Belle Elmore, the vaudeville actress, in London, is believed to have eluded the French police. A dispatch received from the Tarason department of Ariege says that a man answering in many details the description of the hunted man, as far as it is known to the police of southern France, crossed the border into Spain on July 20.

The French police were but a few hours behind him, but his brief advantage was sufficient to enable him to make his escape. It is regarded as probable that he will take refuge in the republic of Andorra, and if he does so extradition will be difficult.

Efforts are being made to identify the girl who committed suicide at Bourges on July 13 as Ethel C. Leneve, the typist who disappeared with Crippen.

The suicide had registered at the Hotel France as Jeanne Maze, but there are many striking points of resemblance between her and the missing typist as described by the police.

The death of the young woman was surrounded with mystery. She had posed as a Frenchwoman, but it was recognized that she was a foreigner.

The young woman went to the hotel on July 13 and almost immediately after being assigned to a room killed herself by firing three shots into her head. She left a note asking that her identity be not sought and left 100 francs to pay for her funeral expenses.

Word comes from London that the detectives have evidence to prove beyound a doubt that Crippen killed his wife. This evidence consists of the finding of Belle Elmore's jewelry and a report by Dr. Pepper, the great English authority, that the body found in the Crippen home was undoubtedly that of a woman. Pepper made his report after a thorough examination and analysis of the body. Before his finding was made public it was feared the prosecution would be unable to establish any sort of a corpus delecti.

The finding of the jewelry forms one of the strongest links in the chain of circumstantial evidence against Crippen. Mrs. Crippen's jewelry was missed after her disappearance. Since the finding of the body detectives have been going through the pawnshops of London and yesterday they came upon some of the jewels. The pawnbroker who had them said they had been left with him by a man answering the description of Crippen.

PATROLMAN JUSTIFIED

Judge Defends Killing of Man When Crowd Set Upon Him

Boston, July 23.—While sentencing Robert J. Verner, Albert Johnson and John J. Anderson, who were charged with trying to rescue a prisoner when William Deegan was shot by Patrolman Dennis Leary on the night of July 10, Judge Preble said that the patrolman was justified in killing Deegan.

Each prisoner was sentenced to six months in the house of correction on the charge of rescuing a prisoner. They were also accused of assaulting Patrolman Leary. Verner and Anderson were found guilty of this charge and given six months additional in jail. Johnson was able to prove that he had nothing to do with the assault.

All three appealed their sentences and Verner and Anderson were held in $1000 bail, while Johnson's bonds were placed at $500.

DEFICIT OF $367,924

Total Liabilities of Southbridge Savings Bank Placed at $3,071,571

Worcester, Mass., July 23.—The deficit account of the Southbridge Savings bank, as a result of the embezzlement of its former treasurer, John A. Hall, who is now serving a long term in state prison, is $367,924, according to an inventory filed in the supreme judicial court by Bank Commissioner Chapin.

The liabilities of the institution are placed at $3,071,571.

Government After Enamel Trust

Washington, July 23.—Sixteen concerns manufacturing sanitary enameled iron ware, and their officers, have been proceeded against by the department of justice, in a bill in equity filed against them at Baltimore, under the Sherman anti-trust law.

Bank Robbed of Securities

New York, July 23.—It has been discovered that $70,000 worth of securities were stolen from the Russo-Chinese bank, 52 Pine street. No clue to the thief has been found.

Rosy Cheeks or Pale Ones?

The sultan of Zanzibar was educated at Harrow and Oxford. He is an adept at football, tennis and rackets and is a yachtsman, an enthusiastic motorist and an excellent shot.

One of the favorite nieces of his late majesty King Edward was the Princess Alexandra. She is the wife of King George's brother-in-law and is a most cultured woman, being very fond of literature and music.

The ff In ffarington.

The spelling of the ancient name ffarington with the small "ff" found in old manuscripts is merely the retention of the old form of capital "F." Deeds of conveyance in the time of George II. and III. recite, "George of Great Britain ffrance and Ireland king," etc. The form could not therefore be due to ignorance, as has been said, for in days when gentlemen of estate were gentlemen of quality such a spelling in deeds could hardly arise from lack of a knowledge of spelling. The ffaringtons of Worden Hall, Lancashire, prefer, like several other, well known families, including the ffolkes and ffrenches, to retain the archaic capital "ff." The family trace their descent from Hugo de Meolis, who came to England with the Conqueror, and they have been associated for generations with the court, army and church and with public life.—London Court Journal.

A Persian Hotel.

Some years ago an effort was made to establish a European hotel at the junction of the two most traveled roads of Persia. Each room of this hotel contained some articles which I at least have never found in any hotel in either Europe or America. Among them were a nightcap, a hairbrush and a toothbrush. Perhaps it was on account of this extravagance that the scheme failed. An American missionary as he was leaving this hotel one morning was asked by a servant what he had done with the hotel hairbrush. This dignified man in clerical attire with his wife and children was prevented from leaving the hotel until it was ascertained that he had spoken the truth when he said that he threw the brush under the bed to scare away a cat.—Mrs. Colquhoun in Los Angeles Times.

Fifty Men and One Elephant.

Interesting tests were recently made in London to determine the respective pulling power of horses, men and elephants. Two horses weighing 1,600 pounds each, together pulled 3,750 pounds, or 550 pounds more than their combined weight. One elephant, pounds each together pulled 3,750 pounds, or 3,250 pounds less than its weight. Fifty men, aggregating 7,500 pounds in weight, pulled 8,750 pounds, or just as much as the single elephant, but, like the horses, they pulled more than their own weight. One hundred men pulled 12,000 pounds.—St. Louis Republic.

Difference Defined.

Mrs. Muchwed (reading paper)—Can you tell me the difference between a visit and a visitation? Mr. Muchwed (dryly)—A visitation, my dear, if one may judge by the spelling, is something longer than a visit. For instance, when your mother comes to see us it would be correct to call it a visitation.

Character.

Character is not cut in marble—it is not something solid and unalterable. It is something living and changing and may become diseased as our bodies do. —George Eliot.

Conscience.

In the commission of evil another is but one witness against thee; thou art a thousand against thyself. Another thou mayest avoid—thyself thou canst not.—Quarles.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

BRIEFS

Gilbert M. Wight has been granted administration on the estate of Sarah A. Wight, late of Quincy.

It will probably be late next week before the Assessors are ready to announce the tax rate.

State politics are on the boom in Ward Six Representative Langelier has announced his candidacy far a third term in the house.

Charles Edgerton has petitioned for a divorce from his wife Josie M. Edgerton now of Schenectady, N. Y., on the charge of adultery.

Rev. E. W. Virgin of Dedham, will preach on Sunday at the West Quincy M. E. church where he was formerly a pastor.

The store of George W. Jones closes on Wednesdays at one o'clock so that the clerks may have a half holiday each week.

Matthews Cummings of Boston, was defeated at Portland Oregon yesterday as a candidate for reelection as National President of the Ancient Order of Hibernians, by 12 votes.

Congressman O'Connell of this district was fined $20 yesterday on an old charge for distributing cards in violation of election laws at a Boston polling booth. He appealed.

James W. Sweeney of this city a recent graduate of the Boston Y. M. C. A. law school was one of the 183 successful candidates to pass the examination for the Massachusetts bar.

Quincy members of Adams Chapter Daughters of the Revolution are extending sympathy to one of their members, Mrs. Susan J. Wilde of South Braintree, whose mother Mrs. George F. Leonard passed away on Wednesday.

Are you reading the ads in the Friday Ledger each week. If not you may lose some good bargains. Yesterday Kincaide's Department store offered three particularly good sales for today; the Payson-Mitchell Co., have special prices in men's furnishings; some good values in meat are offered by the Quin-Market and R. E. Foy & Co., make a specialty of spring lamb for the Sunday dinner.

The battleship Vermont, Capt. McLean, built at Quincy arrived in Boston yesterday from Provincetown and anchored in the harbor. She will embark the members of the Maine naval reserves, who will arrive this morning on the steamer Ransom B. Fuller from Portland. The Vermont will proceed from here to Gardiners bay, where the naval militia will engage in maneuvers for a week.

The Christian Register in its account of the Unitarian summer meetings at the Isles of Shoals speaks as follows of the Westland quartet: "The concert given by the Westland Quartet was thoroughly delightful, as was their singing indeed throughout the week. Miss Dadmun, Miss Van Orden, Miss Alice Gertrude Coe and Mrs. Miller, with Miss Marian Marshall Brown as pianist, make up a quartet that has every qualification for supplementing such a week as this has been. Their voices are charming, their personality winning, and their selections admirable."

LODGE THE ISSUE

Candidate Galvin One of His Hearty Supporters

J. Mitchell Galvin of Dorchester is again in the field for the Republican nomination for Congress i nthe Tenth district. Mr. Galvin says: "I am for Lodge, first, and Galvin second." He is a warm supporter of Senator Lodge. He regards the senior senator as one of the distinct assets of Republican party in Massachusetts, and the people of the state as well. The senator's record in Congress is a source of great pride to all the people, according to Mr. Galvin, and everybody should rally to his support, now that he is threatened with opposition.

In 1908, Congressman O'Connell led Mr. Galvin in the district by only four votes, the totals being 16,553 to 16,549. In Quincy the vote was nearly two to one in favor of Galvin as will be seen below:

	O'Connell.	Galvin.
Quincy	1,407	2,800
Milton	256	745
Boston wards	14,890	13,004
	16,553	16,549

Hazard Stevens, a free trader, received 1,380 votes, and Charles J. Kidney of the Independence League, 1,187.

JOHN ALDEN DESCENDANTS.

A prospectus of the 10th Annual Reunion of the Alden Kindred of America has been distributed to nearly 3,000 descendants of John Alden and Priscilla Molines. The reunion is to be held on Wednesday, August 3, in a large tent ,on the Old Homestead ,at Duxbury; this property having been acquired a few years ago by the society. A special train is to be run from Boston to Duxbury and return, as usual, nad the features of the day, as outlined in the prospectus, indicate an intersting time for both old and young. The principal address is to be given by Rev. Albert Marion Hyde, D. D., of Brockton, his subject being, "The New New-Englander." This address will give Dr. Hyde an opportunity of telling in his interesting way the results of his observation as to present conditions in New England. Dr. Hyde was formerly located in Toledo, Ohio, and for this reason his impressions, resulting from both inquiry and observation, will doubtless prove very interesting to the society he is to address.

A ladies' orchestra is to take part in the entertainment of the day, both during the literary part of the program and to make the social hours of the afternoon more pleasant.

Games, including baseball and the new lawn game "Trixolo," will be provided for the young people in the afternoon. A caterer is to be on the grounds to serve chowder, sandwiches, tea, coffee and ice cream at city rates.

The society will be called upon to elect officers for the ensuing year, after hearing the reports of the present incumbents.

The special train for the reunion leaves Boston at 9.10 A. M. Returning leaves Duxbury at 5.00 P. M.

MAN AND WIFE FINED.

The cases of Nichele and Louise Joseph, who were charged by Inspector Goodhue with selling intoxicating liquor, came before Judge Pratt in the District court this morning. Both defendants were found guilty and fined $50 each. They appealed and are held in $300 bonds for their appearance before the Superior court.

By evidence of the government's witnesses ,it was clearly shown that the woman was guilty, but so far as could be learned, except on the evidence of one witness who confessed to being doubtful, the man was not guilty. However on the strength of this evidence an dthe plea of Inspector Goodhue he was also found guilty and fined.

MILAN IN GOOD FORM.

Senators' Outgardener Playing a Consistently Good All Around Game.

Washington fans are highly pleased with the grand all round playing of Clyde Milan, the Senators' star center outfielder this season. Last year he fell off woefully in his batting and base running, and in many quarters it was common gossip that he was slated for release at the end of the season. Owing to the change of managers Milan was kept on the payroll of the Washington club. But since the 1910 campaign started Milan has been gobbling up everything in the outer garden, batting like a streak and running the bases like a demon. Recently Milan made four hits in as many times at bat and scored two runs. Manager McAleer thinks that in another year he will be classed with the best outfielders in the country.

IS WAGNER DISSATISFIED?

Great Player's Indifference Said to Be Cause of Pirates' Slump.

According to the wise ones, Hans Wagner, once worshiped by all fandom as its foremost idol, is dissatisfied with his berth as a member of the Pirates and has created dissensions in the ranks of the team. The miserable showing of the champions is charged to this cause. A Pittsburg critic's version of Wagner's indifference is as follows:

"Although Wagner draws a salary of $10,000 a year and as a player under contract is supposed to play as directed by the manager of the team, it is no secret that time and again Honus has disobeyed instructions and has been performing in a don't care and listless fashion.

"In a recent game with the Phillies Wagner went into Fred Clarke's territory and caught a ball which Clarke had called out he would take. A painful collision with disastrous results was averted only by Clarke's agility in turning aside in the nick of time. Wagner's utter disregard of discipline has disgusted George Gibson and other leading members of the team and affected their work. The pitchers lose heart when easy taps which any bush league shortstop ought to handle go through Wagner's territory and are recorded as hits.

"Honus has expressed himself as being tired of the national game. Being independently wealthy, he does not relish taking orders and is quoted as saying: 'I would like to play baseball just when I feel like it, instead of being compelled to report at a certain time every day and be required to do things as some one else dictates. A ball player is nothing more than a well fed slave, who may be sold to a club a long way from home any day. When a fellow gets past the stage of enthusiasm baseball becomes labor for him.'"

Davis Lawn Tennis Matches.

Affairs surrounding the Davis international lawn tennis challenge cup have taken a new turn. From the official American tennis organ the statement is made that it has been decided to nominate the team of players to represent this country at the time of playing the all comers' national championship on the courts at Newport, R. I., which will begin Aug. 15. That was the procedure last year. At that time it will be possible to obtain players willing to journey to Australia. Already it is known that Beals C. Wright, now competing in England, and the two Californians, Maurice E. McLoughlin and Melville T. Long, are willing to go. However, much depends upon the form that the two latter display when they appear in the eastern tournaments this season.

Chase Playing Sensational Game.

Hal Chase of the New York Americans is playing marvelous ball for the Yankees. Stallings' infielders do not have to look where they are throwing, for Chase is grabbing the ball whenever it is within five feet of him.

Block Has Sure Peg.

Block, the Chicago American catcher, is sure death to base stealing. He has a splendid whip and adds a deal of strength to the backstopping.

ENTERED A PROTEST AGAINST HIS OWN BOAT

Ex-Commodore Adams Not Satisfied With the Way He Won Saturday's Race

Harpoon is Disqualified and Ellen Gets the First Leg

Although the Harpoon, sailed by ex-Commodore C. F. Adams, was the first to finish in the opening race on Saturday for the Quincy Yacht club challenge cup, the race was given to the defending yacht Ellen on Mr. Adams' statement that he had fouled the Ellen at the last Strawberry Hill turn. This was the only time during the whole race that the Ellen was ahead. The Harpoon had been leading from the start and on the last run from Peddocks to Strawberry Hill it was seen that the Ellen was closing up the gap, and just after passing the stake boat she poked her nose ahead. For a time the two yachts ran along nip and tuck. As they neared the Strawberry Hill buoy it looked as though the Harpoon would be the first to round the buoy. Both boats were very close together, and it looked as though there would be a mix-up. Then the Harpoon gave way and allowed the Ellen to round first.

On the beat back to Peddocks, the Harpoon again took the lead, and had no difficulty in crossing the line first at the finish.

From the very start it was seen that the race was between the Ellen and Harpoon, and the only thing that would give either of the other three boats an opportunity to win would be a mishap to the leaders.

After the race the Harpoon came to the judge boat and Mr. Adams informed the judges that he had fouled the Ellen at the Strawberry Hill buoy, and that he thought he was in the wrong.

Later Mr. Curtis of the Ellen stated that he did not wish to enter any protest, but as his boat represented a club in a match for a trophy, he thought that all the rules should be lived up to. He stated that the Harpoon had beaten the Ellen fairly, and that the foul had no bearing on the race. Then the judges disqualified the Hardpoon, and gave the race to the Ellen.

Saturday's race was a windward and leeward one of 10 1-4 miles and the course sailed was a new one selected that morning. Leaving the stake boat the boats had a beat to Peddocks Island, then a run to Strawberry Hill and a beat back to Peddocks Island and repeat. The course allowed the observers on the Boston club house verandas to keep the yachts in view all the time.

On the beat to the first mark at the start Harpoon covered the distance in 19 minutes, 45 seconds, while the Ellen required 22 minutes, 7 seconds. On the run to Strawberry Hill, the Ellen made the best time, covering the distance in 40 minutes, 10 seconds, while the Harpoon required 42 minutes and 01 seconds. On the beat back to Peddocks much better time was made, the distance being covered in 28 minutes 50 seconds by the Harpoon and 30 minutes 38 seconds by the Ellen.

On the run back to Strawberry Hill the Ellen again made the best time running with the wind, as she covered the distance in 33 minutes 34 seconds, while the Harpoon took 36 minutes, 3 seconds.

On the final beat back to Peddocks, the time when the Harpoon again took the lead, she continued to widen the gap until in rounding Peddocks she had a lead of nearly four minutes. The elapsed time on this leg was: Harpoon 33 minutes 54 seconds; Ellen 37 minutes 11 seconds. On the run home to the stake boat the Ellen covered the distance in 8 minutes 05 seconds, while the Harpoon did the trick in 9 minutes 26 seconds.

The following table gives the elapsed time on each leg for the Harpoon and Ellen:

	Harpoon. m. s.	Ellen. m. s.
To first turn,	19.45	22.07
To second turn,	42.01	40.10
To third turn,	28.50	30.38
To fourth turn,	36.03	33.34
To fifth turn,	33.54	37.11
To sixth turn,	9.26	8.05

The summary of the race:

Name, owner and club	Time.
*Harpoon, C. F. Adams 2d, Q Y C	2 40 58
Ellen, C. P. Curtis, B Y C	2 50 44
Sally XI, L. F. Percival, C. Y. C.	2 58 33

CHRISTENING AT WEST QUINCY.

"The least flower with brimming cup may stand.
And share its dewdrop with another near."
Elizabeth Barrett Browning

A beautiful and impressive christening ceremony took place at the home of the parents on Hall place, West Quincy, on Sunday at 10 o'clock when the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry F. Loud was baptized by Rev. E. W. Virgin, who married the father and mother in Dedham August 5 1907. This was their first child and was born April 19, 1909, and named after his father, Harrison Franklin Loud. At the christening four generations of the family were present, the babe, the father and mother, the grandfather and grandmother (Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Loud), and the great grandmother, the mother of Mrs. W. F. Joud.

FINED TWENTY DOLLARS.

John Crangle was arraigned in court this morning on a complaint charging him with drunkenness and with creating a disturbance on a public conveyance. Crangle and a party of friends, all more or less under the influence of liquor, came from Neponset on the last car Saturday night. On the way up the gang made more or less disturbance, particularly Crangle, who had some words with conductor Bock over his car fare, claiming that the conductor did not give him the right change. There was a little mixup between the conductor and Crangle and when City Square was reached he was locked up on a complaint for drunkenness. This morning a second complaint charging him with creating a disturbance on a public conveyance was served on him. The court placed the case for drunkenness on file, and fined him $20 on the disturbance complaint.

SUNDAY NOON FIRE.

The alarm from Box 612 at 12.49 Sunday noon was for a slight fire on the roof of the house of Carmine P. Gardiner off Hancock street, Norfolk Downs. It seems that a wood fire was built in the house and sparks from the chimney alighted on the shingles and set them on fire. The loss was confined to a few shingles.

CLAFLIN FAMILY REUNION.

The Claflin family will come together tomorrow at Holliston for its 56th annual gathering. It is thought that this is the longest period in which any family has held annual reunions without a break. The reunion is to be held at the John Claflin homestead.

MRS HENRY G. FAY.

Wollaston and Quincy friends were much shocked and grieved to learn of the passing on of Lydia W., wife of Henry G. Fay of Marlboro street, Sunday at the Emerson hospital at Forest Hills, where she underwent an operation early in the month for appendicitis.

Mrs. Fay was a woman much beloved and had a wide circle of friends especially in Wollaston, where she has made her home for many years. She was active in the Quincy Women's club and a member of the Home Economics committee. In the Wollaston Unitarian church she was an interested and hearty worker.

Funeral services will be held from the home 52 Marlboro street, Wollaston Park on Wednesday afternoon at half past two.

Sincere sympathy is extended to the husband and children and to her sister, Mrs. Sylvester Brown.

RUN OVER BY AUTO.

Fantino Salvatore of Canal street had a narrow escape from being killed Sunday noon when he was run over by an automobile near the corner of Washington and Canal streets. Salvatore was on an electric car coming toward Quincy. When the car reached the corner instead of waiting for it to stop he jumped off, and ran directly in front of an automobile also coming toward Quincy. Salvatore was knocked down and severely injured. Dr. Hardwick and Dr. Middleton were called and after rendering first aid ordered his removal to the City Hospital. It is said that Salvatore received a fracture of the left ankle, and other injuries.

—The telephone cable across the English Channel has been opened for public use.

JUBILEE SUPPER

One of the Events at the Baptist Anniversary

Four services were held at the Swedish Baptist church Sunday the closing day of its twenty-fifth anniversary, all being largely attended.

The first service was at 9.30 and was for the Sunday school children. It was in charge of Rev. John Bjork of Pittsburg, a former pastor. He spoke on "The Transfiguration of Christ on the Mountain."

The regular morning service was held at 10.45 and was in charge of Rev. A. P. Hanson, the pastor. The sermon was preached by Rev. John Westerberg of Keen, Pa., also a former pastor. His text was "The word of God and its hearers."

At 3.30 there was a special service with addresses in the English and Swedish languages. This service opened with a praise service led by Andrew Lundin. The pastor then read a historical address of the church and Rev. Reuben J. Davis pastor of the Calvary Baptist church preached a sermon in English on "A Consecrated Life." Rev. A. J. Bucklund of Boston preached on "Battling for God." Congratulatory messages were read from Rev. A. E. Lyzell of Anaconda, Mont.; William M. Frolind of Youngstown, O.; and Mrs. Ogren Johnson of Providence.

Between the afternoon and evening service there was a reunion of parishioners who sat down to a jubilee supper.

The closing service of the day was at 7.30 in the evening, when there were two sermons. Rev. John Bjork preached on "The Indwelling of Christ" and Rev. John B. Forsell of Erie, Pa., on "The Crusade of the Christian Church." The exercises closed with the singing of a hymn of thanksgiving.

FELL FROM TRAIN.

John J. Gallivan of Braintree had a narrow escape from serious injuries Saturday night when he fell from a moving train near the Popes Hill station. Gallivan was said to be under the influence of liquor but fortunately the only injury he received was to have his face scratched by the gravel. The train was stopped and he was brought to Quincy where the train was met by police ambulance. He was taken to the police station where he was washed up and being little the worse for his tumble he was taken to his home in Braintree.

MOTOR BOAT CHRISTENED.

The splendid new motor boat purchased recently by Peter Pitt and Benny Pitts the popular caretaker of the Wollaston Yacht club was christened yesterday by Miss Helen Connor. Miss Connor scattered a large bouquet of sweet peas in the boat saying as she did so "I christen thee, Katherine." May thy career be a most successful one. The party numbering ten then enjoyed a trip to Winthrop beach where they were etnertained at the cotage of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Delorey.

QUINCY FOR LODGE.

The Boston Globe has sought the views of various chairmen of the Republican City Committees relative to the Lodge-Ames contest for Senator from Massachusetts, and quotes William M. Chase of Quincy as follows:

"I have not heard a great deal about the subject in this city but from what talk I have had with republicans here I should say the sentiment in Quincy is in favor of the candidacy of Senator Lodge.

"My own personal opinion is that as against Senator Lodge, Congressman Ames will stand no show."

RAID AT BRAINTREE.

Braintree and Randolph police raided a gambling joint on King Hill road, Braintree, Sunday afternoon and arrested two of the crowd, who gave their name as Fred Gerrior and Percy Salvino. The rest of the crowd got away.

ENJOYABLE LAWN PARTY

Automobile Rides and Fortune Telling on Program

Large numbers attended the lawn party and festival held on the old Melville estate by the ladies of the Park and Downs Congregational church on Saturday afternoon and evening.

On the lawn were booths for the sale of cake, candy, ice cream and tonic while at six o'clock a baked bean supper was served.

Japanese lanterns, flags and electric lights gave an added attractiveness to the scene, while the tree trunks decked out in red, white and blue bunting formed a novel scheme of decoration.

Automobile rides were a popular form of amusement and did a landoffice business from the start until the last gun was fired.

Those contributing automobiles were: A. B. Robbins, H. B. Chapman, A. W. Fay and Charles Gilliat.

In the evening Mrs. Merrill of Boston looked into the future of the courageous ones, while James MacDonald in charge of an electric battery "shocked" those who desired it. A hurdy-gurdy proved an enjoyable feature during the evening.

Composing the committee which made the affair a success were: Mrs. A. B. Robbins, chairman, Mrs. B. A. Banks, Mrs. Herbert Tucker, Mrs. Reginald Shaw, Mrs. Bishop and Mrs. William Thompson.

MAYOR AS RINGMASTER.

A Boston paper reports that Winthrop lodge of Elks is preparing many surprises for its amateur circus which it will present in the near future. The item says: Mayor John F. Fitzgerald of Boston will be seen in a role new to him, that of ringmaster at the opening performance and all will have an opportunity of hearing that beautiful ballad, "Sweet Adeline." For the second evening Mayor William T. Shea of Quincy has been secured and will "play the horses" in the sawdust arena. Two other celebrities will attend the remaining performances, but who they are the committee will not tell, but hint that they will be national figures.

TIRRELL ARRESTED.

Charles F. Tirrell, who had been adjudged insane by New Hampshire authorities but escaped from the officers which being taken to an aslyum at Concord, by jumping through the car window, was arrested in City Square on Sunday night by Officer Doran. He will be turned over to New Hampshire officers.

MONEY MISSING.

Mrs. Eva Hall Fryer had the misfortune to lose an envelope containing five $2 bills from her chatelaine bay in City Square Saturday evening. Mrs. Fryer had been to an office in the Durgin & Merrill block and when she arrived at Chapins' newstand she found her bag open and the envelope containing the money gone. A few minutes later the envelope was picked up in the square but the money was gone.

HARPOON WINS THE SECOND RACE

Had a Good Lead Over the Fleet in the Triangular Course

Looks Now As If She Might Lift the Cup

Today's race for the Quincy Yacht club challenge cup the second in the series, was won fair and square by the Harpoon, with Charles Adams at the helm, representing the Quincy Yacht club.

Today's start was at 11.40 and at that hour there was a stiff northwest breeze blowing. The course was a triangular one of 12 miles. After crossing the line the course was to Strawberry Hill, thence to Great Hill, Quincy bay, thence to Peddocks island to the starting point and repeat.

The Cima was the first to cross the line and led the fleet the first time round, with the Harpoon second, Ellen third, and Eel fourth.

The Sally XI misinterpreted the course signal flag and read it course 2 instead of course 5.

After sailing a short distance she discovered her error and withdrew.

After turning the buoy off Quincy Great hill for the last time the Harpoon closed up the gap between her and the Cima and soon took the lead, which she retained until the finish, when she crossed the line 1 minute, 10 seconds ahead.

The Harpoon's best work today was when sailing off the wind.

The time at finish was:

Harpoon	1	30	20
Cima	1	31	30
Ellen	1	33	00
Eel	1	35	00
Sally XI		Withdrew

The elapsed time was:

Harpoon	1	50	20
Ellen	1	53	00
Cima	1	51	30
Eel	1	55	00

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

Westport, Conn., women understand advertising. Recently the Ladies' Town Improvement association gave a lawn fete and fair. As an extra attraction it was announced several days ago that the moving pictures of the fight would be shown. The sporting element of the town was jubilant. The women had come to their rescue. The Rev. Charlton B. Strayer denounced the proceedings from his pulpit in the Green Farms Congregational church. Prominent men withdrew their patronage. The sporting crowd turned out in full force and the Rev. Mr. Strayer was finally persuaded to come and see the pictures. The "moving pictures" were pictures of the black and white fighters on strings which were pulled by several women to make them move. The cleverness of the women was rewarded with big financial success the joke being appreciated even by the minister.

The Newburyport News thinks the "fresh air fad," if fad, it is, is growing, and speaks of how people are coming mor e and more to insist upon plenty of air in rooms where they work and where they sleep. This is certainly true; but what strikes us as most unaccountable says the Salem News is that, in the midst of all this clamor for fresh air men and women will ride for miles, sometimes for hours, in foul, stuffy ,hot railway carriages with little or no air. Any one who rides much in steam cars will find an open window the exception, rare exception, rather than the rule. Men and women are often to be seen on the trains hereabouts almost wilted and half asleep from the vitiated air which has been "used" by about every passenger in the car ,but they will not open a window, and will scowl if some one else opens one.

Is our brother editor of Salem so busy he cannot take a trip by train these warm days? If so he does not appreciate the suffering of the victim of an open car window. Eyes blinking from cinders and arriving at destination the color of coal. Electrification of the steam trains would insure fresh air and comfort.

DRIFT OF OPINION.

The experiment of the city of Philadelphia in the disposal of its bonds deserves to be carefully considered by other municipalities. Philadelphia undertook to sell its own bonds to investors "over the counter" as it has been phrased. That is, the bonds were put on sale at the office of the city treasurer, purchasers securing them at par. In this way $5,000,000 30-year, 4 per cents were disposed of. Previous to attempting the experiment the city called for bids on a 10-million issue, and the best offer made was $8,000,000. The difference would go to the brokers, affording them a very liberal commission. What Philadelphia has done may not other cities do? There are in every city people with means for investment. They buy the bonds of towns, States of corporations through the agency of brokers. If they could buy direct from their own city, with the knowledge that the entire loan was to be so disposed of, would it not be an inducement for them to "trade at home?" It worked that way in Philadelphia and it should prove satisfactory elsewhere for when bonds are so disposed of, both seller and buyer benefit from the operation.—Lynn Item.

It sounds strange to hea· the bond dealers complaining that the general desire for automobiles is hurting their trade, in a way. A good bond costs, let us say, $1000, and brings back to its owner $50 a year, with the practical certitude of refunding to him at maturity the whole principal sum of $1000. An automobile costs, let us say, from $2000 to $5000 and takes out of its owner's pocket something like $25 to $50 a month, with the absolute certainty that, at the end, nothing like the original investment can be got back from the sale of the machine. Nevertheless the public is said by the bond dealers to prefer automobiles to bonds. The reason, of course, is that the investor in an auto is satisfied with a return in something beside mere money.—Framingham News.

Lawrence does not now occupy its evil pre-eminence because it has a population that is more inclined to law breaking than any other city. Its population is about the same as any other Massachusetts city that has had the same rapid growth and that attracts a large number of the newly arrived emigrants. It is better off than some other cities in the state because the public exposure has come and because it is anxious to have a thorough clean up made. It is now ready for any kind of an exposure. With its chief magistrate in jail it is now indifferent as to where the judicial lightning will strike next. In fact it rather welcomes the idea that there is something even more widespread and far reaching in the way of exposure to come.—Joseph McCarthy in Boston Transcript.

Boating tragedies are an every-day occurrence about this time. Most of these unfortunate affairs might be avoided by the exercise of ordinary care and good judgment. There is good sport on the water, and wholesome, healthful sport, too, but it ceases to be wholesome sport when foolish reckless people bring in the unnecessary element of risk. Reasonable precaution is about the most essential thing to take with you when you go on the water and "horse sense" ought to deter you from acting on the dare of any foolhardy person.—Haverhill Gazette.

DRINKS AND DYSPEPSIA.

The thirsty season is here. With hot weather most of us take more liquid, take it in copious quantities, then wonder why indigestion follows.

There is less harm done by overdrinking in summer than by drinking the wrong things.

Water is healthful, provided it is germ free, and it is hard to drink too much of it if at the proper temperature. This is not iced. Nothing more quickly produces dyspepsia than pouring ice water into the stomach in the reckless American style. If water is bottled and kept in a refrigerator it is better and quenches thirst more quickly than if iced .

Hot water is a better thirst quencher than cold. Nor is it as heating as people imagine. It is especially valuable if one is overheated, as it averts the risk of inflammation in the stomach.

Ice cream sodas are breeders of dyspepsia. A well-known stomach specialist advises to take ice cream and your soda water separately. It is the mixture that is harmful. Unless any soft drink is to work trouble, let moderation be your rule. Do not get the soda water habit. It will save money and digestion.

Abuse of tea and coffee is a frequent cause of dyspepsia. Tea taken with meals is apt to so dilute the gastric juices that power to digest solid food is impaired. The tannin which tea contains acts injuriously on the digestive process. The effects are especially bad when tea has been boiled, is very strong, or when it is creamed. Iced tea, the favorite summer luncheon beverage, acts unfavorably on the kidneys.

Coffee is less injurious than tea, contrary to general opinion. When taken too strong or in too great quantities it has an irritating effect on the mucous lining of the stomach. Wholesale condemnation of it is folly, but moderation is the rule.—New York Times.

AGREE TO ARBITRATION

Railroad Strikers Want Board to Be Acceptable to Both Sides

Ottawa, July 25.—The possibility of bringing about the settlement of the Grand Trunk railroad strike by means of arbitration looks somewhat brighter. James Murdock, representing the men, wired Mackenzie King, minister of labor, expressing a willingness to refer existing differences to arbitration "provided a board of arbitration, mutually acceptable, can be secured."

Minister King is trying to secure an unequivocal statement from the Grand Trunk officials.

President Hayes has nothing to add to his letter of July 21, in which he took the position that a board of arbitration should e composed of expert railroad men.

Boston's Hot Sunday

Boston, July 25.—The official thermometer indicated 94 at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon. This made Sunday the hottest day in 1910, and the hottest July 24 since 1882. There has been only one July day as hot as yesterday in the past thirty years.

POLICE HAVE CRIPPEN CLEW

Doctor and His Companion on Steamer Sardinian

"REV. ROBINSON AND SON"

One of Suspect's Heavy Projecting Eyebrows Becomes Displaced and Captain of Ship Bound For Montreal Gets Busy With Wireless—Canadian Officers Certain That Couple Will Be In Custody In Short Time

Ottawa, July 25.—If the expectations of the police are well founded, wireless telegraphy has been successful for the first time in capturing a murderer, and as soon as the Allan liner Sardinian reaches Farther Point on the St. Lawrence, members of the Dominion of Canada police will board the vessel and place under arrest the two passengers traveling as a clergyman and his son, who are believed to be Dr. Hawley H. Crippen and his stenographer, Miss Ethel Leneve.

The Sardinina is not one of the greyhounds of the sea and although she sailed from Havre for Montreal on July 18, she will probably not reach Farther Point until some time Tuesday or Wednesday.

The two prisoners will be taken to Ottawa by rail from Farther Point, which will gain several hours over the time that would elapse should the police wait until the steamer docks at Montreal.

The police are confident that the two mysterious passengers on board the Sardinian are the missing couple who have been hunted in every port of the world. They are registered as "Rev. Mr. Robinson and son" on the passenger list and the description tallies with that of the missing pair.

When they embarked at Havre, according to a wireless message, the clergyman wore a straggling beard that was apparently new grown and wore heavy glasses which looked deceptive. They engaged a second class cabin.

The most noticeable feature was the man's heavy projecting eyebrows. No suspicion attached to the couple until the steward noticed that Robinson's eyebrow was slightly separated from the forehead. On further watching the steward was assured that the alleged son was a girl.

The captain of the Sardinian sent a wireless description of the two to the French police, giving as his opinion that the couple were really Crippen and the Leneve woman.

The French police communicated with the British authorities, who believe that there is no doubt about the identity of the couple. They are of the opinion that Crippen and his companion, after fleeing from London, separated in the south of France and rejoined each other at Marseilles, traveling together from that place to Havre.

BIG HAY CROP ASSURED

Nutmeg State Prophet Says That It Means Many More Coons

New York, July 25.—"There is going to be a big hay crop this year, and that means more coons," said Uncle John Swaybe of Kent, Conn., at the Lexington avenue railway station, waiting for a train home.

"I dunno why it is, but when there is a good hay cut there is atways plenty of coons in the fall. I have been watching the signs now for more'n fifty years an' I oughter know. I s'pose there's more coons now up there in the Connecticut hills than there was 'fore the country was discovered. I keep a reckonin' on most of the coons killed year by year, and there seems to be more of 'em every year."

ELEVEN DROWNINGS

Many Were Bathers, While Several Canoeists Also Meet Death

Boston, July 25.—Eleven deaths by drowning followed in the wake of yesterday's torrid weather in New England. Of this number many were bathers, who, attacked by cramps, were suddenly rendered helpless, while several canoeists lost their lives through the upsetting of their frail craft.

One fatality was caused by several young people fooling in a boat when a young woman fell overboard and none were able to rescue her.

The youngest victim of the day was an 18-months old toddler, who, crawling through a gate, made his way out on a wharf and fell into the water.

Auto Kills Grand Army Man

Boston, July 25.—Orrin Whitton of Avon, one of the most prominent Grand Army men in eastern Massachusetts, was struck by an automobile owned and driven by George H. Toothacher of Dedham, in Mattapan square, and died four hours later. Mrs. Annie H. Tucker was also run over by the same machine and suffered serious inquries to the chest and abdomen.

Broker Killed In Auto Crash

Cincinnati, July 25.—William F. Koester, head of the brokerage firm of William F. Koester & Co., was killed in a collision between his automobile and a street car.

Courage of Notorious Prisoner Has Never Diminished

IN "SOLITARY" MANY YEARS

Torturer of Boys Who Was Given Life Sentence For Murder When He Was Fourteen Years Old Now Wants to Appeal to Supreme Court at Washington—District Attorney Tells Him He Has No Chance

Boston, July 25.—For thirty-six years Jesse H. Pomeroy has been within the walls of the Charlestown state prison for the murder of Horace H. Millet, 4 years old. Most of this confinement has been solitary because of repeated attempts to escape.

In all these years Pomeroy has never abandoned hope of being released by legal proceedings. He has made several applications for a pardon, all of which have been denied, but notwithstanding this his courage has never diminished in the least degree.

He now thinks that he sees a ray of hope in a writ of error to the supreme court of the United States, and for many months all his energies have been bent in that direction.

Soon after his last failure to secure executive clemency from the governor, Pomeroy started a careful and exhaustive study of the evidence brought out at the trial of his case, and in his attempt to find some tangible error solicited the aid of Clerk Frederick of the supreme judicial court to secure copies of the court papers and has sought his advice on the steps necessary to take his case to Washington.

He has persisted in his work of preparing what he believes to be a good cause for appeal to the supreme court at Washington.

During a visit of Assistant District Attorney Dwyer to the state prison Pomeroy learned of his presence and sent word through Warden Bridges that he would like to talk with him.

Mr. Dwyer consented to visit Pomeroy, and for two hours held a conversation with him through the opening in the cell door. The sole subject of conversation was Pomeroy's chance of securing an appeal to the supreme court of the United States, based upon an error at the time of his trial in 1874.

According to Pomeroy, he should have been found guilty only of murder in the second degree, because the jury handed a paper to the court after rendering an oral verdict of "guilty in the first degree" to the effect that they found him guilty of murder in the first degree because of the atrocity which accompanied the commission of the crime, and that there was no evidence offered by the attorney general and district attorney to substantiate that finding.

At Pomeroy's request Dwyer sent him a copy of the testimony of Dr. Allen, which clearly warranted the finding that the crime was an atrocious one. After spending three or four days in a careful study of the evidence Dwyer wrote Pomeroy that there was absolutely no chance of Pomeroy's securing his release by any application to the court.

The trial of Pomeroy in 1874, then a boy of 14, was the most remarkable one that had ever occurred in the criminal courts of Massachusetts, both on account of the age of the defendant and the nature and atrocity of the crime of which he was found guilty.

On the morning of April 22, 1874, two young boys came upon the body of young Millet lying near the water's edge, between the promontory of South Boston and that of Savin Hill.

Through witnesses who had seen Pomeroy and the child together on their way to the marsh Pomeroy was arrested. In jail, Pomery confessed and later put the confession into writing.

The defense set up the plea of insanity. In support of this he placed on the stand about a dozen young boys, all of whom testified to having been maltreated at one time or another by Pomeroy. This testimony was offered to show that Pomeroy had a mania for cutting and slashing, and was made frenzied by the sight of blood.

HOUSEHOLD RECIPES.

Cold Mint Sauce. To make the mint for lamb, add to two tablespoonfuls washed and finely chopped mint a little white pepper and a gill of vinegar in which two tablespoonfuls of sugar have been dissolved. Let stand a half hour before serving. If this sauce is preferred hot the vinegar and sugar may be heated to the boiling point and the minced mint stirred in just before serving.

Sea Foam Cake. Two cups sugar, one cup butter, three and one-half cups flour, one cup sweet milk, two teaspoonfuls baking powder, eight eggs whites ,one teaspoonful Bakers extract rose. Rub butter with sugar to a light cream add milk and flour into which the baking powder has been thoroughtly sifted; flavoring extract ,and whites of eggs. Bake in jelly tins, and put layers together with boiled icing.

Blackberry pie. Line a plate with crust. Allow three cups berries and three-fourths cup sugar to each pie. Sprinkle lightly with flour ,then put on top crust or a latticed crust. Bake in a rather slow and steady oven.

Cheese Ramequins. Put half a cup of water and two tablespoonfuls of butter into a saucepan ,and when they begin to boil add half a cup of flour and a little brown pepper and salt, and stir until the mixture separates readily from the pan. Turn into a mixing bowl and beat in two ounces of finely grated cheese and two eggs, one at a time. Put the paste on a well-buttered baking sheet, shaping it into flat, circular pieces about an inch in diameter. Brush the tops with beaten egg and put three or four cheese dice on each. Bake until light ,and serve very hot.

Green Corn Omelet. Score the rows of four large ears of corn and scrape out teh pulp. Mix with five well beaten eggs, whites and yolks together, one tablespoonful cream, half a teaspoonful salt and pepper to season. Heat a frying pan, drop in a tablespoonful butter and grease every portion of the sides and bottom. Pour in the omelet and tilt the pan, sliding a thin-bladed knife under the omelet to prevent its sticking. When nearly cooked on top the stove, set in oven to finish. Then fold over and t urn on to a hot platter.

Woman Sees Son Killed

Boston, July 25.—Edward Morley, a 7-year-old Charlestown boy, was run over by an electric car in front of an open window less than ten feet away where his mother was watching him play on the sidewalk. He died a short time after his leg had been amputated. Physicians had to be alled to attend to the mother, who collapsed when she saw her child ground beneath the wheels of the car.

Marine Corps May Be Abolished

Washington, July 25.—It is reported in naval circles that at its next session congress may take up for serious consideration some plan which has for its ultimate object the abolition of the marine corps.

CLOSE RACE IN CLASS D

Dolly III. First But Loses on Time Allowance

The July 2 postponed race of the Quincy Yacht club was sailed Saturday afternoon off the club house in a light southwest breeze.

In Class A there were but two starters and the Thordis of Frank E. Dawes won on actual time. She was nearly four minutes ahead of the Waweenock. As the latter boat has not been measured corrected time is not given.

In the Knockabout class, the Notoris was the first to finish, but was disqualified for crossing the line the wrong way. There were four starters in the power boat class, and the Rutland was an easy winner.

Seven of the Cape class were out, and as usual furnished the sport of the race. The Iris of Rear Commodore Crane won, although there was but two seconds difference between her and the Dartwell of vice Commodore Whittemore on actual time and but 18 seconds difference on corrected time. The Dolly III was a close third. She was the first to cross the line at the finish, but corrected time placed her in third place, 24 seconds behind the Iris. The sumamry:

AWNING TAKES FIRE.

The awning in front of the Quincy market in the Adams building took fire about 8 o'clock Saturday night, from being too near the gas light and was burning briskly when discovered. W. H. Dunbar ,one of the Daily Ledger compositors, was passing at the time, and rendered valuable assistance in extinguishing the blaze, rushing back and forth with buckets of water which were thrown onto the awning. This is the second time this awning has taken fire within a few weeks.

Sorry He Spoke.

There is a certain West Philadelphia bachelor who is very fond of children. Recently when he was riding on a Chestnut street trolley car a woman sat opposite him with a baby in her arms. Suddenly the baby began to cry. Every one in the car seemed to be annoyed and a general scowl went around—that is, every one except the bachelor. He tried to show by the benign expression of his face that the crying of the baby was sweet music to him. He smiled at the youngster, but the noise only grew louder. Finally he leaned across the car.

"Perhaps there's a pin sticking him," he said in a stage whisper and after the manner of one who understands all the complexities and troubles of baby life. There was a profound silence in the car until the mother answered:

"No, there's no pin sticking him," she said at last in a tone of scorn and with much emphasis on the last word. Then she continued, "He's scared because you're making faces at him."

After that the bachelor lapsed into pensiveness.—Philadelphia Times.

Not Enthusiastic.

"My boy's back from college."

"How does he take holt on the farm?"

"I hain't seen him make no cane rush for the wood pile."—Kansas City Journal.

Dreadful!

Stella—A dreadful experience, you say? Bella—Yes; I saw a great bargain in shoes when I had a hole in my stocking!—Ladies' Guest.

—There are now no territories left within the bounds of the continental United States—or will not be, when New Mexico and Arizona have organized as states under the enabling act of this congress. We shall then have forty-eight states and ninety-six United States senators, and so it will remain for all time, as far as the present continental bounds of the republic are concerned, unless some states should come to be divided. Noncontiguous territory now alone remains for statehood consideration.—Spencer Leader.

NAVAL JUNKETS ARE SOMEWHAT COSTLY

Said to Have Totalled $2,465,261 In Five Years

New York, July 25.—During the five fiscal years ending June 30, 1909, the governments spent $1,465,261.91 for the maintenance of three vessels for which, so far as naval purposes are concerned, it received little benefit, says a Washington dispatch in The World. The vessels are the Mayflower, Sylph and Dolphin.

The Mayflower and Sylph are known as the president's yachts and the Dolphin as that of the secretary of the navy.

There is no law authorizing the use of these vessels for other than naval purposes, yet all of them, according to the records of the navy department, have been used about half the time in the five years mentioned for pleasure junkets.

The Starling's Tongue.

It is extraordinary how many persons are under the impression that, in order to enable a bird to talk, it is absolutely necessary to cut or slit its tongue. I have heard that this fallacy had its origin in the following story: A man had a number of starlings in a large cage marked "Fine Young Starlings—Only 1 Shilling Each," and as each would be purchaser arrived the man would say, "There's a fine bird there, sir," pointing out one of them, "but I want half a crown for him, because he's the only one with a cut tongue, so he is bound to be a talker." He would then proceed to catch the bird and show the cut tongue and invariably succeeded in effecting a sale. This dodge would be repeated as each new customer arrived and departed rejoicing at his good bargain. The reader perhaps is not aware that all starlings have a very peculiar formation at the extremity of the tongue, which gives the appearance of a little piece having been snipped out of it.—London Strand.

The Crested Screamer.

"I was surprised to run across an old acquaintance up at the zoo the other day. The last time I saw him was in the lower part of Brazil when I was trying to push Yankee notions," said a commercial traveler. "This acquaintance is known as crested screamer. He is one of the best fighters I ever bet my money on. He is about as large as a turkey and as spry as they make 'em when his fighting blood is up. He has four sharp spurs instead of two, and the odd thing is the spurs are on the wings instead of the legs. The birds ran wild, but the natives tamed them and taught them to fight hawks and other enemies of poultry. They are fine poultry protectors. A fight between two of them is the most exciting thing in the way of sport down there and is more popular than a cockfight."—New York Sun.

A Grewsome "Charm."

One of the most grewsome "charms" is that which was at one time extensively used as a cure for wens. The hand of a dead criminal still hanging had to be rubbed three times over the wen. A correspondent in London Notes and Queries some few years since wrote that many persons were then living who in their younger days had undergone the ceremony, always, they maintained, with complete success. "On execution days at Northampton," he adds, "numbers of sufferers used to congregate around the gallows in order to receive the 'dead stroke,' as it was termed. At the last execution which took place in that town a very few only were operated upon, not so much in consequence of decrease of faith as from the higher fee demanded by the hangman."

Paternal Fortitude.

I was calling, when the little daughter of my hostess came into the room. Knowing that her mother's mother had that morning returned home after a somewhat lengthy visit I said:

"Weren't you sorry to have grandma go away, Pearl?"

"Yes, I was," she answered promptly, "and so was mamma—very sorry. But," and she paused thoughtfully for a moment, "I couldn't see at breakfast but that papa was just as cheerful as ever."

Especially the Police.

Female Mendicant—I'm a poor widow woman with eight small children. Can't you give us some clothes? Lady—The only clothing I have to give away is one of my husband's coats. Female Mendicant—Give it to me, good lady. I might marry again. There are several gentlemen as have their eye on me.—New York Journal.

The One Condition.

Lady Pertly—What did father say when you asked him if you could marry me? The Honorable Gussie—He didn't absolutely refuse, but he made a very severe condition. Lady P.—What was it? The Hon. G.—He said he would see me hanged first!—London Mail.

Density of Population.

The density of population in the German empire is 303 to the square mile. What that means may be grasped by considering that if the United States were as thickly populated as Germany it would have 900,000,000 people—ten times the present population.

NATION'S EYE ON WOODROW WILSON

Princeton's President May Be Democratic Candidate For the Governorship of New Jersey.

Tendency Growing to Let Educational Theorists Experiment With American Political Conditions.

By J. A. EDGERTON.

PRESIDENT WOODROW WILSON of Princeton university is being boomed for governor of New Jersey as a preliminary to his nomination as the Democratic candidate for president. That is the latest big political fact that has challenged the notice of the American people.

The sponsors of Wilson's boom for president and therefore of his candidacy for governor are said to be ex-Senator James Smith of New Jersey, Roger C. Sullivan of Illinois and Colonel George Harvey, editor of Harper's Weekly. The announcement was made after President Wilson had been in conference at the Lawyers' club in New York.

For all of these several reasons and some others political wiseacres opine that Wall street is back of the move. They recall that Colonel Harvey fought Roosevelt, that Roger Sullivan was read out of the Democratic party by Bryan and that ex-Senator Jim Smith has long been regarded as a little brother of the trusts.

However these things be, the big papers of the country are taking Woodrow Wilson's candidacy for governor of New Jersey seriously, and if he should be nominated and elected to that office his candidacy for the presidency would be more serious yet. Therefore he is a factor to be reckoned with.

Mentioned For 1908.

It was in 1906 that Colonel Harvey first nominated Wilson for president. He threw it out as a mere brilliant passing thought, like so many of the Harvey suggestions, but contrary to his expectations—and his experience—it "caught on." All sorts of letters were received from all sorts of corners of the land approving the proposal. For once in his life Colonel Harvey had struck a popular chord, so he kept on booming Wilson.

True, nothing came of it in 1908. Bryan wanted that nomination, and the Democratic party wanted him to have it. Now apparently both Bryan and the party have changed their minds and there is a chance for somebody else. "Why not Wilson?" says Harvey, so he tries for the delicious experience of again striking the popular chord. But he has grown wiser in the four years. He has learned that the American people demand in the presidency a man of some political experience. So he decides to try his candidate in the governorship of New Jersey and so qualify him for the bigger job. At least to a man up a political tree that looks like the psychology of the proposition.

Let us give Colonel Harvey due credit for one thing. He has again caused that coveted popular chord to vibrate. The talk of Wilson for governor is buzzing all over New Jersey, and soon the gossip of him for president will be humming throughout the country.

Wilson a Cleveland Democrat.

Woodrow Wilson was the friend of Grover Cleveland. While the ex-president was a lecturer at Princeton the two frequently discussed politics and kindred topics. Their views were in close accord, both believing in lofty standards, individual honesty and courage, both being old school Democrats and both opposing Bryan. Public affairs are congenial topics with Dr. Wilson, for, while his highest reputation has been gained as an educator, his chief interest is political economy and government. Possibly that is because he was born in Virginia or because he once practiced law in Atlanta, or it may be due to temperament.

Wilson is not only a political economist, but a historian, some of whose works have become text books. Among others he is the author of "Congressional Government," which appeared in 1885 and immediately gained him a reputation as an original thinker; "The State," which came out in 1889, dealing with all branches of constitutional government; "Division and Reunion," covering American history from 1829 to 1889; "Mere Literature and Other Essays," "George Washington" and a "History of the People of the United States."

Most of these books are standard authorities in colleges, and all of them show research, scholarship and in places brilliancy. "Division and Reunion," while written from the viewpoint of the southerner, reveals a breadth and wholesome Americanism that rob it of offense for northern readers.

Has Grasp of Events.

In all his political and historical writings Dr. Wilson shows himself a fundamental Democrat with a peculiar insight into the spirit and purposes of the founders and builders of the nation. He is also a lecturer who speaks before popular assemblies as well as before educational and scientific bodies. His voice is said to resemble that of Henry Ward Beecher.

Dr. Wilson is fifty-three years of age and was graduated from Princeton at the age of twenty-two. He was christened Thomas Woodrow, and in college was called "Tommy," but like Grover Cleveland, who was originally Stephen Grover, he amputated the first name. After leaving Princeton Wilson studied law in the University of Virginia and practiced in Atlanta for two years. It was while in Georgia that he met and later married Miss Ellen Louise Axson, a belle of Savanna.

From 1883 to 1885 he took a post-graduate course in Johns Hopkins, after which he became professor of history and political economy at Bryn Mawr. He next held the same chair at Wesleyan university. From 1890 to 1902 he was professor of jurisprudence and politics at Princeton. While in this position he was offered the presidency of other colleges at an advance of salary, but preferred to remain with his alma mater. Since 1902 he has been president of Princeton.

Knows a Good Story.

Despite the fact that he is a dignified educator, Dr. Wilson enjoys and on occasion tells a good story. Here is one concerning his predecessor, the late Dr. McCosh.

Wilson says that McCosh was known to crack a joke only once. It was at an evangelical alliance attended by ministers of various denominations Dr. McCosh was there as a Presbyterian. The presiding officer, a Baptist, remarked:

"Brethren, I presume that, whatever else our differences may be in denominational belief, we can safely say that the Apostles' creed is a platform upon which we can all stand."

Thereupon Dr. McCosh leaned over to his neighbor, the Methodist minister, and whispered in his rich Scotch brogue:

"I should na care to 'descend into hell' with an Episcopalian."

Here is another good story that Dr. Wilson tells: A long winded and ancient southern lawyer had been making a plea for three whole days. The judge became impatient and in as polite a way as he could admonished him to cut it short.

"And do you know," says Dr. Wilson, "the old barrister declared that the last four days of his argument were a marvel of condensation."

Recommended Own Portrait.

A Princeton man now located in New York relates the following anecdote of a chance meeting with Dr. Wilson:

Going into Scribner's bookstore one morning this gentleman saw a smooth faced, middle aged man in glasses and without a hat and naturally took him for a clerk. Woodrow Wilson had just been elected president of Princeton, and the former student wanted to find out something about him. Of the supposed clerk he asked for some book by Wilson containing his portrait.

"There is no portrait of Wilson in any of his books," replied he of the glasses, "but if you will look in"—here he named a certain magazine, giving the month and year—"you will find a fair likeness of him."

Then, picking up a hat, he bowed and went out.

"Do you know who that was?" asked the mystified Princeton man of a real clerk this time.

"Professor Woodrow Wilson," was the answer.

Here is one of Dr. Wilson's mottoes: "You don't send a boy to college to find an education; it's to find himself."

Of the trusts he has said:

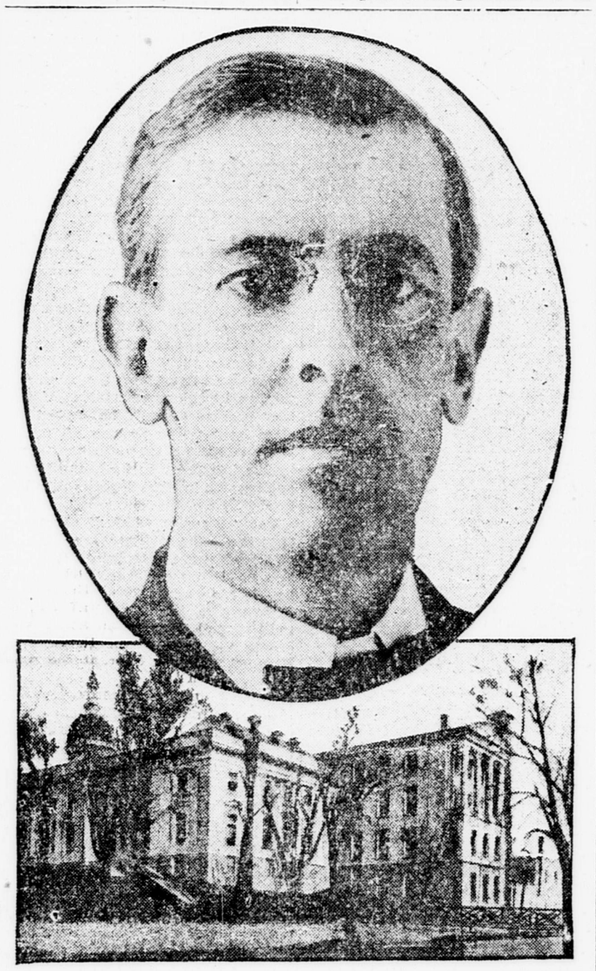

"The thing that keeps water in stocks is secrecy. If this board were taken out of the sluiceway the water would all run out, and then people would know what they had left."

College Presidents In Public Office.

We have had much talk of the scholar in politics, but outside of diplomatic positions and a few commissions we have never placed a college president in public office. President Taft made Professor H. C. Emery the head of the tariff board and asked President Hadley of Yale to take first place on the commission to look into stock watering. James B. Angell, Andrew D. White and same others have been recognized in foreign ambassadorships. Jacob Gould Schurman was on the Philippines commission, but we never put the head of a college at the head of the nation. There is one exception, I believe, as James A. Garfield in his youth had been president of a small college.

Why should we not draft the knowledge, training and high ideals of the teachers in our government service? For example, why should not the trained political economist have some part in the actual working out of the political economy of the nation? If it be objected that they are only theorists, then give them a chance to correct the defect by practical experience. Both the college and the government would be the gainers, the government in expert knowledge and the college in actual contact with affairs.

It is in this spirit that Woodrow Wilson's friends urge him as a candidate for governor of New Jersey with the presidency of the United States in the perspective. Can he get it? Well, Bob Davis of Hudson county and Jim Smith are both reported for him, and when these two get together something usually happens. As for the election—but that is a different matter.

PRESIDENT WOODROW WILSON OF PRINCETON AND NEW JERSEY CAPITOL AT TRENTON.

DIAMOND FIELD PROVES RICH

Southwest Africa Properties Worth $50,000,000 to Germany.

Germany has a better investment in her southwest African diamond fields than has been supposed, thinks Dr. Paul Rohrbach, who has gone over the ground thoroughly. Dr. Rohrbach says that eighteen months ago estimates of from $25,000,000 to $50,000,000 as the value of the Luderitz bay properties were dismissed as unduly optimistic.

These properties include all the claims between the twenty-sixth degree of south latitude and the Orange river. One of these claims, which has an area of 12,500 acres and is in the neighborhood of Luderitz bay, will, he says, yield this year diamonds to a market value of $25,000,000.

This property has been worked superficially by the same company for two years, and the results already obtained and an investigation at deeper levels fully justify this forecast. Other claims have not been worked so well or so long as this, but from his personal experience Dr. Rohrbach thinks they, too, will pan out much better than was expected.

BRIEFS

Another hot wave is with us.

Afternoon tides this week; 2.15 tomorrow.

The mercury had climbed above 80 at 8 o'clock this morning.

Dog days begin today according to the almanac. Some thought they began Sunday.

Gus White of Johnson Bros.' market has been enjoying his annual vacation the past week.

Miss Alice Gaffney of Montello was a guest over the week end of relatives at Houghs Neck.

Miss Marion Morrow and Miss Anna Torrey of Montello were Sunday guests of Houghs Neck relatives.

A party of Quincy business men spent Sunday at Old Orchard beach, returning home by boat Sunday night.

President Charles E. French o fthe Melrose board of aldermen and family are spending the summer in Quincy.

The annual reunion of the W. M. French Hose association will be held at the Squantum Inn, Saturday, Aug. 27.

Miss Annie Gibson o fthe Shepard, Norwell Co., of Boston is rusticating at her home on Granite street for two weeks.

Dr. and Mrs. C. E. Parkhurst and children of Somerville are spending the sumemr at Quincy bay, the doctor going back and forth each day from his Somerville office in his automobile.

Mr. and Mrs. Alden A. Thorndike who passed the early summer at their country house in Braintree, are at their cottage in the Berkshire hills for the rest of the sumemr and early fall.

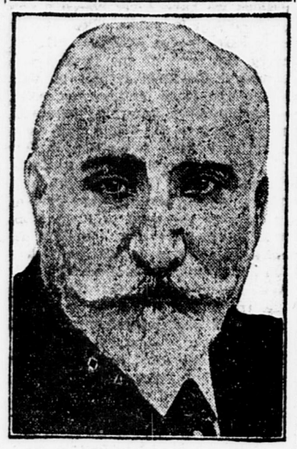

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Kay have just received word of the death of their nephew, Harmon Chapin, aged seven of Ellensburg, Washington, grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Simpson Kay of Wollaston.

Mrs. Adelaide McGrath, Patriotic Instructor, is to entertain members of Paul Revere W. R. C. at her home on Botolph street, Atlantic, on Wednesday afternoon fro mtwo until five. Those wishing a good time will be on hand early and avoid the rush.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

ANTONIO MAURA

Bullets Pierce Arm and Leg of Former Premier of Spain

HIT BY TWO BULLETS

Ex-Premier Maura Saved From Assassination by Cousin's Bravery

Barcelona, July 25.—Antonio Maura, leader of the conservative party, who, as premier, put down the Barcelona riots and brought about the execution of Francisco Ferrer a year ago, perhaps owes his escape from death to the courage of his youthful girl cousin, who threw herself upon his assailant.

It was shortly before midnight that the ex-prime minister stepped from a train at the Francia station. At his side was his cousin. Suddenly from the crowd Manuel Posa fired three shots. The first bullet pierced Maura's arm and the second found lodgment in his leg.

As the assassin sprang again, the woman sprang upon him, spoiling his aim, and the bullet went wild. Posa, who is only 18 years old, said that he did not intend to shoot Maura, but desired only to make a demonstration against him. The wounds inflicted are not regarded as serious.

BRAGG WAS BOUND TO WIN HIS RACE

His Car Crashes Through Fence and Crashes Back Again

Brighton Beach, N. Y., July 25.—C. S. Bragg, the amateur driver who has defeated Barney Oldfield, took by sheer grit one of the most daring automobile races ever seen at Brighton Beach.

In the sixth event of the program, a five-mile event, open to amateurs only, Bragg, driving his own Flat, skidded on the turn into the home stretch, slewed broadside into the fence, crashed through it onto the green, turned on his power when he found himself still on four wheels, broke his way through the fence onto the track again, and then, by furious driving, regained all his lost distance and finished first in the phenomenally fast time of 4 minutes 46 3-5 seconds. He was cheered to the echo every time he passed the grandstand.

CHARLTON MURDER RECORD

It Has Not Yet Made Its Appearance at State Department

Washington, July 25.—The mystery over the fate of the "record" of the Lake Como murder committed by Porter Charlton is too deep even for an opinion by the state department.

Two weeks ago the word came that the Italian government would send this record to London. From there it was to be transmitted by mail to New York aboard a "fast steamer." Several steamers have crossed the Atlantic since then, but no record has been delivered.

Without this record, upon which the New Jersey court must pass, extradition of Charlton will be impossible, according to a statement made at the state department.

MAY ESCAPE PROSECUTION

New York Cashier May Restore $80,000 Worth of Stolen Bonds

New York, July 25.—Counsel for Erwin Wider, who has been formally charged by officials of the Russo-Chinese bank with stealing $80,000 worth of bonds, admits that he knows where his client is, and intimates that Wider and the bank are now in touch.

The bonds have not been negotiated, although it is strongly hinted that they have been hypothecated with various Wall street brokers. Neither has the case been reported to the police, and Wider's lawyer hopes that if the bonds can be restored to the bank there will be no prosecution.

To Close For Eleven Days

Worcester, Mass., July 25.—The Crompton & Knowles loom works, the largest of its kind in the world, will close its doors on Aug. 4 and the plant will remain idle for about eleven days.

The Kingdom In Portland Bay

Portland, Me., July 25.—The Shiloh bark Kingdom showed up in the bay Sunday after an absence of two weeks off the Massachusetts coast.

SURPLUS ALL SWEPT AWAY

Fidelity Trust Company of Louisville $1,340,000 Short

STOLEN BY FORMER OFFICIAL

Assistant Secretary Had For Ten Years Been Using Bank Funds to Speculate In Stock Market—Looted Institution Issues $1,000,000 New Stock to Make Good the Loss—Depositors Are Safe

Louisville, July 25.—That the peculations of August Ropke, the assistant secretary of the Fidelity Trust company of this city, are the greatest known in the history of banking, was shown when the experts who are working on the books of the former secretary announced to the stockholders that the shortage will reach $1,340,000, the total amount of the surplus funds of the bank.

Ropke had been in the employ of the concern for eighteen years, and because of his splendid work on the books and his preparedness in handling details for the bank, gained the confidence of the officials years ago.

The peculations of Ropke began ten years ago in a small way, but gradually increased until he swept away the entire surplus of the oldest and strongest bank in Louisville.

At the meeting of the stockholders the issuance of $1,000,000 additional stock was ratified and the new stock will be sold this week. It is believed that every share will be taken up by the present stockholders.

Following the arrest of the defaulting secretary it was feared that there would be a run made on the bank, and that despite its many millions of dollars' backing it would be forced to close its doors on account of lack of ready cash, but the depositors stood by the institution in its hour of need and brought in more deposits than before.

The manner in which Ropke managed to use the bank's money was also discussed at the meeting. It is stated that he used the clearing house system in his work. He would sign his name to a check which was drawn on the Fidelity and then would give it to one of his brokers to use in the manipulation of the stock market in Wall street and Chicago and other cities.

When the check was returned to the Fidelity, through the clearing house, he would secure it and tear it up, thereby concealing his crime. In this way he used the funds of the concern for ten years, and then he was found out through an oversight in leaving one of his small defalcations in sight of one of the bookkeepers. This was reported to President Barr, who questioned Ropke regarding his shortage. It is said Ropke promptly admitted his shortage to the extent of the surplus funds of the bank.

Ropke is now in the county jail in default of $25,000 bail and will probably remain there until Oct. 5, when he will be taken before the grand jury to be indicted. It is believed that he will confess to the court and will try to get off with as light a sentence as possible.

YOUNG BURGLARS CAUGHT

Sons of Prominent Citizens Had Caused Reign of Terror

Yonkers, N. Y., July 25.—General surprise was occasioned when it was learned that the burglars who have terrorized the fashionable section of Lowerre were 14-year-old boys, the sons of prominent citizens.

The ringleader, Alexander Kellogg, son of W. C. Kellogg, fled from town when he learned the police were looking for him.

The boys had a complete outfit of burglars' tools, including skeleton keys, jimmies and chisels. They carried all their loot to a cave in the woods section of Van Courtland park. One hundred and seventy pieces of silver, in addition to other rich furnishings, were found in the cave.

RIVET'S END IS NEAR

Murderer of Gailloux Is Unlikely to See Another Sunrise

Boston, July 25.—Soon after midnight tonight it is expected that Napoleon Rivet will be electrocuted in state prison for the murder of Joseph J. Gailloux in Lowell, Feb. 27, 1908.

Apparently reconciled to the refusal of Governor Draper to commute his sentence to life imprisonment, Rivet passed a quiet Sunday in the death cell, within ten feet of the chamber containing the electric chair. His only visitor was Rev. Father Malley,

Bryan Will Not Bolt

Chillicothe, Mo., July 25.—William J. Bryan made a general denial here of the story sent out from Lincoln, Neb., that he would lead a bolt from the Democratic convention in Nebraska and organize a rump convention.

Drank Poison In Public

Medford, Mass., July 25.—Standing on a street corner in plain view of a score of shoppers, Frank O'Brien, 28 years old, drank the contents of a small vial of poison and died less than an hour later.

BOUGHT AT BARGAIN SALE

Discarded Government Yacht May Be Used by Nicaraguan Forces

Washington, July 25.—If the converted yacht Hornet, which the government has just sold to Isaac Stern of New Orleans, the highest bidder at the condemnation sale, is going to Nicaragua to serve as the nearest approach to a navy that the Estrada faction can possess, the Washington authorities have not received any official word of that purpose.

There is nothing, however, to prevent either faction in Nicaragua from acquiring the discarded naval vessel, under certain limitations.

The vessel could carry arms as cargo, but it could not be equipped as an armed vessel and sent out of an American port.

The Hornet, when built twenty years ago, cost this government $117,500 and was sold a few days ago for $5100.

TRESPASSER SHOT DOWN

Fatal Result of Quarrel Between Broker and Saloonkeeper

Kingston, N. Y., July 25.—Louis Victor Seydel, a New York broker, shot and killed Clemente Demarion, a saloonkeeper, of West Park. Besides keeping a saloon Demaron also did teaming for contractors.

The two quarrelled Saturday over Damaron's attempt to unload a mortar board on Seydel's land. Demaron, it is said, threatened to "fix" Seydel, and on Sunday appeared with five other Itallans at the Seydel bungalow.

When Demaron picked up a large stone and stepped upon his property, Seydel ordered him off. When Demaron raised his arm Seydel fired. Demaron staggered and fell. Seydel came to Kingston and surrendered himself.

CHILDREN WHO ATE OPIUM WILL LIVE

Parents Want to Know Who Put Drug on Public Dump

Webster, Mass., July 25.—All danger of the death of any of the eight children who were made ill by eating opium pills which they found on the public dump and mistook for candy, was believed to have been passed when Victor Pepka, the most seriously affected of the number, regained consciousness.

Young Pepka is said to have eaten twelve grains of the narcotic and remained in a stupor for thirty hours in spite of all that medical skill could do for him. He was the last to regain consciousness and the greatest apprehension was felt in his case.

The parents of the sick children have asked the authorities to make an investigation to learn if possible how the opium came to be on the dump, but no action as far as is known has been taken in the matter.

WEDS A NAVAL MAN

Daughter of Poet and Author Roche Is Bride of Admiral Grinell

Boston, July 25.—Miss Florence M. Roche, the only daughter of the late James J. Roche, the poet and author, today became the bride of Rear Admiral Henry W. Grinell, formerly of the Japanese navy.

The couple have been intimate friends for years. The admiral was a friend of the young woman's father while he was editor of The Pilot, and was best man at his wedding to Mrs. Elizabeth V. Okie about five years ago.

Miss Roche is about 25 years old and has lived in Boston virtually all her life. This is Grinell's second marriage, his first wife having died a number of years ago.

FORSOOK HIS BICYCLE

Doctor's Carelessness Cuts His Life Short at the Age of 103

Paris, July 25.—The village of Grabeis, in southern France, has only 500 inhabitants, but two of them are centenarians and twelve are over 80. There were three centenarians until the village doctor died at the age of 103, and his death was due, according to one of the remaining centenarians, a woman of 101, to an act of carelessness.

"He insisted on walking through the pouring rain to the next village instead of riding over on his bicycle, as he usually did when he visited his patients at night," she said. But in so healthful a village a doctor may not be missed.

You'll never know how good Lenox Soap is unless you try it.

And you'll never get out of it all the good there is in it, unless you use it as it should be used.

The right way to use Lenox Soap, for washing clothes, is in the form of a solution. Lenox Soap Solution does better work than soap; and is more economical.

TO MAKE LENOX SOAP SOLUTION:—Take a cake of Lenox Soap, shave it into small pieces, and dissolve in three quarts of boiling water. Keep water at boiling point until a solution is formed.

Wet the clothes, rub the solution on the soiled parts, fold and roll each piece separately, pack in a tub, cover with warm soapy water and let stand over night. Next morning, you will find that the really hard part of washing—rubbing the clothes up and down the wash-board—is not half as hard as usual.

Cook in Comfort

You no longer need wear yourself out with the weakening heat of an intensely hot kitchen. You can cook in comfort.

Here is a stove that gives no outside heat. All its heat is concentrated at the burners. An intense blue flame (hotter than either white or red) is thrown upwards but not around. All the heat is utilized in cooking — none in outside heating.

New Perfection
WICK BLUE FLAME
Oil Cook-stove

entirely removes the discomfort of cooking. Apply a match and immediately the stove is ready. Instantly an intense heat is projected upwards against the pot, pan, kettle or boiler, and yet there is no surrounding heat—no smell—no smoke.

Cautionary Note: Be sure you get this stove—see that the name-plate reads "New Perfection."

Why? Because The New Perfection Oil Cook-Stove is scientifically and practically perfect. You cannot use too much wick—it is automatically controlled. You get the maximum heat—no smoke. The burner is simple. One wipe with a cloth cleans it—consequently there is no smell.

The New Perfection Oil Cook-Stove is wonderful for year-round use, but especially in summer. Its heat operates upward to pan, pot, or kettle, but not beyond or around. It is useless for heating a room.

It has a Cabinet Top with shelf for keeping plates and food hot.

It has long turquoise-blue enamel chimneys. The nickel finish, with the bright blue of the chimneys, makes the stove ornamental and attractive. Made with 1, 2 and 3 burners; the 2 and 3-burner stoves can be had with or without Cabinet.

SYNOPSIS

A party of titled passengers on a ship bound for Australia visit a section "below decks" where a gang of convicts sentenced to deportation are confined. The ship, the Lord Nelson is wrecked. A convict, the "Frisco Pet," jumps overboard with Jocelyn Wray, a pretty little girl. The convict, after returning the girl to her friends is himself later cast away alone on a deserted island. Years have passed. Lord Ronsdale and other members of the party wrecked on the Lord Nelson, including Jocelyn Wray, go to the criminal courts in London to hear John Steele, a famous young lawyer, try a case. Steele and Jocelyn meet and form a liking for each other. Lord Ronsdale, who would marry Jocelyn, forms a violent dislike for Steele. Ronsdale had at the wreck of the Lord Nelson prevented the rescue of the "Frisco Pet" by a lifeboat. Ronsdale is startled at the sight of a tattoo mark on Steele's arm. Ronsdale puts a detective, Gillett, on Steele's trail to establish his identity. He is certain Steele is the "Frisco Pet." Steele, none other than the "Frisco Pet," begins a hunt for Tom Rogers, the only man who can establish his innocence of the murder for which he had been deported years before. Steele visits Strathorn House, where Jocelyn Wray, Lord Ronsdale and others are present. Steele, in love with the girl, has recognized her as the one he rescued at the wreck of the Lord Nelson. Ronsdale tries to have Steele arrested at Strathorn House. Steele reveals to Jocelyn that he was once the "Frisco Pet," her rescuer. Jocelyn aids Steele in escaping to London. Steele gets traces of Tom Rogers, whose testimony he requires.

(CHAPTER XV—Continued.)

"The Frisco Pet knew where you were all the time, but did not speak because he did not wish to get you into trouble, also because he did not know then what he long afterward learned indirectly—that you could have cleared him!"

"Indirectly? I? What do you"—

"Through your once having dropped a few words. Wine in, wits out."

The fellow edged his chair closer.

"Keep where you are!" John Steele's hand touched the revolver now on the table before him. Even as he did so the room seemed to sway, and it was only by a strong effort of will he kept his attention on the matter in hand and fought down the dizziness. "And let's get through with this. I don't care to waste much more of my time on you."

"You're sure nothing will happen to me if"— The man watched him closer.

"This paper need never be made public, but it might be useful in certain contingencies."

"And what am I to get if I do what you"—

"You shall have funds to take you out of the country; the alternative," he bent forward, "about fifteen years if the traps"—

The fellow pondered. At last he answered. For a few minutes then John Steele wrote, looking up between words. His head bent now closer to the paper, then drew back from it, as if through a slight uncertainty of vision or because of the dim light. The fellow's eyes, watching him, lowered.

"You know—none better—that on that particular night some one else, some one besides the Frisco Pet, entered your mother's house?"

Oaths mingled with low filchers' slang, but the reply was forthcoming. Other questions, too, were answered tentatively, sometimes at length, with repulsive fullness of detail.

"You can state of your own knowledge what happened next?" John Steele spoke sharply. The fellow's red brows suddenly lifted.

"Oh, yes," he replied readily.

John Steele's manner became shorter. His questions were put fast. He forced quick replies. He not only seemed striving to get through his task as soon as possible, but always to hold the other's attention, to permit his brain no chance to wander from the subject to any other. But the fellow seemed now to have become as tractable as before he had been sullen, stubborn; gave his version in his own vernacular, always keenly attentive, observant of the other's every motion. His strength had apparently returned. He seemed little the worse for his late encounter. At length came an interval. Just for an instant John Steele's eyes shut. The fingers that had held the pen closed on the edge of the table. A quick passing expression of ferocity hovered at the corners of the observer's thick lips. He got up. At the same time John Steele rose and stepped abruptly back.

"You know how to write your name?" His voice was firm, unwavering. The revolver had disappeared from the table and lay now in his pocket.

"All right, gov'ner!" The other spoke with alacrity. "I'm game. A bargain is a bargain, and I'll take your word for it," leaning over and laboriously tracing a few letters on the paper. "You'll do your part. You'll find me square and aboveboard, although you did use me a little rough. There; here's your affadavy."

John Steele moved back to a corner of the room and pulled a wire. In some faraway place a bell rang faintly. "Are"—he spoke a woman's name, obviously a sobriquet, "and her daughter still here?"

"How?"

"Never mind; answer!"

"Yes; they're here, gov'ner. You'll want them for witnesses, I suppose."

Not long after, the paper, duly witnessed, lay on the table. The landlady and her daughter had gone. John Steele only waited for the ink to dry. He had no blotter or sand. The fluid was old, thick. The principal signature in its big strokes, with here and there a sputter, would be unintelligible if the paper were folded now. So he lingered. Both men were silent. A few tense minutes passed. John Steele leaned against the wall. His temples throbbed. The fog seemed creeping into the room, and yet the door was closed. He moved toward the paper. Still maintaining an aspect of outward vigilance, he took it and held it before him as if to examine closer.

The other said nothing, made no movement. When the women had come in his accents had been almost too frank. The gentleman had called on a little matter of business. He, Tom Rogers, had voluntarily signed this little paper, and they could bear witness to the fact.

John Steele folded the paper and placed it in an inside pocket. The other suddenly breathed heavily. John Steele, looking at him, walked to the door leading to the street. He put his hand on the key and was about to turn it, but paused. Something without held his attention—a crunching sound as of a foot on a pebble. It abruptly revived misgivings that had assailed him before entering the place.

Involuntarily he turned his head. Tom Rogers sprang behind in a flash and seized John Steele by the throat. It was a deadly, terrible grip. The fingers pressed harder. The other strove, but slowly fell. As dizziness began to merge into oblivion Rogers, without releasing his hold, bent over.

"You fool! Did you think I would let you get away with the paper—that I couldn't see you were about done for?"

He looked at the white face and started to unbutton the coat. As he reached in his attention was suddenly arrested. He threw back his head.

"The traps!"

Voices below resounded without.

"So that was your game! Well," savagely, "I think I have settled with you."

He had but time to run to the rear door, unbolt it and dash out when a crashing of woodwork filled the place and Mr. Gillett looked in.

When John Steele began to recover he was dimly aware that he was in a four wheeler which rattled along slowly through streets. At his side sat a figure that stirred when he did, spoke in crisp official accents. The police agent had come well armed and, moreover, had taken the precaution for this little journey of providing a cab in front and one behind, containing those who knew how to act should the necessity arise.

Furtively the prisoner felt his pocket. The memorandum book containing the paper that had cost so much was gone. He looked at the agent. Had it been shifted to Mr. Gillett's possession, or (dimly he recalled his assailant's last words) had Rogers succeeded in snatching the precious evidence from his breast before escaping? In the latter case it had undoubtedly ere this been destroyed. In the former it would presumably soon be transferred to the police agent's employer. To regain the paper, if it existed, would be no light task. Yet it was the pivot upon which John Steele's fortunes hung. The principal signer was in all likelihood making his way out of London now. He would in a few hours reach the sea and after that disappear from the case.

The carriage suddenly stopped before an eminently respectable and sedate front, and not long after John Steele, somewhat to his surprise, found himself in Lord Ronsdale's rooms. The nobleman sat behind a high desk. One drawer of the desk was slightly opened. The police agent he addressed first—he should remain in the hall with his men.

"There is no need for many words between us, Mr. Steele." Lord Ronsdale's accents were sharp. "Had you listened to what Mr. Gillett, on my behalf, would have said to you that night in the gardens at Strathorn House we might possibly, both of us, have been saved some little annoyance. We now start at about where we were before that little contretemps."

John Steele silently looked at Lord Ronsdale. His brain had become clear, his thoughts lucid. He could build up a story, yes, but if he could have known what had taken place between Mr. Gillett and this man a few minutes before, when the police agent had stepped in first and tarried here a brief period before ushering him in!

Had Mr. Gillett delivered to his noble patron the memorandum book and other articles filched from John Steele's pockets? That partly opened drawer—what did it contain? The nobleman's hand lingered on the edge of it. With an effort the other resisted allowing his glance to rest there. He sat down in a stiff, straight backed chair.

"Mr. Gillett, in the garden at Strathorn House," said Lord Ronsdale, "was authorized by me to offer you one chance of avoiding exposure and"—deliberately—"the attendant consequences. You were to be suffered to leave London, this country, with the stipulation that you should never return." John Steele shifted slightly. "You did not expect this"—quickly—"you had not included that contingency in your calculations?"

CARING FOR THE BABY.

SOME SUMMER BABY TALK BY A VISITING NURSE.

"People seem to think that every woman knows by instinct how to care for her child," said the visiting nurse. "If such an instinct was ever universal, and I doubt it, it has been lost in the process of civilization. Animals do possess such a faculty, but even with them it is not always manifested. Domestic animals are most often lacking in this respect, the higher grade pedigreed stock showing least instinctive motherliness. With human mothers there is always need for instruction until experience has taught the art, yet there is no subject about which young mothers are so sensitive as this.

WORK OF THE VISITOR.

Our badge helps considerably to establish our authority when we first visit a district. Often the mothers have heard of us from others, and have seen a weak, puny infant transformed into a healthy, happy, little kid. In that case they accept our suggestions gladly. Even when these upset all her race traditions the Italian woman will loosen the swaddling bands of her baby and permit the little body to be bathed and made comfortable; though she does not always adopt regulation baby clothes for him. We have less trouble in inculcating the doctrine of unlimited fresh air with this race than with others for in their own country, Italians live in the open both from habit and from inclination. The German-Hebrew mother is most afraid of a draught, as she calls every breath of cool air that blows upon her.

FRESH AIR PARTIES.

The numerous Fresh Air Parties on land and water, provided principally by private munificence, help to renew the vigor of both mothers and children, and refresh the nurses in charge after their arduous duties day after day in the well night insupportable conditions of tenement house visiting and summer heat. The neatness of the homes, as well as the intelligence of the women varies greatly and where we find a mother who can read English or Italian, we often give one of the free baby books gotten out by firms dealing in infants' foods. Written in plain, interesting style, these give practical directions that insure the health of the tenement house child, as well as that of the child in better circumstances. The Nestle Food Company supply an excellent, up-to-date baby book that gives more space to the general care of the child up to three years of age, than to special information about the food.

THE FOOD PROBLEM.

Food however, is the main source of the baby's health or illness. The diet should be uniform, nutritious and safe from contamination and, as a rule, only enough food for one feeding should be prepared at once. Cows' milk fresh and pure is the best known substitute for the natural food, but until it is modified the milk contains an amount of proteids or curds, that can not be digested by a human baby though a calf thrives on them. In pasteurizing or sterilizing milk certain benificent qualities are destroyed as well as dangerous germs, and reinfection is particularly liable to occur if there is the slightest carelessness in handling the milk. On the whole, the safest substitute for mother's milk is a food containing milk in a concentrated form, and requiring only water to prepare it for use. Such food is a real necessity in the tenement sections of large cities, where the milk supply is often worse than ordinary, and the facilities for keeping it the poorest. One large manufacturer of a milk food has established a feeding station and Day Nursery in the Italian tenement section of New York City, to demonstrate the simplicity of preparing the food, and its safety in the hottest weather. Poor babies are fed and cared for at the Nursery, and these thriving babies are a practical demonstration to the mothers of the neighborhood, of the benefits of a safe and complete diet.

HARRIMAN HAD $71,053,737

Amount as Figured by Legal Adviser of Late Railroad Magnate

New York, July 25.—Edward H. Harriman was worth $71,053,737 at the time of his death. The records of the state controller's office, into which inheritance taxes are paid, show, as made public, that Charles A. Peabody, who has acted as Mrs. Harriman's adviser since her husband's death, paid $675,000 as the amount to which the state was entitled under the transfer tax law.

A little arithmetic shows to those familiar with the law that the estate on which this tax was paid was valued at $71,053,737.

Many estimates of the Harriman estate have placed it at from $100,000,000 to $140,000,000. Few thought it would fall below $80,000,000.

MORTGAGEE'S SALE.

CLAMBAKE AND BASE BALL

Sensational Finish After Two Men Were Out

The North Quincy A. C. won another game Saturday playing the strong Limits of Somerville. The game was won in the ninth inning after two men were out on a single by Curtis a triple of F. Hoyt and a home run by Quinlan.

The pitching of Eddie Hoyt was great. In the third inning the Limits had three men on basses with no one out but Hoyt struck out the next three men. Hamilton pitched a fine game and was ably supported by Lavender the catcher.

After the game the visitors were given a clam bake at the club house. Among those present were Alderman Charles W. Eldredge, Capt. R. M. Lavender, ex-Alderman Samuel Cheetham of Lawrence, William Dolben chairman of the Republican City Commtitee of Somerville; George Hamilton press agent Frank E. Porter, the Alaska traveller and many others.

The clam bake was in charge of Eben Sanborn, Fred Bent and Sam Cleaves, and was a pronounced success.

The score by innings was:

RAMBLERS SHUT OUT

Unable to Score in Game with South Hanover

The Ramblers lost their second game Saturday to. South Hanover A. A. Neither side had scored up to the fifth inning with the Ramblers a shade better, nearly scoring twice. Rice allowed only three hits, a single and double in the eighth, and one in the second. In the the sixth Cross walked and stole second; he reached third on Conways misplay and Fowlers bad throw to third, which went into the crowd while Cross scored.

In the fourth inning Mannings knee was injured while sliding and he had to retire. Conway took his place but didn't make good. Between M. Chapman, Hill and Conway after the sixth the Ramblers couldn't seem to throw to hold or to stop the ball. O'Brien played a star game in left all the time except one excusable misplay.

PILAKOFF AFTER GOTCH.

New Foreigh Grappler Would Try Conclusions With Champion.

Pilakoff, the powerful young English giant wrestler, who came to this country to meet the winner of the Zbysco-Gotch match, has issued a challenge direct to Frank Gotch for the world's championship. Pilakoff is twenty-five years of age, stands six feet two inches in height and weighs in the best physical condition 220 pounds. He won the greatest international tournament ever held in Europe, which took place in Moscow, Russia, in which Padonbury, the Russian gladiator, won the extra heavyweight class.

Pilakoff will meet all comers, not only as a mat artist, but as a strong man, as he performs some wonderful feats of strength.

BALL TEAM GOING TO JAPAN.

Chicago University Boys to Take Long Trip to Play Brown Men.

The alumni and undergraduate body of Chicago university are looking forward to the long baseball trip planned for the Maroon nine. Some time ago the Waseda university of Tokyo, Japan, sent a challenge to the Chicagoans for a series of baseball games to be played in the orient. It has been announced that the board of culture and athletics at a meeting to reconsider the proposition decided to accept the challenge. It is further announced that the men who will make the trip will practice regularly during the summer months in order to be in fit condition and will attend classes so as to be eligible for the next spring season.

The challenge calls for a series of five games, but it is thought that when the Maroon nine is in the land of Nippon other games will be arranged with Japanese universities. The departure will be made about Sept. 15, and the athletes will not return until after Jan. 1 of next year. Last year the University of Wisconsin baseball team played a series of games in Japan, this being the longest baseball trip ever attempted by an American college representative. The trip as outlined for the Maroon team in all probability will eclipse even that made by the Badgers.

NEW ENGLAND TO BOOM CORN CROP

Announces Exposition to Encourage Movement.

THINK GRAIN BELT INFERIOR.

Down East Farmer Winner of Greatest Yield to Acre Prize In 1908, and Sweetest Species In World Grows In Massachusetts and Connecticut Is Boast of Fair Promotors.

NEW ENGLAND BOASTS OF CORN CROP.

Corn is a native of New England.

The yield of corn to the acre in the New England states is higher than in the states of the "corn belt."

A New England farmer in 1908 won the prize for the greatest yield of corn to the acre.

The finest sweet corn in the world is produced in the New England states.

Recognition of the surprising facts cited above has brought about the incorporation of the New England Corn exposition, to be held in Worcester, Mass., in November. The object of the exposition is to demonstrate that New England can grow corn and to impress upon the farmers the value of corn as a product.

There will be informative exhibits by the six New England agricultural colleges and seven experiment stations. Daily lectures on corn improvement will be given, as well as demonstrations of seed testing and corn and grain judging. The United States department of agriculture is expected to furnish interesting and valuable exhibits.

Want More Corn Raised.

"One of the weaknesses of farming in New England," says J. Lewis Ellsworth, secretary of the Massachusetts state board of agriculture and one of the charter members of the new corporation, "is the failure of the farmers to raise their own corn."

"Very little corn is raised in Massachusetts. We want to get the farmer interested in this so that he will raise his own corn. Formerly a farmer would buy his corn, since that was cheaper than raising it. Now the price of corn has increased by 100 per cent since 1896, and he is not buying so much."

The officers of the exposition, in urging a more general production of corn, explain that Massachusetts is exceeded in value of product per acre by only one state—Connecticut. Despite the fact that the cost of production is probably higher in Massachusetts than in the corn belt of the Mississippi valley, there is no doubt, they say, that corn can be raised with a profit in this state, for the average price per bushel is higher than in most states.

In 1905 the average farm prices of corn were as follows: In the United States as a whole, 28 cents; in Iowa, 34 cents; in Illinois, 38 cents; in Indiana, 33 cents; in Massachusetts, 70 cents.

Much Fertilizer Needed.

Although fertilizers must be used in greater quantity than in the states named, Professor William P. Brooks, director of the Massachusetts agricultural experiment station, points out that "on many soils in Massachusetts an average expenditure of about $20 an acre for fertilizers will insure an annual product of sixty to seventy bushels.

"This is at the rate of only about 30 cents a bushel for corn produced, but in Massachusetts the stov. is worth more as forage than in the western states."

LARGE FAMILIES ENCOURAGED

England and Germany Pay Bonuses to Defeat Race Suicide.

The dangers of race suicide are so well understood in Europe that efforts are being made in several countries to engage married couples to have large families.

England grants a rebate in taxation to fathers of families; France is considering a bill for paying cash bonuses to government employees with children and the German borough of Schoneberg, which comprises a large part of south and southwest Berlin, pays premiums to municipal employees who have more than two children.

The increased cost of living has produced a marked tendency toward the two child standard in German towns. Schoneberg will henceforth pay $2.50 a month to every employee, married or widower, who has three children; $3 a month for four children, $3.75 for five, $4.25 for six and $5 for families of more than six.

Wood Pulp Replaces Cotton?

A French inventor has produced a substitute for cotton made from wood pulp, and samples were exhibited at the recent meeting of the National Association of Cotton Manufacturers by Joseph Hope of Rouen, France. Cloth woven from the fiber is said to stand bleaching, dyeing and finishing as well as cotton and to have a more brilliant luster.

ED WALSH HAS HOBBY.

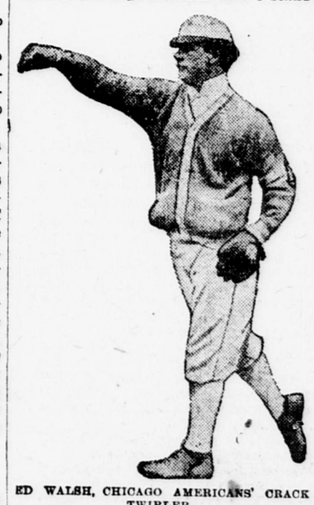

Does Not Care For Victories, but Likes His Strikeouts.

Most every ball player has his hobby or peculiarity, and Ed Walsh, the star heaver of the Chicago Americans, has one that is just about the limit. Walsh doesn't pay much attention to the shutouts he records, the games he wins, the hits made off him or the bases on balls he passes out, but he does dote on his strikeout record.

Recently Walsh pitched against Cleveland and managed to win, more through his masterly pitching than through the efforts of his teammates. A certain baseball critic happened to meet Walsh after the game and remarked that he was forced to the limit to win. Walsh replied that hard luck was pursuing him this spring and that he should have won all but a few of the games in which he worked but for tough breaks.

"By the way, how many games have you won and lost this year?" the big fellow was asked.

"You've got me there," he replied. "I haven't the slightest idea how I stand now, but I have struck out seventy-two men so far."

ED WALSH, CHICAGO AMERICANS' CRACK TWIRLER.

The critic was more than surprised to learn that the strikeouts interested Walsh more than any other feature of his work, and he frankly confessed that keeping track of his strikeouts was his one and only hobby in baseball.

THE $9,400 LOAN ORDER HELD UP BY TWO

Object to City Paying the Entire Cost for Edgestones on Trafford Street

Vacation of Eight Weeks Voted By City Council

The Council chamber was hot and stuffy Monday night, and none of the 18 members present cared to get into any lengthy debate. The result was that the business was quickly dispatched and an adjournment reached shortly before 9 o'clock. Before adjournment the rules were suspended, and it was voted to adjourn until Sept. 19. It will probably be necessary, however, to call a special meeting in August to draw jurors.

One of the loan orders was passed but the second which contained $4500 for Trafford street again failed to pass ,and is now on the table. It would seem that before 16 votes can be mustered for this order it will be necessary to cut down the amount of the Trafford street order that was to be applied to edgestones.

The absent emmbers were Councilmen Bolster, Nowland, Snow, McDevitt and Woodward.

WEIGHERS.

A communication was received from the Mayor appointing Walter L. Jackson and John Harriman as weighers. Confirmed.

The License committee reported orders granting a number of minor licenses which were adopted.

PLEASANT STREET.

The Committee on Streets reported an order appropriating $900 to rebuild a portion of Pleasant street, and to build a sidewalk on a portion of the easterly side, the sidewalk to be built under the betterment act. Referred to Finance Committee.

CRESCENT STREET.

The Committee on Streets reported an order for a public hearing Sept. 19, on the ordinance restricting the use of Crescent street to pleasure teams. Adopted.

GAS MAINS.

The Committee on Streets reported an order for a public hearing Sept. 19 on petition o fthe Gas Co. to lay mains on Larry place. Adopted.

SEA STREET.

The Committee on Streets reported an order for a public hearing Sept. 19 on the widening of Sea street to a width of 60 feet between the Willows so called and Bird street. Adopted.

MARSH STREET.

The Committee on Streets reported ought to pass on the order appropriating $400 to rebuild Marsh street. Referred to Finance Committee.

NEW SCHOOLS.

The Committee on Public Buildings reported no further legislation necessary on various communications from the School Committee relative to school buildings at Wollaston and Montclair. Accepted.

HALL PLACE CHURCH.

The Committee on Public Buildings reported reference to the Executive on the petition relative to the care of the tower in the Hall Place church. Report accepted.

PUBLIC LANDINGS.

The Committee on Public Buildings reported an order appropriating $200 for the purchase of a piece of land at the foot of Bay View avenue for a public landing.

GIFT OF LAND.

The Committee on Public Buildings reported an order authorizing the Mayor to accept in behalf of the city a deed conveying to the city the strip of land bordering on the water front at the foot of Bell street, Houghs Neck. Adopted.

JUNK ORDINANCES.

The Committee on Ordinances reported ought not to pass on the orders amending the ordinance concerning the collection of junk and the use of buildings for storing junk. That part relative to collecting junk was accepted, and that relative to junk shops was laid on the table.

TAX REFUND.

On motion of Councilman Moir, the report of the Finance Committee on the order refunding P. J. Murphy taxes illegally assessed was taken from the table. A minority report signed by Councilman Moir and Smith was offered, which included a substitute order refunding $34.65.

In the argument for the minority report it was claimed that two parcels of land had been assessed to Murphy, one for 2 acres and one for one-fourth acre. The one-fourth acre could not be found and evidently did not exist.

The opposition argued that previous to the making of Assessors' plans land was assessed as so much and that there were probably many lots assessed as containing so much land that did not actually contain that amount.

On motion of Councilman Gardner the whole matter was laid on the table.

MERRYMOUNT ROAD.

Upon motion of Councilman Ericson, the report of the Committee on the order for $1700 to rebuild Merrymount road was taken from the table and recommitted to the Finance Committee.

ADJOURNMENT.

Councilman Bryant moved to suspend rule 1. Councilman Smith obed. Councilman Bryant then asked permission to withdraw his motion, which was refused. The motion to suspend the rules was voted, and a motion that when the council adjourn it be until Sept. 19 prevailed.

LOAN ORDER.

The loan order for $4,100 which contained the following amounts was read and passed to be ordained: Oak street, $400; Police station plumbing, $400; South Walnut street, $2,800; Larry place, $500.

Before the order was passed Councilman Branch objected to the loan coming due in 1912.

Councilman Bryant said that there was too much coming due in 1911, and it was wise to put it over until 1912. This year the loans coming due were $107,000. Thus far the 1911 notes amounted to $111,000, and 1912 notes to $89,000.

JUNK ORDERS.

On motion of Councilman Flynn the orders relative to junk collectors and junk shops were taken up and recommitted to the License committee.

TRAFFORD STREET LOAN.

On motion of Councilman Bryant the loan order for $9,400 was taken from the table. The items in this order were: Brook street, $1,500; Trafford street, $4,900; Crescent street, $2,000 and Furnace avenue, $1,000.

By a vote of 13 yes and 2 no, the order was rejected, Councilman Branch and Gardner voting no. The order required 16 votes.

The vote was reconsidered and the order sent back to the Finance Committee.

SPITTING SIGNS.

Councilman Sandberg offered an order appropriating $200 for signs calling attention to the law prohibiting spitting on sidewalks. Referred to Committee on Health.

Adjourned at 8.56 until Monday, Sept. 19.

LADIES' DAY TOMORROW

Q. Y. C. Expect a Larger Number of Guests Than Usual

The annual ladies' day of the Quincy Yacht club will be held tomorrow and should the weather prove pleasant the attendance will doubtless excell that of other years. The one great complaint in other years has been the lack of room at the clubhouse. This year, however, with the enlarged clubhouse ample accommodations are available for all.

The program includes a review of the fleet of yachts and their guests by Commodore Robbins, a sail about the harbor, and incidentally an opportunity to get a view of the yachts off Hull, where the Harpoon is trying to lift the Quincy Yacht club challenge cup from the keeping of the Boston club and bring it back to Quincy. While the sail is taking place, Monk's orchestra will give a promenade concert at the clubhouse.

Ample accommodations will be provided for all who desire to sail for in addition to the many yachts, the committee have secured the steamer Houghs Neck and two launches.

On the return from the sail a lunch will be served at the clubhouse. In the evening the clubhouse will be illuminated and there will be dancing.

The review and sail is scheduled to start at 3 o'clock and the lunch will be served at 5 o'clock. Arrangements have been made for special cars to the clubhouse from City Square during the early afternoon and from the clubhouse to Quincy after the dancing.

SLEEPERS ON FIRE.

The alarm from Box 155 at 3.10 Monday afternoon was for a fire in a pile of sleepers near the Warren avenue bridge over the railroad tracks. The loss was small. Owing to the pulling of the box in a wrong manner the striking of the alarm was quickened so that it struck almost too fast to count.

MORE DESTROYERS NEEDED.

Lieutenant Commander Yates Stirling, Jr., has prepared for the United States Naval Institute a striking article in which he declares that the United States is alarmingly weak in torpedo boat destroyers. Commander Stirling calls the situation of which he speaks "a direct military necessity." He estimates that the navy should have at least twenty-eight more destroyers at once, and if the plan followed in other countries of having one destroyer as night guardian for each battleship were followed by the United States, twenty-four more destroyers in addition to these should be built at once, making a total of fifty-two.

THE COST OF WATER

Little Reduction Until After Payment of the Debt

At last Milton has come to the realization of the fact that the consumption of water in a city or town has very little effect on the Metropolitan assesment, because the greater portion o fthe assessment goes to pay the first cost and interest, fully 80 per cent.

It is therefore a poor investment for a city to expend a large sum in installing water meters with the expectancy that it will come back in decreased Metropolitan assessments. Although Quincy is using less water its assessments have not decreased and will not for many years unless there is a change in the basis of apportionment. And Quincy's tax burden is increased because of debt and interest for meters already installed.

The Milton Record says editorially:

"Lower water rates to be brought about through diminished cost o fthe metropolitan system, are still a long way off ,and it looks as if their realization would be postponed as the result of the working out of the law requiring the general use of meters throughout the district. In fact, it is possible that Milton, although it is one o fthe most economical of the eighteen municipalities using Metropolitan water, may have to pay more in the future than it has in the recent past.

"This possibility comes from the introduction of meters in the city of Boston. Two thirds of the cost of the Metropolitan system is apportioned upon the cities and towns according to consumption and one-third according to valuation. As b yfar the greater part of the cost is for interest on the debt and sinking fund requirements, and only comparatively a small part is affected by the amount of water consumed, the cost remains practically the same year in and year out, and will remain the same until the debt is materially decreased. As Boston reduces its consumption through the introduction of meters, the amount of its assessment is decreased and the decrease is much more perceptible than in smaller places because of the great amount of water which the city uses.

"Milton and one or two other places have long been at the minimum of consumption, being thoroughly metered. They cannot, therefore, make a saving in this way, and upon them will fall that part of the cost which Boston will escape. Decrease in the local water loan through the payment of bonds and some saving in the metropolitan maintenance account may to some extent offset this increase, but the prospect of a marked decrease in the rate such at first glance might be expected from a great diminution of the consumption in the district can hardly be expected."

MOON ISLAND SEWAGE.

In a communication made Monday to Mayor Fitzgerald in a further discussion of the situation at Moon island John N. McClintock ,a civil engineer living in Dorchester, charges that he inner harbor is badly polluted by sewage, and that the pollution is due to the negligence of the sewer department, says the Globe. The condition can readily be remedied, he declares by the installation of the Glover system.

The communication follows a previous letter to the mayor, recommending his sewage disposal plan and a report in opposition upon this plan by Deputy Supt. Pratt of the sewer deartment.

Mr. McClintock quotes the 1905 report of the state board of health to show the condition of the harbor waters and its 1898 report to show the value of septic action or putrefaction in sewage disposal. In conclusion, he says:

"To convert the Moon island tanks into the Glover 1882 system it would be only necessary to place a bulkhead between the first and second tanks, and one between the third and fourth tanks; a one-inch board gate would suffice, as there would be very little pressure, its object being to divert the flow of sewage to a passway farthest from the inlet between the first and second, and between the third and fourth tanks ,and a baffleboard at the outlet en dof the fourth tank. It might cost $1,000 to make the necessary changes.

"It would take 1,200 days for the sludge to accumulate to a depth of one foot upon the bottom of the tanks —if the sewer department kept the salt water from entering the intercepting sewers by way of the storm outelts ,thus interfering with bacterial disintegration of the arrested organic matter in the tanks.

"I should be pleased to advise your honor upon request how further and satisfactory purification suggested by Mr. Pratt could be obtained on the 25 acres of Moon island. The initial cost might be $250,000; the cost of maintenance perchance $10,000 a year, instead of $263,000, as estimated by my learned brother."

FIFTY YEARS A MINISTER

Rev. E. W. Virgin Also a Free Mason All These Years

Rev. E. W. Virgin of Dedham, a former pastor, occupied the pulpit of the Hall Place M. E. church Sunday in absence of Rev. Carl H. Raupach, the pastor. In the morning he spoke on "Service," taking his text from the Beatitudes.

The Sunday school was held at the close of the morning service and was conducted by the assistant superintendent, Richard H. Moyle.

Fifty years ago, July 29, Mr. Virgin entered the ministry and at the evening service he spoke on some of his experiences during the fifty years. He took his text from Deut. 8: 2.

Mr. Virgin entered the ministry in 1860 and at the same time became a Mason. His first charge was at Grafton. From there he went to Natick. While stationed at Natick in Oct. 1863, he enlisted in the Civil war. After the war he went from Natick to Boston and while here in 1865 he attended the funeral of President Lincoln, who had been assassinated. He was ordained a deacon in April 1862 by Bishop E. S. James and was later ordained as elder by Bishop Ames of Baltimore in the city of Chelsea. He was married in 1875. One son was born in 1876.

He was at one time pastor of the Hall Place M. E. church and has held important charges since that time. He is now chaplain of the Dedham jail, which position he has held for many years. His reminiscences of the fifty years were of great interest.

GOOD WIND FOR THIRD RACE

One or Two More Races Whoever Wins Today

The third race for the Quincy Yacht club challenge cup was sailed this afternoon in a strong northwest breeze that indicated a short and sharp contest.

The starting gun was fired at 12.10, and there was considerable jocking for position five minutes before the start.

Today's course is a windward and leeward one of 10 1-4 miles, and is the same course as that sailed Saturday, but with a much stronger breeze. This course is from the starting line to the buoy off Peddocks island, thence to the buoy off Strawberry Hill to Peddocks Island, to Strawberry Hill to Peddocks Island and home.

The Harpoon had a little the best of the start, although all of the boats crossed pretty well bunched. At the end of the first round the Harpoon was leading, with the Cima about a minute behind. The Cima is evidently a heavy weather boat, and it looked at this time as though she would give the Harpoon a hard rub.

In the races held the Harpoon has proved herself to be fast both in a light and strong breeze. In addition to this no man is better acquainted with the different currents off Hull than is Charlie Adams, and he can be depended upon to take every advantage of them.

At the end of the first round, the Ellen, the defending boat, was among the tail enders, and it looked as though the only possible chance she had of winning would be if the wind flattened out, and there seems little prospect of its doing so today.

At 2 o'clock the Harpoon was still ahead, having a good lead over the Cima, and the indications at that time were that she would win the race.

HOW TO SLEEP OUTDOORS.

Real Rules for Fighting White Plague.

The fight against tuberculosis has begun to carry the war into the enemy's camp in good earnest. And a pamphlet issued by the National Tuberculosis association entitled "How to Sleep Outdoors" is of vital interest and should be carefully perused that its words of wisdom may sink deeply in the minds that may make use of them in their daily lives.

The pamphlet is meant to be a handbook of information for anybody who desires to sleep out of doors in his own home. It emphasizes the fact that outdoor sleeping is as desirable for the well as for the sick. The booklet will be sent free of charge to anyone applying for it at the headquarters of the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis in New York, or to the secretary of any local or state anti-tuberculosis association.

Some of the subjects of which the pamphlet treats are, how to take the open-air treatment in a tenement house; how to build a small shack or cabin on a flat roof in the city; how to make one comfortable while sleeping outdoors either in hot or cold weather; how to arrange a porch on a country house, and how to build a cheap porch; the construction of tents and tent houses; the kind of beds and bedding to use in outdoor sleeping, and various other topics. The book is well illustrated and attractively prepared.

The object of the book is to suggest particularly to consumptives who cannot secure admission to a sanitorium how they can be treated at home under the direction o fa physician.

MONDAY'S VICTORY

Harpoon of Quincy Better on Windward Work

The work of the two leading yachts in Monday's cup race is briefly summarized below. It will be seen that the Cima made better time on four of the seven legs than did the Harpoon, but that the Quincy boat excelled on the windward work of the second and fifth legs. The elapsed time of each leg follows:

	Harpoon H. M. S.	Cima H. M. S.
To first turn	9.09	8.36
To second turn	32.01	33.19
To third turn	11.18	10.57
To fourth turn	13.17	13.16
To fifth turn	28.16	29.08
To sixth turn	10.47	10.55
To finish	5.32	5.10
Elapsed time	1.50.20	1.51.31

The elapsed time of the Ellen, the defender, was 1h., 53m., 01s., and the time of the Eel of the Eastern club was 2h., 1m., 0s. The Sally XI did not complete the course, having started on the wrong course.

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

The City Council has had a strenuous time of late in rushing through appropriation orders and the taxpayers are willing that they should have an eight weeks' vacation. Some would have been better pleased if the Council had adjourned on June 1. The more meetings held the more money appropriated.

There is a surprising lack of local interest in the races this year for the Quincy cup, although the chances are good that it will return to Quincy. On the opening day of the series the Quincy club held another race, and on Wednesday it will observe Ladies' day. The newspapers are giving considerable space to the races but the attendance of interested persons is very small.

It is too bad after Milton people have denied themselves of many tub baths, and have economized in other ways in the use of Metropolitan water, that they should come to the realization of the fact that after all the Metropolitan assessments are not regulated by consumption of water. Less than twenty per cent of the assessment is actually for water used, that is for maintenance of the water system, the eighty per cent being for fixed charges for debt and interest. Then 70 to 80 per cent of all the water is used in Boston, and only about two per cent in a city the size of Quincy, while Milton uses less than one per cent. One reason why Milton uses so little water is because the people close their houses in the summer.

Somerville is talking of establishing a tuberculosis camp. Members of the Board of Health and the Visiting Nursing Association are making every effort to get the camp and the building inspector and some of the doctors have visited other camps for ideas. Early in the year the aldermen appropriated $500 to assist in fighting the disease but that will go only a very short way, and cannot in any way help to establish a camp, so much desired. When such a camp is established it will be of a permanent character. The physicians and nurses best informed on this work feel that a day camp does not in any way meet the requirements. The patient, they feel, can get the best results from the treatment if it be permanent. In many cases the benefits the patients desire while in the day camp are offset when they return to their homes for the night, as the conditions at home are not suitable for following the treatment.

Although Quincy is a much smaller city than Somerville, interested citizens have established a camp which is proving a success and will it is hoped, be ultimately taken over by the city and the work continued on broader lines.

DRIFT OF OPINION.

What may seem to many an unimportant thing is the effort that is being made in some cities, especially the larger ones, to lessen the amount of noise in the streets.

Yet it is by no means either a minor matter nor one now worth considering. This din is unpleasant enough for those in good health. To the sick it is a decided injury.

Some of it cannot easily be prevented but much of it can be. When the children have playgrounds to play in and when fruit peddlers and junk dealers find some other way to announce their approach than by shouting, a great improvement will be noted.

The fact that the larger cities have given their serious attention to this matter shows that they do not regard it as unimportant.

Where a large number have to sleep days on account of their employment, it is not unimportant, either. It constitutes a subject which ought to have more attention than it receives.—Beverly Times.

Whether the air ship has been sufficiently developed to be of real value in time of war is still a theoretical question, but there is no doubt but that the submarine war ship must be reckoned on in any future war. The recent trip of one of these instruments of destruction from Quincy to Bermuda and back shows that the field of operations for this class of vessel is large, and the success of the trial trip, the longest of its kind ever attempted, must convince even those heretofore skeptical that armor plate and huge guns will not be the only things to decide our future naval battles. Our immense Dreadnoughts will not be as formidable now as before, and advocates of bigger ships will have a new element to be taken into consideration.—Old Colony Memorial.

SHOW STARTS $13,000 FIRE

Spark From Magic Lantern Ignites Hay and Children Flee

Whitingsville, Mass., July 26.—A magic lantern show which a number of neighborhood children were enjoying in the barn of James Livingstone resulted in the destruction by fire of two barns and three dwelling houses, with a total loss of about $13,000.

During the show a spark from the lantern communicated with the hay in the loft where the children had gathered. For a time the youngsters fought the flames and then, when they discovered that they were beyond their control, the youngsters ran and hid lest they be punished.

The result was that the barn was a mass of flames before the fire was discovered by others. In addition to the buildings, four acres of timberland were burned over before the firemen got the blaze under control.

MURDERED WITH DYNAMITE BOMB

Ex-Mayor of a Virginia City Is Slain While Asleep

Ridgeway, Va., July 26.—Former Mayor A. H. Bousman was assassinated by a dynamite bomb which was thrown from the street under a hammock in which he was sleeping. His feet were torn away by the bursting shell, and his legs frightfully mutilated. In great agony he died an hour later.

Although the town authorities made every effort to discover the assassin, no clue has been found, and it is thought he escaped without being seen by anyone. The surrounding community is worked up over the murder, and it is believed if the assassin is caught he will be summarily dealt with.

As mayor of Ridgeway, Bousman presided over the police court of the town, trying petty cases. It is thought that some person upon whom Bousman in his court had passed sentence of punishment held a grudge against him and had been awaiting an opportunity to wreak vengeance upon the former mayor.

RAISING OF THE MAINE

Engineer O'Rourke Has a Plan Which He Thinks Will Succeed

Washington, July 26.—The battleship Maine, lying under twenty feet of mud in the harbor of Havana, will not be raised for six months or more. Engineer John F. O'Rourke of New York had a conference with Acting Secretary of War Oliver, when he submitted his plans for raising the wreck.

His plan is to project a wharf out into Havana harbor, and with the use of caissons raise the battleship and bring her to the United States under her own steam.

It was decided to refer the O'Rourke plan to an army board of engineers which wil be appointed shortly. O'Rourke will appear before the board.

MOMENTARY RELIEF FOR HUB

Severe Storm Cools Off the Heated Atmosphere

SPREADS OVER NEW ENGLAND

Many Fires as Result of Buildings Being Struck by Lightning—Eight Persons Knocked Down When Bolt Strikes Wharf at Nahant as Steamer Is Docking—Many Prostrations and Two Deaths From the Extreme Heat

Boston, July 26.—The reign of hot weather from which Greater Boston suffered so severely during the past week was ended for the time being yesterday afternoon, when the greater part of Nw England was swept by a disastrous thunder storm.

Death followed from the blistering heat of the sun and rode in the path of the storm. Prostrations were many and damage amounting to thousands of dollars was done by the lightning and the heavy rain.

The combination of disasters due to the hot weather and the rain that followed it will make the second hottest day of the year a memorable one.

In spite of the ruin that it wrought, the storm was welcomed in Boston, for it gave a momentary relief from the frightful heat that has held the city in its sway for a week.

William H. King, a Boston man, dropped dead in his sister's yard at Newburyport, killed by the excessive heat. Michael McLaughlin was overcome while working on a staging in this city and was kined by the fall.

The list of prostrations was a long one, and several of those overcome, it is feared, may not recover. The morning and early afternoon exacted a heavy toll; then came the lightning and the heavy rain, wreaking great damage, particularly in eastern Massachusetts.

Boston itself did not suffer greatly from the storm, but the suburbs fared badly. In all the surrounding towns houses and public buildings were struck by lightning; there were many fires, and telphone and electric car lines were in some instances put entirely out of commission.

Many people were stunned by the shock caused when bolts of lightning struck close by. There were no deaths in the vicinity of Boston due to the lightning, but Mrs. D. O. Martin of Waltham was killed at Richibucto, N. B., by a bolt that entered the window near which she was standing.

The towns and cities to the northwest of Boston were hit harder by the storm than the other suburbs.

Wakefield, Waltham, Winchester, Woburn and Belmont were perhaps hardest hit. The cities to the northeast along the coast were, however, nearly as much at the mercy of the ran and lightning. Beverly and Lynn suffered heavy loss, as did Melrose and Malden.

Manchester, N. H., reported a terrific storm. In Waltham trees were blown down, trolley wires and chimneys struck by bolts of lightning, and the Burgoyne elm, one of the landmarks of the town, was uprooted and felled in Main street.

Factories were strück in Lynn and Melrose, and panics resulted among the women employed in them. Eight men and women were knocked down at Nahant, while the steamer Governor Andrew was docking, by a bolt of lightning that struck the wharf.

Boston was cooler after the storm last evening, but the forecast does not hold much promise that the cool weather will continue. The western plains are the centre of an area of exceptionally high temperature. North Platte, Neb., yesterday registered a mark of 104 degrees.

CIGARET SMOKERS BARRED

Fire Chief Declares That They Lack Physical Stamina and Nerve

Canton, O., July 26.—Cigaret smokers are now barred from becoming city firemen in Canton under an order issued by Chief Mesner.

"Men who use cigarets may be all right in brain power, but they lack physical stamina and nerve," said Mesner in discussing the matter. He added:

"The fire department service requires men who have plenty of strength, with the brain to use it properly and the nerve to make the brain use the muscle in the face of certain or possible death."

"BY DIVINE COMMAND"

Woman Refuses to Partake of Food Until She Starves to Death

Newark, N. J., July 26.—Bidden by "Divine command," as she believed, not to eat, Mrs. Elizabeth Smallen died in a hospital here last night of starvation.

For three months she had refused to allow food to pass her lips and it had been necessary to feed her forcibly through a silver tube.

Boy Killed by Motor Cycle

New Bedford, Mass., July 26.—Louis F. Leecyer, 6 years old, was killed in the outskirts of this city by being run down by a motorcycle ridden by Henry Watkins. Watkins claims the accident was unavoidable.

THE SEXTON'S STORY.

For some time I had heard the ominous muttering of the distant thunder, but had been so absorbed with the beauties of the scenery that I had not realized the fast approaching shower till the first drops which heralded the coming tempest pattered around me, now and then one striking me and going through my thin Summer coat.

I looked up and saw that I was just passing the gate of a country cemetery, and a short distance from the gate, I espied a clump of trees, under which I thought I might find temporary shelter from the dash of train that I knew would soon be upon me.

Passing through the gate, I went up the pathway a short distance and discovered a rustic house in the centre of the group of trees which I had seen from the road. I started toward this house, when a flash of lightning nearly blinded me.

When I recovered from the shock, the clouds had gathered so thickly that I peered into darkness as I approached the rustic house. As I was entering the door an apparent apparition arose before me, and I started back at the sight of an old man, all in white, with a long, snow-white beard and hollow eyes, who looked as if he might be the tenant of one of the old graves near by.

But a welcome from him, uttered in a very pleasant voice, reassured me, and I entered just as the shower burst in all its fury.

As I took a seat beside the old man, he said:

"Rather a dismal place to be caught in a thunder shower, isn't it?"

"Well ,yes," I answered, "it is so. I am glad I have company. But how happened you to be here at this time? if I may ask."

"Why, certainly you may ask such a question. I am here to prepare a place for one of my tenants. You see I have been sexton of this cemetery for forty years, and I have come to look upon all the inmates as my tenants."

I looked a little way from from we sat ,and the pile of fresh earth indicated the place where he had made preparation for the new tenant.

Another blinding flash of lightning made me involuntarily start, and as the peal of thunder which followed died away I said:

"Forty years! that's a long time. I suppose you could tell some interesting stories from your experience here?"

"Yes," answered the old sexton; "if I had the faculty of story-telling I could find enough to make many stories."

"Whose grave are you making ready now?" I queried.

"Mrs. Trescott's," he said, in a musing manner, and I asked:

"And who might Mrs. Trescott be?"

The old sexton sat in a study for a moment, and then replied:

"Who was Mrs. Trescott? Well, I'll have to begin at the beginning. Sixty years ago Thomas and Robert Edmunds came to this town from England. The two men were brothers and had married sisters. Thomas, the eldest, was a widower with one daughter ,three years of age. Robert's wife was an invalid, and their family consisted of a son, also three years old.

"These two brothers built those two houses that you can get a glimpse of over the tops of the trees yonder. The houses stand side by side, and in the rear between the two stands a gardeners house where lived Richard Trescott a gardener whom the Edmunds brothers had brought with them from England. Richard Trescott's wife was a thorough lady, and they had one son, Richard, Jr., four years of age.

"The two brothers built the large woollen mill which you passed just below here, and for many years the business went on. The brothers intended that Edward and Alice should wed at an early age, and the property thus be kept in the family.

"Richard Trescott had been gardener for the family for many years in England ,and had succeeded his father, and so he had grown up with the brothers. It was only natural, therefore, that little Richard should be the playmate of Edward and Alice.

"All was well for several years, but when the cousins were 12 or 13 years of age ,a slight trouble commenced. Edward had a hasty temper and an overbearing disposition, and so, on account of his superior standing and the knowledge that Alice was his intended wife, a jealosuy was aroused by the strong friendship between Alice and Richard ,and this jealousy had frequent outbursts.

"Young Richard was a manly fellow, and stood Edward's insults in a calm and quiet manner, never resenting any of his dignities.

Matters went on thus until Edward and Alice were sixteen, and by this time the young man had become so exasperated that he told his father of the state of affairs. Thomas was soon informed, and a stormy scene ensued. The result was that Richard Trescott was obliged to leave the employ of the brothers and so leave the town.

"Soon after this, Thomas, the elder brother, was taken seriously ill, and fearing that he might not live to see the union of his daughter and her cousin, he endeavored, by the most urgent persuasion ,to make her promise that his desire should be realized on her 21st birthday.

"For a long time the girl refused to comply with this demand, but at length, when it became evident, that her father could not recover, she consented.

"And so Thomas died, and it was understood that his will provided that in case Alice died before she was 21, her half of the property should goto Edward, and in case she passed her 21st birthday without marrying her cousin he would take the property the same.

"As Edward grew older he showed signs of dissipation, and after a few years it became a common thing for him to go home at a late hour in the night, very much under the influence of liquor. A path ran up through the cemetery where that driveway is, and this made a short route from the village below to the Edmunds mansions on the hill. This path Edward used to travel when returning from the village.

"As Alice's 21st birthday drew near Edward became anxious for the wedding, and it was said that when partially intoxicated he urged Alice to set the wedding day a year sooner, and made himself so obnoxious that it was only her promise to her dead father that prevented a positive rejection.

"At length the time drew near for the important event. Just a week before Alice's birthday I had dug that grave by the side of the path where that tall monument stands. I finished the digging just before night, for the burial was to take place early the next forenoon.

"During the night we had a heavy thunder shower ,and in the morning when I came down everything looked unusually bright in the clear, morning sunlight. I came up the path and started back in astonishment to see a man lying in the bottom of the grave. On close examination it proved to be Edward—dead. He had probably wandered aside from the path in the darkness ,and falling, his

GOSPEL TENT AT SQUANTUM

Services to be Held Every Sunday Afternoon

An outdoor church service was held in Squantum Sunday at 3 o'clock, as the beginning of services that will undoubtedly last through the summer. A large tent has been pitched in a vacant lot, just off Huckins avenue, and is fitted out with new settees to accommodate a hundred people; new organ, hymn books, and platform. The Massachusetts Home Missionary society has supplied the furnishings and will have a minister there to conduct the services through the month of August at least. Rev. Thomas W. Davison of the Atlantic Memorial church preached there on Sunday, with sixteen members of his own church to help along the singing. About fifty were present. Mr. Carlson of Squantum and Mr. Birch of Missouri, who is spending his summer in Squantum, spoke of the possibilities in regard to church work there and that sooner or later a church will no doubt be erected on this site.

SUBMARINE INJURY.

A court of inquiry into the cause of the underwater ramming of the U. S. gunboat Castine by the submarine Bonita, in Provicetown harbor, took place at Charlestown navy yard on Monday, says the Globe. An official report will be made to the navy department.

The court of inquiry comprised Capt. DeWitt Coffman of the battleship New Jersey as president, Commander Sumner E. W. Kittelle, inspecting officer of the Charlestown navy yard and Lieut. Commander Edward H. Campbell of the battleship North Dakota with Lieut. David McD. LeBreton of the machinery division of the Charlestown navy yard as Judge advocate.

Among those who testified were: Lieut. Ralph A. Koch, commanding the Castine; Ensign Sloan Danenhower, commanding the Bonita, and helmsmen, lookouts and members of the crews who were on duty when the accident occurred.

FLIES AND ELECTRIC FANS.

Go into most any store these hot summer days and you will find one or more electric fans very busy. These fans perform the dual task of keeping the rooms cool and destroying the flies.

There is something about the electric fans which flies dislike. Perhaps it is the strange humming noise which reminds them of some dire enemy. Perhaps it is the strong current of air which makes it difficult for a fly to navigate. Whatever it is, it has been proved that the common electric fan is one of the best fly discouragers in use today. A fan kept playing over plies of fruit ,the soda fountain, the candy case or any other part of the store which is apt to lure the insects will effectively drive them away.

The comfort of sitting upon a piazza in the evening is, under ordinary conditions, greatly diminished if not destroyed altogether, by the "pestiferous" mosquitoes. An electric fan placed in a convenient position and connecting with the lamp socket inside the house, will keep mosquitoes and bugs of all kinds away thus affording an opportunity for really cool comfort.

—A Contemporary, has an interesting article on the vacation in "tabloid form." Says this interesting newspaper: "If even an afternoon's picnic is out of the question have one in the backyard or on the porch." We know a family that gets a lot of fun out of the fact that a good-sized backyard is theirs, and whenever any member of that family in spring or summer or early fall has an opportunity he or she dodges in to that backyard and enjoys life. There are trees there and a hammock and benches and pleasant shade and greenery; it is a relief from the sunlit glare and dust of the street in front ,and is by comparison cheerfully cool. Other people live at home the year 'round, but they seize the opportunity now and then of an evening to board a trolley car and get two hours or so of riding and visiting some park or some nearby country town. Others, who live on the seaboard, now and then take a boat and drop away from the heat and dust of the town for an hour or two. It is fine to have two weeks or a month or so for a steady continuous layoff, but if you can't get it do the next best thing, and seize every available hour in the hot weather to give yourself a little change and a little "vacation" from everyday grinding and everyday scenes.—Brockton Enterprise.

THE MAN WITH THE HOSE.

Bowed by the weight of summer's heat he stands
And holds his hose and gazes on the ground.
A tiny stream doth trickle from its snout,
Occasionally coming drop by drop.
Who made him dead to rapture and despair,
Stolid and stunned, a brother to the ox?
Who killed the evening joy that once he knew
When he did stand and squirt the H2O
To make his pretty lawn and posies grow?

Oh, mayors, aldermen and public works,
Is this the handiwork you promised us,
This tiny, fickle and distorted stream?
How will you ever strengthen up its flow;
Touch it again with immortality;
Give back the raging torrent with which we
Were wont to chase the cats and dogs away?
When will we have that often promised pump
To satisfy the parched taxpaying chump?

Oh, masters, lords and rulers of our town,
How will the future reckon with us men
And women, too, who are at best but dust
And who are growing dustier each day?
How will you answer the brute questions of
The man who stands and vainly holds the hose?

CONSTANTINOPLE WAGING WAR ON CANINE HORDES.

Former Sultan's Superstition Cast Aside at Last.

To imagine Constantinople without its hordes of prowling street dogs is difficult, but the authorities of the Ottoman capital have started in earnest to rid the city of one of its most notorious features.

Last year a contractor offered to pay the Turkish treasury a lump sum for the privilege of clearing the city streets of dogs. What he wanted to do with them did not transpire; perhaps he expected to recoup himself by selling the skins for gloves. Anyhow his proposition met with no favor. Today the Turks would have gladly accepted his proposal, but no dog buyers were forthcoming, so they tackled the question themselves.

Detachments of policemen and sweepers armed with lassoes and wooden tongs and followed by a train of dust carts have gone forth by night and raided the unsuspecting beasts. A few were spared at the intercession of individuals who agreed to look after the dogs. The others were driven away to an unknown fate.

At the time of the Russo-Turkish war a large number of dogs were collected and put on Bulwer island, one of the Princes islands in the sea of Marmora, so called after a former English ambassador who once owned a country house there.

No one took care of the starving creatures, and the result was that they began to devour each other before the work of transporting the whole canine contingent was complete. Then news came of a crushing defeat of the Turks.

The sultan took it as a sign of divine wrath and hastened to sign an order for the exiles to be taken back to town. Lately they have been a greater nuisance than ever.

BIG EXPENSE FOR NEW PEERS

Robes, Coronets and Heralds All Cost Money.

Numerous formalities have to be gone through before any of the seven new peers will be able to take their seats in the house of lords.

One of the most important matters is the preparation of the patent, a long strip of parchment, to the end of which is fixed the wax seal, the color of which varies according to the rank of the new member. Another item is the robe, made of scarlet cloth with three doublings of ermine, the number of bars varying according to rank. Thus a duke has four bars in front and the same number behind, a marquis one less, and so on.

Then there are preparations in regard to making or changing coats of arms, in connection with which fees to the extent of about 50 guineas are paid by the recipient of a summons to the house of lords.

Altogether the financial disbursements amount in the case of a new earl to between 600 and 700 pounds, some of which finds its way to the chancellor of the exchequer and some to the crown as represented by the college of arms. A considerable portion of this expenditure is of course incurred in the purchase of the coronet.

Big Warship For Argentina.

The keel of one of the biggest battleships in the world was recently laid in Philadelphia, destined for the Argentine Republic. The battleship is to be of the Dreadnought type, 585 feet long, 93 feet 6 inches beam. She will have a displacement of 27,500 tons and will take two years to build.

TWO MEN ELECTROCUTED

One Had Killed His Daughter and the Other His Brother

Ossining, N. Y., July 26.—Paying the extreme penalty for their crimes, two men were electrocuted in the death chamber at Sing Sing prison. The men were Carl Loose, 59 years old, who shot and killed his 16-year-old daughter, Meta, and Giuseppi Gambaro, the murderer of his own brother, Vincenzo Bambaro.

The latter's crime was committed because he believed his brother had brought about his discharge as a designer, while Loose's murder of his daughter followed a long drinking bout, which resulted in his wife bringing him to court and having him bound over to keep the peace. He also shot and wounded his son, a Lutheran minister, after he had killed the girl.

Only the prison attendants and a couple of physicians were present when the executions took place. They followed each other within a couple of minutes.

EXECUTION OF RIVET DELAYED BY STORM

Warden of State Prison Unwilling to Risk a Failure

Boston, July 26.—Napoleon J. Rivet, the Lowell murderer condemned to death at Charlestown state prison, has a respite of another day on earth, as yesterday's storm prevented Warden Bridges from carrying out his intentions of calling Rivet to the chair to expiate his crime.

Rivet will be electrocuted today, however, some time between the hours of midnight and sunrise, in accordance with the law calling for execution of the prisoner between these hours during the week beginning July 24.

Officials of the prison last night said that the reason for the sudden postponement was due to the fear of the warden that the lightning might interfere with the electrical apparatus of the death chair and that he wanted to run no risk in the safe and speedy accomplishment of its mission.

CAMPAIGN DELAYED

Bay State Democrats Awaiting Some Definite Word From Vahey

Boston, July 26.—Democratic leaders admit that their state campaign is being delayed by the failure of James H. Vahey, the candidate for governor last year, to withdraw from the contest this year.

There seems to be a general understanding among them that Vahey does not intend to make the run this year. While they give no reason for this belief, still they predict confidently that Vahey will not run.

They are determined to avoid a fight in the convention, both because they want a start without friction, and because the candidate most in favor with them, Congressman Foss, insists that he is only a candidate in case Vahey is out of it.

Hundred Dead In Storms In Italy

Rome, July 26.—Fully 100 persons are dead, 1000 injured and as many more homeless, and property worth $5,000,000 is destroyed as the result of hurricanes which have swept northern Italy, according to the latest dispatches.

One of Falb's Predictions.

In 1874 Professor Rudolf Falb predicted an eruption of Etna on Aug. 27. He offered a Vienna editor to write an account of it if the editor would send him to Sicily. Falb was commissioned. When he reached Etna there was not the slightest sign of disturbance. As the 27th approached Falb was tortured with anxiety and spent sleepless nights watching the volcano. Nothing happened on the 27th and 28th. The following morning the servant rushed into the professor's room shouting, "An eruption, a terrible eruption!" Falb saw the spectacle and sent off his dispatch.

Ingratitude.

Hallrume had invited his friend Hungerford to dinner at Mrs. Skantable's boarding house.

"How's this for a chicken dinner, old man?" whispered Hallrume proudly.

"Just about it," said Hungerford meanly, "but I usually eat more than a chicken does."—Illustrated Sunday Magazine.

His Plea.

"I cannot sing the old songs!" she yelled with all her might.
The young man who was calling thought
some of taking flight.
"I cannot sing the old songs!" she whooped
a second time.
The caller sat and listened with fortitude sublime.

She turned the music over and pounded on the keys,
Then screeched again more loudly. He fell upon his knees.
"I cannot sing the old songs!" she bellowed. With a sigh
He rose and wildly pleaded, "For God's sake do not try!"

Kept Her Busy.

"My husband is so helpful in our household work. You know I just love to be tidying up and cleaning and rearranging all the time." "And he takes a hand in the tidying up?" "Well—er—indirectly. He throws things around and out of place so that I'll have something to do."—St. Paul Dispatch.

"Take the Siding"

A Warning by Which an Accident Was Averted.

By EMMA ARCHER OSBORNE

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

After an absence of four years from Radnor, James Casey had returned as superintendent of the eastern division of the railroad and had married Libbie Nelson. The wedding was only yesterday, and now that it was over and they had started for the east the villagers had time to revert to the story. The Nelsons were so proud of their new son-in-law that they could not restrain themselves from telling, despite the protestations of Libbie and Jim.

Shortly after the night of the church concert when Casey heard Libbie Nelson sing that song which had something in it about "angels in charge" he commenced to think things about angels, and one day his imagination evolved an angel, or something as near like one as he could picture. When Casey's mental vision beheld it he broke into a satisfied grin. If brought forth to visual observation it would have appeared strikingly like Libbie Nelson.

Things went along quietly for two months and then something happened.

While Casey was on his way to the yards at Buffalo to board 300 for the return trip an ambulance went galloping past him. Ambulances pass people frequently in a big city, and there was nothing about this one in particular to apprise Casey that Nat Taylor, fireman for Bill Whalen, who was running 809, was inside. It was a nasty night, and Taylor had slipped on the icy tracks and broken a leg.

When Casey, with a few extra minutes on hand, sauntered into the train dispatcher's office he found that institution in voluble ferment. Of course everybody was sorry for Taylor, but a fireman with a broken leg was of small concern in comparison with the awkward situation in which he had left them.

A special, carrying the president of the road from New York to Chicago on business of vital import, was at that moment only ten miles from the station and coming at the rate of a mile a minute.

Bill Whalen, one of the best engineers on the road, and 809, the pick and pride of the roundhouses, were out in the depot yards waiting to relieve the incoming and already overheated locomotive. Whalen and 809 were ready to couple on at a moment's notice, but no substitute had yet been found for Taylor, and there were precious few minutes to spare.

Casey was not given long to ponder on the excitement of the office. He had no more than crossed the threshold when Thompson, the train dispatcher, literally leaped across the room and grasped him by the arm.

"Get out to 809 as quick as you can!" he shouted. "Hurry! For God's sake hurry! Don't stop for anything! Run! Whalen 'll tell you!"

Casey peeled off his coat as he was climbing into the cab, and he had scarcely grabbed a shovel and commenced to throw coal when the special, straining and wheezing, crunched on the track alongside.

Switching and coupling were matters of seconds only, and, although the night was intensely cold, two men stood on the platform of the single coach anxiously watching proceedings. One was a large, stern visaged person. He was restless. He chewed at his short white mustache, buttoned and unbuttoned his fur coat and never took his eyes off the engine until they were getting under headway.

"Do your best, boys!" he shouted across the tender to the men in the engine as they shunted on the main track and set off. The determined nods he received in reply were assuring.

Wakeful farmers and belated villagers were puzzled by the unusual traveler as 809 with her single consort momentarily flashed on their view like a monster one eyed demon wraith, sliding, gleaming, screeching across country.

The special had left murky Cleveland and had climbed the long west grade to the bluff land bordering the lake. The snow had turned to sleet, and everything indicated that it had been sleeting for some time in that locality. The landscape glistened, telegraph poles and fences shone like crystal specters, wires were thick with incrustations, and after a distance they were sagging, and then some were broken and dragging on the ground.

"There's no use talking," growled Whalen, "I've got to slow down some or we'll be blown into the middle of nowhere. Get away from this devilish lake, then we can make up."

He eased 809 a bit. Yet she puffed and pulled and stuck nobly to her task.

"If orders to clear the tracks didn't get through before those wires went down we may be all in," observed Casey.

"You're about right," replied Whalen glumly, "but the only thing I can do is to watch for signals."

"And in a drizzling sleet like this there might just about as well be no signals," continued Casey.

They had passed Dempsey and in another forty minutes would reach Radnor. Under ordinary conditions the local was due at this point, but if no error in orders had occurred she should be waiting now on the siding at Putnam, the station beyond, giving right of way to the president's special.

The strain was beginning to tell on both men and on Whalen in particular.

Casey was turning away from coaling when he noticed Whalen lean against the window post.

"Come, take the lever for a minute," he called. "I'm feeling bad"—Before he could finish he slid to the floor of the cab.

Casey, bending over him, saw he was unconscious, but whether dead or in a faint it was impossible for him to determine in the cramped space and under the stress of responsibility which suddenly presented itself. In a flash he realized his position. He recalled afterward how he was planning what to do even as he stepped across Whalen's prostrate form and grasped the throttle lever.

The fire bed would last to Putnam, and there he would coerce some one from the sidetracked local to finish the run. Yes, he could do it—that is, if the track was clear.

Casey was leaning half out the cab window in his eagerness to watch the track and catch the signal. His dark eyes pierced into the great invisible; his head was bare and his black hair was a disheveled mass; his neck, which was bare also, despite the sleet and cold, seemed to spring out twice its usual size from his masterful shoulders. His face was tense. He had called into command every bit of human vitality he had in him to battle with the horrible possibilities he was facing and was facing alone.

Finally the signal came to view—very faintly, waveringly and indistinctly at first, then a trifle plainer until he caught its full significance.

"Clear track!" it indicated.

He reached toward the lever to throw on more speed, but instead, out in the black night and just ahead of the cab window, glided the spirit form of Libbie Nelson. She was peering intently ahead.

"Take the siding!" she motioned to Casey, and instantly his hand was impelled to the whistle and 809 was shrieking for the switch to the Radnor sidetrack.

Casey felt as if a kind of insanity had seized him, yet he slowed down and then found himself watching for the switch signal, and watching eagerly, impatiently.

He brought 809 to a full stop. He waited.

Why didn't they send the signal? Would the siding never be opened? Was it ice locked? What was wrong anyway? He asked himself a thousand questions as he grew more and more frantic with apprehension.

It seemed that he had waited there a hundred years when he finally caught the flash of the waving lantern.

Then he had to get 809 into action again. It took only a few seconds, but those seconds seemed hours.

When the locomotive moved forward Casey, pressing forward also as if to carry the great, throbbing engine with him, looked half mad with dread of the imminent—the imminence of something terrible and near.

But 809 didn't fail him. She obeyed the commanding touch which he applied to the levers.

And Casey was obeying the commands of the recognized supernatural, yet for the life of him he couldn't understand.

The special shot on the siding with not a second to spare from colliding with the local.

Then he understood, and his gray, trembling lips murmured one word. That word was "Libbie!"

When Casey staggered down from the cab he was weak, so weak that it was all he could do to stand. At first he seemed to forget who or where he was. Then gradually his mind cleared and he looked about him.

"Whalen's come to," some one told him. "Had some kind of a spell."

They had taken Whalen into the station.

Stamping up and down in the snow and the slush was the president of the road, blustering with mingled gratitude and severity and firing questions at the dazed Casey.

When Casey fully regained his senses it was wonderful what things he remembered, things that he had scarcely noticed when they happened, even details after he gave way to the supernatural. One thing, however, he failed to mention when telling of the peculiar influence that had controlled him, and that was the name of Libbie Nelson.

"It was a premonition," he insisted.

"Young man," said the president, gripping Casey's rough hand when they were parting at Chicago, "those who were responsible for that affair back yonder will be dealt with summarily.

"As for yourself, the rules of this company compel employees to run trains by orders and signals instead of by premonitions. As you have disregarded a signal, even though it would have proved disastrous if you had obeyed it, it would be the duty of your boss to dismiss you. I shall, however, take it upon myself to do that. This is your last trip. Consider yourself discharged."

Casey was weary and jaded almost to the limit of human endurance. He was the picture of woe and would have turned away, but the president still gripped his hand.

"But," he continued, with a twitching around his mouth, "there's something in you that calls for better things than firing on a locomotive. I have your name and address—here are mine," handing Casey a card. "Be at my office in New York two weeks from today. I'm in a tremendous hurry now. Thank you for your splendid run, and goodby!"

Two weeks later Casey called on the president and received his reward.

The best way to wash clothes.

Use three tubs, one for table linen; one for bed and body linen; one for the soiled towels and cloths.

Wet the clothes, rub Lenox Soap Solution over the soiled parts, fold and roll each piece by itself, pack in tub, cover with warm, soapy water and let stand over night.

TO MAKE LENOX SOAP SOLUTION:—Take a cake of Lenox Soap, shave it into small pieces, and dissolve in three quarts of boiling water. Keep water at boiling point until a solution is formed.

Lenox Soap Solution does better work than soap; and is more economical, because there is no waste.

WAKE UP!!
MR. MERCHANT

When business is dull wake it up by having a genuine bargain sale!

There are goods on your shelves and in your back room, perhaps a little shopworn or slightly soiled that should be turned into cash. Move them by reducing the price, and advertise the fact.

Bargain sales should be so conducted that many of the purchasers will become regular customers—otherwise little good comes of offering reduced prices.

The bargain sale gives you the opportunity to dispose of slow selling goods at cost and attracts attention to your store.

In this city of 33000 people there are hundreds that spend their weekly pay in the big city. These people have not acquired the habit of coming your way. Get them into the habit by using the advertising columns of the LEDGER.

To make a success of his business, a merchant must advertise and advertise effectively.

The Circulation of the Ledger is increasing every day

It goes into the homes of the buying public and is there read by the husband, the wife, the children and the servant.

¶ Placing your ad. in the LEDGER is part of the effective advertising. The other part is to have it written by an advertising specialist.

¶ This is an age of specialists. When you have an advertisement to write, why not call in an advertising specialist, thus saving time, trouble and money.

¶ The advertising rates of the LEDGER are within your reach. Its columns preach "trade in Quincy," and now Mr. Merchant it is up to you to keep these 33000 people fully informed in regard to your store and your goods, and keep Quincy money in Quincy.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

WITHDRAWAL OF KINKADE

Reduces Field to Two In Ohio Gubernatorial Fight

GARFIELD AND BROWN STICK

Longworth's Name Mentioned In Connection With "Dark Horse," but Burton Assumes Mysterious Attitude—Roosevelt Likely to Take the Stump Should Republican Platform Meet With His Approval

Columbus, O., July 26.—Advices from Oyster Bay, N. Y., to the Republican leaders here, taken in conjunction with the withdrawal of Judge R. R. Kinkade from the field of candidates for the Republican nomination for governor of Ohio, has led to a widely circulated report that a "dark horse" will be named at the state convention in this city to head the Republican state ticket.

Judge Kinkade's withdrawal leaves the actual field reduced to two, namely, James R. Garfield, who represents the "insurgent" belief, and Judge Oren B. Brown of Dayton. Nicholas Longworth, son-in-law of Roosevelt, is also regarded as a possible candidate, though he has not announced himself as such. Several others of less prominence are mentioned.

If the "standpatters" of President Taft's home state bow to Roosevelt's wishes it is the belief of politicians that the cause of insurgency will have scored its first real triumph.

While Roosevelt has not interfered in the contest for the nomination for governor in Ohio, it is certain that he is anxiously awaiting the action of the Ohio Republicans as to the party platform. His recommendation to the Republicans of Ohio was given in an interview last week after he had conferred with Kinkade, a close personal and political friend of Garfield. Kinkade was then being discussed as a possible compromise candidate for governor, and he came to Roosevelt with a letter from President Taft.

Mr. Roosevelt has declined to discuss the situation in Ohio, but there is every reason to believe that should the party platform adopted at Columbus meet with his approval he will go to Ohio and take the stump for the Republican state ticket.

Republicans who have visited Sagamore Hill have been almost unanimous in their opinion that Governor Harmon will be re-elected unless the Republicans can name a man to head the ticket who will have the support of "stand patters" and "progressives" alike. It has been conceded by many of these politicians that Longworth can bring the two factions of the party together.

Senator Burton of Cleveland, who is in Columbus, held about forty conferences with leaders from all parts of the state. He stated that he will not give any of his strength to Brown's candidacy, and that he deems Brown's nomination as being one "extremely inadvisable." Burton has been considered for the past month as being an ally of George B. Cox, and this interview entirely upset the ideas of his friends that he would swing the Cuyahoga and other delegations to Brown at the proper time.

Senator Burton stated that he was of the opinion that a "dark horse" will win the Republican nomination.

Mr. Cox said that his assertion made last week in Cincinnati, that Brown will be chosen on the second ballot, still holds good.

The conference between Senator Burton, Senator Dick and Wade Ellis, who was sent into Ohio in behalf of President Taft, brought forth the announcement that neither Garfield nor Harding would receive support from these leaders. Dick seems inclined to Thompson. Harding has been a staunch lieutenant of Senator Foraker, and this weakens his chances in the eyes of Burton, Dick and Ellis.

CAVALIERI HAS RELAPSE

Singer In Serious Condition After an Operation For Appendicitis

Paris, July 26.—Mme. Cavalieri—Mrs. Robert W. Chanler—who underwent an operation for appendicitis yesterday afternoon, suffered a relapse last night and a consultation of physicians was hastily summoned.

It was at first thought that the famous singer had rallied from the shock of the operation in fine strength, but towards evening she grew weaker and had two sinking spells. The physicians will not say that all danger has passed.

Airship Trips to Mountain Tops

Lucerne, July 26.—What is intended to be a regular airship passenger service has been inaugurated here by the ascent of the dirigible balloon Ville de Lucerne, which is capable of carrying fourteen passengers in addition to its crew. It is proposed to tour around the mountain tops.

How Chicago Grows

Chicago, July 26.—A campaign for the annexation to Chicago of every town and village within 100 miles of the city hall will be discussed at a meeting of the Three Million club soon to be called.

THE SEXTON'S STORY

head struck the opposite side of the grave, breaking his neck.

"I hurried down to the village for help, and there I found great excitement prevailing. Esquire Edmund's mansion had been struck by lightning the night before, and both the old gentleman and his invalid wife had been killed. One chimney was demolished and the end of the mansion badly shattered, but no fire was discovered.

"We carried Edward home ,and the three bodies lay in state til lthe day of the funeral, when all were buried in the lot over there on the hill.

"At the funeral Alice was accompanied by a fine-looking young man who was a stranger to all the townspeople. Many conjectures were made as to who this stranger might be, especially as he rode home with Alice in the Edmunds carriage.

"The next day after the funeral Alice received a note from the lawyer summoning her to call at his office.

"'Good morning, Miss Edmunds,' said Lawyer Atwood, as Alice appeared in answer to his summons: 'I beg pardon for intruding in the midst of your sorrow ;but there is a matter of business which must be attended to very soon. I believe your 21st birthday will occur next Monday, will it not?'

"'Yes, sir, 'answered Alice.

"'And I suppose you understand that the desire of both your father and your uncle was that you and your cousin Edward should be married, and so keep the property in the family?'

"'I do,' Alice replied.

"'Now,' continued the lawyer, 'your Uncle Robert's will provides that Edward shall inherit all his father's property at the age of 21. In case he died before that age it should come into your possession on your 21st birthday. That gives your uncles half of all the property to you next Monday. But your father's share stands in a peculiar manner. In case of your death before the age of 21 it was to go to Edward; that part of the will is clear; but knowing that the objection to the union was all on your part, and wishing to make this union sure, your father intended to make provisions that if you passed your 21st birthday without marrying Edward the property should pass into his hands. Of all this you are aware but your father also willed that at Edward's death your portion of the property which he had inherited should go to the town to found a hospital and a public library.

"'According to these provisions you would inherit your uncle's part of the property next Monday and your fathers part would go to the town.

"Here the lawyer hesitated a moment and then continued:

"'I don't like this way of forcing young people to marry against their will, and I don't think a promise wrung from one at such a time as your promise was made should be binding. I have studied your father's will carefully, and I find that the language used in the document leaves by a technicality, one chance for you to acquire the whole property.

"'The will provides that if you pass you 21st birthday "without marrying" the property shall go to your cousin. Now, by a slight oversight, it does not specify whom you shall marry.'

"And with a pleasant 'good-morning' the lawyer bowed Miss Alice out.

"The next Sunday there was a quiet wedding at the mansion on the hill, and it then transpired that the young stranger was Richard Trescott, Jr.,

"And so the property was kept together, and Richard and Alice lived in the old house surrounded by a family of boys and girls."

Here the sexton paused and appeared wrapped in memory. At length I broke his reverie with the question.

"And so the new grave is for Alice?"

"Yes,"; he answered, "for Alice dear Alice. It was her last request of me that I should dig her grave myself."

"And what became of the gardner?" I asked.

"Oh! yes, yes ,the gardener," he said, as if he but half understood my question. And then rousing himself, he said: "The gardener: well, you see Richard went to college and then my wife died, and I couldn't bear to be alone, and so I came back and became sexton to the town. Here I could be near the old home, and Alice always came to see me often, and my life was happy ,until Richard came to live in the old mansion and I could call Alice daughter, and then I had the old house again. But I could never give up the care of the cemetery."

As the old sexton ceased speaking, the sun burst out again, and, bidding him good-day, I sauntered forth on my ramble over the old town where I was pasing my summer vacation.—Ravid G. Davidson in Boston Budget.

MARSHALL REACHES BOSTON WITH BRIDE

Marriage Will Prevent Her Testifying Against Him

Boston, July 26.—John R. Marshall, under indictment in the Coleman case, alleged to be a member of the "faro gang," arrived in Boston this morning under arrest, but accompanied by Eleanor Holiday, known in the Keliher trial as Mrs. Nellie Penn, whom he married yesterday in Philadelphia, and whose testimony therefore cannot be used against him.

She was with Marshall when he was arrested and held in $10,000 bail, and it was thought that she was Mrs. Marshall. In the request for a marriage license both swore that they had never before been married.

She was a figure in the Keliher trial, but under the name of Mrs. Nellie Penn. Later she was held as a witness against Francis J. Wood, who subsequently was indicted for perjury.

SAFETY DEVICE FAILED

Report of Investigators of Gun Disaster at Fort Monroe

Washington, July 26.—The board of officers appointed to investigate the premature explosion of a 12-inch gun at Fortress Monroe, Va., last Thursday, when eleven soldiers were killed and several wounded, found that the explosion was caused by the failure of the safety device on the firing mechanism.

A premature explosion of the powder charge did the damage. The board in its report says it is forced to its conclusion notwithstanding the fact that long experience and previous tests had given assurance that the firing mechanism afforded protection against the very disaster which happened.

HITCH OVER MAYORALTY

City Fathers Undecided as to Eligibility of Candidates

Lawrence, Mass., July 26.—The Lawrence city council did not elect a mayor to succeed William P. White, who is in jail and recently resigned, last night.

Both the board of aldermen and city council were ready for a joint convention, but the question of the eligibility of the members of the city council came up.

The members were undecided as to whether or not Acting Mayor Jordan or Alderman Tobin, who are candidates for the position, were eligible, being members of the city council.

Bread and Eggs by Weight

New York, July 26.—Both bread and eggs are likely to be sold by weight in this city soon. This became apparent when Commissioner Driscoll of the bureau of weights and measures announced that he had discovered an old ordinance, still in effect, which specifically provides a regulation for the sale of bread in that manner.

'Quakes In Wyoming

Cheyenne, Wyo., July 26.—Word has reached here of a series of severe earthquake shocks at Rock Springs, Wyo. They were so severe that houses were rocked and the walls of a coal mine moved so badly that work at the mine has been abandoned.

HOME ENDORSEMENT

Hundreds of Quincy Citizens Can Tell You All About It.

Home endorsement the public expression of Quincy people, should be evidence beyond dispute for every Quincy reader. Surely the experience of friends and neighbors, cheerfully given by them, will carry more weight than the utterances of strangers residing in faraway places. Read the following:

W. Charlesworth, 33 Cranch street, Quincy, Mass., says: "About five years ago I began to suffer from kidney trouble. I had pains in my back which were very severe at times and cold or damp weather aggravated my suffering. I knew that my kidneys were at fault and used everything I could think of in an effort to obtain relief but to no avail. Seeing Doan's Kidney Pills highly advertised, I finally decided to give them a trial and I procured a supply at the Cox Drug Store. Before I had taken the contents of two boxes, the backache was a thing of the past and I felt better in every way. Doan's Kidney Pills have my highest endorsement."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

OCEAN CHASE FOR CRIPPEN

Fugitive Doctor Believed to Have Been Trapped at Last

LEFT ANTWERP FOR CANADA

Miss Leneve, In Boy's Garb, Is Said to Be With Him—Chief of Scotland Yard Hears the News and Follows on Fast Steamer and Expects to Be In Montreal In Time to Effect Capture of the Couple

London, July 26.—Developments in the sensational Hawley H. Crippen-Belle Elmore case indicate more than ever to Scotland Yard that Crippen and Miss Ethel C. Leneve are speeding to Canada aboard the steamer Montore, which left Antwerp on July 20 for Montreal.

That the couple are aboard the liner is believed by the police because Chief Inspector Dew, the head of Scotland Yard, after going to Liverpool Thursday to make inquiries about a couple supposed to have been Crippen and Miss Leneve who had left port, took passage on the Laurentia, which left that day.

The departure of the chief is remarkable because only in cases of great importance does he leave the city. That he should have left on the Laurentia for Montreal suddenly and without having had time to take traveling clothes convinces the police that he is on the track of the couple. The wireless message from the Montrose that a couple, seemingly Crippen and Miss Leneve, are aboard, seems conclusive that Dew learned of their departure and immediately left after them.

The wireless message from the Montrose was to the effect that a man answering the description of Crippen and a young woman who had posed as a boy, but whose identity as a girl had been discovered, were on board. The captain was asked to guard the two and take every precaution to prevent their taking their lives.

Through other ships that relay the messages, the Montrose yesterday was in communication with Scotland Yard, it was learned here. It is also known that the authorities have requested Captain Moscrop—who is his own master, under no jurisdiction when on the high seas—to keep the disguised pair under close surveillance, and moreover to throw Crippen into irons at the first indication that he has learned his situation.

The Montrose is a twelve-day boat and the Laurentia makes the passage of the Atlantic in eight days. The Laurentia will get to Quebec twelve hours before the Montrose is due there. The climax in the sensational dash across the ocean may come at Rimouski, where the ships are due the day before they reach Quebec.

Bryan Badly Beaten In His Struggle For County Option

Grand Island, Neb., July 26.—The Democratic party of Nebraska is holding its platform convention in this city today, and William J. Bryan enters it a beaten man, so far as the results of the primaries go, and not only beaten but beaten by some of the very men who have been his warmest supporters and closest political friends.

Mr. Bryan went into the campaign the ardent advocate of a county option plank, and opposed to him have been Representative Hitchcock, now a candidate for United States senator; Mayor Dahlman of Omaha and Governor Shallenberger, both candidates for governor.

The battle was waged in every section of the state, and up to date 442 delegates are instructed to vote against county option. It requires only 444 delegates to control. Of the uninstructed deegates many have announced their opposition to the plank.

POLICE HUNTING FOR WIDER

Now Said That He May Have Stolen Securities Valued at $600,000

New York, July 26.—A general alarm has been sent to the police throughout the United States and Canada for the arrest of Erwin Wider, cashier of the Russo-Chinese bank, who is charged by the bank's officers with having taken $70,000 in bonds from a safety deposit box.

Reports say that Wider has taken securities far in excess of that sum and approximating $600,000. Wider has not been seen for a week. The bank, it is said, thinks that Wider has hidden some of the securities.

SYNOPSIS

A party of titled passengers on a ship bound for Australia visit a section "below decks" where a gang of convicts sentenced to deportation are confined. The ship, the Lord Nelson is wrecked. A convict, the "Frisco Pet," jumps overboard with Jocelyn Wray, a pretty little girl. The convict, after returning the girl to her friends is himself later cast away alone on a deserted island. Years have passed. Lord Ronsdale and other members of the party wrecked on the Lord Nelson, including Jocelyn Wray, go to the criminal courts in London to hear John Steele, a famous young lawyer, try a case. Steele and Jocelyn meet and form a liking for each other. Lord Ronsdale, who would marry Jocelyn, forms a violent dislike for Steele. Ronsdale had at the wreck of the Lord Nelson prevented the rescue of the "Frisco Pet" by a lifeboat. Ronsdale is startled at the sight of a tattoo mark on Steele's arm. Ronsdale puts a detective, Gillett, on Steele's trail to establish his identity. He is certain Steele is the "Frisco Pet." Steele, none other than the "Frisco Pet," begins a hunt for Tom Rogers, the only man who can establish his innocence of the murder for which he had been deported years before. Steele visits Strathorn House, where Jocelyn Wray, Lord Ronsdale and others are present. Steele, in love with the girl, has recognized her as the one he rescued at the wreck of the Lord Nelson. Ronsdale tries to have Steele arrested at Strathorn House. Steele reveals to Jocelyn that he was once the "Frisco Pet," her rescuer. Jocelyn aids Steele in escaping to London. Steele gets traces of Tom Rogers, whose testimony he requires.

(CHAPTER XV—Continued.)

"I confess," in an even, emotionless voice, "your lordship's complaisance amazes me."

"STOP!" THE VOICE WAS JOHN STEELE'S.

"And you would have accepted the alternative?"

"Why discuss what could never have been considered?" was the brusque answer.

Lord Ronsdale frowned. "That alternative is still open. Refuse and—you will be in the hands of the authorities tonight. Resist"— His glittering eyes left no doubt whatever as to his meaning.

"I refuse."

"In that case"—Lord Ronsdale half rose; his face looked drawn, but determined; he reached as if to touch a bell—"you force the issue, and"—

"One moment." As he spoke John Steele stepped toward the fireplace. He gazed downward at a tiny white ash on the glowing coals. A little film that might have been—paper? "In a matter so important we may consider a little longer lest," still regarding the hearth, "there may be after regrets." He lifted now his keen glowing eyes. "In one little regard I did your lordship an injustice."

"In what way?"

"In supposing that you yourself murdered Amy Gerard," came the unexpected response. The other started violently. "Your lordship will forgive the assumption in view of what occurred on a certain stormy night at sea when a drowning wretch clung with one hand to a gunwale and you, in answer to his appeal for succor, bent over and"—

"It's a lie!" The words fell in a sharp whisper.

"What?" John Steele's laugh sounded mirthlessly. "Your lordship knows what I mean, how the true facts in this case of Amy Gerard have come to light?"

John Steele's glance was straight direct. If the other had the paper, had read it, he would know.

"I think you had better tell me," Lord Ronsdale said at last.

"If your lordship did not kill the woman, if the Frisco Pet did not, then who did?" Ronsdale leaned forward. John Steele studied the nobleman with a purpose of his own. "Why, she killed herself," he said suddenly.

"How?" The nobleman uttered this word, then stopped. John Steele waited. Had Lord Ronsdale been surprised at his knowledge? He could hardly tell from his manner whether or not he had the affidavit and had read it.

"How—interesting! May I ask how it occurred?"

"Oh, it is all very commonplace! Your lordship had received a threatening letter and called on the woman. She wanted money. You refused. She already had a husband living in France, a ruined gambler of the bourse, but had tricked you into thinking she was your wife. You had discovered the deception and discarded her. From a music hall singer she had gone down—down until she, once beautiful, courted, had become a mere—what she was, associate of one like Dandy Joe, cunning, unscrupulous. At your refusal to become the victim of their blackmailing scheme she in her anger seized a weapon. During the struggle it was accidentally discharged."

Was Lord Ronsdale asking himself how the other had learned this? If Rogers had escaped with the paper John Steele knew Ronsdale might well wonder that the actual truth should have been discovered. He would not under those circumstances even be aware of the existence of a witness of the tragedy. But was Lord Ronsdale assuming a manner, meeting subtlety with subtlety?

"At sound of the shot Joe, who had been waiting below in the kitchen with the landlady, rushed upstairs. You explained how it happened, were willing enough to give money now to get away quietly without being dragged into the affair. The dead woman's confederate, greedy for gain even at such a moment, would have helped you. But there was a difficulty. Would the police accept the story of suicide? There were signs of a struggle. At that instant some one entered the house, came stumbling up the stairs. It was the—Frisco Pet.

"Joe hurried you out toward a rear exit, but not before," leaning slightly toward Lord Ronsdale, "an impression of your face, pale, drawn, had vaguely stamped itself on the befuddled brain," bitterly, "of the fool brute. You lost no time in making your escape. Little was said between you and Joe, but he proved amenable to your suggestion. The way out of the difficulty was found. He hated the Pet, who had once or twice handled him roughly for abusing this poor creature. You gave Joe money to have the landlady's testimony agree with his. She never got that money," meaningly, "but gave the desired evidence. Joe had found out something."

The speaker stopped. There remained a crucial test. If Lord Ronsdale had the paper what John Steele was about to say would cause him no surprise. He would be prepared for it. The words fell sharply:

"The landlady's son, Tom Rogers, was at the time in the house, in hiding from the police. He was concealed above in a small room or garret. Through a stovepipe opening, disused, he looked down into the sitting room below and heard, saw all!"

The effect was instantaneous, magical. Lord Ronsdale sprang to his feet. John Steele looked at him, at the wavering face, the uncertain eyes. No doubt existed now in his mind. Gillett had not secured the paper or he would have given it to his patron when they were alone. That fact was patent. The document was gone irretrievably. There could be no hope of recovering it. The bitter knowledge that it had really once existed would not serve John Steele long. But with seeming resolution he went on: "I had the story from his own lips," deliberately, "put in the form of an affidavit, duly signed and witnessed."

"This is a subterfuge."

"It is true."

"Where—is the paper? You did not have it at Strathorn. If you had you would have taken advantage of it."

John Steele looked at the drawer. The affidavit was not there, but something else was.

Lord Ronsdale sank back into his chair. "You have, out of fancy, constructed a libelous theory, one that you would be laughed at for advancing. A cock and bull story about a paper that doesn't exist, that never existed." A sound at the door caused him to turn sharply. Mr. Gillett came in.

"Well?"

"I have here a paper that one of our men has just turned over to me." John Steele started, but neither of the others noticed. "He found it at the last place we were. Evidently it had been dropped by the fellow who was there and who fled at our coming." As he spoke he stepped nearer the desk, in his hand a paper.

"What is it?" Lord Ronsdale demanded testily.

Mr. Gillett did not at once answer. He looked at John Steele. The latter stood like a statue. Only his eyes were turned toward the nobleman, to the thin aristocratic hand yet resting on the edge of the drawer.

"If your lordship will glance at it?" said Mr. Gillett, proffering the sheet.

The nobleman did so. His face changed. His eyes seemed unable to leave the paper. Suddenly he gave a smothered explanation, tore the sheet once and started up, took a step toward the fire.

"Stop!" The voice was John Steele's. He stood now next to the partly opened drawer, in his hand that which had been concealed there—something bright, shining. Lord Ronsdale wheeled, looked at the weapon and into the eyes behind it. "Place those two bits of paper there—on the edge of the desk!"

CLAIMING A VICTORY

Adequate Police Protection the Only Request of Grand Trunk Officials

Montreal, July 26.—Solution of the Grand Trunk railway strike problem, according to the company's officers, includes neither arbitration nor any further negotiations with 5000 conductors and trainmen who struck a week ago for a wage scale higher than the 25 percent increase awarded by the board of conciliation. The only essential yet to be provided for in the situation, from the company's point of view, is adequate protection of the company's property and of its present employes, especially those who have taken the places of strikers.

The strike leaders, on the other hand, express confidence in the steadfastness of their ranks and their ability to force the railroad to terms. They still rely on an irremediable freight paralysis.

ARMY HORSES POISONED

Mounts at Gettysburg Camp Are Ordered Back to Fort Myer

Washington, July 26.—As a result of further investigations into the sickness among the horses at the Gettysburg camp of military instruction, all the mounts taken to the camp from Fort Myer, Va., have been ordered back to the fort by rail.

This action was the result of a report telegraphed to Washington, confirming the report that the sickness was due to forage poisoning, which developed upon exercising the horses.

Chicago Bars Fight Pictures

Chicago, July 26.—The Johnson-Jeffries prize-fight pictures will be barred from exhibition in Chicago. This was made definite and final by Chief of Police Steward after a conference with Mayor Busse.

Miners Win Wage Fight

Indianapolis, July 26.—An agreement between Illinois miners and operators in the Illinois field has been reached, and the four months' strike probably will be ended today with a victory for the miners.

Trade Mark. Don't accept any substitute.

BRIEFS

John King of Centre street has gone to Maine.

Councilman George A. Bolster is having his annual vacation.

Ladies' day tomorrow of the Quincy Yacht club.

The board of trustees of the Hall Place church will meet Friday evening after the prayer meeting.

Mark L. Read, Jr., and family of Woodward avenue, are at Meridith, N. H.

The annual lawn party of the Hall Place church will be held tomorrow evening. The committees will meet this evening in the vestry.

Congressman O'Connell was in town Monday as counsel for a West Quincy man charged with assault on Officer Malone.

The thunder storm caused a drop in temperature and last night was more comfortable than it otherwise would have been.

Miss Anna McNamey of Lowell is spending a four weeks' vacation with her cousin Mary Creedon at 57 Old Colony street, Atlantic.

An open air concert and lawn party will be held on the grounds of George B. Gavin on Cedar street, Braintree, Wednesday in aid of St. Francis church.

Charles W. Page of 71 Billings road, who is convalescing from a long illness, leaves Wednesday with his family for Bucksport, Me., for a six weeks' visit.

Gen. Sylvanus Thayer W. R. C. of Braintree is to hold a lawn party Saturday afternoon on French's common which several members of Paul Revere W. R. C. of this city plan to attend.

Quincy members of the Order of St. George are today attending the annual State convention in Faneuil Hall, Boston. A sail in the harbor this afternoon and banquet tonight are included.

Capt. Joshua Slocum, who has given his lecture in Quincy on his voyage around the world in the Spray, has been given up by his family as lost. He sailed from Marthas Vineyard a year and eight months ago.

Navy orders show Massachusetts to be well represented in the new fourth class at the naval academy at Annapolis. Among the eight young men from the state are Foster C. Bumpus of this city and Stanley Wilson of Braintree.

Young Thickhedde, who has graduated in medicine, is very fond of giving wise opinions on all matters. He heard an elderly lady say one day:

"The greatest sorrow of my life is that I have never had any children."

"Ah," said Thickhedde, "perhaps it was—ah—hereditary. Did your mother have any children?"

Alpha Hall, the finest in the city, is showing 4 reels of high class pictures and 3 song hits each evening. Patrons can attend any time and remain until they have witnessed the entire show. Miss Anna aHammond and Ralph Hawkes are the soloists.

DEATHS.

BEAL FAMILY REUNION

To Be Held in Old Ship Church, Hingham, in August

With a view to perpetuating the name and extending the family tree, a movement has been started for a reunion of the descendants of John Beal, who came to this country from England in 1636 and settled in Hingham. He married Nazareth Hobart, a sister of Rev. Peter Hobart, the first minister of the Old Ship church in that town, and their offspring are scattered all over the country.

The movement had its inception with the descendants of Zelotes Beal, a native of Rockland, who are desirous of forming an association and holding annual gatherings. The matter was considered at the recent reunion at Island grove, Abington, and it was decided that a meeting be held at the Old Ship church in Hingham, Aug. 18, the date when John Beal first stepped foot on American soil.

LAWN PARTY.

A lawn party under the auspices of the junior chorus of the Memorial Congregational church and supervision of Mrs. Albert Hall of Atlantic street was held Saturday afternoon and evening in Kellers field. The object was to raise money for a trip to Plymouth by boat. The sum of $20.00 was cleared.

Those in the charge of the tables were as follows:

Ice Cream—Mrs. Albert Hall, Margaret Read and Hazel Davison.

Candy Table—Winifred Cole, Marion Newcomb, Hattie Waterhouse and Ouida Keay.

Punch—Alice Waterhouse and Jessie French.

Peanuts—Jordine Davison, Esther Jenkins and Phoebe Buckley.

Canes and rings—Arthur Hall and George Turner.

Hit the nigger in the head—Harry Wilson and Clifton Young.

TODAY'S COURT.

Francisco Zioli was fined $100 for violation of the liquor law at Weymouth.

Thomas Marsh was fined $15 for creating a disturbance on a street car at Weymouth.

George Diforti was fined $15 for drunkenness at Weymouth.

John Brady was arraigned for violation of town by-laws at Randolph. Placed on file on payment of costs.

Patrick Brennan was arraigned for letting a building knowing it was to be used for the sale of liquor at Quincy. Case continued until Thursday.

Town Topics.

Chicago will have a thirty story hotel with a bathtub in every room. This must be a concession to the transient trade.—Cleveland Leader.

St. Louis is dissatisfied with the census count, but its dissatisfaction is unreasonable. There are plenty of people there for a town of its size.—Alton (Ill.) Times.

Horse cars are to be abolished in New York. Gold bricks will go next, and the city at the mouth of the Hudson may yet become really metropolitan.—Albany Knickerbocker Press.

The High Fliers.

The aviators are after the goods, but they are not to be confounded with a certain "higher up" class. — Atlanta Constitution.

Anyway, the aeroplane has put an end to the plaint of the mollycoddle who was always sighing for the wings of a dove.—Chicago News.

The aeroplane lacks one important ornithological feature—it can't float. When it stops it has to seek a roost.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Recent Inventions.

A recently patented door closet is made adjustable so that it will close a door completely or return it to any desired open angle.

An all rubber automobile wheel has been patented, rigid at the center and with the hardness lessening gradually until the circumference is reached.

A Scotch inventor has perfected a sledlike machine which when drawn over a road accurately records on a paper covered cylinder all irregularities in the road's surface.

Madder and Indigo.

Chemical processes of making madder and indigo colors have changed the face of those industries. One-half of the entire consumption of indigo is now produced in German chemical plants.

HEAVY THUNDER SHOWER

But Quincy Was on the Edge and Was Only Wet Down

The city got the edge Monday afternoon of a severe thunder storm, which was particularly heavy and fatal north of Boston, as will be seen by the telegraphic news. It was about 5 P. M. and the sky was very black for awhile. There were a few sharp peals of thunder, but no buildings were struck in this city or vicinity.

The rain was heavy and did the lawns and vegetation lots of good. The evening continued showery. The temperature took a drop of 20 degrees in a short space of time, and it was one of the times when a thunder storm cooled the air and made the night comfortable.

SPORTING NOTES.

Both the Quincy football teams are entered for the soccer football championship tourney at Caledonia field August 6. The Fore River club are the present holders of the Dewar trophy and the other entries are the Boston Rovers, Boston Americans, McGregors of Quincy, Readvilles, Charlestowns and Lynn City. It was decided to accept only eight teams for the events and the list was left open till next Sunday.

The Massachusetts and St. Lawrence were unable to finish on Monday within the time limit in the first of the series of races for the Seawanhaka cup now held by the Manchester Yacht club. The St. Lawrence represents the Royal St. Lawrence club of Canada. The Massachusetts was leading.

Pen, Chisel and Brush.

It is related of Hall Caine, the novelist, that he once worked in the Laxey lead mines in the Manx mountains in place of a young man who was ill to keep the young fellow's position for him.

Miss Elizabeth Nourse, a Cincinnati artist, has sold her painting, "The Closed Shutters," to the Luxembourg gallery, and ten years after her death it will take its place among the canvases in the Louvre.

James Earle Fraser, the sculptor, whose studio is down in the artists' colony of MacDougal alley, New York, was a protege of Saint-Gaudens. He was born in Winona, Minn., in 1876, lived in the west for many years, and his work is reflective of the open prairie.

Rise of Stage Stars.

Laura Hope Crewes took a child's part.

Billie Burke began as a chorus girl in London.

Elsie Ferguson made her bow as a chorus girl.

Maude Adams began as a child and for years played small parts, gradually working up to leads.

Margaret Anglin was graduated from a dramatic school in New York. Nazimova from one in Russia.—Leslie's.

Woman.

A woman is like your shadow—follow her, she flies; fly from her, she follows.—Chamfort.

No man has yet discovered the means of giving successfully friendly advice to women.—Balzac.

Women see through and through each other, and often we most admire her whom they most scorn.—Buxton.

Women know by nature how to disguise their emotions far better than the most consummate male courtier can disguise his.—Thackeray.

Pure Water.

Water in a state of purity is 825 times heavier than the air.

—The management of the Brockton fair is not idle these warm days and plans for a bigger and better fair in every way. Charles H. Pope, superintendent of tent ground is in New York in the interests of the fair and will visit Coney Island for attractions. Managers of a number of the acts now at the famous resort have written Mr. Pope asking rates for ground space for this year's fair. One of the most promising thus far seems to be a "diving girl" act, the company which controls it having space at present at Coney Island and Brighton beach. Indications point to a very lively midway at the 1910 fair, and Mr. Pope may bring back some new ideas from his visit which will add materially to the success of the cattle show's "great white way."

QUINCY CUP MAY COME HOME

Harpoon Has Finished First in Both Races Sailed

The chances are good that the Harpoon, the Quincy challenger for the Quincy cup, will bring the tropy back to Quincy ,as she has finished first in both races although disbarred in one. Here are some comments of Boston papers.

The Transcript says: "Harpoon owned by Charles Francis Adams, 2d, the challenger of the Quincy Yacht club, this afternoon won the second of the races for the Quincy challenge cup. Harpoon won the first race on Saturday, but was disqualified. On the showing in the first two races it would seem that the famous trophy will return to its original abiding place."

The Globe says: "After the finish of Monday's race for the Quincy cup, it was the general opinion among those who have watched the five boats in the two contests sailed that the trophy would go back to Quincy. That is, if Charlie Adams' Harpoon keeps up to the form she has shown in the racing of Saturday and today."

The Herald says: "The Harpoon, at her best in windward work, showed her capabilities as an all-round craft by holding her own on the last run to Peddock's. There was brief trouble with her spinnaker which slowed her when half-way between the marks. The race was now the Harpoons for there was no appreciable change in position on the short romp from Peddock's to the finish."

The Journal says: "The Harpoon came into her own today in a strong southwest breeze and lively sea, over a triangular course of twelve miles in the second race for the Quincy challenge cup. She beat the Cima, her nearest competitor at the finish, 1 min. 11 sec. It is quite likely that the Sally XI would have been a close second to the Harpoon, but her skipper mistook the course number for "2" instead of "5" and sailed to the finish line from Sheep Island without having turned the marks at Quincy Great Hill and Peddock's Island. The Harpoon was considerable of a surprise in the heavy going, after having beaten out the others in the drift of Saturday. All carried whole sail throughout and the Harpoon made the best weather of all."

The Advertiser says: "The Harpoon won by her wonderful work up the wind. The others held her on the wind, but going to weather she distanced them."

The Circus Band.

Over the hills and far away,
I hear the horns of the circus play,
Every day more loud and clear
As the gilded caravan draws near,
"Oom-pah-oom!" goes the slide trombone,
With a festive note in its strident tone,
While the fluttering tips of banners gay
Wave over the hills and far away.

There's nothing can thrill in this whole broad land
Like the blare and the glare of the circus band.
The tunes are old, and the playing's lame,
But you tap to the music, all the same.
The "Oom-pah-oom!" of the slide trombone
Has a joyous lilt to its strident tone,
And hints of sawdust and canvas stray
From over the hills and far away.
—Spokane Spokesman-Review.

Three Men.

When H. H. Rogers was in the prime of his power, says a New York writer, he formed a "friendship partnership" with Mark Twain and Thomas Brackett Reed and took personal charge of their affairs, looking after them as he would a couple of children. It was great fun for all three, and especially Rogers. Neither Clemens nor Reed had any sense for business. The big ex-speaker came to New York a poor man. Five years later he died suddenly, and his estate assayed over $600,000. He probably had no idea what he was worth at any stage. Rogers made as much or more money for Clemens.

Western Siberia.

Western Siberia is seven times as large as the German empire.

The Biggest Church.

St. Peter's, at Rome, reared centuries before the age of steam and electricity began, is still the biggest of churches, the most colossal of all places of worship.

Paul Revere.

Paul Revere probably was America's first engraver. He did much work for the provincial congress, including the engraving and printing of banknotes such as the issue of £100,000 of colony notes in 1775 and also various commitments for engraving on silver, copper, etc.

Ropemaking.

The United States makes 137,500,000 pounds of rope a year—enough if reduced to clothesline size to encircle the earth sixty-eight times.

OARSMEN TO HAVE BIG INNING

National Event In Washington to Be Record Breaker.

COUNTRY'S CRACKS ENTERED.

Canada Also Well Represented—Durando Miller of New York A. C. Picked to Win Single Championship—Senior Eight Race to Be Great Event.

By TOMMY CLARK.

The eyes of the rowing men just now are centered on the national championships which will be held at Washington Aug. 12 and 13. Crews from the big boat clubs of the United States and Canada will compete in the events on the Potomac river. The entry list this year is bigger than ever before.

New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Baltimore and Detroit will be well represented by the pick of their boat club crews. Toronto and Halifax crews will uphold the rowing prestige of Canada. The Canadians doubtless will be represented by half a dozen crews.

Detroit has an eight oared combination which it is expected will make considerable trouble for the crews from New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore and Boston. The westerners have shown excellent form in several of the season's regattas, and rowing experts are looking to them to carry off one of the prizes.

But New York will have several eight oared crews which must be reckoned with. The combination of the New York Athletic club and the Nassau Boat club are both looked upon as likely winners. Then, too, Philadelphia and Boston are reported to have fast combinations, and there are several speedy crews from Toronto and Halifax that will finish well up.

The New York Athletic club, which won the eight oared championship of last year, has been in earnest training for the purpose of upholding the blue ribbon event of the regatta, the senior eight oared championship. This year they will have the greatest field to beat that has ever lined up at the start in such a contest, and the crew that wins will surely break all world records for the distance. In this race will be the Argonauts of Toronto, Winnipegs of Manitoba, Minnesotas of St. Paul, Wahnetas of Flushing, N. Y., who this season have won all the big regattas; Unions of Boston, all ex-Harvard oarsmen; Nassaus, Atalantas and Harlems of New York; Mattas of West Philadelphia, Vespers and Bachelors of Philadelphia, Arundels and Ariels of Baltimore, and last, but not least by any means, the Potomacs of Washington.

Durando Miller of the New York Athletic club, who won the senior championship last year, is to compete again. His practice spins have given satisfaction to his teammates, and they look to him to land the prizes this year.

In this class in which Miller will compete will be Scholes and Cosgrove of Toronto, now in England at the English Henley; O'Neil of Nova Scotia, Shepherd and Feussell of the Harlems, New York; Dick Mann, also of the New York Athletic club; Shea of the Sheepshead Bay club; Bennett and Warnecke of Springfield, Mass.; Gordon of Vespers, Belcher of Walters, Allison of West Philadelphia and Gleason of Vespers. Fred Plaisted of St. Louis, who is coaching the Mound City men, believes they have a comer in Lepping, as he has been winning everything in sight.

The list of events is as follows:

Quarter mile dash, senior single sculls; single scull shells, intermediate; association senior single sculls; championship senior single sculls; double scull shells, intermediate; double scull shells, senior; quadruple scull shells, senior; four oared shells, intermediate; four oared shells, senior; four oared shells, senior international; eight oared shells, intermediate; eight oared shells, senior, and a special race, junior eight oared shells.

Now Watch the Cubs.

Now that the indications are that Reulbach and Overall are all right again the Chicago Nationals look all the more formidable.

Horse Racing In Mexico.

There will be 100 days of racing at Juarez, Mexico, next winter, beginning Nov. 25. The purses will aggregate $300,000.

BASEBALL CHIRPS

Outfielder Paskett of the Cincinnati Reds has become one of the National league's leading base stealers.

Tom Clarke is now getting his chance to catch a fair share of Cincinnati's games and is doing it excellently.

Pitcher Barger of Brooklyn isn't the personification of poetic grace on the mound, but he can handle that sphere.

Pitcher Bill Burns' splendid work for Cincinnati has aroused wonder all over the circuit how he escaped the American league waiver gauntlet.

Hal Chase of the New York Americans makes more sensational plays around first base than any first baseman in the league. He handles poorly thrown balls with ease, and if they strike his mitt they stick there.

The Writers.

Mrs. Virginia Terhune Van de Water, the writer, is a daughter of Marion Harland.

Henryk Sienkiewicz, the Polish novelist, was born in 1845 and is a leader of the Nationalists in Poland today.

Word comes from London that Mr. William de Morgan is on his way back from Florence, bringing with him the final corrected proofs of his new book. An indication of how careful an artist this author is is the fact that he is said to have almost rewritten his novel in the proofs.

Margaret Chanler Aldrich, the author, is a sister of former Lieutenant Governor Lewis Stuyvesant Chanler and a greatniece of Mrs. Julia Ward Howe. As Miss Chanler she was one of the founders and for seven years president of the Women's Municipal league of New York city.

Jay Gould's Tomb.

The late Jay Gould rests in a mausoleum on a circular plot, 170 feet in diameter, at Central and Observatory avenues in Woodlawn cemetery, New York. The mausoleum is of granite, 33 by 32 feet, with a height of twenty feet. The entrance door is of bronze, eight feet high, and weighs two tons. There are twenty catacombs within.

Sir Walter's Knock.

"Ruff on the cloak," remarked Sir Walter Raleigh as he spread down his velvet garment before Queen Elizabeth. He could not resist giving her this little wrap.

SCHEDULE PRESENTED

For New Train Stops at Different Quincy Stations

The committee on better train service for Quincy has had a conference with officials of the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R., and feel confident that success will crown their efforts, as they were very cordially received, and assured that the petition would be granted in part if not entirely.

The committee met at the Board of Trade rooms Tuesday evening with Henry L. Kincaide, chairman pro tem, and Winfield S. Hamlin, secretary pro tem.

The special committee appointed reported that they met Sunday and revised the entire train service. They went before the railroad officials Monday at 11 A. M. and presented the case of the people. This committee included: Henry L. Kincaide, T. J. Collins, Walter E. Piper, W. H. Teasdale, Frank Badger and George Snow.

The special committee was appointed primarily to try and have some improvement in the service affecting the workingmen, who were obliged to use the early morning trains, there having been complaint on the part of postal employes who had to report for wo k in the Boston postoffice at 6.45 that the present train leaving Quincy at 6.20 did not get them in on time and that in order to get to work on time they were obliged to leave on the 5.14 train.

The committee was given an interview by Assistant Passenger Agent Call on Monday, and the members were very cordially and considerately received. Mr. Call seemed very anxious to find out just what the people of Quincy wanted.

The committee did not ask for a single additional train, but asked that certain trains that now pass through Quincy express be stopped at certain stations where it was felt that they would do the most good. The committee felt that the company could do this without upsetting their present timetable. Not only did the committee seek to improve the train service for the early morning workingmen, but kept in mind also the trains that might benefit them in the afternoon, and also the trains that would benefit the employes of the Boston Gear Works, the foundries at Norfolk Downs and employes of the Tubular Rivet Works at Wollaston.

The committee put in two hours of a sw ltering Sunday afternoon in making up their schedule.

The committee asked for the following changes in the present service:

That the 6.17 train from Braintree should be set back five minutes and stop at Quincy Adams, Atlantic and South Boston, in addition to the present stops, and arrive in Boston at 6.30.

That the train leaving Quincy Adams at 7.20 and running express to Popes Hill be stopped at Quincy.

That the train leaving Braintree at

DECISIVE RACE IS EXPECTED TODAY

Victory for the Harpoon Will Bring the Quincy Challenge Cup Back to Quincy

"A Good Boat and Cleverly Sailed By Skipper Who Knows the Bay"

Barring accidents it looks as though today's race for the Quincy Yacht club challenge cup would settle the series this year, and that the Harpoon would win the cup. In fact the Harpoon has won three races, but for the unfortunate circumstance of Saturday's race when on Mr. Adams' initiative the Quincy boat was disqualified.

Unless the Cima, Eel and Sally XI win today they will be out of the series anyway under the rules, for a yacht must win one in four to remain. If there is another race tomorrow it will be between the Harpoon, Ellen and winner of today's race. Should the Ellen win today, it would be two and two, and one more race between these two would decide the possession of the cup. The races start one hour later each day, so that it will be impossible to give today the result of today's race.

At 1 P. M. the wind was very light from the southwest and the start was postponed until 1.30.

At 1.30 there was no improvement in the wind and another postponement until 2 P. M. was agreed upon.

If the boats start they may be unable to finish. It is thought that the light wind may favor he Ellen.

MAY BUILD FOR CHILE

Fore River Asked to Bid on Battleships

The Chilean commission at Washington it is reported will open bids of American builders for two battleships, as well as some torpedo boat destroyers and submarines, all of similar type as the vessels now being built by the Fore River Ship Building Co., and therefore this company is in line, and has an excellent opportunity to secure a battleship contract for one or both vessels.

It is understood that the Chilean government has appropriated $22,500,000 for the new vessels it desires. This sum, however, would not be sufficient to build two dreadnoughts if the size of that being built for the Argentine government, and the other vessels desired.

The Fore River Co., has been notified of the fact that the legation at Washington is to receive bids for the vessels desired, and will undoubtedly submit bids.

At present Chile has but three small battleships, the O'Higgins of 8,500 tons displacement, the Capitan Prat of 6,901 tons displacement, and the Almirante Cochrane a reconstructed vessel of 3,500 tons displacement. The first named was completed in 1898, the second in 1893 and the last in 1900. Eight and nine inch guns are the largest carried.

MILK DEALER FINED $50

State Inspector Found Water in Twenty-One Cans

Edward E. Ford, a well known Milton milk dealer, was fined $50 in court this morning for violation of the milk laws. It appears that several milk men were brought into court in Boston for having watered milk. The yclaimed not to know that the milk was watered, and said that it came from the Ford farm. A State inspector then visited the Ford place and found 21 cans of milk each of which contained a quart of water.

In court this morning Ford claimed that he was innocent, and that if there was water in the milk it was by accident. He said that he used a patent milk cooler that was fed by a hose an dhis only explanation was that there must have been too much force to the water and that it overflowed so much that the waste pipe would not take care of it.

The State inspector said that it was one of the worst cases that he had ever had.

LABOR DAY COMMITTEES

Labor Unions of City to Hold Grand Picnic

Delegates from the local labor unions met Monday night to plan for the grand picnic to be held on Labor day, Sept. 5, by the 28 unions of the city. The picnic will be held at New Downer Landing, and the affair promises to be on a large scale.

The plan, as now outlined, includes the assembling of the unions in City Square in the morning, when accompanied by two bands they will march to the grove. At the grove there will be something doing all day. An orchestra will furnish music for dancing, and there will be a series of field sports including a game of ball for which good prizes will be offered. There will also be boating and bathing, and refreshments will be on sale.

The committees appointed at the meeting Monday evening include:

Executive Committee—William Kelley, chairman; Charles H. Wilkins, treasurer; Charles W. Hanscom, secretary; also one member from each of the local unions of the city.

On Grounds—Charles W. Hanscom, Daniel Shea and William L. O'Brien.

On Music—Charels W. Hanscom, Frank W. Hibbetts and Charles H. Wilkins.

On Refreshments—Alex. M. Smith, Thomas McCarty, B. Russell McQuinn, L. Tenny and Charles H. Wilkins.

On Printing—Charles W. Hanscom, J. M. Elliston, Fred H. Lord, Robert P. McVitie and Ernest Lord. .....

On Parade—Edward F. Brault, John A. Harlin, Barnard Burke, James G. Fraser and G. A. Oster.

On Programs—George McDonald, William Kelley, James F. Mullen, Giovanni Petrilli and Richard Rundell.

On Athletic Sports—Edward J. Townsend, Samuel Young, Joseph Regan, Thomas Ferguson and Thomas McDonald.

On Tickets—James Reid, Charles Hirtle, William Meade, Matthew Swanson and James Connelley.

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

It will be late in the year before any appropriation can be made for new school houses at Montclair and Wollaston ,and this is fortunate, for just at present money is commanding a high rate of interest, and it might be wise to postpone all improvefments which are not urgent. This year the city is paying off $107,375 of its municipal debt, but at the present pace it may authorize twice as much new debt. There is a limit.

There should be a square deal on the part of the city in installing edgestones for sidewalks. If betterments are to be assessed on one street, they should be on all streets. Certainly edgestones should not be set at the city's expense on such a side street as Trafford street when many of our main thoroughfares are with out edgestone. How would it do to assess all the cost of edgestone upon abutters, as in some cities, and push along sidewalk improvement which is much needed. First on Hancock street, Washington, School, Franklin, Independence avenue Water street, Copeland street, Willard street, Beale street, Beach street, Billings road, Squantum street, Newbury avenue, Atlantic street, Sagamore street, Coddington, Canal, Revere road, Chestnt and Granite streets, and then the side streets.

DRIFT OF OPINION.

Young men too often fail to realize that even though they may not have any tangible assets, they are accumulating the equivalent, and in time they may become valuable. We allude to the habits that they form and the style of living they adopt. If they keep their expenses inside their income they may be said to be doing well, and as they are economical or extravagant they may live comfortably or be often distressed. Something more is needed than barely keeping within the income. Provision should be made for saving and that means a careful husbanding of the resources. To do this it is best to avoid extravagance, for indulgence in that direction is pretty sure to lead to further prodigality and wastefulness. The shrewd business man who is looking for a clerk or agent, informs himself as to the habits of his propective employee ,and personal extravagance is an important factor in determining his choice. In deciding whether or not a customer shall be trusted for a loan, bankers base their answer not so much on his personal honesty or his willingness to pay ,as upon the various causes, personal and otherwise, which may interfere with his ability to do so. A young man should open an account with a savings bank as soon as he begins to earn money. The habit of saving will help him to ward off the habits of extravagance that begin to tempt him as soon as he has the means to gratify them. The co-operative banks are great helpers, for when a young man takes a share in them he must keep up the payments. It does not matter so much where he puts his money as it does that he should regularly lay aside a stated portion of his earnings. To form this habit early, means comfort later on.—Lynn Item.

Dr. L. O. Howard, head of the national bureau of entomology, says that, "After a careful survey of the moth-infested territory in and about Boston he feels thoroughly justified in saying that the moth situation is very satisfactory and encouraging to those interested in the problem of suppressing the pests."

He may feel justified in saying this, but it reminds us of the story they tell of John D. Long, Tom Reed and Senator Gorman of Maryland. The three were out walking in Washington one day. Long re marked in course of conversation that he never drank liquor, he never swore and he never used tobacco. Gorman, who was somewhat of a sport and free liver and who had done all these things that Long had not done, said, "I wish I could say that." Tom Reed, in that shrill voice of his, piped up, "Why don't ye?" Now Dr. Howard says he feels justified in saying this. But, if so, "why don't he say it?" Then probably lots of people who were out and about last week would respond that never before had they seen so many brown tails as this year. We sincerely hope that the extermination of tree pests is "progressing favorably," and possibly it is, but just what constitutes favorably it is difficult to say. The conditions are discouraging to most people, more especially to the taxpayers. They are willing to pay almost any price to save their shade trees, but they feel that no progress is being made and that the work is not being done any better than it was under state auspices 15 and 20 years ago.—Salem Evening News.

It is a sad commentary on the business acumen of our New England farmers that buyers for Eastern commission houses have placed orders with apple-growers in the far northwest for 15,000 carloads of fruit, next fall, to be sold in Eastern markets. New England's apple crop ha snever received the attention it should, and neither in the care given to the growing of the fruit, nor picking it for market, has proper attention been paid. The result has been that our home market has been invaded by those growers who have found out that only by scientific methods can the best results be obtained. There is no reason why a single apple should be brought into New England ,and we ought to be able to produce a big surplus to be sold elsewhere. We have the best markets in the world at our doors, and unequalled facilities for export trade ,and land that can be made to produce fruit equal to any raised in Oregon or Washington. It demands scientific methods of growing and packing, but land now almost valueless would become more profitable than the best tillage crops, and with less danger of failure. Some day we shall realize that what is being done i nthe west can be as well done here, and at greater profit.—Old Colony Memorial.

WHY SHE WAS A SUFFRAGETTE.

"So your wife is a Suffragette?"
"Yes," answered Mr. Meekton.
"Why does she want to vote?"
"I don't think Henrietta really desires to vote. She's merely tired of talking to me. She wants a larger and more intelligent audience.

WHEN TO STOP ADVERTISING.

Will a merchant who is wise
Ever cease to advertise?
Yes—when the trees grow upside down;
When the beggar wears a crown;
When ice forms on the sun;
When the sparrow weighs a ton;
When gold dollars get too cheap;
When women secrets keep;
When a fish forgets to swim;
When Satan sings a hymn;
When girls go back on gum;
When the small boy hates a drum;
When no politician schemes;
When mince pie makes pleasant dreams;
When it's fun to break a tooth;
When all lawyers tell the truth;
When cold water makes you drunk;
When you love to smell a skunk;
When a drummer has no brass—
When these things all come to pass,
Then the man that's wise
Will neglect to advertise.

—The city of Trenton, N. J., is doing a good thing for its boys. It has furnished a park, laid off a number of baseball diamonds on it, organized a league ,and supervises contests from the beginning to the end of the season. Upwards of a thousand boys are enrolled ,and the games are hotly contested, but there are always present several persons with authority to preserve order and teach good nature. Not only has the plan worked well for the boys during the past two years, but the contests attract a good many parents to the park. The Newark News says that Trenton has found this the best method of dealing with the question of what shall be done to keep boys off the streets.—Milford Gazette.

MARIN SLAIN IN FIRST BATTLE

Rebel Leader Shot Through the Heart In Honduras

HIS FOLLOWERS DISCONCERTED

Driven Back by Government Troops After Short Period of Fierce Fighting—Plans to Make Surprise Attack on Barracks at Puerto Cortez Fall Through—Insurgent Movement at San Pedro Sula Reported a Failure

Washington, July 27.—Revolutionists have opened fire on the government troops in Honduras, according to advices received here from F. R. McCreery, the United States minister to Honduras.

Twenty minutes after the first discharge of cannon, General Marin, the revolutionist leader, was shot through the heart and instantly killed. His death disconcerted his followers. They became disorganized and soon were driven back by the government troops. The casualties are not known as yet.

The revolutionists made the attack on the barracks at Puerto Cortez. It had been planned to make the attack a surprise, but the government troops were prepared and for fifteen minutes fierce fighting ensued. The government soldiers had the advantage of firing from behind walls and from windows.

It is reported also that the revolutionary movement at San Pedro Sula was suppressed, several persons having been captured, but that four vessels are known to be off the coast of Honduras with a considerable number of men aboard. The plans of the revolutionists are said by Mr. McCreery to be known to the government of President Davila.

INSURRECTION IN CUBA

Government Alarmed Over Outbreak In Province of Santiago

Havana, July 27.—The government is much alarmed over an insurrection at El Caney. Following a midnight council at the palace troops were rushed to the disaffected district. The insurgents are reported as retreating to the hills, pursued by troops already in the province.

As strong military forces are already stationed in the province of Santiago, the dispatch of additional troops thence indicates that the government considers the situation grave.

The immediate cause of the uprising is not known here, but for several days past rumors have circulated through the province of Santiago of impending trouble. The rumors were declared by officials of the government to be without foundation.

Nicaraguan Rebels Successful

Bluefields, July 27.—Prinza Pulco and Rio Grande, which were occupied by the Madriz forces a few weeks ago, have been retaken by the Estrada adherents, without resistance. General Mora reports the capture by Colonel Mancilla of an excellent strategic position before the town of Acoyapa. This was accomplished with small loss to the provisionals, who took a number of cannon, rifles and prisoners.

EPIDEMIC IS FEARED

Deaths From Spinal Disease Worrying People of Springfield

Springfield, Mass., July 27.—Despite the contentions of the state board of health that the spread of anterior poliomyelitis in this part of the state has not developed into an epidemic, this spinal disease continues to make big inroads into families in this city, and now there have been sixty-seven cases reported, with fourteen deaths.

Although the disease confines itself mostly to infants and children, several adults have succumbed to the mysterious sickness. Every house where the disease has been discovered has been placarded and the patient quarantined.

Child Killed by Live Wire

Grafton, O., July 27.—Walter L. Johnson, 4 years old, picked up a live wire in the street near his home and was electrocuted. The wire had been broken by a storm and the boy thought it would make an excellent plaything.

Powerful Guns For Germany

Berlin, July 27.—Germany is reported to be preparing to arm her future Dreadnaughts with 45 centimetre guns (about 13 13-16 inches), which will be more powerful and twice as long lived as the British 13.5 inch guns.

Carpenter at Post of Duty

Tangier, July 27.—Fred W. Carpenter, who relinquished his duties as private secretary to President Taft to succeed H. P. Dodge as American minister to Morocco, arrived here yesterday afternoon.

Great Gambling Raid

Ostend, July 27.—The police raided the rooms of a literary society in the Kursaal and found 500 men and women playing baccarat. The police seized the stakes, amounting to $100,000.

TEACHERS GO WEST.

Positions await several thousand teachers in the public schools in Washington, Oregon, Idaho and Montana, according to Bruce M. Watson, superintendent of schools in Spokane, who says that fully 500 will be required in that city next fall. There were 448 teachers on the city's payrolls last season, at salaries ranging from $55 to $90 a month.

One explanation offered for this unusual demand is that hundreds of teachers have left the profession the last few years to marry, while others entered other lines of work in the Northwest.

"Hundreds of teachers from eastern states come to Washington every year who are qualified to teach when they arrive, having taught in other schools," said Dr. H. W. Allen, chairman of the board of education of Spokane, "and this is true of Oregon, Idaho, Montana and other states in the West. No statistics are available as to the exact number of teachers who obtain positions here each year, but it is probably safe to say that 33 per cent of next year's force in this state will consist of teachers who are from eastern and central states, or of those who have had no previous expe ience.

"Statistics compiled in Iowa show that the teaching force of that state changes every three years, while of the 9,683 teachers receiving certificates in Kansas last year 3,369 had no previous experience. The many new schools opened in Washington and other northwestern states each year, and the added number of teachers needed each succeeding year in all of our rapidly growing cities and towns, causes an unusual demand for recruits to the teaching staffs. Because of the many opportunities in other lines of work a large percentage of teachers leave the profession in this and other states in the Northwest each year than in eastern states."

Americans In First Airship "Tour"

Lucerne, July 27.—Americans bought up every place for the initial trip on the airship which has started a regular daily passenger service from this city. The fixed price of passage is $40. The first flight was a "tour" around Burgenstock mountain, which is about 3000 feet high.

TROOPS GUARDING SECTION OF ROAD

Plot of Would-Be Passenger Train Wreckers Is Foiled

Toronto, July 27.—Brockville continues to be the storm centre of the Grand Trunk strike in Ontario, so far as active interference with the attempts of the company to operate its regural service is concerned.

An attempt was made to derail an east-bound local passenger train about three miles from this place. The spikes had been pulled and the rails loosened for a distance of 100 yards. The engineer of the train received a warning and slowed down enough to pass over the break.

Troops of the permanent forces were sent to Brockville from the garrisons at Toronto and London to replace the militia.

President Garretson of the Order of Railway Conductors and President Lee of the trainmen have arrived here. Both declare that the fight against the Grand Trunk is now on to a finish.

A NERVY JAIL BREAKER

Collects Wages Due Him While Sheriffs Are on His Trail

Belfast, Me., July 27.—Ward Hix, 55 years old, after breaking jail collected a debt due him for wages in Camden, and is still at large, with the sheriffs of several towns watching for him.

The first trace of him since his escape last week was received from John Sanford at Camden, who notified the police that Hix had called and collected $2.25 wages due him.

His boat was found tied to a wharf, but since then no trace of him has been obtained. A reward for his capture has been offered.

Retired Admiral's Forlorn Task

Washington, July 27.—Rear Admiral John A. Rogers, commandant of the Bremerton navy yard at Puget sound, retired yesterday at the statutory age limit of 62 years, and will go to Alaska, to take up the forlorn hunt for his son, who was lost in the wilderness there a year ago.

Owls Win a Point

Boston, July 27.—Judge Morton, of the supreme court, dismissed the proceedings brought against the Supreme Order of Owls of South Bend, Ind., forbidding the defendant to do an insurance business in this state.

Twenty-Five Die In Flood

Budapest, Hungary, July 27.—Twenty-five persons perished in a flood that followed a cloudburst at the town of Dees. The damage to property and crops is heavy.

LARCENY OF BICYCLE

Does Murphy Know About Many That Have Been Stolen?

James Francis Murphy, who was arrested Tuesday afternoon by Officer Goodhue for the larceny of a bicycle from some person unknown, is believed by the police to be the party who is responsible for the large number of bicycles which have been stolen throughout the state during the past few weeks. Up to the present time ,this summer, the police department has received complaints from different parts of the state of bicycles being stolen ,with the request to watch out for them. The total number of wheels missing that have been reported is not far from 200.

Thursday afternoon while in a bicycle store at South Quincy, Murphy came in and offered to sell Officer Goodhue an almost new bicycle for $6. The officer began to question the man who when he learned that he was an officer refused to talk. He, however, said that he was 21 years of age and that he lived on Blue Hill avenue, Mattapan. The police of that section, however, have been unable to find that there was such a man there. From the articles found in his clothing the police believe himto belong in Providence.

The police of Providence and other places where bicycles have been stolen have been notified, and inspectors are expected in Quincy to see if they can place the man.

The wheel which he tried to sell to Officer Goodhue was a black Union numbered 5876 and fitted with imperial tires. He claimed to have owne dthe wheel for four months. He was arraigned in court for larceny from some unknown person and was held in $300 until Aug. 1.

DAKOTA TO SAIL.

It is reported that the North Dakota, built at the Fore River yards in Quincy, will leave the navy yard at Charlestown where she now is, by Aug. 1. The big fighter went into commission April 11, but minor changes have kept her longer than expected.

The submarine Monita also built at Quincy, which was in collision with the gunboat Castine at Provincetown, is still at the Charelstown navy yard and will remain there until after the court of inquiry now investigating the accident.

SURPRISED.

Mrs. Herbert Morton of Billings road, Norfolk Downs, was pleasantly surprised at her new home on Tuesday evening, when members of the Dorcas society of the First Universalist church called. In behalf of those present the president, Mrs. George Sprague presented Mrs. Morton with a picture. Refreshments were served and a most pleasant evening was passed.

Q. Y. C. LADIES' DAY.

The Quincy Yacht club has a pleasant day with light westerly wind for Ladies' day. No shower is predicted, but clouds gathered early in the afternoon. Extra cars were run between 1 and 2 o'clock to accommodate the large number of fair guests of the club.

SONS OF ST. GEORGE.

None of the officers elect of the Grand Lodge of the Order of St. George hail from Quincy. At the annual session on Tuesday, George T. Watts of Worcester was elected grand president and Hammond Asquith of Fitchburg, grand vice president. The steamer Monitor took the delegates down the harbor in the afternoon. J. W. Palmer was toastmaster at the banquet. The order includes 500 lodges and 50,000 members, nearly 10,000 of whom are in Massachusetts.

A paper in the home is worth five on the street that is the reason the Quincy Daily Ledger is so popular with advertisers. It goes right in to the home every day, year in and year out, and is read by all the family. Largest circulation in the city (in the home or on the street) and reaches all classes. Is newsy and reliable. Are you reading it every day?

7.23 and running express to Wollaston be stopped at Quincy.

That the train leaving Quincy at 9.06 and running express to Boston from Wollaston be stopped at Quincy Adams.

That the train leaving Quincy at 1.14 and running express from Wollaston be stopped at Quincy Adams.

That the train leaving Braintree at 7.04 in the evening and stopping at Atlantic and Neponset only, be stopped at Quincy.

When the committee got down to asking trains for the workmen for the Boston Gear Works and the employes of the foundries at Norfolk Downs, they were informed that a previous petition on the same matter had come before them and had been attended to.

The committee also ask that the train leaving West Quincy for Boston at 6.25 in the morning be stopped at South Boston and that the train leaving West Quincy at 7.55 be stopped at Atlantic. The South Boston stop was asked for because the committee found that many men living in Quincy and West Quincy, also in East Milton, who work in the big lumber districts and plaining mills of the south end, have had to go to Boston, up to within a few days at least, and then ride back to South Boston.

On the subject of outward trains the committee asked that the 12.15 train be stopped at South Boston on Saturdays.

That the 5.13 evening train be stopped at South Boston.

That the 5.12 which leaves Boston on evenings, except Saturdays, be stopped at Wollaston for the benefit of the girls at the Tubular Rivet Works.

That the 6.15 which runs every evening but Saturdays, be stopped at South Boston.

That the train that leaves Boston at 6.30 be stopped at Quincy Adams.

That the 8.15 train be stopped at Quincy.

That the road give its careful consideration in making up its winter schedule at least to a train that would leave Boston for Quincy and way stations at midnight.

The committee had all these changes mapped out in a comprehensive manner so that Mr. Call could follow the train movements on his train sheet, and when the committee had concluded he told the members that they had come before him much better equipped with just the information he wanted to know than any other committee had ever done. He said that he would take up the matter with the head transportation office immediately and said a reply ought to come back in regard to some of the trains asked for, within five days. If all the trains could not be granted, he said he would keep the changes in mind when the fall schedule was put into force Sept. 17.

This report was accepted by the committee as a whole and the meeting adjourned until the regular meeting of the Board of Trade.

TODAY'S COURT.

Robert O'Neil was sentenced to three months in the house of correction for rdrunkenness at Milton.

Edward E. Ford of Milton was fined $50 for violation of the milk law.

James Francis Murphy was arraigned fo rthe larceny of a bicycle from some person unknown, at Quincy, and was held in $300 until August 1.

Frederick C. McQuarrie was fined $15 for drunkenness at Quincy. Sentence suspended until Dec. 1.

Mrs. Frederick C. McQuarrie was arraigned for disturbing the peace at Quincy. Case continued until Monday.

SPANISH WAR VETERANS.

The annual encampment of the Spanish War Veterans will be held in Denver, August 29, 30 and 31 instead of the following week, as originally planned. The change was made at the request of the Denver Board of Trade, chamber of commerce and other organizations instrumental in bringing the encampment to Colorado.

—Mayor Seidel of Milwaukee has discovered that for years the street car company has been neglecting to pay the $15 per year which a city ordinance requires for each car it operates. The company claims that the ordinance was repealed, but in accordance with his belief that it is still in force, and that the company owes the city about $72,000 in back fees, the Mayor has adopted the most effective means of dealing with corporations ,and has a warrant out for the arrest of the president of the road.—Boston Common.

Captain Bunn

He Made a Change In the Name of His Boat.

By CLARISSA MACKIE.

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

Captain Benjamin Bunn scrubbed down the deck of the Lovely Eva, opened the cabin windows wide to the fresh breeze blowing across the bay, hustled the coffeepot on to the little stove in the spotless galley, planted the frying pan beside it and then went and sat on the bowsprit and waited for the baker's boy to bring the breakfast rolls.

The Lovely Eva lay in wooden cradles just above high water mark. Salt grass and the white sandy beach formed her garden plot. Beach plum trees, pungent bayberry bushes and, in season, the tall pink marshmallow clustered about her black hull.

Above deck all was shipshape. In summer comfortable chairs and a table under a sail awning made an open air lounging place for Captain Bunn and his associates. In winter they gathered about a glowing stove in the cozy cabin.

While the coffee frothed in the pot and the bacon sizzled crisply in the pan in the galley, wheels crunched down the beach road, and the baker's wagon rolled down on the sand, turned and went helter skelter back again under the bow of the Lovely Eva.

Several hours passed in this congenial labor, while the sun mounted higher and the beach became a blazing white stretch. A woman stepped slowly along the sand holding her lilac print skirts primly above her neat shoe tops. She wore a wide lilac sunbonnet, and her bright brown hair and fresh, youthfully pretty face were framed in it like a pleasant picture. Her brown eyes changed expression as she came upon the busy captain in the lee of the sailboat.

"Howdy—howdy, Miss Willie?" chirruped the captain delightedly. "Tell me how she looks—fine as silk, eh?"

"It looks beautiful, captain," said Miss Willie Deems critically. "It shines like a frosted cake. What have you named her?"

"Nothing—as yet," returned the captain uneasily.

"What are you going to name her?" insisted Miss Willie.

"I haven't thought of a name. I've been trying to think of something pretty."

"I must say I'm interested in what you're going to call your new boat," said Miss Willie. The captain's blue eyes met hers in puzzled inquiry. "I dare say—I dare say!" he murmured, looking away from the lilac sunbonnet. "I never was good at naming a boat, Miss Willie!"

Miss Willie turned slightly and surveyed the nautical home of Captain Bunn with a quizzical eye that lingered on the name painted in small gilt letters under the bow. "So long as you've named the sloop after Eva Raymond you ought to name the sailboat after somebody else." Her gaze came back to the captain's reddening face.

The color spread under the gray whiskers, mounted to his forehead and disappeared under the peak of his white duck cap. He removed his pipe and waved it fiercely in the air, his eyes blazing ominously.

"Eva Raymond!" he snorted. "Who said I'd named the sloop after her?"

"She said so," returned Miss Willie complacently, "and Evangeline Cook says it was named after her, and Evalina Taylor says it was named for her; they all three fit it out five years ago at the missionary society, and they're not through talking about the mean things that was passed to and fro to this very day. They hate each other like poison, all on account of the naming of that sloop!"

"That sloop's been named Lovely Eva for the last ten years."

"But what you going to name the new boat?" asked Miss Willie sweetly.

Captain Bunn tramped through the sand until he stood beside Miss Willie. "I've been wanting to tell you something for a long time, Miss Willie. I thought maybe I could say it better out on the bay with a good stiff breeze filling the sails and the water running under the keel of the new boat. I've thought of a name for the boat, but I wanted you to suggest it." He was looking very red and uncomfortable indeed, but his square shoulders were set youthfully erect, and his handsome face was deadly in earnest.

Miss Willie saw all this through her long eyelashes, and her voice was a little shaky as she replied: "Seeing as the big boat is called Lovely Eva, why don't you name the new one Beautiful Eva? And the skiff you can call Little Eva. Then the whole three would be satisfied. That's my suggestion."

The captain stared dazedly. "Then you believe I named the big boat after one of them women?" he demanded.

"I haven't thought much about it," lied Miss Willie carelessly. "They're your boats. Name 'em to suit yourself."

"All right, Miss Willie. Then I shall call the new boat Wilhelmina after you, because, you know, Miss Willie, I was going to ask you to—marry me and come and live here with me forever!" The captain's bold hand rested on Miss Willie's slender shoulder with a caressing touch.

Her face grew pink and then paled wistfully. What a refuge the quaint home on the beach would be to her, the village dressmaker, whose days were spent in going from house to house and whose ears were wearied with much gossip and whose eyes were tired of flashing needles and the whir of the sewing machine! What a blissfully happy existence would be hers in the snug shelter of the sloop, with its perfect arrangements for housekeeping, the indulgent captain for a husband! And—here Miss Willie's head drooped—there was nobody quite so lovable as Captain Benjamin Bunn! That was Miss Willie's carefully guarded secret, that and her jealousy of the three Evas of Little River village. Her face grew quite pale again as she shook off Captain Bunn's hand.

"I couldn't live in a house or a boat that was named after another woman. You can see how they'd all talk, especially if they didn't marry you themselves," she said resolutely.

"Marry me themselves!" roared the captain. "You don't mean them three women wanted to marry me?"

Miss Willie nodded proudly. "Every one of 'em has laid claim to you ever since you sailed into harbor with 'Lovely Eva' painted on the sloop."

"She had that name when I bought her down to Rockport. What can I do? It's bad luck to change a boat's name," said the captain helplessly.

"Perhaps you'll think it good luck not to change it," retorted Miss Willie stiffly, once more turning away. And this time Captain Bunn did not detain her.

He watched her with grave blue eyes from which all the happiness had fled until her lilac skirts had fluttered around a pile of great bowlders, and then, with a long sigh, he picked up his painting materials and trudged up to the sloop.

The result of a long meditation was visible the next morning when Captain Bunn rigged a small scaffolding and swung himself to a seat under the bow of the Lovely Eva. Cheerfully he worked, and he sang lustily the chorus of "Ben Bowline." It was a short job, but one requiring delicacy and skill. When it was finished he performed a similar operation on the port bow and then hurried to the stern, where he stood on a barrel and carefully repainted the worn letters that announced the name of "Lovely Eva, Little River."

Then he flew down to the sailboat and with loving care lettered the name of "Wilhelmina B." on stem and stern. He had long finished his work and was fresh and clean in a suit of white drill when a man came along the beach from Little Village. He was the editor of the weekly newspaper.

"Good morning, captain," he hailed cheerily. "I received your message about the new boat, so I've come down to have a look at her. A beauty, isn't she?" He stood still and examined the boat with a critical eye.

"I think she's pretty fine, Mr. Brown. I'll take you out tomorrow. Perhaps we can get a few blues outside, eh?" The captain beamed happily. Everything would be well now, and in the distance he could see Miss Willie Deems picking her way down the beach toward him.

"Makes the old sloop look some shabby," he remarked, calling attention to the boat on the sand above them.

Mr. Brown turned and looked at the sloop. He squinted long at her and then went up closer. "What's the matter with her name, captain? I thought"— He turned a puzzled look on the captain, who was watching him with twinkling eyes.

"What is the matter with her name?" repeated Captain Bunn innocently.

"Why, I thought her name was Lovely Eva, but, by George, it's Lonely Eva!"

The captain laughed. "It's always been Lonely Eva—queer name, isn't it?—but somehow the first stroke of the 'n' wore off and left a 'v.' It's never been painted back again till awhile ago. You see, that's her real name."

"Now that is quite a joke," mused Mr. Brown, with eyes mirthfully reminiscent of two spinsters and an ambitious widow who laid claim to the name of Eva. "I wonder if you'd object to my writing that up for the paper. I never heard the sloop called anything except Lovely, although I guess it's been mighty lonely sometimes." He laughed at his own joke.

"Write her up; write her up!" agreed the captain heartily, with a wave of his hand to the departing editor.

He saw Mr. Brown greet Miss Willie with great deference, and then he stood quietly waiting until she reached his side.

"I expect I'm acting like a fool over the name of that boat," she began hurriedly, when Captain Bunn's pointing finger brought her to an abrupt pause.

"Do you think any woman 'll ever lay claim to having that sloop named after her, Willie? Any woman in Little River going to acknowledge her name to be Lonely Eva? Not on your life!"

Miss Willie saw and blushed and then laughed merrily. Then her face sobered. "I suppose it might seem an awful mean thing if you had ever been—had ever shown them any attention," she hesitated.

"I never did," asserted the captain stoutly. "Why, Willie, I never even called to see one of 'em. It lets everybody out of it very neatly, I think. And now how do you like the name of the new boat?" He turned her about, and she looked at it in silence for a few moments.

Then happy tears filled her eyes. "Why—why have you named her Wilhelmina B., captain?" she asked, although she knew the answer.

"It means Wilhelmina Bunn. That's to be your name after this, eh, dear?"

In the shadow of the Lonely Eva Captain Bunn leaned over and kissed Miss Willie on the lips.

OUTING OF GRANITE MEN

Will Go to Bass Point for Dinner and Sports

The annual summer outing of the Granite Manufacturers' Association will be held at Bass Point on Saturday, Aug. 6. The party will go by boat from Boston, and at noon a shore dinner will be served at the Bass Point House. During the morning there will be a game of ball between the married and single men and in the afternoon a series of field sports.

QUEER FREAKS OF LIGHTNING

Struck House at Great Hill Unknown to Inmates

The thunder storm Monday afternoon did more damage in Quincy than was at first reported. At Houghs Neck the house of H. W. Robbins on Great Hill was struck, and considerable damage done. The bolt went in through a window when it skylarked around one of the rooms, splintering some of the furniture and then passing out through the roof.

There were several ladies in the house, and a few minutes before, one of them had remarked that she wondered how it would seem if a bolt of lightning should come through the window. They were not aware when the bolt came in, however, and the first they knew of it was when a neighbor came rushing in to say that he had seen the bolt go out of the roof, and thought perhaps it had set the house on fire. Fortunately, however, no fire followed the bolt. Considerable damage was done to the furniture and building. Two boys who sat on a piazza of a house opposite were knocked down, but they escaped injury .

A large tree on Squantum street, Atlantic, was also struck and splintered.

THE BATES ASSOCIATION.

The fourth annual meeting of the Bates Association will be held at the First Parish church, Cohasset, August 5. Excursions will be taken in the morning to points of historical and scenic interest. The annual meeting will be held at 2 P. M. at the old church on the common. Besides the regular business of the association, addresses will be given on subjects of interest. The official photograph will be taken, weather permitting, before the opening of the meeting. No official dinner will be held, but meals and rooms may be had on application to Frank Kane, "Hillside Inn," Cohasset.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

SAVES MEN AND SHIPPING

Naval Tar Performs Perilous Feat on Lighter Blazing Like Furnace

New York, July 27.—Heroism of a sailor of the United States naval supply ship Culgoa, who risked his life aboard a drifting lighter, which had been turned into a veritable furnace by the flames from 1800 pounds of blazing smokeless powder, and made fast a line, prevented the destruction of much shipping, with attendant loss of many lives, and thrilled hundreds of veteran seamen who witnessed the act.

Although the seaman dislocated an arm by slipping and falling on the deck of the lighter as he made a flying leap from a speeding launch, he hauled the hawser aboard and secured it, making it possible to drag the floating firebrand out of the danger zone.

The powder had just been transferred from the Culgoa to the lighter off the Brooklyn navy yard when it caught fire.

VAHEY OR FOSS?

Both Will Soon Submit Estimates of Their Respective Strengths

Boston, July 27.—Members of the Democratic state committee say the stories to the effect that they are secretly aiding Eugene N. Foss to receive the Democratic nomination for governor of Masaschusetts are untrue.

They say that James H. Vahey and Foss both feel that the man best fitted to lead the Democratic party in this state should be given the nomination. Both men, it is said, have forgottten personal ambitions. Both men will carry on their preliminary campaigns and submit estimates of their respective strengths as candidates. If, at a meeting of the two, one of them does not withdraw in the other's favor, the matter will have to come before other leaders.

CARRIES $1,500,000 LIFE INSURANCE

Head of Cement Companies the Subject of Record Policy

Spokane, Wash., July 27.—An insurance agent of Kansas City, who claims a record by writing a policy for $1,500,000 on the life of George E. Nicholson, head of eight cement companies in western and eastern states with headquarters in Kansas City, has come to Spokane to broker part of that amount among insurance concerns in this city and other parts of the Pacific northwest.

He says that the policy is to be carried by forty-six companies, $250,000, the largest amount assigned to one concern, being underwritten in New York. He also says that Nicholson was examined 108 times, by two physicians on each occasion, and seventy-one physicians were employed to make the physical tests.

The premium is a little more than $60,000; and because Nicholson practically holds the future of the cement business in his hands, the directors of the eight companies, of which he is head, found it advisable and necessary to insure his life for $1,500,000. Nicholson is 49 years of age and is in perfect health.

RIVET LOSES HIS APPEAL

But Lowell Murderer Has Still Another Day on Earth

Boston, July 27.—Napoleon J. Rivet, the Lowell murderer, although unable to obtain a commutation of sentence by the appeal of his attorney with new evidence to Acting Governor Frothingham yesterday, was able to obtain another day of life.

Preparations had been made to electrocute Rivet Tuesday morning, but Warden Bridges, hearing that an appeal was to be made to Lieutenant Governor Frothingham, stayed the execution.

The outcome of the hearing granted to Attorney Bent for Rivet at the state house was learned too late to summon witnesses for the execution this morning.

USE OF HYDRANT HOSE

Urged by Humane Society to Save Lives of Horses and Dogs

Pittsburg, July 27.—The Western Pennsylvania Humane society urges that the city provide hydrants in downtown streets with spraying hose to save dying horses.

One hundred and fifty horses, and probably three times as many dogs, have died of heat in Pittsburg's streets this season, according to the society's estimates, and nearly all might have been saved if sprays of cold water had been in readiness.

TREES' "BROTHER" OPENS CRUSADE

John Davey Starts National Campaign Against Sparrow.

FIGHTING BAND ORGANIZED.

Elimination of Song Birds and Death to Trees Through Increase of Insects and English Pest Predicted by Ohioan, Who Views Forests as Akin to Human Race.

John Davey of Kent, O., "brother of the trees," formally launched his nation wide crusade against the pestiferous English sparrow at Dayton, O., recently in the organization of the Bird and Tree band and the adoption of the following resolutions:

Inasmuch as the preservation of our trees and all vegetation depends on the services of our native birds; and,

Whereas, The rapid disappearance of our song birds is accompanied by an alarming prevalence of disease among the trees; and,

Whereas, This decrease of numbers of our coworkers, the native birds, is due largely to the pugnacious and murderous habits of the English house sparrow,

We, the undersigned, do pledge ourselves to use every means to encourage the restoration and preservation of our native birds and to destroy the crow, English sparrow and all other foes of our birds to the end that vegetation may be preserved to the use of man and beast.

Predicts Song Birds' End.

Mr. Davey asserts that unless the robber sparrows are exterminated speedily the song birds will soon be driven from human habitations and will remain in the depths of the forests, leaving the insects and the sparrows a clear, treeless field in a very few years.

Mr. Davey looks upon a tree and talks of it as a living creature. An extract from his Dayton remarks gives an idea of his realization of the actual life of the tree, as follows:

"I affirm a threefold proposition:

"First.—All life is divine, for the simple reason that nothing but Divine power can produce it.

"Second.—In all the realms of life the laws of God are substantially one, with slight modifications in their application.

"Third.—The life of the tree is as real as the life of the human body, and this is seen under the microscope, where the protoplasmic activities are seen to be conducted with just as much inherent intelligence in cell building as in the human body.

"This world can never be what its Creator designed it to be until we lay aside all such conceptions as things being run by luck or chance. The normal condition of everything is health. If man, animal or plant is suffering some law has been violated.

Mililennium Is Dawn of Power.

"Man (a creature in the image of God) was created to 'have dominion' over the remainder of creation, and just as soon as we learn that it is our high calling to destroy the useless or lower forms that the higher may hold sway then under sanctified human intellect the millennium will begin to dawn.

"What people see and talk about the tree—i. e., the visible part—is only secondary. The invisible portion—the roots—is the all essential consideration."

Hence Mr. Davey considers "root action" first and foremost in all his scientific work.

MILK BOSSY BY MACHINE.

Washington's Trousered Dairymaids Return to Peach Packing.

One of the model dairies in the state of Washington, located near North Yakima, has received a shipment of modern milking machines, and fifty white trousered girls are thrown out of employment.

The girls had been doing the milking for several years, having displaced Japanese, who were found to be unhygienic. Each girl wore a tight fitting pair of trousers and a short sleeved jacket to match, which garments were boiled and starched each day by the farm laundress.

Each cow is bathed in warm water and soap twice daily, combed and brushed. The floors of the dairy barn are scrubbed many times daily.

The newly acquired machines are designed to draw the milk by a pumping method, power for which is supplied by a gasoline engine. It is claimed one machine will be able to do the work of ten girls, and do it in a more hygienic way. The milking girls have donned skirts and are employed in packing peaches and pears in the irrigated orchards near by.

Sandpaper Made of Glass.

Old fashioned sandpaper was made with selected sand—hence the name. What is known as sandpaper now is all made with crushed glass and is really much better than the old time product. Old bottles, etc., are first crushed and then ground, and the various grades of fineness are secured by sifting. To get the powder on the paper hot glue is applied as it passes through a machine and the powdered glass is sifted on at the same time. Then a wooden roller passes over the sheet and presses down and smooths the sand.

House Increase 300,000 Yearly.

Insurance statistics show that it requires 300,000 new houses each year to accommodate the increase in population of the United States and 80,000 more to replace fire losses.

WON'T TALK POLITICS

Taft Puts Himself on Record In a Little Speech In Maine

Rockland, Me., July 27.—President Taft put himself on record as subscribing absolutely to the principle that a President of the United States should not talk politics. He landed at Rockland to make the last speech of his ten-days' cruise. Maine is seething with politics just now. The elections are to be held Sept. 12.

Mr. Taft spoke from his automobile in which he had taken a fifty-minute tour of the city and its suburbs. The harbor at Rockland, the big granite breakwater and the ships behind it, had brought ship subsidy to his mind.

"They suggest to me," he said, "the importance of our coastwise shipping. They also suggest the importance of improving our foreign shipping. All of which brings me so near to politics that I merely suggest it and leave it with you."

The president's sentiment called out a great cheer from the crowd.

MARSHALL IS HELD

Charged With Aiding In Wreck of National City Bank

Boston, July 27.—The real John R. Marshall, whose name was assumed at will by numerous members of the faro bunco syndicate that caused the downfall of George W. Coleman and the wrecking of the National City bank of Cambridge, was brought before Judge Dodge of the federal court and held in $10,000 bail for a hearing on Thursday. Marshall was locked up in the Charles street jail.

Marshall is charged with conspiring with Martin Walsh and William J. (Big Bill) Keliher to aid and abet Coleman in the looting of the Cambridge bank.

Marshall's bride, who was Miss Eleanor Holiday, and who figured in the "Big Bill" Kellher trial under the name of Mrs. Nellie Penn, came with her husband. The bride said that she would stick to her husband through thick and thin and that they had no fear of the outcome of the case.

SUGGESTIONS FOR LIMITED ARMAMENT

Lead Head of German Navy to Resign His Post

Berlin, July 27.—The sensation of the day in Germany is the announcement of the approaching retirement of Admiral von Tirpitz, secretary of state for the German navy. This decision is not due to the fact that he is tired of office, but the direct causes are recent speeches in the British house of commons.

These speeches had the effect of calling forth in Germany a current of public opinion favorable to the idea of the limitation of naval armaments. Von Tirpitz, however, is unable to in any way approve this idea, and deems it incompatible to his duty to continue in office if such ideas prevail, which are completely in conflict with his convictions.

RULING HITS LABOR UNION

Business Firm Not Obliged to Treat With It, Says Superior Court Judge

Boston, July 27.—"In this country a man has the right to work for whomever he wishes at whatever wage he wishes and no other man has a right to interfere with him. A man must support his family and he has the right to work for as low a wage as he desires."

This declaration was made in the Suffolk county superior court by Judge Richardson, at the hearing on the petition of Folsom & Sunergren, asking for an injunction restraining the officers and members of the Boston Photo-Engravers union No. 3 from interfering with, intimidating or coercing their employes.

"A business firm is not obliged to treat with a union," said the judge.

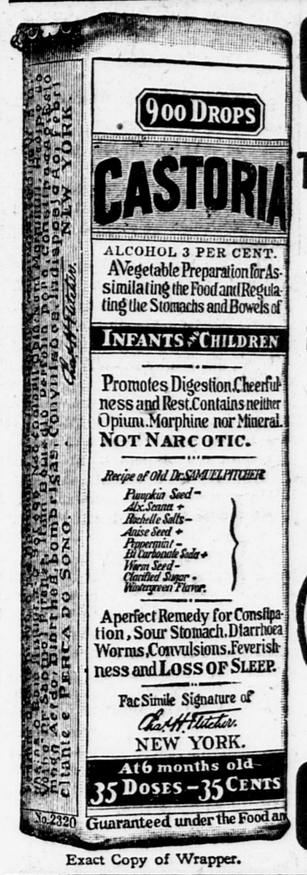

COOK ON HIS WAY HOME

Will Again Lay His North Pole Claims Before American Public

New York, July 27.—James Osborn, close friend of Frederick A. Cook, the discredited polar explorer, announces that the rival of Commander Peary in the North Pole chase is near New York and that a defensive magazine campaign in his behalf will be started at once.

Dr. Cook, Osborn says, expects his records from Etah almost any day, and as soon as they arrive he will come out of hiding and lay his claims before the American public, once more defying Peary and charging that Peary did not reach the Pole.

WAKE UP!!
MR. MERCHANT

When business is dull wake it up by having a genuine bargain sale!

There are goods on your shelves and in your back room, perhaps a little shopworn or slightly soiled that should be turned into cash. Move them by reducing the price, and advertise the fact.

Bargain sales should be so conducted that many of the purchasers will become regular customers—otherwise little good comes of offering reduced prices.

The bargain sale gives you the opportunity to dispose of slow selling goods at cost and attracts attention to your store.

In this city of 33000 people there are hundreds that spend their weekly pay in the big city. These people have not acquired the habit of coming your way. Get them into the habit by using the advertising columns of the LEDGER.

To make a success of his business, a merchant must advertise and advertise effectively.

The Circulation of the Ledger is increasing every day

It goes into the homes of the buying public and is there read by the husband, the wife, the children and the servant.

¶ Placing your ad. in the LEDGER is part of the effective advertising. The other part is to have it written by an advertising specialist.

¶ This is an age of specialists. When you have an advertisement to write, why not call in an advertising specialist, thus saving time, trouble and money.

¶ The advertising rates of the LEDGER are within your reach. Its columns preach "trade in Quincy," and now Mr. Merchant it is up to you to keep these 33000 people fully informed in regard to your store and your goods, and keep Quincy money in Quincy.

The man who wrote this "ad" would like the business of writing yours

WILLIAM J. BRYAN

The "Peerless Leader" Receives a Severe Jolt

SEVERE BLOW DEALT BRYAN

Long Leadership In Nebraska Is Practically at an End

CHEERS GREET HIS DEFEAT

Friends Cry "Gag Rule," While Opponents Declare That "Individual Rule" Must Not Prevail In Democratic Platform Convention—Garfield the Probable Winner In Ohio Gubernatorial Fight

Grand Island Neb., July 27.—Amid a tumult of cheers from the former followers of William J. Bryan, Permanent Chairman Smyth of the Democratic platform convention read the result of a test vote of the gathering practically taking from Bryan the Democratic leadership of Nebraska, which he has maintained for twenty years.

The vote came on a motion made by Congressman Hitchcock, a candidate for the senatorial nomination, and in effect was to eliminate the introduction of platform planks with accompanying speeches unless submitted as a section of the majority or minority report of the committee on resolutions.

Mr. Bryan, seated as a member of the Lancaster county delegation, was upon his feet at once with a protest, and proffered an amendment that would modify the original motion.

A dozen delegates made as many motions and heated speeches on the subject, the Bryan adherents de- "gag rule," and their opponents as- "gag rule," and their opponents asserting that "individual rule" must not prevail in the convention.

Chairman Smyth ordered a rollcall on the amendment and the gathering was silent as the vote of the counties that would determine the strength of Bryan was called.

When two-thirds had been called foes of Bryan realized that he was defeated and a wave of cheers that drowned the rollcall began.

As Smyth finally read the result, 465 against the amendment and 394 in favor of it, the delegates sounded a fresh volume of cheers that seemed to indicate their relief from the uncertainty that has existed as to the strength which Bryan might develop in the convention. The original motion of Hitchcock then was adopted.

While the committee on resolutions was drafting its report, Governor Shallenberger and Mayor Dahlman of Omaha, rivals for the nomination of governor, addressed the convention and hurled verbal shafts at each other.

The Omaha mayor said he welcomed a fight in the convention, as a trip of several hundred miles to a harmonious gathering was not worth the expenditure of carfare.

GARFIELD BOOM GROWS

May Be Nominated For Governor of Ohio on the First Ballot

Columbus, O., July 27.—With the convention of Ohio Republicans formally opened and the balloting for the governorship to start today, the situation looks favorable for the candidacy of James R. Garfield of Mentor, brother of President Garfield of Williams college.

His boom, which took form here late Monday night, and which has been spreading continually ever since, has made remarkable progress. It has grown wider and wider in its influence, until the leaders of several factions of the party have given up hope of subduing it, and it is freely predicted that Garfield will win, possibly on the first ballot.

A spirited defense of the Payne tariff law was made by Congressman Longworth in his speech as chairman of the Republican state committee here. Longworth declared that the tariff was the issue in the coming Ohio gubernatorial campaign.

SYNOPSIS

CHAPTER XVI.

A CONDITION.

LORD RONSDALE seemed almost to forget caution—almost, but not quite. Perhaps he was deterred by the look on John Steele's face—scornful, mocking, as if half inviting him to cast all prudence to the winds. This bit of evidence that he had not calculated upon—it was hard to give it up, but no other course remained. Besides, another—Gillett—knew of its existence. Lord Ronsdale felt he could not depend on that person in an emergency of this kind.

The nobleman moved toward the desk. The paper fluttered from his cold fingers. When once more John Steele buttoned his coat the affidavit had again found lodgment in his waistcoat pocket.

What John Steele said was for Lord Ronsdale alone. After Gillett had gone he laid down a condition.

"And if I refuse to let you dictate in a purely private concern?" Lord Ronsdale, white with passion, had answered.

"The end will be the same for you. As matters stand Sir Charles no doubt thinks still that you would make a desirable parti for his niece. His wife, Lady Wray, unquestionably shares that opinion. Their combined influence might in time prevail and Jocelyn Wray yield to their united wishes. This misfortune," with cutting deadliness of tone, "it is obvious must be averted. You will consent to withdraw all pretensions in that direction or you will force me to make public this paper. A full exposition of the case I think would materially affect Sir Charles and Lady Wray's attitude as to the desirability of an alliance between their family and yours."

"And yourself? You forget," with a sneer, "how it would affect you!"

"Myself!" John Steele laughed. "You fool! Do you imagine I would hesitate for that reason?"

"You love her yourself, and"—

John Steele stepped toward him. "Stop on— I have once been almost on the point of killing you tonight. Don't"— He broke off. "The condition? You consent or not?"

"And if I—you would"—

"Keep your cowardly secret? Yes!" Lord Ronsdale nodded his head slowly, indicating that he would cease his attentions to Jocelyn Wray. And as he did so a venomous expression came into his face.

A day a month after that night in Lord Ronsdale's rooms Captain Forsythe, calling on John Steele, found himself admitted to the sitting room. The rooms were partly dismantled, a number of boxes littering the place indicating preparations to move. John Steele came in. His face was paler than it had been—thinner like that of a man who had recently suffered some severe illness.

A short time passed. They talked on various topics. The military man puffed more quickly. It seemed the irony of fate or friendship that now that he was just beginning to get better acquainted with Steele the latter should inconsistently determine to leave London.

"Anything I can do for you when you're away?" began Captain Forsythe. "Command me if there is. Needn't say"—

"There's only one thing," John Steele looked at him. His voice was steady, quiet. "And we've already spoken about that. You will let me know if Ronsdale doesn't keep to the letter of the condition?"

"Very well." Captain Forsythe's expression changed slightly, but the other did not appear to notice.

"I shall leave with you certified copies of all the papers," said Steele in a short, matter of fact tone. "These, together with the one you furnished me, are absolutely conclusive."

"The one I furnished you!" Captain Forsythe rested his chin on the knob of his stick. "Odd about that, wasn't it—that the day in the library at Strathorn House, when I was about to tell you how I had better success the second time I visited the landlady, we should have been interrupted? And," looking at the other furtively, "by Jocelyn Wray." Steele did not answer. "If I had only seen the drift of your inquiries, had detected more than a mere perfunctory interest. With the confession given me on her deathbed by the landlady that she had testified falsely to protect her good for nothing son and acknowledging that another whom she did not know by name, but whom she described minutely, had entered the house on the fatal night—with this confession in your hands a world of trouble might have been saved. As it is," he ended half ruefully, "you have found me most unlike the proverbial friend in need, who is"—

"A friend indeed," said John Steele, placing a hand on the other's shoulder while a smile somewhat constrained lighted his face for a moment, "who at once rose to the occasion, hastened to London on the receipt of a letter that was surely a test of friendship"—

"Oh, I don't know about that!" quickly. "Test of friendship, indeed!" Captain Forsythe looked slightly embarrassed beneath the keen searching eyes. "Don't think of it, or— Besides," brightening, "I had to come Telegram from Miss Wray, don't you know."

"Miss Wray!" Steele's hand fell suddenly to his side. He looked with abrupt, swift inquiry at the other.

Captain Forsythe bit his lips. "By Jove, forgot!" he murmured. "Was not to say anything about that."

"However, as you have"— John Steele regarded him steadily. "You received a telegram from"—

"At the same time that your letter intercepted me at Brighton."

"Asking you to return to London?"

"Exactly. She—wanted to see me."

"About?" John Steele's eyes asked a question. The other nodded. "Of course. Not difficult to understand Her desire to hush up the affair. Her fear," with a short laugh, "lest the scandal become known. A guest at Strathorn House had been"—

"I don't think it was for"—

"You found out," shortly, "that she too, had learned—knew"—

"Yes; she made me aware of that at once when she came to see me with Sir Charles. It was she sent your luggage"—

"Sir Charles? Then he also"—

"No. You—you need feel no apprehension on that score." A peculiar expression came into the other's glance "You see, his niece told him it was not her secret; asked him to help her, to trust her. Never was a man more perplexed, but he kept the word he gave her on leaving for London and forbore to question her. Even when they drove through London in the fog"—

"Yes, yes. I know"—

"You? How"—

John Steele seemed not to hear. "She saw you that night?"

"She did, alone in the garden of Rosemary Villa. Sir Charles behaved splendidly. 'All right, my dear. Some day you'll tell me, perhaps,' he said to her. 'Meanwhile I'll possess my soul in patience.' So while he smoked in the cab we talked it over."

"Well?" John Steele said shortly "And the upshot of it all was"—

"She suggested my going to Lord Ronsdale."

"To invoke his assistance, perhaps!" Steele once more laughed. "As an old friend!" Captain Forsythe started to speak. The other went on, "Well, we'll keep his secret as long as he keeps his compact."

"But"—

"I promised. What does it matter! Sir Charles may be disappointed at not being able to bring about— But for her sake—that is the main consideration."

"And you, the question of your innocence—to her?" Forsythe looked at him narrowly, smiled slightly to himself.

"Is—inconsequential! The main point is—the Frisco Pet is dead. Gillett won't speak. You won't. Lord Ronsdale can't. Another to whom I am about to tell the story will, I am sure, be equally silent."

"Another?"

John Steele smiled. "Can you think of no one to whom I am bound to tell the truth, the whole truth? Who extended me his hand in friendship, invited me to his home? Of course it would be easier to go without speaking. It is rather difficult to own that one has accepted a man's hospitality, stepped beneath his roof and sat at his board as—not to mince words—an impostor. I could have delegated you—to tell him all, but that wouldn't do. It is probably a part of the old, old debt, but I must meet him face to face. So I have sent for"—

A bell rang. A servant opened the door of the library. Sir Charles Wray walked in.

Below, in the cab, Jocelyn waited. Her pale face expressed restlessness. She held in her hand a bit of crumpled paper. It was John Steele's note to Sir Charles asking him to call, stating nothing beyond a mere perfunctory request to that end, giving no reason for his wish to see him.

ABSOLUTELY MODEL YOUTH

Wider Was Thus Regarded by Russo-Chinese Bank Officials

ACCUSED OF $600,000 THEFT

Clerk Who Received $25 a Week Does Not Care to Occupy Cell In Hot Weather—He Intends to Enjoy Himself For the Present and Will Return to New York In the Fall and "Take His Medicine"

New York, July 27.—When the pleasant summer weather has faded away and automobiling, surf bathing and yachting are no longer enjoyable on account of cold weather, then and only then, according to reports, Erwin Wider, a young German $25 a week clerk that the officials of the Russo-Chinese bank branch at 52 Pine street say stole something like $600,000 worth of stocks and bonds, will return to the city, surrender himself and "take his medicine."

"It would be distasteful for me to go to the Tombs this season of the year, when the heat is so oppressive," he is credited with saying. "In the fall, when the Tombs is cooler and the courts are in session, I'll return and submit to my fate. In the meantime I'll go away to the seashore and enjoy myself."

And he went in a large automobile which it is understood he intends to use in making touring trips when he is not aboard a boat or sporting in the surf. He has promised them to return in the fall and submit to punishment. The last the detectives saw or heard of Wider he was hurrying out of town in a touring car seemingly contented.

According to reports Wider was the most model employe the bank had. He was such a model youth that he was not even under bonds. He was absolutely without any faults. He didn't smoke, or drink, lived regularly and was very punctual. The only thing he ever did out of the way, the officials state, was to steal the $600,000 worth of bonds and stocks.

The names of the Wall street institutions with which Wider, it is charged, pledged the stolen securities in the stock market, have not been made known. Wider is 21 years old, a member of a prominent and wealthy family of Berlin.

"No one in the Russo-Chinese branch bank knew that any securities were missing except Wider," Leon B. Ginsberg, his attorney, said, "when Wider sent a voluntary confession to them. He told them and their lawyers subsequently exactly what he had taken and where every bit of it had been pledged. He expects to surrender himself for trial and to take whatever penalty is imposed upon him.

"But he does not want to be put into the Tombs now and be there for months without such imprisonment reducing his ultimate term of punishment. He expects to surrender in the autumn when the courts are in session. The bank agreed when he made the full confession that he should be allowed to depart unmolested and not be followed and that he should have twenty-four hours of grace from 10 o'clock in the morning following the confession, and for every hour after that time the bank should delay Wider should have two hours additional added to the twenty-four hours of grace.

"That agreement was not kept for a moment by the bank, which has had its detectives follow me and Wider every moment of the time since then. They broke their solemn agreement with Wider and I do not feel that he is now held by it."

Julius Goldman, of Steinhardt & Goldman, attorneys for the Russo-Chinese bank branch, said that it meant to proceed in the most ordinary legal method.

TO BOARD THE MONTROSE

Detective Will Arrest Crippen and Hand Him Over to Scotland Yard

Ottawa, July 27.—Commissioner Sherwood of the Dominion police has sent Detective Gauvreau to board the steamer Montrose at Father Point and there arrest Dr. H. H. Crippen when the steamship arrives.

If Crippen is on board with Ethel C. Leneve they will be taken to Quebec and there handed over to Inspector Dew of Scotland Yard. The extradition law will permit their return to England at once.

Officials Not In Accord

Boston, July 27.—The controversy between Mayor Fitzgerald and Police Comissioner O'Meara over the policing of the common was brought to a climax when, at a conference between these two officials, held in the mayor's office, O'Meara virtually refused to accede to the mayor's demand for additional police on the common.

Macaroni Not Perishable

Washington, July 27.—Onions and other vegetables are perishable, while macaroni is not, according to a decision of the treasury department. The decision was made to aid Collector Loeb of the port of New York.

Soak the clothes over-night.

It loosens the dirt and makes the work of washing very much easier.

Use three tubs, one for table linen, one for bed and body linen, one for the soiled towels and cloths.

Wet the clothes, rub Lenox Soap Solution over the soiled parts, fold and roll each piece by itself, pack in a tub, cover with warm soapy water and let stand over-night.

TO MAKE LENOX SOAP SOLUTION:—Take a cake of Lenox Soap, cut it into small pieces, dissolve these in three quarts of boiling water. Keep water at boiling point until a solution is formed.

Lenox Soap Solution does better work than soap; and is more economical, because there is no waste.

as cool and white as a dairy. No smell, no smoke, no heat, no dust. No old-fashioned contrivances. The

New Perfection
WICK BLUE FLAME
Oil Cook-stove

is the latest practical, scientific cook-stove. It will cook the most elaborate dinner without heating the kitchen.

Boils, bakes, or roasts better than any range. Ready in a second. Extinguished in a second. Fitted with Cabinet Top, with collapsible rests, towel rack, and every up-to-date feature imaginable. You want it, because it will cook any dinner and not heat the room. No heat, no smell, no smoke, no coal to bring in, no ashes to carry out. It does away with the drudgery of cooking, and makes it a pleasure. Women with the light touch for pastry especially appreciate it, because they can immediately have a quick fire, simply by turning a handle. No half-hour preparation. It not only is less trouble than coal, but it costs less. Absolutely no smell, no smoke; and it doesn't heat the kitchen.

Cautionary Note: Be sure you get this stove—see that the name-plate reads "New Perfection."

The nickel finish, with the turquoise blue of the enameled chimneys, makes the stove ornamental and attractive. Made with 1, 2 and 3 burners; the 2 and 3-burner stoves can be had with or without Cabinet.

Eighteen members of the junior chorus of the Memorial Congregational church and twelve extras, making a party of thirty took the trip to Plymouth on the boat, on Tuesday. The boat left at ten o'clock and returned at six fifteen making an all days outing. Two hours and a half were spent in viewing the old town, many of the sights being new to most of the party.

Mark Twain's Profanity.

When Mark Twain began to write for the Atlantic Monthly he came willingly under its rules, for with all his willfulness there never was a more biddable man in things you could show him a reason for. He never made the least of that trouble which so abounds for the hapless editor from narrower minded contributors. If you wanted a thing changed, very good, he changed it; if you suggested that a word or a sentence or a paragraph had better be struck out, very good, he struck it out. His proof sheets came back each a veritable "mush of concession," as Emerson says. Now and then he would try a little stronger language than the Atlantic had stomach for, and once when I sent him a proof I made him observe that I had left out the profanity. He wrote back: "Mrs. Clemens opened that proof and lit into the room with danger in her eye. What profanity? You see, when I read the manuscript to her I skipped that." It was part of his joke to pretend a violence in that gentlest creature which all the more amusingly realized the situation to their friends.—W. D. Howells in Harper's Magazine.

HARPOON NOT HEADED IN TUESDAY'S RACE

Led Fleet at Every Turn and Won Her Second Race for Cup by Over Two Minutes

The Cima Again Second, Passing The Ellen

The Quincy Yacht club challenger for the Quincy cup won again on Tuesday, making two wins to one for the Ellen. Under the skillful management of ex-Commodore Adams the Harpoon showed vast superiority over the other four boats of the fleet on Tuesday, and won by over two minutes. She was never headed, and at no time was she closely pressed.

As stated in Tuesday's Ledger, the wind was strong from the west, and the course selected was a windward and leeward one, the same as on Saturday, so that at all times the yachts were in view from the club house at Hull. All of the yachts carried single reefs over a balanced reef at the start, but on the first run they shook these out, and carried full sail for the remainder of the race.

The Harpoon wa sthe first over the line with the Eel on her weather quarter, and the Sally to the windward. Then came the Cima and Ellen. On the first turn at Peddocks the Harpoon rounded first, with Sally second, then the Eel, Ellen and Cima. The turn at this buoy was as follows:

Harpoon	12	49	18
Sally	12	49	49
Eel	12	49	58
Ellen	12	50	04
Cima	12	50	07

On the run to Strawberry Hill spinnakers were set to the starboard. After two-thirds of the run was covered the boats jibed over, and in rounding the mark the Ellen was second. The time of turning was:

Harpoon	1	10	03
Ellen	1	10	32
Eel	1	10	36
Cima	1	10	53
Sally	1	11	12

Then came a beat to Peddocks and at every tack the Harpoon appeared to be gaining, the Harpoon, Ellen and Cima sailing the middle course, the Eel toward Hog island and the Sally toward Bumkin. The time at rounding the Peddocks island buoy was:

Harpoon	1	34	38
Ellen	1	36	02
Cima	1	36	31
Eel	1	37	12
Sally	1	37	17

On the 2nd run to Strawberry Hill the boats retained the same relative positions, although they all outran the Harpoon. The time at the turn was:

Harpoon	1	51	44
Ellen	1	52	36
Cima	1	52	40
Sally	1	54	03
Eel	1	54	09

On the beat back to Peddocks the wind freshened somewhat, and the Ellen which had held second position, fell behind, and the Cima became the second boat. The time of the turn was:

Harpoon	2	16	54
Cima	2	18	19
Ellen	2	18	58
Eel	2	19	41
Sally	2	21	31

It was now but a short run back to the stake boat, and at this time it was a foregone conclusion unless an accident happened, the Harpoon would win, which she did. The time of finish was:

Harpoon	2	23	26
Cima	2	25	09
Ellen	2	25	42
Eel	2	26	53
Sally	2	18	19

The elapsed time o fthe Harpoon and Cima at each turn was:

	Harpoon. H. M. S.	Cima. H. M. S.
To first mark,	9.18	10.07
To second mark	20.45	20.46
To third mark	24.35	25.38
To fourth mark,	17.06	16.09
To fifth mark	25.10	25.30
To finish	6.32	6.50
Elapsed time	1.43.26	1.45.09

SPORTING NOTES.

Will the Harpoon make it "four straight?"

* * *

The Massachusetts of the Manchester club, which is defending the Seawanhaka cup, won Tuesday's race from the St. Lawrence by 4 minutes, 48 seconds. Another race today.

* * *

None of the papers have yet published a picture of Charlie Adams as he looks on board the Harpoon. The friends of the treasurer of Harvard university ,and mil'ionaire director of several Boston financial institutions would hardly recognize him in his togs.

* * *

Should the Quincy lose on Saturday to the Rocklands they would still be at the head of the Old Colony league. The Deweys and Randolphs who are second and third in the race will meet Saturday ,and might possibly change places.

* * *

What a grand jubilee ther will be at the club house of the Quincy Yacht club tonight should the Harpoon win the cup today. A few fireworks might be added to the program of Ladies' day.

* * *

Will the Copelands please forward to the Daily Ledger the standing of the clubs in the Norfolk County league?

The Glover juniors defeated the South Walnut street team by the score of 24 to 14. Moynihan and Clark were the battery for the victors ,and Melong and Miller for the other team. The Glovers want games with teams whose members are 8 to 11 years old. Address John Moynihan, 27 Main street.

CHANGE OF SCENE OFTEN HELPS

Instances Where Players Have Regained Form by Switch.

BILL BURNS' CASE IS CITED.

Latter Failure With Chicago White Sox Is Crackerjack With Reds—Delehanty Another—Manager Should Not Keep Dissatisfied Player Around.

A change of scenery often works wonders with a ball player. A diamond star who is practically of no use to a certain club may with another team regain his old time form and his place in stardom.

Various causes make players of no use to certain clubs. Sometimes the fans take a dislike to a player and keep after him all the time with a result that the player is not able to show to advantage under criticism. Then again a player gets a fancied grievance against club owner or manager, sulks at his work and plays away below form. In such cases about the only thing to do is get rid of the player in question, and what is one club's loss is some other team's gain.

Jim Delehanty was more or less of a failure at Washington simply because the fans wouldn't give him credit for the good things he did, yet criticised strongly every failure to deliver. Detroit secured Delehanty when the team was badly in need of a good second sacker. The fans welcomed him with open arms and gave him all kinds of encouragement. The result was that Delehanty began to play his real game, and his work had a big bearing on Detroit's success in landing the bunting in 1909.

Earl Moore was of no use to Cleveland or New York in the American league, yet after a year in the minors he came back to life and is now regarded as one of the best twirlers with the Philadelphia Nationals.

Pitcher Suggs was of little use to the Detroit Tigers; in fact, he appealed so little to Jennings that he was turned back to the Southern league. Cincinnati picked up Suggs, and he has made good with a vengeance for the Reds, he being the winning pitcher of Clarke Griffith's club. Recently Griff acquired Bill Burns from the Chicago White Sox. It is very interesting to see what kind of a showing this pitcher, regarded as too slow for the American league, is making with the Reds in the National. Since Burns joined Griff's brigade he has been twirling great ball and is now classed with the best in the National league.

Pitcher Kirby White of the Pittsburgs was not considered good enough for the Bostons. Since joining the Pirates White has pitched consistently good ball and, next to Camnitz, is regarded as the most dependable twirler on the Pittsburg staff. Manager Clarke figures that in another year White will be classed among the best.

It's really nonsensical for a manager to keep a player when he knows the player is dissatisfied with his surroundings and hasn't his heart in his work. There are several managers in the American league who would profit considerably and strengthen their club if they would follow such a theory and pull off a few trades.

Clarke a Brainy Backstop.

Tom Clarke of the Cincinnati Reds is a crackerjack catcher. His handling of pitchers is superb. When he's working the twirlers give few bases on balls.

We have no wish to criticise or find fault, but does it not seem to be a curious provision on the part of nature that when you need ice the most it melts the fastest?—Chicago Tribune.

Tales of Cities.

In the matter of density of population Paris and Berlin lead all the European cities.

Baltimore wants to hold a world's fair in 1914 to celebrate the one hundredth anniversary of the "Star Spangled Banner," written Sept. 13, 1814, during the British attack on Fort McHenry, near Baltimore.

Miles City, Mont., holds the record for variation in temperature. The highest temperature recorded there is 111 degrees, which is within 8 degrees of the highest recorded in the United States. Miles City's lowest mark has been 67 degrees below zero, which is truly arctic. The range between these two extremes is 178 degrees, which is a record.

"Tolerance" In Coins.

The mint allows a certain degree of "tolerance" in coins. For example, the gold double eagle's standard weight is 516 grains, and the "tolerance" allowed is half a grain. A coin of this denomination may weigh as little as 515½ grains or as much as 516½ grains, but never less than the first nor more than the second figure. The standard weight of the silver half dollar is 192.9 grains, and the tolerance allowed is 1.5 grains. This coin may weigh as little as 191.4 grains and as much as 194.4 grains, but never less than the first nor more than the second figure. The standard fineness of all gold and silver coins is 900. In the gold coins a deviation of only one one-thousandth from this is allowed and in the silver coins of only three one-thousandth. The so called five cent nickel coin is really only 25 per cent nickel, the rest being copper. One cent pieces are 95 per cent copper and 5 per cent tin and zinc.—Philadelphia Record.

Sir Walter Scott's Debts.

The Ballantyne failure threw upon Sir Walter Scott the responsibility for £130,000, or $650,000, and the grand old man immediately set about the mighty task of paying it; but, notwithstanding the most heroic efforts on his part, he never succeeded in paying it all. He did the best he could, but he had to depend solely upon his writings, and the task was more than mortal man could accomplish. As his powers failed he became possessed of the idea that all his debts were paid and that he was a free man, and in this belief he happily remained till his death.—New York American.

Better Dream On.

"Isn't that a perfect dream of a hat?" she demanded of the man by her side.

"I said," she repeated after some seconds of silence, "isn't that a dream of a hat?"

Still silence from the man. Then she ventured reproachfully:

"Why don't you say something?"

"My dear, you seemed to enjoy your dream so that I was afraid of waking you up," the man then replied.

The Psalms.

Many years ago a new clergyman was taking Sunday duty in a remote hamlet among the Yorkshire wolds.

After morning service the old clerk came up to him and observed: "So ye calls them 'Sauums,' do ye? Noo, we never knew what to make o' that 'ere P. We allus calls 'em 'Spasms.'"—London Scraps.

QUINCY CHALLENGE CUP WON BACK BY QUINCY

Charley Adams' Harpoon Makes it "Four Straight" in a Fleet of Five Flyers

Won Decisive Race by 1 Minute, 24 Seconds Over Sally XI

The Harpoon, the challenger of the Quincy Yacht club, made it "four straight" on Wednesday, and the Quincy challenge cup comes back to Quincy. The first race did not count in her favor, however, as on the initiative of ex-Commodore Adams his boat was disqualified in that race. He desired to win fair and square, or not at all, and he was successful in a marked degree. He won the next three, the number required to secure the trophy. To some it may have looked easy, but probably no other skipper would have scored victories every time against such flyers as the Cima, the Ellen, the Sally XI and the Eel. All the races were won by less than two minutes as will be seen below:

SATURDAY,	0m., 46s.
MONDAY,	1m., 11s.
TUESDAY,	1m., 43s.
WEDNESDAY,	1m., 24s.

In other years five and six races have been required where there are so many yachts entered.

THE DECISIVE RACE.

It was 2.10 on Wednesday before the race was started as the wind was light from the southwest and two postponements were agreed upon. The Harpoon was first away, but was jibed on the line and lost time. At the first mark the Cima of the Manchester club was two seconds ahead, the time being:

	H.	M.	S.
Cima,	2	20	11
Harpoon	2	20	13
Eel	2	20	41
Sally XI	2	20	53
Ellen	2	21	21

On the beat to the second mark the Harpoon soon took the lead and and was over one minute ahead at the turn:

	H.	M.	S.
Harpoon	2	47	17
Cima	2	48	22
Sally	2	48	54
Eel	2	49	31
Ellen	2	49	42

On the run to the next mark all the boats made better time than the Harpoon but did not overtake her and the time was:

	H.	M.	S.
Harpoon	2	59	29
Cima	3	00	03
Sally	3	00	26
Ellen	3	01	05
Eel	3	01	11

The Harpoon made the best time on the reach, while the Sally moved up to second place, the turn being made as follows:

	H.	M.	S.
Harpoon	3	12	28
Sally	3	13	27
Cima	3	13	28
Eel	3	16	15
Ellen	3	16	39

A mishap to the rigging of the Ellen caused her to withdraw soon after ,and the Harpoon increased her lead at the next turn:

	H.	M.	S.
Harpoon	3	37	50
Sally	3	39	01
Cima	3	39	34
Eel	3	44	27

The Eel sailed the next leg the quickest and the Cima gained on the Harpoon, the time of turn being:

	H.	M.	S.
Harpoon	3	50	06
Cima	3	51	42
Sally	3	51	44
Eel,	3	56	16

The Sally again passed the Cima on the last leg both yachts making better time than the Harpoon, but the Quincy challenger had the victory clinched. The time of finish was:

	H.	M.	S.
Harpoon	3	55	34
Sally	3	56	58
Cima	3	57	06
Eel	4	02	01

ELAPSED TIME.

The elapsed time of the first two yachts for each leg is compared below:

	Harpoon. H. M. S.	Sally. H. M. S.
To first mark,	10.13	10.53
To second mark,	27.04	28.01
To third mark,	12.12	11.32
To fourth mark,	12.59	13.01
To fifth mark,	25.22	25.34
To sixth mark,	12.16	12.13
To the finish,	5.28	5.14
Total time	1.45.34	1.46.58

The elapsed time of the Cima was 1h., 47m., 6s; and the Eel 1h., 52m., 1s. The Ellen was disabled.

CHALLENGE CUP.

TWICE WON BACK FROM OTHER YACHT CLUBS

In twelve years, nine series of races have been held for the Quincy challenge cup, and in four years the Quincy club has won, twice as defenders at the start, and in 1908 and 1910 as challengers. The Manchester Yacht club has won two years, the Corinthian club two years and the Boston Yacht club one year.

MURPHY HAS CONFESSED

Says He Stole the Bicycle at Brockton

James Francis Murphy, the man arrested by Officer Goodhue when he tried to sell him a bicycle for $6, made a confession to the officer Wednesday, to the effect that the wheel had been stolen on Main street, Brockton. Wednesday afternoon, Murphy or George Pollock, as he now says his right name is, was taken to police headquarters, Boston, where he was looked over and had his photo taken. When he was tripped a pawn ticket of a Providence pawnshop for a gold watch was found, also a book showing that he had purchased a gold watch on installments. Then it was that the fellow said that his right name was Pollock and that his home was on Hospital street, Providence.

After his return to Quincy, he said that he came from Providence and got off the train at Brockton, where he stole the bicycle and rode it to Quincy and tried to sell it. He also said that he had done time in the reformatory, but refused to say for what crime or when it was.

When the Brockton police were communicated with they said the loss of the bicycle had been reported to them ,and that they would come to Quincy when the case came up to get a warrant for him. Inspectors from Providence will also come to Quincy to take a look at him.

FUNERAL OF MRS. FAY.

The funeral of Mrs. Lydia W. Fay, wife of ex-City Treasurer Henry G. Fay, was held Wednesday from her late home, at 52 Marlboro street. The services were of a simple nature, and were condutced by Rev. Daniel M. Wilson of Kennebuckport, Me., formerly pastor at Quincy. The body was taken to Forrest Hills for cremation.

TODAY'S COURT.

John H. Leahy was fined $5 for drunkenness at Weymouth.

William Zematiz was fined $10 for assault at Weymouth.

George B. Whitehead and Joseph Laurence were fined $10 each for fraudently obtaining entertainment at an inn in Braintree.

WELL KNOWN MUSICIAN

Death of Edson L. Loud, Formerly of This City

Edison L. Loud, who will be remembered as a well known musician and a member of Loud's orchestra years ago, died this morning at the residence of ihs parents at 98 Washington street of acute Brights disease.

He first entered business with the watch company at Waltham where he resided many years and married. While in Waltham he was director of the Crescent Band. Then he was with the Chickering Company of Boston as a piano tuner. Later he was with piano companies at Erie, Baltimore and New York, being with the Steinert Company at the time of his death. He was sick when he came to Quincy about the 1st of July with his wife, and his case was serious.

He was a member of the Knights of Pythias, Odd Fellows, Encampment of Odd Fellows and Modern Woodmen of America. He was in his 44th year and leaves a widow and daughter, a father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Francis P. Loud ;two brothers, William and Walter E. Loud; and a sister, Mrs. Lucy Braudau of New York.

Funeral services will be held on Saturday afternoon ,and the interment will be at Waltham.

—The matter of swarming house flies is not one that should be disregarded. The public needs to be aroused against this nuisance quite as much as against any sort of filth. Untidy streets are not pleasant to look at, but a neglected stable in the rear of some block out of range of the public eye may contain more of the elements of mischief than a dozen littered streets combined. The house fly should be kept as little in evidence as possible, and the best way to begin an enforcement of this policy is to attack the breeding places of these creatures.

Participate in Sail of Ladies' Day, the Great Social Event of Yachting Season

Refreshments and Dance Follow at the New Clubhouse

The annual Ladies' Day of the Quincy Yacht club, Wednesday, was one o fthe most successful social events of the yachting season that the club has ever held. The sky was bright and clear, and this coupled with a good sailing breeze made the conditions ideal.

It was a pretty sight from the club house verandas to see the 33 yachts and power launches all in holiday dress, with their loads of fair feminine freight passing to and fro, while the steamer Houghs Neck with its decks bright with color, was moving slowly among them like a mother watching her children.

There was just breeze enough for the yachts to carry full sail with but little danger of their fair passengers getting sprayed with water. Course No. 1 wa sthe one sailed after passing in review of the Emeline, the flagship of Commodore Robbins. This took them to Jack Knife ledge, thence to Pig Rock beacon, to the black can buoy in Hingham bay, thence back to the club house, passing between Sheep and Grape islands.

While over toward Pig Rock and in Hingham bay, an excellent view was had of the five yachts competing for the Quincy Yacht club challenge cup with ex-Commodore Adams in the Harpoon leading the way, and those who were near enough, gave him the yachtsmen salute.

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

The victory of the Quincy challenger over flyers from four other yacht clubs places the Quincy Yacht club among the best racing clubs about Boston, and we stand ready to defend the Quincy cup against all comers. Ever since the Quincy Yacht Club offered the trophy in 1898 as a perpetual challenge cup it has been a sportsman's club, and fair play has characterized all the races. Quincy has done well to win four times out of nine against all comers. The Harpoon will probably be selected to sail against the Spanish boats in the sonder class, and all wish ex-Commodore Adams the same success.

The committees on better train service have taken the proper course in going first to the officials of the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. It is impossible for these officials to know all the varied needs of the different stations on its vast system, and where such a radical change was deemed necessary in the timetable it is not surprising that some were discontinued. They failed to take into account the fact that many residents of Quincy and Quincy Adams are employed at Wollaston, Norfolk Downs, South Boston, South Braintree and Brockton. hTey did not know that many carriers and clerks of the Boston Post Office live in different parts of Quincy and must report at 6.45 A. M., and that others also must be on deck at that hour. People all along the line also come to the Quincy shipyard. The wants are numerous and varied. If these needs, however, are brought to the attention of the railroad officials we believe they will promptly improve the service.

DRIFT OF OPINION.

Discussion of Spanish as a proposed study in the public schools of Boston, recalls that it is also contemplated in the scheme of studies that was worked out by the Brockton industrial school commission. It is truly said that the proposition has not been in the way of a literary or linguistic frill, but for reasons of peculiar practicality in a region largely interested in South American trade. Such a region in this shoe-manufacturing district of New England.—Brockton Times.

PREACHER-COP ON DUTY

He Is Now Clothed With Authority to Handle Black Sheep

Louisville, July 28.—Probably the only minister-policeman in the United States is Rev. Arthur E. Whatham, rector of Trinity Episcopal church in this city, who took the oath of office yesterday, and then was presented with his badge of authority, on which was inscribed "private policeman, Trinity park."

Mr. Whatham says that he has become a policeman in addition to his other duties for the good of the boys who play in Trinity park.

"With my authority of a policeman I think that I will be able to handle any black sheep that should attempt to lead my flock astray," said he.

JUSTICE RIGHT ON THE JOB

Negro Goes to Prison Half an Hour After Crime Is Committed

Hoboken, N. J., July 28.—Jersey justice, which moves with astonishing celerity, was gaited to lightning speed here when within thirty minutes after Joe Gillespie, a negro, had attacked Mrs. Louis Fricke, he was in a cell in the Hudson county penitentiary, under sentence of ninety days.

Here is the schedule showing the moves of the Jersey legal machinery in the case: 9:30, negro attacks woman; 9:35, negro arrested; 9:40, arraigned in court; 9:42, given ninety days; 9:45, off to prison; 10 a. m., in a cell.

BUCKEYE STATE "REGULARS" WIN

Dictate Republican Platform and Nominate Their Candidate

HARDING ON THIRD BALLOT

Garfield's Name Withdrawn Upon Adoption of Platform Which Commends Administration of Taft and Pledges Him Hearty Support—Payne Tariff Law, Revised In Accordance With Republican Doctrine, Is Defended by Convention

Columbus, O., July 28.—Warren G. Harding of Marion, former lieutenant governor, was nominated for governor by the Republican state convention here on the third ballot.

The nomination was made unanimous. When he saw Judge Brown's cause hopeless, Boss Cox, on the third ballot, turned the ninety-one in his control over to Harding. The nomination of Harding is a complete victory for the Taft forces.

The balance of the ticket is: Francis W. Treadland, lieutenant governor; Granville W. Mooney, secretary of state; Rudy Archer, state treasurer; U. G. Denman, attorney general.

Despite all predictions the name of Garfield was not presented to the convention.

The adoption of the platform was immediately followed by the withdrawal of the head of the "progressive" faction, James R. Garfield, as a candidate for governor, leaving the nomination to be fought out between Warren G. Harding and Judge O. B. Brown, the latter being the candidate of Boss Cox of Cincinnati, the man raked so unmercifully by Taft in 1905.

On the third ballot Harding, supported by the combined Burton, Dick and Ellis forces, and by a large block of deserting Brown delegates, secured the nomination.

The platform adopted by the convention is in part as follows:

"We commend in highest terms the splendid administration of William H. Taft, are proud of the results he has already achieved in his seventeen months in office, and pledge him our hearty and united support in his further efforts as chief executive of the nation. We renew our pledge of loyal support given him in 1908, and endorse him for renomination in 1912.

"Among the many accomplishments of President Taft's administration worthy of special praise are:

"Prosecution and conviction of those implicated in the sugar frauds against the government, and other violators of federal statutes.

"Prompt and successful intervention to prevent arbitrary increases in railroad freight rates.

"Effective enforcements of the law against illegal dealing in stocks.

"Indictment of those involved in the cotton pool formed to raise the price of one of the necessities of life in every American family.

"Impartial enforcement of the anti-trust laws.

"Substantial reduction in government expenses, saving a million dollars a month in the postoffice department, with a fair promise of wiping out the annual postal deficit.

"Such remarkable progress in the construction of the Panama canal as insures its early completion.

"Withdrawal from private entry, in order to preserve for the public benefit, valuable coal and other mineral deposits, timber lands and water power sites of over 71,000,000 acres of the public domain.

"It has strengthened our prestige with foreign nations and has treated with vigor and wisdom important and delicate international problems. It has dealt justly and liberally with our dependencies.

"The record of achievement of this administration and the Sixty-first congress is unequalled in our history and guarantees faithful adherence to all the pledges of the last Republican national platform.

"The tariff has been revised in accordance with the Republican doctrine, protecting home industries and American labor. It did not raise the rate of duty on a single common food product. The increases made were on luxuries and articles of ordinary use. It affords no more than adequate protection to the industries of the nation and is fair alike to consumers, laborers and producers. No tariff bill was ever more unjustly assailed."

TAFT LIKES HARDING

He Considers the Nominee One of the Best Campaigners In Ohio

Biddeford Pool, Me., July 28.—Wireless telegraphy brought to President Taft the news of the nomination of Warren G. Harding as the Republican candidate for governor of Ohio.

Mr. Taft seemed delighted over the outcome in Ohio. The president has a very high estimate of Harding. He said that with the possible exception of former Senator Foraker he regarded Harding as the best campaigner in the state of Ohio on either side.

When he gets to Beverly he will probably send Harding a telegram of congratulation.

A FINISHING TOUCH

Bryan Overwhelmingly Beaten After Making Impassioned Speech

Grand Island, Neb., July 28.—William J. Bryan, thrice the national standard bearer of the Democratic party, was overwhelmingly defeated in the state convention when, by a vote of 647 to 198, the delegates defeated his county option plank.

The vote came after an impassioned speech by Bryan on the floor of the convention. He was cheered by his supporters, but the volume of sound by them was small as compared with the mighty cheer that followed the announcement of the vote that took the leadership of his party in Nebraska away from Bryan.

The platform adopted endorses the administration of Governo. Shellenberger and favors the giving to metropolitan cities and cities of the first class the right to make their own charters. It scores the administration of President Taft.

OPPOSED TO "CANNONISM"

Insurgents Show Up Strong In Nebraska Republican Convention

Lincoln, Neb., July 28.—The platform convention of the Republican party of Nebraska adopted a platform strongly indorsing the administration of President Taft, expressing unalterable opposition to "the system known as Cannonism," and hearty sympathy with the "insurgent movement" in and out of congress.

The platform includes a declaration for county option as the method of regulating the liquor traffic, and for an amendment to the state constitution providing for direct legislation. These resolutions met strong opposition, however, both in the resolutions committee and upon the floor of the convention.

WIDER'S CASE GOING BEFORE GRAND JURY

Young Clerk Said to Have Speculated With Stolen Money

New York, July 28.—Steps have been taken to have Erwin Wider, the "model" $25 a week clerk, who is accused of stealing $600,000 worth of bonds and stocks from the Russo-Chinese bank branch, and then allowed to depart on a "gentlemen's agreement" after he is alleged to have confessed, indicted by the grand jury. The details of the theft have been placed before Acting District Attorney Nott by E. De Markowski, inspector in charge of the Russo-Chinese bank.

It is reported that young Wider, whose ownership of an automobile and his high living on $25 a week did not seem to be strange to the bank officials, lost money in speculating in Wall street and that he had been plunging for a long time. Wider is still missing and the police profess to be in search of him.

RIVET IS STILL ALIVE

Murderer Passes Another Day In Shadow of Electric Chair

Boston, July 28.—Napoleon Rivet, the Lowell murderer, condemned to death at the Charlestown state prison, still lives, although it is believed he has passed his last night on earth.

Death will come to Rivet during the next twenty-four hours, although the exact time is only known to the warden and the witnesses who will observe the last tragic moments of the man's life.

Rivet eats well and sleeps well and varies the monotony of his confinement by smoking and reading.

Spankings For Park Mashers

St. Paul, July 28.—Mashers and rowdies in Minneapolis parks will be spanked instead of arrested. The edict was issued by Chief Kingsley of the park police.

ROOSEVELT TELLS OF LION SLAYING

THE killing of lions by the Nandi spearman occupies a leading place in the latest installment of Theodore Roosevelt's "African Game Trails" in the August number of Scribner's magazine.

Colonel Roosevelt's description of a native lion hunt is as follows:

"At last the tense ring was complete, and the spearmen rose and closed in. The lion looked quickly from side to side, saw where the line was thinnest, and charged at his topmost speed. The crowded moment began. With shields held steady and quivering spears poised, the men in front braced themselves for the rush and the shock, and from either hand the warriors sprang forward to take their foe in flank.

Spear Thrust Halts Leo.

"Bounding ahead of his fellows, the leader reached throwing distance, the long spear flickered and plunged; as the lion felt the wound he half turned and then flung himself on the man in front. The warrior threw his spear; it drove deep into the life, for entering at one shoulder it came out of the opposite flank, near the thigh, a yard of steel through the great body.

"Rearing, the lion struck the man, bearing down the shield, his back arched, and for a moment he slaked his fury with fang and talon. But on the instant I saw another spear driven clear through his body from side to side, and as the lion turned again the bright spear blades darting toward him were flashes of white flame.

"The end had come. He seized an other man, who stabbed him and wrenched loose. As he fell he gripped a spear head in his jaws with such tremendous force that he bent it double Then the warriors were round and over him, stabbing and shouting, wild with furious exultation.

Killed In Ten Seconds.

"From the moment when he charged until his death I doubt whether ten seconds had elapsed, perhaps less. But what a ten seconds! The first half dozen spears had done the work. Three of the spear blades had gone clear through the body, the points projecting several inches, and these and one or two others, including the one he had seized in his jaws, had been twisted out of shape in the terrible death struggle.

"We at once attended to the two wounded men. Then the warriors, raising their shields above their heads and chanting the deep toned victory song, marched with a slow, dancing step around the dead body of the lion, and this savage dance of triumph ended a scene of as fierce interest and excitement as I ever hope to see."

The work of the missionaries in Africa is praised, especially the results achieved by a harmonious working of the Christian sects represented. Says the traveler:

"Those who complain of or rail at missionary work in Africa and who confine themselves to pointing out the undoubtedly too numerous errors of the missionaries and shortcomings of their flocks would do well to consider that even if the light which has been let in is but feeble and gray it has at least dispelled a worse than Stygian darkness.

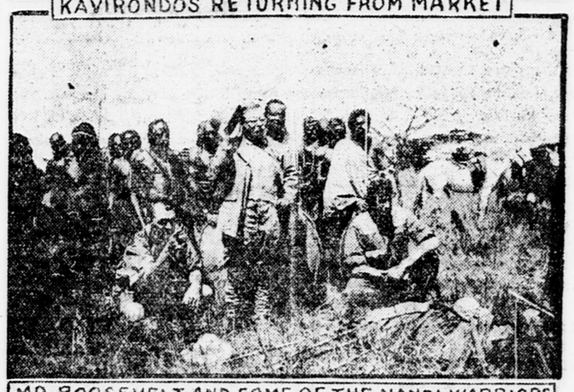

African Religions Cruel.

"As soon as native African religions—practically none of which have hitherto evolved any substantial ethical basis—develop beyond the most primitive stage they tend, notably in middle and western Africa, to grow into malign creeds of unspeakable cruelty and immorality, with a bestial and revolting ritual and ceremonial. Even a poorly taught and imperfectly understood Christianity, with its underlying foundation of justice and mercy, represents an immeasurable advance on such a creed.

"Where, as in Uganda, the people are intelligent and the missionaries unite disinterestedness and zeal with common sense the result is astounding. The majority of the people of Uganda are now Christian, Protestant or Catholic, and many thousands among them are sincerely Christian and show their Christianity in practical fashion by putting conduct above ceremonial and dogma."

SCARPOLOGY LATEST SCIENCE

Footwear Indication of Character, Asserts Swiss.

Those who have hitherto been interested in analyzing the down at heel condition of a section of their fellow creatures may be pleased to hear that they have been dabbling in a science distinguished by the name of scarpology, of which Dr. Garrier of Basle, Switzerland, is the chief exponent. It is the art of knowing men and women by the examination of their footwear.

Criminal investigators as well as others who wish to read character accurately cannot afford to disregard scarpology, says the doctor. Given a pair of shoes worn by their owner for at least two months and he can tell the character, disposition and habits of the wearer. By careful practice you may in a few minutes gauge a man at his worth simply by glancing at his feet.

Roughly speaking, the chief indications of character lie in the manner and proportion in which the soles and the heels are worn out. Beware of the man who wears out the toe and the external edge of the sole simultaneously, says Dr. Garrier. He will almost invariably turn out a crook. It is up to the crooks now to disguise their feet.

MISSOURI BREEDING LIONS.

Lancaster Now Center For American Wild Animal Trade.

There is one place in Missouri where the honk-honk of the motorcar is but rarely heard and where no such devices are owned. The people of Lancaster don't take much interest in buzz wagons, because the horse, the Missouri mule, the lion and the elephant, tigers, zebras, monkeys, sacred cows and the like are their stock in trade.

Lancaster is the headquarters of the biggest individual horse dealer and circus outfitter in America. Billy Hall is his well known name, and his business brings more money to Lancaster than half a dozen factories. To turn a buzz wagon loose on the streets of Lancaster would be an affront to the industry which has made the place noted, because horses and motors don't travel well together.

Mr. Hall made one season as the proprietor of a big three ring circus and menagerie. Since then he has gone into the wild animal business on an extensive scale, and imported elephants, lions, tigers, queer species of birds, apes and every living thing of an interesting nature to lease and sell to circuses.

LITTLE GIRL HIT BY CAR

Accident Happened on Manet Avenue, Houghs Neck

Margaret Hooley, aged 7 years, an orphan child adopted by Mr. and Mrs. George Twist of the Warren cottage, Houghs Neck, was struck by the running board of an electric car on Manet avenue, Wednesday afternoon, and seriously injured. The accident was witnessed by a large car load of people bound for the Quincy Yacht club house, and several of the ladies became hysterical.

The car was that which left City Square at 2.10. It had just left the turnout on Manet avenue and was running slowly, when a little girl was noticed standing on the banking at the side of the track. She had on a bathing suit, and as the car approached made no effort to move. Seeing this the motorman of the car slowed down and when thirty feet away called to the child to get out of the way. Just what then happened can not be explained. It is thought however that the child attempted to climb up the slight embankmdnt, and in her haste slipped back and was struck by the running board. The car was immediately stopped and there was considerable confusion and excitement among the passengers, as it was thought the child had rolled beneath the car. Fortunately however this was not so.

One of the passengers on the car was Dr. M. P. VanDavid of the Grace hospital staff, and he immediately rendered first aid. He then took the child to the residence of Dr. Ash, near by, who took it to the City Hospital in his automobile. It was found that the right hip had been dislocated, and that the femur bone had been fractured.

Passengers on the car say that the accident was one in which the motorman was in no way to blame.

REAL WIFE POSED AS "SISTER" OF KEELER

Bigamy Indictment to Be Prepared Against the Swindler

New York, July 28.—Dr. Harry B. Keeler, who was arrested in Detroit with his wife, on charges of having inveigled Mrs. Wilhelmina Lynch to marry him and give him $13,500, the police say, had the habit of contracting marriages, separating the victims from their cash and disappearing. Keeler always introduced his wife as his "sister."

Wednesday's callers at Adams street court accounted for three more alleged marriages by Keeler, and a bigamy indictment is to be prepared.

Mrs. Helen Vosburg of Brooklyn pointed Keeler out as the man who had married her in 1900 and had lived at her house, with "sister Emma," for three weeks with a total loss to Mrs. Vosburg of $540 in cash.

Mrs. Dora Schoelles of Sea Cliff thought he was the man who married her in 1908. Miss Schoelles' nephew and niece, witnesses of the supposed marriage, identified Keeler positively.

Last came a minister, Rev. Frederick Holter of Flatbush, who knew Keeler for the man he married under the name of "Wheeler" to a girl named "Hetty" in Jersey City in 1903, with a net loss to Hetty of $800.

Two Oceans Pass.

There is a spot in the Yellowstone National park where the same stream sends water to the Pacific and the Atlantic oceans at the same time. It is called Two Oceans pass. When the stream overflows, the water spreads over the continental divide, some going east and some west.

Executions In Russia.

During the last five years 6,258 persons have been sent to the gallows in Russia, most of them for offenses which would be freely forgiven by most magistrates.

A Great Reservoir.

The reservoir created by the Roosevelt dam on the Salt river, in Arizona, is the largest artificial body of water in the world. Its capacity is 61,000,000,000 cubic feet, and if its waters were spread over Delaware it would cover the entire surface of that state a foot in depth.

☞A paper in the home is worth five on the street that is the reason the Quincy Daily Ledger is so popular with advertisers. It goes right in to the home every day, year in and year out, and is read by all the family. Largest circulation in the city (in the home or on the street) and reaches all classes. Is newsy and reliable. Are you reading it every day?

LADIES' DAY

It was shortly after 2 o'clock when the power boats "F. L. Harvey" and "Alert" began to make trips between the float and the yachts which were anchored at their moorings and an hour later a gun from the flagship announced that it was time for the yachts to pass in review. As each passed it dipped its colors, the salute being acknowledged by Commodore Robbins who stood on the deck of the Emeline. Each yacht also received one gun as it passed.

Every one who desired, had an opportunity to enjoy the sail, for in addition to the yachts and power boats, the club had secured the power boats "F. L. Harvey" and "Alert" and the steamer Houghs Neck.

The Argentine naval officers and their ladies and other sepcial guests of the day were in charge of Rear Commodore Frank Fessenden Crane, and for them the Iris and Launch Waggie were reserved.

There were quite a number of ladies who from perference enjoyed the sail from the club piazza, and they were entertained during the afternoon with a concert of popular airs by George Monk and his orchestra.

The reutrn from the sail was at 5 o'clock and half an hour later a lunch was served in the club house. Then it was that the enlarged club house was appreciated, for there was not as much crowding as in other years. Every seat on the broad piazzas both up stairs and down were occupied, and the wants of the ladies were carefully looked after by the club members, each of whom constituted himself a committee of one to look after the comforts and pleasures of the guests.

The lunch was over at 6.30 and half an hour later the large hall had been cleared of its tables and chairs and there was dancing until 10.30. There was no set program of dances. The name of the dance being passed on to Mr. Monk and it was played. During the early evening there was an illumination of the club house, and the sight as viewed from the street and water was a pretty one.

Shortly after 5 o'clock the Yacht Cosey, of Thompson B. Crane which had been used as a tender to the Harpoon during the cup races came to the landing with three brooms flying from her mast head, denoting three victories for the challenger. As she approached the float she was given a salute of three guns. Had skipper Adams only come over with the Harpoon he would have been given an ovation.

As noted above there were 34 yachts that took part in the review and sail, including the steamer Houghs Neck. A list of these yachts with their guests follows:

Bridge Hints.

If you hold a good heart, don't discard it.

If you find an unguarded knave, kick him and run.

If you are short of honors, never mind. Many an obscure man dies rich.

With three good suits and four diamonds, it is safe to accept an invitation to a week end party.

If your partner is a dummy, don't complain; she probably wouldn't have married you if she hadn't been.

Holding a commanding club, don't hesitate to tell the cook it looks like rain if the soup justifies the declaration.

With the years against you, never venture a weak heart declaration unless you have diamonds enough to pull you through.—Smart Set.

Odd Shaving Habits.

It is said that of men who shave themselves not one in fifty can use the razor with both hands, and to this may be added other curious facts about the shaving habits of the average man.

There is the president of a trust company in New York who, he tells his friends, always shaves himself standing in a corner of the room and facing the wall. He was a poor country boy and, like most boys, bought a razor on the sly. There was no mirror in his bedroom and rather than let his people know what he was about he faced the wall and scraped away by sense of feeling. Once accustomed to this method he never needed a glass.

There is a United States senator, formerly a farmer, who for many years shaved himself sitting on a milking stool and looking at his reflection in a bucket of water. That was what he did as a boy and man on the farm, and he says that he couldn't shave standing up.—New York Tribune.

The New Page.

"Look here, Wilkins," said a doctor to his boy in buttons, whom he had occasion to reprimand, "I can't stand any more of this nonsense. You'll have to turn over a fresh leaf."

"All right, sir," was the witty response; "you shan't complain of me again, sir. I'll be an entirely new page."—London Opinion.

BITTEN BY PET CAT

Woman May Die From Wounds Inflicted by Maddened Feline

Lawrence, Mass., July 28.—Mrs. William D. Curtis is at the point of death at her home in this city, as the result of bites and scratches inflicted by her pet cat. The feline was sick and when Mrs. Curtis attempted to feed it the maddened animal sprang at her throat.

She raised her right arm to ward off the attack and the cat's teeth were buried several times in her arm. She threw the cat off, but again and again it jumped at her, and before neighbors, who were attracted by her cries, could beat the animal off Mrs. Curtis was in a semi-conscious condition, covered with blood from bites and scratches all over the body.

A doctor was summoned and dressed her wounds. She is in a critical condition. The cat was shot by a policeman.

HIS FEARS CONFIRMED

New Jersey Man Dies of Hydrophobia, Despite Doctor's Assurances

Bayonne, N. J., July 28.—Convinced that he was about to be fatally attacked with hydrophobia as the result of the bite of a pet cat, James E. Hardy of this city, 57 years old, a Standard Oil employe, deliberately went about making arrangements for putting his affairs in order and arranging for his funeral.

He was bitten by a cat two months ago but suffered no inconvenience until his arm began to swell. Even his physician told him he was likely to recover, but the man felt convinced that he knew best and hydrophobia developed itself as he believed it would.

Hardy was hurried to a hospital, but nothing could be done for him there, and after an hour of agony he died.

CONSIDERS WIVES MERE TRADEMARKS

Mrs. Hooker Tells How They Are Used by American Husbands

Baltimore, July 28.—"The American man makes his wife the trademark of his bank account. He uses her looks, her clothes and her jewels to express his own business success," said Mrs. Hooker, president of the Just Government league.

"He himself cannot wear gems and elaborate clothes to prove to his associates that he has made money, so he urges extravagant costumes, extravagant homes and extravagant entertainments on his wife."

"Do you think then, that fashionable women are useless?" she was asked.

"As a whole and as a working body they are not worthy of consideration," replied Mrs. Hooker. "Some individuals who rise above the petty frivolities become wonderful powers for good and advancement. Mrs. Belmont and Mrs. Mackay, for instance, have done much excellent work."

TRAP READY FOR CRIPPEN

Chief Constable Has Warrant For Arrest of the Fugitive Doctor

Quebec, July 28.—A warrant for the arrest of Dr. H. H. Crippen, wanted in London in connection with the murder of his wife, Belle Elmore, has been placed in the hands of Chief Constable Gauvreau, representative of the Dominion police at Rimouski. By this move, the final preparations were made for the trap into which it is expected Crippen will walk on Sunday.

It is possible that the arrest will not be made until the steamer Montrose is almost at Quebec, though the officer will board her at Father Point. He will act the part of an assistant to the pilot, according to the understanding prevalent here in police circles.

REVOLT IS CRUSHED

Davilla Says That Peace Now Reigns Throughout Honduras

New Orleans, La., July 28.—That the revolution that was detected in in incipient state on the north coast of Spanish Honduras has been crushed and that peace now reigns throughout the country is the gist of a cablegram which President Davilla has sent to the Honduran consul at New Orleans.

This cablegram, sent from Teguciglpa, follows the receipt of reports from Honduras which told of uprisings at Ceiba, Porto Cortez and other points. The uprisings were declared to be the signal for a revolution to be carried on by the sympathizers of former President Bonilla.

Youngster's Costly First Smoke

Haverhill, Mass., July 28.—The first smoke of the 7-year-old son of Arthur B. Walker was the cause of the mysterious fire that destroyed the latter's $3000 barn. Young Walker admits that he was in the hay loft breaking in a pipe, when the hay caught fire.

Aviation.

A national physical laboratory in England uses a whirling table with a sixty foot arm to test the thrust of airship propellers.

A French aeronaut has patented a balloon which when deflated can be packed in its basket and the equipment carried on a man's back.

One of the novelties in the field of aviation is a triplane invented by an Englishman, who guides it from a seat suspended between two sets of three planes each.

In the Stilly Night.

"What is it?" the druggist sleepily inquired from his bedroom window.

"This ish drug store, ain't it?" asked the man who had rung the night bell.

"Yes. What do you want?"

BRIEFS

Miss Blodwen and Gwladys Walters are spending their vacation at Lake Pearl, Wrentham, Mass.

The residents of Goffe street and vicinity are greatly relieved since Charles F. Tirrell was committed to the asylum at Westboro.

The heavy showers early this morning did lots of good to gardens and lawns. They were accompanied by a little thunder and lightning.

Fred Roth of 52 Edison street left Wednesday for a trip to Philadelphia, Wilkes, Barre, Penn., and Niagara Falls.

Walter Manhire of Albertina street is spending a two weeks' vacation with his sister, Mrs. P. J. Geddes of Newark, New Jersey.

Do not fail to get the Friday Ledger with advertisements of offerings for Saturday for the local merchants. Several of the stores have special bargains for the Saturday trade.

The lawn party given by the Ladies' Aid Society of the Water street church on Wednesday evening was attended by 100 or more. Music was furnished by bagpipes. Ice cream and tonic were for sale.

The serial story "Half a Chance" which has been found so interesting by readers of the Ledger comes to an end this week. Its ending is as pleasing as the story has been from day to day and of course ends well.

Napoleon and Waterloo.

There is nothing in the result of the Waterloo campaign to show any decline in Napoleon's powers of mind. The plan of the campaign as laid down by the emperor was a most brilliant one, and had it not rained on the night of the 17th of June Napoleon would in all likelihood have kept his throne. Had it not rained and made the land miry he would have had his artillery in position four hours before he actually did, and Wellington would have been disposed of long before Blucher's arrival. Even as it was, the Iron Duke was pretty well used up when the Prussian came up on his left. Napoleon's genius never shone more brilliantly than it did in his last campaign. He was defeated by the elements and by the unaccountable stupidity of some of his lieutenants.—New York American.

Assyrian Seals.

The ancient Assyrians nearly 6,000 years ago put in moist clay their seals, engraved in intaglio upon precious stones, on chests and doors, in order to prevent their being opened. There were no locks or keys in those days. If they wished to send a private letter they would often seal it with a hippogriff, which fabulous winged horse was regarded as the emblem of secrecy. Centuries later the Greeks and Romans adopted similar devices for the same purpose.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

BATTLE OVER OATH OF KING

Finally Won by Non-Conformists of Great Britian

NO REFERENCE TO CATHOLICS

Amendment Accepted by Premier and Opposed by Ultra Churchmen and Anti-Catholic Elements Passes House of Commons by Substantial Majority—"No Popery" Displayed In Streets In Vicinity of Parliament

London, July 28.—The king's accession declaration bill, in an amended form, passed its second reading in the house of commons by a vote of 410 to 84. The bill as it now stands provides that the pronouncement against Roman Catholicism shall be eliminated, and the clause "and declare that I am a faithful Protestant" shall be substituted.

The Non-Conformists showed strong opposition to the original substituting clause, which read: "and declare that I am a faithful member of the Protestant church as by law established in England" and the premier finally accepted their amendment.

It is believed that all difficulties have now been removed and that the bill will survive the committee stage, and be accepted by the house of lords without further trouble.

The bill passed its first reading June 28 by a vote of 383 to 42. It provided that the declaration be so changed that the dictrine of the Roman Catholic church is not singled out for repudiation. In place of the words offensive to the Catholics the bill substituted the clause: "And declare that I am a faithful member of the Protestant church as by law established in England."

The Non-Conformists objected to the qualification "as by law established," and pledged themselves to vote against the government unless these four words were eliminated.

The revolt was successful yesterday, and the premier in moving the second reading accepted the Non-Conformist amendment substituting the words: "I am a faithful Protestant." At once the ultra Churchmen were up in arms, and joined hands with those who desired the retention of the original anti-Catholic form of the declaration.

Urgent whips were sent out by both parties in view of the expected closeness of the vote. Meantime anti-Catholic societies filled the streets in the vicinity of parliament with sandwich men bearing placards reading "No Popery."

MYSTERY IS SOLVED

Kenneth Archibald Perished In Canyon In the Sierras

San Francisco, July 28.—Members of the Sierra club, who returned last evening from the King's river canyon in Fresno county, bring news of finding in a spot twenty-three miles from Kanawayers cabin, bones, locks of hair, a watch, note book and clothing, identified as belonging to Kenneth Archibald, formerly of Brockton, Mass., and a small tin cup, with the name Kenneth Archibald scratched upon it.

Archibald was lost in the mountains in 1908. He was the son of Rev. Andrew Archibald, a clergyman, now living in Newtonville, Mass., and left a $75,000 estate. His fate has been a mystery for more than two years.

NEGROES ARE COMPLAINING

Would Have White Men Get Fat Jobs Rather Than Mulattoes

Washington, July 28.—Because he is a mulatto, some of the negroes of the District of Columbia are objecting to the appointment of Whitefield McKinlay as collector of the port of Georgetown, D. C., recently made by President Taft.

One prominent member of his race, speaking for a part of his people, says that they do not believe the appointment of a mulatto would be of any benefit to the race. Some white man, he says, should receive the appointment. He says that it is not right to give all the good positions to mulattoes.

CHEWED BY BULLDOG

Boston Policeman Has Ten-Minute Battle With Vicious Beast

Boston, July 28.—Patrolman James N. Nelson of the East Dedham street station was terribly bitten about the legs by a vicious bulldog that attacked him when he entered the apartment of Mrs. Delia Geulnonan, 23 Genesee street, to place her under arrest for intoxication.

The policeman battled with the dog for fully ten minutes before he was able to beat it into unconsciousness with his short club. After locking up the mistress of the dog, Nelson was hurried to the city hospital for treatment.

Autos Held For Debts

Kansas City, July 28.—John M. Rood, sheriff of Jackson county, has six motor cars in his possession because the owners failed to pay their grocery or dry goods bills.

WOMAN OF 90 IS STILL CLERK IN THE TREASURY.

Served Since 1863 and Is Regarded as Capable Employee.

Mrs. Helen McLean Kimball, the oldest woman clerk of the government's service, celebrated her ninetieth birthday anniversary recently. She celebrated, too, by being "on the job," although she could do little work for receiving the congratulations of her friends.

Mrs. Kimball is a clerk in the office of the corsptroller of the currency at Washington. She is the widow of Lieutenant E. A. Kimball of the famous New York zouave regiment, killed at Suffolk, Va., April 12, 1863. He had been a captain in the Mexican war and was the first American to reach the heights of Chapultepec.

Mrs. Kimball was one of the first women clerks appointed in the treasury department. She entered upon her duties there in the summer of 1863, her position having been obtained by friends of her husband.

Mrs. Kimball's record has been a marvelous one, in view of her age. She is sprightly and active and attends to her duties in a manner satisfactory to the comptroller of the currency. Her faculties are as alert as they were forty-seven years ago, when she entered upon her duties. She is known and liked through the treasury department.

PAWN CHILDREN FOR GIN.

Thirsty West Africans Always Have Credit at Home.

In the Yoruba country, West Africa, when a thirsty native finds he hasn't the price of a drink of gin he picks up one of his pickaninnies, takes it to the nearest bush saloon and pawns it for a drink. This custom was disclosed when Sir George White in the English house of commons asked if it wasn't a fact that "thousands of children are pawned by their parents for gin and kept in a condition of domestic slavery."

The undersecretary of the colonial office replied that the custom was widespread and quoted the following extract from a report by a committee composed of educated natives on the laws and customs of the Yoruba country:

"When a lender advances money to a borrower he asks the latter to provide an acceptable surety, who is responsible in default of payment by the borrower. The borrower is drawn into service for the lender one day in the week, the service representing interest for the money advanced. He lives in his own house.

"But if a child is provided as a substitute he is to live with and work for the lender as his child, the consideration for the loan being that the borrower is deprived of and the lender enjoys the services of the borrower's child. But by this arrangement the child does not become the slave of the lender."

DEMOCRATIC PLANS OUTLINED

Champ Clark Makes Platform Contingent on Victory.

Representative Champ Clark of Missouri, candidate for the speakership of the house of representatives in the event the Democrats win this fall, has outlined his party's plans and pledges if restored to control of the government in the Metropolitan Magazine as follows:

"If the Democrats are placed in control of the government, they will:

"1. Reduce the tariff to a revenue basis.

"2. Increase our trade by reciprocity treaties with foreign nations, particularly with Central and South America and with Canada. If we had acted with good sense during the last half century we now would have the bulk of all the trade of the western hemisphere, instead of a small fraction thereof.

"3. Abolish superfluous offices.

"4. Cut appropriations to the needs of the government economically administered, thereby reducing the burdens of the taxpayers.

"5. Restore our merchant marine to its ancient commanding position on the high seas, which Democrats once gave to it and which has been lost through Republican maladministration—restore it not through ship subsidy, but by the methods by which Democrats originally created it."

PRINCE JAIME BABY WARRIOR

Enlists In Spanish Infantry at Age of Two.

On the occasion of having completed the second year of his life recently, Prince Jaime, the second son of King Alfonso XIII. of Spain, was entered on the books of the Fourth regiment of field artillery as a private.

The commander of the regiment, Colonel La Sota, was received in solemn audience by the King for the purpose of presenting the correct uniform to the little prince, who having been born on June 23, 1908, at the Castle of San Ildefonso, is without doubt the youngest soldier in the world.

This record was held up to now by his eldest brother, his senior by about a year, who is attached as a private to the first regiment of infantry, known as the "Immemorial de Rey."

An Early Wall Paper.

On preparing a room in Bradbourne Hall, Derbyshire, in 1882, I found, partly covered by an old oak cupboard, considerable remains of quite early eighteenth century wall paper, of pale green tint, with a flowing pattern in darker color on it. This paper was made in squares of about twenty inches, and I was able to rescue two or more complete pieces. It had been printed on rather thick paper from woodcut blocks, and each square was nailed up with coarse iron tacks about one and a half inches apart, each tack being run through squares or washers of brown leather, so that both tack heads and washers showed all around each square of paper. It is possible that this wall paper was of late seventeenth century date. Bradbourne Hall, in the lower peak, is a picturesque house, almost unaltered, of the time of James I., having been then fashioned from the canonical house of the Augustins of Dunstable. It was just the place—"far from the madding crowd"—where curious details of domestic decorations would survive.—London Notes and Queries.

The Cynic's Point of View.

Of course we all like to know that our enemies are vulnerable, but it is only the cynical elect who can appreciate with fine epicurean fastidiousness the glorious revelation that their friends are human after all. And it is not only the weakness of those near and dear to us, but their misfortunes and annoyances, which give a thrill of illicit joy to those honest contortionists who can look in their own hearts. I once heard a young mother say that there was only one thing which gave her greater pleasure than hearing that the children of her friends were sick, and that was to hear that they were bad. No one but a brom-idiot (to borrow the excellent root with which Mr. Gelett Burgess has enriched us) would think of condemning this young woman for being malicious or unkind. Misery is not the only human quality that loves company. Some of her distant relatives — Anxiety, Discouragement, Annoyance—are equally sociable.—Atlantic.

The Forbidden City.

Peking has been a city for something like 3,000 years, first as the capital of a small state, then destroyed, again rebuilt and finally molded into the form in which we now know it, with its Chinese, Tartar, Imperial and Forbidden cities, each with its inclosing wall. Nobody has ever yet attempted to tell the full tale of its intrigues, its cabals, plots and counterplots. Few know anything about them. No one person knows them all. If only the bricks that form the walls could find a tongue, if only the pavilions on the Coal Hill could produce the sights and sounds that have fallen to their lot to see and hear, there would doubtless be a tale to tell which might vie in interest and dramatic force with anything that ancient Rome or Babylon has given, even through the medium of fiction.—Shanghai Mercury.

Midway East and West.

The geographical east and west center of the United States is near San Francisco. That city is about midway between the easternmost point in Maine and the westernmost point at the tip of the Aleutian islands, extending from Alaska out into the Pacific ocean.

The Verdict.

"How did your act take amateur night?"

"Great! When I sang the first verse they yelled 'Fine!' and when I sang the next they yelled 'Imprisonment!'"—Baltimore Sun.

HELPFUL WORDS

From a Quincy Citizen.

Is your back lame and painful?

Does it ache especially after exertion?

Is there a soreness in the kidney region?

These symptoms indicate weak kidneys:

There is danger in delay.

Weak kidneys fast get weaker.

Give your trouble prompt attention.

Doan's Kidney Pills act quickly.

They strengthen weak kidneys.

Read this Quincy testimony.

Mrs. J. Boyle, 8 Marsh street, Quincy, Mass., says: "I have used Doan's Kidney Pills and can say they are unequalled for kidney disorders. They built up my entire system and in six weeks, freed me from kidney complaint from which I had suffered for a long time."

Comptroller Must Have Bank Statements Promptly

FINE FOR DELINQUENT ONES

Several Hundred Institutions Which Have Become Afflicted With Chronic Delay Must Pay $100 For Each Day Report Is Held Back After "Call" Is Issued—Country Banks the Worst Offenders

Washington, July 28.—A fine of $100 a day and the publication of its offense now faces the national bank which fails to respond promptly to the "call" of the comptroller for a statement of its condition.

For many years the comptroller's office has been very lenient with the banks, and several hundred have become afflicted with chronic delay. First, second and even third telegrams have been sent to delinquent banks before a statement could be secured. Sometimes as many as 500 banks have been in arrears. There are almost 7000 national banks in the country and the comptroller is unable to print the consolidated statement until the last report is in. The figures are eagerly awaited by the financial world, and in critical times the showings might change materially during the periods of delay caused by the neglectful banks.

Comptroller Murray regards delay of this kind as inexcusable. On the circular calling for the report it is plainly printed that in case certain officers are not at hand, the figures may be sent in, and this information is supplemented, where a report has been delayed, by a special letter which advises the bank that in the absence of both president and cashier at the time a report is called for, a temporary report must be made up, sworn to by some other officer and forwarded immediately.

It is also permissible, where the signatures of three directors cannot be obtained without delaying the report, to forward the statement with such signatures attached as are immediately available. The comptroller holds that it should be possible for anyone connected with a bank to make a report from its books for any past date, the figures to be verified later by the officers.

Nothwithstanding the plain provisions of the official circular, many of the banks have been systematically delinquent. Until recently fines have been levied very seldom or not at all, and have not exceeded the minimum of $100. About a year ago Murray began to put on the screws a little, and now he has issued a peremptory notice that delinquent banks will be fined at the rate of $100 for each day the report is delayed after five days from the receipt of notice that a "call" has been issued.

Country banks constitute a majority of the offenders. The statutes give the comptroller the express power to levy the per diem fine and to deduct the amount out of the interest on the bonds deposited by the bank to secure its circulation. The money so collected goes into the general fund of the treasury.

In the future the comptroller will publish in his annual report the name of every bank which has been fined during the fiscal year, the officers responsible, the amount of the fine and the cause of its imposition.

Cuban Government Makes Light of Revolutionary Movement

Havana, July 28.—Senor Pasalodos, secretary to President Gomez, issued the following official statement regarding the occurrences in Oriente province, which are believed to be the beginning of a widespread revolutionary movement:

"The government only knows that General Miniet and twelve men took the field in insurrection from an unknown cause in the vicinity of El Caney. They have now taken refuge in a difficult hill country, where they are being hotly pursued by forces of the rural guard and by infantry from the garrison in the city of Santiago. Nothing is known of any other uprising."

SYNOPSIS

(CHAPTER XVI—Continued.)

"Can you drop in at my chambers for a few minutes?" John Steele had written. "A few minutes." The blue eyes shone with impatience. He was leaving London, Captain Forsythe had informed her, and, she concluded, he wanted to see her uncle before he left. But not her; no. She had driven there, however, with Sir Charles on some light pretext—for want of something better to do—to be out in the air—

"I'll wait here in the cab," she had said to her uncle when he had left it before John Steele's dwelling. "At least," meeting the puzzled gaze that had rested on her more than once lately, "I may or may not wait. If I get tired, if when you come back you don't find me, just conclude," capriciously, "I have gone on some little errand of my own—shopping, perhaps."

She recalled these words now, found it intolerable to sit still. Abruptly she rose and stepped from the cab.

She half started to move away, looked toward the house. Brass plates variously disposed around the entrance and appearing nearly all alike as to form and size stared at her. One metal sign a shock headed lad was removing—"John Steele." She read the plain, modest letters, the inscription "Barrister" beneath. She caught her breath slightly.

"Uncle is certainly very long," she repeated mechanically.

"Why don't you go in and see wot's detaining of him?" vouchsafed the cabby in amicable fashion as he regarded the hesitating, slender figure.

"Third floor to the right, miss," said the boy, occupied in removing the sign and stepping aside as he spoke to allow her to pass. "If it's Mr. Steele's office you're looking for. You'll see 'Barrister' in brass letters, as I said to the old gentleman. I haven't got at them yet—to take them down, I mean."

"Thank you," she said irresolutely and without intending to enter found herself within the hall. There a narrow stairway lay before her. He pointed to it, with an excess of juvenile solicitude and politeness, boyhood's involuntary tribute to youth and beauty in need of assistance. He told her to go on "straight up."

And she did unreasoningly, mechanically—one flight, two flights!

Near his door! About to turn, to retrace her steps, an illogical sequence to the illogical action that had preceded it, she was held to the spot by the door suddenly opening. A man—a servant, broom in hand—who had evidently been engaged in cleaning one of the chambers within was stepping out.

"You wished to see Mr. Steele?"

The proud head nodded affirmatively to the inquiry.

"Well, you can be stepping into the library, miss," said the man. "Mr. Steele is engaged just now."

Jocelyn on the instant found no reason for refusing. The door closed behind her, and she looked around. She stood in a library alone. Beyond, in another chamber, she heard voices—her uncle's, John Steele's.

CHAPTER XVII.

PAST AND PRESENT.

"THOSE boxes contained books—yours, Sir Charles," were the first words the girl caught.

"Mine! Bless my soul!" her uncle's surprised voice broke in. "You don't mean to tell me that all those volumes I had boxed for Australia and which I thought lost on the Lord Nelson came ashore on your little coral isle?"

Came ashore on his coral isle! The girl caught at the words. Of course he had been saved—he who had saved her from the wild sea. She had realized that after their last meeting at Strathorn House. But how?

"Exactly!" said John Steele succinctly.

"Bless my soul!" Sir Charles' amazed voice could only repeat. "I remember most of those books well—a brave array—poets, philosophers, lawmakers! Then that accounts for your— It is like a fairy tale."

"A fairy tale!" Jocelyn Wray gazed around her at books, books on every side. She regarded the door leading out, was half mindful to go, but heard the manservant in the hall and lingered.

"Nothing so pleasant, I assure you," John Steele answered Sir Charles shortly. Then, with a few words, he painted a picture uncompromisingly. The girl shrank back. Perhaps she wished she had not come. This, truly was no fairy tale, but a wild, savage drama, primeval, the picture of a soul battling with itself on the little, lonely isle. She could see the hot, angry sun, feel its scorching rays, hear the hissing of the waves. All the man's strength for good, for ill, went into the story. The isle became as the pit of Acheron.

"When the man woke," he had said, "he cursed the sea for bringing him, as he thought, nothing. One desire tormented him. It became intolerable. Day after day he went down to the ocean, but the surf only leaped in derision. For the thousandth time he cursed it, the isle to which he was bound. Weeks passed, until, almost mad through the monotony of the long hours, one day he inadvertently picked up a book. The brute convict could just read. Where, how he ever learned, I forget. He began to pick out the words. After that"—

Through the long months, the long years, the man had fought for knowledge as he had always fought for anything—with all his strength, passion, energy.

"Incredible! By Jove!" She heard Sir Charles' voice, awed and admiring. "I am glad to have had your confidence and—and—tell me, how did you happen to light on the law for special study and preparation?"

"You forget that about half your superb library was law books, Sir Charles. A most comprehensive collection!"

"The law—the ramifications it creates for the many, the attendant restraints for the individual—I confess interested me. You can imagine a personal reason or—an abstract one. From the lonely perspective of a tiny coral isle, a system or systems—codes of conduct or morals built up for the swarming millions, so to speak—could not but possess fascination for one to whom those millions had become only as the faraway shadows of a dream."

"As a boy!" John Steele repeated the words almost mechanically. "My parents died when I was a child. They came of good stock—New England." He uttered the last part of the sentence involuntarily—stopped. "I was bound out, was beaten. I fought, ran away. In lumber camps, the drunken riffraff cursed the new scrub boy, on the Mississippi the sailors and stevedores kicked him because the mate kicked them. Everywhere it was the same. The boy learned only one thing—to fight. Fight or be beaten!

"In a wordly sense I prospered after I was rescued—in New Zealand, in Tasmania. Fate, as if to atone for having delayed her favors, now lavished them freely. Work became easy. A mine or two that I was lucky enough to locate yielded and continues to yield unexpected returns."

"And then, having fairly, through your own efforts, won a place in the world, having conquered fortune, why did you return to England knowing the risk that some one of these fellows like Gillett, the police agent, might"—

"Why," said John Steele, "because I wished to sift, to get to the very bottom of, this crime for which I was convicted. For all real wrongdoing, resisting officers of the law, offenses against officialdom, I had paid the penalty in full, I believe. But this other matter—that was different. It weighed on me through those years on the island and afterward. A jury had convicted me wrongfully. But I had to prove it, to satisfy myself, to find out beyond any shadow of a doubt, and"—

"He did." For the first time Captain Forsythe spoke. "Steele has in his possession full proofs of his innocence, and I have seen them. They go to show that he suffered through the cowardice of a miserable cad, a titled scoundrel who struck his hand from the gunwale of the boat when the Lord Nelson went down. Yes, you told that story in your fevered ramblings, Steele."

"Forsythe"—the other's voice rang out warningly—"didn't I tell you the part he played was to be forgotten unless"—

"All right; have your way," grudgingly.

"A titled scoundrel! There was only one person of rank on the Lord Nelson besides myself, and— Forsythe"—the old nobleman's voice called out sharply—"you have said too much or too little."

John Steele made a gesture. "I have given my word not to"—

"But I haven't!" said Captain Forsythe. "The confession I procured and what I subsequently learned led me directly to— Here is the tale, Sir Charles."

It was over at last. They were gone. Sir Charles and Captain Forsythe. Their hand clasps still lingered in his.

(To be Concluded.)

INFANTS' DEATH TOTAL GROWING

New York City and Germany Are Alarmed.

STATISTICS CAUSE PROBING.

Health Department of American Metropolis Arraigned In Report—Kaiser's Investigators Find That Mortality Rate In British Empire Is Much Lower Throughout.

A tremendous growth in infant mortality has aroused consternation in New York city. Across the seas a similar cry comes from Germany.

The situation in New York led to the issuance of a statement by the bureau of municipal research, which arraigned the department of health, charging that city physicians devote so much time to their private practice that they are unable to serve the city properly.

Totals Are Alarming.

The report indicates the seriousness of the situation by citing these statistics:

"In the first week in June 20 per cent more babies under one year of age died than in the same time last year," says the statement. "The excess during the second week in June was 30 per cent, the third week 10 per cent, the fourth 30 per cent, the first week of July 60 per cent, the second week 55 per cent and the third week of July 75 per cent.

"The week preceding July 2, when 60 per cent more babies died than last year, the maximum temperature was three degrees lower than in 1909, the mean temperature was more than four degrees lower and the mean humidity was seven degrees lower. In the week of July, when 55 per cent more babies died than the year before, the maximum temperature was one degree lower than in 1909, the mean temperature was a little over one degree lower and the mean humidity was four degrees lower."

Germany is alarmed over the rise in infant mortality in the empire, which now exceeds 17 per cent. Out of 2,000,000 persons born during the year 351,000 died under the age of one year. The highest mortality by kingdoms is in Bavaria, 22 per cent. The lowest mortality, 16.8 per cent, is in Prussia. Of the German cities Hamburg has the best record, which is under 14 per cent. The infant mortality in the other typical cities is:

	Per cent.
Breslau	23.2
Munich	20.4
Leipsic	17.5
Strassburg	17.3
Berlin	16.4
Stuttgart	15.7
Dresden	15.2

English Mortality Lower.

As compared with the British isles the infant mortality in Germany is very high. Here are some English figures for a year:

	Per cent.
United Kingdom	10.8
England and Wales	11.8
London	11.6
Edinburgh	12.1
Scotland	11.5
Ireland	9.2

In New York, based on the number of births, the infantile mortality, by the latest statistics from the health department, 1910, is about 10 per cent. The great increase in the price of food in America has led American doctors to ask if America is not in danger of a deterioration of race due to insufficient nourishment. This would show first of all in infantile mortality, but the data would not be available in America until the end of the present year.

EVEN ROOSEVELT FALTERED.

Years of Talk In Invitations He Has Declined.

Theodore Roosevelt recently received the two thousand and thirty-fourth invitation to deliver an address that has been urged upon him since his return to the United States on June 18.

If he made one speech each calendar day it would take him 5 years and 208 days to make 2,034 of them.

If he made one speech each week day it would take him 6 years and 155 days.

Roosevelt speeches average about an hour in length. Two thousand and thirty-four of them, delivered continuously, would consume 84 days and 18 hours, or 234 days and 3 hours if he observed the eight hour day of the Public Speakers' union.

Talking at the rate of 75 words a minute, which is the Roosevelt average, 2,034 speeches would embrace 9,153,000 words.

To print these 9,153,000 words would take 9,153 newspaper columns and would make 1,144 pages, with one column over.

WAKE UP!!

MR. MERCHANT

When business is dull wake it up by having a genuine bargain sale!

There are goods on your shelves and in your back room, perhaps a little shopworn or slightly soiled that should be turned into cash. Move them by reducing the price, and advertise the fact.

Bargain sales should be so conducted that many of the purchasers will become regular customers—otherwise little good comes of offering reduced prices.

The bargain sale gives you the opportunity to dispose of slow selling goods at cost and attracts attention to your store.

In this city of 33000 people there are hundreds that spend their weekly pay in the big city. These people have not acquired the habit of coming your way. Get them into the habit by using the advertising columns of the LEDGER.

To make a success of his business, a merchant must advertise and advertise effectively.

The Circulation of the Ledger is increasing every day

It goes into the homes of the buying public and is there read by the husband, the wife, the children and the servant.

¶ Placing your ad. in the LEDGER is part of the effective advertising. The other part is to have it written by an advertising specialist.

¶ This is an age of specialists. When you have an advertisement to write, why not call in an advertising specialist, thus saving time, trouble and money.

¶ The advertising rates of the LEDGER are within your reach. Its columns preach "trade in Quincy," and now Mr. Merchant it is up to you to keep these 33000 people fully informed in regard to your store and your goods, and keep Quincy money in Quincy.

BRIEFS

The tides are just right this week for afternoon swimming.

It is expected that the tax rate of Quincy for the current year will be announced by the Assessors on Friday.

The little son born to Mr. and Mrs. Louis A. Round of Bigelow street two weeks ago is a wee mite of a fellow, weighting less than two pounds, but he is thought to have a chance.

City Treasurer Curtis has awarded the consolidated loan of $56,825 at 4 1-2 per cent to E. H. Rollins & Sons at 102.176. Bids were also opened today for a temporary loan of $35,000 maturing March 15, 1911.

The trolley wire at the corner of Hancock and Temple streets broke this morning ,and when it struck the ground it went off with a loud report. A rope was tied about it and it was drawn up out of harm's way.

Nearly 200 members of the Harbor Outing vacation club held their first summer outing Wednesday at Seal Rock inn, Squantum, a house that is the property of the club. An elaborate program for the amusement of the party was carried out.

SEAWANHAKA CUP.

The Massachusetts won again Wednesday for the second time as defender of teh Seawanhaka cup. The St. Lawrence was over seven minutes behind.

THAYER ACADEMY NOTES.

Miss Phoebe L. Hosmer of Orange, Mass., a graduate of the University of California in 1897, will teach French and German in the academy the next year. She has been teaching for the last three years in the High school at Stamford, Conn.

Dr .and Mrs. Gallagher and their daughter Rebecca go next Monday to Ogunquit, Maine, for five weeks.

After three weeks' relay the stone for the tower has come, and work will be resumed immediately.

—The assertion that a higher state of civilization prevails in Massachusetts than in some of the adjoining states is admitted by the Hartford Times, which bases its conclusion on our recently amended automobile law, and especially that part of it which provides that "no bell, horn, or other device for signalling shall be sounded so as to make a harsh, objectionable noise." There is nothing to prevent other states from following the Massachusetts example ,thereby attaining the same high standard of civilization, in this respect at least.—Milford Gazette.

One of the best pieces of property at Houghs Neck is to be sold at auction on Saturday by Auctioneer Johnson. The house is well built and modern and has one of the finest views from Great hill.

AMUSING CONTESTS

At Lawn Party of the Hall Place Church

The annual lawn party of the Hall Place M. E. church was held at "Shady Nook," 7 Hall Place, Wednesday evening. The grounds were well lighted with Japanese lanterns and lamps.

The entrance to the grounds was through an archway decorated with the National colors, red, white and blue.

Each table was decorated in a different color. The committees on the different tables were as follows:

Ice Cream—Mrs. Badger, Mrs. J. McCormick, Miss May Williams and Miss Grace Turner.

Fancy Table—Mrs. Hawes, Mrs. W. McCormick, Miss Maud Hodgkinson and Mrs. Thomas.

Candy— Miss Beryl Hannant, Miss Annabel Scott, Miss Mary J. Williams and Miss Jennie Doble.

Lemonade—Miss Ada Williams and Miss Florence Manhire.

Fish Pond—Miss Catherine Hodgkinson and Mrs. John Pearce.

Peanuts—Charles Jose.

Contests—Rev. Carl H. Raupach and Enoch Fuller.

The decorations were: Ice cream table, orange; Candy, pink and green; Lemonade, pink; Fish Pond, red, white and blue and yellow; Fancy table, white.

Miss Maud Hodgkinson had charge of a popular voting list to ascertain who was the most popular lady. The young lady receiving the largest number of votes was presented with a handsome sofa pillow. When the list was closed at 9.30, Miss Hilda Francis had the largest number of votes and received the pillow, which was given to the committee by a friend.

At 9 o'clock the fun provoking contests were held. The first was a cruller race, in which a number of boys and girls participated. The crullers were tied by a short piece of string to a line strung overhead. The object was to see who could eat their cruller first without touching it with their hands. Needless to say, some didn't even get the first bite, as the line kept swinging back and forth, the crullers bobbing here and there and everywhere, except in a position to bite. Master Wesley Williams secured first prize.

The next was a blueberry pie race. Eight contestants entered and each kneeled at a bench with their hands behind their back, and at a given signal were required to eat an eighth of a blueberry pie which had previously been placed before them. The pie had to be eaten from the plate without being touched by the hands. At the close of the contest there were eight faces well besmirched with blueberries. Julius Fuller was the winner of the prize.

During the evening music was furnished by the Finnish band of South Quincy.

Looking For "the Crazy Ones."

A woman got off a Darby car at Thirty-fourth street and Woodland avenue the other day, entered the university campus and started toward College hall, walking with brisk determination, yet looking wonderingly about her the while.

In front of the library a university youth met her, and she accosted him quickly.

"Young man," she said, "will you please tell me where they keep the crazy ones?"

"Wh-what?" stammered the college man.

She repeated her question in somewhat different form.

"I want the insane department," she said. "I have a friend who is a nurse there. I thought I'd make her a little visit. Isn't this the Philadelphia hospital?"—Philadelphia Times.

Unconscious Humor.

Mark Twain, as an example of unconscious humor, used to quote a Hartford woman who said one day in the late spring:

"My husband is the dearest fellow.

"'Jim,' I said to him this morning, 'are you very hard up just now?'

"'I certainly am hard up,' he replied soberly. 'This high cost of living is terrible. I don't know what I'm going to do.'

"'Then, Jim,' said I, 'I'll give up all thought of going to the country for July and August this year.'

"But the dear fellow's face changed, and he said:

"'Indeed, then, you won't, darling. I thought you wanted to buy a hat with an aigret or some such foolishness. No, no, my darling! Jim can always find the money to let his dear little wife go to the country."—Washington Star.

A Puzzle.

Mother (reprovingly to little girl just ready to go for a walk)—Dolly, that hole was not in your glove this morning. Dolly (promptly)—Where was it, then, mamma?

BRENNAN FINED $100

Charged With Renting Building for Illegal Sales

Several hours were consumed in the district court today in hearing the case against Patrick Brennan for letting a building knowing it was to be used for the illegal sale of liquor. Judge Pratt was on the bench, and Brennan was represented by J. J. McAnarney, while Officer Goodhue represented the government.

There were several sharp tilts between the officer and Lawyer McAnarney during the trial ,and several laughable incidents ,especially when Brennan testified to the many times he had sent Mrs. Nelson and others for liquid refreshments, although he claimed he did not know where the parties got the liquor. He sent for the liquor when he had the headache which was often. He also said that he drank 100 quarts of rum to one quart of beer, and that his memory was poor on things that took place tomorrow.

At the conclusion of the hearing the court imposed a fine of $100. The imposing of the sentence, however, was put off until Friday, when an appeal will probably be taken.

Easy.

The voter approached the politician with his usual humility.

"What will we do with the new bathtub trust?" he asked.

The politician presently looked up with his usual show of annoyance.

"Eh! What? It'll come in handy to whitewash the other trusts in," he said.

Double bowing the voter backed out.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

TO BREED SEALS IN INLAND LAKES

Bering Sea Monopoly of Fur Is Threatened.

NORTHERN STATES AVAILABLE

Government Experiments at Washington Prove That Animals Will Thrive In Captivity, Even In Torrid Summer Climate of National Capital. Solves Perpetuation of Species.

Seal farming is the latest enterprise that government authorities suggest for New York state folks—the raising of the real fur bearing seals, now taken only on the Pribilof and other islands in the Bering sea.

This may seem a trifle extravagant, but George M. Bowers, commissioner of fisheries, is authority for the statement that the government has demonstrated that these fur bearing seals can be propagated in the fresh water lakes of New York state.

Christmas Presents Handy.

Apparently a Christmas present of a sealskin coat by a New York lakeside farmer soon will be largely a matter of telling his wife to go down to the "rookery" back of the house and take her pick of live pelts.

Mr. Bowers' statement is based on experiments that the bureau of fisheries has been conducting for the last six months. The bureau has had two fur bearing seal pups in captivity and has demonstrated not only that the pups can be raised by hand, but that they will thrive in fresh water and will stand a sweltering Washington summer.

This experiment by the bureau of fisheries has poked a large hole in the theory heretofore held by naturalists that fur bearing seals will not live in captivity or outside their natural habitat.

Means Seals' Perpetuation.

What the demonstration by the bureau of fisheries may mean in a commercial way can hardly be appreciated. The trade in skins taken on the Pribilof islands has amounted to more than $50,000,000 since the government came into possession of these small bits of barren lands. The United States has received $9,000,000 alone for the privilege of hunting on these islands, which is $2,000,000 more than the government paid for all of Alaska.

When the United States bought these islands in connection with Alaska there were 5,000,000 seals on them. Now there are only 170,000, and the government has been obliged to terminate its lease with the Alaska Commercial company with a view to giving the herd an opportunity to multiply.

"What I would like to know," observed one Washington philosopher, "is whether the women folks will accept sealskins after we get to growing them at home."

FOOD COLORS LATEST FAD.

Londoners Now Eating In Fashionable Tints.

Fashions are not confined to hats and clothes in London. It has been discovered that residents of the metropolis are also exceedingly particular that the food they buy shall be of the fashionable tint.

Salmon, for instance, remains unsold if it is not the required shade of deep rose. If it is too light no one will have it, though dealers say its flavor is just as good.

In haddock an exactly opposite taste prevails; only light colored haddock is purchased, though the bright yellow fish is of as excellent quality as that of pale cream color.

In poultry London insists upon white or black legged chickens and will not buy fowls with yellow legs, though they are just as good. Gray geese are scorned in favor of white, though a countryman who knows something of poultry farming will prefer the gray goose.

In eggs the brown variety reigns supreme favorite, though they are not a bit richer than white eggs. Pale cheese and buttercup yellow butter are also in great demand because their color pleases the public.

Bright yellow bananas are far more popular than the spotted fruit of paler hue, which are of better flavor. Bright colored apples and pears bring more than brown pears or green apples, which are just as sweet, while grapes with bloom on them are worth 12 cents a pound more.

Steamer Is Mosquito Proof.

The latest thing in steamships is a mosquito proof craft specially designed for use between Liverpool and West African ports. Professor Donald Ross's recommendations have been carried out by the owners for mosquito proofing all living quarters. Copper gauze fittings are provided for all doors, windows, side ports, skylights, ventilators and passages to prevent the malaria bearing mosquito entering.

College Course For Country Clergy.

The Massachusetts Agricultural college offers a summer course for country teachers and clergymen. The clergymen's course is for the purpose of acquainting the ministers with the problems of the rural community, in order that they may take an active part in the movement now on toward rural progress.

RAMSDELL PLEASES ENGLISH

University of Pennsylvania Sprinter Being Lionized Abroad.

Every now and then an American athlete becomes a hero in England. The latest athlete wearing the colors of Uncle Sammy to come in for lionizing is "Tex" Ramsdell, the great sprinter of the University of Pennsylvania. Just now "Tex" has a prominent place in the hearts of the British sporting public.

And, strange as it may seem, Ramsdell's popularity is due to his defeating Reginald Walker of South Africa, for long one of England's most popular athletes. In defeating Walker twice Ramsdell annexed both the 100 and

"TEX" RAMSDELL, WHO DEFEATED WALKER.

220 yard British championships. Ramsdell won both titles handily.

Immediately after his double defeat of Walker the English public took Ramsdell to its heart, so to speak. He received more than a score of invitations to compete in athletic meets throughout the United Kingdom the following Saturday. That was the beginning of Ramsdell's lionizing.

Since then hardly a day goes by without his receiving many invitations to compete in athletic events. In addition he is more or less of a social lion.

PICTURE MEN THE GOATS.

Jeff and Johnson May Count Money and Laugh Themselves Sick.

The moving pictures of the heavyweight fight are moving over a rocky road. There are a number of things to detract from their value. First and foremost is the fact that Johnson won. Second is the fact that Johnson stalled, allowing Jeffries to stay until the fifteenth round. Third, the pictures have received a bad impression through the fact that a number of cities have already barred them.

However, the fate of the pictures need not worry the fighters. Jeffries is in California and Johnson is in the east, and both are still busy counting their money. The negro is now reputed to be worth a quarter of a million dollars. Jeff's assets are not far from that.

SONDER BOAT TRIALS.

Races to Be Held Off Marblehead, Mass., Aug. 17.

Great preparations are being made for the sonder yacht class trials to be held at Marblehead, Mass., Aug. 8. The trials are to select three American sonder class boats to meet three from Spain in races to be sailed off Marblehead Aug. 17. Moreover, the trials will also be a preliminary test for trials to be held in Buzzard's bay in September for the selection of a team to be sent to Kiel for international races in June, 1911.

Catcher Kleinow Strengthened Boston.

When the Boston American league club picked up Jack Kleinow it made a wise move, for with Carrigan on the injured list the Speed Boys would find themselves in a bad way for catchers had Kleinow not been secured. Carrigan and Kleinow make a great pair of catchers for Boston. Both are good throwers, know the game and can be figured on holding up their end with the bat.

UNGLAUB STICKS TO HIS OLD BAT AND GLOVE.

Bob Unglaub, first sacker of the Washington club, has been in the American league for close on to eight years. During all that time he has used but one bat, while for his first base play he has had but one mitt. His bat he guards as though it were a priceless jewel. He does not lay it with the other bats in front of the bench, but has it up in one corner where he can keep his eye on it. He does not use it in practice, but during the progress of a game depends upon it altogether for bunting as well as slamming out long hits.

Vol. 24 No. 175 QUINCY, MASS., FRIDAY EVENING, JULY 29 1910 PRICE TWO CENTS

A REDUCTION IN THE TAX RATE

QUINCY'S TAX RATE
$20 PER $1,000

Reduction of Forty Cents from Last Year and Fifty Cents from 1908

The Year 1908 Was High Record for the City

The Assessors of Quincy today report a tax rate of $20.00 per $1,000 for the year 1910. This is a reduction of 40 cents from last year, and 50 cents from 1908.

The valuation of the city is $32,458,055.00, which includes $24,991,000.00 in real estate and $7,219,625.00 in personal estate. The increase in real estate was $860,525.00, and the increase in personal estate $1,652,565, the latter largely on account of the estate of the late William B. Rice.

The increase in valuation is the largest of any one year in the history of the city, and is a big factor in bringing about a reduction in the tax rate.

The Assessors' figures of 1910 and 1909 are compared below, and it will be seen that the total levy is $41,163.80 larger than last year. The amount for municipal current expenses is $34,768.50 larger and the State tax $8,215.00 larger. The County tax is $124.75 smaller. Changes will be noted in most of the other items. The Assessors find it necessary to raise by taxation $19,148.45 on account of Metropolitan water assessments, and also $28,851.43 on account of sewer construction.

HAS POLICE RECORD.

Officer Goodhue received a letter from the police at Providence, R. I., this morning giving him the record of George Pollock, the man whom he arrested while trying to sell a new bicycle for $6 which he had stolen at Brockton. The record shows that Pollock was committed from Providence in 1904 for breaking and entering, and that he was committed in New York state in 1908 and 1909 for stealing bicycles. The Providence police however have no warrant for Pollock at the preesnt itme.

INQUEST TODAY.

An inquest was held before Judge Avery this morning on the death of Elizabeth F. Kennedy, the 16 months old child that was killed by the Cape train at South Braintree, June 29. This is the case where the little child wandered onto the railroad tracks in front of the fast approaching express train. She was seen by the crossing tender who raced up the tracks in an effort to reach her before the train arrived but was unsuccessful.

WILLS BEFORE PROBATE COURT

One from Weymouth and One From Dedham

The will of Maria Ann Baker of South Weymouth, which has several peculiar bequests, was also among those offered for probate at Norfolk Probate court this week. The estate amounts to $5,000. One of the provisions read that $500 shall be paid to each of the five sons and $500 to the daughter. The provision further states that should any of the beneficiaries contest the will ,such beneficiary shall be debarred from receiving any of the money to be distributed.

One of the sons, Howard Baker, in addition to the $500, is left all the household goods and furniture, with the provision that if he presents a claim against the estate for any board, or services of any sort rendered in the past to his mother, he shall be debarred from receiving any of the money left.

The will of Alfred D. Rodman of Dedham, which disposes of an estate valued at $195,000, came up at the same sossoi nof court. Mr. Rodman who is survived by his widow, Harriet D. Rodman, and one son, Alfred Rodman, Jr., provided that his widow be given $2,000 in cash for her immediate use, while the rest of the real an dpersonal estate be turned over to the Bay State Trust Company for investment. The income derived from the investment is to be turned over quarterly to Mrs. Rodman and on her decease to revert to the son, Alfred.

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

Congratulations to Mayor Shea and the Board of Assessors on a reduction of Quincy's tax rate, which is for the second successive year. Taxpayers would not have been surprised if there had been an increase, knowing of the increase in the State tax, and liberal appropriations by the City Council, but let us hope the rate of $20.50 in 1908 was Quincy's high mark. The tax rate of a city should never exceed $20, but this year it is $20.30 in Brockton, $20.10 in Cambridge, 21.70, in Marlboro, $22.40 in Chelsea, and half the cities have not reported. Several of the towns also have a tax rate above $20. The cities of Malden, Melrose and Pittsfield report larger tax rates than in 1909.

Quincy has been a municipality 118 years, 96 years as a town and 22 years as a city. As a town the rate never exceeded $17.50, whlie as a city teh rates have averaged $17.44.

Previous to 1865 the tax rate of Quincy was never in excess of $10.00 per $1,000, and usually much less. Since 1865 the rate has been as follows:

In	1865,	$13 00	In 1887,		$15 80
	1866,	13 00	1888,		16 70
	1867,	17 00	1889,		10 80

			1909		20 40
			1910		20 00

The figures of the Assessors show an increase in valuation of $2,513,090.-00, but it was really $120,525.00 in excess of this amount as this year's amount was net after reduction of exemption under the Soldiers' act and other acts, while the total of 1909 was gross. The increase of valuation was actually $2,633,615.00, of which $981,050 was on real estate. The Assessors have certainly been awake to their duties to find so much new property in the city. The increase in valuation in 22 years is over a million dollars a year as will be seen from the figures below, Quincy becoming a city in 1888:

	Amount.	Increase.
1888,	$9,757,960
1889,	12,319,245	$2,561,285
1890,	13,677,410	1,358,165
1891,	14,427,030	749,620
1892,	15,566,920	1,138,899
1893,	16,638,070	1,071,150
1894,	16,817,455	179,385

1904,	24,032,270	995,390
1905,	25,578,710	1,546,340
1906,	26,786,885	1,208,175
1907,	27,169,055	382,170
1908,	28,616,265	1,447,210
1909,	29,944,965	1,328,700
1910,	32,458,055	2,513,090
Total increase in 22 years		$22,700,095

The increase in valuation in three years has been $5,409,525. The assessed valuation of the city has increased in 22 year sfrom $9,757,960 as a town to $32,458,055 as a city, and Quincy is moving up in Massachusetts not alone in population but in valuation, having passed other cities in the race.

—Thomas A. Edison says that in 15 years time fifty billion dollars will be invested in electricity in this country and that ten times as many people will be enployed in the electrical industry.

DRIFT OF OPINION.

Almost everybody is going away for a vacation; the city people are going to the country an dthe country people are going to the city. Which is as it ought to be, for what we need for rest is a change. But wherever we go, we are going to pass some of our Sundays, and Sunday is the time to go to church, wheresoever we are. There is not the slightest reason that any one should feel that he has been overworked in his church-going during the year; he has not been more than twice a week at best, and it will not wear him out to go again during the vacatio n. And we wish that people would go to church to worship, not to "see how they do it here!" The city people who are in the country should go into the little unpretentious building, not to feel the difference between that church and what they are used to. The country people should go to church in the city, (if they can find a city church open!) not to be filled with wonder at the elaborate appointments and service, but to worship God, who is there, however much people may have tried to hide Him! Do not waste a Sunday in simple laziness; go to church on a Sunday morning and breathe into your soul a little bit of the Divine Spirit which sustains your best life.—Universalist Leader.

Everyone who can command the time and has tre means seems to be having a vacation and much needed rest. Looking out from our office window on the deserted appearance of our streets, we have frequently wondered why some movement has not been made to give the poor horses attached to delivery wagons, heavy trucks and tip-carts, a vacation for a week or so during the hot weather. Surely they need it, and one looks with pity on these poor dumb animals, as patiently from day to day they do their master's will, and we would look with the keenest pleasure upon a concerted movement to give them a week's rest. Every owner of a horse or horses, could easily arrange this humane matter, and whe naccomplished we can appreciate the keen satisfaction the owner must feel in having accomplished something worthy of public commendation. Giving the horses a vacation is a good movement, and let all join in passing it along.—Hyde Park Gazette.

TWO HUNDRED IN CRASH

Many Are Hurt When Reserved Seats In Circus Collapse

Richmond, Ky., July 29.—More than a score of persons were injured, five seriously, when the reserved seat section collapsed under the tent in which a circus was exhibiting.

Two hundred persons were caught in the crash. Employes of the circus extricated the injured from the wreckage and a threatened panic did not reach serious proportions.

THE USE OF FLOWERS.

MARY HOWITT

God might have made the earth bring forth
Enough for great and small,
The oak tree and the cedar tree,
Without a flower at all
We might have had enough, enough,
For every want of ours,
For luxury, medicine, and toil
And yet have had no flowers.

Then wherefore, wherefore were they made
All dyed with rainbow-light,
All fashioned with the supremest grace,
Upspringing day and night—
Springing in the valleys green and low,
And on the mountains high,
And in the silent wilderness
Where no man passes by?

Our outward life requires them not—
Then wherefore had they birth?
To minister delight to man,
To beautify the earth;
To comfort man—to whisper hope,
Whene'er his faith is dim,
For Who so careth for the flowers
Will care much more for him!

—Taken all in all, the hot weather in itself is not half as bad for people as the iced drinks that so many of them pour down their throats. Nothing could be worse for a man heated by a temperature of 93 degrees than to guzzle a lot of ice cold drinks. Drinking in hot weather or cold weather, for that matter, is largely a matter of habit. Many a person drinks nothing between meals even on the hottest sumemr days and feels no discomfort from the abstinence. The man who drinks cold drinks because he is warm will be warmer and will perspire more after his drink tha nif he had taken nothing; iced drinks only create thirst. Anyway, strictly speaking, there is nothing more cooling to the system or more refreshing on a hot day than a cup of good hot tea freshly made. For a few minutes it causes perspiration but after that a person becomes cool. If a few drops of lemon are mixed with the tea, the drink is all the more refreshing and beneficial.

QUINCY OF YEARS AGO

Building of Bunker Hill Monument Developed Our Granite

(Historical Paper No. 25.)

An earlier paper in this series told of the anxiety in 1715 that the supply of Quincy granite might become exhausted ,and gave a vote of the town prohibiting the quarrying of large quantities. Not until the building of Bunker Hill monument of stone was Quincy granite developed. Pattee's History says:

In 1822, the question began to be agitated in regard to erecting a monument on Bunker Hill, in commemoration of this American marathon. After the committee had been chosen on the design, they finally agreed with Solomon Willard that it should be in the style of an obelisk. This design having been agreed upon, the next question was the selection of a suitable architect and superintendent for the construction of this patriotic and noble enterprise. At the first meeting of the committee they made the judicious selection of Mr. Willard for that purpose Oct. 31, 1825.

As soon as Mr. Willard had been selected for this important trust, he found that the arduous task of selecting a sufficient amount of appropriate material for its construction devolved on him. He declared this was one of the most laborious and difficult undertakings in connection with the building of the obelisk, for the reason that the use of stone for building purposes was little known, or not known at all in the form of large-sized blocks of syenite ,as he desired for this object. Mr. Willard immediately commenced his explorations for this project, and after having walked three hundred miles, critically examining quarries in various palces, finally decided for color, durability and all other requirements desired of stone for the erection of this monument, that the Quincy granite syenite was the best. The quarry approved of by Mr. Willard was what is called the Bunker Hill Quarry, and consisted of four acres. It was purchased in June, 1825, by Gridley Bryant, of Frederick Hardwick, for which was paid two hundred and fifty dolairs and sold by Mr. Bryant to the company for a slight advance.

Previous to this, Amos Lawrence one of the building committee, had also purchased a quarry at Rockport, Cape Ann, for building the monument. This quarry, not being considered as desirable for the purpose as the one selected by Mr. Willard, was given up. If the quarry purchased by Mr. Lawrence had been of the desired quality, it would in all probability have been many years before the quarries of Quincy stone would have achieved their present celebrity.

The opening of these stone quarries led to the discovery and opening of other quarries which had laid dormant since the creation. It also was the cause of the building of the first railroad in America. This road was constructed for the more rapid transportation of the stone to Charlestown for the construction of the monument, but did not meet the expecattions of Mr. Willard. It also gave an impetus to the stone business by bringing to the attention of the community a building material, which has adorned many of our cities with a class of noble and substantial buildings, both public and private. This experiment of Mr. Willard in opening the stone quarries in this place has added millions of dollars to the wealth of individuals and the city, as well as to enable the Bunker Hill Monument Association to procure first-class material to erect the monument.

Six years after the opening of the Bunker Hill Quarry, Mr. Willard wrote the following letter to Mr. Joseph Grinnell, of New Bedford, which gives a fair insight into the stone business of that period:—

"The high price demanded for granite for the fifteen years past, and particularly for blocks of large dimensions, has had a tendency to discourage the use of it, and my object in engaging in the stone business was not to make money, but to make experiments in order to remove the obstructions to the extensive use of granite as a building material, and to ascertain the lowest price at which it could be afforded with the common facilities for doing business. I felt the profession of architect, which I had followed ten years in Boston, and took charge of a corps of quarrymen ,at the Bunker Hill Quarry, in Quincy six years ago the fifteenth of the present November. The committee of that work had previously advertised for proposals for furnishing the stone required ,and received but one, and that was sixty-two cents per cubic foot, for the raw material delivered in Charlestown. A combination had taken place among the dealers in stone to keep up the prices, as is usually the case. The quarrying of four thousand tons was finally done by the day, by men under my charge, and cost the association but thirteen cents and three mills per cubic foot delivered on a wharf in Charlestown."

Still this was hardly a fair statement o fthe expense of cutting stone at that time, as Mr. Willard's services to the association were gratuitous; but even at these prices there was a large margin for profit, if a superintendent had been paid fair wages for overseeing the work.

TURTLE SNAPS OFF GAS PIPE IN BARN

Poultry and Pigs Are Asphyxiated as a Result

South Norwalk, Conn., July 29.—A snapping turtle weighing forty pounds cost the lives of 100 chickens and three pigs in Herman Jacobs' barn at Roton Point. Incidentally two of Jacobs' farmhands were made ill by inhaling illuminating gas.

After a hard fight Jacobs captured the turtle in a swamp a few days ago. He chained it to a stake in his back yard and started to fatten it, intending to invite his friends to a turtle supper.

The turtle got loose yesterday and crawled into the model barn, which contains a gas plant. Without the slightest apparent inconvenience to itself the turtle snapped off a gas pipe.

The gas, escaping in large quantities, soon filled the barn. In the barn are a hennery and piggery; the unfortunate chickens and pigs were asphyxiated quickly; the farm hands, looking for the leak, inhaled much gas.

Jacobs will continue to fatten the turtle and finally will serve it to his friends if only for vengeance sake.

GET PAID WHILE IDLE

Five Dollars a Week For Employes of Boston Rubber Shoe Company

Boston, July 29.—Notices were posted yesterday at the Malden and Melrose factories of the Boston Rubber Shoe company to the effect that the employes laid off were to receive an allowance of $5 per week, the allowance to run twenty weeks in the cases of the younger men.

No limit was set for the time this sum would be paid to the older men. The high price of rubber is said to have occasioned the layoff.

SOCIAL CIRCLES SHAKEN UP

Detectives Raid Gambling Camp and Find Women In Male Attire

Pittsburg, July 29.—The county detective bureau sprung a bomb in Pittsburg social and financial circles by announcing that an alleged gambling camp raided by its men was a colony of women dressed in men's clothing, the whole outfit being supported by rich young bloods of Pittsburg who visited the place nightly in their autos.

The male visitors were found when the authorities swooped down on the tented village on the banks of the Ohio about six miles below Pittsburg and were placed under arrest. Four women, dressed in full outfit of men, were placed under arrest. Seven other women who had gone automobiling in male attire with their men friends were not captured.

With great glee the county detectives exhibit one touring car which they captured when they raided the camp, while the owners jumped into the Ohio river and swam to the other shore.

ARE $30,000 POORER

Two Connecticut Women Fall Into Hands of Alleged Bunco Man

Boston, July 29.—John H. Hall, 40 years old, thought to have led an eventful career in England and Scotland, was arrested here, charged with taking two New London, Conn., sisters through New Hampshire inspecting "his great real estate holdings," and then buncoing them out of $30,000 of their property.

Great tracts of land, farm land, forest land, hills and dales, he is said to have pointed out to the credulous women as his own. His real estate in Boston alone he claimed to exceed $100,000.

The sisters, Jeannette M. and Nettie A. Reed, who had just inherited the real estate, and had no thought of disposing of it, were finally induced by the smooth talk and apparent business of the man, to transfer to him all the deeds to their property. He then disappeared.

The Decoy.

"I notice," said the man to the parson, "that, although I am in the front pew, there is always a five dollar bill on the collection plate when it comes to me. Is that the contribution of the man who takes up the collection?"

"Not at all," replied the parson, who believed in business methods. "That's our decoy."—Detroit Free Press.

PROGRESSIVES' DEFEAT IN OHIO

Will Prove a Boomerang For the G. O. P., Say Politicians

MEANS DEMOCRATS WILL WIN

Opinion That Nomination of Foraker Man and Adoption of Stand-Pat Platform In His Home State Hurts Taft's Chances of Nomination For Second Term—Safe Bet That Roosevelt Will Not Stump In Ohio

Washington, July 29.—Ohio's Republican state platform, by its failure to recognize the progressive idea in any way, its flat indorsement of the Payne-Aldrich tariff, combined with the nomination of Harding, a Foraker man, for governor, will do little to heal the breach in the Grand Old Party, in the opinion of the politicians now in Washington.

Republican and Democratic headquarters here agree that the platform is "stand-pat" in all the prase implies. A good many persons here know that the platform as adopted was submitted to President Taft by Senator Burton and Wade Ellis, and the assumption is that every declaration in it has the approval of the president, and that he also approves the omissions that are attracting so much attention.

As observers of the trend of political events view the situation, the unequivocal indorsement of the Payne-Aldrich tariff law by the Republicans of the president's own state is bound to lend increased interest to the discussion of the tariff question in the various states when the fall campaign gets under headway. There will be presented the spectacle of the Republicans of certain states waging a campaign against the tariff law, against what has become known as Cannonism and against stand-patism in general, while the party in the president's home state will be out defending all these things.

Democratic leaders are asserting that in approving the platform put out by the party in his state the president has once more publicly cast his lot with reactionaries of the party. The talk about the headquarters of the Democratic congressional campaign committee is that Democratic speakers will be instructed to make much of the platform and of the president's connection with its making.

Persons who are throughly acquainted with Ohio politics say that the nomination of Harding, a Foraker man, and the adoption of a stand-pat platform undoubtedly means the reelection of Governor Harmon by an overwhelming plurality. Naturally there is a good deal of speculation as to what the effect of the loss of the state to the Republicans would be on the political future of President Taft. Some of his best friends here are frank in saying that, if after having presented to the country a so-called model platform in his own state, his party should lose in the state, the Republican party of the nation might come to doubt the wisdom of renominating him for a second term.

The talk here is that the nomination of Harding and the adoption of a platform representative of the views of the Old Guard in the dominant party means that the progressives in the state will take no part in the campaign and that the campaign oratory will all be by representatives of the stand-pat wing. Some of Foraker's friends here—and he still has some warm supporters in public office—are quite certain that he will make some speeches for Harding.

Naturally there is the keenest sort of curiosity to know just what Colonel Roosevelt thinks of the nomination of Foraker's friend and of the platform approved by President Taft. Politicians are saying that it is a safe bet that the colonel will not make any speeches in Ohio this year.

Of course the politicians understand that the general mix-up in the Republican party this year is the outcome of a preliminary skirmish for control of the national organization.

AFTER STORMY SESSION

Minnesota Democrats Name Lind For Governor Despite His Refusal

Minneapolis, July 29.—Storm signals which were flying when the Democratic state convention met here were torn to shreds by the tempest of feeling which was let loose over the nomination of John Lind for governor.

For more than three hours, up to the very minute when the motion to adjourn was carried, there was no let-up to the scenes of disorder. The entire delegation was a unit in declaring that John Lind was one of the best Democrats in Minnesota. The delegates were all his friends, but divided into two factions.

One insisted that Lind must be nominated despite his repeated refusals to be a candidate, and his final flat declaration that he would not accept the nomination, while the other urged that he had been governor of Minnesota and had nothing to gain by the nomination, and that he was of sufficient importance to have his wishes heeded by the convention.

ENGLAND'S NEW WARSHIP

The March of Improvements Has Been Very Rapid

A Washington letter to the Boston Transcript has an interesting story on England's newest warship.

It is four years since the first Dreadnought made her appearance, and it is interesting now to notice the improvements that have been evolved in this type of warship during this time. H. M. S. Vanguard, the latest addition to the navy of England, is 490 feet long, has a beam of 82 feet and displaces 19,250 tons, as compared with the 17,900 tons of the original Dreadnought. A number of "water-tube" boilers provide steam for turbines of the latest design, producing 25,000 horse-power. Four propellers give her a speed of twenty-one knots an hour.

The engines, boilers, shell, powder, torpedoes, auxiliary machinery, worskhops and stores are all carefully protected; first, by an armored deck 2 3-4 inches in thickness, running the full length of the vessel; and secondly, by two-inch side armor. In addition to this, the coal bunkers are so arranged as to encircle the engine rooms and thus give further protectoin. That part of the vessel above the armored deck is protected by side plates and an upper deck of two-inch armor.

The stern is taken up by the crew's quarters, while the bows are given up to those o fthe officers. The result is that the quarter-deck which in all pre-Dreadnought battleships is sacred to the officers, is now the habitat of the crew—an arrangement which is much more convenient in that the officers have direct access to the bridges and "control station." The main armament o fthe Vanguard consists of five barbettes of 9 3-4-inch armor, each enclosing two twelve-inch guns of the latest pattern. These are so arranged that eight guns can be fired on a broadside; and as the shells employed weigh 850 pounds apiece, the total broadside weighs 6800 pounds. The weight of a single twelve-inch gun is fifty-eight tons.

Directly under each barbette is a space extending to the full depth of the vessel, surrounded with 9 3-4-inch armor in which is to be found the hydraulic machinery for turning, raising or lowering the guns, and the hand gear which is provided in case of an emergency. Lifts are also provided for bringing the ammunition up from the store rooms below. On the top of each barbette is mounted a pair of four-inch quick-firing guns fitted with light shields. These are provided in order to repel torpedo attacks. Ten others of the same type are distributed about the upper deck for the same reason. Six machine guns complete the list of guns.

The Vanguard is fitted with a novel conning tower. It is divided into two parts. The upper part is a duplicate of the lower and is armored with a complete wall of 12-inch steel. The two communicate through a trap door in the 6-inch floor of the upper tower, so that should the upper part be shot away the captain has only to slip through into the lower tower. Above the conning tower is the lower and upper bridge and "chart room," from which the ship is controlled in time of peace. A third and single conning tower is provided behind the rear funnel.

Each of the masts is fitted with a "fire-control station," at a height of about 120 feet above the level of the water. During an action specially appointed officers are stationed here to discover the range and to note the results of the firing and telephone the results to the gunners. By a marvellous sytem of motors the officer in the control top can aim the barbette guns himself. Each motion guided by the officer in the top for training the guns is transmitted directly and simultaneously to point the guns and also to fire them independently of the men in the barbette.

Now let us consider the cost of this leviathan.

The hull with its fittings cost the admiralty over $4,000,000; the searchligths and other electrical fittings $250,000; the boilers and turbine machinery, $1,616,990; the torpedo tubes $45,000. The steam and motor launches which she carries are worth $40,000 alone. The twelve-inch guns cost over $55,000 apiece; while the whole barbettes cost $500,000 apiece—$2,500,000 altogether. The vessel burns, for instance, about eighteeen tons of Welsh coal an hour, which works out at about $65 an hour—no small coal bill. The cost of firing on shell from a twelve-inch gun is $750; while torpedoes cost $3,000 apiece.

Yorkshire Men's Fingers.

A Yorkshire man and a Lancashire man were conversing together the other day. The Lancashire man said to the Yorkshire man, "Well, Bill, do you know the best way to find a Yorkshire man's lost fingers?"

"No," says Bill.

"Well, I will tell you what happened at our place the other day. Yorkshire Dan had two of his fingers cut off with a steam saw, and they got lost among the sawdust, and two of my mates were down on their hands and knees looking for them when the foreman came up and asked what they were doing. One of them said:

"'We are looking for Dan's fingers.'

"'Oh, come out of the road,' said the foreman. 'That's not the way to find a Yorkshire man's fingers,' at the same time taking a shilling out of his pocket and throwing it among the sawdust, when the two fingers at once popped up after it.

"'There!' said the foreman. 'That's the way to find a Yorkshire man's lost fingers.'"—Pearson's.

Providing For His Guests.

Two men stopped at the store of a haberdasher who displayed in his showcase a job lot of collars at 5 cents apiece. One of them bought two dozen, in sizes ranging from 15 to 17½. His friend politely controlled his surprise at discovering that the broker wore five cent collars and inquired only about the elastic neck. The purchaser said:

"We live in the suburbs. Friends who visit us and remain overnight unexpectedly want clean collars the next morning. It depletes my own stock too far to keep furnishing these. I can't always supply a comfortable size either. Of course the collars never come back. Since I discovered the scheme of five cent collars I can pick up anybody, take him home with me and inform him that he need not bring any luggage, because one of my wife's beneficences includes five cent toothbrushes for the wayfarer."—New York Sun.

A Martyr to Art.

"Which tooth?" inquired the man of forceps grimly.

"Any one you like," responded the victim calmly, "so long as it's a front one."

"But"— began the astounded dentist.

"Hurry up," thundered the visitor.

With bleeding heart the operator hitched his forceps on to a bit of absolutely sound ivory, dragged his patient three times around the room and—

"Hey, presto!" smiled the dentist. "It's out! But will you be so good as to tell me why on earth you wanted a sound tooth extracted?"

"By all meanth," responded the patient. "You thee, I'm an actor, and I have to take a part where the thpeaker lithpth. At firtht I couldn't mathter it, but now I'm thure it'll be a thimply thcreaming thuctheth!"

The Ever Active Brain.

The question, "Does the brain ever rest?" would seem to be answerable only in the negative. Unconscious cerebration appears to be a necessary concomitant of the powers of intellect, and during sleep, whether we remember it or not, we are always dreaming. Of course, during waking time we are perpetually thinking, thinking, thinking—not always logically and deliberately, but, all the same, thinking. Dream is the thought of the sleep time, when reason is out of the game, and the fancy, or imagination, has the reins, with nothing to hold her back. We take many a trip under her guidance that we are unable to recall when she has resigned the reins into the hands of reason. Awake or asleep, we are always busy. The mind never rests.—New York American.

The Turkish Soldier's Fatalism.

The lethargy of mind which is the mental habit of the Turkish soldier—the personal expression of fatalism—is a most valuable quality in its way, for it means that its possessor is always cool and collected, grumbles little and has marvelous endurance. It is alien to all forms of panic, just as it is alien to a conspicuous elan. If the Turkish soldier never goes very fast, he never goes very slow. Except by the best trained or most dashing troops he is bad to beat.—London Spectator.

He Chose Quickly.

"Gerald," she said, facing him with heightened color and putting her hands behind her, "you will have to choose between me and your old pipe."

Not an instant did Gerald hesitate. "The old pipe goes, dear," he said, throwing it away. "I was thinking of buying a new one anyhow."—Chicago Tribune.

Her Place

He Takes It and Wins Musical Honors.

By T. W. WINDHAM.

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

Margaret Trentham, a fair Bostonian, stood in a room in a German pension. She was speaking to a young man, like herself a musician.

"You don't realize what it means to me, Mr. Tolstoy. This is my last turn here and the concert tomorrow my only opportunity of playing publicly in the Conservatoire."

"But the circumstances are exceptional," he urged. "It happens that Professor Meyerhaus is in Leipzig recruiting violinists for his American tour, and it occurred to me that perhaps he would include me in his orchestra as solo pianist"—

"By engaging me Meyerhaus would save the huge fees demanded by musicians who have made a name, and for me"—a pause gave additional weight to his words—"it means possibly the opening of a career. I should come before the public at once and without expense instead of returning to America to drudge at teaching, because I do not possess the means to make an imposing debut."

"But you forget," she added in self vindication, "I have rehearsed with the orchestra throughout the term, and the conductor will not approve of a change at the last moment."

"I have already obtained his permission"— he began.

"Then if he is willing for you to play why does he allow the decision to rest with me?" she broke in.

The tension of a momentary silence tried him beyond endurance. Rising, he walked to the door, pausing at the threshold.

"Forgive the intrusion. Unfortunately I misled myself with the belief that you would willingly cede a chance to a professional, being yourself an amateur and independent. I can only hope that your triumph tomorrow"—he lingered on the word in conscious irony—"will atone for the vexation of my visit."

A large cosmopolitan audience filled the Conservatoire hall for the final concert of the season.

An attendant opened the piano in readiness for the concerto as the pianist came forward, escorted by the master under whom she had studied.

She seated herself at the instrument, and a little ripple of applause broke from the balcony. Glancing upward in shy acknowledgment, she met the steadfast gaze of a man seated immediately facing her, who vouchsafed but the merest glance of recognition and resumed the study of a music score lying on his knees.

The players lowered their bow hands for several bars' rest. In the lull preceding the excerpt for the solo instrument the sound of a sharp indrawn breath struck downward through the silence.

The baton beat on steadily—three—four—

"One!"

No answering chord from the pianist. The conductor glared at her aghast, the orchestra in undisguised surprise. She started slightly, and the color flamed into her cheeks.

The baton swooped down again.

"One, fraulein!" The conductor leaned forward, half frantic. "Have you forgotten?" he hissed.

A soft, level voice prompted suddenly from the balcony, "The allegro movement, key A flat minor, extended chord."

She glanced swiftly forward with a little impulsive gesture and rose in her seat, faced the conductor, flashed a glance of swift defiance and passed with head erect through rows of thunderstruck musicians to the platform exit.

Bewildered comments were exchanged throughout the hall, and the notability in the stalls adjusted its spectacles rather irritably and awaited developments.

"These Americans! These Americans!" chafed the conductor, beside himself with rage; then he hurled an order at the doorkeeper, pointing to the balcony.

"Herr Tolstoy! Fetch him immediately!"

The man at the end had already disappeared, and in the passage connecting the platform with the cloakrooms he encountered the retiring pianist.

"Quick!" she whispered. "The conductor called for you."

His face glowed with trembling, exultant gratitude. He seized her hand and started backward conscience stricken as a tear fell glistening on her sleeve.

She rushed past him disconcerted, paced the step or two down the passage and turned abruptly to avenge her momentary loss of self control in an outbreak of reproach.

"Why don't you go? My failure gives you your opportunity. Pray don't hesitate to avail yourself."

"I'm sorry, so sorry"— he began.

"Do go!" she reiterated less harshly. "They will continue the program. It will be too late in another moment."

Though his hope of the future depended on that moment, he still stood irresolute, gazing in sheer fascination at the tear stained, imperious face.

"Do go! Do please go! It won't have been any good if you don't, and I shall never forgive myself"—

"Herr Tolstoy!"

The stentorian voice of the doorkeeper rang down the passage, and she darted through a doorway.

Her companion followed, stopped a second, and his lips seared her cheeks.

In the next the platform door closed behind him.

An echo reached her of the allegro—rippling, lightening, swirling across the keys, subdued at intervals to the tumult of orchestral accompaniment, then ringing again, triumphant, quivering at the last with the rapt, exalted passion of a love song, followed by the silence that is greater than applause.

The pianist himself broke the spell, rising from his seat. The hall shook with a burst of enthusiasm. He passed unheeded through the platform exit.

The white haired notability removed his glasses with a sigh of satisfied enjoyment and turned to his colleague, his rugged Teutonic features softening into a smile.

"Your American young ladies—do they often take stage fright? But her compatriot! He is magnificent! To play that most difficult concerto without notes, without rehearsal—touch, technique perfect! Consider also his youth"—

The director broke in with adroit explanation and suggestion. The professor beamed with delighted recollection.

"It is the same, then, who offered his services? You are right, my friend, that I should change my mind, that the world should hear of him. He shall go with me on tour."

Twilight in the park, the sharp, gray twilight of late autumn. A smart electric runabout, with a lady at the lever and a chauffeur at her side, joined the stream of vehicles entering the park at the Plaza. Her features were only partially visible through her automobile veil, but an involuntary exclamation broke from a man pacing aimlessly along the walk.

"Miss Trentham!"

"Mr. Tolstoy!"

With the answering cry of recognition she drew up close to the walk, heedless of the rules of the road.

Half hesitating, Tolstoy went forward.

"So you are back in America, Mr. Tolstoy?"

"Yes." He muttered the monosyllable without raising his eyes.

"And I see from the papers that your European tour was a great success."

He blurted out a second affirmative.

For the moment she was slightly nonplused; then with infinite tact she once more took the initiative.

"You are soon appearing in New York?"

"Tomorrow at Carnegie hall," he replied shortly.

Boardmen were parading Broadway with notices of the professor's concert. It humbled him that she had not noticed the large type at the foot of the boards—"Solo pianoforte, Mr. Alfred Tolstoy."

"A matinee?"

He nodded stiffly.

"Of course I shall go. It will be a great pleasure to me to be present at your debut," she continued.

"It happens to be the last concert of the series," he said icily.

"I had no idea," she began in a tone of eager explanation. "But, then, I have been traveling abroad a good deal with my parents since I saw you last. We only returned from Switzerland a couple of days ago."

The fact accounted for her apparent indifference, and his expression softened, but he stared moodily before him to avoid her eyes, and the handsome turnout in which she was seated with her liveried chauffeur somehow forced on him a sense of social disparity. When she spoke again her voice had a shy, hesitating ring.

"I need scarcely ask if you are successful?"

He produced a memorandum and read out some details—no trace of pleasure or enthusiasm in his tone, only a cynical sort of triumph in the sense of achievement.

"Tomorrow is my final appearance in New York with Professor Meyerhaus for the present. I am booked subsequently for various musical receptions; also the principal concert agents have made me very flattering offers."

"Shall I congratulate you?" she asked slowly.

"If you had congratulated me that night at the Conservatoire," he broke out resentfully, "and given me the opportunity to thank you"—

"You could not expect me to wait, to face every one after my failure. Besides"—she turned away her eyes to hide a sudden confusion—"you—you had already thanked me."

"It was not only to thank you— He was confused now, struggling with an increasing desire to make his hopeless avowal.

"I owe my subsequent success to you," he continued pedantically.

"No, indeed!" she broke in eagerly. "But—I am glad—more than I can say—that you have realized your ambition."

"I suppose I have."

His tone gave the lie to the acknowledgment.

He had fallen so pitifully short of realization. Could she but know!

Despair overwhelmed the remnant of his pride and self control. He raised his eyes, aflame with his secret.

"I am still striving," he said haltingly, "for the unattainable."

She darted a questioning glance. The grim white face strained toward her through the dusk, and conviction flashed swift upon her.

She bent impulsively, with a radiant, triumphant smile. Her voice swayed with a little tremor of delight.

"I think I understand. But you are mistaken. For all you know the unattainable may be within reach."

BRUTAL CRIME IS EXPIATED

Rivet Executed at Charlestown State Prison This Morning

HE MURDERED HIS ROOMMATE

Poured Suphuric Acid Down Victim's Throat After Battering His Head With Iron Pipe—Was Beneficiary of $1000 Policy on Life of Gailloux—Convicted on Circumstantial Evidence After Ten Days' Trial

Boston, July 29.—Napoleon Rivet was executed in the electric chair at the Charlestown state prison early this morning for the murder of Joseph Gailloux. The current was turned on at 12:13:40 and the man was officially dead at 12:21 a. m.

The killing of Gailloux, who was Rivet's roommate, occurred in a plumber's shop on Hall street, Lowell, on the night of Feb. 29, 1908. The crime was one of the most brutal with which the state has had to deal in many years and the evidence on which the conviction was secured was entirely circumstantial.

A Lowell police officer, patrolling his beat on the morning of March 1, found the door leading into the plumbing shop of Ernest Daigle on Hall street unlocked. Opening the door he was nearly overcome by a rush of gas. He found an open gas jet, turned off the gas and opened the windows. Moving about the room he stumbled over the body of Joseph J. Gailloux, who had been employed in the place as a plumber's assistant.

A post mortem examination disclosed the fact that the man had been beaten over the head with an iron pipe, and that sulphuric acid had been poured into the man's mouth and throat. The skull had been fractured. After the assault on the man his murderer had turned open a gas jet to complete the work.

In the trial of Rivet the government showed that Rivet had been made the beneficiary in a life insurance policy for $1000 on the life of Gailloux; that the two of them had been together the night on which the crime was committed, and that a cigaret stub of the brand used by Rivet had been found on the floor beside the body.

The defense was an alibi, Rivet claiming to have been at the home of a relative the night of the crime.

Both men were natives of Quebec, Gailloux being 37 years old and Rivet 28 at the time of the murder.

The trial of Rivet lasted ten days, the jury returning a verdict of guilty in thirty minutes on Feb. 4 last. A new trial, based on exceptions, was denied by the full bench of the supreme court May 16 last.

A petition for commutation of sentence sent to Governor Draper and council met with the refusal of the governor to take any action, on the grounds that no new evidence was forthcoming. A similar effort to secure a stay was made by the man's attorneys last Monday, the only effect of the latter being to cause a postponement of the intended date of the execution, which had been set for Tuesday morning.

Yesterday, at the last moment, a postal card, the evident work of an illiterate, sent through the mails to the postmaster at Lowell, declared the writer committed the murder and that Rivet was innocent. It was shown to Lieutenant Governor Frothingham, but he refused to interfere.

Rivet, throughout his trial and his incarceration in the death cell, showed no signs of breaking down, only occasionally giving expression to the thought that "It is wicked to put so young a man to death."

Bryan Will Not Bolt, but Is Unlikely to Take the Stump

Lincoln, Neb., July 29.—Bitter in the face of decisive defeat at the Democratic state convention, William J. Bryan has returned to Lincoln. He is content, he says, to become a humble worker in the ranks of the party of which he has for so many years been the acknowledged leader.

Mr. Bryan made it plain that he had no intention of bolting, but at the same time he said he had not retracted one inch from the position he had assumed on the question of co-operation and his war on the liquor interests. Friends of Bryan say it is doubtful if he takes an active part in the state campaign.

Settling Their Nicknames.

"A traveler from Liverpool got hopping mad the other day because some one called him a Liverpudlian," said the city salesman. "I couldn't blame him, but the man who unwittingly offered the insult declares that that is the proper name for people who live in Liverpool.

"He pointed out that it isn't easy to designate the inhabitants of all cities by euphonious names. New Yorker, Londoner, Parisian, Chicagoan, are so obvious that it would be difficult to say anything else, but how about cities that do not affiliate so readily with 'er,' 'an' or 'ite?'

"Those are the suffixes most commonly used to designate a set of natives. Take Cork. A man from Cork may be a corker, but that doesn't apply to a whole city full of people; neither does Corkite nor Corkan sound right.

"Then there is Memphis. What do you call a man from Memphis, anyhow, or from Amsterdam, or Dallas, or Bruges, or Bath? By the time you have studied out the proper appellations for inhabitants of all cities you will be apt to strike something that sounds funnier than Liverpudlian."—Washington Post.

DROWNED IN NEPONSET RIVER.

James Henry Halligan, aged 18 years, was drowned Thursday afternoon in the Neponset river, near Milton Lower Mills. Halligan, a good swimemr, went in swimming with some companions, and when 25 feet from shore threw up his hands and sank. His companions shouted for help, and some men put out in a boat from a coal barge near by. They dived for the body but was unable to recover it. Sometime later Israel Saklad dived and succeeded in recovering it.

—One of our exchanges thus ruminates: "He sought within a brown stone front for happiness unhampered, where luxury had unstinted sway and everyone was pampered. He found it not—until he came out on the step—Hozanna! And saw it there, a small boy sat eating a big banana." Perhaps it would not be a stretch of imagination to conclude: "Descending slow with joy he gazed and turned upon his heel; his afith, his hope ,his soles were raised by that banana peel."—Mansfield News.

TRAP IS READY TO BE SPRUNG

Arrest of Crippen Will Probably Occur In Quebec

A WIRELESS FROM MONTROSE

Gives Positive Information That Alleged Murderer of Wife Is on Board —Final Plans For Extradition Are Complete—Inspector Dew Wins In Race Across Atlantic and Is Ready to Receive Prisoners

Montreal, July 29.—Dr. H. H. Crippen, the American dentist wanted in London in connection with the murder of his wife, who was the American actress, Belle Elmore, is on board the Canadian liner Montrose, bound for this point.

A wireless message was received in this city yesterday afternoon giving this information as a positive fact. The message read: "Crippen is on board."

The wireless message was received by way of Point Amour, sixty-two miles south of Quebec.

It is believed here that the doctor has been positively identified and it may be, judging from the positive character of the wireless, that he has confessed his identity.

The Montrose has been delayed by heavy fogs. It is now believed that the vessel will not reach Father Point till 2:30 p. m. Saturday. Inspector Dew of Scotland Yard, on the liner Laurentic, has beaten Crippen in. He reached Father Point yesterday afternoon.

The final plans for the extradition of the couple are now complete. There will be formalities to be gone through, but no involved extradition proceeding are necessary under the law of the empire. If necessary Dew could start back with the captives an hour after they landed.

So confident are the authorities that the trap arranged will not be sprung until the Montrose is well within the borders of Canada.

Rimouski, headquarters of Chief Constable Gauvreau, to whom the arrest has been delegated by a warrant issued under the fugitive offenders act, is five miles southeast of Father Point, where the Montrose picks up a pilot and where the government tender Eureka is at the disposal of the police. The St. Lawrence there is thirty miles wide. Rimouski lies 175 miles northeast of Quebec, and it is expected that the real climax in the case will not be reached till the Montrose reaches Quebec.

Th police have prepared instructions for Captain Kendall of the Montrose, cautioning him to preclude the possibility of the suspect's suicide. The dispatch of these orders has been left to the wireless.

MEETS EXPECTED FATE

Woman Suffrage Bill Thrown Out of British House of Commons

London, July 29.—The doom of the woman suffrage bill was announced by the government when David Lloyd-George, chancellor of the exchequer, stated that the bill would not be allowed to come up in the commons.

This declaration is the first definite statement from the government since the bill was passed more than a week ago and promptly shelved. The admission is the signal for a resumption of militant methods by the suffragettes, according to their leaders.

Though it was understood at the time the bill was laid aside that it would not be called up again, at least not in the present session, the suffragettes have since been fighting to secure a pledge to the contrary. On the announcement of Lloyd-George's statement the women leaders denounced him and gave warning of their intention to carry on the fight.

RETURNS HOME TO DIE

Farmer Who Killed Daughter and Shot Wife Tries Suicide

Albany, July 29.—Charles Green, a farmer who shot his wife and daughter near Clarksville, was found at his home by a constable, suffering from a self-inflicted gunshot wound in the head. He was placed under arrest. Physicians say he may not recover.

Green killed his 14-year-old daughter and dangerously wounded his wife, following a family quarrel and then fled into the woods. Later a constable found Green lying in a pool of blood at his home. He had shot himself in the woods and dragged himself to the house, believing he would die.

Ban on English Cattle

Washington, July 29.—Owing to the discovery of the foot and mouth disease among cattle in Yorkshire, Eng., the importation of cattle from that country into the United States has been prohibited until the extent of the disease can be made clear.

Slaver Goes to Prison For a Year

Providence, July 29.—Following the revelations of Eleanor Brooks, 19, that she had been used as a "white slave," Napoleon St. Lawrence, 24, was sentenced to a year in the state workhouse.

Explorer Is Accused of Faking Records

ACCUSED OF FAKING

Charges Against Noted Swedish Explorer by Dramatist and Writer

Stockholm, July 29.—Scandinavia is in the midst of a hotly waged battle as the result of charges made against Dr. Sven Hedin, the explorer, accusing him of being a fakir.

His accuser is August Strindberg, dramatist and writer, who declares that Hedin has taken all his claims from old documents relating to the work of the Swedish explorer Ronart, dating back to 1720. Hedin denounces Strindberg.

Hedin, whose principal work has been done in Thibet, reported after his last expedition the discovery of a new range of mountains back of the Himalayas.

CAPTURE OF MINIET CRUSHES REBELLION

Trained Soldier Who Started Cuban Uprising In Custody

Havana, July 29.—In the capture of General Miniet and his followers while they were hurrying to join a large force of insurgents, the authorities believe they see the end of the revolution that for a while threatened to spread over the entire country. General Miniet, a trained soldier, and his thirty followers made a determined stand against their pursuers, but were compelled to surrender because of the superiority of numbers.

General Salazar, of General Miniet's staff, was shot through the head in the encounter and killed.

General Miniet and his followers were surprised while in camp at Neuva Escocia Farm, about twenty miles from Santfago City. The prisoners are being taken to Santiago de Cuba.

WELCOMED TO BEVERLY

President Taft Ends His Cruise and Returns to Summer Capital

Beverly, Mass., July 29.—President Taft returned to his summer home after rounding out his ten days' vacation cruise on the yacht Mayflower along the Maine coast. The entire town made a gala day of it, many of the buildings being decorated with bunting and flags in honor of the occasion.

President Taft appears to have benefited by the cruise. He seemed pleased with the hearty reception accorded him by Beverly folks. As soon as he reached his home he set to work attending to matters which were not referred to him while he was off on vacation.

REDUCED BY $100,000

Assurance That Bank Was Robbed of "Only" Half a Million Dollars

New York, July 29.—The New York agency of the Russo-Chinese bank issued a cheerful statement last night, lightening by $100,000 the gigantic stock and bond theft with which its youthful cashier, Erwin Wider, now a fugitive, stands accused.

The bank's loss, says the statement, will not exceed $500,000. Heretofore the most conservative estimates placed the value of missing securities at $600,000.

SEVERS RELATIONS WITH THE VATICAN

Spain Will Not Yield to Demand of Roman Church Authorities

Madrid, July 29.—Diplomatic relations between Spain and the Vatican have been broken off. The break is the outcome of the bitter struggle that has been waged in the last several weeks between Premier Canalejas and the clerical forces. King Alfonso supported the premier.

The crux of the matter lies in the desire of the government to give other churches the same freedom of worship that the Catholic church enjoys.

The radical papers comment exultantly, condemning Cardinal del Val, and referring to the several recent disputes in which the Vatican has been involved, including the Roosevelt incident, and the pope's recent encyclical which aroused a storm of protest in Germany, as well as the dispute with Portugal.

CHARGES $35,000 SWINDLE

Widow of Distinguished Surgeon Has Two Men Brought to Court

New York, July 29.—On complaint of Mrs. Mary N. Bull of Newport, R. I., widow of the late Dr. William T. Bull of New York and Newport, John Qualey and Henry W. Corbett of this city were arrested here, charged with the larceny of $35,000, and held in $15,000 bail each for arraignment.

Mrs. Bull's complaint recites that she was induced by the prisoners to invest $35,000 in an asbestos company, which, instead of doing the business of $100,000 a week represented, with factories at Newark, N. J., Kansas City, Chicago and Dorchester, Mass., was in reality a myth.

MADRIZ IS TURNED DOWN

Request to Have Germany Check Action of America Is Refused

Berlin, July 29.—The Monroe doctrine has won another important victory. The appeal of President Madriz of Nicaragua for aid against the interference of the Unted States has been turned down by Germany, it is announced.

Through Herr de Buch, German minister to Central America, the kaiser has replied to Madrid that he can do nothing in the matter which was laid before the powers in a general appeal cabled on June 16.

Found Gas Leak With Lantern

Old Orchard, Me., July 29.—Charles Cotton, 40, made a successful search with a lantern for a leak in the Old Orchard house gas tank. After the explosion he was picked up some distance away with one leg and one hand shattered, necessitating amputation.

Think of Last Summer—

You can remember days when the heat inside your kitchen was so great you could hardly bear it. With the right stove you would have made a better hostess. Save your health. Don't put up with the drudgery of a coal range. You can have a clean, cool, pleasant kitchen. The does away with all drudgery of cooking. Why should you be a slave to a coal range when you can have an Oil Cook-Stove that is cheaper than coal, cleaner than coal, doesn't "smell," doesn't smoke, lights instantly, can be put out instantly, leaves no ashes, and doesn't heat the kitchen. With one of these stoves you can boil, bake or roast the most elaborate dinner. You can change from a slow to a quick fire, or the other way about, by simply turning a wick. Apply a match, and instantly the heat from an intense blue flame shoots upward through the turquoise-blue enamel chimneys to the bottom of pot, kettle or oven—but nowhere else. The stove has every convenience that can be thought of: Cabinet Top with shelf for keeping food and dishes hot, drop shelves to hold coffee or teapots, towel rack; in fact every convenience possible.

Cautionary Note: Be sure you get this stove—see that the name-plate reads "New Perfection."

The nickel finish, with the bright blue of the chimneys, makes the stove ornamental and attractive.

Made with 1, 2 and 3 burners; the 2 and 3-burner stoves can be had with or without Cabinet.

SYNOPSIS

A party of titled passengers on a ship bound for Australia visit a section "below decks" where a gang of convicts sentenced to deportation are confined. The ship, the Lord Nelson is wrecked. A convict, the "Frisco Pet," jumps overboard with Jocelyn Wray, a pretty little girl. The convict, after returning the girl to her friends is himself later cast away alone on a deserted island. Years have passed. Lord Ronsdale and other members of the party wrecked on the Lord Nelson, including Jocelyn Wray, go to the criminal courts in London to hear John Steele, a famous young lawyer, try a case. Steele and Jocelyn meet and form a liking for each other. Lord Ronsdale, who wou'd marry Jocelyn, forms a violent dislike for Steele. Ronsdale had at the wreck of the Lord Nelson prevented the rescue of the "Frisco Pet" by a lifeboat. Ronsdale is startled at the sight of a tattoo mark on Steele's arm. Ronsdale puts a detective, Gillett, on Steele's trail to establish his identity. He is certain Steele is the "Frisco Pet." Steele, none other than the "Frisco Pet," begins a hunt for Tom Rogers, the only man who can establish his innocence of the murder for which he had been deported years before. Steele visits Strathorn House, where Jocelyn Wray, Lord Ronsdale and others are present. Steele, in love with the girl, has recognized her as the one he rescued at the wreck of the Lord Nelson. Ronsdale tries to have Steele arrested at Strathorn House. Steele reveals to Jocelyn that he was once the "Fri co Pet," her rescuer. Jocelyn aids Steele in escaping to London. Steele gets traces of Tom Rogers whose testimony he requires. Steele finds Rogers, gets him to sign the required statement and is then arrested by Gillett. He is taken before Ronsdale. The paper Rogers signed is produced. It seriously compromises Ronsdale.

(CHAPTER XVII—Concluded.)

For a few moments now John Steele remained motionless, listening to their departing footsteps, then turned and gazed around him.

Never had his rooms appeared more cheerless, more barren, more empty. No; not empty. They were filled with memories. The man squared his shoulders and looked out again from the window toward that small bit of the river he could just discern. Once he had gazed at it when its song seemed to be of the green banks and flowers it had passed by, but that had been on a fairer occasion—at the close of a joyous spring day. How it came back to him, the solemn court of justice, the beautiful face, an open doorway, with the sunshine golden without and a figure that, ere passing into it, had turned to look back! It was but for an instant, yet again his gaze seemed to leap to that luring light, the passing gleam of her eyes, that had lingered—

That he saw now, or was it a dream? At the threshold near by some one looked out—some one as fair—fairer, if that could be—whose cheeks wore the tint of the wild rose.

"Pardon me. I came up to see if my uncle"—

He stared at her.

"You!"

"Yes." She raised a small, gloved hand and swept back a disordered tress.

"Your—your uncle has just gone," he said.

"I know."

"You do?"

"I was in the library when they went out. I had come up to see— I was with my uncle in the cab and wondered why he"—

She stopped. He took a quick step toward her. "You were in there, that room, when"—

"Yes," she said and threw back her head as if to contradict a sudden mistiness that seemed stupidly sweeping over her gaze. "Why did you not tell me—you did not—that you were innocent?"

"You were in there?" He did not seem to catch her words. "Heard—heard"—

A moment they stood looking at each other. Suddenly she reached out her hands to him. With a quick exclamation he caught and held them.

But in a moment he let them fall. What had he been about to say, to do, with the fair face, the golden head, so near? He stepped back quickly. Madness!

"You are going away?" She was the first to speak. Her voice was in the least uncertain.

"Tomorrow"—without looking at her—"to America."

"It is very large," irrelevantly. "I remember—of course, you are an American. I—I have hardly realized it. We—we Australians are not so unlike you. But your friends here?" Her lips half veiled a tremulous little smile.

"My friends!" Something flashed in his voice—went, leaving him very quiet. "I am afraid I have not made many while in London." Her eyes lifted slightly, fell. "Call it the homing instinct!" he went on with a laugh. "The desire once more to become part and parcel of one's native land, to become a factor, however small, in its activities."

"I don't think you—will be—a small factor," said the girl in a low tone. She stole a glance at his face. He was looking down. The silence lengthened. He waited. She seemed to find nothing else to say. He, too, did not speak. She found herself walking toward the door.

"Goodby."

"Goodby." He spoke in a low voice. "As I told Captain Forsythe, you—you need not feel concern about the story ever coming out"—

"Concern? What do you mean?"

"Your telegram to Captain Forsythe, the fear that brought you to London"—

"The—you thought that?" swiftly.

"What else?"

The indignation in her eyes met the surprise in his.

"Thank you," she said— "thank you for that estimate of me!"

"Miss Wray!" Contrition, doubt, amazement, mingled in his tone.

"Goodby," she said coldly.

And suddenly, as one sees through a rift in the clouds the clear light, he understood.

"You will go with me? You!"

"Why, as for that"—

Fleece of gold! Heaven of blue eyes! They were so near!

"And if I did you who misinterpret motives would think"—

"What?"

"That I came here to"—

"I should like to think that."

"Well, I came," said the girl, "I don't know why. Unless the boy who was taking down the signs had something to do with it."

"The"—

"He said to go 'straight up,'" she laughed.

He laughed, too; all the world seemed laughing. He hardly knew what he said, how she answered, only that she was there, slender, beautiful as the springtime full of flowers; that a miracle had happened, was happening. The mottled blur in the sky had become a spot of brightness; sunshine filled the room; in a cage above a tiny feathered creature began to chirp.

"And Sir Charles? Lady Wray?" He spoke quietly, but with wild pulsing of temples, exultant fierce throbbing of heart. He held her from all the world.

"They?" She was silent a moment, then looked up with a touch of her old bright imperiousness. "My uncle loves me, has never denied me anything, and he will not in this—that is, if I tell him"—

"What?"

Did her lips answer or was it only in her willful, smiling eyes that he read what he sought?

"Jocelyn!"

Above the little bird, with a red spot on its breast, bent its beadlike eyes on them, but neither saw, noticed. Besides, it was only a successor to the bird that had once been hers, that had flown like a flashing jewel from her soul to his in that place, sea washed, remote from the world.

THE END.

JOCELYN WRAY, WHOSE CHEEKS WORE THE TINT OF THE WILD ROSE.

A BOSTON GIRL'S BUDGET.

Kalersysphinga is a New One on the Trees and on Many People as Well—Ice Cream Cones May Help Some in Causing Stomach Ache but They're Not Poisonous—Whether Man May Have Adam's Apple and Still Be Marriageable is Hub's Silly Season Problem—Suffragists Are Having Fun Alive Stirring up Bay State Cities.

Keep Kalersysphinga off your place. It's broken loose near insect ridden Hub, to add to the peril of the trees. ince Boston bugs, beans and belles are all conquering, it may be expected to follow in their desolating train. The bearer of the interesting title is actually the larva of the saw fly, in the form of a small green grub which eats the inside of the leaves of the elm and other trees. What with the elm-leaf moth and the tussock moth, to say nothing of the brown tails and gypsies, the shade trees of New England are having a hard time to continue in business at the old stand.

Tons of tummy ache will go unconfiscated and there will be joy in the souls of Hubbite youngsters now that the Board of Health has examined and pronounced harmless the suspected ice cream cones. Following advices from the metropolis it was feared that these popular penny treats must contain boric acid or some preservative dangerous to the welfare of the infant consumer. A verdict of not guilty has been brought in, however, and henceforward the happy urchin may partake of his cent's worth of ice cream in its convenient little cone with no lurking fear on the parent's part of anything more malignant than ptomaine poisoning or gastritis.

Recent metropolitan improvements in Boston are causing other cities to sit up and take notice. Here is the "Rhode Island Belle" urging that Providence take a leaf from the Hub's note book, suggestive of the value of the treatment of the Charles river basin. Thus, with parks, shaded streets, and other improvements the Rhode Island capital might transform the dirty little river which flows through its midst. What the Hub has been able to do with the environments of the once unsightly mud flats between Cambridge and Boston can be done in other cities with similar conditions. A long step forward has been made toward the city beautiful and Bostonians feel quite proud of furnishing the incentive to other cities to go and do likewise. The improvement in health conditions is no less than along esthetic lines, and the Charles River Basin, with its esplanades, bridge walks, driveways, turf and shrubbery ,makes a delightful pleasure ground for the residents of the west end of Boston and many others.

Citadels of Bay State conservatism are being assaulted one after another by the militant suffragists of Massachusetts. Early in July a flying wedge of orators invaded Brockton. While this is written Tauton is being besieged by a dauntless group which includes Mrs. Mary Atherton Howe, president of the Newton suffage association, Mrs. Birdsall, press correspondent and a member of the same, organization, Mrs. Anne Withington, Miss Margaret Foley, Miss Spencer and Mr. Alfred H. Brown. Thereafter the group will move upon New Bedford and Fall River and then, in August, upon the Merrimack Valley cities. In a week's campaign it is found that some impression can be made upon a town. Speaking to all sorts o faudiences these earnest and sincere women give a large number of people to understand that the equal suffrage movement is not a joke, not a temporary obsession of the unsexed. Meantime at the suffrage headquarters in Boston there are hopeful indications of a very active autumn and winter. Among distinguished visitors in this country from overseas wil lbe Miss Sylvia Pankhurst, daughter of the great leader of the militant suffragism, who spoke in Boston last October; Miss Margaret McMillian; the Hon. Philip Snowden, M. P. an dhis wife, the latter no stranger to New England.

Would you marry a man with a lump in his throat? A permanent lump, that is, and not simply one of the kind that precedes a proposal? The silly season epidemic has struck in at one of the Hub's newspaper offices, as shown by a series of letters to the editor on the subject of the advantages and disadvantages, from the fair sex's view-point, of the Adam's apple. Several ladies have recorded their opinoins and prejudices. One of them makes it a rule never to marry a man who has not a prominent Adam's apple which she has found betokens gentleness of character, and an ability to raise muskmelons, moonshine and mortgages. Others find that the "movable collar button" is accompanied by a voracious appetite and that the owners thereof are generally very long lived. This is an eminently interesting and weighty problem in matrimony, and it is hoped that the discussion will be resultant of much enlightenment and benefit to the whole public of North America.

Every good sized city ought to have a Flower Day such as the one which the public grounds department, the scores of florists throughout greater Boston ,the churches, clubs, welfare organizations, and private individuals from all over New England, under the direction of a local newspaper and with the aid of the two big express companies, are undertaking to secure for the benefit of the poor children in the slums who never see fresh flowers in their homes, and who seldom even have a chance to step on green grass. Letters with promises of hundreds upon hundreds of bouquets and potted plants to be delivered to eager little ones in the hot city hove overwhelmed the kind hearted people in charge of the enterprise, while other letters begging not to be overlooked in the distribution of the posies have come from the youngsters whose playground is a dirty back alley and whose acquaintance with the beauties of the flowers is confined to the discarded bunch occasionally dragged from some noisome garbage or ash barrel. It is notable that among the most eager givers are the children of the suburbs who have written many letters promising to send all the flowers they can pick in the neighboring fields and gardens. Seemingly every tenement child should have a plant or nosegay all its own if the plans work out, and what this means to the tenement child only those know who have seen the joy and wonder aroused in its face by a simple little flower.

As a contribution to the gayety of a continent a five-legged sheep and a three-legged calf have been offered to Mayor John F. Fitzgerald of Boston for the purposes of the new zoo soon to be started in Franklin Park. The grounds out there have been examined and an appropriation made for the plans ,so that it is now onl ya matter of time when the Hub will have its long desired zoological park. But the aforesaid freaks will have to disport themselves elsewhere. While appreciating the offer the zoological secretary was obliged to decline on the ground that the city is about to establish, not a side-show, but a bona fide zoo.

Ethel Angier.

Boston, July 22, 1910.

AT THE BOSTON THEATRES

AMERICAN MUSIC HALL.

"Bingville Bugle" the great rural play by Newton Newkirk founded on the comic feature of the Boston Sunday Post is still occupying the boards at the American Music hall where it is being given an admirable presentation by the members of the Lindsay Morison stock comupany. From present indications it is likely that the play it will remain at least another week at this theatre and possibly two or three week more. The play itself proved a delightful surprise to the thousands of patrons who had closely followed Mr. Newkirk's work in the Boston Post. They all believed that it was to be an uproarious comedy instead they found a delightful drama with a beautiful love story running through it and containing just enough comedy to raise it above the melodrama class. The Lindsay Morison stock company are already rehearsing for presentation after "Bingville Bugle." Clyde Fitch's great comedy success "Girls." The only time this piece played in Boston was at the Majestic theatre for a two weeks' engagement when the very highest prices were charged for admission. Mr. Morison will present it at his same popular summer prices.

KEITH'S THEATRE.

Frank Lalor ,the star of "Coming thro the Rye," and a number of other big musical productions, will make his vaudeville debut at Keith's on Monday surrounded by a splendid company in what is said to be one of the most amusing short musical comedies seen here in a long time. Mr. Lalor in himself is a whole show and undoubtedly will always be remembered for his great work in "The Sultan of Sulu," one of the best of George Ade's musical pieces. He will be surrounded by an exceptionally strong bill, one feature of it being Bird Millman, unquestionably the greatest wire artiste now before the public. Miss Millman is as lovely on on the slack wire as Eva Tanquay is on the stage, doing cake walks and all sorts of dances, some of which seem incredible. There will be a number of new features, including Edwards, Murray and Tierney, in their splendid comedy called "A Night in a Rathskeller;" Felix Adler the monologist; Knenedy, Nobody and Platt; eKlly and Kent; the Mozarts in a sensational dancing specialty; the Misses Turner the Southern singers, and banjoists; and Walker and Strum, in a European novelty.

Farming Is So Easy.

A Jackson county farmer serving on the jury recently stood in the hallway of the criminal court building, stretching and yawning and complaining about not getting enough exercise out on the farm.

"You fellows around the city do a lot of walking and shifting about," the farmer commented to a city man.

"When I was on the farm plowing and cultivating the soil I had no complaint to make about not getting enough exercise," was the suggestive comment of the city man.

"You lived away back there at a time when a man followed the plow and lifted it around at the end of the furrows after having carried it to the field on his back and such things," the farmer explained. "We ride and plow these days, you know. Almost everything else is done by machinery. Why, we have to construct a gymnasium on the farm to get a little exercise when we get up in the mornings and before we go to bed at night."

Then he stretched and yawned again, while the city man kicked himself—metaphorically—for having to work so hard.—Kansas City Star.

BRIEFS

Frank Collet of the Jordan, Marsh Company, Boston, is on his vacation.

Lewis Phillips was the guest of Edwin Callamore at North Pembroke over the week end.

Mrs. James Welch of Safford street who has been dangerously ill is slowly recovering.

Glance over the Ledger ads today before you start out to do your Saturday shopping.

Masters Dannie and William Donneley of Holbrook road are ill with the measles.

Mrs. Fulton of John street, Montclair is spending her vacation at home.

Officers Donovan, Duffy, Phillips and Broberg are having their vacations this week.

Mt. Wollaston lodge of Odd Fellows will attend the funeral Saturday afternoon of Edson L. Loud of Washington street.

Benny the second son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry L. Rice of Adams street was operated upon on Thursday at the Quincy Hospital for appendicitis.

Robert Barham has given a tract of land to the Spiritualists for a church. It is said that five thousand dollars has already been raised for the building.

John Donovan, who was arrested for the larceny of the automobile of Mrs. Adelaide White, wrecked at Quincy Point, was held on Thursday for the Suffolk grand jury.

E. F. Young of the Merry Mount Poultry yards has purchased a handsome new carriage. Mr. Young's poultry is known far and wide as he has one of the best equipped yards to be found within many miles.

The battleship North Dakota built at Quincy will sail from Charlestown Monday on a month's shake down trip. It is expected that she will join the Atlantic fleet for target practice and duty Sept. 5.

Mrs. Nickerson of Montclair had a sum of money stolen from her house on Sunday while the family were at church. It is thought that it may have been taken by the crap shooters who play about there on Sundays.

R. E. Foy & Co., the South Quincy grocers, report they were almost swamped with orders for spring lamb last Saturday and are firm believers in printer's ink. They have another attractive trade advertised in today's Ledger. They believe in hustling no matter what the weather is.

Chief Burrell attended the annual outing of the Massachusetts Chief of Police club on Thursday at Nahant. Dinner was served at the Relay house after which automobiles weer taken for a ride through the towns of the North Shore. The party took an automobile ride of nearly 100 miles visiting among other places the summer capital at Beverly.

LIVELY BLAZE AT WOLLASTON

Started from Oil Stove in the Kitchen

The alarm from Box 52 at 11 o'clock this noon was for a lively fire in the two flat house at 169 Safford street, owned by M. K. Green of Jamaica Plain. The house is occupied on the lower floor by George E. Carr and on the second floor by Albert Birse.

The fire started in the kitchen of the Birse tenement, and was caused by a blue flame oil stove taking fire. The heat burst the oil tank of the stove spreading a gallon of burning fluid over the floor. Fortunately no one was burned when the stove went up.

When the department arrived the whole room seemed to be a mass of flames. The department were able, however, to practically confine the fire to this room ,although it had begun to work upthrough the ceiling to the attic, and the flames were coming out of one window.

The black smoke penetrated every room on the upper floor, and this with the fire entailed a loss estimated by Chief Williams at $800. The recall sounded at 11.25, although it was noon before the apparatus returned to its stations.

MORE TRAINS DEMANDED

Committee from Quincy Adams Go to Railroad

Messrs. John L. Miller and Andrew Milne representing the Granite Manufacturers' Association, had a hearing this morning before transportation officials of the N. Y. N. H. & H. R. R. and demanded better train service for Quincy Adams.

The yasked for three additional expresses to Boston in the morning, and three additional outward trains in the afternoon. hTey also want the 11.25 P. M. from Boston to stop, and when a new schedule is adopted in the fall they would like a train from Boston about 11.45 P. M. They asked also that the 4.40 from Boston on Saturdays make a stop at Quincy Adams.

The committee feel confident that their requests will be granted.

BRIEFS

Oscar Wixten moved into his new house on Eliot avenue on Thursday.

Bert Hammond has sold his place on Cross street, South Hanson and with his family has moved to this city.

Arthur R. Poquitt has been appointed to a position in the master mechanic's office of the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. The postion of station agent of Atlantic vacated by him has been filled by William H. O'Brien of the South Bay junction tower.

The ctiy of Quincy is to place three new arc lights at Motnclair very soon. One will be placed on Pope street, one on Ardell and the third on Montclair avenue. With the building of the new schoolhouse in Bellevue park there will be an added necessity of lights in that section of the city.

Caught the Jury.

"Oratory is, indeed, a lost art," said a Cleveland man the other day. "I used to go down to the courts just to hear the lurid speeches. Nothing doing in that line any more. The lawyers do not talk about flowers, rainbows and sunbeams any more.

"There was a lawyer in Cleveland years ago—Bill Robinson was his name—whose addresses to a jury always attracted a crowd. I will forever remember one of his sentences. The man he was fighting in the suit had a reputation as something of a miser.

"'Who is this man, who is he?' thundered Robinson. 'You know and I know that he boils his potatoes in widows' tears.'

"This phrase caught the jury, and Robinson won his case, but one doesn't hear any such 'oratory' as that nowadays."

In the Vernacular.

"I understand that Binx got into financial difficulties owing to his desire for a more elegant home."

"Yes. He couldn't let swell enough alone!"—Washington Star.

McGREGORS OFF FOR BARRE

Have Game for Saturday with Barre Team

The McGregor Association football team of this city leave tonight at 5.50 from Quincy Adams and take the 7.30 P. M. train for Barre, Vermont, they play the Barre team. They will arrive in Barre about 4 o'clock A. M.

The McGregors are members of the Boston Association League, which was recently formed. The Fore Rivers are also membe s of the league. The league is composed of the Boston Rovers, Boston Rangers, Boston Americans, Charlestown, Lynn, Brockton, Fore River and MacGregors.

A cup has been presented by M. Thomas Gneves of Boston. The winner will retain the cup until it is won by another team the following year.

The MacGregor team includes:

Goal—John Drysdale.
Right back—Robert Wilson.
Left back—Robert Craig.
Right half back—Robert McDonald.
Center half back—Thomas Robertson.
Left half back—Donald Meldrum.
Outside right—Robert Robertson.
Inside right—William Remnie.
Center—Daniel Forsythe.
Outside left—John Hendrig.
Inside left—John Rowe.

SPORTING NOTES.

There are no scheduled games in the Granite City league for tomorrow.

Quincy leads the Old Colony League by two games.

John J. Barrett, the Irish Marathon runner now living at Houghs Neck, has announced his intentions of competing in the Labor Union's picnic Sept. 5.

Kelley, formerly of South Boston High, will play with the Fore River Apprentices hereafter. Grethe of the Malden White Sox, will do the pitching for the remainder of the summer.

Glaze and White will be the opposing pitchers on Water street tomorrow afternoon.

The Massachusetts of the Manchester Yacht club also made it three straight in defending the Seawanhaka cup.

The Globe reports that Catherine Fonseca, known in Dorchester as a remarkable swimmer, made a record Thursday afternoon by swimming from Savin Hill playground to Squantum point and back without touching land and without aid of any sort. The distance is about six miles.

The Globe reports that William D. Magner, a 19-year-old Hingham lad, swam Hull gut Thursday morning at the first of the flood tide in 9 minutes.

He started about 50 yards northeast of Pemberton pier, swimming to Peddocks island. Walter E. Cobb, who crossed the gut last year in 11 minutes, was referee and Thomas L. Gordon was timekeeper. Miss Rose Pitonof of Dorchester holds the record for the swim, having accomplished the distance in 8 minutes last summer.

Over $100 in prizes are offered for the open regatta of the Quincy Yacht club to be sailed on Tuesday, Aug. 9. There will be seven classes including the Sonderclasse and Class M for Hingham one-design boats.

The Ramblers play the Andrew A. A .of South Boston at Merrymount park Saturday, at 3 P. M.

O'Brien, Manning and Rice will be missing from the Ramblers batting card this week so the Ramblers will be badly handicapped.

O'Brien will play with the Rail Reds against the Bryant A. C. for a purse Saturday.

Stan Bates has been sick for some time now and will not play against Plymouth Cordage this week.

Ted Penley it is rumored may twirl for the Ramblers on Saturday.

As the Adams A. A. has not answered the Ramblers, Manager Burton says that if they don't answer by Saturday he will be unable to play as another team wants that date .

September and October the Ramblers will make it a point to play all teams in Quincy for the championship so now isthe time to get ready. It is hoped that some one will give a "cup" or a pennant.

Alfred—"Papa, do they use snapping-turtles for soup?"

Papa—"No, my son."

Alfred—"Why do they call them snapping-turtles?"

Papa—"Because they have a 'snap' in not being used for soup."—Harper's Bazar.

COPELAND VS. NORWOOD

Standing in the Norfolk County League

The Copeland team will meet the Norwood team in the Norfolk County League tomorrow afternoon at Norwood, and although the local team is handicapped by some of the best men being o nthe sick list a fast game is expected. A"lec" Elcock and "Patsy" Duggan, who have been working on the points for the past two games can be depended upon to hold the fast Norwood team close to the wind, and with an even break of luck the Quincy team should win.

The batting order for the game is as follows:

COPELANDS	NORWOODS
A. Elcock, c	C. Callahan, ss
Fay, ss	O'Brien, c
J. Elcock, 2b	McCready, lf
Duggan, p	J. Callahan, 1b
Desmond, 1b	Allen, 2b
Egan, 3b	Wilson, 3b
Boyd, lf	Nealon, cf
Hebert, cf	Quinn, rf
Dunn, rf	Quam, p

The standing of the Norfolk County league to date is:

	Won	Lost	Percent
Walpole	9	1	.900
Norwood	7	3	.700
Hyde Park	6	4	.600
Copeland	4	6	.400
City Mills	1	5	.166
Dorchester	0	8	.000

Games Saturday:
Copelands at Norwood.

probably die.

Louis escaped to a buggy that was near the ice house of C. Patch & Son and escaped by the way of Columbia street.

Either before or after this Louis shot his mother on Trafford street and also Ben Bishop of Bishop Bros. on Intervale street.

Restilli also visited the granite quarry of C. H. Hardwick & Co., and fatally shot Henry E. Hardwick, the senior member who is one of Quincy's largest taxpayers. John Hall took charge of the body of Mr. Hardwick and took it to his home on Washington street.

At 3.40 the police call was sounded to get help to search for Louis Restilli, who is at large.

SUPERVISED PLAYGROUNDS

Very Popular with Children Where Introduced

The Quincy Playground Committee of One Hundred is informing itself in every way possible so as to be more valuable to the children on the playgrounds of this city. During a recent visit to New York the chairman of the committee, D. King visited several of the more important points conducting play for children. In one ground 700 children were enjoying themselves under careful supervision. On another ground a schedule of 24 complete games of base ball were played during one forenoon, and this on five diamonds on a comparatively small lot of land. The local committee is interested not only in the private ground in the rear o fthe Y. M. C. A. buidling but are anxious to help to inaugurate and maintain ultimately supervised playgrouds in all of the wards of the city.

BASEBALL BETS

Tom Jones, the Detroit first sacker, is proving that he is not ready yet for the minors. Tom is hitting and fielding with the best of them.

Fred Merkle of the New York Nationals is not only hammering the ball for keeps, but he is playing a nifty game around the initial corner.

Brooklyn has a number of youngsters who promise to shine in the fast set with a little more experience. Tony Smith, Daubert, Wheat and Dalton are four of the most promising ball tossers in the country today.

So Careless of Him.

"Don't worry, my friend. There's nothing the matter with you but a slight indigestion."

"Great Scott, doc! The physician I sent for yesterday said I had appendicitis."

"That was very careless of him. He should have known you couldn't afford such an expensive disease."—Browning's Magazine.

The Value of Doors.

When a man is cross there isn't anything in the world more aggravating than a house with all the connecting doors down or one that has doors that close noiselessly. A man likes to slam a door. He gets more good out of slamming a door, in his opinion, than any one could get out of religion. It is his protest against everything in the world that is wrong, and it means that he isn't much older than the child that beats its head on the floor.—Atchison Globe.

—Fitchburg people are congratulating themselves over the voluntary reduction in the price of electric light by the Gas & Electric Light Co. of that city. The reduction is about 17 per cent. The present schedule price is 16 cents per kilowatt hour, with a reduction of 10 per cent for the cash payment of accounts, and the new schedule will include a maximum rate of 12 cents fo rthe same quantity of current used under the same conditions.

Music Hath Charms.

Ignaz Pleyel, a musician held in high repute in his day and a Viennese by birth, was appointed kapellmeister at Strassburg in 1783. During the troubled times of the French revolution he lost his post, and his life was in grave danger.

He escaped death and satisfied his accusers that he was not an aristocrat by writing music to some most revolutionary stanzas, which were placed before him for the purpose, while beside stood two gendarmes with fixed bayonets.

Another instance, proving that "music hath charms to soothe the savage breast," is that of Alessandro Stradella, an Italian composer of the seventeenth century, who carried off a lady named Ortensia from the home of a nobleman of high rank. Two assassins who were hired to kill him followed them to Rome. Entering a church where an oratorio of his was being performed, they were so moved by the music that they warned Stradella of his danger and allowed him to escape.

Grim Music.

"On one occasion," said a London actor, "I decided to take a house in the suburbs and after a good deal of hunting about found one that suited my purse. Indeed, it was so excessively cheap that I was on the point of signing the lease at once, when it occurred to me that I had better take another look at it by gaslight. That night I was making a second tour of inspection and went into the dining room. It was a balmy summer night, and as I threw open the window I heard a peculiar tapping sound.

"Knock, knock, knock.

"I pricked up my ears to listen. There was silence for a moment, and then the noise continued. I turned to the caretaker and laughingly said:

"'See here, my friend, I know why this house is cheap. There's a ghost on the premises.'

"'Oh, no, sir,' he answered by way of reassuring me. "That's only the noise from the coffin factory hacross the way, sir. They hoften works there nights.'"

He did not sign the lease.

SLAUGHTER IN DETAIL

Order in which the Tragedies Took Place

The most horrible crime ever enacted in Quincy took place yesterday afetrnoon when Louis Restelli, crazed by drink, hate and rage, shot and killed his mother, shot and killed Henry E. Hardwick, a prominent manufacturer, seriously wounded his brother Gaspre Restelli, C. Theodore Hardwick and Benjamin Bishop, then made his escape in the woods at the North Commons and is now at lareg. All of the shooting occurred within half an hour and before anyone had time to intercept him in his wild career. In addition to wounding the persons named above he fired at several others but fortunately none of them were wounded.

That Restelli had laid his plans for the wholesale killing is evident from the systematic manner in which he carried out his deadly work. Armed with two heavy revolvers, he first visited the home of his mother on Trafford street and after shooting her down in cold blood drove to the works of his brothers on Penn street, where he continued his shooting, going from there to the office of Bishop Brothers, off Brooks avenue, thence to the office of C. H. Hardwick & Co., where he completed his deadly work. Although hundreds of armed men beat through the woods all the afternoon and evening, no trace of him has been found. It is probable, however, that he succeeded in leaving Quincy, the scene of his crime, by an electric car to Neponset two hours after the first shooting.

MOTHER KILLED.

During all of his mad career Restelli used a horse and buggy that he had hired earlier in the day from M. J. McGrath of Wollaston. His movements as near as they can be traced are that he left the stable of McGrath at Wollaston shortly after 1.30 and drove directly to the home of his mother on 80 Trafford street. It is said that he was angry with his mother because she had refused to advance him money or to endorse his business paper.

Driving along Centre street he left his horse standing in front of the granite yard of Deacon Bros. He walked to the home of his mother. Entering the house he found her seated at the table eating dinner. Without a word, as far as known, he drew one of his two revolvers and fired one shot at her. Thebullet struck her in the middle of the forehead and probably caused imemdiate death.

With the thirst for blood still in his heart he came out and drove to the stone yards of his brothers Adolph and Jaspre Restelli off Penn street near the N. ., N. H.Y & H. R. R. tracks.

BROTHER SHOT.

Leaving his horse near the ice house of C. Patch & Son, Louis walked to the office of his brother. He found his brother Adolph and Chester Brown, a clerk there. "I want to see Gaspre," he said, and with revolver in hand he threatened to shoot both men. However, he proceeded to the works in the rear, and first encountered William M. Adrian, the bookkeeper, who was paying off the men. Adrian smiled and passed the day with him. When Louis pointed a revolver at him he thought it only a joke, but when Louis fired he thought differentiy. Adrian thinks only one shoit was fired at him, but eye witnesses say there were two. Adrian was only slightly injured on the left side near the bel tline.

The brother, Gaspre Restelli, was not 20 feet away, and the murderer approached him and fired two shots at close range. Gaspre ran into the stone shed and fell into the corner. Louis pursued him and fired two more shots, and then escaped to his buggy and drove off via Columbia street. A gang of a dozen men witnessed the tragedy.

Before the shooting here was over, Adolph ran to his mother's home to tell her about Louis and warn her to look out for him. Entering the house he was horror stricken to find her lying on the floor bleeding profusely from a bullet wound in the forehead and dead. This was the first intimation that she had been killed.

BISHOP SHOT.

Leaving the yards of his brothers, Louis drove to the office of Bishop Bros. on Brooks avenue. Here he hired a boy to hold the horse promising to give him five cents for the job. Entering the yard he accosted Benjamin Bishop and after exchanging some words with him, asked him to go into the office as he wanted to talk with him. As the two started for the office Restelli drew a revolver. Before he could shoot however, Mr. Bishop grappled with him. Seizing him by the right arm he succeeded in wresting the revolver from him when Restelli with his left hand reached into his hip pocket and drawing a second revolver fired two shots. One of these shots entered Mr. Bishop's wrist and the other his arm.

When the two men clinched, Edward Bishop started for the pair to separate them, but as soon as he saw the revolver and heard the shooting he ran for help. After Mr. Bishop had escaped into his office Restelli entered one of the sheds and emptied his revolver, firing at random, also firing one shot at Ed. Bishop, which fortunately went wide from its mark.

He then walked to where the boy was holding his horse, and getting into the wagon cooly proceeded to reload his revolvers. This over he drove up Brooks avenue to Centre street, thence to Granite street, to Brewers corner, over Smith street to near the yards of Charles H. Hardwick & Co., where he left his team behind the sheds at the Fallon quarry.

HARDWICK SHOT.

Entering the office of Messrs. Hardwick he passed through the main office into the private office where Henry E. Hardwick and C. Theodore Hardwick were seated at their desks. Henry Hardwick spoke to Restelli saying "halloa Louis." Restelli answered pleasantly and asked if he might use the telephone. Mr. Hardwick replied yes. Starting toward the telephone he suddenly turned and before any effort could be made to prevent, began firing point blank at Henry E. Hardwick, firing at least five bullets into him, all of which entered the breast. During the shooting one of the bullets struck C. Theodore Hardwick on the knee pan, fracturing the bone. Whether Restelli fired at Theodore or not is not known, but it was the opinion of the surgeons at the Hospital that the bullet that struck Theodore was one of those that had first passed through his brother.

After being shot, Henry staggered into the front office where he fell dead. In the meantime Restelli had left the office and disappeared in the woods toward Adams street. Theodore succeeded in summoning by telephone both the police and Dr. Nathaniel S. Hunting, and seizing the whistle rope blew the steam whistle loud and long. This summoned Foreman Edward H. Geddes, and a score of workmen to the office, where they stood for a moment horror stricken. Then some of them started after the fleeing man but he hadl gone.

POLICE IN PURSUIT.

The first news of any shooting reached the police station at 2.30 and was telephoned by George W. Nightingale. Mr. Nightingale's office is quite near that of the Restelli Bros., and as soon as he heard the shooting he ran out. In telling of his experience, Mr. Nightingale says, that as soon as he heard the shots he immediately doped it out that some Italians had been shooting up the section. Although not armed he rushed out to the sheds and learning of what had taken place, telephoned the police, and then went and got some brandy which he gave the wounded man.

At that time it was not known that Restelli had shot his mother. In a few minutes the patrol wagon with Officers Cahill and Corbett arrived. Officer Cahill telephoned for more officers and then placed the wounded man in the wagon and took him to the Hospital. In the meantime Dr. McLennan had arrived and he accompanied the ambulance to the hospital.

Mr. Nightingale says he then suggested that Officer Corbett get into his buggy and go after the man which was done. Driving up through Brooks avenue he saw the crowd standing about the Bishop Bros. shed and asked where the man had gone. They informed him that he had driven toward Centre street. He immediately continued the pursuit, not then knowing o fthe Bishop shooting. Knowing that Restelli had a shed near the Hardwicks he surmised that was where Restelli had headed for, and he and Officer Corbett immediately followed the same route.

They saw the team where it had been left, and driving to the Hardwicks office learned what had taken place there. Knowing that it would be useless for him to attempt to go into the woods after the murderer unarmed he drove to City Hall where he informed Mayor Shea of the Hardwick shooting.

Mr. Nightingale believes that had he and the officer started immediately after Restelli when the officer arrived at the Restelli office that they would have overtaken him, and that the Hardwick shooting would not have taken place.

MAYOR IN CHARGE.

Mayor Shea jumping into his automobile, immediately went to the police station and then to the office of Messrs. Hardwick. In the meantime

MURDERER OUT OF STATE

Said to Have Reached Northampton Last Night

Although a squad of Quincy, Milton and Metropolitan Park officers are still searching about the woods of the North Commons, the belief grows stronger every minute, that Restelli succeeded in getting out o ftown Friday night. The police however are somewhat puzzled to know how he could have done so for the city men at work along Adams street had been notified and were on the lookout for him. Then again a little girl saw him reload his revolvers near Carrolls lane, and then disappear toward Quarry street.

The story of the Italian who saw him board a car at Presidents bridge and of Conductor Thayer who accurately described the man, were further corroborated this morning by Miss Sparrow of Wollaston. Miss Sparrow saw the man Restelli when he hired a team from M. J. McGrath in the morning and saw him drive off in it. In the afternoon she came to Quincy and took the 4 o'clock car for Wollaston. When near Presidents bridge she saw the same man. After looking about in a hesitating manner, he boarded the car.

Another clew reached the police this morning which places Restelli in the vicinity of Northampton. A man whose description tallies with Restelli took a train from the North station in the vicinity of 5 o'clock stating that he wanted to go to Rutland, Vt. He only had money enough to pay his fare to Northampton, and he got off there.

John Scott of the State police was in town this morning and informed Chief Burrell that there were two State officers located at Northampton and they were communicated with by telegraph, and a search will be made for him there.

If this latest story is true it would appear that Restelli was heading for some granite centre. He is well

DESCRIPTION OF MURDERER

An Italian, 38 Years Old, 5 Feet 8 Inches in Height

The murderer is 38 years old, of powerful build, though short---he stands five feet eight inches in height ---and is smooth shaven. He is swarthy black haired and wears rather thick glasses. He wore khaki pants, with dark coat and hat, yesterday afternoon but he may have changed. He was born in the north of Italy and came to this country early.

In the Spanish war he was a member of Co. K, 5th regt, MVM, and acquired a reputation as a marksman while a member of the militia. What adroitness he had picked up as a rifleman forsook him in a large degree yesterday, for his mother and Henry E. Hardwick, the only persons who died as a result of his bullets, were shot while the murderer was standing within a few feet of him. The others all separated from the man by distances ranging from six to 50 feet, were spared their lives, although four of them were wounded, and at least three others had such narrow escapes that they could hear the bullets whistling past their heads.

Restelli was armed with two 38-caliber revolvers. From every source of information obtainable of the murderer's actions, it was said he carried a revolver in each hip pocket while driving from scene to scene, and it was also recalled that the most serious injuries were inflicted when Restelli was firing with his right hand.

The deadliness of his aim when shooting right handed was explained by a Quincy police officer, who formerly was employed by Restelli in the stone-cutting business. This officer said that, while it is not generally known, Restelli is sightless in his left eye, having lost the use of it several years ago by the formation of a cataract.

That mark alone should prove of invaluable assistance in identifying the murderer if he is ever captured alive, for while he wears spectacles with thick, heavy lenses; the defect in his eye is scarcely noticeable.

Thursday afternoon Restelli approached George Morrissey, the driver of a depot carriage at the Quincy sta

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

The latest and most amusing as well as the most contemptible form of graft has just come to light in New York city. It is declared upon good authority that by kicking dents in the milk-cans the dealers have reduced the capacity of each can from forty to thirty-nine quarts. We have heard of people who worked harder to cheat than they would to gain an honest living, but this scheme seems to be about the limit for downright sneaking meanness.

What a lot of talk people make about the weather. When other topic of conversation fail it is very convenient to be able to talk about the long dry spell, the cold nights, the last heavy thunder shower or some subject along the same line. Aside from this there are many people who are never satisfied no matter what the weather conditions may be, but after all what is the use of fretting? We are all powerless to change climate or temperature and it is very fortunate that this is so. The best way is to make the best of each day as it comes and if it doesn't suit out own particular requirements perhaps some one else may be exactly satisfied. To fret and fume over the actions of the elements is a waste of nervous energy and productive of no good.

THE GAS PLANT.

The Plymouth County Gaslight and Power Co. has resumed operations at its plant on Quincy avenue, and has overcome the difficulties which stopped its progress three weeks ago. Manager Nevins states that the company will commence at once to lay the mains in the streets of the towns in which they have secured franchises. The work will commence on the company's land on Quincy avenue and extend out into Norfolk square, where several gangs of men will start with the mains. Manager Nevins believes that gang of 300 men will be at work during the early part of August and he claims that the company will fulfil all the specifications in the franchises which have been granted.

RECORD SLOW TRIP BY OLD SCHOONER

Occupied Fifty-Two Days In Covering 262 Miles

Boston, July 30.—When the 60-year-old schooner Loduskia, Captain Small, arrived in Boston harbor yesterday all records for slow sailing had gone by the board.

For fifty-two days the old craft had been creeping down the coast from Grand Manan, N. B., at the rate of five miles every twenty-four hours. Gales that blew her out of her course, fogs that compelled her to lay to, calms that stopped her progress for days, a storm that blew her onto the ledge off Matinicus, and a leaky hull, made the combination that brought work and worry to her captain and crew.

She leaked like a sieve and the men were nearly exhausted from work at the pumps when she tied up.

She made the distance of 262 miles in fifty-two days, the longest trip on record between the two ports. Captain Small expected to make the trip in one week.

MURDERER UNKNOWN

Coroner's Jury Unable to Name the Slayer of Walter Hanscomb

Portland, Me., July 30.—The coroner's jury which has been investigating the death of Walter G. Hanscomb, who was shot in a livery stable in Gorham, reported that the man came to his death at the hands of some person unknown.

Mrs. Mary Stewart, who was badly wounded when Hanscomb was shot, and awaiting whose testimony the sessions of the jury have been postponed from time to time, is reported by her physicians as likely to become hopelessly insane.

LIND REFUSES TO ACCEPT

His Withdrawal From Politics Is Irrevocable, He Declares

Everett, Wash., July 30.—"I cannot understand the reported action of the convention," said former Governor Lind of Minnesota, discussng his nomination for governor by the Minneapolis Democrats.

"I have stated repeatedly that I could not and would not accept the nomination. I stated in a letter to the chairman of the state central committee some weeks ago that my decision not to re-enter politics was final and irrevocable and my attitude remains unchanged."

Fight Pictures Barred In Texas

Houston, Tex., July 30.—The lower house of the state legislature passed to engrossment a bill prohibiting the exhibition in this state of moving pictures of the Jeffries-Johnson fight, pictures showing train robberies and of those of similar nature.

Humbert's Death Mourned

Rome, July 30.—Solemn memorial services were held throughout Italy on the tenth anniversary of the assassination of King Humbert.

Mistook Torpedo For Candy

Alliance, O., July 30.—Her curiosity aroused at the sight of a little red box which she found in the yard, 3-year-old Mildred Cassaday placed the object in her mouth and chewed on it. The little red box proved to be a torpedo, which exploded. The child died in a short time.

Connecticut Autoist Killed

Danbury, Conn., July 30.—Frank P. Ginty of this city was killed four miles south of Danbury when the rear tire of an automobile in which he was riding burst and the machine turned over twice, landing right side up in the roadway.

The Barebone Family.

The celebrated name of Praise God Barebone was borne by a member of the Cromwell parliament called together after the dissolution of the long parliament in 1653. The royalists called the assembly "Barebones parliament." At the time when General Monk was in London Barebone headed the mob that presented a petition to parliament against the recall of Charles II. Of the Barebone family there were three brothers, each of whom had a sentence for a name—Praise God Barebone, Christ-came-into-the-world-to-save Barebone and If-Christ-had-not-died-thou-hadst-been-damned Barebone.

Poison In Young Rattlesnakes.

Observations on live rattlesnakes show that the poison glands become functionally active as soon as the snakes begin to shift for themselves, which must be very soon after birth. Experiments on the young ones six days after birth proved the presence of venom in small quantities. Experiments made three months after birth showed that considerable venom is secreted, as a pigeon innoculated at this time died in two hours with the usual symptoms of chronic poisoning

VICTIMS OF THE TRAGEDY

All Well Known and Generally Respected

Henry E. Hardwick was a member of a family that has been connected with the granite industry many years. He was the son of the late Charles H. Hardwick, who was one of the leading granite manufacturers and quarry owners in the state.

Several years ago Mr. Hardwick took his two sons, Henry E. and C. Theodore into company with him and since then the firm has been C. H. Hardwick& Co. These two sons have conducted the business since their father's death. Both have been very prominent in the city.

Henry E. Hardwick is survived by his wife, four sons and one daughter. His sons are Dr. Sidney C. Hradwick and Dr. Everett Hardwick, Charles H. Hardwick, a prominent lawyer and former member of the City Council; Robert Hardwick and Miss Minnie Hardwick. Also a mother and sister, Mrs. Elizabeth Alden.

Dr. Sydney Hardwick lives in this city and with his brother, Charles H. went to their father's office immediately after the shooting. Their father was just alive and died a few moments after they reached there.

Mrs. Hardwick was at her summer home in Kenberma, and her son Robert rode down in an automobile to notify his mother of the father's death. Mrs. Hardwick was brought to her home in an incredibly short time by auto.

She is prostrated and is in the care of physicians.

Miss Minnie Hardwick was coming from Boston on a train when she saw her father's name in the newspapers. She insisted on reading the paper hoping that there might be a mistake but when she found her father's name was among the killed, she collapsed.

C. Theoodre Hardwick lives on Chestnut street wih wife and three sons. Many friends called at the house and hospital to learn of his condition. Mrs. Hardwick went quickly to the hospital.

Mrs. Restelli was well known by the Italian people and had many friends. All of her sons are well known, both in Italian and American circles because of their prominence among their own people and their business connections in the granite trade.

Benjamin Bishop is another popular man among the granite manufacturers and lives on Federal avenue with his little family.

Gaspre Restelli is also well known in the granite trade and has a good reputation both as a citizen and as a business man.

MURDERER OUT OF STATE

known in all of the centres, and should he appear at any of them he is almost certain to be apprehended.

Some years ago he had trouble with his countrymen at Barre, Vt., who claimed he was a liquor spotter. It is said that they placed a rope about his neck and leading him out of the city threatened to string him up unless he immediately left the city and promised not to return. Should he go to Barre, now trouble is sure to be waiting him.

Chief Williams said this morning that in cases like that of yesterday, if the parties had only run to Box 39 near the scene of the shooting of the brother that it would have summoned the fire department and a crowd. This would at least prevented the shooting of Mr. Hardwick and possibly have prevented the shooting at the Bishop Bros. sheds, and resulted in the man's immediate capture.

Judge—"Gentlemen of the jury, what is your verdict?"

Irish Foreman—"We find that the mon who stole the horse is not guilty."

tion and wanted to hire a buggy. He was told by Morrissey that he could not have his outfit. Restelli's rage was apparent in an instant, and he hotly inquired why he couldn't have the team. Morrissey told him that he would drive him to Braintree, the destination he stated, at the regular rates; but Restelli retorted that he wanted to do the driving.

Restelli, who boarded with Joseph Monte at 4 Furnace ave., evidently had been planning his wholesale onslaught for some time, for Thursday night when he called at his boarding house he confided to Mrs. Monte that he was "feeling sick in the head," and Friday morning he ate scarcely any breakfast. He left the house shortly after breakfast and walked about the streets, calling on an Italian woman in the southerly part of the city and bidding her goodby, saying he intended going away to look for a job.

Instead of leaving the city, however Restelli went to Wollaston, and at the livery stable of Michael McGrath hired a horse and buggy and insisted upon paying for the outfit in advance. He tendered an employe of the stable a $5 bill. Not knowing just how long the man was going to have the outfit, the stableman accepted the money, but when Restelli returned about noon and explained that he would again want the horse and buggy at 1 o'clock the stableman told Mr. McGrath of the incident and inquired as to the charges he woule make for the afternoon.

McGrath told his employe to return $1 when Restelli should call after dinner for the horse. This was done, and at 1.15 the murderer drove out of the stable, having been given a spirited black horse and a top covered buggy for his use.

It seems that Restill had tried to secure a team of John Hall and Charles H. Penniman.

The murderer was early apprenticed to the stone cutter's trade. He knew of the disease that threatened the guild, and fear of this, as much as anything else, engendered in his mind a desire for something better. He wanted to become an employer of labor, rather than a laborer.

He continually overreached himself. He was one of the first to enlist in the Spanish war and hoped to win glory. He got as far as Chickamauga and fought nothing except dysentery and yellow fever.

After the war was over he came back to Quincy for awhile, then drifted elsewhere. Five years ago he was in Barre, Vt., working as a spy for the anti-saloon people among the Italians. He was not a successful spy. He was discovered and mobbed, drew a gun and shot a man. The man was injured, but not seriously so. Restelli's fellow countrymen did not wait to discover how badly, but tried to lynch Restelli, who was rescued by the Barre authorities.

The upshot of the matter was that the authorities gave Restelli fifteen minutes to fly the town and he did it in five.

Recent Inventions.

An Ohioan has patented a device to turn automobile lamps with the wheels to illuminate the road in rounding corners.

A medicine chest so operated by clockwork that only the right bottle may be removed at a set time is the invention of an Arkansan.

Two California men have patented an electric flatiron with an automatic cutoff, so that the current is used only when the iron is in actual operation.

Facts From France.

France has more than twenty windowglass factories.

About fifty lives have been lost in French submarine disasters during the past five years.

In Nantes, France, a city of some 160,000 population, there is not a single modern steam laundry. The washing is done on boats.

France has lately been importing in heavy quantities foodstuffs and manufactured goods, but has been buying sparingly of unfinished staples.

Beats Any Sunrise.

The rooster's crow does very well
As "music" now and then,
But the thing that stands for something
Is the cackle of the hen.
While the first may crow the sun up,
We aren't likely to forget
That a fresh egg served for breakfast
Beats the finest sunrise yet.

word had become noised about of the shooting up of the city. Arriving at the Hardwick's office, Mayor Shea learning that Chief Burrell was out of town, and that Inspector McKay had gone to Boston for a pickpocket, caused the police call to be sounded on the fire alarm circuit. This is three rounds of three blows followed by the box number which was 441. This call was sounded at 3.40 and soon a large crowd had collected.

Mayor Shea immediately assumed charge and the Metropolitan and Milton police departments were notified and all of their available men were soon being rushed to the scene. Supt. Costello of the Metropolitan ordered out his mounted force as well as the others and armed them with repeating Winchester rifles. His orders to them were if they got within fifty feet of the man to order him to hold up his hands and if he refused to shoot. That they would have carried out his orders there can be no question.

THE WOODS SEARCHED.

By 4 o'clock four squads of upwards of thirty men each had been organized and a systematic search o fthe woods in the vicinity of the North Commons and over toward Adams street had been emmenced. Every foot of ground was carefully gone over, but no trace o fthe man could be found. Inspector Goodhue, however, found an undershirt near one of the quarries upon which was worked the initials "C. R." and it is thought that possibly this may have belonged to Restelli. The shirt, however, looked as though it had just been washed and come from some clothesline, for it was not soiled. There was also a cake of soap near the shirt.

The searchers beat about for several hours until nearly 5 o'clock when more men were wanted and another alarm was sounded from Box 441. This was at 4.50 o'clock.

The search was continued until dark when arrangements were made to station squads on guard all night. Word was passed along that in case the man was found during the night that two blows would be sounded on the fire alarm.

MANY RUMORS.

In the meantime rumors kept reaching the police station that Restelli had been seen first in this place and then in that. About 6 o'clock, however, definite information reached the police that about 3.30 a man answering the description of Restelli had been seen by a little girl in the corn field of Henry M. Faxon on Cranch hill near the Hospital. The little girl said that she had seen the man stop and unload a revolver. The next word that came was from Mr. Manning at the Brooks Adams farm on Adams street, that he had seen a man near there shortly before 4 o'clock. Then came word from an Italian who claimed to know Restelli, who said that he had taken a car for Neponset near the Presidents bridge at four o'clock. He was positive that the man was Restelli.

CHIEF INVESTIGATES.

Chief Burrell then started to hunt up Conductor Thayer who had charge of the car in question. It was some time before he was located. He remembered that an Italian boarded his car near Gould's garage on Adams street for Neponset. He gave Chief Burrell a description of the man as he remembered him. The Chief then gave Restelli's description, and the two tallied identically which would seem to indicate that Restelli made his escape by this avenue and that he is now somewhere in Boston.

The Boston police were notified that Restelli was probably in hiding in that city and were given a description of him. Deputy Watts immediately sent out inspectors to watch the outgoing trains at North and South stations while others were on the lookout at Neponset. Station 1 sent out its Italian officers to make a round of he resorts where it was known the murderer frequented, but the hour was so late then that nothing was seen of him. Ageneral alarm however, had been sent out to all of the Boston police stations and the drag met was immediately set, and unless Restelli has succeeded before that time in getting out of Boston his capture is almost certain.

THE INJURED.

As stated above, Gaspre Restelli was taken to the City Hospital in the police ambulance accompanied by Dr. McLennan. Dr. McCausland who responded attended Benjamin Bishop and took him to the hospital in his automobile. Mr. aHrdwick was also taken to the hospital in an ambulance. At the hospital, Dr. Hunting, Dr. Jones, Dr. McCausland, Dr. Hardwick and Dr. McLennan worked over the wounded men and extracted the bullets and at a late hour last night it was said that all would probably recover. This morning all were resting comfortably.

The surgeons found that Gaspre had received four bullets. One in the left chest, one in the arm, one in the wrist and one in the back. Mr. Bishop received a shot in the right wrist and arm, and Mr. Hardwick in the left leg on the knee pan, which shattered the bone and travelled under the skin up his leg nearly twelve inches. It has been extracted Mr. Hardwick was unable to sleep any last night even under opiates, and moans the death of his brother.

Mrs. C. T. Hardwick is spending considerable of her time at the Hospital. Mrs. Charles Hardwick the elderly mother is remarkably calm under the circumstances ,and also her daughter Mrs. Alden. Mrs. Henry E. Hardwick is confined to her bed because of the great shock which was a severe blow to all the family.

RESTELLI'S MOTIVE.

The motives for Restelli's rash act was undoubtedly hatred. It is known that he has been acting queerly for some days, and it is said that he had not been at his boarding house, 4 Furnace avenue, for two nights, and that he was brooding over his financial condition.

It was said last night that he received a letter that morning demanding payment of a note for $400, and that he had first gone to his mother to get her to loan him the money. He then visited his brothers with the same request.

He was formerly in business with his brothers but they had some trouble and he was forced out of the firm. From here he is said to have visited Mr. Bishop, with the remark that they were his friends and that they would loan him the money. Here he was again refused, and it is thought that he began to plan for revenge.

Louis Restelli has always been the black sheep of the family. Some years ago his actions drove his father to commit suicide by jumping from the Quincy Point bridge.

REVOLVERS PURCHASED.

Chief Burrell visited Restelli's boarding house at 4 Furnace avenue and searched his effects, in the hopes of finding some clew. Among other things the Chief found a pawn ticket for a diamond ring issued by George Levine, a eBach street Botson loan office. The article pledged was a diamond ring valued at $200 upon which $50 had been received.

The same day Restelli visited a Boston sporting goods house and purchased two army revolvers of 38 calibre and a quantity of amunition and it is said that he carried one of these revolvers in each hip pocket as he started out yesterday on his man hunt.

SOME ESCAPED.

It is thought that others were included on the murderer's list and two men are not sorry. One of these was Archibald McClellan, a granite polisher, whose place of business is next to the Hardwicks, and who has had Restelli in court for non-payment of bills for polishing.

The murdered had the opportunity. He passed McClellan's shop and McClellan said he looked in, hesitated a moment, and then walked on.

"I thought he had come to argue about money matters and I thought I was ready for him then," declared McClellan afterwards.

The police also believe that before he murdered his mother, Restelli intended to shoot Constable Arthur D. Hultman. Hultman, who is the brother of Senator Eugene Hultman, had served several warrants upon Restelli and he has vowed revenge. Early yesterday afternoon Restelli called at Hultman's office in the Johnson building. He found that Hultman was out and left without leaving any message.

DAY OF EXCITEMENT.

Not since the railroad disaster several years ago has there been so much excitement in Quincy as there was Friday when the news of the shooting became known through extra editions of the Daily Ledger. Little groups of men and women gathered on every corner and discussed the details of the shooting stopping every passer whom it was thought might know something about it to make inquiries. This was especially true as to School street near the Police station where a large crowd soon gathered, filling the street, watching expecting every minute to see the murderer brought to the staion.

If there was a large crowd there in the afternoon, there was a much larger crowd in the evening when the little square near the corner of Marsh and School streets was black with men, women and children.

Soon after 4 o'clock a small army of newspaper men, including reporters that had been engaged on many murder stories, photographers and sketch artists arrived. Some came by train and others by taxicab from Boston. All made their headquarters at the Police station where they were given the use of the tables in the guard room. As soon as they arrived they began a systematic campaign. The chief reporter remained at the station while the others were detailed as scouts. Then came a systematic hunt for pictures of the victims and all of the local public automobiles and carriages were pressed into service.

Back and forth they came, and as they would dash rapidly to the Police station the waiting crowd would strain their eyes to see if the much wanted man had been captured, and their ears to hear if possible the latest in the way of developmetns. The crowd remained on duty until late, when it was realized that the chances were that he would not be captured during the night.

OPEN AIR POP CONCERT.

Fully 500 People Enjoyed the Event and St. Francis Church Receives a Large Amount Which Will Aid in Erecting the New Church.

Wednesday evening there was a very popular open air pop concert at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George B. Gavin, 72 Cedar street, Braintree, for the benefit of St. Francis church building fund. The affair was unedr the direction of Mr. and Mrs. Gavin, and Miss Grace M. Cavanagh and they deserve much credit for their hospitality and the success of the affair.

The concert was given on the tennis court, where tables and chairs were arranged as in a hall and where the audience partook of refreshments while enjoying the entertainment. The place was brilliantly illuminated with electric lights and Japanese lanterns, and the stage and background made an attractive bower of green. The lighting arrangements were in charge of Lucien Qualey, assisted by Harold Brackett.

The entertainment opened with a concert program by the Mission church band, 25 pieces, directed by Fr. Learv. and the bovs made a hit with the audience right from the opening. They alternated with vocalists throughout the evening, and their music was one of the prominent features.

The Pleasantdale quintet, composed of the Misses Donahue an dthe Misses Levangie, also won the favor of the audience with their singing.

Miss Thea Finley of Germantown was heard in two recitations, which met with great applause.

Mr. Patrick Anglin, chorister of st. Joseph's Holy Name glee club of the West End, brought out a select troupe of entertainers. Mr. Anglin was given several encores on the songs and Thomas Daley, balladist, and Warren Brooks and Andrew Goodfe'low, comic singers, also were warmly received. The other members of the troupe were Edward Sullivan, James Lynch, Edmund Lynch, James E. McKenna, J. Morgan Hennessey and Dr. W. J. Ryan.

Mises Mary Walsh of East Boston gave a cornet solo, in which she showed great skill. She was accompanied by Owen Cunningham, who also played for several other soloists and who showed his versatility in comic songs.

Miss Bessie O'Connell of Dorchester gave a fine soprano solo, accompanied by Miss Josephine Coghlan, and John Lyons of Dorchester was heard in a bass solo. His accompanist was Miss Foye.

Late on the program, but up among the leaders as mirth-provokers, were the entertainers brought out by Chas. Frasca. Jack Ferris, an Italian impersonator, and Louis Fatalo, singer and dancer, showed professional ability and won several encores .

The concert was given in aid of St. Francis church and Rev. Fr. McDonnell and Rev. Fr. Fitzgerald were on hand to enjoy the evening.

Arthur J. Cavanagh was general manager, assisted by Joseph Mohan, Edward Fegan of Quincy, Laute Blum of Boston, George Morey, Joseph and Leo Elcock and Daniel and Anderw Driscoll of Quincy, Lowell Norris, "Happy" and "Chub" Williams.

The ushers and servers were Misses Gladys Perry, Helen Averill, Margaret Burns, Helen H. Gavin, Marguerite Gavin, Helen Galvin, Gertrude Jones, Mrs. Anna White, Miss Fitzgerald, Miss Prince and Miss Marie Fegan.

—The automobile seems to be the unversal goat. Here are the woolen manufacturers maintaining that people who ride in the new vehicles habitually wear their second best clothes, not only on account of the dust, but because the machine attracts all the attention and any sort of rainment will pass unnoticed. ONLY ONE "BEST"

Quincy People Give Credit Where Credit is Due.

People of Quincy who suffer with sick kidneys and bad backs want a kidney remedy that can be depended upon. The best is Doan's Kidney Pills, a medicine for the kidneys only, made from pure roots and herbs, and the only one that is backed by cures in Quincy. Here's Quincy testimony:

Charles Somers, 17 Newcombe Place, Quincy, Mass., says: "It is a pleasure for me to make known to other kidney sufferers, the benefit I received from Doan's Kidney Pills. I had lame back as the result of weak kidneys, for about ten years. I could get no relief from the many remedies I tried and when Doan's Kidney Pills were brought to my attention, I procured a supply at the Cox Drug Store. Before long this remedy completely cured me. I shall always praise Doan's Kidney Pills.

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

BRIEFS

The Makaria base ball team fell an easy victim last Saturday to the Malden team who won 6 to 2. The visitors scored four runs in the first two innings and had it all their own way.

The Methodist Episcopal church and the Congregational church of Atlantic will hold union services throug hthe month of August. The first two Sundays the Methodists will be the guests of the Congregationalists ,the last two the Congregationalists will meet with the Methodists.

Rev. H. S. Huntington of Milton will supply the pulpit of the Park and Down church Sunday morning and also on August 14; Rev. D. F. Atherton of Abington on Aug. 7 and 21 and Rev. John L. Sewall of Boston on Aug. 28, during the absence on his vacation of Rev. W. B. Ayres.

During the month of August the pulpit of the Wollaston Methodist church will be occupied as follows: Aug. 7, Rev. Mr. Virgin of Dedham; Aug. 14 and 21, Rev. W. J. Heath; Aug. 28, Rev. Alfred Noon.

The Rev. John Garland of the Methodist church will preach in Holyoke on Sunday. His pulpit will be occupied by a stranger.

The Sunday school session and Sunday evening services have been discontinued at the Wollaston Baptist church for the summer but union services are to be held Sunday morning and Friday evenings with the Congregational church.

Union services are to be held Sunday morning at the Wollaston Congregational church. The sermon will be preached by Rev. E. A. Chase.

STETSON FAMILY REUNION.

The annual reunion of the Stetson Kindred is to be held Saturday, Aug. 20, at Norwell. There will be a business session during the forenoon, a dinner at noon, and in the afternoon speaking and an entertainment.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

GOMPERS NOT TO RETIRE

His Future Depends Upon Attitude of Federation of Labor

Washington, July 30.—President Gompers of the American Federation of Labor does not intend to retire from his place as leader of organized labor, because of the suggestion that he be retired, made by President Moyer of the Western Federation of Miners.

"There is no controversy between the organizations," said Gompers. "It is very thoughtful of President Moyer to express the opinion that I ought to be retired on a pension, but as to retirement at all, either with or without pension, it is dependable upon the judgment of the men in the American Federation of Labor who have known of the services which I have rendered in the interests of the working people, and whether these services have been faithful and effective. It is all a matter of view."

FULL BENCH IS NEEDED

Supreme Court's New Members May Be Confirmed In Special Session

Beverly, Mass., July 30.—If Justice Moody actually retires from the bench, as he is said to have now decided to do, and gives the president notice of his purpose in season, an extra session of the senate will doubtless be called in September to confirm successors of both Moody and Fuller.

The advantages of this plan would be very great. A full bench is needed in October. The great cases now pending could not be tried with either seven or eight justices. To delay their consideration till after congress regularly assembles in December would interfere seriously with the business now awaiting a settlement of the issues involved.

ATKINS SUCCESSOR TO WESTINGHOUSE

Latter No Longer President of Company He Founded

New York, July 30.—The long standing friction between George Westinghouse, president of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company, and Robert Mather, chairman of the board of directors, culminated at the annual meeting of the company, when Westinghouse was denied re-election to the presidency and Edwin F. Atkins of Boston was chosen to that position, while Edward M. Herr was elected vice president of the company and Robert Mather was re-elected chairman of the board of directors.

Atkins was recently elected a director of the American Sugar Refining company to represent, in part, New England stockholders. He is a member of the firm of E. Atkins & Co. of Boston, and has been a member of the Westinghouse board of directors since the company's reorganization.

THE LARGEST EVER SEEN

Schooner Encounters Herd of 20,000 Walrus In Behring Strait

Seattle, Wash., July 30.—The trading schooner Helen Johnson, owned and navigated by Louis Lane, encountered on June 5 a herd of 20,000 walrus swimming in the sea near Diomede islands in Behring strait.

The animals covered an area of several acres of water, and the schooner, after trying to sail through the herd, drew to one side. A photographer was on the Johnson and the incident was recorded scientifically.

This is said to be the largest herd ever seen and seems to discredit reports of the impending extinction of walrus through hunting for its ivory tusks.

DON JAIME READY TO LEAD

Pretender Supports Vatican In Its Dispute With Spain and Says It Soon May Be Necessary to Rally His Followers—King Backs Premier In Refusal to Rescind Decree Which Is Objectionable to Catholics

Madrid, July 30.—The crisis in Spanish affairs is momentarily becoming more threatening. With the breach between the government and the Vatican becoming wider, matters have been complicated by the Carlist pretender to the throne, Don Jaime, who, at San Sebastian, has issued a manifesto declaring that he will lead the Carlists in the battle which he intimates is coming soon.

King Alfonso's throne was never in seemingly greater jeopardy than now. The Vatican has halted the negotiations relative to the revision of the concordat. Despite this, Premier Canalejas has announced that the government's program, to which the Vatican objects, must be carried out.

The manifesto issued by Don Jaime congratulates the Spanish people on their loyalty to the pope in the Vatican's dispute with King Alfonso and Premier Canalejas.

"I think the day is not far distant when my followers must rally to our flag. I will lead the battle," are the concluding words of the document. Its issue has caused tremendous excitement here.

The Republican leaders have met in conference, and it is believed an uprising against all royalty will follow the first move of the Carlists.

El Mundo, discussing the threatened break between the Spanish government and the Vatican over the refusal of Canalejas to rescind the imperial decree which permits non-Catholic societies to display the insignia for public worship, says:

"The Holy See has no reason to feel offended. It is heading deliberately toward a rupture which will precipitate the opening of a rapid and energetic anti-clerical campaign."

Premier Canalejas conferred with King Alfonso on the crisis in the relations between Madrid and the Vatican. It is reported that the king gave Canalejas a promise of his continued support in the struggle with the clericals. The king's attitude has split the court into factions, but it is admitted that it has done much to check the spread of radicalism in Spain.

The clericals in the cortes held a meeting at which a plan of action was discussed. The general understanding in official circles is that the church will try to secure the downfall of the ministry. In view of the nature of the contest, however, Canalejas will have the support of almost the entire left, and his defeat is regarded as doubtful in the extreme.

At the conclusion of a conference last evening between King Alfonso and Premier Canalejas, it was announced that Marquis Emilio de Ojeda, Spanish ambassador to the Vatican, had been recalled.

BERRY FOR GOVERNOR

Pennsylvania Independents Nominate Man Who Uncovered Graft

Philadelphia, July 30.—William H. Berry for governor, D. C. Gibboney for lieutenant governor, Cornelius D. Scully for state treasurer and John Casey for scretary of international affairs is the ticket nominated by the Keystone party formed here to oppose the nominees of both the Republican and Democratic parties.

The convention denounced both the old parties as being under the domination of the liquor industries, but refused to incorporate in its platform any refrence to former President Roosevelt.

The nominee for governor was formerly state treasurer, to which office he was elected by the combined Democratic, Prohibition and Independent votes in the political upheaval of 1905. While in office he uncovered the state capitol scandal.

FITCHBURG FEELS SAFER

"Wild Man" Is Locked Up In Default of $16,000 Bonds

Fitchburg, Mass., July 30.—The Fitchburg "wild man," Lorenzo Scovino, who was arrested on charges of felonious assault, breaking and entering and larceny, has been held for the grand jury in $16,000 bonds by Judge Gallagher, and with his incarceration, in default of bonds, the reign of terror which has prevailed during the last month or more has come to an end.

There was a period when no woman dared go upon the street unattended, for while there are but three who have made complaints against the man up to the present time, the police say that many other complaints will be lodged when his case is considered by the grand jury.

CERTAIN THAT RAWN WAS NOT MURDERED

Coroner's Jury Finds That Railroad President Shot Self

Chicago, July 30.—The coroner's jury impannelled to inquire into the death of Ira Griffith Rawn, late president of the Monon railway, found that he died from a shot fired from his own weapon by his own hand. The verdict is as follows:

"We, the jurors sworn on oath to inquire into the death of Ira G. Rawn at his home in Winnetka, on July 20, find that he came to his death at 1:20 o'clock on the morning of July 20 from shock and hemorrhage, caused by a bullet from his own revolver fired by his own hand, but whether this was accidental or with suicidal intent this jury is unable to determine, except that the location of the wound and the type of revolver render the accident theory less probable."

HELD IN $25,000 BAIL

Wider Arrested In Cafe Not Far From Bank Which He Robbed

New York, July 30.—A frail little man, in whose manner and presence there was nothing to suggest that single handed he had coolly lifted $500,000 in bonds and stocks from the strong box of a bank, was arrested yesterday afternoon in a downtown cafe, not five minutes' walk from the bank he had robbed. He was Erwin Wider, the cashier of the Russo-Chinese bank, who recently, through his counsel, declined to surrender until cooler weather.

In the court of general sessions his lawyer said that he would plead guilty, and he was committed to the Tombs in default of $25,000 bail.

KING'S OATH AMENDED

Bill Modifying Coronation Declaration Goes to House of Lords

London, July 30.—Tme bill modifying the declaration on religion required of the king upon accession passed the house of commons upon third reading by a vote of 245 to 52.

In its final form the bill not only eliminates the phrases offensive to the Roman Catholic subjects of his majesty, but it also makes it acceptable to the Non-Conformists by striking out the proposed statement of adherence to the Established church.

King George is now required to declare merely that he is "a faithful Protestant."

Cragmore

A Practical Lesson In the Art of Husband Winning

By GWENDOLIN ADAMS

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

The central figure in these complications is Roscoe Curtiss. If this were a play the heroine would be—well, I would be the heroine. There wouldn't be any hero; that is, unless Roscoe would be considered such, but he isn't. He's simply an objective point like the king in chess. A character the theater people would call the heavy woman—the woman who makes all the trouble—is Kate Carpenter. The reason she has made all the trouble is that she wants the same man I want. We both want Roscoe.

There! I think I have stated the case just as it is.

Roscoe is intellectual. He stood high in his class in college and took a lot of honors—whatever that may be—but I don't love him for his learning. I love him for himself. That is, I don't exactly know what I love him for. I only know that I love him.

Kate Carpenter is a college graduate too. She's the only girl I am afraid of. When we three are together, Roscoe and Kate and I, she always introduces subjects I don't know anything about. That's a way she has of making me take a back seat. Roscoe doesn't like to talk "booky," as he calls it, and tries to stop her, but she won't be stopped. Not that she prefers to talk booky; she only wants to show her superiority over me.

I'm not such a fool but that I can see that Kate always turns the conversation on to subjects she knows something about, and when Roscoe gets on to a subject of which she is ignorant she keeps mum. It occurred to me to listen when they were talking, notice the subjects she avoids, make a list of them and study them. And so I did. I found out that history doesn't interest her. Nor does science. She smatters over social questions, professes herself theoretically a Socialist and all that.

During the spring months I devoted myself to study. All the members of this play, as I call it, are friends—at least the families are—and we meet every season at the summer cottage of one or the other for a house party. This year we are at our country home. In March, April, May and June I stuffed myself like a Christmas turkey with history. I studied up to the last minute before leaving town, and when I reached Marston, our place, I tell you I knew a lot. I'd read a whole volume of the history of England.

I didn't let on what I knew. I just laid low for Kate when she got on her high horse before Roscoe. I didn't have to wait long. The day after we all arrived we three were sitting on the porch, Roscoe smoking, Kate doing fancy work, I lolling in the hammock. Kate got on to votes for women and cited certain conditions away back in Greece or Egypt or some other benighted country in support of the position she took.

"I've always considered," I butted in, "Lady Jane Grey to be the 'egitimate sovereign of England."

Both Roscoe and Kate looked at me, astonished, then glanced at each other. Then Kate went on about the women of other times. Notwithstanding her contemptuous glance I was not to be put down.

"Why don't they include Oliver Cromwell in the list of British sovereigns?" I remarked casually. "He was a king really, if not in name. At any rate, he was a ruler."

You should have seen the amazed sneer Kate gave me. But this time she deigned to notice what I said.

"Cromwell was a regicide."

That scooped me. I didn't know what a regicide was any more than what a camel or leopard feeds on. But I didn't let on how ignorant I was. I just looked as if I knew all about it. Kate took up her old subject again, and I did some thinking. She seemed to know more than I did about Cromwell and regicides and all that. How would it do for me to invent a character? I concluded to try it.

"Do you think," I asked, "that the hanging of Cragmore at Tyburn was a just and proper thing to do?"

That caused both Roscoe and Kate to sit up and take notice. They looked at each other for a moment sort of quizzically; then Kate said to Roscoe:

"One of Jeffries' victims, wasn't he?"

"Never heard of him," Roscoe replied.

"I think he was a Monmouth conspirator," Kate protested. She would not deign to ask me about him. She had too great a contempt for my ignorance and too high an opinion of her own knowledge.

"Who was he, Lulu?" asked Roscoe.

"I'm surprised," I said, "that Kate doesn't know who he was."

She was the maddest girl you ever saw. Her face was red as a beet, and she made her fingers fly at her work.

"I'm not here cramming for an examination," she snapped.

I was so encouraged by the success of my scheme that I thought I'd go on a little further.

"Well, I don't mind telling you who Cragmore was, since you don't know," I said good naturedly. "One can't remember all the minor characters. I was interested in him because he was one of the men who helped Lord Darnley husband of Mary, queen of Scots, to murder her lover Rizzio at Holyrood palace."

If Cragmore was a surprise, this connecting him with that assassination was the bursting of a bomb. I hadn't read about this Darnley-Rizzio business at all. When we were in Scotland last year I went through Holyrood palace and heard the story from a guide.

I think that by this time Roscoe had got on to what I was about. At any rate, I saw the corner of his mouth quirk up, and he was looking far out on the landscape with his hat pulled down over his forehead. He did not say a word. I was sure he was waiting for Kate to get tangled up some more. At any rate, he let her do the talking.

"I thought," she said, "the murder of Rizzio was a mystery—that there was no certainty about the identity of the assassin."

"It may be," remarked Roscoe, "that Lulu has got hold of some recent developments which I have not been made aware of."

"H'm!" sneered Kate. "More likely she got this Cragmore mixed up with the wrong event. Seems to me I've heard the name mentioned somewhere in English or Scotch history."

I just smothered her with kindness. "Why, so you have," I said in a sweet, soft voice. "How ridiculous of me! He was one of the Scottish chiefs who went with King James when he proceeded to London to assume the sovereignty of England. Now you remember, don't you?"

"I think I do," said Kate as if she were trying to recall something.

There was a perceptible broadening of the smile on Roscoe's lips. "We've had enough of history," he said. "Let's talk tennis awhile. I bought me a new racket before leaving the city. It's a dandy."

Kate rose and, taking her work with her, went into the house. Maybe I didn't feel pretty good. I knew what she'd do. She'd ransack every book in the house trying to find out who Cragmore was. All I feared was that she would find somebody of that name. But I didn't care. I'd say that wasn't the Cragmore I meant.

However, I'd only half won the battle. But it was the biggest half. If I could put my rival out of the fight on her favorite ground, learning, I thought I could snare Roscoe. I'm not one of those girls to quarrel with a rival. When a man sees two girls fighting over him he gets disgusted with both. There's where I got ahead of Kate. She showed that she was miffed because I knew who Cragmore was and she didn't. I think I played that very foxy.

"Lulu," said Roscoe when she had gone, "you should be ashamed of yourself." He gave me an amused and a pleasant look that showed he wasn't ashamed of me.

"Why so?" I asked.

"You don't know any more about history than a newly hatched chicken."

I was ready for him. I'd been practicing looking hurt before a mirror, and I flatter myself I'd got it down to a fine point. I made him think I was going to burst into tears. I pretended to try to say something, but couldn't, I was so heartbroken.

"Why, Lulu! Don't take a fellow seriously."

"You are very unkind," I moaned.

"Unkind? Why so?"

"You who know so much to snub a poor ignorant g-g-girl"— I could go no further for rising tears.

"My dear little girl," he said, rising and taking a seat by me in the hammock, "I'm awfully sorry if I've hurt your feelings."

"Because I've not been to college as you and Kate have you do nothing but try to put me down."

"I try to put you down?"

"Yes. I simply tried to take part in some of your and Kate's conversations that I'm constantly left out of and you combine to snub me."

He rested his head on the hammock back of me. I didn't propose that it should remain there, so I turned away from him, put my handkerchief to my face and was shaken by sobs.

That did it. He put his arm around my waist.

Before I let him go I had him kissing my tears away (I was awfully afraid he'd notice there weren't any tears), and if I hadn't been for Kate coming back ostensibly for a book she'd left I would have had it all my own way and settled. You should have seen her when she saw Roscoe sitting by me in the hammock.

"Excuse me," she said; "I didn't mean to intrude. I presume Lulu is whispering in your ear who this Cragmore was."

Roscoe looked at her sort of angry. I wished she'd say something more that was disagreeable. I would have egged her on to do so, but that would have given me away also. So I held my peace, and when she had gone into the house I said softly:

"You mustn't mind what a girl says when she is angry. Kate is lovely. I wish I was as good as she is."

"And knew as much. She's always booky."

The bell rang for lunch, and, knowing that he wasn't in a mood to go any further then, I put matters off for a more convenient season. I felt pretty sure that since I had induced him to put his arm around my waist and kiss away tears that wouldn't flow I'd be smart enough to do the rest of it.

This is the way I managed it. I didn't act at all as if there was nothing between us. On the contrary, I assumed that there was a great deal between us. I pretended to be embarrassed whenever we met, cast down my eyes, started whenever he spoke to me and acted always as though the slightest harsh word from him would throw me into convulsive sobbing.

I am engaged to Roscoe.

TRAP IS READY TO BE SPRUNG

Crippen and Miss Leneve Ignorant of Plans For Arrest

CLOSELY WATCHED ON SHIP

Captain of the Montrose Sends by Wireless the Story of How He Identified Fugitive Couple—Has No Doubt of Their Identity—Everything In Readiness For Formal Arrest When Father Point Is Reached

Montreal, July 30.—The following dispatch was received here by wireless from the steamer Montrose:

"Crippen and girl closely watched night and day. Apparently have no suspicion. Passengers still in ignorance. Crippen nervous nearing port."

This is the first message containing other than the bare announcement of Crippen's presence on board received since Llewellyn Jones, the wireless operator, first got in range of the Canadian stations. It shows that the couple are actually in custody, though not formally arrested.

While Captain Kendall of the Montrose, as his own sovereign on the high seas, could, if he thought it best, order the pair imprisoned in irons, such action might develop complications and would leave him liable to heavy damages were he mistaken. The fact that he has them under watch, however, is taken as indication of the positiveness of his information as to their identity.

The order, "Separate Crippen and the Leneve woman," was sent yesterday to Constable Gauvreau at Father Point by Commissioner of Police Sherwood. It is understood that the pair will be put through the third degree immediately on their apprehension, the examination being separate.

The full details of how suspicion was first aroused against the supposed "Mr. Robinson and his son" and of the long trip across the Atlantic in which Captain Kendall was planning the capture of the couple for whom the entire world was searching, were brought to Montreal yesterday afternoon by wireless in a message from the master of the Montrose. It reads:

"I had my first suspicions after the Montrose had been out two hours from Antwerp. I watched the couple closely and came to the conclusion that the man was Crippen. He was booked as a merchant, and the girl, disguised as his son, as a student.

"Crippen has been reading constantly, is nervous and does not sleep well. Miss Leneve is gay at times and at other times appears worried and watches Crippen with tearful eyes.

"I have watched the man closely ever since he came on board the boat and I am sure today that he is Crippen. I had read fully of the case when in England and had seen pictures of both the fugitives as printed in the London papers when I was in Antwerp. There is no doubt of the identity of the couple as Dr. H. H. Crippen and Miss Ethel C. Leneve."

The Canadian police officials announced that the Montrose will in all probability not arrive at Father Point, where the trap is ready to be sprung on Crippen, before Sunday morning.

Plans For Arrest Complete

Father Point, Que., July 30.—Aboard the liner Montrose, which is creeping through the fog-bound lower reaches of the St. Lawrence, Dr. Crippen is being brought to a trap from which there is no escape save suicide. Extreme precautions have been taken to prevent any attempt at death on his part. The most wonderful wireless search for a fugitive the world has ever known, which began when the body of Belle Elmore, Crippen's wife, was found buried in the cellar of their London home, is rapidly reaching its climax and Crippen's race is nearly run.

With all doubt of the presence of Crippen and his companion, Ethel Leneve, swept away by the wireless messages received from Llewellyn Jones, who operates the Marconi instruments on the Montrose, the Canadian police are lying in wait like watchdogs at this little settlement of the South Shore.

Country Jay, Fourteen Years Old, Makes New Record

Kalamazoo, Mich., July 30.—Country Jay, grand old 14-year-old trotter, proved the wonder of the grand circuit opening if not of all harness history when in the second heat of the 2:05 trot here he made a new record for himself, in time of 2:05¼.

Country Jay won this race, which broke the world's record for the three fastest heats ever consecutively trotted, the time being 2:04¼, 2:05¼, 2:05½.

Rip Van Winkle Model Dead

Kingston, N. J., July 30.—Reuben Todd, 85, of Drybrook, better known as Rip Van Winkle to photographers and artists the country over, was found in Drybrook stream. He had a national reputation as a model for those who wished to depict Rip Van Winkl amid Catskill mountain scenes.

Rose Pitonof the 15-year-old Dorchester girl whose swimming feats are interesting Quincy people who live along the water front is going to try and swim from Charlestown bridge to Boston light on Monday starting at 7 A. M.

The full edition of the Ledger was printed and the forms broken up yesterday when the news of the shooting was received but the type was got together again and the extra was on the street soon after three.

The Ledger Office seems to be quite the busiest place in the city and the full force is on the jump trying to get ahead of the work piled up so as to be ready for the rush that always comes in the fall.

Eliot C. Johnson left today for a two weeks' vacation at Melvin Village, N. H.

The funeral of Henry E. Hardwick, one of the victims of Friday's shooting, will be held Monday from his late residence on Revere road and will be strictly private.

The funeral of Mrs. Marion Restelli, the victim of the shooting, will be held Sunday from her home on Trafford street.

ANNUAL CLUB RUN.

The annual club run to Marblehead of the Quincy Yacht club will be held Sunday, starting from the club house at 9 o'clock, at which hour the warning horn will be sounded. The launches will start at 9.05. All classes except the cat boats at 9.10, and the cat boats at 9.15. Commodore Robbins offers first, second and third prize flags for the best actual time, and a cup for the best corrected time in each class.

Fruit Fed Horses.

In Tasmania peaches are greatly relished by horses.

Dates take the place of the usual hay, corn, oats and bran in Arabia.

In the West Indies the green tops of the sugar cane are fed to the horses.

For long weeks in many parts of Canada windfall apples form the horses' only food.

Figs during the fig harvest form the food of the horses of Smyrna. They turn them to this from oats or hay.

In Egypt the khedive's best mares are fed largely on currants, and these fruit fed animals are noted for their endurance and speed.

Zinc.

Zinc expands up to the melting point.

☞ Why not pay two cents and get two cents worth of home news? That is what you get when you buy the Ledger. Good straight news, not space fillers and dead ads. The Ledger ads are alive and make interesting reading. The Ledger is forging right ahead in every way. Has a big circulation and thousand of readers every day. READ LEDGER ADVS.

FAIRY TALE READERS, GAZE UPON THIS.

Hans Andersen has been dead for many, many years, and hundreds of writers have tried hard to emulate his famous fairy tales. None has succeeded until recently, when one man did so. Being too modest of his success in filling Hans' shoes, he failed to give his name. Later we will hear from him. His first yarn is a corker and one that will leave a lasting impression upon all those who read it. Now start all together:

Anderson, center fielder of the Deep Hoven (Minn.) team, promises to eclipse in historic fame Casey of Mudville. In a game with the Prince Reality team of Minneapolis on Excelsior diamond recently Anderson caught a fly, shutting off three runners. After a long run Anderson fell into the lake, turned on his back and caught the fly, swam to shore and Deep Hoven won. This was in the eighth with the score 9 to 4 in favor of Deep Hoven. The umpire says he knew Anderson caught the ball because he lives in Deep Hoven and knows the fielder cannot dive.

MACK'S NEW $12,000 TWIRLER

Pitcher Lefty Russell of Baltimore Expected to Make Things Hum.

Wonders will never cease. Connie Mack of the Philadelphia Americans has coughed up $12,000 for a twirler. The new wonder is Lefty Russell, the star pitcher of the Baltimore team of the Eastern league. He will finish the Eastern league season with Baltimore and then go to Philadelphia.

When Russell first attracted the attention of the Baltimore owners he was pitching for a Baltimore Sunday school organization. Last year he reported for spring practice and in the anteseason games did well.

In 1909 Russell was with the Hagerstown team, an independent organization. In the western Maryland burg he cleaned up everything that appeared before him, and it was not long before Manager Dunn got him.

Since the start of the 1910 season Russell has shown phenomenal form. He has a spitter that is acknowledged the best in the circuit, and has a variety of curves and fast and slow ones that should stand him in good stead in the big show.

Russell is a willing worker, and one of his most valuable assets is the fact that one or a half dozen errors have no effect on his work, never "crabbing" over the misplay of his teammates or going "up in the air" over poor plays behind him. He is a quiet and unassuming youngster, and the praises that have been sounded over his work throughout the entire league have not changed the size of his hat in the least.

CHAMPS SUFFER SETBACK.

World's Series Clubs Playing Freakish Baseball This Year.

The Pittsburg Nationals and the Detroit Americans are furnishing as fine an example of freak baseball as any two teams could. Last season Pittsburg won the championship with something to spare, while Detroit did not have much to worry about at the close of the season. Then Pittsburg won the world's series after a great battle, which certainly indicates that the two clubs were the best in the country. Without any change worth mentioning in the lineups this year these two teams are wabbling around in their respective leagues. Adams, the star of the Pittsburg twirling staff and winner of the world's series, has apparently gone back completely and for no reason whatever. He is young, takes the best of care of himself and at the close of the world's series looked to be one of the greatest pitchers the game has ever developed, with years of usefulness before him.

Other Pirate players looked to also have at least a few years of high speed baseball in them, and the team should have repeated this season, barring a big improvement in other clubs. Detroit also looked to have the best chance for the bunting in the American league. Yet both teams have almost collapsed. But all of this is what makes baseball so interesting that it holds a big place in the hearts of the fans from one year to the other.

ARCHERS TO HAVE FIELD DAY

Bow and Arrow Experts to Compete In Chicago Beginning Aug. 16.

Archers from all parts of the country are to meet Aug. 16, 17, 18 and 19 in the thirty-second annual competition for national honors at the Washington park range, Chicago. The first day's program will consist of competition for men in the York and American rounds and for women in the Columbia and National rounds. The second round in the above competitions will take place the following day. Handicap events for both men and women and team shoots will comprise the list for the third day. Flight shooting and handicap events will make up the program for the final day.

Dalton First to Make Five Hits.

Dalton, Brooklyn's young player, was the first player this season to make five hits in a nine inning game. Hummel of the same team made five hits in a game, but the contest lasted twelve innings.
